THE SPIRIT AND INTENT OF THE JAPANESE

THROUGH RACE PROPAGATION THEY HOPE TO SOLVE ANTI-JAPANESE PROBLEM

By Montaville Flowers

THE CASE OF JAPAN AND THE United States will never be clear until we see the spirit of Japan and her intention. A controversy between men or between nations begins usually in cold, concrete facts. But as it develops, the first causes are lost in feelings and fabrications, until, as in case of the world war, all the statesmen and historians go tracing original causes with wholly divergent results.

The conflict between Japan and the United States, at present localized largely on the Pacific Coast, is so tremendous in its possibilities that Americans must be sure to make no guesses or feel no prejudices. Look at it with the eyes of the Japanese. If you do that, the case will be clear, what we must attain to will be just as clear, and the means alone are left for determination. To this end read carefully, coldly, minutely, these two translations of characteristic articles written by Japanese whose position and scholarship are of a high order, and published in magazines of authority.

These are only single items in a vast system and swelling volume of propaganda; rather, we should say, of two systems of propaganda. One is that by which the Japanese and pro-Japanese Americans are creating favorable opinion toward Japan among Americans—a vast, intricate, subtle and successful system. The other is the propaganda by which Japanese inform, instruct and inflame the Japanese to go forward forever in their national and racial aggression. In the latter field are these two extracts. Of their probable effect in stimulating the Japanese in America, the reader may be the judge.

The best evidence yet submitted to support the demand for immediate national legislation to prevent a further influx of Japanese and their "picture brides" to America, if the Japanese problem is to be solved in the interest of the United States, is contained in the accompanying article by Montaville Flowers, a resident of Monrovia, Los Angeles County. In quoted extracts from Japanese publications, are admitted the very facts which have been advanced as good and sufficient grounds for the National Congress to immediately put a stop to the "peaceful invasion" of California by the "Huns of the Orient." These extracts leave no doubt of what our fight is.

Mr. Flowers, a lecturer and author of national fame, is one of the pioneers in the anti-Japanese movement, and has rendered most valuable service to the cause by enlightening the people of those states not yet invaded by the Japanese as to the conditions in Japanese-infested California, as to the mighty forces in America co-operating with Japan in its "peaceful invasion" schemes, and as to the real intent of Japan and the Japanese. He is now filling lecture engagements that will occupy his time until December, and forwarded this most interesting article to The Grizzly Bear from Chattanooga, Tennessee.

No man in America is better informed on the Japanese question, as well as other world problems, than Mr. Flowers, and he is a one-hundred-percent American. His "Japanese Conquest of American Opinion," published in 1916, should be read by everyone who would be well and correctly posted on the Japanese problem. As President of the Internation Lyceum and Chautauqua Association of America, and Chairman of the National Conference of American Lecturers in session at Washington, D. C., April 8-13, 1918, he has recently edited "What Every American Should Know About the War," a symposium of the leaders in all branches of war activities.—Editor.

JAPAN-AMERICAN PROBLEM SOLVED!

"BEGET! BEGET! SEND FOR RELATIVES!"

The first translation is from the "Japanese-American," September 22, which publishes what seems to be the first of a series of articles by one signing himself "Kochiku Higashi" (probably a non de plume). It shows that those "crazy Californians" who accuse the Japanese of a deliberate plot to overrun and dominate their state by rapid breeding and abuse of the "gentlemen's agreement" are not wholly mistaken. The article reads in part:

"I am about to leave Los Angeles on a lucky day, the autumn 'Koreisai' (day for the worship of the Imperial Ancestors, Sept. 23). A whole year during which I have rejoiced in perpetual spring has passed like a dream since I came to Los Angeles.

"When I came from Japan to this city the war in Europe was at its height. From abroad the reports of victory after victory by the American troops were pouring in. Here, contrary to my anticipation, I could see no trace of anti-Japanese sentiment. But no sooner was the sword in its scabbard than the Americans, flushed with victory, puffed up with self-conceit, felt that they were the leaders of the world and could give orders to the Powers. Suddenly the anti-Japanese cry arose like the sound of a tidal wave on the Pacific, swept on from the west coast to the east coast, and Washington began to look like the breeding place of a world-wide anti-Japanese plot. The attitude toward our nationals in this country changed. The question became international. It now looks as if nothing will satisfy them until Japan is reduced to the position of a lackey for America. Such is the astonishing change in the international situation since I came to America a year ago.

Shantung Question Merely Symptomatic.

"And the Shantung question which has recently made so much noise is not a mere temporary phenomenon; it is only one indication of America's change of attitude toward Japan. Yes, if we overlook the deep flowing vein of opposition to and fear of Japan, it will in the future bring great disaster to Japan.

"The Shantung question is not sufficient to explain it. The Shantung question is not merely a trick of the Republican Party. Neither can we take refuge in the pro-Japanese attitude of Mr. Wilson and the Democratic Party. If we go deeply into the matter we shall discover that all America is against us on the Shantung question. The Republican Party, of course, and even the Democratic Party and Mr. Wilson himself are united in their feeling towards the Shantung matter, considered apart from the League of Nations. Conservatives and radicals, men of both parties, share these sentiments with the Republicans.

"Hence we have got to realize the necessity of an entirely new American policy in the great change in international relations which confronts Japan and the Japanese since the war.

America's Changed Policy.

"That America is fundamentally changing her Japanese policy is shown first in her Four Power Loan propositions, and now again in her arbitrary and pressing demand for a clear statement on the restoration of Shantung.

"Let Americans admire themselves. We Japanese can proudly boast that in our history, our lineage, our spirit, the Yamato people are unique in the universe. Is it not a boast worth boasting that in both hemispheres there are none with whom we suffer by comparison?

Ready to Fight for Shantung.

"If we permit America, mighty Power though she be, to interfere in the Shantung question with her arrogant demands, what becomes of our boasting? What becomes of our sovereign authority as an independent nation? It may be rude to say so, but we shall not decline to join battle with America on the Shantung question.

Japan's Glorious Civilization.

"The more one studies our civilization the more glorious it appears. The constructive genius of the Yamato people is transcendent in the world. Its stored-up glories are gradually flashing upon the eyes of the American people. They have suddenly

LEON VICTOR PRUDON [PRUDHOMME]

BEING THE RECORD OF ONE OF CALIFORNIA'S EARLIEST PIONEERS

By Charley Prudhomme

LEON VICTOR PRUDHOMME ARrived in California as early as 1835. He was born at the City of Lyons, France, in 1808, and when yet a young man came to America, landing at the then French province of Louisiana. After a short residence there his imagination became fired with thoughts of adventure, and soon, in company with Monsieur Jean Shantet, a fellow-countryman from sunny France, he fared forth and penetrated the unknown wilds to the north of Louisiana in quest of game, in which that region then abounded.

After a journey filled with many hardships, they located, as trappers on the trail of the beaver, away up on the Missouri River, where they met with varying success. Here they were joined, in due time, by a party of American trappers, who also had heard the call of the wild, and, being ardent souls, they sought to persuade the two Frenchmen to join them in a trip to the Pacific Coast,—to what was then called Alta California. After some hesitation, the courageous Frenchmen, being free and having the "world before them where to choose," decided to "tempt the dread unknown."

On to Santa Fe, New Mexico, became their slogan, with far-off California their ultimate destination. It required courageous heart and sturdy frame to accomplish such a journey in those early days. Lurking savages roamed the wilds to be traversed, the rivers were unbridged, meager trails were the only highways, rattlesnakes abounded along the paths, and the vast solitudes of waterless waste were made even more desolate by the incessant cry of the night-wolf and the perpetual howl of the coyote.

One can well imagine that this little band encountered, on the long journey over the Santa Fe Trail through New Mexico and Arizona, then so sparsely settled, many stirring episodes, both of hardship and of delight, and had many hairbreadth escapes. At times, no doubt, they were awed at sight of "the far-off mountains, clad in their mantles of snow, on whose crests the laboring clouds do love to rest," or were enchanted by those wonderful mirages, so common on the desolate wastes, which often exhibit such strange phantasmagoria as no man can imagine who has not himself beheld them.

But men like Prudhomme and his companions are not daunted by hardships nor led astray by phantasies, and so, in due time, they arrived, happy but tired, at the Pueblo de Los Angeles. Then, Los Angeles was but a small town, the few houses being principally fabricated of adobe brick of mother earth color. It was not until 1854 that Regidor (alderman) Don Leonardo Cota influenced the ayuntamiento (council) to order the inhabitants to plaster, and whitewash, the fronts of their houses.

It was in 1835, when just twenty-seven years of age and in the full flower of his manhood, that Pioneer Prudhomme came to Los Angeles. He was arrayed in all the fantastic finery that could gladden the heart of a dashing young man of the period, and his notable buckskin suit, handsomely decorated with beads and tassels, made him a prime favorite at the many gay fandangos in vogue in those early days. Time and again has Don R. L. Bouchett, better known as Don Santos Bouchett, related to the writer his admiration for that famous buckskin suit of Don Victor Prudhomme.

The trappers did not linger long in the pueblo, staying only a sufficient length of time to recover from their long overland trip. On leaving, they traveled to the north, where the party disbanded. For a time, Don Prudhomme settled in Yerba Buena (San Francisco), and later went to Sonoma City, where he married Senorita Tomas Bojorquez, a noted beauty. The marriage was not a happy one, and he obtained a divorce. While living in the Sonoma section, he became known as Don Victor Prudon, because his correct name, "Prudhomme," had the sound of "Prudon" in Spanish.

Being a young man of attractive personal appearance, well educated, and a master of the English, French, and Spanish languages, naturally he soon obtained entrance into the best society in all that region. In 1838 he was chosen secretary to Governor Juan Bautista Alvarado, and soon after was made a captain of militia and became a personal friend of General G. M. Vallejo, a commanding officer in those days and at the head of the Mexican army in the Sonoma district. In 1841 he was made secretary to General Vallejo, and later on became a lieutenant-colonel.

Among the adventurous Pioneers of California who arrived as early as 1835, was a Frenchman, Leon Victor Prudhomme by name, but known among the Spanish element as "Prudon." While he played an important part in the state's early history and was recognized as one faithful in all dealings with his fellow-men, the various works treating of California's early history afford but little information concerning him.

From a surviving son, Charley Prudhomme, a member of Ramona Parlor, No. 109, Native Sons of the Golden West (Los Angeles), The Grizzly Bear has obtained, and herewith presents, a brief account of the career of Mr. Prudhomme that will aid in completing the record of the California Pioneers.—Editor.

On June 14, 1846, when the California Republic was created, the Mexican military fort at Sonoma was taken by surprise. Among those secured as prisoners were three of the highest officers in the Mexican army,—General Guadalupe Mariano Vallejo, Colonel Victor Prudon [Prudhomme], and Captain Salvador Vallejo. Others taken prisoners were Jacob P. Leese, an American then acting private secretary to General Vallejo, all the lesser military officers, and a few soldiers. The military supplies captured included eight field pieces, two hundred stands of arms, a great quantity of grapeshot, and less than one hundred pounds of powder.

General Vallejo requested to be taken into the presence of Colonel John C. Fremont, of the American Army, but the latter declined to receive the prisoners, there being no suitable accommodations, so they were taken to Sutter Fort, at Sacramento. General Manuel Castro, of the Mexican army, who was a conspicuous character, was appreciably affected by the loss of General Vallejo, Colonel Prudon and Captain Vallejo, as well as the arms and ammunition, taken at Sonoma. Tipton Lindsey, a magazine writer, relates: "Captain E. Merritt demanded surrender of General Vallejo and officers, together with the fort, its ammunition, arms, etc. General Vallejo said, 'I surrender because I am without a force to defend the fort. I ask time to dress.' He then retired, but returned shortly, with his officers, in full uniform." The California Republic was short lived, and to this date I have never read nor heard told who were its officers. The prisoners taken at Sonoma were detained about sixty days, when they were released by order of Commodore Stockton of the United States Navy.

Soon thereafter Colonel Prudon departed from Sonoma and went to Los Angeles. His presence there becoming known to the American military authorities, they sent for him, and as a result of the interview he was requested to report to Captain P. W. Hensly at San Diego. He received a commission, and was attached to Captain Hensly's company of the California Battalion, commanded by Colonel John C. Fremont. He enlisted on September 23, 1846, for the term of three months, and served during that period. His discharge certificate reads:

> "To All Whom It May Concern: Know ye, that Leon V. Prudhomme [Prudon], Sergeant of Captain P. W. Hensly's Company, California Battalion, U. S. Forces, who was enlisted the twenty-third day of September, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six, to serve three months, is hereby honorably discharged from the Army of the United States, his term of enlistment having expired.
> (Signed) "J. C. FREMONT,
> "Governor of California.
> "Los Angeles,
> "March 6, 1847."

On October 12, 1870, Leon Victor Prudhomme received his certificate of American citizenship, acknowledged by T. D. Mott, clerk of Los Angeles County.

Don Victor Prudon [Prudhomme] as he was known among the Latin race, was a cooper and cabinetmaker by trade. In the early '50s, while residing at the Cucamonga Rancho, raising stock, he also manufactured brandy and wine, which were supplied to the pueblo. The product was transported by carreta and oxen, and the speed was slow. About 1858 the rancho was sold to John Rains who, on November 17, 1862, was murdered at Lower Azusa.

In 1856, when outlaws became so numerous as to endanger the safety of the community, a Vigilance Committee was organized. Among the loyal citizens who joined to uphold the law were Myron Norton, H. M. Alexander and Leon Victor Prudhomme. A few of the outlaws were caught and hanged, and the others, fearing similar treatment, departed.

March 1, 1860, the French Consul in Los Angeles, Jacob Antoine Moerenhout, called a meeting of resident Frenchmen to form a society. Leon Victor Prudhomme was the first secretary of that notable society.

After returning to Los Angeles, Prudhomme was wedded to Senorita Mercedes, only daughter of Don T. Tapia, an account of whose life appeared in a recent issue of The Grizzly Bear. To this union were born five children — Elexsis, Emily, Charley, Carrie, and Onorena. Alexsis and Onorena died when very young; Emily married Thomas Gates and Carrie wedded Frank McMahon, but both have passed away; the son, Charley, the writer of this article, is the only surviving child.

Leon Victor Prudhomme died at Los Angeles, May 8, 1871, at the age of 63, and his widow passed away at the same city October 10, 1912, at the age of 81.

EARLY JESUIT'S MEMOIRS MAKE FASCINATING STORY

In two volumes which together form one of the most important contributions ever made to California history, Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, Professor of American History at the University of California, Berkeley, recently published a translation of the memoirs of Father Ensebio Kino, a member of the Jesuit order and leader in the movement which eventually led to the Spanish conquest of the Californias. Father Kino's memoirs were brought to light by Professor Boltou during his years of research in Mexican archives. The translation of the Jesuit father's experiences as an explorer from 1683 to 1711 makes up a story as fascinating as romance, but one that, from the standpoint of history, will be handed down to posterity.

Father Kino, as missionary of Pimeria Alta (now divided between southern Arizona and northern Sonora), made no fewer than fifty journeys of exploration into the interior, which he was the first to make known to the Spaniards, traveling at times very nearly 1,000 miles and never less than 100. He went alone or with only a few companions among tribes of savage natives and across such waterless wastes as that of the Devil's Highway, where over a century later men died by the hundreds in the rush to the gold-fields of California. He persuaded the Jesuits to undertake the conquest of the peninsula, and by his own explorations farther north pointed out the feasibility of the Spanish advance to Monterey in what is now the State of California.

Dr. Bolton, who has already played a leading part in the development of the school of American history in which the trans-Mississippi West and the Pacific Coast are brought into prominence, has added to the translation an interesting and scholarly introduction, and has illuminated the text with editorial comments and a wealth of apparatus in maps and illustrations.

"KOLA," GOOD FOR TIRED FEET, A SURE CURE FOR THE BLUES.

Do you yearn for the two step? Does the moaning saxaphone in a jazz band thrill you not one particle? Does it only make you long for the good old days of the Paul Jones, the rye waltz, or mayhap the stately quadrille?

Try the kola! It's the only sure cure for those dancing blues. Good for tired feet, lonesomeness and the seven deadly sorrows. No, it does not come in bottles or pellets—it's a dance. It comes from Serbia, and the American Red Cross girls on duty there say it's not a bad dance, either. Anybody can do it, and everybody has to—no wall flowers permitted in the room when the kola is in action.

Easy? Why, it's as easy as eating. All that is needed is a drum and two feet—after that you improvise. The dancers gather in a circle—any number, from four to a few hundred—and clasp hands. When the orchestra, with the "reeds" dominating the "brass," begins the dancers start to circle. Then the fun begins. Do you jig? Then you can jig for awhile, and when you get tired of that you can do a buck and wing or a neat bit of interpretive dancing, while others in the party may be performing an airy skirt and ballet. Everybody does exactly as he pleases, and that's why the kola is so fascinating that American Red Cross workers in Serbia have to stop the musicians to feed the poor, who on festive days would rather dance the kola than eat.

PRE-STATEHOOD RECORDS IN COUNTY ARCHIVES

By Owen C. Coy, Ph. D.

(SECRETARY AND ARCHIVIST, CALIFORNIA HISTORICAL SURVEY COMMISSION.)

FROM THE HISTORICAL POINT OF view, the most interesting documents in the archives of the counties are those dealing with the period before the formation of the state government in California. Since these records are unique in character, being unlike any of the other records in the local archives, they have been given special consideration, as their importance deserves. The greater part of these volumes are to be found in the offices of the recorders of the respective counties. This, however, is not always the case, as many of them are in the possession of the county clerks. They may be divided into four classes: The first two divisions, which are almost entirely in Spanish, contain records relating to the Spanish and Mexican periods; the others for the period of conquest, 1846-1848, and the gold era, 1849-1850.

EARLY SPANISH PERIOD.

Fortunately there have been preserved in our local depositories records pertaining to that period when the first Europeans took possession of what they then called Alta California. Although but fragments of the original great body of records, they nevertheless constitute a most valuable source of information regarding conditions and events during that more-distant past. The great bulk of the official Spanish manuscript documents relating to California, which came into the possession of the United States upon the transfer of sovereignty from Mexico, were placed in the custody of the United States Surveyor-General, bound in some three hundred volumes, and housed in San Francisco. Unfortunately the great fire of 1906 destroyed all but about a score of these volumes and left the remainder in a condition which renders them almost incapable of use.

Following the loss of the general archives the importance of these smaller, less complete, collections has been increased. The researches of this commission have shown that records of this character are to be found among the archives of several of the counties and cities. The largest and undoubtedly the most valuable of the local collections is that in the archives of the recorder of Monterey County. This collection consists of sixteen volumes of bound documents dating from 1781 to 1850. In most cases these are the original documents and were bound while in the possession of the surveyor-general. They include the official reports of the local Spanish governmental and mission authorities, letters, addresses, proclamations and records of petty court proceedings. Since Monterey was for many years the capital of Alta California, these documents doubtless contain much very valuable information.

In the county archives of Santa Cruz are to be found somewhat more than five hundred original documents covering the period from 1797 to 1845 similar in character to those just described. Search in the other county archives met with disappointment, for in many where it was expected that Spanish records would be located none were to be found. In some places, however, a search revealed documents of a similar character in the city archives; this was especially the case in San Jose, one of the old pueblos of the Spanish regime. In the vault of the clerk of that city were found six volumes labeled "San Jose Archives." These contain original documents dating from 1792 or earlier down to the end of the Mexican period. The unsystematic manner in which the documents were bound prevented anything like an accurate description of the range of subject matter or dates covered in these volumes, except by a more complete examination than was possible in this preliminary survey. That these collections of documents will prove most valuable to the student of Spanish provincial and local history there can be no doubt.

MEXICAN REGIME.

As might be expected, the records relating to the period of Mexican control are much more numerous and varied in their nature. These documents may be grouped into two general classes: First, those relating to land titles, and, second, those which were formed as a result of the administration of the government. The former are more widely distributed among the counties, but the latter are more varied in their character. The two most important collections of records relating to this period to be found in the local archives are in those of Los Angeles and San Francisco.

In Los Angeles, one volume, "Record Book A," contains alcalde documents covering the dates following 1825. Accompanying it are volumes of documents relating to the prefecture of Los Angeles from 1834 down to the American period. With these are other documents apparently of more local character which are in the custody of the clerk. In addition to these records in the county archives, there are other volumes for the same period in the archives of the city, among them being minutes of the ayuntamiento, land petitions and financial records.

The accompanying article is an extract from "The Guide to the County Archives of California," upon which the California Historical Survey Commission—Judge John F. Davis, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W. (chairman), Dr. Herbert E. Bolton of the University of California and Edward A. Dickson—has been working for some time, and which will soon be ready for publication. The article comes to The Grizzly Bear from Dr. Owen C. Coy, Secretary and Archivist of the Commission.

It describes in general the records to be found in the various courthouses for the period before 1850, when the laws of the state specified what records should be kept by the clerk, recorder and other officials.

"These old records," says Dr. Coy, "are extremely interesting to the student of early California history and supplement the work of the Native Sons' Traveling History Fellows in making transcripts from the archives of Spain." —Editor.

In San Francisco, the number of records extant for this period is greater than in Los Angeles, although it is doubtful that they are as important historically, since they relate almost entirely to land titles and matters of a local nature.

Other records in Monterey, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Sonoma and elsewhere deal almost entirely with land titles during these years. In contrast to these land records, which may appear to be more or less uninteresting, is a book of unique character in the archives of Monterey County, namely, the "Record of Official Acts of Thomas O. Larkin." Although the record itself is short, it gives an excellent idea of the varied nature of the duties of Larkin as consular agent of the United States Government in California, when it was still under control of a foreign power.

PERIOD OF AMERICAN CONQUEST, 1846-48.

Records dealing with events during the period of the conquest of Alta California by the United States forces are to be found in the archives of Los Angeles, Monterey, San Francisco and Sonoma, the chief centers of interest during those years. In Los Angeles and Monterey these are in the form of documents bound together with those of the earlier regimes; in San Francisco and Sonoma, on the other hand, they are more voluminous and maintain their identity in separate volumes.

In San Francisco, the greater part of these relate to land matters, being either the register of property acquired under the Mexican government or the record of sale by the local alcalde or magistrate, as in the case of alcalde grants and the sale of beach and water lots. But there are some miscellaneous records which contain items of more than common interest and an occasional book of peculiar character, such as the ledger of Alcalde Bartlett for the year 1846-47, which appears to be a full financial report of the receipts and expenditures of the local government for this period.

The Sonoma records are of interest in view of the importance of that place as a settlement and of the part taken by it and its inhabitants during and following the Bear Flag revolt in June, 1846. They consist of a docket of the justice court at Sonoma, August, 1846-April, 1847, alcalde records, land claim records and deed books.

THE GOLD ERA, 1849-50.

The era of the conquest was quickly followed by the discovery of gold and the resultant influx of population. The transition period was short, the balance being shifted rapidly from the old easy-going Spanish way to the more aggressive Anglo-Saxon mode of life. As a consequence many of the records show no break whatever; until the adoption of the State Constitution in 1849 the forms of local government were not changed from the earlier system.

The local records during this period are therefore most interesting and valuable, for they show how the invading Americans took control and adapted to their use the existing institutions, especially the office of alcalde and the court of first instance, both of which were essentially Spanish in nature. Unlike anything in the Anglo-Saxon form of government, the powers and duties of the alcalde were extensive and to some extent autocratic. The following description of the alcalde is well illustrated in the documents in the county archives:

> "Studying his multifarious functions, we discover with admiration, not unmixed with awe, that one and the same person was often supreme judge, clerk of court, town-constable, sheriff, recorder, treasurer, justice of the peace, land-officer, government agent in land deliveries, superintendent of roads, town board of health, board of school trustees, arbitrator in petty disputes, general advisory board for young and old, and even, near the coast, judge in admiralty to pronounce upon all marine cases."[1]

Although the records of many of these interesting officials have doubtless long since disappeared, there are preserved in the county archives dockets, ledgers, and other records originally belonging to the alcaldes. The counties in which alcaldes' records have been found are as follows: Contra Costa, El Dorado, Marin, Monterey, Napa, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Luis Obispo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Sonoma, Sutter and Yuba.

The records of courts of first instance are found in many cases to accompany the records of the alcaldes. In Los Angeles and Santa Clara they date from 1847, but in the other cases they are for the period following September, 1849, when by Governor Riley an attempt was made to put into execution the full form of government as prescribed by the laws of Mexico.[2] These are to be found in Sacramento, San Joaquin and Solano Counties.

TO COMBAT JAP EVIL

Sacramento—For the purpose of crystallizing public sentiment against the Japanese invasion of California and to raise funds to combat the Asiatic problem, State Controller John S. Chambers, chairman of the executive committee of the California Oriental Exclusion League, has divided the state into seven districts.

In each district county organizations will be formed, and a director or supervisor will be placed at the head of each district. The county organizations will report to the district heads, and the district heads will report to the main organization, with headquarters in Sacramento.

The districts and the counties composing them follow: Northern—Tehama, Shasta, Trinity, Lassen, Modoc and Siskiyou Counties. North Coast—Solano, Napa, Sonoma, Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte Counties. Sacramento—San Joaquin, Yolo, Colusa, Glenn, Butte, Plumas, Sierra, Nevada, Placer, El Dorado, Amador, Calaveras, Alpine and Tuolumne Counties. Bay—San Francisco, San Mateo, Alameda, Marin and Contra Costa Counties. Middle Coast—Santa Clara, San Benito, Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Luis Obispo Counties. San Joaquin—Kern, Tulare, Kings, Fresno, Madera, Merced, Stanislaus, Mariposa, Mono and Inyo Counties. Southern—Los Angeles, Riverside, San Diego, Ventura, San Bernardino, Imperial, Orange and Santa Barbara Counties.

The California Oriental Exclusion League will also endeavor, when the State Legislature meets in special session November 1 to consider the suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution, to have it again immediately reconvened to act upon anti-Japanese measures.

AN AMERICAN CREED FOR AMERICANS.

The State Board of Education is to be commended for having ordered printed in the front of all school books a patriotic pledge, "The American Creed." It is a pledge that every American, child and grownup, should commit to memory, and then put into daily practice. If this be done, the anarchist, bolshevik, i. w. w. and other menaces will be effectively stamped out, and our country will proceed peacefully on its way, a greater power for good. The pledge follows:

> "I believe in the United States of America as a government of The People, by The People and for The People; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a Republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect Union, one and inseparable; established upon the principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrifice their lives and fortunes.
> "I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

THE VOYAGE OF JUAN PEREZ TO THE NORTHWEST COAST IN 1774

By Nellie Van de Grift Sanchez

IN THE LONG LIST OF BRAVE mariners, the real "Vikings of the Pacific," sent to the Western Hemisphere by Spain in the days of her supremacy on the seas, few names shine more brilliantly in the pages of history than that of Juan Pérez. To him belongs the honor of the first discovery of the entire Northwest Coast between Cape Sebastián and Queen Charlotte's Islaud. The unwise policy of Spain in keeping the results of his voyage secret for a considerable time robbed him of the glory that was justly his, and permitted the Englishman, Captain Cook, through the prompt announcement of his later explorations, to claim this honor and to name the points discovered.

After the famous voyage of discovery made by Vizcaíno in 1602-3 along the Pacific Coast as far north as Cape Sebastián, the next step would naturally have been for Spain to follow it up with further expeditions of exploration and settlement, but, as her energies and resources were fully occupied in other directions, a long hiatus occurred. When the storm-battered ships of Vizcaíno, bearing their distressed crews of scurvy-stricken men, turned their prows southward, California, the future garden of the world, which had seemed for a fleeting moment about to enter upon a new era, lapsed baek into its primitive coudition of darkest savagery. Many moons waxed and waned, while several generations of the aboriginal inhabitants grew up and passed away. The story of the strange white visitors who had come in great ships to their shores in the dim past became a grandfather's tale, to be told aronnd the campfires at night. The multitudinous tribes, with their babel of tongues, continued to trade and fight with each other and to gather their scanty living from the wild seeds of the plains and the fish caught in their frail canoes in the teeming waters of the ocean. For unnumbered seasons the wild oats ripened unheeded in the sunny meadows of the interior, the lupine and the poppy spread their glory of purple and gold on the hill slopes to the dull eye of the savage, and the rippling waters of the crystal mountain streams made their music to his inappreciative ear. The cathedral stillness of the mighty forests echoed no footfall but the stealthy step of wild beasts, or their groveling human companions iu search of the food that came easiest to their hands, whether it might be insects or reptiles. In the smiling valleys great troops of bears, digging roots for their sustenance, waged successful war against the cowardly natives, and the wild howl of the coyote and scream of the mountain lion made the woods fearsome places in the blackness of the nights. The great elk tossed his splendid antlers in proud defiance of the feeble weapons of his human enemies, and in the wide vegas of the Central Valley the swift antelope ranged in countless multitudes, feeding in security upon the lush grass. In the deep recesses of the mountains the yellow gold lay hidden, waiting for the picks and shovels of a more enterprising race. Content with his life, but little above that of the beasts of the field, the degraded native continued to build his beehive huts and temescales on the river banks, burning down his house and moving to another spot when the filth and vermin became too insistent even for his un-fastidious tastes. Yet somewhere in the depths of his darkened brain there remained a dim memory—kept alive partly by traditions handed down among his own people, partly by vague rumors that reached him now and then of white men to the sonthwest who carried guns and wore elothing, and partly, perhaps, by the infrequent sight of the white sails of some Manila galleon flitting like a ghost down the coast on her homeward journey—of the startling visit from men of another world long years before.

All the fair land lay asleep, awaiting the day of the great awakening. Yet Spain was not inactive during this period, but many circumstances united to prevent her from continuing her work in this direction. One of them was the interference of the hostile tribes of Apaches, Pimas, and others, which formed an almost impassable barrier and exhausted a great part of the resources and energies of New Spain. Moreover, private persons who had formerly financed these expeditions in return for monopolies in trade granted to them were now satisfied to go no farther than the pearl fisheries.

All the original motives for the exploration of the Northwest Coast—the fear of foreign invasion from above, the desire to annex new territory, the pious longing for the conversion of the heathen, and the real pressing need for the discovery of ports of call for the retnrning Manila ships—still existed; yet, for one hundred and sixty-six years after the return of Vizcaíno, nothing was done. The Philippine galleons, fearing the loss of their rich cargoes of silks, spices, and porcelains from the Orient by too near an approach to an uncharted shore, continued to turn southward at the first sight of the peaks of the Santa Lucía Range, aud limped wearily homeward, often with battered and leaky hulls, broken masts, torn sails, scanty and corrupted water supply, and a scurvy-tortured crew.

WRITER'S NOTE—I wish to acknowledge indebtedness to Dr. Charles E. Chapman, Associate Professor of History in the University of California, for suggestions in writing this article; in particular, for notes from his work entitled "The Founding of Spanish California." As the article has been extensively curtailed to fit the space allowed it, any detailed description of the route followed by Pérez has necessarily been omitted.—Nellie Van de Grift Sanchez.

Finally, in the year 1769, several circumstances united to urge Spain to the last brilliant effort in which her dying glory flamed out in its greatest splendor. The one special circumstance which awakened her activities was the renewed danger of foreign, this time Russian rather than English, aggression on the north. The ancient fear had been that the English would approach by the long-sought Northwest Passage, the mythical Strait of Anian, but it was now perceived that a more immediate and real danger existed in the ease with which the Russians might land on the coast by crossing Bering Sea from Kamchatka. Yet the alarm of the Spanish government does not seem to have been acute, and had it not been for the appearance on the scene at this juncture of three active geniuses, three men of the hour, it is possible that the settlement of Alta California would not have been undertaken. We owe much to Viceroy Bucareli, Visitador Gálvez, and Missionary Serra.

For the double purpose of defending the coast against foreign invaders and to carry out the long-delayed plan of providing ports of refuge for the Manila galleons, orders were issued by the king for the occupation of the harbors of San Diego and Monterey. The able and energetic visitador, José de Gálvez, set to work with charaeteristie zeal upon the preparations for this expedition—possibly the most important in the history of California, for if it had not taken place who knows whether we might not now have a New Petrograd by the Golden Gate instead of a San Francisco?

As a precaution against disaster it was decided to divide the expedition into four divisions—two to go by land and two by sea, starting separately, but all to meet at San Diego and thence to hasten on to Monterey. The chief in command of the land parties was Gaspar de Portolá, and the two sea divisions were under Captain Vicente Vila, while the spiritual leadership of the expedition was vested in the illustrious Fray Jnnípero Serra.

Two small vessels, known as "paquebotes," were commissioned to convey the two sea divisions, one, the "San Carlos," being commanded by Don Vicente Vila as chief, and the other, the "San Antonio," by Juan Pérez, both men being experienced sailing masters of the royal navy. As this article is mainly concerned with the second in command, Juan Pérez, we shall omit consideration of the voyage of the "San Carlos" and take up that of the "San Antonio."

Pérez, a native of Mallorca, was a bold and experienced "piloto" and had seen service in the Pacific as master of Manila galleons. After a prosperous voyage of twenty-four days in the "San Antonio" under the kindly care of Saint Anthony of Padua, patron saint of the vessel, he reached San Diego Bay on April 11, 1769, in advance of his superior in commaud. Thus his ship was the first to re-enter that bay after the long lapse of years since the visit of Vizcaíno. It was said (Bancroft, Hist. of Cal.) that "the natives at first took the vessel for a great whale, but soon discovered their error and regarded it as the forerunner of wonderful things, especially as an eclipse of the sun and an earthquake occurred simultaneously with the arrival of the vessel." As the Spaniards saw and felt nothing of these phenomena, they looked upon it as a miracle manifested only to the Indians in order to prepare their minds for the great spiritual change in store for them.

After the arrival of the "San Carlos" it was decided to send the "San Antonio," with the few men left fit for service, to San Blas for supplies, while in the meantime the land forces were to go on to Monterey. On this voyage nine of the men died of scurvy.

During the absence of Pérez matters at San Diego had gone from bad to worse, and provisions had reached such a low ebb that the success of the expedition was imperiled. Portolá, a brave and conscientious servant of the Spanish government, though he doubtless lacked the spiritual enthusiasm of Serra, was determined to hold on if possible until Rivera, who had been sent to Baja California for cattle and other relief, could return. But this was a long and slow trip, and it is doubtful whether he could have held out so long except for the coming of Pérez in the "San Antonio"—thus making Pérez an important figure in the saving of Alta California. It was he who commanded the famous ship which Palou tells us arrived in the nick of time in answer to the prayers of Serra.

With the story of the rapid development of the missions of California under the able administration of Serra, we have nothing to do here. It is enough to say that the particular hero of this sketch, Captain Pérez, was for some time engaged in piloting supply ships back and forth between San Blas and the Alta California missions. In this highly important work he gained the confidence of the father president, and when, in 1773, there was talk of sending a sea expedition for explorations to the north of Monterey, Serra recommended Pérez for its commander, as the man best fitted for the purpose.

Alarming reports having been received concerning activities of the Russians in the north, Viceroy Bucareli decided, in 1773, to explore the coast above Monterey and take possession of the country. He appointed Don Juan Pérez commander of the expedition, which was to be undertaken not only for the increase and glory of the king's domains, but also "so that the numerous Indian inhabitants of those unknown territories might be attracted to the gentle, mild, and desirable vassalage of his majesty and the light of the Gospel might be shed upon them, with the spiritual conquest by which they might be separated from the shadows of idolatry in which they lived and might be shown the road to eternal salvation."

The frigate "Santiago," which had been employed as a transport on the California coast, was chosen for the purpose, and was to be furnished with all necessaries, including provisions, a medicine chest, four boxes of beads, and 468 pestles for trade with the Indians. After leaving provisions at Monterey the vessel was to put directly out to sea and to endeavor to strike land at about 60°, taking care to examine the coast and to land wherever possible and take possession with the usual elaborate ceremonies.

In direct contradiction to the orders of the king, the commander was directed by the viceroy, in case any foreign establishments were found, to avoid all complications with them, but to land and take possession some distance north of them, making careful observations of the settlements, their location, number of people, ships, etc. The purpose of the voyage was to be kept a profound secret, and in case of meeting any other ship Pérez was to say that he had come with provisions for San Diego and Monterey, and had been driven north by stress of weather. Results proved this caution to be unnecessary, for no foreign settlements were found, and the lonely navigators ploughed the northern sea without being interrupted by a single hail from any other ship.

Careful observations were to be made of the Indians, in regard to their customs, characteristics, surroundings, and manner of living; of the nnmber of nations; of the state of peace or war among them; what religion they professed, and what idols they adored; how they were governed, whether by kings or in republics. Every effort was to be made to secure their friendship with gifts, nothing was to be taken from them against their wishes, and, as the most powerful means to attract them and leave a good foundation of esteem for future settlements, they were to be treated with all kindness and gentleness. Force was never to be used against them except in self defense.

Search was to be made for metals and precious stones, and note made of any spices, grains, fruits, and other products of the land. The animals native to the country were to be described, and every sort of tree and plant growing there. The Indians were to be closely questioned, as well as might be done by signs, concerning previous visits of ships or white men. No hostilities were to be practiced against the natives under any pretext.

Fortified with all these directions, Pérez set sail from San Blas in the "Santiago" on January 25, 1774. Anchor was dropped at Monterey on May s, and twenty-six days were spent there in unloading provisions and repairing ship. Fray Juan Crespi and Fray Tomás de la Peña, who had been appointed by Serra to accompany the "Santiago" as chaplains, boarded the vessel at this place. Under the old oak near the beach where the same ceremony had been performed in 1602 by Vizcaino, and again by Serra in 1770, an arbor was erected and mass for the success of the expedition was celebrated on June 10.

At noon on the next day, followed on her way by the prayers of all who watched her departure, the "Santiago" raised her anchor and set sail. I ask my readers to form a mental picture of the intrepid commander on his little sailing ship, poorly equipped, boldly turning his prow into uncharted and entirely unknown seas, along a coast that we know now to be a difficult one even for modern steamships, with its heavy, long-continued summer fogs and rocky shore. Only thus can we do some faint justice to the heroic men of Spain who blazed our paths for us, both by sea and by land.

No sooner had the ship passed the sheltering points of the bay than the ancient monarch of these seas, the northwest wind, pounced upon her and drove her southward as far as the Santa Bárbara Islands. She was beaten back and forth for seventeen days before she was able to get beyond the latitude of Monterey, and it was not until the 29th that she passed that point, so that she may be said to have only begun her voyage on that date.

Running far out to sea, 127 leagues from the nearest land, they found the wind more favorable, and, though much embarrassed by constant fogs, were able to make a northing as far as 51° 42'. At this point, on July 15, finding their water supply running low, and the crew much exhausted with constant battling against wind and weather, a council was held and it was decided to run toward the coast.

On the 18th land was sighted in 53° 53'. Drawing near they saw the smokes of many fires, and finally a canoe came out to meet them. Its occupants were singing the same song of welcome heard at San Diego and Monterey, and, as they approached, they began to cast feathers on the water in token of friendship. One of them stood up in a dancing posture, while the others rowed the canoe in a turn around the ship. A rope was thrown to them by which to board the vessel, but they seemed timid and did not venture to ascend, but by holding to the rope allowed themselves to be towed along for some distance. Cloth, beads, and ship's biscuit were thrown to them and were readily accepted. By signs they invited the Spaniards to visit their land, indicating that there they would find wood, water, and shelter for the ship. With the promise that the visit would be made the next day they went away satisfied.

These heathen were described as heavily built, good-looking men, of a light and ruddy complexion (which must certainly be accepted as comparative), and wearing their hair long. Their bodies were completely covered with dresses of otter and seal skins, and nearly all wore hats with pointed crowns skillfully woven of grasses. In the matter of clothing, which was naturally forced upon them by the rigors of their climate, they presented a marked contrast to their naked brethren of the south. Their demeanor was quiet, and they seemed to the Spaniards to be of a tractable and good disposition. Their canoes were made in one piece, the hollowed trunks of trees, excellently constructed, and were shot through the water almost with the speed of the wind by their hardy brown oarsmen.

Night drew on, and while all on board were praying the rosary to the Virgin the distant sound of other singing was heard that proved to come from another canoe which was approaching with the same ceremonies as the first. All being engaged in prayer, no attention was paid to the Indians, who then began to shout loudly, keeping this up until the prayers were finished and the hymn of praise was sung. The singing of this hymn caused great wonder among the simple aborigines in the canoes. Strange must have been the scene, when from the decks of the white men's ship, as it rocked on the heaving waters of the unknown northern sea, the solemn chant of the Christian hymn poured forth on the evening air, to be echoed by the rude song of the barbarians in their primitive dugout canoe! As the darkness deepened lights were set on the frigate and the men in the canoe were invited to come aboard. They, like the others, refused, but gave some of their dried fish in exchange for a few trifles. For some pieces of iron the sailors bought from them one of the grass hats with a pointed crown a foot high and a narrow brim, and a mat neatly woven in squares of fine black and white fiber. The manufacture of these mats is still carried on by these Indians and they are sometimes brought south for sale.

Although constantly hampered by fog and rain, the "Santiago" ran along the coast in search of a suitable harbor, and on the 19th a point was sighted which they judged to be in latitude 55°, and which they called Santa Margarita. To the north could be seen a broad cape which they named Santa Magdalena, and to the west was an island which is variously called in the documents Santa Catalina and Santa Cristina. Strenuous efforts were made to double Point Margarita and find an anchorage behind it, so that they might land and plant the cross, but a tremendous current was encountered there which forced them to the south.

With allowances for errors in latitude and some minor disagreements between the different diaries, it has been decided by modern commentators that Pérez made his landfall at Queen Charlotte's Island and followed it up to its northern point, the present Cape North in 54° 15', which he called Santa Margarita and believed to be in 55°. The strong currents running out of what he believed to be a great gulf, now called Dixon's Entrance, prevented his rounding the point. The point to the north which he called Santa Magdalena is the Point Muzon of modern maps, and the island of Santa Catalina or Santa Cristina is the present Forrester Island. By one of those injustices common in history, not a single name bestowed by Pérez, the first discoverer of this coast, has endured. It remained for a later and better advertised navigator, Captain Cook, to secure this honor.

While they were becalmed off Point Santa Margarita, canoes of all sizes, up to the number of twenty-one, began to put out from all parts of the shore. Some single canoes contained as many as twenty men, and the whole little fleet, counting men, women, and children, carried fully two hundred persons. It was seen that the women were as skillful in the handling of their craft as the men. As they approached the ship all together, the ears of the white men were stunned by their rude, concerted singing and the thumping of their wooden instruments. To the sound of these instruments, which were in the form of drums or tambourines, some of them made gestures as though they were about to break into a dance, extending their arms and then crossing them on their breasts in demonstration of friendship. As soon as they had surrounded the frigate a brisk trade started up, one side offering knives, cloth, and beads, and the other seal and otter skins. Both men and women were fully dressed in garments made of well-tanned skins and cloaks woven of fine wool or hair. Some of the garments were handsomely decorated. The appearance of the women was very much injured, at least in the eyes of the white men, by the strange fashion in vogue among them of piercing the lower lip and suspending from the opening thus made a thin round piece of wood. At a distance this gave them the appearance of having the tongue hanging out, and with one movement of the lip they were able to raise the piece of wood and cover with it the mouth and part of the nose. The size of the piece of wood seemed to vary according to the age of the wearer.

Among them all, only two had the courage to accept the invitation of the Spaniards to board the frigate. These two were taken all over the ship and expressed great wonder at what they saw. In the cabin they were shown the image of the Virgin, and, after examining it very attentively, they touched it with their fingers, doubtless, as Father Crespi says, to find out whether it was a living person.

On July 21 the ship's party took observations which they believed showed them to be in exactly 55°—in reality it was 54° 15'— and finding that the winds and weather still remained unfavorable for a landing to get fresh water, of which they were now on short allowance, and having no certainty of finding any landing place to the north, they decided to turn southward. It was their purpose to run along the shore and explore it, while seeking for a place where they might land and take possession. On the 21st the "Santiago" turned her prow homewards. Being constantly hindered by rains and fogs, despite a nine days' prayer offered to Santa Clara for favorable weather, they ran on with only an occasional glimpse of the coast.

That terrible scourge of the sailor's life, the scurvy, had made its appearance some time before and was now observed to increase greatly in virulence. More than twenty men were now incapacitated for service, and many more were painfully afflicted with sores in the mouth and on the legs.

On August 8 a boat was lowered to go for water, but at the critical moment a strong west wind sprang up which threatened to drive them on the rocky shore. They were thus forced to cut the anchor cable and put to sea, dragging the boat behind them and nearly drowning its crew before they were finally able to take it on board.

After seven days' southing, they came to a shore where they saw a high snow-covered mountain, standing conspicuously alone, which they called Santa Rosalia, and which modern commentators believe to be identical with Mount Olympus in Washington. All day they lay off here, hoping to land and plant the cross, but they were soon enveloped in such a heavy fog that it was impossible to take their bearings, and the captain was compelled to run out to sea.

On the day of Santa Clara both fathers were anxious to celebrate the saint's mass, but because of the constant rain, heavy wind, and severe rolling of the ship, it was impossible, so they were "obliged to resign themselves to the will of God." Leaving the snow-capped mountain of Santa Rosalia to the north, they sailed on past a moderately high shore, where they saw the smoke of many Indian fires. The wind still forced them to the southwest and prevented any approach to the shore to look for a harbor. "Prayers were offered to the All-Powerful that they might be permitted to reach land in safety and to plant there the standard of the holy cross and direct the erring inhabitants in the true path of salvation, for the greater glory of the Lord and the king."

On August 16, when they judged themselves to be in the neighborhood of Cape Sebastián, the

THE NEW BATTLE CRY OF FREEDOM

(WELCOME HOME DAY, NOVEMBER 11th)

(Dedicated by P. M. NORBOE of Sunset Parlor No. 26, N.S.G.W., to Returned Soldier Members of the Order of Native Sons.)

Yes, they rallied 'round the flag, boys, they rallied as of yore,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.
They rallied from the hills and plain, they came from every shore,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.
Chorus.

Democracy forever, hurrah, boys hurrah!
Down with all kaisers and up with Freedom's star,
While we rally 'round the flag, boys, rally once again,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.

Our boys went bravely 'cross the sea, Old Glory waving high,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.
They went to fight for Liberty—to fight, and thousands die,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.
(Chorus)

They joined the noble armies there who long had held the horde,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom,
And made the haughty foeman kneel and kiss the Freeman's sword,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.
(Chorus)

Our glorious flag! it never quailed before the bloody Hun,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.
It never yet has faltered once—its colors never run,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.
(Chorus)

When they brought back our bonny flag emblazed with victory,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom,
The world did shout with one acclaim "They saved Democracy!"
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.

LIFE ON THE SAN JOAQUIN WEST SIDE, '52 TO '54

By R. G. Dean

MURDEROUS HORSETHIEF

HORTLY AFTER THIS OCCURRED, elk were heard whistling in the Trahern and McMullin bottoms on the opposite side from the ferry-house. "Clacky" (we never knew any other name for him), one of the ferrymen, said he "would go over in the morning and kill one." In the early morning the bottom along the river was filled with a dense fog; objects were distinguishable but a short distance away. After wandering around for awhile in the dim twilight, "Clacky" stepped behind a bunch of willows, as he heard a band of horses approaching. Imagine his surprise to see Bennett O'Neill riding behind them.

"Hello, Bennett!" he cried out, as Bennett passed within easy ear-shot, but there was no response. Bennett did not want to hear him, and passed on out of sight. "Clacky" returned to the ferry and related the circumstances of seeing Bennett out there in the fog with a band of horses, but we doubted whether it was true.

About three o'clock that afternoon Bennett O'Neill, togged in his dirty deer skin, with a six-shooter hung to him, sauntered into the ferry-house. "Clacky," with a half-dozen others, was engaged in the usual pastime of playing poker, when Bennett appeared and, in his cheery "Howdy, boys," greeted the crowd and added, "let's take suthin," and we all lined up to the bar. "Boys, call for your pizen. I's going to take whiskey, as I might get snake bit." The glasses were filled and the usual "good luck" exchanged, as we drank and stepped back from the bar.

Bennett had taken his position at the end of the bar, farthest from the door, evidently chosen for a purpose. "Clacky" was near the other end, towards the door. As he emptied his glass, and set it down on the bar, he looked toward Bennett and asked, "Bennett, what was you doing over in the bottom this morning with that band of horses?" Instantly the whole appearance of the trapper changed; his face was a study of surprise and resentment. "Me! Me over thar with a band of hosses?" he said. "Me! You seed me over thar? Do you want to say I'm a hossthief? Your a —— —— liar," and in a frenzy of rage he jerked out his pistol and slammed its hammer hard down on the counter, with the muzzle pointed towards "Clacky." The blow exploded the pistol, and I saw "Claeky's" cap fall on the floor as he darted out of the door. When we picked it up there was a bullet hole through the rim.

As "Clacky" disappeared, I turned to look at Bennett. The expression on his face was demoniac; murder was written in every liniament of his features; his little eyes were like a snake's, flashing with venom. As our eyes met, his face broke into a sickly smile, and he chucklingly said, "'Pears to me that feller left in a hurry; mought be he forgot suthin!" I don't think he did, however; at least, he never showed up again at the ferry. That evening I crossed Bennett to the other side, and as we shook hands he said, "I mought not see you agin boy, good-by."

But the mystery of Bennett O'Neill was solved when Dick, on learning of the circumstances above narrated, explained that Bennett O'Neill, Jim Walker and a gang of greasers had been engaged for years in running horses off the California ranges into the Salt Lake basin and to other places through the Walker Pass, and that is how the Walker Pass came to receive its name. Now Bennett was possibly doing the same thing, by running them in relays from one to another of his gang. He did not doubt that "Clacky" had seen him, as he stated, and that is why Bennett tried to kill him and make it appear accidental.

This was, indeed, a revelation to me. Bennett O'Neill, my ideal frontiersman, hunter, trapper, my resurrected "Leather Stockings," a horsethief, and a murderous one at that!

My days on the river were slipping happily along. The spirited, fleet-footed saddle-horses that carried us skimming over the broad plains in exciting chase after mustangs or antelopes, the rounding up of scattered herds, the free use of our rifles, the abundance of game that we shot for the mere lust of killing, the wild sports and genial good fellowship and the untrammeled freedom, were characteristic of a life new and attractive to a purposeless young fellow, like myself, and held me willingly in its clutches. But I felt that I was imposing on Dick's hospitality, and notwithstanding I had rendered him some assistanee in riding the range, still I thought I had fun enough for once and would return to the mines. Dick would not hear of it. "Bobbie, you must stay a while louger anyway," and he insisted so strenuously that I unpacked my kit for an indefinite period.

Dick Harmer was the prinee of good fellows, free hearted and easy, fond of all the manly sports and pastimes, and particularly of a good stiff game of poker. It was a weakness of the West Siders generally, and it was no uncommon sight to see their saddled and riatted horses stauding for hours in front of the Adobe while their owuers were inside gleefully lifting each other out on a bluff or backing a good hand for every dollar it was worth.

THE "HENNERY"

Times change, and events culminated rapidly in those free and easy days, and Dick found himself stemming an adverse current ere he was aware. Somethiug must be done to recoup, and a breakfast at Stockton, where they charged him three dollars for a chicken dinner and seventy-five cents apiece for eggs, gave him the cue. "He would start a chicken ranch." He knew that hens would subsist on sunflower seeds, wild oats and grasshoppers,—wasn't the plain covered with them? And wouldn't the boys kill all the wild horses and elk they wanted for meat, and couldn't he put in a patch of wheat or barley for them, and what better place theu the "Big Wash" out near the foothills where the sunflowers grew? To think, with Dick, was to act.

Well-diggers from Stockton were employed to sink a well. A hut was to be coustructed out of willows, hauled from the river bottoms; forked sticks were to be set up and poles laid across for roosts, and a little stock of alfilaria was to be provided for coveriug. We were ordered to eut the willows and drag them out by the loggerhead of our saddles. It was great sport, the building of that "hennery," as we termed it. While we were doing this, Dick went to the city to find his stock of hens. This he was fortunate enough to do in a lot of two hundred that had just come in from the Islands, and he bought the bunch. We had worked with lively interest during Dick's absence. When he came home, we had the "henherder's" hut and the "roost" for the chickens fully completed. They were woven willow structures, the former canvas covered and the latter sheltered by a covering of alfilaria supplemented by a generous stack of the same. We were proud of the job, and Dick was pleased. But the well was a failure; owing to the sandy and gravely formation of the wash, the diggers refused to go down, for fear of caving. "Never mind," said Dick, cheerily, "we will get water from the river." Nothing seemed to deter him or dampen his ardor; he could see only the winning side in his genial optimism. Even when the suggestion was made that hawks, buzzards, wildcats and coyotes would be after the chickens, and even the owls would raid the roosts he "poo-poo'd" the idea. "The herder will keep them off easy enough," he replied; "he'll fix them plenty," and in the best of humor we awaited the arrival of the chickens.

Finally a team rolled in one day, direct from the city via the Livermore Pass, with the hens and a consignment of supplies. With them came a derelict of humanity, by the name of Miller, that Dick had picked up iu the city iu a half-maudliu condition and hired as a henherder. He was an old cotton spinner by trade, and had been imported into Mexico with that industry from Englaud, and later followed the gold-mining rnsh to California. He had a Scottish appearance, and I wondered why Dick had included a jug of whiskey among the supplies he had furnished for the henherder's comfort. When I suggested to Dick that perhaps Miller would not be able to withstand the temptation of its constant companionship without drinking too much, Dick said he thought there was no danger. "We will watch him," he said; "but, Bobbie, it'll be awfully lonesome out there, and if I don't give him his whiskey he won't stay. See?" "Yes," I thought I said, but kept mum. "We'll watch him," said Dick, and after a few parting commands, and seeing all things in ship-shape, with a parting drink we rode away and left Miller alone with his charges.

A "SET OF SUCKERS"

The next day there was to be a horserace up on the Stanislaus, and we all went. The race was a very exciting six-hundred-yard dash between a West Side horse known as "Old Bob," and a swayback brute owned in Stockton. Money, horses, cattle were bet with an abandon that seemed reckless to me, and even after the riders were up a gray-headed fellow stepped out on the track holding his sack high in hand and cried out, "Thousand to five hundred that the swayhack wius!" There were no takers. The West Siders had been bet to a standstill, and were mute. After some jockeying the horses were turned loose. Then a hush, unbroken in the short interval, to be followed by a deafening roar, as "Old Bob" poked his nose under the wire ahead of the swayback! Men shouted, hats went into the air, they grabbed and hugged each other, frantic with delight and the glory of the winning. Dick was the central figure in the group of sports and happy winners. In fact, we all had more money thau when we went there, and when it was proposed to run the race over again the next day, for double the stakes, every West Sider wanted to chip in and make up the purse; they all wanted some of it. That night, whenever a light could be procured, a poker game was in progress. Even on the outside of the roadside house, where the meet was held, serapas and horse blankets were spread, and the game went on by the firelight. It was a gambling and drinking saturnalia, and not a few were sleeping off their potation on the porch and around the harn long after the sun was ablaze the next day.

The hour of the race had been set for one o'clock. News had gone out of the result of the first race, runners had been sent to Stockton, and every sport in the Slough City was there to take a hand, and as the crowds came pouring in it looked as though everyhody was to be there. Excitement became intense. Betting ran high, with the swayback a final favorite. Well, I don't know how it happened, but I remember my heart almost stopped when I saw the swaybaek cross the line a full length ahead of "Old Bob," and scarcely heard the shouts of those who won, I was so dazed at the result.

At length we opened our eyes to the fact that we were a set of suckers, in playing "Bob" on the second race, as the swaybaek had been purposely held back in the first race, that they might get a bigger hand out of us. Hence, we were a sadder, but wiser lot. There were some heavy losers, for 'tis said the swayback owners packed off forty thousand dollars, and a big chunk of it was West Side money.

We were very tired and sleepy when we reached the Adohe that night. Dick stayed, probably intending to try and get back a portion of his losses at his favorite game, but gave me the parting admonitiou to go out and see how Miller was getting on. The next day, but well along in the afternoon, I rode with Juerro to the "hennery." Miller was gone!

"A MUTUAL SURPRISE"

We yelled, and scoured the surrounding eountry, but no Miller; he had evidently abandoned the henranch and skipped out. The hens were scattered through the sunflowers, hawks and buzzards were circling around, and the place looked as though someone had emptied a feather bed and scattered its contents to the summer winds. On the far side of the wash I could plainly see a coyote trotting along with a hen in its mouth, and on the edge of the slope beyond two more were sitting on their haunches evidently satiated with chicken but waiting for darkness to get another feast. I promptly sent Juerro back to the Adobe to let them know how things were, and to hunt for Miller. I would stay and protect the chickens.

I staked my horse, and then weut to the hut to get the gun. The tumbled blankets showed that Miller had slept there, one night at least, but there was nothing cooked, and the whiskey jug was drained to a chipper! Miller had evidently lain to it and, erazy drunk, had wandered off, not knowing where he was going, though the timber-skirted river could be easily seen in the distance. Speculation was useless. I took the gun and strolled out on the ground where the hens were scattered. I tried to shew them towards the roost, but they seemed afraid of it, rose and flew, or ran and hid, and there seemed no alternative but an all-night vigil to save what was left of the hens and keep off coyotes.

A three-qnarter moou was shining well up in the horizon when the sun dropped behind the range, and the giant shadows of the peak were lengthening towards the river when the chorused haunt of coyotes came from far and near. They seemed to rise out of the grouud, lying in wait for a combined attack on the "hennery." They had enjoyed two nights of freedom, and no doubt considered it a sort of visitation of manna thrown to them by the gringos who had recently moved in. Presnming on the situation, one fellow trotted impatiently up within twenty steps of me, and I bowled him over.

Stillness for some time followed the report of

ONE WOMAN'S OPPORTUNITY

(MAY C. LASSEN.)

HOW ONE WOMAN TOOK ADVANTAGE of making herself financially independent when opportunity knocked at her door, and which led to the establishment of a business which finally spelled success, I take pleasure in relating for the exclusive benefit of women, in the hope that they may derive inspiration, as well as encouragement, to do likewise in some agreeable pursuit; also to cheer those whose past ventures might have proved failures, with the knowledge that Opportunity knocks many times at the door and should not be let pass by unheeded.

On a visit to Tehama County, in the northern part of California, I one day became acquainted with a pleasant faced little woman while purchasing carnations. Being a great lover of Nature (particularly of flowers), I detected her aptitude and proficiency in handling the latter, so ventured to ask how and where she had obtained that knowledge and thorough art of her business. "Do you really wish to know?" she questioned with a very sweet smile, while presenting me with a lovely bunch of violets. "Certainly I do, for I am deeply interested," I replied. Bidding me be seated, she related the following:

"As a young girl, I was always passionately fond of flowers, taking great delight in them and laying out quite a little garden of my own, as it came natural to me. After my marriage, when my husband and I came to Red Bluff, we rented this place for our home. He was employed by the railroad company, and although his salary was a fairly good one, I soon learned that while it would enable us to live, there would be little left for a 'rainy day.'

"With my daily housework completed, I found ample time to while away each day some few hours in the little garden I was cultivating for my own pleasure. Soon learning that this was an excellent climate in which to raise chrysanthemums, I made it my business to send for roots of the finest assortment, and gave all my spare time to their cultivation. The result was, that I was successful, and my choice chrysanthemums were the delight of all who saw them. One day, busily working among them, a young man, passing, stopped to take a look, and expressed admiration at the wonderful blooms. I cut a few of the choicest flowers and handed them to him, and when he offered to pay me I declined his offer with thanks, informing him that I did not sell my flowers, nor had I ever thought of doing so.

"After remonstrating with me over this piece of foolishness, as he called it, he forthwith suggested that I had the finest opportunity of anyone in the town to immediately start in and make a business of the culture and sale of flowers, as the place lacked a florist, and the residents were obliged to send either to Sacramento or San Francisco for their flowers, which often were late in arriving, causing much disappointment. He handed me his card, and I learned that he was the proprietor of the undertaking establishment of the place. A few days later I received an order from him, for a funeral, for a large bunch of chrysanthemums, with which I took special pains, and shortly afterwards received a check for $10, to my surprise and delight. As more orders came, a newly-born sentiment of 'independence' filled me with happiness and courage to turn my pastime garden into a profitable business.

"This is the result. After my first orders were filled, and it became known that flowers could be bought in town, I had orders for parties, weddings and funerals from all over the county, near and far. From my first year's profits I laid in all kinds of plants and flowers, which could be successfully grown here, and later on built the little greenhouse you see out yonder, for my ferns and choice flowers. My business grew from year to year, enabling me to purchase this place, which we have improved and which is now my very own."

She then took pride in showing me through her home, also taking me to her cement cellar, where cut flowers were kept. Her town patrons further assisted by giving her permission to collect the flower frames from the cemetery, after the flowers had faded and died, thereby lessening her expense in this line and also adding to her ever-increasing treasury.

the gun and gave me an idea. I would patrol the four or five acres over which the hens were scattered, and discharge my gun occasionally to overawe the coyotes. I took up my line of march over the ground, startling a hen occasionally, that ran wildly to cover. A band of mustangs came running by, and I fired at them to accelerate their speed. Then monotonously the long hours went by. The moon had set and darkness, deep, silent and profound, had shut out all visible things. I was tired, lonesome. The coyotes had ceased their yelping, and the silence was unbroken save for the neighing of a horse and the answering call, or the flap of a night bird's wings.

I was watching eagerly for the gray dawn of morning when I heard, but a short distance away, a hen squalling lustily. Hurrying to the locality I could see nothing, but knew there had been something, and it had moved away at my approach. Grabbing up a wisp of the dry growth, I hastily lighted it, and as hastily dropped it, for there, within thirty feet of me, stood an immense grizzly! It was staring at me, its bright eyes shining like twin stars and its nose working as though scenting me. It was a mutual surprise, and I felt greatly relieved when it gave a loud sniff and ran away. It had run into the "hennery," probably on its way from the mountain to the river, and found the hen; not knowing what it was, had rolled it over with its paw and set it to squalling. In the instant that it revealed its bright eyes and massive form, I thought of flight, expecting an attack and to be found dead there in the morning. Then I remembered the trapper's advice: "Don't never be skeered of a bar, unless it's hurt or has got cubs. They'd run away if they kin," so I stood, and it ran, sure enough.

Day came at last, not too soon, and with it came two welcome horsemen, Dick and Juerro. "Morning, Bobbie, have you any news of Miller?" "No," I replied, "he soaked himself with whiskey and has put out; probably asleep somewhere." "Well, we'll find him, so go home and get some sleep. Tell Bill to send one of the boys to the ferry and see if he has crossed, and for him to go up the river and see if he can get any trace of Miller. Juerro will stay here and look out for the hens, and I'll take a turn out towards the foot hills." It was well towards noon when Dick returned. His attention had been attracted to the circling of a couple of buzzards. He watched them, understood the sign, and went there satisfied they were hovering over prey that was dead. It was Miller! "He must be brought in and buried," said Dick. He would not stand for having a "hole dug and Miller rolled into it," as someone had proposed. "There is a graveyard started at Graysonville, and we will take Miller up there and plant him decently," insisted Dick, and this was final.

changed from opposition to Japan to fear of Japan. Suspicion begets plotting. Distrust leads to fear and fear to intrigue. And they want to kick Japan down to international isolation and confine the development of her people, her spirit, and her civilization to one small island country. Truly it is a laughable and a villainous plot.

A Glorious Yamato Counter-Plot!

"Well, as I am about to leave Los Angeles for the east I venture earnestly to advise our beloved fellow-countrymen on this Coast as follows: 'Beget! Beget!' I have many things to advise our good countrymen, more than could be counted on my ten fingers, but at this time I emphasize this one thing, leaving the others for another occasion.

"What I mean is simply this, I firmly believe that IT IS ONLY BY THE PROPAGATION OF OUR YAMATO RACE, BY EVERY GOOD JAPANESE, THAT WE CAN SOLVE THE ANTI-JAPANESE, NAY, THE JAPAN-AMERICAN PROBLEM. And this is the conclusion (without giving explanations and arguments) to which I have arrived during the past year. For the next ten, twenty, fifty, or one hundred years, beget! beget! Children, boys and girls, will be treasures more valuable to you, countrymen, than hundreds of millions of gold. And at the same time they are the supreme treasures for the development of our Race.

Away With Birth-Control!

"Let those who live in separate houses immediately live together in one house. Let newly married people at once adopt sons and have them registered. Let married people without children, all the more, immediately adopt sons and bring them to America. Then immediately give a lovely bride to the adopted son. And let every one who has dependent relatives immediately send for them and bring them over. Again let me say, though we use a thousand, ten thousand words to frame a policy to meet the situation, there is one thing only which will solve the Japan-American problem. That strange doctrine of birth control, which those who fear America are advocating, is nothing but the first step in the destruction of our boasted Yamato Race!

"Awake! Even if we cannot expand our country's borders, let us expand with all speed the Yamato Race, of which we are justly proud!"

The second translation is an editorial from "New World," October 4, 1919:

JAPANESE SHOULD CO-OPERATE AND ADVANCE.

IF WE HESITATE THE BIGOTS WILL TAKE ADVANTAGE.

"We should advance and not recede. To stop is to retreat. Whether in war or in business this holds true. While we push forward boldly the enemy has no chance to form plans. We have a saying that the gods never curse successful men. A determined spirit will crush even a rock, we also say. These maxims are suitable for the present situation.

"We who are here in America where so many anti-Japanese parties exist must have this sort of determination. What can Phelan do? What can Inman do? Both are but ordinary men. Their ability is nothing unusual. Their influence is only that of the crowd. When thoroughly examined it has not the power even of a drop of water falling from the eaves. When we of the Yamato Race rise with a mighty resolve their opposition will be as futile as an attempt to sweep the sea with a broom. It is only because there is so much fear and anxiety on the part of us Japanese that they think they can undertake such big things.

"Even if photograph marriages should be prohibited, we cannot be stopped from leaving our descendants on this American Continent. Even if not a single Japanese woman comes, it is impossible to prevent the seed of our great Yamato Race from being sown on the American Continent, by MARRIAGES WITH AMERICANS, WITH FRENCH, WITH INDIANS, AND WITH NEGROES. ESPECIALLY SINCE THERE ARE ALREADY A HUNDRED THOUSAND JAPANESE HERE AND FIVE THOUSAND CHILDREN ARE BORN ANNUALLY. Phelan and Inman cannot stop this great force. What stupidity! What ignorance of a mighty force!

"Again, let us consider the Land Law. Supposing that the ideas of Phelan and Inman were carried out, and we Japanese were prohibited from owning or cultivating land, we would find some way to continue farming and making a good living as producers. If we cannot conveniently do so in California we shall go to other states and devise some plan. Even the laws of California are not forever unchangeable. THE DAY WILL COME WHEN THE REAL STRENGTH OF THE JAPANESE WILL MAKE A CLEAN SWEEP OF ALL SUCH LAWS.

"Even the Kaiser's Empire was destroyed when its time came. What can Phelan and Inman, whose influence is less than a drop in the great ocean of world tendency, do to stop the forward movement of our Yamato Race? Behold Phelan, of Irish lineage, members of whose race are scattered all over California! But, forgetting their past, he is persecuting our race. The Irish people who themselves came from overseas are not the people to say, 'America for Americans.' They differ from us Japanese only in the period when they reached this continent. Let us listen to the big Sequoia trees said to be eight thousand years old. They would laugh!

"We will say, let there be a hundred or a thousand anti-Japanese movements; let laws be made; let laws be amended; foolish agitators will have their day; wise ones will some time raise their voices. All these are temporary, but our great racial activities are eternal. All we have to do is to stand firm on the single point of justice, unite our strength and move forward energetically in various quarters of the business world."

MOUNT BALDY

(ESTHER CRONE.)

Thou pyramid of beauty
That stands against the sky,
You wear your crown of glory
Like billows rolling high.

We gaze with awe and wonder,
And joy in thy great sight,
For the majesty and grandeur
You send from out your height.

Thy peak reflects the sunlight
Like glass and burnished gold,
And shadows shun thy presence,
Mount Baldy, loved of old.

Los Angeles, California.

NOVEMBER, FIFTY YEARS AGO, IN CALIFORNIA

By Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE MOST APPALLING RAILROAD accident,—with a shocking loss of life and long list of injured,—that had occurred in California was the result of a collision about 8:45 a. m., November 14, 1869, near Simpson Station, about six miles from Oakland. It was between the east-bound passenger train and a local from Hayward, Alameda County, en-route to Alameda.

Engineman Edward Anderson, Fireman Chas. Martin and Brakeman F. Milikan of the east-bound passenger train were instantly killed, while twelve of the passengers were fatally injured, and twenty-two others were seriously hurt. The two engines struck with terrific force in a dense fog and four passenger coaches were telescoped.

The cause of the collision was blamed to the Simpson Station switch-tender who, while at breakfast, heard a train pass west bound and supposed it to be the local, which had the right of track over the east-bound passenger train. The train that passed however, was a work train. The local was ten minutes late, and when the east-bound passenger train arrived, and should have waited, he gave it an "all right" signal and it proceeded on its way for a few minutes, when it met the local and the disastrous collision resulted.

Among the passengers killed was Judge A. W. Baldwin of Virginia City, who was the United States circuit judge for Nevada and a law partner of Senator Wm. M. Stewart. Judge Baldwin was only 31 years of age, but had made a great reputation as well as a fortune as a lawyer. He was a prominent Mason, with an army of friends, and his loss was greatly deplored. An interesting incident regarding his fate was the fact that he had arranged to leave on the east-bound train of the day before, but his watch stopped at 5 a. m., which caused him to mistake the time and he reached the ferry too late. He had just left his seat and passed out upon the platform of the coach when the collision occurred and the telescoping of the cars caught and crushed him to death between them.

George Cadwallader, a prominent attorney of Sacramento, had a leg broken. There were many narrow escapes from serious injury by the more than 100 passengers aboard the train, and the accident caused a great sensation throughout the whole state.

Another mishap occurred the same date on Oakland wharf. Here a special train of Pullman sleepers, after unloading the passengers, was being backed out to the car yard when a switchman threw the wrong switch and caused the train to crash into another, doing much damage to the cars. Wm. H. Mills, the master mechanic, become so angered at the switchman, that he hit him on the head with a coupling pin, knocking him senseless for some time. Mills was arrested for assault with a deadly weapon.

Livermore Comes Into Existence.

The Western Pacific division completed its track and began operating trains and ferry to and from San Francisco via Oakland wharf, November 8. The City of Oakland had a big celebration over the event; with flags flying, firing of salutes, and a great gathering of citizens, addresses were made by Mayor J. B. Felton and other distinguished speakers; all predicted an era of great prosperity dawning upon the city.

A. N. Towne, the newly-appointed general superintendent of the Central Pacific, came, with his family, to Sacramento this month and had constructed at the railroad shops there what was then considered a palatial private car for his use.

Livermore, Alameda County, as a new station on the Western Pacific division, came into existence November 1.

What remained of the town of Cisco, Placer County, once a prosperous temporary terminal of the Central Pacific, was destroyed by fire November 1. About ten business buildings were burned, with a $30,000 loss.

Thanksgiving Day was appropriately observed November 18.

A heavy storm, lasting several days, passed over the state, beginning November 10. About two inches of rain fell in the valley. This started the growth of grass in fine shape and feed for livestock was soon in ample supply.

A stock-buyer named Chard bought 300 steers in Siskiyou County for $35.50 a head.

A sheep-raiser named Gridley, in Butte County, sold 5,000 sheep at $4 a head.

Smith & Co., horse-traders in Los Angeles County, sold to a Utah contractor 2,472 native horses at an average price of $15.70 a head.

At Stockton, November 17, a Chinaman was married to a squaw. A large number of people were present. The ceremony was performed in true Digger custom by the father of the bride. A big pow-wow followed the wedding.

The "Chicago Tribune" published the following: "The California pears are worth looking at for their beauty. Platt, the Monroe-street importer, shows some magnificent specimens. In grapes, no locality can compete with California, for those which are now coming here are finer in size, appearance and flavor than can be raised in any other region."

A pessimistic California editor had this to say: "Since the days of the '50s, if the farmers of the state have butter on their tables it has usually come from New York. The farmers of the San Joaquin Valley drive their hogs to the San Francisco market and then buy bacon made in Oregon. The farmers of California will raise wheat, barley or potatoes, depending on one staple for their profit, but keeping nary a garden, cow or chickens to help out their expenses. They are willing to put their grain crops in in the fall and harvest them in the summer, and then waste their time between in horse racing, playing pedro or poker, and such like amusements. The old easy habits of the placer mining days still linger on the ranch and will, we fear, so continue until there is a strong influx of Eastern farming blood. On a trip of over 100 miles south of Stockton we did not see a farmer at work."

Los Angeles Organizes Fire Department.

Thomas Mooney, an agitator, was holding anti-coolie meetings in San Francisco and stirring up a strong feeling against the Chinamen on the part of the laboring men.

Charles De Young and M. H. De Young, publishers of the "San Francisco Chronicle," created a sensation in social circles by publishing an article regarding the marital troubles of Dr. Augustus Bowie and wife, who was the daughter of I. Friedlander, the grain king, and who had the most elaborate and expensive wedding San Francisco society had ever enjoyed. The De Young brothers were arrested, and indicted by the grand jury for criminal libel.

Michael Hayes of the Hayes Valley family fame and an assemblyman-elect from San Francisco, created a sensation on Montgomery street, November 10, by cowhiding Wm. Hollis, another prominent citizen. They quarreled over the result of a lawsuit.

F. Z. Palmer found a ledge of coal on Pit River near Fort Crook. Coal extracted burned freely, and the vein had been traced some distance.

The City of Los Angeles had an assessed value of $2,200,000, as announced by the assessor this month.

The Los Angeles County grape crop was sold at $10 a ton. Large orders for wine from the East were received by the wineries there this month.

Los Angeles City began the organization of a fire department November 10.

Monterey Bay had a great run of sardines, followed by schools of whales feeding upon them. The sardines were breaking the surface of the water like showers of silvery spray.

November 2 a whale of large size came within a few hundred feet of a wharf. Whalers immediately launched their boat, and soon harpooned it. The people of the town gathered on the beach and watched the battle. The whale submerged and started for the sea, dragging the boat at racehorse speed over the bay. Occasionally it rose to the surface to breathe, when the whalers would bomb it. It went out about two miles, then circled about and returned to the shore, spouting blood and lashing the water with its immense tail, finally turning, belly upward, dead.

T. B. Johnson, November 1, brought into Red Bluff, Tehama County, fourteen deer which he had killed in the mountains of that county.

Napa County had a yoke of oxen that weighed over 6,000 pounds.

The Kennedy mine at Jackson, Amador County, struck a "horse" this year which financially wrecked its owners and caused it to be shut down this month. The "glooms" now had possession of the town.

The Perrin mine at Grass Valley, Nevada County, on the other hand, had developed rich ore and cleaned up $11,200 this month.

P. B. Forster, publisher of the "San Francisco Call," died from apoplexy, November 26. He carried $40,000 insurance on his life.

Highway Robbers Infest Shasta.

The Mechanics Institute Fair, in San Francisco, closed November 9 with a great carnival ball, with large money prizes for the different characters portrayed. It was largely attended by the elite of the city, $5,500 worth of tickets being sold.

A footrace was run at San Jose, November 8, 100 yards for $1,000 a side, between H. C. Johnson and Dave Carr, sprinters of sporting fame. Johnson won in 10¾ seconds.

Race meetings were held every week during the month on tracks in different cities and towns. The principal events were those at the Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, where November 2 a five-mile race was trotted between "Woodruff," "Roe Allen," "Democrat" and "Pacific," the latter winning in 13:51.

November 3, there was a $1,000 match, 3 in 5, between "Venture" and "Ajax," who trotted a dead heat in the first. "Venture" won the second and third. Then "Ajax" took the fourth, and "Venture" won the fifth. Best time was 2:42.

Highway robberies were of frequent occurrence during the month. Shasta County was the most infested; there, levying arbitrary assessments and forcibly collecting them from teamsters and miners was in vogue. Wm. Dunn, driving home from Red Bluff, Tehama County, was robbed of $200; two Chinamen were stopped near Shasta and robbed of several hundred dollars in valuables; Peter Cusick, coming to Shasta County from Weaverville, Trinity County, had $60 taken from him; Frank Thompson lost $30, and two teamsters were stopped near Van Meter's ranch and robbed of $80.

E. S. Buruell of Nevada City, Nevada County, employed at the Pittsburg mine, on his way home from work November 8 was stopped by two highwaymen. They searched his pockets; finding nothing, they then made him pull off his boots. In each sock he had a $20 piece concealed, which they took. He saved two $5 pieces by slipping them into his mouth, when ordered to hold up his hands.

Peter Maher, in Placer County, was stopped by three highwaymen November 8 and robbed of $60.

J. W. Spann, near the Canyon House, Shasta County, was stopped by two highwaymen and robbed of $35.

The store of Weineck, seventeen miles from Stockton, November 27 was attacked by several unknown robbers, who killed John Boone and Richard Sager, robbed the store and set it on fire, cremating the bodies of the two men in the flames.

W. J. Tinnin and Peter Weise of Weaverville, Trinity County, on a hunting trip in that county killed a female grizzly and two cubs. At a bear-meat dinner given at the Union Hotel in Weaverville, of which Weise was the proprietor, to their friends, Weise was presented with an elaborate belt as the champion bear hunter of Trinity County.

Popular Sacramento Merchant Killed.

F. P. Stepheuson, a well-known Pioneer and hunter of Tulare County, was found dead, lying a few feet from a grizzly he had shot and then stabbed to death. In the conflict between them the bear had crushed in Stephenson's ribs and thereby killed him.

Two brothers, named John and James Graham, had a desperate fight with a grizzly in Tehama County, November 15. James was bitten through the thigh and had eight ghastly cuts made by the animal's teeth, also several ribs broken.

A large number of serious accideuts occurred in different parts of the state, from various causes. A chemist named Lezinsky went to Smartsville, Yuba County, with an assistaut named Klause, to experiment with Heffenger powder in the O'Brien mine with Herman Smith, an employe in the mine. They were all blown up and killed, November 21.

The giant powder works located six miles from San Francisco near San Mateo County, were blown up November 26. John A. Bussenius, superintendent, and his assistant, Chas. Cooke, were killed and cremated. Six other employes were badly injured.

November 16, Charles A. Peake, the leading dry goods merchant of Sacramento, returned from San Francisco on the California Pacific evening train. He mounted the seat beside the driver of a hotel bus to ride up into the city. While going along Front street the horses, frightened by the noise of a passing locomotive, became unmanageable and dashed away. A wheel of the bus struck a hitching post alongside the sidewalk and the jolt threw the driver and Mr. Peake off the seat. The driver, Geo. Callahan, was only slightly hurt by his fall to the ground, but Mr. Peake fell so that his head was run over by the rear wheel of the bus, which crushed his skull and caused his death in a few minutes. He was 31 years of age and a very popular business man.

Jacob Garrison, at Bangor, Butte County, November 1, while putting his rifle away accidently discharged it. The ball, entering his mouth, passed through his brain, killing him instantly.

Joseph Bassford, a young man hunting in Solano County, picked up his loaded shotgun off the ground, grasping it by the muzzle. One barrel went off, the charge lacerating his arm below the elbow in a shocking manner.

SANTA BARBARA'S ROYAL SUNDAY

(KATHERINE M. BELL.)

A SPECIAL LOW MASS WAS CELEbrated at the Santa Barbara Mission at 11 a. m., Sunday, October 12, for their Belgian majesties, the Duke of Brabant, and retinue. Anticipating a crush, we arranged to be at the mission a few minutes past 10 o'clock, and when we arrived the crowd was already there! Motor cars were parked closely in front of the square facing the church, the rows stretching to the fountain which, full to the brim as in the old ceremonial days, stood unconscious of the changes and human stir around it.

Guests in incoming autos alighted near the long arched corridors where within the railing some of the people were gathered. But the great mass had grouped themselves on the mission platform and surrounding steps, from the great doors to the ground below. It was a mixed throng in every sense —not altogether mannerly, but happy and good natured. The intense blue of the sky with the historic mission background, the balmy sunshine and the expectant light beaming in all eyes, gave a singular charm to the scene.

But oh, those mission walls meant so much to me! There were volumes locked in my heart of which they held the key—and I was being crowded out! The entrance into the mission church of Albert and Elizabeth—sovereigns whose noble souls "had passed through a torrent, through waters insupportable"—was to me a solemn closing act of which I would not lose one flitting shade. But nowhere could I find a foot of vantage ground. Standing first in one place, then in another, somehow I caught a glimpse of two or three friars who, with the chief of police, were trying to clear a space in the center of the platform. They succeeded in opening a passage—a very narrow one—from the church portals to the bottom of the stone steps. The arrangement brought me into the front line on the second step.

The mass would commence at 11 o'clock, but the royalties were to arrive at 10:30. It was about that now. The cameras were becoming very active; for a time my eyes could discern nothing beyond their tops dotted all over the rows of motor cars. From where I stood, I could see the long priedieu with three purple silk cushions outside the church to the right of the great doors, and resting against the wall the green embroidered baldachin I knew so well. How faded it had grown! Another stir! More frantic moving of the hated cameras! Another effort to widen the path on the platform and behold!

The splendid hero-king, Albert of Belginm, and his queen, Elizabeth, in all her flower-like loveliness and grace, were ascending OUR mission steps! Very manly and noble Albert looked, in his simple Belgian uniform, with Elizabeth on his left, close beside him, in soft white silk. Her outer garment, in long straight flowing lines with deep white fur collar, was worn open. Only one touch of color was noticeable, the golden brown paradise feather on the left side of her turban. A strand of pearls reaching half-way to her waist, was around her lovely neck. Handsome young Leopold, almost as tall as the hero-king and dressed as a Belgian private, followed some steps behind, alone.

Their majesties and the crown prince were received at the onter door of the church by Father Julius and the entire community—fathers and brothers of the old mission and of St. Anthony's College. Kneeling on the priedieu, the royalties were given the crucifix to kiss, in turn, Albert, Elizabeth and Leopold. Then standing, the hyssop was presented; in the same order they took holy water and blessed themselves. The baldachin was raised over the royal heads and the procession, formed by the Franciscan community, led Albert, Elizabeth and their young heir through the aisles of the dear old mission into the sanctuary. First came the cross-bearer, Brother Philip; then the community, two by two. Father Julius, wearing a green cope over his priestly vestments, with two acolytes—Brothers Antonio and Silvano—immediately preceded the royal personages. The canopy was borne by four Mexican fathers of the order.

No sooner were their majesties and retinue within the church than the massive doors were closed, the chief of police standing guard outside. The surprised crowd was mastered for a moment; the more determined ones scattered in all directions in search of an entrance. From the graveyard to the tower-door inside the corridor, however, everything was barred. The number who were satisfied with having seen the world-renowned royal pair and witnessed their entrance into the historic mission left soon after the portals were shut. Those that remained waited calmly on the steps of the platform, the benches under the arches, or loitered near to the entrance. It should have been generally understood that the especial mass was the privilege of the Catholic sovereigns, and that only those who were permitted to pass by the ushers had a right to enter. It seemed a full half-hour before the doors were opened.

Courteous Mr. Hersey directed the entrance of the mission guests. He seated us within the charmed circle reserved for the retinue on the right, which gave us a perfect view of the royalties throughout the services. Their majesties and the crown prince were on the Gospel side of the sanctuary—Albert in the center, Elizabeth on his left, and Leopold on his right. It was beautiful to see them there in the half-dimness of the old church with the soft altar lights shining on their reverent heads! David's prayer came into my heart, "May all the kings of the earth give glory to Thee." The body of the church was crowded to standing room. The sisters of Notre Dame, St. Vincent and St. Francis had places on the left. The Franciscan community was also among the congregation. Scattered here and there were others, like ourselves, direct descendants through maternal or paternal lines of members of the Portolá, Serra and Anza expeditions—of founders and commandantes of royal presidios from north to south—Native Daughters and Native Sons with Yankee and European fathers and grandfathers, Pioneers of the 1820s and 1830s! And all around us were those "who knew not Joseph."

Four generations of my maternal forbears had mounted those old steps, entered those blessed doors, bent their knees and bowed their heads within. I looked up at saintly Barbara on her pedestal above the high altar, at the railing of the sanctuary, at everything around that was still as it had been in the long ago. A yearning came over me to get nearer to those inanimate things, to touch them, to rest my grey head on them and to dream back through the bygone years!

The spell of the past was over me. Clouds of incense ascended and descended around me. Beyond its fragrant mists the curtain of the wondrous present seemed to part and my spirit entered into the realms of the buried years! Scene by scene I had ever witnessed within the sacred walls passed swiftly before me, gripping my heart as they vanished. Barbara's radiant face looked down upon me. The crimson velvet votive cloak my young mother's slender hands had fastened was on her shoulders, and the garnets on her diadem twinkled through the glorified atmosphere! To me, not Father Julius but Father Gonzales stood before the altar, his face uplifted, his hands raised in benediction. The lights flared, the consecration bell rang,—royalties and commons were prostrate in adoration. My curtain closed.

I was indeed of the past and present "a thing, a part," and in that sanctuary before me was the greatest, most wonderful scene that time had wrought. I looked across reverently at the hero-king and queen amid the quiet and peace of the simple mission sanctuary with all its colorful underlying history, thousands of miles away from their martyred high-souled land. And from the bottom of my heart I thanked the King of Kings that He had remembered His anointed and when his heart "was in anguish" He had exalted him "on a rock." I prayed for the gracious queen, whose every deed added brilliancy to the crown while it ennobled all womanhood; for their young heir, with all his life still before him, that the Lord might hold him by His right hand and lead him in the steps of the king, his father, all the days of his life.

The last Gospel was over, the last benediction given. Through the glass doors of the sanctuary their majesties, the crown prince and the retinue were conducted to the sacred garden, where the king planted an Italian cypress and the queen an orange tree. As a souvenir of the royal visit, Father Zephryn's splendid work, "Missions and Missionaries of California," was presented to Albert. A copy of the "Planting of the Cross" was given to Elizabeth. Monday afternoon the crown prince planted an olive tree in the mission graveyard.

All who attended the royal mass waited on the mission grounds until their majesties drove away. As they came down the front steps of the arched corridor, the crowd gathered closely around the fountain, clapping hands vigorously. Albert stepped into the first automobile, Elizabeth entered the second and Leopold the third. Our royal act was over!

For the first time in its life of nearly a century and a half, reigning sovereigns had entered the Santa Barbara Mission doors and worshiped within the sanctuary. And while we of Joseph's time missed the something that has gone forever, we were proud to see the great ones of the earth within the historic walls and to be, for a brief time, within the blessed atmosphere of the king and queen whom God, in His unsearchable wisdom, was pleased to chasten sorely and to exalt. "According to the multitude of my sorrows in my heart, Thy comforts have given joy to my soul." Following is the address delivered by Father Julius from the altar during the mass for their majesties:

> "Your majesties will graciously allow me to say just a word of greeting. We feel honored in having you with us. In bidding you a hearty welcome to this venerable Catholic Old Mission of Santa Barbara, I feel that I am voicing not only the sentiments of this Franciscan Community and all Friars up and down the Western Coast, but of every loyal Catholic in the land.
> "You know, my brethren, that patriotism, love for one's country, is a virtue and is part and parcel of our religion. Next to loyalty to God comes loyalty to one's country, the virtue of which the world has had no greater example than that of Belgium's king and queen and people.
> "In this welcome, then, it seems to me, brethren, we are but expressing our gratitude to them for the valuable lesson they have so forcibly brought home to us and to all the world. And while thanking their majesties, we pray God to bless them and their people, and to reward them now and in the days to come with a thousand consolations for the griefs and sorrows which it cost them to give us that lesson.
> "May our Lord Jesus Christ, the Great Captain of the Lord's Hosts, give them length of days, and inspire us, one and all, with their courage and strength to fight the good fight of faith; to fight against our and our Master's three great enemies, the world, the flesh, and the devil. May the Valiant Lion of the Tribe of Juda sustain us under sufferings with His consolations and carry us on even through torments and blood, if it be necessary, to our reward in Heaven. Let us live, brethren, in His presence and look up to Him, our Great Leader, and to His crown, and thus fight valiantly and overcome, that at the last we may sit down with Him on His throne as He also hath overcome and has sat down with His Father on His throne."

George Kidder, a young man hunting ducks on a lake near Gilroy, Santa Clara County, November 7, fell overboard and was drowned.

Dr. Joseph Powell, a prominent physician of Folsom, Sacramento County, driving in a buggy to visit a patient, upset in a ravine November 27, and received injuries from which he soon died.

Wm. Flechet, a miner, fell 130 feet down the shaft of the Havilla mine at Nashville, El Dorado County, November 18, and was killed.

Three Women Fatally Burned.

Michael Kane, a section foreman on the Central Pacific at Emigrant Gap, Placer County, November 1 fell in front of a hand car and was run over. He had an arm and a leg broken.

Chas. B. McLaughlin, foreman of a construction train on the Central Pacific at Truckee, Nevada County, November 23 fell off a car and was run over. Both his legs were so badly mangled he died a few hours afterward.

The stage for Geyser Springs, Sonoma County, was upset November 1 on the grade around Sugar Loaf hill, five passengers, four of whom were of a family named Jacobs from San Francisco, and one named Hosac, and Gwinn, the driver, were precipitated down the steep bank into a rocky ravine and severely injured.

Mrs. Mary Doherty, who was ill and deranged, living near Wheatland, Yuba County, the morning of November 18 arose, dressed and set fire to her clothing and, rushing out into the yard, was burned to death. She made no noise, and her absence was not noticed for some time after her family arose and a search for her revealed her shocking fate.

Mrs. Alexander McKenzie, living on Washington street, San Francisco, November 25 was standing in front of a stove, with the kitchen door open. A gust of wind blew her apron into the fire and set her clothes aflame. She was fatally burned before assistance could reach her.

Miss Mattie Seawell, 15 years old, living near St. Helena, Napa County, the morning of November 11, while dressing in front of the kitchen stove, had her clothes set on fire by a flying spark. She jumped into her bed, in an effort to smother the flames, but was burned to death under the covers.

James Duffy went on a prolonged spree in Sacramento. Strolling into the roundhouse of the Central Pacific while under the influence, he got in an engine cab and finding it still under steam opened the throttle and started out on a trip of his own into the yard. He safely ran through a number of tracks over several switches until he found one thrown against him, where, of course, he went off the track. His condition and escapade were not discovered until he went after the superintendent to assist him with jack screws to rerail the engine.

The husband of Mrs. Cottrell at Chili Gulch, Calaveras County, disappeared and she advertised, offering a reward of one cent for his return.

CALIFORNIA MUST HAVE PROTECTIVE LAWS

The California State Federation of Labor, the American Legion of California, the Spanish War Veterans, Parlors of Native Sons of the Golden West, Parlors of Native Daughters of the Golden West, and other organizations have gone on record as opposed to Asiatics by the passage of resolutions suggested by Publisher Valentine S. McClatchy of the Sacramento "Bee," and published on this page of the October Grizzly Bear. Publisher McClatchy has appeared before the Immigration Committee of both houses of the Congress and told how the Japanese have invaded California and would, unless checked, make this state uninhabitable for the white race, and Congressmen and Senators have been bombarded with telegrams and letters requesting speedy action at the hands of the Congress to protect us from the "peaceful invasion" of the Japanese and other Asiatics.

Strength, through numbers, is daily being added to the anti-Asiatic campaign. This applies not only to California,—the Japanese-selected breeding-ground for the Yamato race in the United States,—but to the whole country, for the people of all the states are awakening to the fact that oppesition to the Japanese has not been engenderer by a "few agitators," but because they are a decided, and growing, menace to the future well-being of the whole United States. They are gradually grasping the facts about the "gentlemen's agreement" and the "picture brides;" when they know them they realize that both schemes to defeat the immigration laws are but features of Japan's "peaceful invasion" program.

United States Senator James D. Phelan has new before the United States Senate a bill absolutely prohibiting Japanese immigration, and providing such protection of the frontiers as will prevent surreptitious entry of the yellow men. He will also intrednce an amendment to the Federal Constitution denying citizenship rights to any person born upon the soil of the United States whese parents are ineligible te citizenship. Splendid! That's the legislatien we must have at the hands of the Federal Government.

But that legislation alone will not save California to the white race. California, however, must pass any additional protective legislatien, for that is the limit to which the Federal Government can go in her protection. What is California, a severeign state, going to do now? Is she geing to be satisfied with what Cengress does,—and Congress will pass both ef Senator Phelan's bills,—and net help herself? If that be the intention, California will soon be "Japanized," in spite of the national legislation.

The only thing that will save California is a State-enacted law that will make it impossible for Japanese to get possession of the soil. True, we have some such law now, but it is net adequate, is openly violated, and is considered as a huge joke by those at whom it is aimed. It does not reach those California soil-ewners whe weuld sacrifice the state's interest for the almighty dollar,—those fellows who, out of love for the dollar, are responsible for the Japanese-pest being, and prospering, in California.

We need, RIGHT NOW, a state law that will make it a criminal offense, punishable only by imprisonment, for anyone to sell, lease, or give California property to any persen ineligible to United States citizenship, er to the child of any such person, or to any firm, partnership or corporation in whieh any such person is interested. Such a law will put an end to Japanese land acquirement, for the dollar-worshiper fears imprisonment more than he fears the devil. We also must have a state law that will dispossess Asiatics of every foot of California land they may have acquired title to, compensating them, of cenrse, for any investment they may have made.

Arise, American Californians, and demand of your servants, the governor and other office-holders, that laws be enacted to save California's soil from the Japanese! Do not be put off with excuses for delay, such as referring the matter to a commission to investigate, but use the power placed in your hands by the law te force ACTION NOW, not next month, or next year! If the people af California have not the courage to get from their State Government that protection which they must have, what right have they to claim protection from the National Gevernment?

JOIN THE RED CROSS

The American Red Cross, the "Greatest Mother in the World," requires 20,000,000 members to successfnlly wage its peace campaign for better public health, more efficient first aid, home service and disaster relief.

Nearly a year has passed since the Red Cross made an appeal for public assistance in carrying out its plans. Many of the busiest men of affairs throughout the country have aided the successful membership drives of the past, and they are behind the third roll-call campaign, which will he conducted November 2-11, when, it is hoped, more than 20,000,000 will be enrolled.

Red Cross war-time activities have been run on a firm business basis, say its sponsors, and the same standards will be maintained for the peace program. Lend your name and your dollar during the third roll-call, November 2-11, with the same unselfishness that marked your war-time responses, for the peace calls upon the American Red Cross are many, and as urgent as were the war calls.

As a part of the peace program which the third roll-call will inaugurate, the Red Cross will enlarge the home service department to give special attention to assisting any of "our boys" in need of its service. Enlist in this cause by affiliating with the American Red Cross, November 2-11.

The Peace Treaty-League of Nations is still being debated in the United States Senate, bnt it is predicted, and hoped, the pact will be disposed of by the middle of November.

Amendments thus far voted upon have been defeated, but there is every promise that, without reservations which will fully protect the United States' interests, the twin doenment has little chance of getting the appreval of the Senate, necessary before it can be become effective, so far as this country is concerned.

"Welcome Home Day," a day set aside by the State for officially welcoming home the war-boys, has had a strenuous time getting fixed, but now information has gone forth that November 11 will be the official day and the Governor has proclaimed it a state holiday.

Several communities have already held welcome-home celebrations on one er the other dates previously set aside as the official day, but those which have not should observe November 11 as "Welcome Home Day."

The date that the boys are officially welcomed home makes no particular difference, so long as every community acknowledges its debt of gratitnde to its war heroes by holding a celebration in their honor. And ne cemmunity should fail in its duty to properly observe a "Welcome Home Day."

The national conference which, it was hoped, would adjust industrial conditions, has adjourned sine die without accomplishing anything, except to make it very plain that that great majority of citizens affiliated neither with Capital nor Organized Labor, but who are the burden-bearers in all industrial cenflicts, must solve the capital-labor problem. And it is a most serions problem, growing more serious every day.

The September Grizzly Bear, referring to the intention of the Order of Native Sons ef the Golden West to mark eertain historie spots along the Kit Carson Trail with tablets, mentioned a legend appearing on a blazed tree and said that "Daniel Brouett, Ezra H. Allen and Henderson Cex were supposed to have been murdered and buried by Indians on the night ef June 27, 1848."

Senator Charles M. Belshaw ef Antioch, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., who is a native of Amador County and familiar with all the historic landmarks in that section, has called attention to two errers in The Grizzly Bear article, and that the record may be corrected they are neted here. He says the blazed legend reads that

The name ef Allen is Ezrah, not "Ezra," and that the three Pioneers were burned, net "buried."

JAP PROBLEM EVADED

The Governor ef California has called a special session of the State Legislature, to convene at Sacramento, November 1, to consider an amendment to the Federal Constitution granting the right of suffrage te the women of the Nation. The amendment should, and no doubt will, be approved by the California Legislature.

The call for the special session was most disappointing, in that it did not also provide for State legislation to curb the Japanese menace. Perhaps the Governor had not been "advised" that the welfare of California is seriously menaced by the Japanese, or perhaps he was loath to "hurt the feelings" of Japan, or perhaps his mind wandered back to the time when our legislators were assembled in regular session and, at his bequest, a majority of them passed legislation directly contrary to the wishes ef The People as expressed at the polls.

It is because California has been asleep that the Japanese have gained such a dangerons foothold in this state. But The People have awakened, and a great majority of them want the California Legislature to enact laws adequate to save this state from the Japanese. And, what is more, The People are going to have those laws, if they have te invoke the initiative to get them.

The Governor could have saved The Peeple a whele lot of mileage money by including the Japanese question in his call for a special session. His excuse, that the national suffrage amendment could be disposed of in two hours, is simply evasive, as it costs as much for mileage to have the Legislature in session for two hours as for two weeks.

We have already wasted too much time waiting for action on the Japanese question by state authorities. The longer we wait, the more firmly the Japanese entrench themselves. "While we push forward boldly the enemy has ne chance to form plans," rightfully say the Japanese. The thing to do, and do quickly, is for The People to take such action as will pretect California's interests.

The National Congress has passed and the President has signed, a bill making it possible te prosecute profiteers and providing heavy penalties for those convicted. The Government has the power, now, to bring down prices. Will they come down?

HISTORIC SPOT MARKED WITH TABLET

San Francisco—With Past Grand President Joseph R. Knowland presiding, the Landmarks Committee of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West en September 19 marked with a bronze tablet the corner of Clay and Sansome streets, where the old emigrant ship "Niantic" was deserted and beached by the crew in June, 1849, "when the water came up to Montgomery street." Chairman Knowland teld about stores being built on the vessel's hull, and being destroyed by fire on May 3, 1851; then the famous Niantic Hotel was built, and this, in 1872, gave way to a finer hostelry, which was destreyed in the 1906 fire, and the present building erected.

The tablet's dedication was attended by a large number of Pieneers, Native Sons and Native Daughters. Among the speakers were John A. Britton, William P. Canbu, Grand President, N.S.G.W.; Lewis F. Byington, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., who announced that the Native Sons would mark with tablets the old waterfront, extending from First and Market te Washington and Montgomery streets; Mary E. Bell, Grand President, N.D.G.W.; Mrs. H. E. Siering, vice-president Daughters of California Pioneers; Alfred Chaigneau, a Pioneer of '49, and Mayor James Rolph, Jr. The inscription on the tablet reads:

> "The emigrant ship Niantic steed on this spot in the early days when the water came up to Montgomery street. Converted te other uses, it was cevered with a shingled roof with offices and stores on the deck, at the level of which was censtructed a wide baleony surmounted by a verandah. The hull was divided into warehouses, entered by doorways on the sides.
> "The fire of May 3, 1851, destroyed all but the submerged hnlk, which later was utilized as the foundation for the Niantic Hotel, a fomous hostelry which stood until 1872.
> "This tablet was placed by the Histerie Landmarks Committee of the Native Sons ef the Golden West, September 19, 1919."

AN OLD MANIFEST.

The San Francisee Chamber ef Commeree, according to the "Examiner," has come into possession of a manifest, dated 1854, centaining the cargo list of the old clipper ship "Morning Star," from Boston for the Bay City. The ink and paper are a little faded, but the writing is clear. The eargo censisted largely of what a vessel wonld bring teday, as well as eggs, butter, shrimps, cheeso and beef.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

ONE-PIECE DRESSES CONTINUE POPULAR, for they are indispensable for practical utility wear. Some take on the redingote lines, fastening at one side with a diagonal line from shoulder to the hem. These will be duplicated and modified extensively in tricotine, serge and the light-weight wool velours and soft duvetyns. The latter, which comes in various weaves and novelty striped and plaid effects, lend themselves to graceful side draping and fulness.

Bright silk linings or facings are used to enliven these dresses of dull or sombre color, while other bright touches appear in well-chosen vests and collars of metallic brocades or fancy velvets. Much braid, rows of bandings, and insertions of knitted wool bands are interesting trimmings on dresses and suits.

The vogue of knitted weaves like silk and wool jersey is not a thing of the past. These materials lend themselves to comfortable and practical dresses, with the last word in printed patterned combination fabrics. The tunic style is modified in telling ways, such as in a dress with the tunic long in the back and cut away on the sides. Rows of narrow braid are placed around the skirt above the hem and also on the back of the tunic.

The separate skirts of dark plaid wool materials, jersey fabrics and silk and wool novelties take on a darker hue, as if reflecting the autumn colorings. These are made in pleated ways—accordeon and box—and also with panels and with rows of braid trimmings. Fur bandings appear on the hem and pockets of sports skirts of angora cloth.

Separate coats are seven-eighths and full length, and made of wool velours and duvetyn on more flaring lines than heretofore. Muffler collars, which may be worn open or closed, are a style accent, as well as side sections or fancy-shaped pockets, all of which stamp individuality in the models. Many cape wraps in new effects are designed in tiers of the chosen fabric with bindings of contrasting material. Some novelty plaid velours are used for coats, and small checked woolens receive new importance for suits. Browns, taupes and some green colors are favorites for the dress, coat and wrap, while the plaids and navy are modish for practical service.

Separate blouses have lost none of their importance, and have even grown more elegant and dignified in the forms conceived to complete a two-piece suit. Naturally matching colors have an important place in the correct suit scheme. The long tunic or poplin blouse has been variously changed without cutting the figure in two at the waist line. Some have irregular lower edges with front and back tablier panels and applied or embroidered ornamentation. Some velvet and duvetyn separate waists have been shown.

Duvetyn, cut in bands and applied to a thin silk crepe of matching color, makes one of the new effects. Some velvet blouses are shown, the novelty plaid, striped and gay paisley patterns being the latest in their class of garments. Hand-made silk cluny lace is used for very charming high-class waists, and filet and Irish laces are used to trim plainer models of georgette, voile and net. Net waists, with finely pleated frilled berthas or collars, are dainty with the separate skirts.

Feather trimming, in bands and pom-poms, adorn the skirts of dresses, holding up places in the drapery. Metal embroideries, with wool, appear in bandings, and also as borders on fine wool dress fabrics. Knitted bands, wool and silk embroideries and chenille traceries in gay bright colors will brighten the somber aspect of the fall and winter fabrics.

There is a blaze of color on the horizon, with livid blues, emerald green, henna brown, reds and yellows, mingled or used separately, as constrasting trimming on wool and silk dresses and suits. Bands and embroideries on swinging panels set off stunning black and navy and blue gowns. White wool embroidery on black silk, and chenille on sheer organdie are still other French conceits which make the supply of trimmings most inviting.

Band-blocked and batik decorations are artfully used by special designers. Crystal and jet are wrought in intricate traceries and solid patterns on sheer grounds for elaborate afternoon and evening wear. Copper stands out among the metallic colors. It is used for embroidery and also in lace of narrow and wide widths. A narrow copper lace edging on either side of a knitted wool banding was the interesting novelty of a brown taffeta afternoon model.

Hats of every period are made of velvet, gleaming brocades and tapestries, but for colors, they have gone to the autumn leaf for inspiration. In the autumn leaf one finds shades and colors that have been repeated in fashions of every country since the world began. Every turn of light, every tint, every bit of color from blue-green to dull brown, from vivid scarlet and flaming orange to deep royal purple, is the secret of French millinery today. Paradise aigrettes, uncurled and glycerined ostrich, trim chic medium-size hats of velvet or silk.

Modish veils will accompany the small hats. Some are bordered with embroidered patterns, matching the designs in the mesh of the veiling. Hats are distinguished by their new shapes and lines, rather than for elaborate trimming, exclusive of formal dress hats, which later on will have a wealth of plumage. Soft crowns and shaped brims are noticeable.

The well-dressed woman will not omit a smart-looking bag of suede leather or other fabric to carry with her street outfit, and she will have some individual dressy handbag for afternoon occasions.

As for one's footwear, high boots, kid or suede, with cloth tops, in brown tones, will lead.

Not only globe-trotting, but the frequent week-end visits and motor trips away from home, call for sports clothes of suitable winter weights and colors. In view of these needs, it is well to have a smart dark plaid skirt, which may be worn now with plain slip-over blouses and attractive scarfs and sweaters, or later with modish sports coats of leather or fur.

There is always need for a good-looking separate and warm long coat, with the present styles of dress. One may select an entire velvet wrap for dress occasions. The pile fabrics, of all kinds, are extremely popular, and much approved by the designers, both for entire garments and dresses and for trimming and combining.

Furs are no longer considered a luxury. Custom of fashion has made them a necessity, even where the greater consideration of comfort does not enter because of climatic conditions. We must wear furs! The decorative quality is one of prime importance, and the price we pay for the luxurious necessity of burdening our winter clothes with fur, and still more fur, is not so much a matter of pelt value as of decorative and flattering personal adornment—another result of the renewed passion for extravagant dress.

A logical indication of prosperity is the marked penchant for jewelry, which may be of the most expensive sort, or merely an imitation. The latter, although artistic in itself, is worn because of its decorative quality, rather than because of its value. The short-sleeve vogue has aided the bracelet revival. The newest importation indicates a liking for the wide arm bands, that remind us of the slave bracelets; they are worn between the elbow and the wrist, or half way between the elbow and the shoulder. If the sleeve permits that adjustment, it is the last word for evening wear.

Jade has come in for an enormous amount of attention. There are necklaces of it, and plaques of it to be suspended from a silk cord or a fine metal chain. The real jade is very expensive, but there are many worth-while imitations. The average woman will get almost as much satisfaction from the wearing of a seven-dollar imitation as from the original, costing a thousand.

PIONEER OF PIONEERS

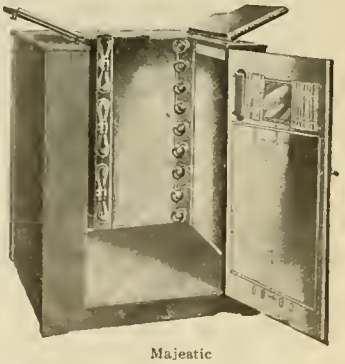

Santa Barbara—One hundred and one years spent in Old Mexico and Sunny California were celebrated the 25th of September by one of this city's oldest residents, Mrs. Cipriana Llanos de Flores. For seventy-five years this little white-haired woman lived in the old commandancia, near the corner of Santa Barbara and Canon Perdido streets, only recently going to make her home with her granddaughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. John Hartnett. She is very feeble, but her eyes are still bright, and her mind keen. She speaks no English. She is the widow of the last commandante who served under the old Mexican regime at Santa Barbara, Colonel Gumisindo Flores, a Mexican soldier who entered the army as a drummer-boy during the struggle for independence at the age of 14.

Both Flores and Cipriana Llanos, then a young girl of twelve, were members of the Hijar and Pedres colony. The senora still remembers the long wait at a mission in the City of Mexico before she could start, in 1830, on her long journey to Monterey, California, with her father. At San Blas they boarded the "Natalia," which put into port at San Diego, on account of storms and much sickness aboard. From San Diego they traveled to Los Angeles on horseback. Again they tried their luck aboard ship, sailing on the "Moreles," and finally reaching Monterey after a narrow escape at Point Conception. The "Natalia," which proceeded north with the effects of the colonists, was wrecked, with loss of life and property. Two years after reaching Monterey, the senorita was married, although only 14. Her husband, after being administrator for the mission at San Francisco, retired to the Rancho de las Pulgas, now Redwood City, but some time later accepted an invitation from Gilroy, an American, to live at his ranch, now the site of the town of Gilroy. There were many families at the ranch, for mutual protection from the Indians, who made many assaults on the ranches at night, carrying away the stock. Flores became commandante and port inspector at Monterey, and was later transferred to Santa Barbara. When he was forced to surrender Santa Barbara to Commander Robert F. Stockton, August 4, 1846, it was his wife who hauled down the Mexican flag, while he himself cut down the flagpole. Stockton's men had to erect a studding sail boom from their ship to unfurl the Stars and Stripes.

Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126, N.D.G.W., of Santa Barbara, remembered the occasion of this Pioneer's birthday anniversary by sending a letter of greetings and beautiful flowers in behalf of its officers and members. Mrs. A. E. Platz, a granddaughter of Mrs. Flores, is one of the Parlor's most popular members.

GET MEMBERS; WIN PRIZE!

Realizing the necessity of increasing the membership of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, Grand President Mary E. Bell offers a cash prize of fifty dollars to the Subordinate Parlor making the largest percentage gain in membership during her term of office. She has communicated this fact to all Parlors in the following letter:

"San Francisco, California,
"October 14, 1919.

"To the Subordinate Parlors,
"Native Daughters of the Golden West.

"Dear Sisters:

"One of the problems that is claiming my attention as Grand President is the MEMBERSHIP of the Order. Fully realizing that, at the present time, this is a question of vital importance to the Order, it is my desire that the membership be materially increased.

"In view of this fact, and as an incentive to the Parlors, I shall offer a prize of FIFTY DOLLARS to the Parlor that will increase its membership by a number equal to the greatest per cent of its present membership during my year as Official Head of the Order.

"This will give every Parlor, irrespective of its present membership, an equal opportunity to claim the prize. For instance, a Parlor of TWENTY-FIVE members might increase its membership by TWENTY members during the stated time, thus making a gain of EIGHTY PER CENT of its present membership.

"It is my wish that every Subordinate Parlor give this movement serious thought, and endeavor to begin at once an active campaign for new members. With the concerted efforts of all, good results surely must follow.

"Sincerely and fraternally yours, in P.D.F.A.,

Mary E. Bell,

"Grand President,
"Native Daughters of the Golden West."

YOUR BEST FRIEND IS MONEY IN BANK

A Bank Account, steadily growing by accretions of interest, steadily increasing by systematic deposits—this is the basis of real independence.

"Opportunity," said the richest man in the world, "is a word which means nothing except to those who have money in hand with which to use it."

The way to get a Bank Account is to open one—ONE DOLLAR is enough. Then make it a habit to deposit, steadily, persistently, a part of what you earn—FIRST—before you spend it for something else.

This Bank has been for Thirty Years the Temple of Thrift for the wage earners of Los Angeles.

Thanksgiving

To the Subordinate Parlors,
Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Dear Sisters:

As a Christian principle and an established custom, Thanksgiving Day will shortly be proclaimed by the President of the United States for our observance.

The Nation should be unanimous in praising and giving thanks for the blessings that have come to the oppressed through the magnanimity of a Christian people. We have had many tribulations as trials and tests of our love for Him, the God of Men.

Our submission and forgetfulness of self because of the good our sacrifice and suffering has brought to the human family, puts us in a state of willing acquiescence. Let us manifest our gratitude for God's munificence and strive to further right the wrongs of a world that has been through the years of nerve-racking turmoil.

Our peace is profound even in the midst of trouble, and this day should bring to our minds more than any previous Thanksgiving Day that we are thrice blessed in a land free from scourge and oppression. The country of human dignity. The country of Liberty.

We should be thankful for the opulence and greatness of America, for the noble qualities and robust deeds of her sons, skilled in commerce and industry, valorous in war, prosperous in peace; for all these things America is great, but beyond these and above them is her singular grandeur to which her material splendor is only the fitting circumstance.

More than a century ago a trans-Atlantic poet and philosopher reading well the signs wrote:

"Westward the course of empire takes its way;
The four first Acts already past,
A fifth shall close the Drama with the day:
Time's noblest offering is the last."

Berkley's prophetic eye had descried America.

America born into the family of nations is the highest billow in humanity's evolution, the crowning effort of ages in the aggrandizement of man. Unless we take her in this attitude we do not comprehend her; we belittle her towering stature and conceal the singular design of Providence in her creation.

As stupendous as are the questions of this great world it after all resolves itself into you and me. It is gentleness, unselfishness and love that makes the world go round. It is also love that can steady it.

On behalf of myself and associates, I ask that we manifest our gratitude and thankfulness for all that we have, and that we may never prove ungrateful for favors and honors that may come to us.

The essence of life is thankfulness. At the close of each day resolve to be truly thankful for the blessings that are ours.

Sincerely and fraternally yours, in P.D.F.A.,

Mary E. Bell,

Grand President,
Native Daugbters of the Golden West.

Copa de Oro Adds Four.

Hollister—Pioneers of San Benito County were guests of Copa de Oro 105 and Fremont 44, N.S.G.W., September 28. At the conclusion of the following program, refreshments were served: Remarks, W. J. Cagney; vocal solo, George L. Grunnagle; remarks, Rev. W. A. McCausland; words of welcome, Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs; dance, Helen Hudner; reminisceuces of early days in California, T. S. Hawkins, Mrs. C. S. Danks, J. H. Lawn, John Hain, N. Peterson; closing remarks, Judge G. H. Moore.

October 10, Copa de Oro Parlor added four new names to the roll of membership. The initiatory ceremonies were ably rendered, after which all enjoyed a social hour of chatting and music, followed by refreshments served at small tables decorated with brightly colored autumn leaves.

October 24, the Parlor will commence a series of three card parties to be given for the benefit of the Mills College scholarship and the celebration for the "Welcome Home" of the returned soldiers and sailors.

Grand President Visits Historic Town.

Shasta—Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco enjoyed a visit to the historic old town of Shasta, once the county-seat of Shasta County, October 11, being accompanied by a party from Berendos 23 (Red Bluff) and Hiawatha 140 (Redding) Parlors, composed of Grand Inside Sentinel Edna Saygrover, May Southern, Eva Young and Ida Southern. The Misses Southern, being daughters of one of Shasta's earliest Pioneers,—Simeon F. Southern, who settled here as early as 1848,—were able to tell the honored guest much of the early history of the place and to call attention to the points of interest.

Mrs. Bell was locked in the historic jail long enough for her escorts to photograph her behind bars that have held as prisoners many stage-robbers and other criminals, the only trial of some of whom was enough rope to reach over the limb of a near-by tree. The old town is fast falling into decay, and one by one its Pioneers are rapidly passing, but the history of its early life, when it was a prosperous and populous community, and the glorious deeds of those honored men and women who dwelt there, shall not perish with this generation.

Their Deeds Not Forgotten.

Salinas—The annual observance of Pioneer Day, October 4, brought together many of the old residents of this section as guests of Aleli 102 and Santa Lucia 97, N.S.G.W. The program was as follows: Words of welcome, Russell Scott on behalf of the Native Sons and Anna G. Andresen on behalf of the Native Daughters; vocal solo, Miss Alma Tholke; vocal duet, Miss Ethel Black, Mrs. W. J. Larkin; interpretative dancing; vocal solo, Miss Adeline Richardson; vocal duet, Miss Mamie Bensen, Mrs. W. J. Larkin; reminiscences of the Pioneers, Rev. F. Emery, Rev. George McCormick, S. M. Shearer and Mrs. John Parker.

In her address of welcome, Mrs. Andresen said, "The annual observance of Pioneer Day is for the purpose of perpetuating in memory the glorious deeds of our Pioneer Fathers and Mothers, as well as inculcating in our hearts a love of country and state." Following a tribute to the Pioneers assembled, she closed with an assurance to them that when their "sun finally sinks in the west, they will know that their deeds, which opened this grand empire of the West, are not forgotten."

At the program's conclusion, a splendid supper of California products was served. The tables were prettily decorated, poppies, emblematic of the state, predominating. Mrs. W. J. Larkin and Mrs. B. Bernard, both of Aleli Parlor, headed, respectively, the program and the supper committees.

Benefit Great Success.

Byron—The play, "Diamonds and Hearts," given October 3 by the Native Sons and Daughters for the benefit of Donner 193, drew such a large crowd that many were turned away. The performance was concluded at 11 o'clock, and from then until 4 a. m. dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by a jazz orchestra. The benefit was a great success, about $200 being added to the Parlor's treasury.

Prospective Bride Showered.

San Francisco—Miss Marie Fitzgerald, a member of Darina 114, whose wedding to George E. Holzhauer is to be an early event, was the honored guest at a shower after the meeting of the Parlor October 6. About fifty of her friends had assembled to tender her a surprise, which had been carefully planned and arranged by Mrs. Dora Deasy. A pleasureable evening was enhanced by tempting refreshments. The tables were artistically decorated in pink cosmos and maiden-hair fern.

The affection of those of her friends who were invited for the occasion expressed itself in many unusually lovely gifts of silver, china, cut-glass, linen and other articles too numerous to mention. As a climax, the complimented guest was also presented with a beribboned rolling-pin. The prospective bride's future residence will be in Vallejo, where an attractive home is now nearing com-

El Dorado Pioneers Entertained.

Placerville—About seventy-five Pioneers of El Dorado County attended the annual Pioneer Day reunion of Marguerite 12 and Placerville 9, N.S.G.W., September 23. Out-of-the-county guests included R. K. Berry of San Francisco, Mrs. Clarke Howard of Los Angeles, Mr. Armstrong of Sacramento, and George Hofmeister of Oakland, a charter member of Placerville 9, N.S.G.W.

Mrs. Josie Beach, president Marguerite Parlor, opened the program with an address of welcome, and was followed by Judge Thompson; vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. C. Harris, Miss C. Madriaga and Miss Merneiva Ball; Miss Jane McCusker read an original poem; Charles Ball, Jr., rendered a saxaphone solo, and May Collins and Percy Chesmore appeared in song and dance; remarks by Pioneers Judge J. P. G. Miller, George Hofmeister, Mrs. Clarke Howard, Mr. Armstrong and Mrs. Helen Bosworth were followed with a closing prayer by Fred O'Neil. Dancing and a banquet concluded a perfect day. The original poem of Miss McCusker, a member of Marguerite Parlor, follows:

To you, dear Pioneers, belongs the El Dorado of Yesterday:
To your noble deeds and fearless facing of the dangers of the West
We owe our prosperous county—the El Dorado of Today.
You have given to this land the very best
Of your lives, your works, and your lofty ambitions;
You have lived in times of poverty and privations;
You came o'er unblazed trail, rocky peak and desert sand
To open to the whole wide world this wondrous Western land.
You faced the vast unknown with hope and fearless heart,
Each one trying with undaunted zeal to do his part
To make this land more blest than all the rest,—
The guiding star of our glorious Golden West.
To you, dear Pioneers, who still live to tell the tale
Of the days when giants lived who could not fail,
We, the sons and daughters of this land, extend our greeting
With earnest and heartfelt hope that this pleasant meeting
Will not be our last, but that when another year has passed away
You will still be with us to celebrate our annual Pioneer Day.

Well Help Erect Memorial Building.

Redding—In deference to the wishes of many local interests, particularly the Service Men's Association, Hiawatha 140, which had planned to build a splendid monument in memory of Shasta County's war-boys, has abandoned the project, and will give its moral and financial support to a memorial building enterprise, which will perpetuate the memory of those who served and sacrificed in the world-war.

To carry out the memorial-building plan, the Service Men's Association has asked the supervisors to call an election for a bond issue to raise $75,000, the bonds to run for ten years.

Anniversary Celebrated.

Sacramento—Sutter 111 celebrated its twentieth institution anniversary with a banquet, October 7, at which Past Grand President Ema Gett was an honored guest. During the evening Georgia Crowell, who has faithfully served the Parlor as financial secretary for eleven years, was presented with a token of appreciation.

The banquet table was adorned with red flowers and red candles, a large birthday cake, holding twenty tiny candles, occupying a prominent place. The place-cards were of red hearts, and on each was a toast which was read; little vases were distributed as favors.

Loses Dearly Loved Member.

Oakland—During October, several candidates were initiated by Piedmont 87, and additional applications are on file. The members of the Parlor are anticipating a delightful visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell during the month of December.

October 8, Piedmont suffered the loss of one of its dearly loved and honored members, Minnie Bankhead Hendrickson, whose loss will be keenly felt by the Parlor and who is mourned by scores of sorrowing relatives and friends. The impressive funeral services were held by the Parlor, the members of the Piedmont Drill Team, of which deceased was a member, acting as honorary pallbearers. A regular monthly whist is held the fourth Thursday of every month, in Native Sons' Hall, Eleventh and Clay streets.

Enjoy Theater Party.

St. Helena—In response to an invitation from St. Helena 53, N.S.G.W., a large number of the members of La Junta 203 assembled at their hall October 7 and, being joined there by the Native Sons, were escorted to a local theater, where a delightful evening was enjoyed; about fifty were in the party. In addition to a splendid moving picture, some of the "talent" of St. Helena Parlor was in evidence in a group of songs rendered by Albert Griffith, Edwin and Willard Paulson, Edward Cavallini, "Bonnie" Rossi and Joseph Rossini. Malcolm Paulson also sang, and jokes aimed at members of the Parlors were thrown upon the screen. At the conclusion of the program all went to an ice-cream parlor, where the Native Sons served ice-cream and cake to their guests. The members of St. Helena Parlor proved to be splendid hosts, and the evening was greatly enjoyed by all.

Good-nights Reluctantly Said.

San Francisco—Linda Rosa 170 initiated Mrs. Pearl Lassen, September 29, the officers giving their charges in a very pleasing and impressive manner. The new member is a daughter of one of the youngest of the California Pioneers, George Metcalfe, and promises to be a faithful worker in the Order.

October 8, the regular monthly whist, for members only, was held, and as usual all had a good time. Lizzie Larson won the prize, a hand-painted cup and saucer. After whist the committee served cocoe and doughnuts, and everybody enjoyed visiting so much that good-nights were said very reluctantly.

Complimented by Grand President.

Fort Bragg—After witnessing the initiation of six candidates, September 31, Grand President Mary E. Bell, who was present on her official visit, complimented Fort Bragg 210 upon its progress and the officers for their excellent rendition of the ritual. A redwood burl bowl, as a reminder of Fort Bragg and its redwoods, was presented Mrs. Bell by the Parlor.

A social session, under the direction of Ruth Bolden and Jennie Dahl, followed in the dining-room, where a clever color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the flowers, the candle shades, the bell-shaped place-cards, and the social committee's aprons. A quartet—the Misses Phyllis Mathews, Etta Stubbs, Ruth Bolden, Jennie Dahl—rendered three vocal selections, and a reading was given by Miss Ruth Young.

Chicken Supper for Pioneers.

Grass Valley—The annual reception of Manzanita 29 to the Pioneers of this city was attended by fifty guests, September 30, and a badge, souvenir of the occasion, was presented each. The program, directed by Mrs. Louise Wales, included: Remarks, Rev. U. E. Partridge; opening address, President Kate Fuller; poem, "A Miner's Death in Pioneer Days," Mrs. Mary Merrifield (Laurel 6, Nevada City); vocal solo, Harriet Taylor, Mrs. Louise Wales accompanist; remarks, Mrs. Dorcas J. Spencer; vocal duet, Rita and Bertha Fuller; reading, Loretta Henwood; solo, Rita Fuller; recitation, Harriet Robinson; remarks, Rev. C. E. Robinson. In the dining-room, following the program, a tempting chicken-pie supper was served at a table attractively decorated in flowers.

VOYAGE OF JUAN PEREZ

fog became so thick that they could scarcely see each other on the decks of the frigate. The crew was now in poor condition and suffering greatly from the wet and cold, the scarcity of water, and the ravages of the scurvy. Only six or seven sailors were now fit for duty, and Father Crespi's mouth was so badly affected that he could not celebrate mass.

On the 22d they made out a high cape which Captain Pérez believed to be Mendocino, and computed to be in a little more than 40°.

On the 23d of August, wind and weather continuing contrary, it was determined to offer a nine days' prayer to Our Lady of Talpa, to implore her powerful intervention. Very soon their prayers were answered, for a gentle wind began to blow which took them well on their way.

On the morning of Friday, the 26th, the fog was so thick that nothing could be seen, but about ten o'clock the "Farallones of our Father San Francisco" were vaguely made out, and on the 27th the storm-beaten "Santiago," with her sick and worn-out crew, dropped anchor in Monterey Bay, where we may consider the voyage to have come to an end.

Although some disappointment was expressed at the result of the voyage, since it did not succeed in reaching the 60° which had been set as its goal, nor in landing and erecting the cross in a single place, nor in discovering any foreign establishments or any good ports, yet none of these circumstances must be considered as detracting from its importance or the fame of its commander. It had, in fact, very important results, and very largely settled the actual trend of the western North American coast line, and whatever may have been the claims put forth by subsequent explorers, the truth is that the honor of this discovery, made under the handicap of a thousand difficulties from which modern sailors might shrink appalled, belongs to the brave Spaniard, Juan Pérez. On his tiny sailing vessel, miserably equipped with the barest necessities and ridiug at the mercy of wind and wave, knowing certainly that ship-wreck meant a lonely and cruel death far from home and friends, short-handed most of the time from the ravages of scurvy among the crew, harassed by constant bad weather which did not permit him to land even loug enough to renew his water supply, yet he sailed far on into the uncharted mystery of the northern sea, and thus added another leaf to the laurel crown of Spain's maritime glory.

BELOVED NATIVE DAUGHTER PASSES.

In Memoriam

MINNIE BANKHEAD HENDRICKSON.

To the Officers and Members of Piedmont Parlor, No. 87, N.D.G.W.—We, the undersigned committee appointed to draft resolutions of condolence and respect to the memory of our departed sister, Minnie Hendrickson, who was claimed by death on the 8th day of October, respectfully submitted the following:

Through the dispensation of Him to Whose will in humble obedience we bow, our sister, Minnie Hendrickson, has been transferred from this, our earthly parlor, to the Heavenly parlor on high, and from our circle of fraternity is gone the face of one whose friendship we cherished.

Resolved, That in the untimely death of our departed sister we have truly lost a sister who sincerely believed in our Order's precepts of Friendship, Loyalty and Charity and who earnestly lived to make them a part of her daily life; resolved, that we sincerely condole with the bereaved family of our departed sister and hope they may find consolation in the fond memories which will ever live in their hearts of unfailing love and the many kind deeds that showed her loved ones that they were always first in her mind; resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, a copy be sent to the bereaved husband and family, and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

RESOLUTION COMMITTEE,
PIEDMONT PARLOR, N.D.G.W.

Oakland, October 16, 1919.

HENRY A. BOCK.

To the officers and members of Orestimba Parlor, No. 247, N.S.G.W.—We, your committee on resolution of respect to the memory of Henry A. Bock, report the following:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to summon from our ranks our esteemed and respected brother, Henry A. Bock; and whereas, in the parting of Brother Bock, Orestimba Parlor has lost a faithful member, the state a loyal and true son, and his family a safe counselor and loving son and brother; therefore be it

Resolved, That Orestimba Parlor, No. 247, Native Sons of the Golden West, deeply and sincerely deplores the untimely call for our departed brother, and that hereby the heartfelt sympathy of the members of this Parlor be expressed to his family; and be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be presented to the family of our deceased brother, that it be spread on the minutes of the Parlor, and a copy furnished The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

F. T. McGINNIS,
H. F. STANLEY,
H. C. TUCKER,
Committee.

Crows Landing, October 8, 1919.

FLORENCE FAY.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to call to her eternal home Florence Fay, the beloved wife of our esteemed brother, Claud Fay; and whereas, in this sad bereavement our brother has lost a loving wife and a true helpmeet and companion; be it

Resolved, That the members of Fresno Parlor, No. 25, Native Sons of the Golden West, do hereby extend to Brother Fay, in his hour of grief, their heartfelt sympathy; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and a copy thereof be sent to our bereaved brother.

Respectfully submitted,
W. L. AUBURY,
W. F. TOOMEY,
F. M. LANE,
Committee.

Fresno, October 7, 1919.

JAMES MATTESON.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His divine wisdom, to remove from our midst and associations our beloved brother, James Matteson; and whereas, in the passing of Brother Matteson, Chispa Parlor, No. 39, N.S.G.W., mourns the loss of one of its loyal members;

Resolved, That while we will greatly miss our departed brother, nevertheless the memory of his associations will ever remain fresh in our minds, and that we do extend the hand of sympathy to the bereaved brothers in this, their hour of sorrow; and be it further resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days from this meeting, that a copy be sent to the brothers of our departed brother, that these resolutions be spread in full upon the minutes of this meeting, and a copy be mailed to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY ONETO,
DOLPH BRATTON,
DANIEL PILLSBURY,
Committee.

Murphys, September 18, 1919.

LOUISE TEGELER.

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has seen fit to remove from our midst Louise Tegeler, the beloved sister of our friend and brother, Frank A. Homan; and whereas, by her death our brother has lost a loving sister and our state has lost a useful and esteemed member; now therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Fresno Parlor, No. 25, Native Sons of the Golden West, do hereby extend to our brother, in his hour of grief, our heartfelt sympathy; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and that a copy be sent to Brother Homan.

Respectfully submitted,
W. L. AUBURY,

Native Sons of the Golden West

CELEBRATE "ARMISTICE DAY!"

The Grand Parlor at Yosemite last June adopted a resolution directing Subordinate Parlors to annually observe with fitting ceremonies November 11, the day the armistice in the world-war was signed, and Grand President William P. Caubu has sent a letter, dated October 16, to the Parlors, requesting every Parlor to carry out the Grand Parlor resolution. The Graud President's letter follows:

"To the Officers and Members of All Subordinate Parlors of the N.S.G.W.

"Dear Sirs and Brothers:

"By resolution adopted at the last Graud Parlor, November 11th, 'Armistice Day,' was designated as a day to be annually observed by the Parlors, and all Subordinate Parlors should hold fitting ceremonies, with the Service Men as guests of honor. (See Minutes of last Grand Parlor, at page 120.)

"Governor Stephens will declare this day a State Holiday; many cities and towns will hold ceremonies. Following the spirit of our resolution, let every Parlor lead in these ceremonies, or if that be not possible, be an active participant in them. Many of the Parlors have already attended to these ceremonies, but where no action has yet been taken let me urge upon you to do all you can to show your appreciation of the services rendered to our Country.

"Don't let this be the only occasion for showing your gratitude and appreciation; these boys are entitled to your everlasting thought; make them feel that you are always ready to do something for them; if they need help or employment I want to know that the Parlors will do everything in their power to assist them. Let them know of this willingness, and when the request comes let it be done quicker than you have ever done any other thing.

"Sincerely and fraternally yours,

W. P. Caubu

"Grand President, N.S.G.W."

Past Grands at Notable Gathering.

San Francisco—The night of September 9, after the glorious Admission Day parade, there was a gathering at one of this city's famous restaurants of the Past Grand Presidents of the Native Sons to commemorate the occasion by feasting, not only upon the sumptuous repast especially prepared, but also upon the words spoken by the several who dwelt upon the gatherings of long ago and refreshed memories. It was conceded the very best affair ever held by the exclusive P.G.P.A.

"Charlie" Belshaw was surely at his best; if ever, and God forbid, Belshaw goes broke, it will not take him long to recoup his fortune as a comedian, for the Orpheum has never had as good. Henry Gesford, who has been unable to attend the gatherings of recent years, after making apologies entered into a reminiscent mood; his description of the distinctive qualities and traits of the Past Grands who have passed on was a classic, especially for an extemporaneous address, and many a Grand Parlor old-timer would have enjoyed this treat as much as did those present. "Bob" Fitzgerald followed in a like strain, while "Lew" Byington and "Judgie" Davis paid tribute to the loyalty existing between the Past Grands. "Hu" McNoble had to convince Belshaw that his memory was as good as when he was in the chair. The Past Grand Presidents in attendance were:

John H. Grady	Judge Maurice T. Dooling
Dr. Charles W. Decker	Senator Chas. M. Belshaw
William H. Miller	Daniel A. Ryan
Robert M. Fitzgerald	Thomas Monahan
Judge Frank H. Dunne	Louis H. Mooser
Judge Henry C. Gesford	Judge John F. Davis
Lewis F. Byington	Bismarck Bruck
Hubert R. McNoble	Jo V. Snyder
Walter D. Wagner	William F. Toomey

Wants Asiatics Barred.

Oakland—Piedmont 120 adopted the following resolutions October 9. Similar resolutions have been adopted by Parlors in every county and sent to California's representatives in Congress:

Whereas, The Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West is deeply and vitally interested in the advancement of the State of California and the welfare of the people; and, whereas, the Japanese and Hindu population in California is increasing rapidly; and, whereas, these people will always remain in our midst an alien element, unassimilated and unassimilable; and, whereas, their presence here lays the foundation for a race problem more serious than any that ever confronted us, and may lead to armed conflict which may again involve the world, since at least one of these races will be backed by a proud and war-like nation; and, whereas, the only way to solve a race problem is to stop it before it begins; and, whereas, the most feasible way to stop it is the prohibition of immigration from Oriental countries; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, By Piedmont Parlor, No. 120, of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West, of Oakland, California, that our Senators, Hiram W. Johnson and James D. Phelan, and our Representative, J. A. Elston, be asked to use their best and utmost endeavors in favor of the following propositions, to-wit:

1—Cancellation of the "Gentlemen's Agreement."
2—Exclusion of "picture brides."
3—Rigorous exclusion of Japanese as immigrants.
4—Confirmation and legislation of the policy that Asiatics shall be forever barred from American Citizenship.
5—Amendment to Section 1 of Article XIV of the Federal Constitution providing that no child born in the United States of foreign parents shall be considered an American citizen unless both parents are of a race that is eligible to citizenship.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to each of said members of Congress.

For the Homeless "Kiddies."

San Francisco—The local Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters will give their tenth joint annual masquerade for the benefit of the homeless children of California at Exposition Auditorium, Thanksgiving Eve, November 26.

A large committee, with these officers, is making the arrangements; Chairman, James A. Wilson, Grand Marshal, N.S.G.W.; vice-chairman, Mrs. Bessie Peters; secretary, Mrs. Mae Edwards; treasurer, Walter R. Garfield.

Returned War Boys Welcomed.

Halfmoon Bay—The welcome-home celebration arranged by Seaside 195 and Vista del Mar 155, N.D.G.W., September 25, was largely attended, many of the community's war-boys being in attendance as guests of honor. Grand President William P. Caubu delivered the address of the occasion, and Lieutenant Peck of the aviation service, who has again taken up his duties as instructor in the San Mateo high school, gave an interesting account of his experiences. Dancing followed the program, over which Dr. W. A. Brooke, president Seaside Parlor, presided, and the members of Vista del Mar Parlor served punch.

September 23, Seaside Parlor was officially visited by Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger, who delivered an inspiring address. Five candidates were initiated. The Parlor is making steady progress, its members are full of "pep," and they are going to keep right on with their membership campaign until every eligible is enrolled as a member of Seaside Parlor.

Old Solano Again to the Front.

Suisun—Solano 39 held an interesting get-together meeting September 23 for the purpose of devising ways and means to build up the Parlor. John J. McCarron has returned from overseas war service and resumed his duties as secretary. It was decided to inaugurate an educational campaign, to the end that the public may be competently enlightened regarding national affairs in which California is particularly interested, and that they may learn of the constructive work of the Order.

Daughters Make Fine Showing.

Pittsburg—Pittsburg's home-coming celebration is a thing of the past. It was a splendid tribute to the boys in khaki. Twenty-two members of Diamond 246 went across and all have come back and participated in the parade, over a mile in length, the grandest affair ever seen on the streets of this city.

The second division was led by the Parlor's drum corps, followed by the members of Stirling 146, N.D.G.W., who deserve special mention; they were dressed in white, with golden poppy sashes, and wore hats similarly trimmed. It was the unanimous opinion that had a prize been offered, the Native Daughters would have been awarded it, as they made the finest showing in the parade. One of the prettiest service flags that appeared in line was the one of satin, donated to Diamond Parlor by Stirling Parlor.

Presidio Has "Big" Time.

San Francisco—One of the largest attended and most enthusiastic meetings in the history of Presidio 194 was that of September 22, the occasion being the official visit of Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger. In addition to the guest of honor, eloquent addresses, dealing with all phases of the Order's work, were delivered by Grand President William P. Caubu, D.D.G.P. Charles O'Donnell, D.D.G.P. James F. Stanley, and Past Grand President Louis H. Mooser, a member of Presidio.

Under the supervision of Thomas Comber, one of those "spreads" that have made Presidio famous was enjoyed, and following this there was a program directed by Joseph L. Burton, the toastmaster. Stories of the war were related by the returned heroes, Joseph C. Sweeney, Thomas Comber, Jake Olivia, and Phil Katz, who received a Congressional medal and a French war cross for bravery, and J. Herman Schmidt gave humorous selections.

Dinner Dansant Attended by 200.

Hollister—A dinner dansant September 19, arranged by Fremont 44 and Copa de Oro 105, N.D.G.W., brought together 200 members, including thirty from Watsonville, twenty-four from Salinas, eighteen from San Juan, fifteen from Santa Cruz, one from Nevada City, and the others from the local Parlors. The evening was voted a huge success, due chiefly to the efforts of Mrs. Josephine Winn, chairman of Copa de Oro's committee, and Dr. F. C. Bonnell, president Fremont Parlor, and their efficient co-workers.

Following addresses of welcome by Judge George H. Moore and Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs, on behalf of the local Parlors, there was a ten-minute period successfully devoted to getting acquainted. Then the orchestra struck up a march, and those in attendance formed in couples and proceeded to the banquet-room. The banquet, which was served in courses, lasted from 9:30 until 12:30, dancing and music being indulged in between courses. Those who served included the Misses Nada Sparling, Viola Greenep, Hazel Dowdy, Audrey Brooks, Mary Flint, Gertie Flint, Malvina Moore and Bernice Aberleche. During the evening the glee club of Aleli 102, N.D.G.W. (Salinas)—

Larkin sang most delightfully. At the banquet's conclusion, D.D.G.P. George W. Reid of Santa Cruz delivered a short address.

Expects to Win Banner.

Sebastopol—There was a large attendance of members of Sebastopol 143 present October 2 to greet Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger on his official visit, and the meeting was also attended by a large delegation from Santa Rosa 28. Seven candidates were initiated for Sebastopol Parlor and one for Santa Rosa Parlor. Since August 15, when the trophy banner contest began, Sebastopol has increased its membership 25 per cent, and expects to win the banner in this district.

Grand Second Vice-president Traeger delivered an address that increased the members' enthusiasm; he complimented Sebastopol Parlor on its splendid success in enrolling all eligibles, and told of the work being carried on by the Order which should make all native sons anxious to affiliate with it. Following the Parlor session, a buffet supper was served and those assembled talked over the affairs of the Parlor and Order.

Reaches Half-Thousand Mark.

San Francisco—South San Francisco 157, the home Parlor of Grand President William P. Caubu, initiated its five hundredth member October 1. Since January 1, the Parlor has added 115 new names to its roster-roll, and hopes to have a membership of 551 by the time delegates are elected to the San Diego Grand Parlor.

South San Francisco's members are endeavoring to put it over the top as the largest Parlor in the Order. Other local Parlors have the same ambition, particularly Castro 232, hence there is a friendly rivalry that will add hundreds of new names to the Order's membership in this city.

Many Parlors Endorse Anti-Asiatic Stand.

Sacramento—Sunset 26 takes this opportunity to thank the Native Sons and Native Daughters Parlors for their prompt and hearty response in protesting to Washington against the Japanese and Asiatic menace in California. Sunset has received word from a number of Parlors, announcing their endorsement of the anti-Oriental campaign which the Parlor proposed.

Sunset opened its winter season of social activities with a dance, October 17. Two more dances of this series will be given before Christmas, with another series planned to open in January. With the new year, Sunset may increase its initiation fee, a resolution proposing $25 having been introduced. The Parlor believes its prestige in Sacramento will warrant an increase in the initiation, although sentiment is divided on the amount. At the meeting October 20, the Parlor will vote on the plan to furnish transportation to the 1920 Grand Parlor at San Diego for members who bring in 10 new members in the meantime. Don't forget that Sunset is grooming J. J. Monteverde for the race for Grand Trustee in 1920.

Mount Bally Growing.

Weaverville—Home Welcome Day, September 25, was observed here by the biggest celebration in years, Mount Bally 87 and Eltapome 55, N.D.G.W., taking leading parts in making it a big success. Both Parlors had big turnouts in the parade, and were represented by handsome floats, that of the Native Daughters being the most attractive in line. Music for the celebration was furnished by Mount Bally's band.

October 6, Mount Bally initiated one candidate and received another application. Several additional applications are in prospect, so the Parlor is making steady growth numerically. Because of its interest in civic affairs, it is the most popular fraternal organization in Weaverville.

Hopes to Retain Banner.

Wheatland—Rainbow 40 has appointed a membership committee and expects to retain the Grand Parlor trophy banner which has been awarded it the past three years. The Parlor is in splendid condition, and the members are enthusiastically spreading Native Son propaganda.

Rainbow Parlor has taken a firm stand against Asiatics, and has adopted and forwarded to Washington resolutions expressing similar sentiments as those forwarded by Sunset 26 (Sacramento).

Grand Trustee Visits.

Nevada City—Hydraulic 56 was officially visited, September 23, by Judge James G. Conlan of San Francisco, Grand Trustee, who addressed those assembled on "Loyalty." A delicious camp stew was served, after which toasts pertaining to the Peach Crop—California's 1919 peach crop is estimated at 17,625 bushels of 100 per cent quality; all but about 4,000 tons have been canned and dried. Forty per cent of the peaches are grown in Fresno, Kings and Tulare Counties.

JUST CALIFORNIA

Big Increase—Sacramento County's fruit crop this year has an estimated value of $6,500,000, an increase of $800,000 over last year. About one-third of this amount represents the pear crop value, Sacramento leading all counties in pear production.

Prosperous Year—This year's peach, almond and prune crops will bring the fruit men of the Chico section of Butte County about $2,760,000. The rice crop of the district will bring an additional $3,000,000; about 12,000 acres are devoted to rice culture.

Cutting Up—Sub-division of big land tracts in the Byron section of Contra Costa County has commenced in earnest, irrigation hastening the happy result. The land is now on the market; much of it is adapted to alfalfa growing.

Humboldt There—For the first time in the fair's history, Humboldt County was an exhibitor this year at the California State Fair at Sacramento, and won many awards.—California Development Board Bulletin, October 6.

Amador Has Commerce Chamber—The Amador County Chamber of Commerce has been officially launched, says the "Amador Ledger." Jackson will be the headquarters, and there a display of the county's many resources will be maintained.

To "Boost" Placer County—The Placer County Chamber of Commerce has been organized to spread information regarding the numerous resources of old Placer. Roseville has been selected as the seat of action, says the "News-Messenger," and an exhibit will be maintained in the county's exhibit building there.

Hurrah for California—In the National Dairy Show at Chicago last month, California was awarded first prizes in certified milk, market milk and market cream.

School Moneys—Will C. Wood, Superintendent of Public Instruction, has announced the first apportionment of California's public-school moneys for the fiscal year 1919-20. The elementary schools, employing 12,788 teachers June 30, got $4,475,800, and the 319 high schools, having an average daily attendance June 30 of 70,715, got $573,261.

Grain Production—California's 1919 wheat production totals 14,000,000 bushels, barley 31,150,000 bushels, rice 8,750,000 bushels.

Fruit Growers to Meet—The California Fruit Growers and Farmers' Association will hold its fifty-second annual convention at Chico, Butte County, November 10-15. Problems affecting agriculture will be discussed.

Some Autos—There were 269,732 auto owners in California September 1; some of them own more than one car. Of these owners, 78,628 are credited to Los Angeles County, 24,261 to San Francisco, 19,303 to Alameda County, and 15,348 to Fresno County.

Bonds for New Schools—At an election October 18, Sacramento City voted $3,064,000 bonds for new school buildings. Of this amount, $750,000 will be used for a new high school, and the remainder for elementary school buildings.

NATIVE SON NEWS

past, present and future of the Parlor and Order were responded to.

Alameda County Drive a Success.

Oakland—The membership campaign being conducted by the Alameda County Parlors is meeting with wonderful success, class initiations being held weekly. Fruitvale 252 recently initiated the largest class in its history.

The Parlors are calling attention to the unselfish work being carried on by the Order, from which all California benefits, and are presenting these facts to eligibles as reasons why they should affiliate and thereby become active participants in the work. The "drive" will close December 31.

Richmond Wants 300.

Richmond—Richmond 217 is out for a membership of 300, and September 24 appointed Dr. C. R. Blake, George F. Black, Charles Swartout, Andy Summers and R. M. Salceta a committee to see that recruits to that number are forthcoming. Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger of Los Angeles and Arthur E. Curtis (Precita 187) of San Francisco, a former Grand Trustee, were present on this occasion and created a new enthusiasm by their addresses.

Wants 'Em Barred.

Marysville—Marysville 6, at its meeting October 9, unanimously adopted a resolution urging the National Congress to bar further Asiatics from entering this country, and requesting such action as will make it impossible for the children of Asiatics born in this country to become American citizens.

Tells of Early-day Routes.

Merced—Yosemite 24 is arranging for a big celebration of Home Coming Day, November 11, and has outlined a program of social activities for the next six months. An orchestra is being organized within the membership, and a series of dances will be given to pay for a baseball park.

Major P. M. Norhoe of the state engineering department, a member of Sunset 26 (Sacramento), was a visitor September 24, and made a splendid address dealing with early history. He is particularly well posted regarding the routes traveled by the Pioneers, and his talk was an inspiration, as well as overflowing with information, to his hearers. Past Grand President Walter D. Wagner was also present on this occasion and made a short talk.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Past Grand President Louis H. Mooser of San Francisco paid a visit to Eureka last month.

Gus Weiss (Mt. Diablo 101, Martinez), long a resident of Laguna, New Mexico, has moved with his family to San Francisco.

Harry C. Sweetser of Santa Barbara, recording secretary Santa Barbara 116, has been ill the past month with typhoid fever.

Al E. Osuna (Tuolumne 144) has moved from Sonora to Stockton. The Parlor tendered him a farewell party September 19, and through D.D.G.P. Rowan Hardin presented him with an emblematic pin.

DEATH TAKES NATIVE SON, BORN IN 1850.

Wheatland—John A. Stewart, a long-time member of Rainbow Parlor No. 40, N.S.G.W., died here September 19 from the effects of a paralytic stroke. He was born in Sonoma County, June 3, 1850. Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Margaret Taggart-Stewart, and three children—Carl Stewart, Mrs. L. L. Kimerer and Mrs. H. A. Niemeyer.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS CONSOLIDATE.

The Mutual Savings Bank, one of San Francisco's oldest financial institutions, has been consolidated with the First Federal Trust Company of that city. Business for the present will be carried on at 706 Market street and the First National Bank building at Post and Montgomery streets.

Before long, a new building for the consolidated banks will be erected on Montgomery street, adjoining the First National Bank.

ANTI-ASIATIC MEETING CALLED

The local Native Sons and Native Daughters have organized a joiut Anti-Asiatic Committee, for the purpose of arousing the people of this section to unite in aetiou that will add weight to the state-wide demand for Federal and State legislation to remedy the Japanese evil, which is nowhere more of a growing pest than in Los Angeles City and County. Officers of the committee are: Robert L. Hanley, chairman; Eugene Biscailuz, secretary; Walter D. Gilman, assistaut secretary; Harry J. Lelaude, treasurer.

The committee meets weekly, aud has been instrumental iu getting other organizations to join forces with those who want to save California for the white race, and has been accumulatiug valuable information to prove that the Japanese are a menace to the community, the state, and the country. Individuals outside the Order have come forward, realizing the neeessity of action, aud offered their assistance. Every Parlor has passed, and sent to Washington, resolutions demanding that legislation be enacted to not only prevent the spread of, but to eure, "Japanitis," and other organizations have taken similar action.

Every Americau ought to be aequainted with the facts about the "peaceful iuvasiou" of California by the Japauese, aud, knowing them, every Americau should enroll in the army that is organizing to immediately stop, by legislation if possible, this invasion. To these ends, the committee has sent a letter to all the state societies and fraternal and civic organizations in the city, asking them to consider the Japanese question and to send representatives to a meeting to be held Saturday night, November 15, at Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street, to discuss the matter, to organize, and to map out a course of action that will assure results. All Native Sons and Native Daughters should be on hand, as this conference has to do with the future welfare of your native state.—C. M. H.

LIFE SACRIFICED UPON COUNTRY'S ALTAR

Mrs. Rose B. Curtin, one of the most valued members of Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W., passed suddenly out of this life at her home here, Sunday, October 19. While she had been ill for some weeks, as a direct result of overtaxing her physical and mental strength in war work, there was not the slightest indication that her earthly career was about to close, and word of her untimely passing came as a distinct shock to those who admired her splendid character as well as her physical charms. Her brief career, which brought sunshine where'er she went, was, in truth, sacrificed upon the altar of country.

On St. Valentine's Day (February 14), 1883, there came a beautiful Rose-valentine to the Los Angeles home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lindenfeld, who arrived here forty-six years ago to reside. She was educated in the public schools, being a graduate of Los Angeles High, and was a devout Catholic. In June, 1913, she was wedded to John T. Curtin, an attorney. In addition to these, the following relatives are weighted down with sorrow: Hattie, N. J. and Frank Lindenfeld, Jr., Mrs. Charles D. Block, Mrs. Leona Dixon (Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W.), Mrs. V. B. Andreas, brothers and sisters, and Miss Ramona Block (Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W.), a niece.

MRS. ROSE B. CURTIN,
In her Red Cross Uniform.

As a member of Los Angeles Parlor, Mrs. Rose Curtin in her daily life exemplified the teachings of the Order of Native Daughters: she was intensely loyal to country and state, a friend in need, aud a dispenser of unheralded charity. Her time and her talents were freely giveu in advanciug the interests of the fraternity. For several years she served the Parlor as a trustee, and was one of its delegates to the Del Monte (1917) Grand Parlor. During the war, and even after its termination until the time when a complete breakdown made further activity impossible on her part, she was eontinually engaged in Red Cross work, and was a precinct chairman in every Liberty Loan drive. Both within and without the Orders of Native Sons and Native Daughters, she numbered her friends by the hundreds, for she had been weighed in the balances aud not found wanting.

With the passing of Mrs. Rose Curtin, California has lost one of its fairest daughters, and one who was a faithful servant of the God of All. Her earthly journey o'er,

"She has slipped her moorings and sailed away;
Her craft will be missed from the busy bay;
Some friendly barks that were anchored near,
Some loving souls that her heart held dear,
In silent sorrow drop many a tear;
But she has peacefully furled her sail
In mooring sheltered from storm and gale,
And is greeting the friends who sailed before
O'er the unknown sea to the unknowu shore."

Want California Educator.

Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., has sent to the City Board of Education a strong letter of protest against engaging the services of any but a California educator to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Superiutendent Albert Shiels. The letter says, in part:

"The public schools of Los Angeles are maintained at the expense of California taxpayers residing in this city, and there are, right here in this state, many men and women eminently qualified, both as educators and as executives, to direct the public-school affairs of this city; and they have the added advantages of being perfectly familiar with local conditions and of taking a special pride in increasing the efficiency of the public schools of California.

"The State of California, which has spent and continues to spend many millions of dollars annually iu the cause of education, boasts of her wonderful educational institutions, and it is conceded that our universities are among the very best in the country. If this be not but an idle boast, why does the Board of Education find it necessary to seek otherwheres than within our own educational institutions for a superintendent of Los Angeles' public schools?" A letter, expressing similar sentiments, has also been sent to the board by Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W.

Penny March Brings Children's Funds.

The contribution march for the homeless children, originated by Henry N. Ireland (Corona 196, N.S.G.W.), and recently inaugurated in the three Native Son Parlors—Los Angeles 45, Ramona 109 and Corona 196—has proven a great success, J. B. Coffey, treasurer of the joint homeless children committee, reporting that over one hundred dollars has been turned into the treasury from this source.

The committee is doing splendid work in the supervision and placing of children in homes, Irving Baxter making an excellent chairman. The following are members of this committee: Irving Baxter, J. B. Coffey, Dr. R. M. Dunsmoor, J. T. Newell, A. L. Cron, K. C. Grainger, John O'B. Bodkin, Henry N. Ireland, James M. Lynch, Misses Susan Donahue, J. L. Labory, Estelle Campbell, and Mesdames Selina Gibson and Annie L. Adair.

Initiates Six.

Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W., initiated the following October 6: Misses Anna Benson, Una Callahan, Hazel Allen; Mesdames Lucy Maylin, Anna McIntyre, Anna Hall. After the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served. D.D.G.P. Kate McFadyen (Long Beach 154) was a welcome visitor and assisted in the initiatory ceremonies.

Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer spoke on the state-wide interest being taken in the preservation and restoration of the California missions, and President Gertrude Allen appointed her as chairman of a committee to assist in doing the Parlor's share in the movement to preserve these wonderful historical monuments of pioneer days.

Mrs. Daisy Eckstrom and Miss J. L. Labory have charge of the Parlor's membership committee. Past Grand President Stoermer, President Gertrude Allen and Mrs. Annie L. Adair are the committee named to confer with the local Native Son Parlors in regard to the anti-Japanese movement. Mrs. Paul Robinson very kindly gave the use of her beautiful home as a meeting place for the Parlor pending the completion of the new Ramona Hall.

Days of '49 Frolic.

Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W., announces a "Days of '49 Frolic" at Native Sons Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street, at 8 p. m., Saturday, November 1, in which all Native Sons are invited to participate. It is being given for the benefit of the homeless children and the good of the order fund.

The announcement says "There will be plenty doing; music, frivolity, refreshments. Knock-'em-dead stuff all the time. Mile-a-minute fun. Frolic and foolishness." It also plainly states that all "gloom-dispensers, loafers, knockers, dead ones and long hairs" will not get by the guards at the outer door. The session will be a protracted one, but "no need to go hungry, for good old free lunch will be among those present."

The committee in charge, made up of Los Angeles' chemical purifiers, says "You can whoop-er-up! Be on time, wear a smile, and be well healed."

The New Ramona Hall.

Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., has been all upset the past month on account of moving to the new Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street. By the first of November everything will be in tip-top shape in the handsome new quarters, and sometime during the month Ramona will have a house-warming which, those arranging it say, will be "some" party.

The new home of Ramona occupies two floors, the top one being set aside for club purposes, and the second having a meeting-hall and a reading-room, the latter facing Hill street. In addition to Ramona, Corona 196, N.S.G.W., La Esperanza 24, N.D.G.W., and Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W., will meet in the new quarters.

"Big Bill" Negotiated Some Three-Inch Holes.

Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger of the Native Sons was in San Francisco last month, making his headquarters there while visiting Parlors around the bay. September 25 he and Grand President William P. Canbu were guests of George Barry (Presidio 194) in an inspection of the German "sub," "U-88," which was anchored there.

The party inspected the "sub" from the dent in her side to the top of her periscope, and Barry and Canbu were afforded no little amusement in watching "Big Bill" wedge himself through the three-inch passageways. He also expressed admiration (?) for the bunks, not over four and a half feet in length.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. D. Taggart (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) has been appointed and assumed the duties of deputy city prosecutor.

Ed L. Head (Stanford 76, N.S.G.W.), keeper of the state archives at Sacramento, stopped over a few days last month on his way to San Diego to attend the Elks' reunion.

Miss Grace S. Stoermer, Past Grand President, N.D.G.W., was a visitor to San Diego and San Francisco last month.

Mark Keppel (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.), Superintendent Los Angeles County Schools, took a two-weeks' auto vacation trip through the northern part of the state last month.

J. T. Stafford and T. W. McAuliffe (Sacramento 3, N.S.G.W.) stopped off en route home from the Elks' reunion in San Diego for a few days last month.

Charles O. Brittain and Edwin A. Meserve (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) were visitors to Sacramento last month.

Miss Anna E. McCanghey (Reina del Mar 126, N.D.G.W.) stopped over last month on her way to her Santa Barbara home from San Bernardino, where she had been attending a conference of probation officers.

Chief Justice Frank M. Angellotti and Associate Justice Thomas J. Lennon (Mt. Tamalpais 64, N.S.G.W.) were here last month attending sessions of the California Supreme Court.

J. A. Adair (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) and his wife, Annie L. Adair (Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W.), in charge of the homeless children work in the south, were San Diego visitors last month.

Hubert B. Scudder (Sebastopol 143), Grand Inside Sentinel, N.S.G.W., was among last month's visitors.

BANK CLEARANCES INDICATE IMPROVED BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

Bank clearings of the several clearing-house cities, as reported to the California Development Board for the four weeks ending October 2, 9, 16 and 23, all show substantial increases, compared with 1918 reports. Following is the four-weeks' total for each city:

CALIFORNIA MINING NEWS

MANY CALIFORNIANS GOING TO NATIONAL MINING CONFERENCE.

The twenty-second annual meeting of the American Mining Congress will be held at St. Louis, November 17 to 21. The National Gold Conference, National Conference of War Minerals Producers and the National Exposition of Mines and Miniug will he held at the same time. Many men of California interested in developing the state's mineral resources will attend.

The meetings will he especially important. The proceedings will be devoted largely to reconstruction problems, as the Congress recognizes that "The recovery of industrial halance through resumption of maximum production is the great outstanding need of the Nation."

Delegates will include the leading mining men of the country and the program will cover the most important subjects now requiring solution by the industry. Government officials will take a prominent part and the United States Bureau of Mines will have a special exhihit at the exposition.

DEEP MINING PROFITABLE MINING.

Skimming the surface of things is not the way to find a mine. We have wasted a good many years and broken a good many hearts, helieving we could follow up a prospect and by digging helow the grass roots find gold enough to pay for equipment, mill and men.

It is demonstrated heyond a doubt that everywhere along the Mother Lode, a mine that is a mine improves and hecomes a bigger dividend-payer the greater the depth.

Jnst now there are signs of a revival in mining circles. It is such a clean, attractive proposition, when rightly financed and properly handled, it is a wonder that capital has not given it earlier attention.—Amador Ledger.

MINE RESCUE STATION.

Invitation to the United States Bureau of Mines to house the equipment of the mine rescue station in the Hearst Memorial Mining Building at the University of California, at Berkeley, with such office space as may be necessary, was recently extended by the Board of Regents at the suggestion of the United States Bureau of Mines, the directors of the California Metal Miners' Association, the Industrial Accident Commission, the state mineralogist, and a numher of representative mining men.

This station, if estahlished at the university, will make available all the facilities for practical rescue and relief work incident to explosions, fires, aud other mine disasters. It is inportant, from the standpoint of education, in that it will train mining students to render aid to the injured.

Miss Muriel Helen Storms of Berkeley has given to the university's College of Mining ahout 160 volumes dealing with miniug and metallurgy. These volumes constituted the technical lihrary of her father, the late William H. Storms, formerly state mineralogist of California.

DEVELOPMENT NOTES.

The bed of the Stanislaus River at Oakdale, Stanislaus County, believed to be filled with gold washed down from the hills in the old days, is to be dredged.

During September, 8,423,820 barrels of oil were produced, and 9,229,565 barrels shipped, leaving 32,899,638 barrels on hand October 1. Kern County was the heaviest producer, its total heing 3,856,980 barrels.

The "Calaveras Prospect" says oue of the higgest mining deals in the history of Calaveras County was consummated when a company of unlimited capital acquired a group of more than fifty quartz claims in the West Point district. New machinery and methods will be used in extensively developing the properties.

An electric railway is under construction in Nevada County, to transport ore from the Pennsylvania mine to the mill of the Empire, the capacity of which is heing increased hy the addition of nineteen stamps, making seventy-niue in all.

Two gravel properties near Placerville, El Dorado County,—the Pacific and the Hydro mines,—have passed to new owners, who will develop them.

Dewatering of the Opp mine, one of Calaveras County's famous gold mines, has progressed so favorably that it is helieved the lower levels will be cleared hy Novemher 1.

Two Trinity County gold mines,—the Globe Consolidated at Dedrick and the Jacob at Junction City,—have changed hands, and will be operated.

The old Morgan mine, at Carson Hill, Calaveras County, has again come into the list of Mother Lode gold producers. It recently passed to new owners, who now have four ore hodies under development.

San Francisco interests have acquired the Central, Banner and North Banner mines near Grass Valley, Nevada County, and will give special attention to developiug the large veins of gold-silver ore.

The "Placer Herald" says that, in a miuing way, there is more activity in the Forest Hill Divide district of Placer County than for several years past.

So satisfactory have been recent developments at the Hess mine near Adin, Modoc County's chief gold producer, that it will be operated on greatly broadened lines.

At the Greenhower placer mine in the Meadow Valley district of Plumas County, near Mount Ararat, extensive development work is under way.

From Marysville comes word that valuable asbestos deposits have been uncovered in Yuba County.

The Galt section of Sacramento County is to he tested for oil.

The old Wilhur-Womble gold mine near Hohson, Calaveras County, has been taken over hy a San Francisco company, and the "Calaveras Prospect" says "it is stated on what appears to be good authority that the mine will soon be operated on a large scale."

WHY THE LEAVES CHANGE COLOR

It requires no vivid imagination to picture Mother Nature going ahout these days with a liheral supply of paint with which she colors the leaves of the trees and other plants and therehy produces the vivid tints which characterize the foliage of this season, says the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. In reality the change in coloring is the result of certain chemical processes which take place in the leaves. The change is not, as many people suppose, due to the action of frost, hut is a preparation for winter.

All during the spring aud summer the leaves have served as factories, where the foods necessary for the trees' growth have been manufacutred. This food-making takes place in numherless tiny cells of the leaf and is carried on hy small green bodies which give the leaf its color. These chlorophyll bodies, as they are known, make the food of the tree hy comhining carbon taken from the carbonic acid gas of the air with hydrogen, oxygen, and various minerals supplied by the water which the roots gather. In the fall, when the cool weather causes a slowing down of the vital processes, the work of the leaves comes to an end. The machinery of the leaf factory is dismantled, so to speak, the chlorophyll is hroken up into the various substances of which it is composed, and whatever food there is on hand is sent to the hody of the tree to he stored up for use in the spring. All that remains in the cell cavities of the leaf is a watery suhstance in which a few oil glohules and crystals, and a small numher of yellow, strongly refractive bodies can he seen. These give the leaves the yellow coloring so familiar in autumnal foliage.

It often happens, however, that there is more sugar in the leaf than can be readily transferred hack to the tree. When this is the case the chemical comhination with the other suhstances produces many-colored tints varying from the hrilliant red of the dogwood to the more austere red-hrowns of the oak. In coniferous trees, which do not lose their foliage in the fall, the green coloring matter takes on a slightly brownish tinge, which, however, gives way to the lighter color in the spring.

While the color of the leaf is changing, other preparations are heing made. At the point where the stem of the leaf is attached to the tree, a special layer of cells develops which gradually sever the tissues which support the leaf. At the same time Nature heals the cut, so that when the leaf is finally hlown off hy the wind or falls from its own weight, the place where it grew on the twig is marked hy a scar.

Although the food which has heen prepared in the cell cavities is sent back to the tree, the mineral suhstances with which the walls of the cells have hecome impregnated during the summer months are retained. Accordingly, when the leaves fall they contain relatively large amounts of valuahle elements, such as nitrogen and phosphorus, which were originally a part of the soil. The decomposition of the leaves results in enriching the top layers of the soil hy returning these elements and hy the accumulation of humus. That is why the mellow hlack earth from the forest floor is so fertile. But if fires are allowed to run through the forest and the leaves are hurned the most valuahle of the fertilizing elements are changed hy the heat iuto gases and escape into the air. As a result, forests which are hurned over regularly soon lose their soil fertility, even if no apparent damage is done to the standing timher.

FORMER N. S. FELLOW AUTHOR HISTORY BOOK

"Audiencia in the Spanish Colonies as Illustrated hy the Audiencia of Manila," a hook of nearly 500 pages, the work of Dr. C. H. Cunningham, former graduate student of the University of California and now Adjunct Professor of History in the University of Texas, has just been published by the Uuiversity of California Press under the general editorship of Herhert E. Bolton, Professor of American History and Curator of the Bancroft Lihrary.

Dr. Cuuningham's iuterest in his suhject arose from his residence of several years iu Manila, where he had direct access to the original documents bearing upon the Audiencia or great court which for more than 200 years controlled the administration of the Philippine Islands. His opportunities for research were further extended by residence for two years in Spain as Native Sons' Fellow in Pacific Coast History.

The main value of Dr. Cunningham's investigation does not lie in its connection with the Philippines, hut in its larger relations to Spanish colonial history and government, according to Professor Bolton. The study illuminates the entire field of colonial development, from Argentina to California and from Florida to Manila, since all of the Audiencias were dependent ou the same home agency, the Council of the Indies, and since all had similar functions.

What most impresses the American student with regard to Spain's colonial administrative machinery, says Dr. Cunuingham, was its failure to effect that division of powers which we consider essential to a well-balanced goverument. In Spain's system, "executive," "judicial" and "legislative" were functions rather than separate administrative departments, and all three of these functions were commonly exercised hy every magistrate, high or low, great or small.

Spain's system has heen regarded as clumsy. Much of the time of her officials was spent asking permission to do things and in writing reports. But, says Dr. Cunningham, "The apparent unwieldiness of the Spanish Colonial Empire would have been materially reduced hy the use of the telegraph, cahle, steamship, typewriter and carbon paper."

STUPENDOUS COST OF THE WORLD WAR

In his address to the people of Seattle, Washington, Septemher 13, on the League of Nations, President Woodrow Wilson made puhlic, "on official authority," figures showing the staggering cost of the world-war. In dollars, the war cost:

INDISPUTABLE FACTS AND FIGURES

PROVING CALIFORNIA WILL BECOME JAPANIZED UNLESS YELLOW PERIL STAMPED OUT

By Valentine S. McClatchy
(PUBLISHER THE SACRAMENTO "BEE.")

The accompanying article from the pen of Valentine S. McClatchy, publisher of the Sacramento "Bee," presents facts and figures conclusively proving that the Asiatic danger is not a fancied but a real one—one that the Nation and the State MUST IMMEDIATELY REMOVE by remedial legislation, and which they will remove if the people unite with that fully-justified object in view.

Mr. McClatchy knows whereof he writes, for he has carefully investigated conditions not ouly here, but also in Asiatic countries. He is rendering service of inestimable value to the Nation and the State through publicity given the Japauese conquest in the "Bee"; he has spent much time recently in Washington endeavoring to defeat the iniquitous Gulick and Dillingham immigration bills, and will return to the National Capital to continue his efforts when the Congress reassembles December 1. Let us second his efforts, by united action!

"This is our country!" he says, hut it will only remain so if we AT ONCE route the army of Huns of the Orient bent on acquiring it, and aided and abetted in their purpose by powerful pro-Japanese within our country. These United States of America must be saved, hy legislation along the lines suggested by Mr. McClatchy and others, if possible; but they MUST BE SAVED!

We urge every reader of The Grizzly Bear to protest to his representatives in the National Congress against the passage of either the Dillingham or Gulick bills, and to also urge his friends to do likewise. And we further urge that in every Parlor of Native Sons and Native Daughters this article be read and re-read, that its members may be intelligently guiaed in a course of action, fully justified by the seriousness of the situation, which will unite all American forces in a campaign to have enacted immediately National and State legislation that will guarantee the future safety of California and the United States from the yellow peril.—Editor

OSITION AND PRIVILEGE CARRY with them obligation and responsibility. We, who were born under the sunny skies of California, who feel and profess a love for the glorious State, certainly owe her support and protection in her hour of need and danger.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, who have sought through their organizations to make public profession of the love and fealty that is in them, cannot strive in a better cause than in safeguarding the State's future freedom from foreign enslavement, and in insuring to their children and to their children's children the enjoyment of California's hills and valleys in the glorious years to come.

And when the same danger that threatens the State threatens equally, in time, the entire Nation, then is their duty as Californians, reinforced by their greater duty as Americans, to meet and overcome the impending peril.

The State and the Nation are faced now by such a danger! It has already developed within our State, and unless opposed and conquered, will destroy the State for white occupation within a comparatively short time, and then rapidly extend until other states, and all states, eventually, succumb.

Even under existing conditions it will he a matter of a few generations only before the Japanese will have so increased in this State that, with the advantages possessed by them in economic competition, they will have successfully ousted the white races from desirable industries and from all desirable localities, as has been done already in a few locations. The result will be hastened if legislation now urged in Congress shall he passed.

This is not simply the expression of an individual opinion, open to criticism and possessing no weight in the face of opposing opinion; it is the statement of an incontrovertible fact, mathematically demonstrated by acknowledged conditions, and by statistics which have not yet heen contradicted or met, though they were first presented hy me in opposition to the proposed hill of Sidney L. Gulick before the Congressional House Immigration Committee in June of this year.

It is a source of gratification, therefore, to know that the Native Sons and Native Daughters have risen already to the occasion and launched in Los Angeles an organization—the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association—in favor of Asiatic exclusion, and that individual Parlors of these Orders throughout the State have adopted ringing resolutions asking their Congressional representatives to commence remedial measures.

Protection Against Lower Living Standards.

The brotherhood of man and the Golden Rule are appealed to by those who would inundate us gradually with the yellow tide from Japan; but neither principle calls for the surrender by the white race of their favored land to a yellow race which covets it because it offers advantages superior to those which can be found elsewhere. Remember, always, that this problem in its final analysis is simply, "Shall this country of ours he held for our white descendants, or shall it he turned over to the Japanese that they may rule those descendants as they rule in Korea today?"

Remember again, that there is involved in the subject no question as to racial equality, no reflection upon the Japanese. In fact, our stand upon this matter includes a frank admission that the Japanese are so much our superiors in certain admirable qualities, such as economy, industry and discipline, that, coupled with their lower standards of living, they would drive the white race to the wall in open economic competition, and that this disaster will inevitably follow if the Japanese are admitted to the country, or to certain portions thereof, in sufficient numbers to make their ecouomic advantages count.

And remember, too, that the right which we claim of protecting our people and our institutions against the importatiou of cheap labor with lower standards of living is precisely the right claimed and exercised by Japan herself, notwithstanding her vociferous protestations against our attitude and her demand for "racial equality," as a basis for free admission for her immigrants to the United States, Canada and Australia; that under Imperial Ordinance No. 352, Japan does not admit, aud never has admitted, the cheap labor of Korea and China, notwithstanding it is also yellow in color, and says publicly that she excludes these peoples because their lower standards of living would make their competition unfair to the Japanese.

It is assumed that no one will question the propriety of the principles outlined above, provided the facts are as represented. It remains only to present those facts. Incidentally, it should be said that in the space of a magazine article, the matter can be presented in outline ouly, and those who desire fuller explanations and details and the statistics are referred to statements made by me before the House Immigratiou Committee, September 25, and before the Seuate Immigration Committee, October 10, of this year, and now in print; or to my published articles which have since been issued in booklet form.*

Results of the "Gentlemen's Agreement."

The established policy of the United States is against Asiatic immigration, because the lower standards of living of these immigrants and their possible number would seriously endanger the happiness and prosperity of our people, and the perpetuity of our institutions. The Chinese are kept out under the Exclusion Act. Japan was touched in her pride, or said she was, hy having her laborers excluded by law, and offered to exclude them voluntarily, if she was not placed in the same category with China. Hence the "Gentlemen's Agreement," which has been in operation since 1907, and under which Japan, it was understood, would restrict immigration of Japanese to this country as immigration of Chinese was restricted by law. The declared object of the agreement was to prevent Japanese laborers, skilled and unskilled, coming into continental United States. No Japanese, unless born under the Americau Flag in Hawaii, and therefore a citizen, may enter any part of continental United States unless he carries Japan's passport, which is in effect Japan's word as a "gentleman" that the immigrant is not a laborer, and does not come to labor.

The agree nent has been grossly violated by

Japan. It is only necessary to say that the Japanese population of the United States since 1900 has increased six-fold, while the Chinese population has decreased over one-half; and Japan was to have secured under the agreement results as to the Japanese similar to those secured as to the Chinese by the Exclusion Act.

So that, even if the agreement had been kept in good faith, it has failed entirely to accomplish the clearly-declared purpose for which it was entered into, and should therefore be abrogated. As a matter of fact, it could have accomplished that purpose had Japan acted up to its letter and its spirit. Under that agreement as now operating it would require only a few generations to make of California an economic principality of Japan, and drive Californians to other states where, in time, they would have to succumb to the ever-increasing yellow tide from Japan.

From 10,000 to 12,000 Japanese immigrants are coming in each year under this agreement; and most of them are at labor within a few weeks after their arrival, while others go into gainful occupations which displace whites.

The Japanese population of California by immigration has increased about 50,000 since 1907, when the agreement was made, and most of these immigrants are laborers. Each laborer forms a separate violation of the "Gentlemen's Agreement."

"Picture Brides" have been imported at the rate of over 4,000 a year for the past five years, most of them being laborers and performing the work of men in field or shop, in addition to bearing children, at the rate usually of one a year. In 1918, the total Japanese immigration was 10,168, of which over one-half, 5,347, were females. In 1900 in the United States there were twenty-five male Japanese to one female. In 1910 there were seven males to one female. At present, it is estimated that the proportion is about three to one.

The "Picture Bride," when she is a laborer, is a direct violation of the "Gentlemen's Agreement." As a mother, she is a cunning subterfuge for evading the intent of the agreement and increasing the Japanese population of the United States. Notwithstanding the fact that the Japanese females are outnumbered by the males in this country about three to one, while among the white races the sexes are about equal in number, the birth rate per thousand among the Japanese in Sacramento and other cities in California is five times as great as among the white population.

In the ten years following the adoption of the agreement, Japanese births in this State multiplied twenty-fold. Last year they numbered 4,365. The Chinese births in California are less than one-tenth of the Japanese, and their death rate is twice as large as the birth rate. The Japanese birth rate is between four and five times as great as their death rate.

There are in California about 25,000 Japanese native sons and daughters, each one entitled to hold land through a guardian, and many of them utilized for that purpose.

Los Angeles is the most populous county in the State, and in that county in May, 1919, outside of incorporated cities, the number of Japanese births was one-third of the aggregate births among all white races, as noted in the Los Angeles "Times" of June 30, 1919.

In Sacramento County, outside of Sacramento City, in 1918 the Japanese births exceeded the white births. The 1910 census showed eight times as many whites as Japanese in that district.

Since my articles have called attention to these matters there has been continuous comment in the Japanese newspapers of the State. One of them published in San Francisco urged the Japanese to import as many "Picture Brides" and secure as much California land as possible before restrictive measures are adopted by the State or the Nation.

Increase of Japanese Under Existing Conditions.

The official figures presented above will prepare the reader to consider seriously and to credit the astounding statement that tables carefully compiled show that under existing conditions the Japanese population of this country will increase so rapidly that in a few generations they will drive the whites out of California, and in much less than 200 years can annex the United States as a principality of Japan, the Americans and their descendants outnumbered, driven to the wall through economic competition, and Koreanized.

Under the Gulick plan, as urged upon Congress, the Japanese immigration would be increased in a few years beyond the present figures. Careful tables of increase of Japanese population in the United States under that plan, and assuming that the excess of births over deaths will be only one-half of that now shown, place the total in 1923 at 318,600; in 1933 at 542,000; in 1943 at 875,000; in 1963 at 2,000,000; in 2003 at 10,000,000; in 2063 at 100,000,000!

Examination of results secured by Japanese colonization in Hawaii and California will convince any one that long before the last date named the whites would have been driven to the wall either by economic competition or by force of arms, and that the world's glorious Republic would have become an appendage of Japan. Under operation of the "Gentlemen's Agreement," as now working, the result would be equally certain, but it might take a little longer.

A year ago this statement would have been laughed at. Remember, today, that the facts and figures upon which it is based have been before the American public and before the House Committee on Immigration since June of this year and neither Sidney L. Gulick nor any other champion of the Japanese, or of the policy of opening our ports to them, has attempted to disprove their correctness.

Elements of the Japanese Menace.

The numbers of the Japanese and the manner in which they will inevitably increase in this country form but one factor, however, in the menace which they offer.

They do not assimilate! The melting-pot does not affect them as it does in time the most refractory of the European races. They remain always Japanese. They maintain their racial purity more jealously than any other race which comes to our shores. They preserve their ideals, their customs, their language, their loyalty to Japan, even when born here, partly because Japan never ceases to hold them as Japanese citizens, and partly because they are taught in Japanese schools by Japanese teachers who frequently speak no English, and have no sympathy with American ideals. It is a dangerous experiment to attempt to make good American citizens of such material!

The nature of this problem is well illustrated in Hawaii. Concerning the lesson taught there, Sidney L. Gulick himself declared in 1914, in his pamphlet "Hawaii's American-Japanese Problem":

> "If, as Asiatics, they maintain their traditional conceptions of God, nature and man; of male and female; of husband and wife; of parent and child; of ruler and ruled; of the state and the individual, the permanent maintenance in Hawaii of American democracy, American homes and American liberty is impossible."

The standards of living of the Japanese are much lower than ours. Unless we are willing to work twelve, fifteen or eighteen hours a day, to forego recreation and pleasure, and the comforts of American homes; and to have our women slave in the fields, and incidentally bear a child a year, then it is hopeless for us to attempt economic competition with the Japanese. In such a competition in this country, the white race, even the industrious, hard-working immigrants from Europe, must inevitably go to the wall.

The Japanese do not distribute themselves throughout the country so as to make a weak solution of Japanese in a great reservoir of Americans. They concentrate their numbers in those localities and industries where most profit can be secured with least effort and least discomfort, and have a co-operation which is more effective than that shown by any American labor union. In this State, for instance, there are say 100,000 Japanese in a total population of 3,600,000, but three-quarters of that 100,000 are found in seven of our fifty-eight counties, and concentrated generally in a few favored localities in those counties.

Under such policy, and with their economic advantages and the assistance received from their government through banks and commissions, it is comparatively easy to conquer one district, drive the whites therefrom, and let newcomers concentrate in other localities. So in time, the favored spots of the State must succumb—and, unless the remedy is applied, the favored spots of other states.

Here are before us, then, the three elements which make Japanese immigration such a grave danger to the country:

First—They do not, and perhaps never will, assimilate.

Second—They have a birth rate so much greater than the whites that time only would be necessary for them to outnumber the whites in communities to which they are admitted.

Third—Their low standards of living, co-operation and thrift give them advantages in economic competition against which it is hopeless for whites to compete.

Growth of the Evil Under Existing Conditions.

Let us glance, now, at what the Japanese, because of the factors named, have already accomplished under the American Flag. A brief outline of the facts, coupled with the undisputed figures as to the rate at which their numbers will increase under existing conditions, furnishes conclusive reply to those who insist that the danger is a fancied and not a real one, and that we can afford to wait until it matures further.

Hawaii is under the American Flag, but it has been practically conquered by the Japanese. Half the entire population of the territory are now Japanese, and they number four times as many as those of any other race. They boast in their newspapers that by the votes of native-born Japanese they will hold the balance of power as between Republicans and Democrats before 1933, and it is equally certain that within a generation they will outvote a combination of all other races in the territory. Their influence is already so great, in advance of the actual voting strength, that they defeated a bill before the territorial legislature in June of this year which would have forced teachers in Japanese and other foreign-language schools to know enough of the English language and American civics and history to teach the young American citizens some of their duties and obligations. The Japanese teachers do not fulfill these requirements.

The Japanese naturally control a number of industries in Hawaii, in which white or native labor was formerly employed.

What has already happened in Hawaii is now in progress in California. Look at Florin and Walnut Grove, in Sacramento County, and various communities in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, where the white population has already been displaced! Look at the orchard districts now largely dominated by Japanese, at blocks of thousands of acres now being colonized by them; note their increased ownership of land through dummy corporations and native-born Japanese under guardians; see their increased control of the rice fields; consider the Imperial Valley; recall entire districts in the fine residence portion of San Francisco and other cities from which the whites have been driven. Will we heed the lesson?

In Oregon, a large tract of 11,000 acres has just been purchased by Japanese on which these people will concentrate for growth of garden truck, largely potatoes.

In Seattle, forty-seven percent of all hotels and lodging-houses, including the big, pretentious hotels, are owned by the Japanese, and a corresponding number of restaurants, garages, commission houses and small business enterprises.

In the Hood River apple district of Oregon they have already secured control of a large percentage of the orchards. In Colorado they own practically the Rocky Ford melon business, with control of 85 percent of the district and the crop.

It should be apparent to the intelligent investigator that what has already happened in Hawaii is now taking place in California; that unless drastic remedies are at once applied, existing conditions will in a comparatively short time produce here such results as are noted there; that other favored sections of the Pacific Coast states will suffer in turn; and gradually, as the incoming yellow tide increases, first the most favored districts of other states must succumb, and ultimately all desirable portions of all states.

The problem, therefore, is not a California problem, or even a Pacific Coast problem, but a National problem. Adequate relief can come only from the Federal Government, which has, unwittingly, imposed the burden upon us and blindly permitted it to grow.

Propaganda for Increase of the Evil.

As proof of the necessity for immediate action and continued vigilance in the matter, it should be remembered that for over five years Japan conducted a wonderful propaganda in the United States, through Sidney L. Gulick, for the purpose of securing admission of all Asiatics to this country as immigrants and citizens on the same plane as Europeans, and taking away from the states any authority in handling matters in connection with the rights of aliens.

Gulick secured endorsement of that policy from the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ of America, the most powerful church federation in the country, comprising over 100,000 churches and 17,000,000 members, and was employed by the council under salary while he conducted his propaganda.

He organized, a year or more ago, the League for Constructive Immigration Legislation, for the ostensible purpose of protecting American citizenship by restricting undesirable immigration, and secured the names of nearly one thousand prominent Americans in the various states of the Union as sponsors for the league. He formulated a bill which he presented in the name of the league to the House Committee on Immigration in June of this year, which bill proposed to safeguard immigration by limiting it to a percentage of those various races who now claim, or may hereafter claim, American citizenship.

Incidentally, however, that bill was a framework in which reposed his main objective—throwing open our ports to the admission of Asiatics as immigrants and citizens. As before stated, the bill would permit the admission of more Japanese than now come in under the violations of the "Gentlemen's Agreement." And under its provisions, too, we could not admit one Belgian, Spaniard or Portuguese unless we admitted from 100 to 600 Germans; nor one Chinaman unless we admitted ten Japanese.

It is gratifying to know that most of Gulick's Committee of One Thousand, on learning the facts, have repudiated the League; and that his measure is dead in Congress because he could not make reply to those facts, a few of which are herein quoted.

But Senator Dillingham of Vermont has introduced in the Senate, and had referred to the Senate Committee on Immigration, a similar bill, which, while it does not admit Asiatics to citizenship,

THE NAME "CALIFORNIA"

ITS ORIGIN AND APPLICATION

By Dr. Charles Edward Chapman

(ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF HISTORY, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA.)

ONE OF THE MOST PRIZED POSsessions of present-day Californians is the beautiful and beloved name of the state, a name which has a lure that has carried its fame perhaps farther than that of any other state in the Union.* Yet the origin and application of the name were for a long time something of a mystery, and neither one nor the other is fully clear yet. California was not named for a member of the royal family in the homeland of the conquerors, as happened in the case of Virginia (for Elizabeth, the Virgin Queen), Carolina (for King Charles II), Maryland, Georgia and Louisiana. Unlike Massachusetts, Connecticut, Texas and others, too, it was not an Indian word or named for an Indian tribe. This being recognized, people for many years, centuries after the name was first applied, indulged in guesses as to both the origin and application, for which the evidence seemed to have disappeared. Those conjectures are now mere historical curiosities, illustrations in the extreme of the propensity of men to imagine the missing link in a chain of evidence, but as one hears these theories advanced by some even to the present day, it may be worth while to notice them. Most frequent among them has been the suggestion of a derivation from two Latin words "Calida fornax" (hot furnace). Baja California might well have seemed to Cortés and his men as hot as a furnace, it is said, or the name might also have occurred to them in connection with the Indian temescal, or sweat-house, underground. Similarly, the Catalan word "Californo" (hot oven) has been brought forward. "Cal y forno" (lime and furnace, or lime-kiln) provides another guess, though "cal" is Spanish and "forno" Catalan, but it is doubtful whether the Indians of Baja California had houses made of mortar in early times, thus making use of lime-kilns, though later they came to have them. Another view was that it sprang from "Colofón" (resin), on the ground that the Spaniards might have called out that word when they saw the resinous pine trees and decided to apply it as a name, perhaps as "Colofonia," gradually corrupting it to "California!" Another writer suggested "Cala fornix," based on the Spanish word for "cove" and the Latin for "vault," in that there is an arch under a rock in the bay, or cove, at one place where Cortés and his men landed in Baja California. These are a few theories out of many, all of which were barren guesses, unsustained by a shred of evidence. It may be said that it was not the habit of Spanish explorers to assign Latin names, or to mix Spanish with Latin or with Catalan in such a matter. A more likely suggestion was that the Spaniards might have misunderstood some Indian word and applied it as a name, but this too was a mere guess.

To Edward Everett Hale, distinguished divine and man of letters, is due the clearing away of the greater part of the cobwebs surrounding the origin of the name. In 1862 he chanced upon an old Spanish novel entitled "Las Sergas de Esplandián" (The Deeds of Esplandian), and found that it referred to a strange and romantic island "California." He at once jumped to the conclusion that this must have been the source whence the discoverers procured the name. Other men before his time knew of the "California" of the "Sergas,"—for example, the celebrated historian of Spanish literature, George Ticknor, who refers to the word in a volume that he published in 1849,—but neither he nor anybody else seems to have thought of its connection with the American state of the same name, or, if they did so, they do not seem to have recorded their impressions.

The "Sergas de Esplandián" was one of those fantastic novels of chivalry which so accurately represented, and in turn influenced, the minds of Europeans in the period of transition from medieval to modern times. It was a sequel to one of the earliest and undoubtedly the greatest of these books, the "Amadis de Gaula" (Amadis of Gaul) of the Portuguese Vasco de Loheira. The "Amadís" was written at about the opening of the fifteenth century or late in the fourteenth; Lobeira, the author, died in 1403. The book had a most extraordinary vogue, being indeed one of the most popular works of all time. It was translated into every important European tongue, and the mighty and heroic Amadís of the novel became almost a household god; it is said that it was unsafe to refer slightingly to Amadís, for some excited admirer might take it upon himself to avenge this hero of romance. The novel became even more popular, perhaps, after the invention of printing, since its distribution was of course greatly facilitated. Between 1492 and 1504 Garci Ordóñez de Montalvo completed a translation of the work to Spanish in four volumes, and attached to it a fifth, written by himself, the "Sergas de Esplandián." The original date of publication is not clear, but a copy of the year 1508 exists in the British Museum, and there is a reference to an edition of 1498. There were a number of re-issues,—for example, in 1519, 1521, 1525 and 1526, years contemporaneous with Cortés' early activities in New Spain.

In accord with the literary practices of his day, Ordóñez de Montalvo pretended that he was merely translating from the Greek a manuscript of the "Gran Maestro Elisabat, who saw and took part in what he relates." The story hinges on a supposed siege of Constantinople, when all the forces of paganism launched an attack against the emperor and his Christian allies in the city. In the midst of the siege the pagans received unexpected succor from Queen Calafía of the island California. Here is the story as it appears in the "Sergas":

> "I wish that you should know of a matter so very strange that neither in writings nor from the memory of people is it possible to discover how on the following day the city was on the point of being lost and how in that moment of peril it was saved. Know ye that at the right hand of the Indies there is an island named California, very close to that part of the Terrestrial Paradise, which was inhabited by black women, without a single man among them, and that they lived in the manner of Amazons. They were robust of body, with strong and passionate hearts and great virtues. The island itself is one of the wildest in the world on account of the bold and craggy rocks. Their weapons were all made of gold The island everywhere abounds with gold and precious stones, and upon it no other metal was found. They lived in caves well excavated. They had many ships with which they sailed to other coasts to make forays, and the men whom they took as prisoners they killed In this island, named California, there are many griffins In no other part of the world can they be found [And] there ruled over that island of California a queen of majestic proportions, more beautiful than all others, and in the very vigor of her womanhood. She was desirous of accomplishing great deeds, she was valiant and courageous and ardent with a brave heart, and had ambitions to execute nobler actions than had been performed by any other ruler."

The upshot was that Calafía, the queen of the island, resolved to lead her women to the war against the Christians. She is excused for this decision on the ground that she "did not understand what Christians were." Therefore she and her best warriors set out in their ships, taking with them five hundred griffins, which were in the habit of being "fed upon the men captured in battle." Arrived at Constantinople, she found that the pagan cause was going badly; so she sought permission to make the attack alone with her forces on the following day, adding that the pagans would then "see a battle, the strangest ever seen and never before dreamed of." The next day the dusky Californians advanced to the fray, and at the proper moment let loose the griffins. Thereupon there was great carnage among the Christians, many of whom were seized and eaten by these birds, while others were carried into the air and allowed to fall, being dashed to pieces. The arrows of the Christians and blows of swords and lances were not sufficient to wound these thick-feathered, tough-bodied creatures of the air. Then Calafía called on the exulting pagans to charge and complete the victory. But here disaster befell, for the griffins,

> "not knowing friend from foe, seized the Turks in the same manner that they had seized the Christians, and soaring high in the air with them let them drop to earth, and thus killed every one of them."

This turned victory into defeat, and "When this was seen by Queen Calafía she was sad in a grand manner." The griffins were called off, and Calafía and her Amazons made a vigorous attack. Though the queen performed prodigies of valor, she was unable to take the city. Thereupon Calafía joined with Radiaro, the sultan of Liquia, in a challenge to the old hero Amadís de Gaula and to his son Esplandián, great emulator of his father's deeds. A "handsome black maiden" was sent to the Christian camp, and was courteously received. Amadís accepted the challenge, and agreed that Calafía and the sultan might name the weapons. But the envoy had something more than this message to bring back. She declared that all the Christian leaders were very beautiful to look upon, but that none of them compared in this respect with the noble Esplandián.

Calafía now displayed some very human traits. She yearned to see and talk with Esplandián, and therefore decided to pay a visit herself to the Christian headquarters. All night she puzzled over the momentous question whether she should go in military attire or simply as a woman. The woman in her won, and she prepared to array herself in a way to make an impression. Not only did she dress herself in rich robes covered with gold and precious stones, but she also rode a steed which was truly "more marvelous than had ever been seen" and calculated to attract notice anywhere. Arrived at her destination, she too fell a victim to the charms of the beauteous Esplandián, but maintained sufficient recollection of her purported errand to arrange the terms of the combat. Esplandián did not return her admiration, however, for he already had a sweetheart in the person of the emperor's daughter (Leonorina), and was well content.

In due time the double duel took place. Esplandián, betwixt looks at his beloved fiancé (who viewed the affair from a convenient tower) and attention to the fight, overcame Radiaro. Meanwhile, Calafía was raining blows on Amadís, but he caught them on his shield or avoided them altogether. Amadís was too much of a gentleman to draw his sword against a lady, but he did not disdain to take a broken piece of her own lance and deal her such blows that he knocked her senseless. Presently the queen got up and protested against his trying to conquer her "with a club." The battle was resumed, and once more did Amadís do telling execution with his lance and once more Calafía was stunned. By this time the Christian hero had contrived to strip the queen of her shield and helmet, and she had also dropped her sword. So Calafía was now constrained to yield.

There is more to the story, but the rest is of less interest. Calafía became a prisoner of the Christians, and was given to Leonorina. Thus she saw much of that lady's fiancé, and fell desperately in love with him. Not, however, until he had already married Leonorina did she make him aware of the fact, and then she declared herself to him. Esplandián was now generous in the extreme. He could not marry her himself; so he gave her his cousin Talanque, while another cousin married Calafía's sister. The marriages took place in Christian form, Calafía and all her Amazons became Christians, the pagans were defeated, and the now pious Calafía gave her island California, with all its gold and precious stones, to the Christians. And thus did California cease to be a land of Amazons only.

Several matters in this account are worthy of comment. Much of the story represents the oft-reiterated recording of ancient traditions. The Amazons, griffins, and the Terrestrial Paradise are of most ancient lineage. The last named was the Garden of Eden of the Old Testament, which medieval and early modern Europeans believed to be definitely and recognizably located on the map. Many such things were sought by the early Spanish explorers in the Americas, and it seems probable that the accounts of Columbus are what occasioned the insertion of the tale about Calafía and the Californias in the "Sergas." In a report of 1493 about his first voyage Columbus told of an island on the way to the Indies where women alone lived, being visited occasionally by men from other parts. These women were warlike, making use of the bow and arrow. It is hardly necessary to add that Columbus did not see these women; he had merely heard of them. Again, in 1498 when Columbus was sailing along the coast of Venezuela, still laboring under the delusion that he was in Asiatic waters, he believed that he was very near the Terrestrial Paradise, and so reported. Other men of the same time told similar stories. The fact that the Calafía tale is not an intrinsic part of the "Sergas," but merely thrust in as an extra, renders it all the more likely that the author was influenced by the accounts of Columbns' voyage, which had fired men's imaginations with what seemed to be a rediscovery of islands and peoples that Europeans had long known traditionally. Incidentally, it may be remarked that even the griffins were located eventually in America. In 1647 one Bisselius published a work in which a description of the western coast of North America was given. In that somewhat terrifying region there were many wild animals, inclnding griffins, "and this is not a fable but the truth." Thus did the griffins return to their homeland of the "Sergas," in California. One thing more: it can at least hardly fail to attract attention that the beautiful Calafía and her charming maidens were of suspiciously African descent. It would seem that the color line was not very rigidly drawn, some four centuries ago, for the author everywhere refers to the lovely Californians in terms of the highest approval, and does not disdain to marry them in the end to white princes of the blood royal.

The sequel provided by Ordóñez de Montalvo was by no means the only one to the adventures of Amadís. In all there were fourteen volumes in the series. Calafía and the Californians reappear in book seven, entitled: "Lisuarte de Grecia y Perión de Ganla." In that volume the siege of Constantinople still rages, but this time Calafía fights on the side of the Christians. There were a number of editions of this book, at least one of which appeared as early as 1514.

There is hardly room for a doubt that Cortés and his men were familiar with the story of the island California. All Europe had nearly gone mad over the romances of chivalry, and the Spaniards in particular were looking for the same wonderful experiences in the Americas as the wandering knights were wont to have in the realm of faucy. There are references in the work by Bernal Díaz, one of the historians of the conquest of New Spain, to incidents of the "Amadís de Gaula." For example, in telling of the towns that he and the other soldiers of Cortés saw he said: "we were amazed, and said it was like the enchantmeuts they tell of in the legeud of Amadís." Also, one of the soldiers was nicknamed "Agrayes," because he was supposed to resemble a character of that name in "Amadís de Gaula." Since the "Sergas de Esplandián" was attached to the "Amadís," it could hardly have escaped notice, besides which it was popular on its own account, though much inferior to Lobeira's work. It is interesting to note Cervantes' opinion of it in the "Don Quixote." When the curate aud the barber were overhauling the library of Don Quixote in order to destroy the books which had so shaken their friend's mind, they came across the "Amadís" and the "Esplandián." The former was saved as the best of its kind, but the latter was the first to go to the bonfire. "Verily," said the curate, "the goodness of the father shall not avail the son."

Granted that the name was suggested to the discoverers of the californias from the romance of the "Sergas de Esplandián," the question arises: Where did Ordóñez de Montalvo get it? There have been many guesses on this point similar to those formerly made about the origin of the word in the minds of the conquerors. One of these is that the anthor devised it from the Greek "kállos," or "kalli,"—and " 'órnis," the two together meaning "beautiful bird"—for the griffins! Another surmises a derivation from the Arabic word "Kalifat," meaning "province." In Spanish, it is said, this might have become "Kalifón" for a "large province" (due to the presenee of the augmentative "ón"), from which it would be but a step to "Kalifornia," or "California." To be sure, Ordóñez de Montalvo might have invented the name, and if he did it would he profitless to guess just how it might have occnrred to him, but there is strong reason for believing that he followed a literary precedent in his use of the word. In the "Chanson de Roland," the famous epic poem of the French, believed to have been composed late in the eleventh century or possibly earlier, there occur the following lines:

"Mor est mis nies ki tant soleit cunquere
Encnntre mei revelerunt li Saisne
Et Hnngre et Bugre et tante gent averse,
Romain, Puillain et tuit cil de Palerne
E cil d'Affrike e cil de Califerne."

This may be translated roughly as follows: "Dead is my nephew who conquered so many lands! And now the Saxons rebel against me, and the Hungarians, Bulgarians, and many others, the Romans, the 'Puillain,' and those of Palermo (Sicily) and those of Africa and those of 'Califerne'." It is to be noted that here is a catalogue of enemy nations in a list which begins with those in the north and works south and east. The learned commentators on the "Chanson" have never been able to explain the "Califerne," but give their opiniou that it stands probably for "the caliph's domain."

There can be no question bnt that a learned man like Ordóñez de Montalvo was familiar with the "Chanson de Roland," especially since it was cognate to the material that he himself employed. Certainly the cycle of tales about the knights of the round table at the court of King Arthur was very well known to Ordóñez and other romancers, for the heroes of those stories appear frequently in the novels of chivalry. The appearance of "Califerne" in this list of peoples and lands, of which several were certainly not Christian, might well have caught Ordóñez's attention, when he himself was making a similar catalogue of the nations. California is a perfectly natural Spanish form for "Califerne," especially since "e" and "o" have not infrequently changed from one to the other in the history of Spanish words. This derivation of the word "California" can perhaps never be proved, bnt it is too plausible—and it may be added too interesting—to be overlooked. Thus does the name "California" become linked with one of the greatest poems in history, and the date of its origin is placed four centuries earlier. One wonders, indeed, if there might not have been some long past Moslem realm so-called, at least by the peoples of Europe, carrying the name far back to the great days of Bagdad and Damascus.

The story of the application of the name to the Californias may some day be revealed in the archives of Spain, but it is at present shrouded in more mystery than is the origin of the word. In Cortés' so-called "fourth letter" to the king, dated October 15, 1524, he has a paragraph about an expedition by one of his lieutenants in which there is the following story:

> "He likewise brought me an account of the chiefs of the province of Cegnatán, who affirm that there is an island inhabited only by women without any men, and that at given times men from the mainland visit them; if they conceive, they keep the female children to which they give birth, but the males they throw away. This island is ten days' journey from the province, and many of them went thither and saw it, and told me also that it is very rich in pearls and gold."

Six years later Cortés' great enemy, Guzmán, who was in the midst of his conquest of Nueva Galicia, made virtually the same report. A portion of a letter by him to the king of Spain, dated July 8, 1530, reads (according to the translation in the "Pilgrimes" of Samuel Purchas) as follows:

> "From thence [Aztatlán] ten dayes further I shall goe to find the Amazons, which some say dwell in the Sea, some in an arme of the Sea, and that they are rich, and accounted of the people for Goddesses, and whiter than other women. They nse Bowes, Arrows, and Targets; have many and great townes; at a certain time [they] admit them [i.e. men] to accompanie them, which bring up the males as these the female issue."

These documents show that the Spaniards were expecting to find just such an island as the "California" of romance. When Fortún Jiménez on behalf of Cortés reached Baja California in 1533-1534, he believed it to be an island, hnt he also found many other islands in the vicinity and, most important of all, fonnd pearls. Jiménez must have applied names to the lands he found, but the disaster which befell his expedition precluded the saving of any records of the voyage. When Cortés himself landed at La Paz in Baja California, he named the site and the bay itself Santa Cruz, from the day of his appearance. Clearly, if he knew the name applied by Jiménez he did not retain it. Furthermore, he would not have been inclined to honor the names given by Jiménez, for that worthy had murdered Becerra, Cortés' own kinsman and the leader he had designated for the voyage. It is said, too, that Cortés never himself employed the name California in reference to the land which had been discovered nnder his auspices. Many writers who dealt with Cortés' expedition of 1535,—for example, Gómara, Bernal Díaz and Herrera,—referred to the land as "California," but their works were published a number of years after the name had become definitely fixed. A map of 1541, purporting to illustrate Cortés' activities in the Pacific, has the word "California" on it, but this is believed to have been added late in the eighteenth century by Archbishop (of Mexico) Lorenzana, who was getting out an edition of Cortés' letters. On the Ulloa expedition of 1539-1540 diaries were kept by Pedro de Palencia and Francisco Preciado. The diary of the former in the original Spanish is extant, but that of Preciado is at present known only in translation. The name "California" does not appear in Palencia's diary, bnt in the Italian version of Preciado's, printed in the works of Giovanni Ramusio between 1550 and 1556, it occurs three times. One of these entries reads: "We found ourselves fifty-four leagues distant from California." Much the same statement appears in Palencia, but the place named is "Santa X," thus identifying California with the place where Jiménez and Cortés had landed. It has been argued, however, that Ramusio, whose translation appeared after the name had been definitely applied, might have taken liberties with Preciado's original, just as Richard Hakluyt later took liberties with the account in Ramnsio. This is of course a possibility, but it cannot be asserted with confidence any more than the probability of its being an accurate rendering can be. In 1542 the name definitely appears in the Spanish journal of the voyage of Juan Rodríguez Cabrillo, the first European navigator to reach the coast of Alta California. It is mentioned casnally as of a name already well known.

There is no direct evidence associating the name of California with Ordóñez's romance, but the circumstantial evidence is so strong that the connection has been generally accepted since Edward Everett Hale first advanced the idea. Granted that the story in the "Sergas" accounted for the name, the further questions arise: Who applied it, and when? In the opinion of the writer the name was applied by Jiménez on the occasion of his discovery of the peninsula in 1533-1534. The failure of Cortés to use the name, owing to his attitude toward the murderer of his kinsman, has already been explained. This would also make clear why those in his immediate service would avoid the name, for fear of the displeasure of the old "conquistador," and especially does it account for the probable difference on this point in the Palencia and Preciado diaries. Palencia was the personal representative of Cortés on Ulloa's voyage and official diarist, addressing his journal to Cortés. He would therefore be more likely to employ the "Santa Cruz" than the proscribed word "California." Preciado's position on the Ulloa voyage is not clear, but it would seem that he was not in the same official category as Palencia. Furthermore, he left the ship before the end of the voyage. The inference is a natural one that he would have been more free than Palencia to use the name current among the men.

Thongh Preciado's diary identifies "California" with the bay and port of La Paz, there are many indications that the name was applied originally to many islands which were called collectively "the Californias." Thus, Richard Haklnyt (though, of course, many years after the diseovery) in com-

SAN DIEGO'S CHRISTMAS PRESENT

SAN DIEGO CITY HAS RECEIVED, A little in advance, a Christmas present of priceless value—a transcontinental railway—and All California rejoices with the oldest city of the state in its good fortnne. The San Diego and Arizona Railway, that has been ten years in building, has been completed, the last spike—a golden one—being driven November 15, with fitting ceremonies, in Carriso Gorge, San Diego County.

The new road extends from San Diego to Yuma, Arizona. It links the California city with the productive Imperial Valley, gives it direct connection with the East, makes it the Pacific terminus of a transcontinental railway system, and opens up for development millions of acres of productive land contiguous to San Diego.

The San Diego and Arizona Railway is 209 miles in length, and cost approximately $18,000,000 to construct. Seventeen tnnnels, cut through mountains of solid granite, mark it as one of the most difficult and expensive pieces of railroad construction in the history of the West.

In its course from San Diego to Yuma, the railroad makes two dips into Mexico, tapping not only numerous American cities and towns, but several Mexican villages. At Yuma, the road has direct connection with the Southern Pacific and the Chicago-Rock Island Railroads, shortening the distance betweeu San Diego and Chicago by 125 miles.

As far back as 1854 there was talk of a transcontinental railway for San Diego, but not until 1906 did a definite building project take shape. The construction of the now-completed road was retarded by numerous obstacles, both financial and engineering, but what has often been referred to as "San Diego's impossible dream" has been realized, and it will mark the beginning of an era of greater progress and prosperity for that splendid seaport eity.

For a week San Diego City and the Imperial Valley will celebrate the railroad's completion and operation. The festivities will commence with the arrival at San Diego of the first through traiu at noon of Monday, December 1, when a parade, featuring nearly a hundred floats emphasizing the road's importance, will proceed from the union station to Balboa Park, where a program of speeches and music will be presented. The celebration will continne four days in San Diego and two days in the Imperial Valley, and arrangements have been made to care for the immense crowd of visitors which is expected.

menting on certain portions of the story of Marcos de Niza speaks of "A great island and 30 small islands which seem to be the new islands of California, rich in pearles," and again of "Great pearles and much gold in the isles of California, which are 34 in number." It would seem, therefore, that the term "Californias," which for centuries was much more current than the use of the word in the singular, was intended for the numerous and actually existing pearl islands of the gulf, one of which might contain the long-sought Amazons, though nobody had seen them. In later years the word was retained as a normal plural for the eventual two Californias, Alta and Baja.

There is one other theory concerning the application of the name which is advanced by such high authority and yet is so contrary to the spirit of Spanish nomenclature that it cannot be passed over in silence. Bancroft and Miss Putnam suggest that the name might has been applied in derision, because it was so unlike the "California" of romance. Bancroft suggests that this might have been given in 1536 by the colonists who were abandoning the peninsula, while Miss Putnam postpones the naming until the voyage of Alarcón in 1540. Miss Putnam points out that Alarcón was disposed to belittle the achievements of Cortés, because Alarcón was then in the service of Cortés' rival, the viceroy. According to Miss Putnam, Alarcón or one of his followers might have said: "There is the wonderful island the Marquis sought—there is the romancer's California"—and the name stuck. It all seems so real to Miss Putnam that she "can almost hear the sneer at the end of the 'ia'." It is doubtful whether many others will be equally impressed, especially in view of the fact that Alarcón sailed up the gulf and back again on the mainland coast and not along Baja California; he at no time came within sight of those parts of the peninsula reached by Cortés.

In any event, however, the application of the name California because the land may have seemed so UNLIKE the "California" of the "Sergas" was both inconsistent with Spanish usage and with the facts as they believed them to be. If the point of view taken in this article is correct, the name was applied before the Spaniards had any clear knowledge of the country, and thus represented their beliefs and hopes rather than disappointment; indeed it was not for many years after the voyages of Ulloa and Alarcón that the desolate character of the peninsula became known. In the second place, it is certain not only that the Spaniards had high hopes about the wealth of the Californias, hopes which seemed confirmed when pearls were found there, but also that they were NOT disappointed. As Mrs. Sanchez has said:

> "They were not looking for green trees and babbling brooks, but for the yellow gold, and none knew better than they that the precious metal was more often found in such bare, desolate lands than in any other."

Thousands of documents—the writer himself has seen hundreds—attest the truth of this statement as concerns Spanish ideas about the wealth of the Californias, even of the peninsula; this view was held continuously by the Spaniards down to the close of the eighteenth century. And even when they did not find riches, they always expected to come upon them "a little farther on." Finally, the Spaniards never seem to have employed the style of mockery suggested in giving place names; indeed, the practice of characterizing a place by a name which implies the very opposite is of a piece with a certain kind of latter-day American humor and totally foreign to Spanish habits. On the contrary, the Spaniards very frequently expressed their real views in their names, with complete directness,—for example, in such terms as "The Tiresome Hills," "Cape Deceit," "Valley of Hunger," and "Valley of Get-out-if-you-can." Indeed, says Mrs. Sanchez, referring to the conjecture that the name was applied in derision, "not a single fact or argument has yet been advanced in support of such a humiliating theory, and there is little doubt that our noble State received its charming name, not in mockery, but rather in hopeful anticipation, almost in a spirit of prophecy of the riches and wonders to be found there." And, indeed, California in one part of its vast extension was eventually to prove itself, both literally and metaphorically, "the land of gold."

A PIONEER MASONIC DOCUMENT

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

SEVENTY ONE YEARS AGO THIS MONTH, or, to be exact, Friday, December 22, 1848, on board the steamer "Falcon" in the Caribbean Sea, the two hundred and twenty-eighth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers on Plymouth Rock was celebrated by hundreds of men on their way to California. Among the number were several prominent Masons of Washington, D. C., who were bringing the charter for California Lodge, No. 13, F. & A. M. (now No. 1), to be set up in San Francisco, and the officers of which had been chosen and were on board.

The commemorative exercises on board the "Falcon" were arranged by the officers of this lodge, the program consisting of prayer, singing, an address, and the presentation of resolutions. Perhaps no better illustration of the patriotic sentiments and high purpose of those Pioneers can be given than the preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously and enthusiastically adopted. They are presented here, a copy having been given The Grizzly Bear by the late Major Edwin A. Sherman 33° of Oakland, a beloved Pioneer of May 24, 1849, for years Grand Secretary of the Masonic Veteran Association of the Pacific Coast:

"Whereas, It is becoming to keep in remembrance those great events in the history of man which have tended to advance the interest and increase the happiness of our race; and

"Whereas, We are now permitted to celebrate a most important event—one, of which our present voyage, in its anxiously-looked for termination, by comparison and by contrast, is most strikingly calculated to remind us,—it is with deep interest we pause and reflect. While we see a beautiful comparison in the leaving of home for a distant shore, in the sailing of a pioneer vessel bearing civil and religious institutions to a coast that has never known them, and hoping to rear there a great and happy people, the contrast is equally gratifying. They fled from a bigotry that oppressed their understandings; we are sent as the heralds of sentiments in which all our people participate. They, in a frail bark, encountered calm and storm and every other peril of the sea, to land on an ice-bound foreign coast, among savages, at midwinter; we, on a noble steamer, the fleet-winged bunting bird, defy the calm and hasten to a mild and balmy clime, the elysium coast of our own country, with our own people. They had to generate, rear, propagate and improve institutions for themselves; we take them with us, full-grown and mature, and set them up to bless a state for all coming time; and

"Whereas, We trace back all that is beautiful in these comparisons and interesting in these contrasts, to the principles and practices of that little patriotic band, the two hundred and twenty-eighth anniversary of whose landing on Plymouth Rock we today celebrate; therefore,

"Resolved, 1st—That we hail with gratitude the return of the day when our Pilgrim Fathers, under the guidance and protection of a merciful Providence, reached their destination and commenced the work which has been fraught with such glorious results.

"Resolved, 2nd—That we see in the suffering, in the self-denial for conscience's sake, and in the enterprise and perseverance of those projectors of an untried plan and progenitors of a people full of the love of civil and religious liberty, a spirit worthy of all emulation.

"Resolved, 3rd—That the results of their labor inspire us with increasing confidence in their principles. That these results include a self-diffusing system of civil and religious freedom which has already penetrated far into the wilds of barbarism, lighting the lamp of peace and love in every vale and on every mountain top where it goes; the most full and free system of education the world has ever seen, diffusing throughout the American Republic an enlarged form of enlightened freedom, and laying the foundation for an untold amount of peace and happiness, of greatness and glory at home, and erecting in every kingdom and empire abroad statues of the only goddess to which man may safely bow—the right to govern itself and freedom to worship God.

"Resolved, 4th—That while we commend the spirit which led them to act and rejoice in the results of their efforts, we would fain emulate the former and strive earnestly to attain the latter; would count no comfort of life too dear, no scene of home too sweet, no tie of friendship too strong, to yield to the important mission before us, viz: To establish States of this great Union on a distant coast; to found institutions in a wilderness, to extend all the blessings of our Fatherland to a country richer and a people yet to be greater than the world knew at the time of the event we now celebrate."

According to Major Sherman's data, the charter of California Lodge of Masons and many of the passengers were transferred from the "Falcon" to the steamer "California," which, after putting into Monterey, California, for coal February 23, 1849, arrived in San Francisco five days later—February 28, 1849. Among the passengers who landed were these Pioneer Masons, all of whom have crossed over the great divide:

N. S. HISTORY FELLOW PREPARING VALUABLE CATALOG

Miss Doris W. Bepler '18, a member of Buena Vista Parlor No. 68, N.D.G.W., and one of the Order of Native Sons History Fellows, is engaged at the University of California, Berkeley, in preparing "A Descriptive Catalogue of Historical Articles in California Periodicals," which will be edited some time next spring.

The work will cover all history articles in a great number of California magazines published since 1854. While its primary aim is to meet the needs of California history students, it will also serve as a guide to the general public in seeking information on almost any phase of California life and history, so far as portrayed in the periodicals of the state. The catalogue will not only be a descriptive bibliography of the articles, but will include a subject index, valuable for reference, an author index, a brief history of each periodical indexed, a critical estimate of the value of each in the study of California history, and suggestions to students as to use of the magazines.

Miss Bepler, who is a frequent contributor of history articles to The Grizzly Bear, speaking of the catalogue to a representative of the "Daily Californian" (Berkeley), said: "The main interest lies in the contact which one feels with the minds of the people of California from the days of the early Pioneers down to our own times. We can read in these articles of their ideas and ideals, and of their literature. As regards historical matter, there are not so many direct historical articles as there is contemporary matter from which real history may be written."

A GLORY TO GOD

San Rafael—The cornerstone of the new St. Raphael's Church, now under construction here, was formally placed by Archbishop Edward Hanna, October 25. The stone was donated by Marinita Parlor No. 198, N.D.G.W.

St. Raphael's church is being built on the site of the old Mission San Rafael Arcangel (founded December 18, 1817), and will, when completed, look very much like the original mission building.

Archbishop Hanna delivered a masterly address, reviewing the history of the mission from the day the two Catholic friars planted the standard of Christianity and civilization on the site where the new church is now being erected. "Two years," he said, "have about elapsed since we celebrated, with pomp and ceremony, the centenary of the founding of Mission San Rafael Arcangel. Today we are laying the cornerstone of a new church that will rise in the ashes of the old, and will be a glory to God and Jesus Christ."

PIONEER CALIFORNIANS, LONG DEAD, ARE MADE DEFENDANTS IN SUIT.

General John A. Sutter, the builder of Sutter Fort in Sacramento, and William Nye, owner of the site of the present City of Marysville when it was known as "Nye's Ranch," both of whom have long been dead, together with about seventy others were made defendants in a suit to quiet title to 717 acres of land north of the Linda levee, filed in Marysville, October 12.—Marysville Appeal.

THE THIRD CONFLICT

IN JAPAN'S "PEACEFUL INVASION" OF CALIFORNIA SCHEME NOW ON

By Montaville Flowers

"IF WE CAN PUT THIS GULICK PROGRAM OVER IN THE OTHER FORTY-SEVEN STATES WE WILL COERCE CALIFORNIA INTO OUR POSITION."
—Hamilton Holt, Editor of the "Independent."

THE TIME OF THE THIRD CONflict between California and Japan is here! The conflict is on! It will be decisive! The Dillingham Bill is before Congress. The Sidney L. Gulick-Hamilton Holt-et al.-Japanese machine is in full play. Ninety-five percent of the people of the United States are unaware of the nature of the conflict or the purpose of this bill, and the disaster its passage will entail, first to California, then to the entire West, and finally to the Nation!

California—the picket-line flung out by the accident of geography against the incoming human tide of Asia—has already had two conflicts with the advance guard, the Japanese. The first conflict was in 1907, in a contention over the mingling of Japanese with white children in the public-schools. The Japanese won. California yielded to the unsound sentiment of the Nation, accepting, in good faith, the "Gentlemen's Agreement" which was set up as a compromise by Japan. Every apparent purpose and every vital provision of that unwritten and now undefined contract has been side-tracked, ignored, and destroyed by Japan.

The second conflict was in 1913, when California, seeing the failure of the "Gentlemen's Agreement," protested against the increasing acquisition of land by Japanese. California won, but only apparently, in the passage of the State Anti-Alien Land Law. For this, likewise, has been side-stepped, and rendered wholly inadequate and ineffectual to achieve the result its framers intended.

Immediately after the passage of this law in 1913, the Japanese drew up the plans and entered upon the preparations for a greater conflict. They aim to destroy the very basis of defense made by California in all of her past protective measures by going far beyond the powers of the State into the powers of the Nation; they are to gain for the Japanese and other Asiatics the same rights of immigration, citizenship and intermarriage with whites, as the Nation has granted to Europeans. Their plans are matured, their organizations are knit together, their preparations are finished; they are concreted into the Dillingham Bill. The third conflict is on!

The Japanese and their friends believe that they have chosen a strategic moment. There is in this country now a pro-Japanese sentiment, recently created by the discussion of the League of Nations, whose proponents, in defending the Shantung award, have been forced into the position of apologists and defenders of the Japanese nation. In the last six months I have seen in many states this sentiment and support grow from a thin shadow into a solid conviction. Men in railway stations and trains, in hotel lobbies, upon the street, even in public audiences, at any mention of the evil aggression of the Japanese upon the Pacific Coast, at once take up Japan's defense in a spirit bordering upon anger.

Facts, facts only, facts clearly stated, facts widely published, facts full of human appeal, can destroy this strong fabric of Japanese support which has been woven into the minds and prejudices of the American people by ten years of adroit and perfect work by the pro-Japanese propagandists; these alone can prevent the passage of this bill now, or at some future time, or prevent some compromise of it, which, as in the case of the "Gentlemen's Agreement" and the Anti-Alien Land Law, means a victory for Japan. IT IS USELESS TO CRY: AWAKE, AWAKE AMERICA! CALIFORNIA, YOU MUST AWAKEN HER!!

FIRST OFFENSIVE

California must now take the offensive! Heretofore we have used but simple defensive strategy. The battle requires a triple offensive. The first is to attack and expose the Japanese propagandists. The mild sentiments of politeness which have made us keep silence must give way to the superior cause of truth and self-preservation.

The names—Kawakami, Iyenaga, Kasai, Inui, Ichihashi—must become familiar as originators of pro-Japanese and anti-American propaganda in this country, just as Professor Munsterberg in Harvard College and Bernstorff in Washington produced similar propaganda for Germany. These names should be written on the tables of the memory, upon the blackboards of the public-schools and colleges, and posted where everyone may read them so that their work may be identified for what it is.

"California must now take the offensive!" wisely proposes Montaville Flowers, a Californian, in the accompanying article, sent to The Grizzly Bear from Goshen, Indiana. It presents startling facts regarding the pro-Japanese propaganda system maintained in these United States through liberal contributions of American and Japanese funds—a propaganda system more notorious and effective than even the Germans were able to put into practice—for the purpose of foisting upon the United States a policy of non-interference with, if not actual acquiescence in, the "peaceful invasion" scheme of Japan and pro-Japanese Americans.

The article is outspoken, but deals only with established facts—facts which should convince even those who are fearful of "hurting Japan's pride" or of "embarrassing the administration at this time" that the TIME HAS COME to so forcibly present our demands for State and National remedial legislation that there will be no mistaking our purpose. Too long have we tarried; too long have we kept silent regarding the American power behind the "peaceful invasion" of Japanese; too long have we permitted the Japanese ulcer to spread. We must now FIGHT until victory is completely won.

The Grizzly Bear is exceedingly pleased to present Mr. Flowers' article, for it comes right out and makes public the REAL power and purpose behind the Japan-laid and American-hatched scheme to thwart the efforts of Californians to keep this State, this Nation, a land for the white races. Only by a public expose of all individuals and organizations pro-Japanese at heart and in their intentions will it be possible to "carry on" until not only the Japanese, but all pro-Japanese influences, are routed. And so, to carry out this policy, The Grizzly Bear seeks, and will give full publicity to, all facts fully establishing the identity of individuals or organizations in sympathy with the "peaceful invasion" of California by the Asiatic hordes.—Editor.

GULICK AND THE FEDERAL COUNCIL.

The misuse of the great powers of the "Federal Council of the Churches of Christ" by Sidney L. Gulick must be brought to the attention of one hundred thousand Protestant ministers by direct communication. This will not be attacking the Church, as Mr. Gulick claims because it is his only defense, but it will be purging it of an insidious influence. Upon the simple justice of fair play, since Mr. Gulick has used the Church for ten years to incubate his pro-Japanese propaganda, the other side must use it in rebuttal.

HAMILTON HOLT AND THE SCHOOLS.

The public-school teachers of the United States must be made to know that when they support "The Independent" and use it as a text on current events in the public-schools, they are aiding the work of Hamilton Holt, its editor, and Lindsey Russell, president of its board of directors, than whom there are no stronger defenders of Japan in our country. These two men, decorated by the Mikado for service rendered the Japanese in America, founded the Japan Society of New York; and Mr. Holt, with Mr. Gulick, has engineered and organized the power of the Federal Council of Churches in behalf of the Japanese. "The Independent" was recognized as the official American mouthpiece of the Japanese when they despoiled China by the famous twenty-one demands.

The teachers of youth of every age must know that Hamilton Holt is on record in a pamphlet advocating for the Japanese equal rights of immigration and citizenship with Europeans; this pamphlet was distributed by tens of thousands by one of the many peace societies in which Mr. Holt is interested; in it he attacks the people and the laws of California, and upholds and encourages the advances of Japan. His direct intention and activity are clearly stated under the title of this article: "If we can put this Gulick program over in the other forty-seven states we will coerce California into our position."

BEGIN IN CALIFORNIA!

This offensive must begin in California! The schools and colleges of the Pacific Coast states, and then of all the states, must be cleared of Japanese propagandists, or labeled as such, so that students who take courses under them will not be inoculated with pro-Japanese sentiment without knowing it.

The citizens of the State and the patrons of Leland Stanford University and every student there should know that a Japanese, Ichihashi, has occupied for several years the sensitive and powerful place of teacher of immigration, poisoning popular opinion at the spring, by instilling into the minds of our youth as fundamental principles of national honor, that Japanese should have equal privilege with other people to enter and populate our country, to become citizens, and to participate in the government.

In the University of Southern California [Los Angeles], a corresponding influence is infiltrated into the students by Professor Inui, whose articles, so frequently found in our local press, approve and support the whole policy of Japan, and who does not hesitate, in public and in private, to attack those men and women who would save the United States, and especially this State, for the white race. Cloaking his activity in guise of simple academic innocence, he is never off guard. Recently a new member was added to the faculty. He had lived and taught in the East, but presumably Inui thought he needed coaching in Japanese sentiment. So Inui made his acquaintance, frequently took him to dinner, often visited his apartment, entered his classes, highly eulogized his work, and even showered him with presents of candy—ad nauseum! He overplayed the game.

These are but two instances in point. Iyenaga, who is the head of the great Japanese system and press bureau in New York, formerly taught American-Japanese relations in the University of Chicago. The people of this State and of the Nation should be placed on their guard against these direct influences until not only the Japanese themselves, but their American confreres, are checked up. We have in the institutions of higher learning in this State professors occupying chairs of history who notoriously are supporters of the Japanese, apologists for their palpably evil aims, interpreting them as innocent upon an assumed superior platform of their own broad-minded internationalism. This part of our duty is merely to label the mental medicine in the Japanese system of propaganda and to point out the "enemies of our own household."

THE STATE FEDERATION OF CHURCHES.

Let the good people in the churches of California know the origin, purpose, and the first activity of those who created the State Federation of Churches of California, and interpret it with such knowledge. In 1918 the executive secretary, a Mr. Talbot, asserted without hesitation that this Federation was created for the express purpose of furthering the "New Oriental Policy" of Sidney L. Gulick which is now embodied in the Dillingham Bill before Congress. Mr. Talbot says that this Federation arranged and financed Mr. Gulick's work for six months in his first tour of California when he was explaining his "New Oriental Policy" to our colleges, our schools, our churches, and our ministerial associations. What a rich seed-bed were these, and what a prolific yield!

"You have attacked our fundamental idea and our chief man," said Mr. Talbot in explanation of his series of scathing resolutions against a congressional candidate; these resolutions were passed at a very small meeting of the executive committee (it is reported that only three were present), and distributed to the ministers in the congressional district for use by them on the critical Sunday before an election, with the request that they read them to their congregations. The offense of this candidate was the writing of a book in which he had bared the "New Oriental Policy" of Mr. Gulick as it now stands revealed, and the system of propaganda by which it could be introduced in Congress as it is now,—and finally passed.

THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

The State Government of California itself should be scrutinized, in order that the people may know how strong the Japanese are at the sources of power, and all of the immoderate and belligerent advocates of Japanese interests drawing their pay-checks from the State of California, should receive their proper labels.

AN INTELLIGENCE SERVICE.

Extending this work then into other states, we should have an Intelligence Service, to reach every educational institution in America, to visit as many as possible, to examine the rolls of their faculties, and to see how far Japanese propagandists are intrenched in them. The academician has become a great power in this Nation. He can be reached by facts, and at last the days of pioneering to secure facts on the Japanese problem are over,—for facts are now plentiful and indisputable.

EXAMINE THE LIBRARIES.

We must go into the public libraries, the school libraries and the seminar-rooms of the State and the Nation, pick out and label as such the books and pamphlets that have been written, printed and distributed by men and organizations consciously working in the interest of Japan. Go into the universities of the State and you will find such things as the following: "The Japanese Problem in the United States," by H. A. Millis, and on the fly-leaf inscribed, "Presented by Sidney L. Gulick"; "Japan to America," and "America to Japan," and on the fly-leaf of each, "With the Compliments of the Japan Society, New York City"; you will find the books of Mr. Gulick and Mr. Millis and Kawakami, but you will not find the books on the American side of the question because the authors and the publishers have not been able to present them gratis, and there has been no organization to so distribute them.

But the Japanese have had friends who make and distribute these books fully. The Federal Council of Churches engaged H. A. Millis specially to prepare, as a basis for its pro-Japanese campaign, his book already cited, and the Japan Society of New York took it up and gave away one thousand copies of it where such propaganda would be most effective. Then this Japan Society printed the two books of its own, as named above, and gave away seven thousand copies. The distribution was, in part, as follows: To public libraries, one thousand copies of each; to editors, five hundred of each; to members of Congress, six hundred of each; to college presidents, four hundred of each; to commercial bodies and public officials, five hundred of each; to Japan, five hundred. No wonder there is a pro-Japanese sentiment in America! The Japan Society made this significant statement: "A number of these copies were placed in the Pacific Coast states, among commercial organizations, libraries, editors, etc., TO COUNTERACT THE EXISTING PREJUDICE AGAINST THE JAPANESE."

LABEL THE PRO-JAPANESE PRESS!

This element of our campaign of education will be completed when we have published the list of the Japanese press bureaus, and of those newspapers like the "New York Evening Post," and of those magazines like the "Independent," which are the constant purveyors of Japanese interests and apologists for Japanese aggression, either through special editions or by the personal position of their owners.

SECOND OFFENSIVE

The second offensive should be a far-flung fight against the Dillingham Bill. It will be before Congress in the next session, possibly in December. Through the State, we can reach the Nation! This requires organization, but citizens of Western states can act quickly while organization is being effected. We have in California nearly one million citizens, perhaps more now, who have come from the other states, all of whom have many friends in their old homes. A few letters sent by each of these, starting series of chain letters, can, within a month, reach the whole voting population of the United States, and through them the Congress. Washington, Oregon and Arizona will join in this to duplicate and reinforce our effort.

This must be a real offensive, not only to defeat the Dillingham Bill, but to secure new National laws which will clearly define a permanent National policy against the colonization of Asiatics on American soil. These measures, of course, will be free from any taint of racial hate, and supported only upon the high plane of economic necessity and self-preservation against those who are unassimilable and of a lower standard of living.

It seems scarcely possible that the Dillingham Bill has a chance for enactment into law, but Congress may feel it has gone far enough at this time, to stop with its defeat. The mere defeat of it, without positive legislation on the other side of the question, will be a Gulick-Japanese victory; because they will have had the advantage of great publicity for their plan, it will leave them still upon the field in full possession of the ground, and of their extraordinary force of interknit organizations in which their campaign will go right on.

THIRD OFFENSIVE

Our third offensive is to prepare for the next congressional election in 1920, in which may be developed the most tremendous effort to elect "New Oriental Policy" men and to defeat those who are not. A little analysis of the motive, the origins and the organizations that are likely to form this battle is in order.

THE AMERICAN PEACE SOCIETY.

The ideal of peace is the most potent motive in the world today. To secure the plausible conditions, or guarantees of peace, men and women of our country are willing to give up much of what they have considered essential, and what, up to now, they never have yielded. The American Peace Society, financed by Carnegie funds has, by some of its officers, capitalized this sentiment and harnessed this motive power in past congressional elections in the interest of the Japanese. Unless they declare a policy absolutely the reverse of that which they fathered in the congressional election of 1916, it is fair to assume that they will use their power in the same way in 1920.

CALIFORNIA IS ATTACKED!

And this assumption may be based upon the antagonism of the American Peace Society to the people of California at this time. In October last (1919) in a joint meeting of the American Peace Society and the Japanese Peace Society held in Tokio, Japan, former United States Senator Theo. A. Burton of Ohio, THE PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN PEACE SOCIETY, made the following statement, according to the reports of the United Press:

> "The objections raised in California to the Japanese are ascribed to racial differences, but this is only an excuse. The real reason is the demand of powerful elements to monopolize the labor of the state and for political expediency. The California Land Laws are simply war cries."

How untrue this statement is, every Californian knows! It might have been made by Mr. Gulick himself, framer of the Dillingham Bill, or by Hamilton Holt, or by Kawakami or any other Japanese.

PLAYING THE WOMEN FOR JAPAN.

In the congressional campaign of 1918, the American Peace Society in Washington entered its influence to elect the Congressmen who were favorable to its Japanese policy. It financed the subtle plan of playing upon the sentimentality of the women voters in those states where women had the right of suffrage, by sending unto them women speakers whose instruction and purpose were to put up the cause of the Japanese to the women. The apparent aim was to elect only those candidates who were in accord with the sentiments of the Peace Society. It proposed also to continue its campaign in women's clubs throughout the year. The position of that society, simply stated, was to give to the Japanese the same rights of immigration and citizenship as are enjoyed by the nationals from the white countries of the world.

SUPPRESSING PUBLIC DISCUSSION.

The American Peace Society makes its word pointed and personal, in election times and out. In the summer of 1917 a Californian was giving a series of addresses in several states, including his own. In 1913, 1914 and 1915 he had delivered addresses upon the Japanese problem throughout all the states, interpreting and defending the people of California and the Anti-Alien Land Law of 1913. In December, 1916, there was published from his pen a book upon the Japanese problem. However, when the United States entered the war in April, 1917, he had voluntarily laid aside his former activity in this field and was delivering an address upon the principles of reconstruction after the war.

But the American Peace Society, through its secretary of the Pacific Coast division at San Francisco, tried to silence his voice. They approached his managers, they circulated through women's clubs resolutions condemning the speaker, copies of which they sent to his management, assailing the man, and expressing the opinion that it was wrong to have him speak in the State. Fortunately, the management turned over this material to the speaker himself, without any instruction, and he went right on. This attack was not personal, it was merely a pursuit of policy, and will be applied to anyone who comes within its range.

GULICK IN THE CAMPAIGN OF 1918.

Again, in 1918, when this Californian became a candidate for Congress, Sidney L. Gulick, writing as an official in the Federal Council of Churches, opened up the full moral force of his organization against him. He wrote the most vituperative letters against the man, to be used for campaign material; these were reproduced in a political press-sheet and over half a million copies of them were distributed from door to door in the district. Woe unto any candidate for Congress, anywhere in the United States, who has dared to defend the interest of the United States against the "New Oriental Policy" of Mr. Gulick, or who counters the thesis of the American Peace Society!

TEAM PLAY FOR JAPAN.

The common personnel in executive position in the Japan society of New York, the Japan Commission of the Federal Council of Churches, and in branches of the American Peace Society, should be noted, in order that the spirit of their work for Japan may be understood, and that we may know how to meet the forces of these well-harnessed teams.

I believe that ninety-nine percent of the rank and file of these organizations do not know what these few executive officers are doing; that the rank and file have no purpose to effect what these out-and-out propagandists seek to bring to pass. Once convince them that they have been made the tools with which to wreck our State and National welfare, and their activities will be just as keen upon the other side.

The leaders of these associations who have indulged in this propaganda are culpable, even though, which seems incredible, they may be simply mistaken. But men like Kawakami, Iyenaga, Inui, Kasai, Ichihashi, Sidney L. Gulick and Hamilton Holt know exactly what they are doing. Their work for Japan should be taken at one hundred percent discount, whether they spin their material in a professional propaganda press, or on the editorial pages of the daily papers, or in popular magazines, or from pulpit and platform.

Japan's grip on American sentiment has been created by this subtle system of propaganda; it can be loosed only by letting the hot light of truth, in equal publicity, burn it to cinders.

JUST CALIFORNIA

California Approves—In special session at Sacramento, November 1, the California Legislature almost unanimously approved the woman's suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution.

To Build Railroad—It is announced that a broad-guage railroad is to be built from Stockton to the timber belt of Calaveras County.

Big Land Deal—The largest sale of fruit lands ever made in Placer County, says the "Placer Herald," was consummated when 1,035 acres near Newcastle were recently sold for $300,000.

Bonds for Highways—San Diego County voted $2,300,000 bonds, November 12, for 135 miles of highway.

Vote School Bonds—The people of Long Beach voted $490,000 bonds, October 30, for more schoolrooms, the present buildings being overcrowded.

Rose Tournament—Pasadena is arranging for its annual Tournament of Roses, on New Year's Day, which has made that city nationally famous.

Millions for Grapes—Grape-growers in the Lodi district of San Joaquin County have received approximately $9,161,512 for their 1919 crop.

Big Bank Structure—January 1, work will commence in San Francisco on a $3,000,000 building for the Federal Reserve Bank.

Christmas Pageant—Oakland civic and fraternal organizations are arranging for a community Christmas pageant in which the Native Sons and Native Daughters will participate.

California's War Record—According to a preliminary report of the California Historical Survey Commission, which is compiling the state's war history, the number of service men totaled 132,818; 3,397 died in service.

Orange Show—Arrangements for the Orange Show to be held at San Bernardino, February 13-23, are well under way. During the season just closing, San Bernardino County shipped 10,907 cars of oranges; the 1919-20 crop, now ripening, is estimated at 10,718 cars.

Sacramento Valley Rice—This season's rice crop in the Sacramento Valley, reports the "Galt Herald," will be about 3,500,000 bags, valued at $21,000,000. The yield this season is thirty bags per acre; last year it was forty, but this year's quality is better.

Merced County Land Chosen—The California Land Settlement Board has purchased, at $95 an acre, an 8,000-acre tract of Merced County land for colonization purposes. The settlement will be devoted exclusively to ex-service men.

Breaks Building Record—With building permits for October totaling $4,100,000, Los Angeles broke all building records in that city's history. Success is crowning the efforts to have industries locate there, many large manufacturing concerns having recently been acquired.

"California" Launched—The U. S. S. superdreadnaught "California," the largest fighting craft in the world, was launched at the Mare Island Navy Yard, opposite Vallejo, November 20. It is 624 feet long, and will carry the greatest armament of any war vessel afloat.

Big Cities Linked—With the opening to traffic of the Ridge route over the Tehachapi Mountains, November 15, San Francisco and Los Angeles became linked with a paved state highway through the San Joaquin Valley. The Ridge road, thirty miles in length, cost approximately $1,150,000 to construct; no grade is more than 6 percent; it shortens the distance between the two cities considerably.

Northern Counties Busy—According to the annual report of the secretary of the Northern California Counties Association, the State and Federal Governments have promised to spend $9,500,000 on highways in Siskiyou, Trinity, Shasta, Modoc and Lassen Counties and irrigation districts, to water more than 500,000 acres, which are in process of formation or being planned. Butte Valley, Siskiyou County, alone has 100,000 acres of good agricultural lands. These facts and many others bearing on important development work being done by the five counties were brought out at the annual meeting at Yreka, October 24-25.—California Development Board Bulletin.

GROWLS FROM (THE EDITOR'S PAGE) THE GRIZZLY

Conducted by CLARENCE M. HUNT, Managing Editor

WAKE UP, AMERICANS!

Out of the wanton murder, by human devils, of ex-service men parading at Centralia, Washington, on Armistice Day, November 11, will speedily come, we fervently hope, an immediate thorough cleaning up and clearing out of the United States by the Federal Government.

While the lynching that followed these murders is to be regretted,—for we believe that every loyal American should continually preach and always practice the American doctrine that to the constituted government should be left the execution of all laws and the infliction of punishment upon all law violators,—yet, where is the red-blooded American who will condemn the act of the Centralia lynchers?

We, The People of these United States, are ourselves to blame for the conditions which are responsible for the Centralia affair, and which are likely to result in similar acts of violence in every community in this country. For years we have permitted these teachers and preachers of "direct action" to spread their damnable doctrines broadcast, and in their nefarious schemes they have been encouraged and protected by backboneless and dillydallying government authorities who have been influenced by that soh-sister element among our citizenry who are more considerate of the welfare of the "poor foreigner" than of their own country.

The Government of the United States must stand! And to insure its standing, it is now necessary for that great majority of loyal citizens who know that the present form of government is the only one under which this Nation can possibly survive, to force their servants—national, state, county and municipal authorities—to free every community of the country, via the execution, deportation or life-imprisonment route, of every individual, be he rich or poor, great or small, affiliated or unaffiliated with any organization, who cannot prove beyond the slightest doubt that he is thoroughly loyal to our country and its institutions.

We have no sympathy whatever with that propaganda—the need of more effective laws, solicitation for the welfare of disturbing elements, etc.,—which camouflages the real crisis that confronts this country. Ours is a government of The People's majority, and the Government, which is supreme, has the right and the power to keep it as such. What the Government has sadly lacked is the courage to assert The People's rights, and to use the power delegated to it by The People to wipe out the traitors who, masquerading under limitless titles with the sole intent of overthrowing The People's government, infest this country by the thousands.

It makes no difference, to us, with what orgauization any of these "direct actionists" are affiliated. The very fact that they are either themselves of the bomb-throwing, fire-eating, anarchy-preaching gentry or claim membership in any association that condones the teaching or discussion of such doctrines, labels them and their organizations as traitors to the United States Government, and, therefore, traitors to The People. They are plotting, directly or indirectly, against The People's government and, whether foreigners or claiming American citizenship, their temporary suppression alone must not satisfy; they must be so effectively dealt with that there will be no possibility of their being a further menace.

In this connection, too, the pertinent fact appearing in press dispatches from every section of the country, that most of these "direct actionists" are foreigners and many of them members of organizations conducted within the United States, cannot be let pass unheeded. Is it not about time for the Government to take cognizance of these conditions?

We honestly and firmly believe that, both in the interest of the welfare of this country and the numerous organizations operating within its boundaries, the National Congress should enact a law, and see that it is faithfully executed, reserving to the Government alone the right to charter organizations—fraternal, civic and labor—and providing that no such charter shall be granted to any organization which does not specifically provide in its requisite for membership a provision that every member must be a citizen of the United States. This, in our opinion, will not only cure a great percentage of the unrest ills from which we are suffering, and have long suffered, but will strengthen the influence of those organizations now sorely afflicted with an oversupply of foreign radicals, who are in those organizations for a purpose—the overthrow of the United States Government.

THE FIRST-CLASS CITIZEN SOLELY AN AMERICAN

"We may just as well definitely face the fact that no man can ever be a good American, no man can ever be a really first-class citizen of the United States, unless he is an American and nothing else. Recent events have shown us that the effort to combine loyalty to this land with loyalty to any other can only result in weakening the loyalty to this country.

"Washington and Lincoln were of English descent, but they were not English-Americans. Their loyalty was undividedly and wholeheartedly to the United States and to all of the people of the United States in every part thereof. In international relations they judged England precisely as they judged all other nations; that is, in any given crisis they judged every foreign nation exactly in accordance with its conduct in that crisis; they were as incapable of the meanness of unreasoning malice and hatred toward any particular nation as of meanness of truckling to it and making its interests superior to our own.

"They set the standard of Americanism which all of our citizens should follow in their relations with one another, in their attitude toward their own country, and in their attitude toward each and all foreign nations."—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The Season's Greetings

"At Christmas play and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year."
—Tusser.

The United States Senate adjourned November 19, and failed to pass the Peace Treaty-League of Nations either as presented or with the reservations proposed by the Foreign Relations Committee. It is well! We applaud the efforts of those Senators who "stood pat" for reservations which they and, we believe, a great majority of the American people, think must be attached to the twin document to adequately safeguard the United States' interests.

The Santa Barbara "Press" is the latest advocate of state division. In fact, it wants to carve three states out of California and a strip of Southern Oregon. It suggests this, because "California is handicapped by inadequate representation in Congress." In short, the "Press" would wreck California for political capital. It may interest a few job-chasing, disgruntled citizens in its scheme, but a great majority of the people are too loyal to California, too considerate of her welfare, to look kindly upon any scheme that has to do with state division.

If the Federal Government desires to hand out a Christmas present that will please all the people, it will jail the profiteers who are responsible for the high cost of living. And this does not apply merely to the packers, for there are profiteer manufacturers, distributors, and retailers in all foodstuffs and wearing apparel.

MISREPRESENTED

Dr. Charles Edward Chapman, Associate Professor of History of the University of California, Berkeley, and known to every Native Son and Native Daughter as well as all readers of The Grizzly Bear through his splendid and successful efforts in behalf of California history, recently delivered a lecture on "The Name California." A reporter of the San Francisco "Chronicle" was present, recognized a good story, and wrote an article. When the story appeared in print, Dr. Chapman's statements were beautifully garbled; it had him claiming to have discovered the name "California" in the "Sergas de Esplandián," which, of course, he never dreamed of saying.

It is a well-established fact that the daily press gives little attention to historical accuracies, yet Dr. Chapman was flooded with criticisms after the story's appearance, and one critic even hied himself to the "Blow Off" department of the "Chronicle" to accuse him of being several years behind the times. This brought the following reply from Dr. Chapman:

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
Department of History
BERKELEY, CALIFORNIA

"November 7, 1919.

"Editor of the 'Safety Valve' of the 'Chronicle.'

"Dear Sir:

"The newspapers recently carried a story to the effect that I had discovered that the name 'California' had its origin in an old Spanish novel, the 'Sergas de Esplandián,' written in about 1500. Thereupon Mr. W. E. Condon rises to remark that my 'discovery' is belated by at least two years and a half, and the editor of the 'Safety Valve' makes comment that 'Professors don't always catch express trains.' I may say that while I am grateful to the reporters for their kindly paragraphs, they had me running for the express, when, in fact, I was after the limited,—and I believe I caught it.

"The discovery of the name in the 'Sergas' was made by Edward Everett Hale in 1862,—before I was born. What I actually claim to have done, I am setting forth in an article which is to appear in the coming (December) issue of The Grizzly Bear. In brief, it amounts to this:

"I point out that the Spanish author of the 'Sergas' very likely took the name from the famous French epic poem of the eleventh century, the 'Chanson de Roland.' I also date the application of the name to the California peninsula several years earlier than previous writers have done."

Exactly what Dr. Chapman did say in the course of his lecture is set forth elsewhere in this issue of The Grizzly Bear, in his article entitled "The Name California, Its Origin and Application."

Incidentally, those who are interested in the promotion of California history study will be pleased to learn that Dr. Chapman now has 314 students in his California history class at the State University. Last year the students numbered 97, and in previous years the number ranged from 25 to 50.

Old H. C. L. is a mighty hard fellow to down, judging from the fact that he has been not the least disturbed so far by the numerous conferences that have been held and laws enacted to bring about his downfall. He keeps right on going up, and is apparently above the law. The sky seems to be H. C. L.'s limit, and he has so bluffed his antagonists that no one has had the courage to make him show his hand.

The Grizzly Bear's subscription list has been going up so rapidly the past two months, that the largest number of paid subscribers in the more than twelve years' life of the magazine is assured for 1920. And it is an almost exclusively California circulation, covering every county in the state.

The National House of Representatives is to be congratulated for having rid itself of Victor L. Berger, elected from Milwaukee. The House, however, should not stop with this unseating operation; it should rid the country of his presence.

THINK IT OVER!

The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West is, we believe, with the exception of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, the only organization that limits membership exclusively to NATIVE-BORN AMERICANS.

Knowing the serious conditions in this country today, this fact alone should impel every Native Son of California to immediately SEEK AFFILIATION with that American-born and American-operated institution, the man-power and wealth of which are pledged to the protection of American institutions in times of peace as well as in times of war.

FIFTY YEARS AGO IN CALIFORNIA

A RESUME OF HAPPENINGS IN DECEMBER, 1869

By Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

A MILD RAINSTORM PREVAILED December 10 and 11, 1869, the precipitation amounting to about an inch. Another gentle storm developed on the 23rd and continued over Christmas Day. As the rain was needed and welcomed, it added to the happy zest with which the holiday season was observed all over the state.

In 1849 a young man living in a town near Boston left a young wife and small son and came to California. On his arrival in San Francisco he wrote home. Then, going to the mines, he had hard luck, acquired some of the vices of the mines, and failed to again communicate with his family. In November, 1869, he read in a newspaper of the arrival in San Francisco of a vessel from Boston, and in the name of the captain he recognized that of his son. A yearning to see him caused him to go to San Francisco, and there he arrived the day after the ship had sailed on its return voyage.

Meeting an old friend, he explained the situation, and by that man's advice he had his unkempt roughing appearance improved, bought a railroad ticket and started East to give his neglected wife a Christmas surprise. On arrival at his old home town he found his wife happy, prosperous, married to another man, and raising a family of four children. Without making his presence known, he purchased a return ticket and came back on New Year's Eve to his mining town home, a wiser and sadder man.

A colored bootblack named "Jack" had his stand in front of a barber shop in Placerville, El Dorado County. On Christmas Day he and the barber quarreled over a division of Jack's receipts. He charged 25 cents for a shine, and on Christmas Eve was frequently told to "keep the change" when a larger piece of silver was paid. It was over the amount of this perquisite the dispute arose, and finally, to clinch his argument, the barber drew a revolver and Jack, in his rush for the street, nearly took the shop door with him.

He had the barber arrested for assault with a deadly weapon, and in the course of his examination as a prosecuting witness in the justice's court the district attorney asked: "You say he drew and pointed his gun at you?" "Yes, sah, it looked like a cannon." "What did you do then?" "I said to myse'f," replied Jack, "'legs, yo' body am in dangah. Go!' And we went."

There was a heavy shock of earthquake at 5:52 p. m., December 26, extending over the central part of California, across the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and over the western part of the State of Nevada, with a center of greatest disturbance in the latitude of Virginia City, in the latter state. It was felt in San Joaquin County, but was not perceptible in San Francisco or west of the Coast Range. The Central Pacific trains were delayed between Truckee, Nevada County, and Wadsworth, Nevada State, by boulders, weighing tons, which were rolled down the mountain sides by the quake onto the track.

Big Trout Caught in Lake Tahoe.

Other shocks, less severe, followed on the 27th and 29th, with the towns in the western part of the State of Nevada being badly shaken, but no serious damage being done.

A mammoth artesian well was struck on Third street, San Bernardino, at a depth of 130 feet, and threw a stream of water forty feet high.

H. and W. Pierce imported two pedigreed Durham bulls from England, to improve their herd at Suisun, Solano County.

The Hibernia Bank of San Francisco reduced its rate of interest on loans to 12 percent per annum.

A shipment of several hundred pounds of potatoes was made from Humboldt County to Scotland. They were wanted for seed purposes. Humboldt County potatoes then had a world-wide reputation for excellence.

A drove of 3,000 beef cattle from Texas for the San Francisco market reached San Bernardino County. It was reported that 15,000 more Texas steers would be driven across Arizona this season.

The steamer "D. C. Haskins," built at a cost of $200,000 in New York for the California Pacific Railroad, to be used as a ferry between San Francisco and Vallejo, left New York for San Francisco in November. It foundered December 2 in a storm on the Atlantic Ocean.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company appointed E. C. Fellows superintendent of the western division, and E. W. Bowen superintendent of the Sacramento division, this month.

The Pacific Union Express Company, the Pacific Coast competitor of Wells-Fargo & Company, suspended operations December 1. Lack of business support by the people was given as the cause.

Charles Offschender, mining near Whiskytown, Shasta County, found a quartz boulder that yielded over $600 in gold.

Stephen Morse, a youth living in Petaluma, Sonoma County, in a two-days' hunt on San Antonio Creek killed 145 quail.

A three-foot trout, weighing twenty-nine pounds, was caught in Lake Tahoe, December 20, with a hook and line, by Thomas Rowland. The claim that it was the largest that had been caught in the lake caused a dispute to arise with old-timers, and resulted in a Carson City, Nevada State, editor finding a record of a trout caught there in 1863 weighing forty-five and one-fourth pounds.

A hunter named Maddox came into Salinas, Monterey County, from the Rio Seco section, with three grizzlies and thirteen deer he and his partner had killed in two days.

A woman residing at Mormon Island, near Stockton, raised a flock of geese. Suddenly five of them took sick and died. To ascertain the cause of death, she opened the gizzard of one of them and found in it about $5 worth of grains of gold. Dissecting the gizzards of the other geese, she obtained a further yield of from $2 to $4 from each one. The geese had been roaming over the gravel piles of an old placer claim, and gathered the gold dust there. The miners used quicksilver to gather the gold in their sluices, and the mercury adhering to the gold the geese picked up and swallowed caused their death.

First Legislative Session in Present Capitol.

There was a three-mile heat race, two in three, trotted over the Golden Gate track in San Francisco, December 4, between "Woodruff," "Kate" and "Democrat," for a purse of $250. Each horse took a heat, and the race had to be postponed to another day. The best time made was 8:12½. "Woodruff" won the final heat.

Dr. G. M. Bourne, 64 years of age, on a wager walked from San Francisco to San Jose, a distance of fifty-five miles, December 20, in eighteen hours and fifty minutes. He counted the number of steps he took, which totaled 101,768.

Political circles in San Francisco were greatly perturbed over a fistic combat between Supervisor Tim McCarty and M. H. Cannavan, both prominent Democratic ward politicians, in the Occidental Hotel barroom. McCarty struck harder and oftener, and was the victor of the battle.

The Eighteenth Session of the California Legislature convened at Sacramento, December 6. For the first time, the session was held in the new capitol building, approaching completion; in fact, so well along in construction as to be occupied by the state officers as well as by the Legislature.

Both the senate and assembly being controlled by the Democrats, the officers of the two houses were selected from partisans of that party. The senate chose for president pro-tem, E. J. Lewis of Tehama County; secretary, Joseph Roberts, Jr., of San Francisco; sergeant-at-arms, Nat. Boice of Sacramento; assistant secretary, B. A. Mardis of Sacramento; minute clerk, J. B. Stevens of Amador County; journal clerk, Juan De la Guerra of Santa Barbara; engrossing clerk, Louis Kaplan of San Francisco; enrolling clerk, E. K. Phipps of Sacramento; copying clerks, W. S. Cooper of Tuolumne County and George M. Norton of Nevada County; chaplain, W. R. Gober of Sacramento.

The assembly organized by selecting as speaker, George H. Rogers of San Francisco; speaker protem, Charles Gildea of El Dorado County; chief clerk, Roht. Perral of Sonoma County; sergeant-at-arms, Dana Perkins of Placer County; assistant clerk, J. Moffatt of Siskiyou County; minute clerk, Newton Benedict of Alameda County; journal clerk, A. L. Henshaw of Butte County; engrossing clerk, D. F. Beveridge of Solano County; enrolling clerk, Fen. Fisher of Sacramento; chaplain, Rev. J. P. Johnson of Sonoma County. W. R. Ormsby, now a prominent citizen of Sacramento, was a page of the senate.

Owing to the holiday season, nothing of importance engaged the legislators' attention during the month. A large number of bills were introduced, however, and referred to the several committees for recommendation.

"Emperor" Norton Has Daily "Liberty" Loan.

December 15, the citizens of Sacramento honored the members of the Legislature and the state officers with an inaugural capitol ball, to celebrate the completion of the capitol building. Creed Haymond was chairman of the executive committee, and ex-Governors John Bigler and Leland Stanford were on the reception committee. The ball was given in the capitol. In the senate chamber quadrilles were danced, while in the assembly chamber the waltz, polka and other round dances held sway. A superb bauquet, served at midnight in the lower halls, with champagne in plenty, gave added zest to the enjoyable fete. The leading successful politicians of the state, with their wives and daughters, were in attendance, and the elite of Sacramento were there, without an exception.

Emperor Norton I, "imperial ruler" of the United States and protector of Mexico, left his seat of government in San Francisco to visit Sacramento, inspect the capitol, attend the ball, and levy his biennial tribute upon the members of the Legislature and its lobbyists. Through some inadvertance, he was detained at the door of the capitol during the evening of the ball for several hours, but finally managed to squeeze in in time to get a piece of turkey at one of the late tables. The next day he issued a proclamation commanding the City of Sacramento to clean its muddy streets and place gas-lit lamps along the streets leading to the capitol.

The "emperor" was well supplied with the paper money of the "empire," but owing to the high price of gold and the depreciation of the United States greenback, he had great difficulty in paying it out, as few would take it at one cent on the dollar. Consequently, he was forced to make a daily "liberty" loan of a dollar or two, to keep the "imperial treasury" in a solvent condition. The "emperor" was a whole committee on ways and means, as well as appropriations.

Joseph Proctor, with a stock company, opened at the Metropolitan theater at Sacramento, December 10, for the legislative season. He portrayed his favorite character of "The Jibbenamosay" in "Nick of the Woods."

Professor Barnes was delivering phrenological lectures, and selling charts of their bumps to members of the Legislature at $5 each.

The Brignoli Italian opera troupe began a season of standard operas in San Francisco and Sacramento, while Prof. Hugo Yanke, a talented pianist, with his daughter and local talent, was giving concerts to entertain the music-loving people of the cities during the month.

Bandits Murder Five.

Capt. B. A. Woodworth, a Pioneer of '49 and the master mechanic for many years of the Sacramento Valley Railroad at Folsom, Sacramento County, died December 16, at the age of 63 years.

Samuel Ferguson, who came to California via Oregon in 1848, died at Linden, San Joaquin County, December 23, aged 51 years, and leaving a wife and seven children. He settled in Stockton in April, 1849, and for many years was a leading citizen of that place.

Gilroy, Santa Clara County, had a destructive fire, December 7, which destroyed several business buildings; the loss was $15,000.

The sawmill of J. R. Duff & Co., in Humboldt County, was burned December 16, with a $15,000 loss.

December 26, a fire on Sacramento street, San Francisco, destroyed Scherrs' hop warehouse and several other buildings, causing a $25,000 loss.

A QUESTION

(VIOLA RANSOM WOOD.)

Tell me, dear golden glowing poppies,
Aren't you visible, soft symphonies of the sun—
A coloraturic echo of each ray of light
Sol daily sends across all California?

You never lift your golden-petaled heads,
Nor sow abroad your sheen of harmonies,
Till morning beams slant over the Sierras;
As Day, in fiery chariot, draws near the Western Rim,
A hush falls on your gayness;
When Night's broad and brooding wings
Shadow all the Sunset Land,
You silently sink to slumber in some green and growing couch.

So, dear golden glowing poppies, tell me:
Aren't you earth-sent voiceless symphonies of the sun?

South San Francisco, California.

Somersville, Contra Costa County, was partly destroyed by fire, December 22, with a $20,000 loss.

The band of highwaymen who robbed the Los Angeles stage in October tried to rob the Yuma stage in November. One of them was killed, four were captured, one escaped, one turned state's evidence, and the other three, being convicted, were sentenced to fifteen years at San Quentin, and the people of Southern California gave a sigh of relief.

A gang of robbers went to the Italian store of Frank Medina, on the Stockton-to-San Andreas road, at Fisher's crossing of the Calaveras River, the night of December 9. They took Medina and four men, named Woodson, Rodriguez, Robla and Maestretti, after tying their hands behind them, to a near-by ravine and shot them dead. Three Mexicans were supposed to have committed the appalling crime, and, mounted, had ridden south. They were being followed by the sheriffs of San Joaquin and Calaveras Counties into Mariposa County at the last accounts.

The wife of Dr. May obtained a divorce and went to her father's home in Woodland, Yolo County, to live. The night of December 1, the doctor, with a friend named Daniel Stump, went to her home and abducted Mrs. May. Her father, S. Hiller, in resisting the efforts of the two men, shot Stump with a shotgun and seriously wounded him. Dr. May was arrested in Colusa County a few days afterward and returned to Woodland. Mrs. May appeared to be in a frame of mind where "first she would and then she wouldn't." Finally she returned to her father's home, and let the doctor get out of his dilemma without her aid.

Many Rail Accidents.

In 1867 a miner named McNichols, at You Bet, Nevada County, went on a protracted spree. He had $5,000 in gold coin, which his wife, fearing he would spend foolishly, buried in the cellar of a neighbor named Doolan. When McNichols sobered up and he and his wife went to dig up the buried coin, it could not be found, and they blamed Doolan for taking it. December 18, the two men met in a resort at You Bet and a quarrel ensued. McNichols threatened to kill Doolan, who then shot McNichols dead.

Many distressing accidents happened during the month, railroad trains contributing their quota. A passenger named Amos J. Green, from Vermont, on the west-bound passenger train, December 7, stepped out of the coach upon the platform when the train stopped at Newcastle, Placer County, partly over a high trestle. He stepped off and fell about fifty feet, fracturing his skull and dying soon afterward.

A Miss Brown, at Oakland, December 1, getting off a train in motion, slipped one foot under a wheel and had to have it amputated.

In a train derailment between San Francisco and San Jose, December 2, a brakeman named Edward Ryan had a leg broken.

At Galt, Sacramento County, December 7, a work train backing up struck a cow and derailed three cars. John Leahy had his arms broken, and J. S. Miller a foot cut off. Both were railroad employes.

P. H. Bannon, a switchman in the Truckee, Nevada County, yard, on the night of December 16 dropped his lantern and, stooping down to pick it up, was struck by a moving car. His leg was crushed and shortly after amputation he died.

O. Wellman, foreman of the Sacramento Valley Railroad yard at Sacramento, was caught between the freight depot platform and a moving train, December 23, and crushed to death.

An elderly man named Cook fell from a train at Washington (now Broderick), Yolo County, December 29, and had an arm crushed under the car wheels so it had to be amputated.

Sammy Clark, 8 years old, at Stockton got too close to the hind legs of a horse and was kicked on the forehead and seriously hurt.

Fred Fularson of Rough-and-Ready, Nevada County, while hunting was thrown from his horse and struck a tree. He did not consider himself seriously injured and worked around for three days, when he dropped on the sidewalk insensible and shortly afterward died from a fractured skull.

L. L. Wheeler, a butcher at Iowa Hill, Placer County, December 1 was with his partner, named Eizler, getting ready to slaughter a steer. Eizler had a loaded rifle in his hands, and while endeavoring to get a shot at the steer's head, it was accidentally discharged. The ball struck Wheeler, killing him instantly.

Bad Accident Caused by Collapsed Bridge.

Oscar Willinswoft of Weaverville, Trinity County, was bitten November 25 by a small black insect on the lip. Several days afterward erysipelas set in the wound and he died December 1.

Hiram Rush, a farmer near Fairfield, Solano County, driving home, December 4, struck a rut and was thrown out of his buggy. In falling, he struck so as to break his neck.

Lamb's wire bridge across the Cosumnes River, three miles from Latrobe, El Dorado County, collapsed December 9 while George Kupp of Sutter Creek, Amador County, was crossing it with his eight-horse team, and wagon loaded with freight. Falling a distance of seventy feet, the driver and horses were killed.

December 4, John E. Daly, a lad 8 years old, at Sacramento was in a lumber yard gathering shavings when a pile of lumber fell upon and crushed him underneath. It was several hours after the accident, when not coming home for supper, a search was made and the little fellow found dead.

Henry Rule, a 14-year-old lad at Grass Valley, Nevada County, December 20 found an old pistol. He lit a candle and, holding the light against the cap tube, caused the load to explode. The bullet hit him in the mouth, badly lacerating his lips and tongue and injuring his jaw.

Johnny Maxwell, a small lad in Plumas County, was watching a Chinaman cutting wood. The axe glanced and he got a blow on the head that cut a long gash in his scalp.

An ore car got away from control on the 500-foot level of the Pittsburgh mine at Nevada City, Nevada County, December 7, and, rushing down an incline, struck and killed John H. Rogers and seriously injured John Campbell, miners at work there.

A. W. Woodcock and James Smith left Glenbrook, Nevada County, in a rowboat to cross Lake Tahoe, December 10. Their boat was upset and they were drowned.

John McCormack, an old resident and miner of Grass Valley, Nevada County, December 22 slipped and fell down the shaft of the Allison Ranch mine and was killed.

Richard W. Alderson, near Placerville, El Dorado County, descending the shaft of the Grant mine, December 23, slipped from the ladder and, falling sixty feet, was killed.

would enormously increase the number of Japanese who could come in as immigrants, not only above the number now coming, but even above the number which could come under the Gulick plan.

The Obvious Remedies.

Through lack of understanding of the subject, and the impression that the Californians are influenced in this matter simply by race prejudice, Congress and the East have been disinclined in years past to consider the alleged menace of Japanese immigration seriously. Shantung and Siberia have given these doubters cause for thought as to Japan, and they are now in a receptive mood. It is the psychological moment for spreading the light of facts throughout the Nation, and creating a mental impression which will stand against Japanese propaganda in the future, and afford substantial basis for remedial action by Congress.

It is through the weak complaisance and the blindness of our Federal Government, and the bad faith of Japan, that the burden has been placed upon us. It is only through Federal action that adequate remedies can be applied. And concerted effort should be made to secure remedial legislation before the menace has become too deeply intrenched. The remedies which I have suggested are:

First—Cancellation of the "Gentlemen's Agreement."

Second—Exclusion of "Picture Brides."

Third—Absolute exclusion of Japanese, with other Asiatics, as immigrants.

Fourth—Confirmation and legalization of the principle that Asiatics shall be forever barred from citizenship.

Fifth—Amendment of Section 1 of Article XIV of the Federal Constitution, providing that no child born in the United States of foreign parents shall be eligible to American citizenship unless both parents are eligible to such citizenship.

Time to Fight "Peaceful Penetration."

The facts properly marshalled and considered in their relation to each other, furnish striking evidence of the undoubted policy of Japan to secure, by "peaceful penetration," a place in this favored land for an unlimited number of her people, and, ultimately, to obtain through them absolute control of the country. In this matter economic conquest would be quite as effective as conquest by force of arms.

The facts, too, show that we have to deal with a cunning, persistent and implacable antagonist, much our superior in adroitness and in the use of diplomatic subterfuges; and that the Nation cannot be saved without the creation of a public sentiment which will put backbone into the Federal Administration, which in the past has permitted Japan to cajole and bluff it on any and all issues.

Japan and her friends have intimated that there will be a serious break, and possibly war, between the two nations if we insist on protecting our people and the future of the Republic by any such restrictive measures as are herein suggested—the only ones which will prove effective. That has ever been the insidious suggestion from Japan, supplementing her plea that the pride of her people be respected.

If Japan is fair in this matter, there will be no war, for our position is not only just and similar to that of Japan in Asia, but is necessary for our future welfare. If Japan insists on being unreasonable, is it not about time that Americans should demand that the Federal Administration govern this country for the benefit, present and future, of Americans, and not in accordance with the request or threat of a foreign nation?

Our present problem has been created by our weak yielding to such demands, or threats, in the past. Japan does not attempt such tactics with Canada or Australia, which rigorously exclude Japanese under the same laws as govern the immigration into those countries of other Asiatics.

This is our country! It rests with us to say whether we shall share it with the yellow races or not. It is time that we spoke in unmistakable terms to the world on this subject, and that we back up our announced policy in any way necessary for its maintenance.

LIFE ON THE SAN JOAQUIN WEST SIDE, '52 TO '54

By R. G. Dean

"POCHE"

AN OLD ONE-HORSE WAGON OF the buckboard type that had summered and wintered under an oak tree was investigated. "Roll it into the pond, soak it up, get some strips of rawhide and lash it together; it will hold up all right. And you, Juero, go catch 'Poche' and we'll hitch her to it. I will see about making a coffin." This was the peremptory order, and we hurried to obey. "What do you think about driving 'Poche' to this rig?" I asked Bill, who knew the peculiarities of the old brute. "Well, there'll be a circus, and you'll be in it, as Dick will want you to drive her," he replied.

Now, a word about "Poche." She was a full-sized Mexican mule and a natural devil. She could kick your feet out of the stirrups, buck like a mustang, and run like a jack-rabbit. She was at one time Dick's favorite saddle animal, and had been dubbed "Poche" on account of the brevity of her tail, the broken and crooked remnant of which, and a big scar on her hip, bore silent witness to the narrow escape of herself and rider from a big cinnamon bear that had attacked her when Dick was hunting cattle in the willows. She had gallantly "saved his life," he said, and established herself firmly in his affections, though it was only on state occasions, or the most trivial service, that he would allow her to be used. He had given her her liberty, and she was a free lance on the range; a pet, and a pet aversion to all the vaqueros, who cordially detested her and her foxy ways. She would loaf along behind the horses, when we were driving them in, and when we rode up on her to give her a slap with the riatta she would drop her head and let her heels fly in an effort to kick us out of the saddle and then, throwing her head high in the air and swinging it from side to side, trot off with a long, graceful stride to the lead of the band in a most aggravating manner. Particularly if she had made a hit, at which she was an expert in doing, she seemed to be aware of her privileges and that we disliked her,—and the dislike was mutual.

The harness was an inspiration of ingenuity,—made up of a combination of an old one, pieced out with rawhide with the hair on, tied with buckskin strings and no blinders. A hair rope answered for lines, and when we got "Poche" dressed up and hitched to the buckboard it was a side-splitting picture; even the leer of the old mule was comical. As a precaution, I told Juero to keep his rope on "Poche," for she might make a break, and I climbed into the buckboard and picked up the lines. Juero led off, and I gently urged the mule to follow; this she did, for a few steps, and then she jumped forward; she did this so quick that the front wheel struck Juero's horse, and he, too, lit out. It was the prettiest race you ever saw for a quarter. Then the vaquero checked his horse, slacked out his riatta, let "Poche" circle round him, and finally stopped her. I had left the buckboard soon after "Poche" started to make her break. It wasn't comfortable, and I imagine she had one eye cocked back and saw me tumble.

Dick saw the fracas from the Adobe, and ran out to see what was the matter. "I'll fix it, Bohbie; you get up and ride the mule! She is all right, only she was scared; she is over it now; she'll go along steady enough; but Juero, keep your rope on her!" I exchanged glances with the boys, for I did not like the job a bit, but I would not show the white feather, or refuse to do anything in reason that Dick asked me to do. So, I climbed on to "Poche" while Dick stood at her head and led her some distance toward the Adobe, where we were to take on the coffin.

"Poche" knew Dick, and, though she skringed her broken tail down, stuck her long ears back until they looked like twin spikes, and humped her back occasionally, on the whole she behaved surprisingly well.

The coffin was simply a box made out of the rough boards knocked out of the gable of the old adobe house, now utilized only as a catch-all, and was not very firmly put together, for the want of nails. There was a doubt expressed as to whether the coffin was big enough, as "Miller was swelled up like an alderman." Dick acknowledged that "it wasn't pretty, but allowed it was in keeping with the outfit." We put it aboard, and with Juero leading, went after the body. On nearing it, "Poche" began to hesitate, and finally refused to move; no amount of persuasion could induce her to go within fifty yards of it; we dared not use force, for fear of breaking something, and our only alternative was to pack the remains to the buckboard. The coffin came near being a misfit, but we squeezed Miller into it, and after a hard pack we got back to the buckboard. Juero had all he could do to hold "Poche." By drawing her head up close to his saddle and holding it there, we finally got back to the Adobe.

"WE PLANTED MILLER"

On our arrival, we found gathered there a dozen or more horsemen and vaqueros who had come from various distances up and down and across the river to take part in the funeral. Among others was Chase of Joaquin City, attended by two Australian grayhounds he had paid a fancy price for to an Australian skipper. They were indeed beauties, and had afforded us many an exciting chase over the broad plains. They would run up to a fleeing coyote, poke their long noses between its hind legs, give it a toss in the air that would send it rolling end over end, and then, before it could pick itself up, would jump out of the way of its sharp teeth. Then it would be off again, to be again upset, and worried until it found running was useless, then stand and fight. The dogs, if alone, would leave it, but generally someone was on hand to kill the coyote. The dogs played it different with an antelope; they would catch it by the hamstring and, by frequent bites, land it; when it dropped out of the band, we had an easy thing to lasso it, or kill it with a pistol. Elk were too heavy for the hounds, though. I've seen them kick the dogs ten feet and send them yelping away; the heels are the business end of an elk, as well as a mule's.

Pardon the digression. We were hurrying Miller; everything was ready. "Poche" had become accustomed to the funeral odor, and was so subdued and quiet that the vaquero was told to take his rope off, and Dick, after an assuring word, told me to "lead out." I had a comfortable seat on the coffin, and "Poche" seemed amiable and willing as I turned her head into the road at the head of the procession. The horsemen fell in behind, in couples, and thus we moved along slowly towards the burial-place, destined some five miles, at Graysonville. The day was sunny and ideal, the old buckboard worked plaintively, and Miller was riding easily. The mourners were chatting, cracking jokes, and laughing pleasantly as we wended our way up through the Ingraham meadow, where the long grass by the river bottom was still green and luxuriant, in striking contrast to the brown, sunburnt plain.

The prospect was that Miller would be "decently laid at rest," as Dick had anticipated, and just then the unexpected happened. A coyote was seen trotting leisurely out from the willows towards the plain, directly across our route and scarcely two hundred yards distant. Instantly on discovery of the coyote, Chase, glad of the chance to display the running ability of his dogs, and, regardless of the occasion, raised himself in his stirrups, pointed in the direction of the coyote, and gave a few short yip, yip, yips that the dogs so well understood. They began jumping up until they caught sight of the coyote, and then were off like a couple of brown streaks. Simultaneously the whole procession broke out in wild yells of encouragement to the dogs, and made a rush to follow them.

"Poche" was on in an instant; she had no notion of being left behind with that corpse, and away she ran up the road, a good second. I do not remember exactly what did happen in the interval; I was too busy trying to ride that bouncing coffin that every jump jerked nearer and nearer the rear end of the buckboard. I only heard their yelling, "They've turned him!" "Here he comes!" "Look out!" "Yi, yi, yi," and then, as the mule left the road, a crash and a tumble! When I picked myself up "Poche" was headed for the open plains with the four wheels of the buckboard, and going at top speed, with two vaqueros, swinging their lassos, in hot pursuit. Miller was doubled up twenty feet away from his splintered coffin, a sorry sight, and the horsemen were grouped around where the dogs were worrying the coyote, yelling, shouting, or in paroxysms of laughter.

The funeral was surely a complete wreck! "Hoop la!" screamed Chase, as he came up dragging the carcass of the coyote, "ain't this a circus?" Presently the vaqueros returned with "Poche," the buckboard was repaired, the coffin lashed together, the corpse rolled into it, and thus reconstructed the funeral proceeded to the cemetery. As a precaution, two ropes were adjusted to "Poche's" neck, with a vaquero at the end of each,—one rope to lead her and the other to hold her in check in case she made a break to run off again with the corpse. Thus we arrived safely. We planted Miller in reverent silence, and then returned to the hotel and ferryhouse at Grayson, and discussed the grim incident over a drink.

Reaching home yet in time to ride out to the "hennery," Dick, Juero, Billy Cupid and myself succeeded in gathering in about fifty hens, the hawks, buzzards and coyotes having gotten away with the rest. The joke of the chicken ranch was on Dick, but realizing that he was sore over the failure, we discussed it only among ourselves when out of earshot, not deeming it prudent to mention it in his hearing.

The Globe Company, California's largest milling enterprise, doing business throughout the state, has acquired 400 additional feet of water-front property at Stockton, giving it a total of 1,400 feet.

Government dredges are now wideuing the channel of the San Joaquin River near the site, and as soon as that work is completed the company announces it will spend $1,000,000 for a new feed mill and warehouses.

Mount Lassen 215 Instituted.

Bieber—Nine officers of Alturas 159 came a distance of fifty-five miles from Alturas, in Modoc County, across the county-division line into Lassen County, November 1, to assist in the institution of a new Parlor of Native Daughters—Mount Lassen 215. In the party were Grand Trustee Catherine E. Gloster, D.D.G.P. Gertrude Ballard, President Violet Wylie, First Vice-president Bertie Auble, Second Vice-president Dorothy Gloster, Recording Secretary Mary Wycliffe, Marsbal Hallie Smith, Organist May Wilbur and Inside Sentinel Gertrude French.

Mount Lassen Parlor was instituted with twenty-five charter members, the officers installed being: Emma Reno, P.P.; Nettie McKenzie, P.; May Bradsbaw, 1V.P.; Katurah Gerig, 2V.P.; Marie Bunselmier, 3V.P.; Frances Carpenter, R.S.; Grace Bassett, F.S.; Annye Mitchell, T.; Myrtle Roney, M.; Mildred Carlisle, I.S.; Amy Bunselmier, O.S.; Celia Summers, Wanda Moss, Dollie Washburn, Trs.; Viranette McKenzie, O.

About midnight a sumptuous banquet was served by the members of the new Parlor, and was highly appreciated by the visiting sisters as well as members of Big Valley 211, N.S.G.W., to whom much credit for the organization of Mount Lassen Parlor is due.

Vendome Entertains Santa Clara Pioneers.

San Jose—November 1, seventy Pioneers were royally entertained by Vendome 100, which presented a program that greatly pleased the honored guests. Miss Celine Combatalade sang, Lester Maffia, accompanied by Jerome Lannigan, contributed a flute solo, Messrs. Lannigan, Firanza, Maffia and Bernal of St. Joseph's high school rendered orchestral selections, and these young women from Grant school, under the direction of Miss Maybelle Murphy, appeared in dances: Fern Benefield, Viola Giandrea, Vivian Forree, Adelaide Locicera, Rose Berone, Mary Balinstreri, Alice Rogers, Evelyn Maley, Alice Williams, Adelaide Freitas, Ramona Montroy, Henrietta McCaustland; accompanist, Miss Marion Harmon.

Judge Urban Southeimer delivered the address of welcome, on behalf of the Parlor. "Travel from the seashore to the other side of the Sierras," he declared, "and on either side we constantly see the fruits of the efforts of the Pioneers, constantly reminding us of the Pioneers themselves. In our hearts we honor the Pioneers day after day, and it is only fitting that the Native Daughters of the Golden West give concrete expression to the feelings that rise in the hearts of every native in the state. We honor the Pioneers because they have given us California as a place in which to live, but more because they have prepared it to become the place of our birth."

The Virginia reel was then danced by the guests, after which the orchestra played a march and all proceeded to the banquet-room, where an elaborate dinner was served. Past Grand President Mamie Pierce Carmichael presided, and the following Pioneers responded to toasts: J. F. Pyle, president Santa Clara County Pioneer Association; Judge P. F. Gosbey, Charles D. Sykes, Judge J. F. Black and Stillman A. Moulton. In the course of his address, Mr. Moulton said: "The Argonauts, the Pioneers of Santa Clara County, thank the Vendome Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, for the gracious entertainment given in their honor. It comes as a blessing to enjoy their sweet spirit, and be blessed. Many of these Daughters of the Golden West are now scattered as the best of teachers, cultivating the seed sown by the Argonauts of the Golden West; and the Vendome Parlor provides this spot where joy is spread to its guests, the Argonauts, to feel the sunshine of love and rest, given so freely by the noble Daughters of the Far West. All Argonauts appreciate these reunions, bringing together the old and young in social converse of past, present and future, and all thanking their lot to be living in this beautiful spot, where the scenic grandeur cannot be surpassed." The success of the reunion was due largely to the efforts of this committee: Mesdames Ralph Farnsworth, Maud Haight, Howard Mabury, Lizette Faber, Suzie Shepherd-Bickford and Mamie Pierce-Carmichael.

Pienies in October.

San Francisco—October 28, after meeting, Presidio 148 had an indoor picnic, for members only. Each member brought a box of lunch for one; the boxes were mixed, so no one ate her own lunch; some of the boxes had wonderful lunches, D.D.G.P. Noble even finding a cigarette and match in the one she drew. The Parlor served coffee. Games were played, and several contests caused much merriment. Anna Johnson won the prize donated by Annie Lemoge for the best apple-biter; Sister Romick captured Sister Grimhof's prize in the sack race; D.D.G.P. Noble annexed the E. Miller prize for the peanut race.

Nine "gate" prizes—to bring down Mr. H. C. L. —were won by the following: Sisters E. Clark, Besozze, Tierney, M. Stimmel, McDonald, M. Kane, S. Stimmel, Harth, D. Rooney. Every one had a good time, and departed tired, but happy.

Cupid Is Busy.

San Rafael—Members of Marinita 198 gave a surprise double shower, October 31, in bonor of Baby Ruth Margaret O'Connor, a newly-arrived native daughter, and Mrs. Floy McGowan Beyreis, a recent bride. The centerpiece of the decorative scheme was a huge stork that nodded its head wisely. Cards and games were played, and many dainty and beautiful gifts presented.

At the supper table, the members themselves were given a surprise, the place-cards announcing the engagement of Miss Myra Daly and Walter Strittmatter. She is the second Daly girl to announce her engagement, Miss Kate Daly having previously announced her betrothal to Monroe Peterson. Cupid is making good use of his bow and arrow with the hearts of the Marinita girls.

The Parlor is making preparations for the official visit of Grand President Mary E. Bell, December 15. That night, it is expected, there will be a large class initiation. The annual masquerade for the benefit of the homeless children will be given in Masonic Hall, December 6.

Resumes Pre-War Aetivities.

Red Bluff—Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco officially visited Berendos 23, October 16. Previous to the meeting, accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Head and other members, she was taken for an auto ride about the city and surrounding country. Following the business session, during which the Grand President told of the Order's aetivities, delicious refreshments were served. Among the visitors at the meeting were Past Grand President Olive Bedford Matlock of Camellia 41 (Anderson), Mrs. Harrington of Hiawatha 140 (Redding), and Mrs. Tregallis of Gold of Ophir 190 (Oroville), residents of Red Bluff.

October 21, officers of the Parlor were installed by Past Grand President Matlock. The Parlor has resumed its pre-war activities, receutly having a cooked-food sale.

Banquets the Pioneers.

Willows—Berryessa 192 recently entertained the Pioneers at a banquet which was a complete success. Frank Freeman was the orator of the evening, and among the guests who spoke were Mike Campbell, Mrs. Jesse Wilsey, J. H. Mitchell and A. W. Sehorn, the latter concluding his remarks with: "God bless the Native Daughters." Musical numbers were contributed by Mrs. William Sehorn, Mrs. F. W. Vickery, Marcel Barceloux, Miss Nan Zumwalt and Vollie Lohse. An amusing feature of the eveniug was a quadrille by the '49ers; some of them had forgotten the steps and consequently there were many mix-ups.

Eureka—Occident 28 recently enjoyed a very pleasant visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco. Two candidates were initiated. She gave a very instructive and entertaining talk, and at the close of her address Sister Kellogg, on behalf of the Parlor, presented her with a handsome bowl made from California redwood burl.

D.D.G.P Clara Ammer and several other members of Oneonta No. 71 (Ferndale) were present. At the close of the ceremonies all adjourned to the banquet-hall, where a most delicious repast was enjoyed. The decorative scheme in the banquet-room was very pretty, being small redwood trees with the motto "Save the Redwoods" used as place-cards.

Contribute to Armistiee Day Suecess.

Hollister—The greatest celebration in the history of San Benito County was held here Armistice Day, November 11, by the fraternal orders, as a welcome home to the returned soldiers and sailors. The local Native Daughters and Native Sons took a very active part in the celebration, contributing greatly to its success.

In the parade, Copa de Oro 105 was represented by a beautiful poppy-covered auto, flying the American and State (Bear) Flags. From the radiator, between two golden teddy bears, was suspended the service flag of the Parlor, with its two stars, in honor of the girls who served overseas. A tiny miss, with golden curls, held aloft a yellow pennant bearing the message, "Welcome Home."

In the rear of the car was suspended tbe service flag of Fremont 44, N.S.G.W., with its eleven blue stars, and one of gold in memory of Suarin D. King. Following immediately behind were the members of Fremont Parlor, carrying American and State (Bear) Flags.

November 14, the members of Copa de Oro Parlor held the last of a very successful series of tbree card parties, planned for the purpose of raising funds to assist in the Armistice Day celebration, as well as for a contribution to the Mills College scholarship. Handsome prizes were given each evening, and two final prizes for the highest scores made during the entire tourney.

President Becomes a Bride.

Sonoma—October 27, Sonoma 209 had the pleasure of a visit from D.D.G.P. Veda Vollers of Marinita 198 (San Rafael), who was accompanied by four other members of that Parlor. Hallowe'en decorations were tastefully arranged about the lodge-room. After the meeting, a shower, arranged by Mesdames Robin and Bartoli, was tendered Mrs. Charles Groskopf, a charming bride whose wedding was solemnized September 11. In a most gracions manner she expressed appreciation for the unusually lovely gifts of china, cut-glass, silver, linen, etc.—tokens of affection—bestowed upon her. Tempting refreshments followed, being served by the Misses Amy Engler, Louise Batto and Anna Bolin. Good-nights were said with reluctance.

Members of the Parlor were much interested in the news that came from Santa Rosa, November 5, of the marriage tbere that day of Miss Amy Engler, the president, and Arthur Drake of Calistoga. The bride is an attraetive young woman of tbe blonde type, and a favorite with the Parlor members. She leaves for her future home in Calistoga with the Parlor's best wishes for a life of happiness and prosperity.

The fourth annual dance, reeently given, netted the Parlor's treasury about $125. November 24, Grand President Mary E. Bell will offieially visit the Parlor, and her coming is looked forward to with mueh interest.

YOUR BEST FRIEND IS MONEY IN BANK

A Bank Account, steadily growing by accretions of interest, steadily increasing by systematic deposits—this is the basis of real independeuce.

"Opportunity," said the richest man in the world, "is a word which means nothing except to those who have money in hand with which to use it."

The way to get a Bank Account is to open one—ONE DOLLAR is enough. Then make it a habit to deposit, steadily, persistently, a part of what you earn—FIRST—before you spend it for something else.

Gets Inspiration From Grand President.

San Francisco—Linda Rosa 170 held its regular whist party November 12, and all had a wonderful time. D.D.G.P. Emma Dickoff very generously donated the prizes. After the game, all enjoyed coffee and cake, and had a good time comparing notes. November 15, the members of the Parlor entertained their friends at an informal dance. There was a good crowd, a fine jazz band, and the affair was enjoyed immensely. All were sorry when it was time to say good bye.

The members of Linda Rosa take great pleasure in trailing Grand President Mary E. Bell in her official visits to the various Parlors in this city. It is a great pleasure to hear her talk on the various projects of the Order, and inspires one to do her very best.

Busy Month for Piedmont.

Oakland—November was a busy month for the members of Piedmont 87. During the Red Cross campaign, Mrs. Harriet Emerson (chairman), Mrs. Louise McCutcheon, Mrs. Alice Haluan and Miss Josephine Clark formed a committee and secured 184 subscriptions to that most worthy cause. A committee was appointed, consisting of Mesdames Gertrude Morrison, Louise McCutcheon and Mollie Dohrman, to attend joint meetings to arrange for the Homeless Children's Agency entertainment, to be held in the near future.

November 13, the Parlor held a turkey whist which proved a most successful affair, as there were people to fill fifty-five tables, besides many spectators. Mrs. Harriet Emerson was chairman of this whist, and deserves praise and credit for the splendid manner in which she and her assistants handled the large number of people who had gathered to play.

November 20, three candidates were initiated into the Parlor. More applications are on file, and will probably be initiated December 18, the occasion of Grand President Mary E. Bell's official visit to Piedmont Parlor.

Surprised on 25th Wedding Anniversary.

Menlo Park—October 26, the members of Menlo 211 surprised Inside Sentinel Katherine Kavanaugh with a real surprise party. After the meeting, President Elizabeth Casey requested her to step into the banquet room and there, greeted by the members, she was escorted to the head of a beautifully-decorated table, and all enjoyed a bountiful supper. President Casey, on behalf of the Parlor, presented her with a beautiful silver cake-knife, in honor of her approaching silver wedding anniversary. She was indeed surprised, but thanked the members for their kindness in remembering her on this occasion. A large cake, gaily decorated with twenty-five red and yellow candles, the colors of the Parlor, was cut by the guest of honor. Songs and toasts were a feature of the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. Kavanaugh is the wife of Mose Kavanaugh, one of the first presidents of Menlo 185, N.S.G.W., and the mother of Past President Ed. Kavanaugh and Albert Kavanaugh, also of that Parlor. Menlo Native Sons and Native Daughters extend to Mr. and Mrs. Kavanaugh their best wishes for many more years of happy wedded life. Mrs. Howard Crane, a member of Menlo Parlor residing in Martinez, shared honors with Mrs. Kavanaugh, the occasion being her birthday anniversary.

Sensation Created by Costumes.

Oakland—One of the most successful events of the year was the "high jinks" given by Bay Side 204, October 22, in which the members of Bay View 238, N.S.G.W., participated. After the meetings of both Parlors, the members gathered in the spacious ball-room of Alcatraz Hall. The evening was featured by dancing, at the conclusion of which coffee and excellent lunch were served by the Native Daughters.

The costumes worn by the Native Daughters created a sensation, most of the moving picture stars in the comedy world being imitated. The costumes most unique were those worn by the Misses Viola Fenlon, Josephine Taylor, Ruth Donnelly, Annie McNally, Clara Rossi, Margarett Snow, Martha Kingston, and Mesdames Ann Smith, Margarette Jones, Alma White, Clark, Erma Bradley, Russian, Goodfellow.

The members of Bay View Parlor of Native Sons have promised to appear a little stronger in costume next time, and all members of both Parlors are looking forward to next month's "high jinks," this one being such a marked success.

Pioneers Given Splendid Time.

Lincoln—A reception was tendered the Pioneer men and women of this vicinity, October 25, by the members of Placer 138, following a custom of several years.

There were quite a number present who had either crossed the plains or came by boat to California (the Land of Paradise) prior to 1854. The world owes a debt of gratitude to the Pioneers of

California who left their native homes in far-off lands when the cry of gold went echoing throughout the world, and through sacrifices established this commonwealth.

The event proved to be the most successful in years, and the beloved Pioneers were given a splendid time. Many who could not walk to the hall were conveyed to and from their homes in automobiles. A literary program was given which closed with an address by Superior Judge Prewett of Auburn. American Flags, flowers and autumn leaves were used in the decorations. The Pioneers led the way to the banquet-room to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," and before being seated all sang the "Doxology." An excellent chicken dinner was enjoyed. Each Pioneer was presented with a souvenir.

Visits Mother Parlor.

Jackson—Ursula 1, the Mother Parlor, was officially visited by Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco, November 11, Native Sons Hall being decorated with flags and chrysanthemums for the occasion. Four candidates were initiated. At the turkey banquet which followed the meeting, the following toasts were responded to: "Our Order," Grand President Bell; "Our Grand President," Mrs. Verne Marcucci; "California," Grand Trustee Henrietta O'Neill; "Pioneers," D.D.G.P. Emma B. Wright; "The Flag," Mrs. Flora Podesta; "Our Grand Trustee," Mrs. Theresa Precardo; "Americanism," Mrs. Steve Angove. During the evening the Parlor presented Mrs. Bell with a beautiful cut-glass dish, and Grand Trustee O'Neill and D.D.G.P. Wright were the recipients of cut-glass vases.

Exquisite Work of 80-Year-Old Pioneer Exhibited.

Alturas—Alturas 159 entertained more than forty Pioneers, October 18, at a reunion and dinner. One of the most splendid times ever recorded in Modoc County was had that afternoon, when the early history of the county was lived over again by some of the oldest residents. Mrs. Robison presided at the piano, and sang some old favorites; Grand Trustee Catherine E. Gloster welcomed the Pioneers, and recited a beautiful selection; she also read several letters from Pioneers who sent their regrets that they could not be present.

Grand Trustee Gloster explained that during the war no reunions had been given and they had been missed very much, both by the Native Daughters and the Pioneers, but hereafter it is the intention of the Parlor to have a reunion every year, and also the intention during the interims to secure as much early history of Modoc County as possible. The shortness of time at this reunion was noticeable, and next year the dinner will be announced for 12 o'clock, so as to give more time for the reminiscenses. Grand Trustee Gloster then put on display some handiwork made by Mrs. Bare of Surprise Valley since she had become 80 years of age; the pillow cases and handkerchiefs are beautifully embroidered and finished with exquisite knitted lace. Mrs. Bare did not know Miss Gloster had this work, and was greatly surprised by its exhibition.

The following Pioneers responded with stories of the early days: A. B. Estes of Alturas, John Baty of Fort Bidwell, Colonel Wm. Thompson of Alturas, Mrs. Salisbury of Alturas, Mrs. C. T. Sharp of Cedarville, Mrs. Mary Williams of Alturas, J. W. Pope of Canby, and C. B. Towle. A photograph of the guests was taken, and a delicious chicken dinner brought the enjoyable reunion to a close.

Charter Surrendered.

Ventura—Buena Ventura 95 has surrendered its charter. An effort is being made to establish a new parlor, and it is hoped the efforts will meet with early success, for Buena Ventura, during its existence, accomplished much splendid civic work.

Grand President Entertained.

St. Helena—La Junta 203 enjoyed an official visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell, October 21. As a feature of the evening, two candidates were initiated, and Mrs. Bell complimented the Parlor on its efficiency and wideawake interest. She also gave a splendid talk on the workings of the Order, and won the hearts of all the members by her charming manner. A banquet followed the business of the evening. The decorations were significant of the approach of Hallowe'en, and were very artistic. Streamers of yellow crepe paper to which were attached witches and black cats were suspended from the chandeliers. The place-cards were shaped and colored to represent pumpkins, and the electric lights being dimmed, the Hallowe'en effect was perfect. Mrs. Ada Grigsby, president, on behalf of the Parlor presented to Mrs. Bell a pretty gift.

"St. Helena, California, Nov. 3, 1919.

"dere brothers:

"we are going to hav a childrens partie at our haul munday nite nov 10 an we want yn all to eum. be sure to dres up like littel boys alus do for partys. tel yur mamas you will be home erly.

"from your sisters

"p s—bee sur an eum."

When the members of St. Helena 53, N.S.G.W., received the above invitation from La Junta Parlor to a "kid" party, it is needless to say they accepted it unanimously, and it was not many days before their "sisters" received the following, in reply:

"St. Helena, Nov. 6, 1919.

"Dear kiddas:

"Us boys got your letter and we are all well and hope you are the same. Our mamas say that we can come Muoday night, if we are awfully good. There will be 25 or 28 of us boys there.

"I must close now and go do my home work. With love and kisses from

"BIG BROTHERS."

The appointed day arrived, and the "boys" and "girls" were all there—Mary Jane, and Becky with her pig tails, and boys in knee pants and overalls—no one missed that "kid" party. A lively time was had playing games of the bygone school-days, and everyone entered into the spirit of the occasion with a will. Recitations and songs were given by the "shy" little girls, and an original chorus to the tune of "School Days" made a big hit with the Native Sons. Of course, the party could not be complete without "eats," so these were amply provided by the Native Daughters. The evening passed all too quickly, and it was a late hour before goodnights were finally said.

Native Sons of the Golden West

GET INTO ACTION, NATIVE SONS!
SPREAD BROADCAST THE FACTS.

The membership drive that began August 15 for the Grand Parlor trophy banners will close December 15. Every Subordinate Parlor is in the contest, or supposed to be, each being placed in one of the eighteen classes which have been arranged on a membership basis.

Reports indicate that for the Order as a whole the membership increase is satisfactory. The growth of some Parlors has been phenomenal, while other Parlors show little, if any, increase. Segregate the Parlors, and it will be seen that those having an "action" policy have made satisfactory progress in the membership campaign; on the other hand, those having a "tomorrow" policy have accomplished nothing for themselves or the Order.

Now, the contest has two weeks to run. Let every Parlor get into action, and wage an intensive membership drive until December 15. Perhaps your Parlor does not want a trophy banner, anyway, but it must want, for it needs, new members. They supply the new blood that is as vitally necessary in keeping a Parlor alive, as is new blood to the human system. Just as the memento of having been successful in action for the Order, Grand President William P. Canbu will present each member who secures one or more INITIATES during the contest a specially-designed emblematic pin.

The Order needs new members NOW, to carry on successfully the great amount of work it has in hand, and it is necessary for California's welfare to have the Order's membership increased by the thousands. And we can get them, if every Parlor will just make up its mind that it is going to grow and puts the growing process into action. Get out and spread these facts broadcast, and every native Californian who is concerned with his state's welfare will be glad to come into the fold and contribute a dollar a month in dues toward our work:

That the Order of Native Sons is the only one whose membership is made up exclusively of NATIVE-BORN AMERICANS.

That the Order of Native Sons is concerned solely with the welfare of America, and that its manpower and wealth are pledged to suppress all government-wrecking forces.

That the Order of Native Sons is the only one that spends most of its energy and finances to benefit Califoruia, as, for example, the homeless children, the landmarks, the history work, etc.

That the Order of Native Sons is right now in the forefront of the battle to save California for the white race by eliminatiug, through remedial legislation, the Asiatic peril.

That the Order of Native Sons gets its money exclusively from native-born Californians, and spends all of it within the state for the benefit of California and all her people.

That the Order of Native Sons offers the eligible, for himself, uothing additional to what he can get in any other fraternal organization. But he is guaranteed that in no other organization of any kind will his dollar-a-month dues be put to better use thau in the Order of Native Sous.—C. M. H.

Yosemite Celebrates Anniversary.

Merced—Yosemite 24, which made such a splendid percentage membership gain last Grand Parlor year, started another membership drive, which will end December 31, by initiating four candidates. The committee that has had the clubrooms to be opened by the Parlor in charge reported the quarters would soon be ready for occupancy.

Armistice Day, November 11, was the thirty-sixth institution anniversary of Yosemite, and it was celebrated with an "open-house" entertainment at which all service men were honor guests. At 7 o'clock a wild-duck dinner was served, places at the festive board being reserved for the world-war veterans. From the banquet-room, the members of the Parlor, the service "boys" and visiting members from Oakdale and Modesto proceeded to the meeting-hall, where a program was presented.

Judge E. N. Rector presided, and addresses were delivered by Grand President William P. Caubu of San Francisco, Grand Trustee William J. Hayes of Berkeley (this being his official visit to the Parlor), and Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington of San Francisco. Mrs. Chas. Schwartzler gave a reading. The musical program, which was a feature of the evening, consisted of: Quartet selections, Mrs. W. L. Brown, U. O. Abell, Mrs. R. C. Miner and R. T. Bradbury accompanist Miss Clara Higgins; vocal selections, Mrs. J. B. Frost accompanist Mrs. J. C. Stewart, Miss Nelda Halverson accompanist Mrs. J. B. Frost, Mrs. J. P. Berry accompanist Miss Clara Higgins; violin selections, Warren E. Ferguson accompanist Miss Clara Higgins. The committee in charge of the anniversary observance was: D. K. Stoddard, Grand Outside Sentinel I. H. Reuter and P. R. Murray. Past Grand President Walter D. Wagner (Arrowhead 110), a resident of Merced, was among the many visitors in attendauce.

Hesperian Has Awakened!

San Francisco—Hesperian 137 has awakened from its long nap, and is striving to place itself among the Parlors that do things. Just now its efforts are being put forth in a membership drive, and it is succeeding. A monthly bulletin, telling of the Parlor's activities, is proving a great stimulant. Hesperian has approved the anti-Japanese resolutions proposed by Sunset 26 (Sacramento), and has named delegates to the joint meeting called by Stanford 76 to consider tbe Oriental menace.

November 13, the Parlor had a "Pioneer Night," the chairs being filled by old-timers who showed the "kids" how things were done in gone-by days. Brothers Roxburgh and Wood, just to show bow tbis little village has grown since they were boys, told of the days "when tbe water came up to Montgomery street." A fine banquet was served, and among the speakers were Grand President William P. Canbu and D.D.G.P. W. S. Scott. November 20, the Parlor gave its annual whist party and turkey raffle, which brought out a big crowd.

Athens Initiates Class.

Oakland—As the result of the membership campaign being waged by the Alameda County Parlors, Athens 195 initiated a large class of candidates at Native Sons Hall, October 25. Following a "spread," addresses were delivered by Grand Trustee William J. Hayes, who took for his subject "California Today and Yesterday," Sheriff Frank Barnett, Grand Tbird Vice-president Harry G. Williams and Grand Trustee Frank M. Carr.

H. I. Committee Considers Jap Question.

San Francisco—The Grand Parlor's Home Industry Committee—Clifton E. Brooks (chairman), John J. Monteverde, George P. Upham and Past Grand President Louis H. Mooser—met November 15 and discussed several matters to be taken up by the committee. Grand President William P. Caubu was also in attendance.

The committee gave long and serious consideration to the Japanese question, and will add its voice to the uumerous individuals and organizations urging a special session of the Legislature to consider the "peaceful invasion" of California by Japanese, in the hope that stringent laws will be passed to save California from the "yellow peril."

Arrowhead's Increase Continues.

San Bernardino—An immense crowd of Arrowhead 110's members were out October 29 to welcome home the returned service members. A splendid program was presented, followed by a delightful lunch. The committee in charge was made up of R. W. Brazelton, George Reese, L. D. Case, Sam P. Coy, Will LaNiece, W. E. Kerr, Grand Trustee John Andreson, Phiueas Caro, Ralph Logsden and Byron Moon.

Arrowhead continues to enroll new members at every meeting, and it looks as if the Parlor will go to the San Diego Grand Parlor with as fine a membership-increasing record as was presented at the Yosemite Grand Parlor.

Balboa on the Job.

San Francisco—Balboa 234 welcomed home its service men at a public reception Armistice Day, November 11. Supervisor William S. Scott delivered the address of welcome, Supervisor Warren Shannon read an original poem, and local and professional talent contributed numbers to an excellent program.

Balboa Parlor has passed strong resolutions in favor of Japanese exclusion, and has forwarded copies to California's representatives in Congress. November 18, the Parlor initiated a large class of candidates, many grand officers being in attendance.

Sutter Fort Initiates 42.

Sacramento—Through the joint efforts of Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker and a committee composed of T. S. Lages, J. A. Hoerner, V. T. Meehan and C. L. Katzenstein, Sutter Fort 241 initiated a class of forty-two candidates October 29. So great was the crowd in attendance that the lodge-room in Native Sons Building was filled to overflowing. This class marked the initial efforts of the Parlor in an intensive campaign, that will close December 3, to double its membership.

Following the initiation there was a program of vaudeville numbers, and addresses by Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn, George G. Radcliff, Ed. L. Head and United States Marshal Jaines Hollahan. A wild-duck stew in the banquet-room brought the occasion to a close.

Banquets Returned Members.

Selma—At Fresno on Armistice Day, November 11, Selma 107 gave a banquet in honor of its twenty-one members, ont of twenty-two enlisted, who have returned from war service. H. C. Wilson and Claude Gordon had the arrangements in charge.

Has Open House Armistice Day.

Fresno—Fresno 25 held open house at its clubrooms Armistice Day, November 11, for all service men and natives of the state, whether members of the Order or not. Dancing and entertainment features were provided, and also plenty of edibles. The committee in charge was: Leland Barbour, S. Harkleroad, E. E. Burke, George Pickford, W. I. Auberry, E. Bradley, Arthur Drew and Past Grand President William F. Tooney.

Stockton Hustling to Save Honor.

Stockton—Stockton 7, desiring to maintain the honor it has long had, of being the largest Parlor in the Order, has inaugurated a membership drive, and plans to add 250 names to its roster-roll by January 1. Some of the other Parlors of the Order are making such membership gains, notably South San Francisco 157 and Castro 232 of San Francisco, that Stockton's members have concluded that that Parlor, with a membership of 562, will not maintain its position unless its ranks are considerably augmented. E. W. Petzinger, Harry Dunlap, Harry Herrmann, Wesley Strong and President Law T. Freitas are on the Keep-Stockton-at-the-Top committee.

Successful Innovation.

San Diego—San Diego 108 is in earnest in its endeavor to build up the Parlor by obtaining all the "live" natives hereabouts as members. It is looking forward to the coming of the Grand Parlor in April with confidence and pleasure. A goodly number of candidates were initiated during October, and a large class is awaiting initiation November 29, when a team from Arrowhead 110 (San Bernardino) will visit. Each new member helps to swell the roll of workers, and the more workers the more the Parlor can accomplish.

RESTAURANT in CONNECTION

An innovation has been started here, in that on the third Wednesday of each month the Native Sons and Native Daughters hold a joint social meeting, with a program and dance, open to all natives of California. As a result, at the open meeting October 15 twelve applications for membership were filed with 108. May each succeeding joint meeting be as fruitful!

November 8, the Parlor observed Armistice Day, E. E. White delivering a stirring address on "The Great War and Peace Day." A large number were present to hear him. San Diego Parlor meets regularly every Wednesday evening in the blue room of Masonic Temple, and the percentage of attendance is good. Frequent out of town visitors are Brothers Lee, Crolic and Hentig of Ramona 109 (Los Angeles) and Brother Farrel of Los Angeles 45, who are residing here. All visiting brothers are cordially invited to meet with the Parlor.

Has Distinguishing Feature.

Wheatland—Rainbow 40 has appointed a committee to give a dance in the near future, the proceeds to go to the homeless children's cause.

The Parlor has a distinguishing feature probably not to be found in any other organization of its numerical size. Included in its membership are six pairs of brothers and one trio; each pair, as well as the trio, being of different families, of course.

Puts a Punch in Resolutions.

Sacramento—The membership contest in Sacramento 3 is progressing favorably, another class of candidates being initiated November 20, when an entertainment and "spread" were provided after the ceremonies. All but five of the Parlor's 101 members in war service having returned, they will be given a reception December 11; each will be presented with a handsome bound war record of the Native Sons, and special entertainment features will be provided.

The Parlor has passed a resolution expressing indignation at the Centralia, Washington, outrage on Armistice Day, and urging that all bolsheviks, i. w. w.s, anarchists, bomb-throwers, fire-eaters, etc., be driven from the Nation! A resolution has also been passed, protesting against the admission of Japanese laborers, farm-hands, agriculturalists, small merchants, picture brides, etc., into the United States, thus making this a breeding-ground for the Asiatics, greatly to the detriment of the white settlers. A copy of this resolution was sent to Congressman C. F. Curry and Senator James D. Phelan at Washington; both responded promptly. Representative Curry advised that he favors the abrogation of the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" and the enaction of adequate legislation prohibiting Oriental immigration; Senator Phelan was equally emphatic, saying he believes "peaceful penetration" has gone far enough. If the Japs want California, they must fight for it!

Thomas W. McAuliffe, trustee of the Parlor, has presented the Native Sons Hall Association with several books,—a starter for a library. It is hoped that other members wil follow his example, as a large reading-room, with plenty of shelf space, has been provided in connection with the clubrooms. Custodian Ed H. Kraus will gladly receive all contributions of books to the much-needed library, and the donor's name will be duly inscribed in each volume.

Service Members Guests at Reception.

Martinez—Mt. Diablo gave a reception, which proved a delightful affair, to its members who have returned from war service November 8. A splendid program of cards, dancing and singing was presided over by Emmet Daley, chairman of the arrangements committee. The address of the evening was delivered by Grand Trustee William J. Hayes of Berkeley, who paid tribute to the men who answered the country's war call, and told of the purpose and accomplishments of the Order.

Organizes Native Daughter Parlor.

Courtland—Courtland 106 has been working hard the past two months, endeavoring to have organized in this section of Sacramento County a parlor of Native Daughters.

It has been successful in its efforts. A preliminary meeting of the new parlor, to be known as Victory, No. 216, was held November 15, and it will be formally instituted here November 22. The institution ceremonies will be directed personally by Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco, assisted by Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, other grand officers, and several Past Grand Presidents.

November 1, Courtland Parlor held a banner meeting and treated two machine loads of invited guests from Berkeley 210 to a turkey dinner. The Berkeley Parlor members brought with them Frank Malone and Ted O'Hara, who boxed four fast rounds before the members of Courtland Parlor and visiting brothers from Stockton and Sacramento Parlors. Brother McLaughlin of Sacramento and Brother Flinn of Berkeley Parlor were called upon to address the members. At the meeting, five applications were read, which shows that Courtland Parlor, which already numbers among its membership practically every eligible in its own bailiwick, is right on the job.

Splendid Banquet for Returned Soldiers.

Modesto—A pre-Thanksgiving dinner was given in honor of the returned soldiers at Modesto 11, November 19. A further special event of the occasion was the official visit of Grand Trustee Wm. J. Hayes of Berkeley. A turkey dinner, with all of the Thanksgiving niceties, was served to more than a hundred Native Sons, including visitors from the following Parlors: Oakdale 142, Yosemite 24 (Merced), Stockton 7, Orestimba 247 (Crows Landing), Athens 195 (Oakland), and Berkeley 210.

Contrary to form, the banquet preceded the Parlor meeting. The members and guests were hardly seated, when Brother Myke Kelly of Modesto Parlor, officiating in the capacity of toastmaster, started the program of the evening. The opening nnmbers were instrumeutal and vocal selections, followed by Sol Elias of Modesto Parlor, who gave the address of welcome to the returned service men. The address was responded to by Major Garrison of the Ninety-first Division, and, incidentally, a member of Modesto Parlor. His address was the first real expression most of the members had heard from a superior officer as to the conditions found overseas by the officers and of au officer's opinion of the men in service. Grand Trustee Hayes was then called upon, and gave a very concise report on the activities of the Native Sons, referriug in particular to the history of the state and the expected outcome of the historical survey of the war.

The very able toastmaster again varied the program, by early calling upon the speaker of the evening, instead of saving the best until the last. This very eloquent and able speaker was none other than Past Grand President Hnbert R. McNoble of Stockton. In his true American way, he dwelt upon patriotism, and delivered with deep inward feeling sentiments that all would do well to hear. Every expression surely gave those present food for thought. President Logan H. Bowen of Modesto here read the list of the Parlor's members in service, and the past president, in response, gave a touchiug toast in honor of Brother Spanger, the only one who did not return from the battle-scared fields of France.

The following visiting brothers were called upon to speak in conclusion to the banquet: Judge J. J. Griffin and A. E. Howard of Yosemite Parlor, Frank Lee of Oakdale Parlor, Grand Ontside Sentiuel I. H. Renter and D. K. Stoddard of Yosemite Parlor, E. A. Brandt, president Stockton Parlor, J. Ashton Flinn, president Berkeley Parlor, and Aug. L. Gerhard of Athens Parlor. At the Parlor meeting, under good of the order, the members and visitors were treated to a wrestling and boxing bout.

Outlines the Right Plan.

Lodi—Lodi 18 has inaugurated a plan to increase attendance at its meetings, by making them more interesting. A committee has been appointed to arrange for short talks or readings on subjects pertaining to early California events. It is planned to not let a meeting pass without something of this character. The following topics will give an idea of the nature of the work to be taken up: The San Francisco Vigilance Committee; readings from California authors, such as Bret Harte's "Luck of Roaring Camp" and "Outcasts of Poker Flat"; diaries of early settlers; Broderick-Terry duel; incidents at Sutler's Fort; the Donnor Party; Gertrude Atherton's "Californiacs."

New Activity in Olympus.

San Francisco—Olympus 189 gave a grand banquet and dance, November 1, in honor of twenty-seven members returned from war service. A large attendance enjoyed a very pleasant evening, the mothors, wives and sisters of the members also being present to enjoy the hospitality of the Parlor extended to its heroes. The Parlor was fortunate in having no fatalities among its boys, though some of them were wounded.

County Clerk Harry I. Mulcrevy was toastmaster of the evening and Judge Frank J. Murasky delivered the oration, his subject being "California." Joseph Isaacs was chairman of the committee, while I. M. Peckham, Frank Cliff, Phil Vandor, Walter Alden, Robert Munson, Frank I. Butler and George Schaefer, Jr., were in charge of the entertainment, which was voted a grand success.

The Parlor is takiug on new activity, and slowly but surely increasing its membership, since moving back to its old quarters in Olympus Hall, 321 Divisadero street, where the Parlor was originated in 1887.

A Long-to-be-Remembered Occasion.

St. Helena—October 18 will long he remembered by St. Helena 53, when a banquet was given in honor of the returned soldier members and a class of seven initiates. Nine of the eighteen enlisted men were present. After the initiatory ceremonies, adjournment was taken to the banquet-room, where the members of La Junta 203, N.D.G.W., had a fine "spread" awaiting them. The beautifnl tints of autumn brightened the tables and room, and amoug the clusters of grape leaves were the Stars and Stripes. Just back of the toastmaster's seat was the Parlor's service flag, on which are one gold and eighteen blue stars.

After the delicious menu served by the Native Daughters had been thoronghly enjoyed, Walter Metzner, acting as toastmaster, spoke a few words of greeting and welcome to those who had returned from war sound and well, and then called upon several who briefly related their army experiences. An interesting talk was also given by Theodore A. Bell. Past Grand President Bismarck Bruck had a place of honor at the banquet table, and there were several visitors from other Parlors.

PERSONAL MENTION.

At Sacramento, November 18, was solemnized the wedding of Miss Eunice McLaughlin, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles E. McLaughlin, and Carroll Dunn. Judge McLaughlin is a Past Grand President.

FRESNO'S MAYOR AND WIFE CELEBRATE WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Fresno—Mayor and Mrs. William F. Toomey celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage at their home here, November 4, with a dinner party. Mayor Toomey is a Past Grand President of the Order of Native Sons. The couple were the recipients of many handsome presents and nnmerous floral remembrances.

The festive board was arranged in the form of the letter "T," and was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of pink and white, while roses and ferns were attractively arranged about the room. Small boxes of wedding cake were the favors. After the dinner, dancing and games were enjoyed in the living-rooms, which were adorned with pink and white chrysanthemums.

Among those sharing the hospitality of the occasion were: Messrs. and Mesdames Harry Gaetjen, Charles Koenig and William Ramm of San Francisco, Merle Fink of Taft, J. R. Jones, Ralph Robinson, J. H. Smith, R. D. Chittenden, T. M. Anton, R. O. Sonmer, Bert Naul, M. Sullivan, Hayden Jones, and Mrs. Cumberseu.

Passing of the California Pioneer

(Confined to Brief Notices of the Demise of Those Men and Women Who Came to California Not Later than 1855.)

F. W. Biebrach, who came to California in 1849, died November 2 at San Jose, where he had made his home since 1852. He was a native of Germany, aged nearly 77, and is survived by three children.

Mrs. Alexander Sims who, as Jane Biggs, came here with her parents in 1850, passed away October 23 at Grass Valley, Nevada County, where she had resided since 1854. She was a native of New Zealand, aged 76, and is survived by a daughter and a brother, Elam Biggs, for years financial secretary of Quartz Parlor No. 58, N.S.G.W (Grass Valley).

Adam Brooks, who crossed the plains in 1853 and settled in Placerville, El Dorado County, died there October 31. He was a native of Ohio, aged 88.

NATIVE SON PASSES AWAY AFTER SERVING COUNTRY IN WAR

San Francisco—E. Tom Whiting, who served the country loyally and well during the war, died here from the effects of an operation November 3. He served as a radio operator in the Government transport service between New York and France. At the war's close he was transferred to the United States Shipping Board, and went to Brazil, Cuba and France. One week after his discharge he went to a hospital, suffering from a disease contracted aboardship, and after a six weeks' struggle passed away.

Deceased was a native of Grass Valley, Nevada County, aged 23, and was affiliated with Hesperian Parlor No. 137, N.S.G.W. (San Francisco). Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Whiting, six brothers and a sister.

EL DORADO COUNTY NATIVE PASSES.

Placerville—Mrs. Dora Skinner, wife of Joseph Skinner of this city, passed away October 30, after an illness of only two days, the immediate cause of which was heart trouble. She was a native of El Dorado County, aged 39 years, and leaves besides her stricken husband one daughter, Anita Skinner-Bennett, to mourn her untimely death.

For about twenty-three years she was a member of Marguerite Parlor No. 12, N.D.G.W., under whose auspices the funeral took place November 2.

N.D.G.W. FOUNDER'S BROTHER DEAD.

San Francisco—Oscar H. Reichling, brother of Lily O. Reichling-Dyer, Founder of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, died here November 9. Other surviving relatives are the widow, Rose M. Reichling, his mother, a brother and a sister.

Deceased was a native of Jackson, Amador County, aged 57, and affiliated with Excelsior Parlor No. 31, N.S.G.W., of that city. For the past ten years he had resided in San Francisco.

THREE WEEKS' BRIDE PASSES.

San Rafael—Hazel Estell Murphy, a bride of but three weeks, passed away recently as the result of an attack of typhoid fever, with which she was taken ill while on her honeymoon. She was a much-loved member of Marinita Parlor No. 198, N.D.G.W., of this city.

In Memoriam

ROSE B. CURTIN.

Whereas, Life's enemy, Death, has again visited our Parlor, Los Angeles No. 124, Native Daughters of the Golden West, and claimed one of the best-loved, most-devoted and charitable sisters of our Order, Rose B. Curtin, whose lovable disposition, charming personality, engaging manner and sincere friendship endeared her to every sister member; whereas, the summons that awaits all mortals deprived our Parlor of a devoted member, and her family of a dutiful daughter, a loving wife and an affectionate sister; whereas, in life Sister Curtin was sincerely devoted to the welfare of her native country, her native state, California, and our Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and was a willing worker in all charitable causes; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, Native Daughters of the Golden West, sincerely deplore our loss, and devoutly sympathize with the bereaved relatives and share with them their deep grief; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our Parlor's record, that a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and that a copy be furnished our official organ, The Grizzly Bear Magazine, for publication.

SUSAN C. DONAHUE,
Committee.

Los Angeles, November 17, 1919.

EDA STRAESSLER.

To the Officers and Members of Dolores Parlor No. 169 N.D.G.W.—Dear Sisters: We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late Past President, Eda Straessler, beg to submit the following: The Angel of Death has again entered our sacred portals and taken from our midst our dearly beloved sister and Past President, Eda Straessler. We tenderly condole with the bereaved family in their hour of trial and affliction, and commend them for consolation to Him Who doeth all things well. Let us not think of her as dead, but as having preceded us to that Golden Shore where she now dwells as one of the Daughters of that Better Land, and where she waits to welcome us as we, too, shall pass through that Golden Gate. By her death the family lost a devoted daughter and loving sister, Dolores Parlor a sister whose presence was a kindly influence, and the Order a loyal Native Daughter of the Golden West

"Then let our sorrows cease to flow,
God has called His own.
But let our hearts in every woe,
Still say Thy will be done."

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning, that these resolutions be spread on the minutes, that an engrossed copy be sent to the bereaved family, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

HAROLD B. BROADWELL.

Whereas, The Grim Reaper, Death, has once again made his unwelcome visit and garnered from our Order one of Ramona's esteemed members, Brother Harold B. Broadwell, who, while in the discharge of his official duty, was suddenly stricken down, and passed away on the 9th day of November, 1919, "To that Bourne from whence no traveler ever returns," and whereas, in life Brother Broadwell was a true and valued Native Son of the Golden West and a loyal member of Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W., an upright citizen, a loving father, a devoted husband and a dutiful son; therefore be it

Resolved, That in the passing of Brother Broadwell our Order has lost a valued member, the State of California a loyal citizen, and his family a devoted husband, a loving father and a dutiful son; and be it further resolved, that Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W., deplores the untimely calling of our departed brother and we hereby express to his bereaved family and relatives our heartfelt sympathy in this, their sad affliction; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread on the minutes of Ramona Parlor, a copy be presented to the bereaved family of our deceased brother, and a copy furnished The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
J. A. ADAIR,
WM. I. TRAEGER,
A. E. HAMILTON,
Committee.

BIG FORCE ORGANIZES TO ROUT JAPANESE

OUT OF THE ANTI-ASIATIC COMMITtee appointed some three months ago by tbe Native Sons and Native Daugbters bas grown the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association. It was organized November 15 at Ramona Hall, and embraces organizations and individuals pledged to do all in tbeir power to preserve California and the United States for the white races. Otber organizations than those represented at tbe formation of the Association will become affiliated, assurances have been given, and will add thousands to the 150,000 men and women already united to save this Japanese infested county.

At tbe meeting November 15, presided over by William I. Traeger, Grand Second Vice-president, N.S.G.W., the following pledged their organizations' support in the anti-Asiatic campaign: Seth Brown, Central Labor Council; Louis G. Guernsey, New York State Society; Charles Kiesner, Fraternal Order Eagles; Councilman Ralpb L. Criswell, Jinistan Grotto; Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, Native Daughters; Arthur C. Pfaffle, Veterans Foreign Wars; C. E. Mills, Ohio State Society; George M. Breslin, Knights Columbus; Robert L. Hanley, American Legion, Thomas A. Rollins, United Spanish War Veterans; Councilman Bert L. Farmer, Native Sons; M. O. Graves, Michigan State Society.

G. P. Johnson of Sacramento spoke in the interest of the California Oriental Exclusion League, and among those who pledged their individual support to the cause were Gertrude Dodds Treher of Hueneme, F. Sesma of the Labor Council, E. A. Speegle of the Pioneers, and Edwin Jobe of Covina. Some highly-important information was brought out in the course of an open discussion, and a statement by one speaker that "every person in California, except the Governor, knows tbe neeessity for prompt State action in the Japanese crisis," met with vociferous applause.

At a second meeting, November 22, a working plan for tbe association, presented by a previously-appointed committee, was adopted. It declares tbe Association's purpose "shall be to use all lawful and honorable means for tbe exclusion of all Asiatics from tbe United States, having particularly in view tbe protection and welfare of California," and all organizations and individuals in sympathy witb its object are invited to affiliate. Tbe Association's purposes are set forth as:

First—To at once secure sucb National legislation as will effectively exclude all Asiatics. Second—To at once secure an amendment to the Federal Constitution denying citizenship to cbildren of Asiatics born in the United States. Third—To at once secure State legislation to prohibit all Asiatics from owning or leasing land, and to prohibit all Asiatics from attending the public schools.

The Association condemns in its declaration of purposes tbe so-called "Picture Bride" marriages of Japanese as being a nauseating stencb in the nostrils of all decent men and women. It declares the presence of Asiatics, particularly Japanese, in this country a menace to the United States, and declares it is its purpose to make public the facts supporting this declaration.

The cbairman was authorized to name several committees, and also a Board of Directors. As members of the latter body he announced: Eugene W. Biscailuz, Ralph L. Criswell, Clarence M. Hunt, Robert L. Hanley, C. Elliott Miller, Charles Kiesner, Seth R. Brown, M. O. Graves and Louis G. Guernsey. Tbe officers of the Association are: William I. Traeger, cbairman; Herman C. Liebtenberger, vice-chairman; Walter D. Gilman, secretary; Bert L. Farmer, treasurer.

Ramona Warms Its New Home.

The new home of Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., at 349 South Hill street, known as Ramona Hall, was formally opened November 21 at a "house warming" party which filled the quarters to capacity with members and visitors. The Parlor was showered with congratulations for its progressiveness in fitting up a beautiful bome for its members and visiting members of the Order.

A. E. Hamilton, acting president, presided at the "house warming," and short addresses were made by Mayor M. P. Snyder, Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger, Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, and Robert L. Hanley. The latter, chairman of the Parlor's housing committee, responded to insistent demands for a "speech" after he had been given three rousing cheers for his splendid efforts.

Superior Judge Rex Goodcell (Arrowhead 110) of San Bernardino was the orator of the occasion, and for a half-hour was listened to with closest attention. It was a brilliant address, and the sentiments expressed by the speaker were heartily applauded. Grove Vail was the vocal soloist of the evening, and Paul Kiefer appeared in violin selections. Organist Julius Krause presided at the piano. After the program, refreshments were served in the club-rooms.

Ramona now has as "nifty" quarters as any Parlor in the Order. Two floors are utilized, the second story being given over to the lodge-room, reception-room, and combination library-and-reading-room. The third story has Secretary West's office, club-rooms, kitchen, bath-rooms, and sleeping-rooms. Throughout, the quarters are neatly and substantially furnished, and upon entering one immediately is impressed with the "homey" appearance.

Will Spread Christmas Cheer.

Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W., will start its winter class in California history study this month, Mrs. Annie L. Adair and Miss Susan Donahne being the committee to arrange the program. December 1, Mrs. Fannie Prather

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

IF YOU ARE CLEVER WITH YOUR NEEDLE and prefer to make your hats from materials that you have on hand, black, midnight blue and the tangorine can bo combined in the snappiest fashiou imaginable. The crown and rim are of tangeriue duvotyn, whilo tho facing is of the dark panne velvet draped with an upward scoop. A crown of silk boaver-clotb is here placed upon an otherwise plain felt hat of French blue. Then it is rolled up tightly iu front, much aftor the Napoleon style, and a design iu silk and chenille embroidery is inset to lend it just the proper chic for this soason.

A toque of unusual grace will be becoming to most faces, especially wheu worn with one of the new smart veils. This model is developed in beige velvot with a design set on in soutache braid—a style much favored for winter. Two uncut feather fancies, either of ostrich or pieces of paradise, appear at the right.

Fashion in tailored suits nowadays features dark blue suits for tho spring and fall seasous more thau any colors. This winter mixed tweeds and cheviots are smart for hard service, and wool velours, in shades of brown, taupe and olive drab for dressy wear. Incidentally, let me suggest that a material like broadcloth, which grows shiny witb wear, is not desirable for every-day wear.

Many very attractive one-piece dresses are fashionable, and are the correct things for office, street and general informal wear. The staple kinds are made of serge, tricotine or a light-weight wool velour. Materials that shed the dust readily and do not show spots are better than those that hold the soil.

Though the return to bouffant and pannier styles, frills and furbelows indicated some months ago that the winter style program would be one of great elaborateness and costly materials, fascinating frocks are seen of beautiful colored taffetas with ruchings of the same around the skirt or with garlands of flowers holding up puffs in the side draperies.

Dancing frocks are altogether charming, in their artistic coloring and daintiness. Square necks and sleeves that are decidedly short or not reaching to the elbows, are worn. The bouffant sides are variously made, and some have a distinct modern aspect.

To enliven dark dresses and to reflect colors, there are quantities of bead chains of all sizes and designs, and semi-precious ornaments of carved jade beads. Lapis lazuli necklaces are considered smart, and are truly in accord with fashion's decree of accessories.

Spanish shawls have been introduced, and some few are likely to be displayed at social affairs. Dressy scarfs of silk tissues, bordered in printed color or with metal brocades, are among the smart accessories for dressy uses. Batik and printed chiffon cloth scarfs are noticed in made-up blouses and very exclusive high-class negligee, consisting of a long piece of material with a round hole cut out for the neck aud witb a seam on either side, leaving a straight armhole to which long fitted sleeves are attached.

Lingerie are made of bandkerchief linen and daintily ornamented with hand-hemstitcbing. Colored ribbons are run through half-inch tucks, made to finish the neck or hem and to trim sleeveless nightgowns, which follow the fashion for evening dresses without any arm covering.

Rhinestone buckles will be much in vogue for black satin, gold or silver slippers.

CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS.

If Christmas-giving heretofore has beeu little more than habit, surely this year it will be something new. To use one of the war's best slogans, we shall "give till it hurts," because we have grown big enough to nndorstand how closely related we all are and how much we depend on ono another, and because we have come to know that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

The enstom of gift exchanging on certain days of the year, has been in effect in many countries since long before the birth of the Child of Bethlehem. But love was not always behind the giving; instead of love, there have often been selfish motives.

Tho idea of Santa Claus is understood to be tbe spirit of love—the expression of unselfish interest in others, the desire to spread happiness—and it speaks well for humanity that Santa Claus is so popular. He is a dear old chap, and he is going to be happy, indeed, when he finds in his Christmas this year less selfishness than ever there has been on a Christmas before.

If you have never made, with your own fingers, little gifts for your friends and loved ones, you have missed the warmest joys of Christmas. Into the thing you create, you put something of yourself, and it is that somethiug which will remain witb your friends long after the tangible work of your fingers has served its time.

Wire frames for lamp shades can be purchased in any department store in a number of different sizes and many attractive shapes. They can be covered by shirring at top and bottom wires a thin silk or ribbon in any desired color, or by paneling with squares of Chinese embroidery. Other frames, made of split bamboo or of fiber, can be covered witb parchment on which has been sketched or stenciled motifs or designs. Just now, the parchment shade bids fair to lead in popularity; it is very attractive for hubby's den.

You know, it really is rather funny, after all, this buying a Christmas gift for husband, with husband's own money! Oh, to be sure, it is as much will tell about San Diego Mission and Miss Grace Ducasse will have the "Present-doy Indians of California" for her subject. December 15, Miss Katherine Baker will speak on San Luis Rey Mission, and Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer will briefly sketch the history of the State (Bear) Flag. The Porlor's membership committee—Miss M. J. Labory and Mrs. Daisy Eckstrom—is busy preparing for a class initiation.

For years, Los Angeles Parlor has provided food ond clothing to a number of families at Christmos time, and will continue the practice this year. In future the fund for this work will be knowu as the Rose B. Curtin Christmas Fund, in loving memory of Sister Rose B. Curtiu, who took such an active interest in the work and whose recent passing caused such bereavemeut in the Porlor. The Christmas work will be iu charge of this committee: Misses M. J. Labory, Susan Donahue, Katherine Baker; Mesdames Grace Haven, Daisy Eckstrom, Malin.

To Have Anniversary Celebration This Month.

Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W., at its meeting November 13, unanimously adopted resolutions deploring the killing of ex-service men at Centralia, Washington, and other acts indicating an organized effort to overthrow the Government, and pledging its "support to any movement hoving for its object the suppression of all those who advocate government by force, no matter under what name they may masquerade, and the expulsion from American soil of all traitors to this country and its constituted government."

Some time in December, the date to he announced later, the Parlor will extend an invitation to all Native Sons and Native Daughters and their families to be its guests ot an entertainment and dance in celebration of its institution anniversary. Officers for the January-June term will be elected at the December 4 meeting.

Homeless Children's Work.

The Notive Sons' and Native Daughters' Joint Homeless Children's Committee met November 14 at Ramona Hall where, through the kindness of Ramona, N.S.G.W., meetings will he held regularly in the future in the handsome reception-room. Splendid reports of the many children under the committee's supervision were given. Chairman Irving Baxter cloimed his charge, a boy, was the prize bahy, but Al Cron disputed this, for he is looking after a brown-eyed baby girl.

The contribution morch, iu force at every Native Sons' meeting, is bringing in pennies in large numbers for the children's cause. When the returns are mode at each meeting of the committee, Henry Ireland, the originator of the march, and Treasurer J. B. Coffey heom with pleasure. At this meeting, John T. Newell, who was absent ot the last meeting, deposited o sack full of pennies from Los Angeles Parlor, N.S.G.W.

The committee will give its annual children's benefit in February. The noture of the offair and the exact date will he reported at the next meeting by the following committee, appointed to orrange the details: Misses M. J. Lahory ond Susan Donahue; Mesdames Henry N. Ireland, Selina Gibson and Anna L. Adair; John T. Newell, J. B. Coffey, Al Cron, Jomes Lynch ond Dr. R. M. Dunsmoor.

The Death Record.

Harold B. Broadwell (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) died November 9, from injuries sustained while in the discharge of his duties as o county motorcycle officer. He was born in San Francisco, September 28, 1884. A widow and two sons survive.

Leroy Milton Grider (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) died suddenly November 16. He was a great lover of onimals, and was the proprietor of "Birdland." He was born at Roseville, Placer County, September 22, 1855, but had made his home here since an infant, and up to fifteen years ago was well known in realty circles. A widow and two children survive.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A. E. Hamilton (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) was a recent visitor to Sacramento, where he attended the big class initiation of Sutter Fort Porlor, No. 241, N.S.G.W.

D. H. Recarte (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) has heen receiving the congratulations of his friends, having been remembered with $3,000 in the will of o recently-deceased San Froncisco friend.

yours as it is his, if you want to pursue that line of argument. But, nevertheless, the least sentimental of "Johns" will appreciate far more the most trifling gift which represents a little time and labor of the two hands he loves best than he possibly could an article which he might as easily have purchased for himself.

Holiday sweets look, and taste, better when packed in a handsomely decorated box, which any one can make by covering some odd-shaped box with satin and laces, brocades, or Chinese embroideries finished with heads, tassells, gold or silver laces. Crystallized fruits and glaced nuts may be packed in beautiful haskets. These baskets and boxes will prove useful on the dresser long after the sweets are gone.

Here's a thought for the girl who makes her own gifts: some charming little beads hand painted in the most gorgeous colorings. They range in price from ten to fifteen cents apiece, and when combined with plain-color beads give the effect of very original French necklaces. Quaint little hand-carved ivory animals are being used on just such necklaces as pendants.

Then, the newest and most gorgeous effects: great sweeping feathered fans, that bring a high spot of color to one's gown. Vivid shades of blue, old rose, coral, burnt orange and delicate flesh tints are the colorings.

We have heard much about the handsome tapestry bags to take the place of silks and velvets—another Christmas novelty. They are made of tiny silk bandanna handkerchief of actual cotton colorings and designs. They make most acceptable gifts.

Shoe boxes and hat boxes are made very attractive of ribbon, lace and French flowers or fruits. Some are covered with black oilcloth and decorated the same as the ones of silk.

Try these things or, at least, one of them. In the meantime, I will be wishing you a very merry Christmas and a bright and happy New Year.

IMMEDIATE PRESENT TIME TO PROTECT WHITE RACE

A LETTER IS ABOUT TO GO TO ALL Subordinate Parlors of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West from Grand President William P. Canbn, requesting them to petition the Goveruor to immediately call a special session of the California Legislature to enact legislation to (1) Curb the Japanese "Picture Bride" insult to American standards of morality. (2) Stop the gaps in the State Alien Land Law of 1913 so that the Asiatics' encroachment upon California's agricultural lands will be permanently stopped. (3) Provide machinery of law which will enable the State Attorney-General to dissolve corporations organized and providing a means for the Asiatics to avoid that law.

Accompanying the letter are resolutions adopted by the Home Industry Committee of the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W.; approved by the Grand President, and being sent to the Governor and every member of the Legislature. The resolutions plainly state that "the time for effective action is in the immediate present and that to permit of more delay in providing the white race with adequate protection from further Asiatic encroachment is but to increase the difficulty of meeting the situation effectively." Grand President Canbu concludes his letter with a request that all Parlors endeavor to interest otber fraternities, organizations and civic bodies in their communities to join in the demand for an extra Legislature session.

ANTI-ASIATIC COMMITTEE ORGANIZED.

San Francisco—The twenty-seven local Parlors of Native Sons, at a joint meeting November 19 organized the N.S.G.W. Anti-Japanese Committee to combat the Oriental menace. These officers were selected: W. F. Postel, chairman; Fred C. Pattison, secretary; J. B. McSheehy, treasurer. At a second meeting November 21, the committee unanimously adopted a "plan of action" presented by this committee, named for the purpose: C. L. McEnerney (chairman), James T. Conlan, D. J. Wren, T. C. Conmy, C. K. Grady, J. Regan, G. Eberhard.

That the San Francisco Native Sons mean business, is evidenced in the "plan of action," concerning which Secretary Pattison of the Committee says: "We are firmly convinced that a gigantic task confronts us. But, realizing tbat California's welfare is in imminent danger, we will not give up the fight until we remove the menace and have laws passed which will prevent its recurrence."

AMEN!

The California Legislature, in special sessiou at Sacramento, November 1, passed a resolution—unanimously, except for the negative votes of three senators,—requesting "the Governor of the State of California to immediately issue a proclamatiou calling upou all good citizens of the State of California to refuse to lease or sell lands to aliens ineligible to citizenship or to corporations controlled by such aliens." Our present Goveruor bas not seen fit to do that little to save this state from the Japauese—at least, we have neither seen nor heard of any such proclamation. No wonder the Sacramento "Bee" offers up the prayer, in behalf of California, "God, give us a governor!"—C.M.H.

FOR SERVICE BOYS

In order to give all former service men whose insurance has lapsed or been canceled a fair chance to reinstate their insurance, including men who have been out of the service eighteen months or more and who are therefore barred from reinstatement under the former ruliug, a special blanket ruling is made which allows all ex-service men to reinstate their insurance before December 31, 1919, provided that each applicant is in as good health as at date of discharge or at expiration of the grace period, whichever is the later date, and so states in his application. Of course, it is necessary that he tender the two months' premiums on the amount of insurance he wishes to reinstate.

The provisions for reinstatement do not protect a man until be actually reinstates. If be waits, be may not be in as good bealth as he was at the time of discharge and consequently may not be able to secure reinstatement. Don't put off reinstatement. Do it now!—Published at request Bureau of War Risk Insurance, United States Treasury Department.

BELSHAW KILLED

Senator Charles M. Belshaw, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., was killed in an auto accident near Half Moon Bay, November 23, the information reaching The Grizzly Bear just as this (last) page of the December issue was to go upon the press and therefore making an extended notice of his untimely passing impossible in this number.

In the Belshaw machine, which plunged down a 700-foot hill, were "Charlie" Belshaw, his wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sherwood. All were killed.

Senator Belshaw was a native of Fiddletown, Amador County, aged nearly 59 years. One of the oldest members, in point of service, in the Order of Native Sons, an untiring worker in the ranks, a fearless exponent of the right, a wise counsellor, faithful to every trust, and a true friend, his untimely passing is, indeed, a terrible loss to the Order he loved so devotedly and every member of which loved him.

Funeral services, at which the Order of Native Sons paid final tribute to Past Grand President Belshaw, were held November 26 from the San Francisco Native Sons Building, which he was instrumental in building and which will ever stand as a memorial to his memory. The Grand Parlor conducted the services.—C.M.H.

LIFE ON THE SAN JOAQUIN WEST SIDE, '52 TO '54

By R. G. Dean

"A SHE-BEAR WITH CUBS"

TIME HAD SLIPPED AWAY RAPidly. I had prolonged my stay far beyond my expectations, my funds were running low, and I was on the eve of striking out for the mines when the culminating event in my brief career on the West Side happened.

The melting of snow in the Sierras had filled the river banks and bottoms to flooded fullness; the June freshet was on, and at its highest. The cattle had all been driven out of the bottom to the upland, and there was little of interest going on.. Billy Cupid suggested that we take a boat and go up the river a mile or so, to where he knew there was a large patch of wild blackberry vines. This was the ripening season, so, with visions of blackberries and cream in our heads, we arranged with Perkins, a recent settler on the river, for he and his wife, a Kanaka woman whom he had married in Honolulu and brought to California with him, to accompany us.

"Perk" was a Yankee whaler who had shipped as a blacksmith and had spent two seasons on the Northwest Coast, wintering in the islands, and thence following the rush to California. He had built a little habitation, and a shop on the bank of the river nearby, and employed most of his time making Mexican bridle-bits and spurs, at which he was an expert, and selling them for half an ounce each. With "Perk" resided a half-breed Indian woman who had been raised at the old Soledad Mission, and had married a Mexican who had deserted her. These two women were the first to settle on the river, hence the reference.

Well, we five constituted the party. We pulled up to a sharp turn in the river, and as we turned the point, there, full in view, was the blackberry patch,—oval-shaped humps like haycocks, and covered with ripe and ripening berries. It skirted the river; twenty feet away was a thicket of high and densely growing willows. We picked and ate berries to our hearts' content, filled our receptacles, and had passed a couple of hours listlessly squandering time and were ready to start back, when Bill remarked, "I'm going to top off my pan with some of those big berries that are growing on the big willows." "Good! I'm with you," I said, and we both approached the willows and entered a little trail that led across the point, picking a large berry here and there.

A few steps after entering the trail we noticed the willows and interlacing vines were freshly broken down. "See here, Bill," I said, directing his attention to it. "Yes," he remarked, "that looks as though some cattle had been left in the bottom," and he wandered on slowly and I entered the newly-made trail, selecting a berry here and there that suited my fancy. I had sauntered in perhaps ten or fifteen feet, and was in the act of reaching for a berry, when I was startled by a loud snort and the quick movement of an animal. Instantly I divined the situation,—a she-bear with cubs! I was in her trail, and close to her bed! She had heard us in the vicinity for hours, but lay silent. Now, I had come near, and she had my scent and was rushing to an attack!

My only salvation was to get out of her sight. I turned to run, but had taken but a step when I heard the maddened roar of the infuriated beast. Casting a glance over my shoulder, I looked into her open jaws, but a single step behind me. I attempted to throw myself into the willows and let her go by. As I did so, and as she swept past me in her wild rush, she threw out her left paw, closed her long claws into my clothes, partially stripping me, sent me spinning around, and I fell, my head in the willows on one side of the trail and my feet on the other, with my back towards her. I knew that as soon as she could check her headway she would return and bite me. To offer resistance would make matters worse. I determined to lie still and take what was coming.

I pulled my head hard down between my shoulders, to preserve my neck, and raised my shoulder as high as I could, with my back towards her. In a moment she was upon me! She grabbed me by the right arm, near the shoulder, and attempted to shake me, but her hold broke, her rounded tusks slipping on the bone. She released the arm, which fell useless behind me, and then sunk her tusks deep into my ribs. Holding and pressing down until she got a deep hold, she closed her jaws and tore the ribs loose, cutting two of them in parts. Then she jumped over me and ran to her cubs. I sprang to my feet, but could not get my breath; my lung would not fill. I picked up my soft hat with my left hand and laid it over the wound; instantly my breath came, and I was off and out of sight behind the willows.

The bawling and fuss had frightened the women into the boat. "Perk" was paralyzed with fright; his face was ashen when I appeared, half-naked and bloody. "Call Bill," I said in a whisper. He could not. I tried to call him myself; he noticed the effort, came to himself, and yelled for Bill to come, saying "Bob was hurt by the bear." I scrambled into the boat and laid down, unconscious of any scare or fear, the events had happened so rapidly.

The infuriated bear had returned, and was making an awful fuss behind the screen of willows, shaking the fragments of my clothes, twisting the willows in her fury, and growling. Bill had to come over the ground to get to us and, watching his opportunity as the bear ran back and forth to her cubs, came bounding along and sprang into the boat. As we shoved quickly from shore, they caught sight of her for a moment, evidently working on the scent of us. We had escaped none too soon.

There was one simple thing happened, that probably saved my life. When the bear first attacked me, her bawls and snarls were heard by Bill. He did not know I was there and a victim, but thought it was two bears fighting. To see the fun, he climbed into a willow and yelled at the top of his voice, "Yee! Yee! Yee!" Evidently the bear heard him and thought it was the squeal of her cubs, and left me to investigate. Finding them all right, she returned to find me gone! This incident would not be complete unless I told the sequel to the story, illustrating the real good-fellowship of the era.

"ADIEU TO THE WEST SIDE"

The services of a doctor were necessary, and the nearest was in Stockton, twenty odd miles distant. Bill rushed out after a horse. A man, an entire stranger, was seen riding along the road. Bill hailed him, told him a man had been dangerously hurt by a grizzly, and asked for his horse to go for the doctor. Without the least hesitation, he dismounted and, with the injunction, "Don't spare him," Bill was off like the wind.

It was late when he and Dr. Langdon started back. They had picked up a friend of mine in Stockton, who insisted on coming with them. Richards was awfully distressed when told of the affair. We had been chums in the mines. "I must go and see Bob," he said. As stated, the river bottoms were flooded, a few high places excepted, along the river bank.

Tom Manley had opened a new crossing (afterwards Durham's Ferry) just below Joaquin City, and was using two boats, one to cross the river and the other across the lagoon formed in the wide bottom on the east side. Reaching the edge of the lagoon, they called loudly for the ferryman to bring the boat,—a large scow worked back and forth by a cable stretched across. They could get no response to their calls. The ferryhouse was on the west side of the river, a long distance away, and probably the keeper did not hear their calls. A half-hour passed, the moon was already up, and the situation desperate.

"Damn it," said "Rich," "I'll swim it and get that boat or die!" Taking off his clothes, he plunged into the ice-cold water, fresh from the melting snow, and struck out. They could trace him by his wake in the moonlight, and shouted encouraging words to him, to which he answered back. But finally they called, and there was no response.

"My God, Bill," said the doctor, "he's gone!" A speechless silence followed for some minutes, when they heard the rattle of the boat's tackle. An inquiring call, and the joyful answer, "Yes, I'm coming!" from Rich.

He had caught a cramp in his limbs and gone down, but seizing the submerged grass of the bottom had dragged himself along and, when he rose for breath and almost exhausted, his head struck the bottom of the scow. He struggled from underneath, and threw his hand up. Fortunately, it fell on the gunwale, and he held on, cramped and half-frozen, and finally crowded into the scow and was safe.

The doctor's examination disclosed the fact that my lung was badly lacerated. "Cut half in two, and two ribs also, and a third displaced. He may live, if no complications ensue," was his statement. They (the complications) did not follow, so I am here, sixty-seven years after, to tell the story.

The four months that I lay bolstered up in my cot in the Adobe filtered slowly away. During the sleepless hours of the nights, I often heard the owls' long cry and, interruptedly at fitful intervals, the howling coyotes, the neighing horses and their answering calls, and, on one occasion, a loud commotion among a litter of pigs, followed by a continuous squeal that grew fainter and fainter in the distance, until it died away, and I knew some wild animal had carried it off. It was company to hear these voices of the night,—echoes of the wild,—that somehow touched a responsive chord in my own hosom. Dick, in the meantime, had sold a half-interest in his ranch to S. Dean of Stockton, who eventually became sole owner.

One day there was an exciting rumor on the river,—Dick Harmer was to he married! Several families had come in on the upper river, and Dick had made haste to select a bride. E'er that happy moment occurred, I was again delving in the mines, having bid adieu to the West Side and its romantic and semi-tragic memories.

CARMEL MISSION GIVEN PUBLIC HEARING

Dr. Owen C. Coy, secretary and archivist of the California Historical Survey Commission, which has its headquarters in the University of California Library at Berkeley, undertook the preparations for a public hearing on the Carmel Mission held recently at Carmel-by-the-Sea, in Monterey County. Under the direction of Dr. Coy, Mrs. Frances Rand Smith of Palo Alto had prepared an exhaustive treatise on the architecture of the old mission, and complete historical data were furnished by Dr. Coy. Similar reports had previously been prepared on the missions at Santa Cruz and San Diego.

The object of the public hearing was to aid the State Historical Commission in determining the official California model for the Carmel Mission. The commission is empowered by statute to determine, through architectural study and historical survey, the exact form of the old missions of California. Once the official model is announced by the commission, the guide is at hand for any future plans of restoration and reconstruction that may arise. The State Historical Commission does not undertake the work of restoration. It merely makes available data for the guidance of persons or organizations which might desire to reconstruct the ancient churches of Spanish-America.

Many photographs are included in the report on the Carmel Mission. The treatise contains a large number of quotations descriptive of the mission taken from original sources. The documents shedding most light on the old missions of California are mainly to be found in the Bancroft Library of the University of California. Dr. Coy's interest in the report on the Carmel Mission was largely of an historical character, while Mrs. Smith concentrated upon the architectural features of the mission.

The State Historical Survey Commission is comprised as follows: Judge John F. Davis, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., chairman; Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, Professor of American History and Curator of the Bancroft Library of the University of California; E. A. Dickson, Regent of the University of California.

MILLIONS TO BE SPENT THIS YEAR FOR GOOD ROADS.

Approximately $70,000,000 will be spent this year in California on the construction of good roads, bonds having been voted for the purpose. In providing this huge sum for highway construction, California has established another national record.

Forty millions of the total will be spent by the State, from the highway-bonds fund. Fresno County will spend an additional $4,800,000, Sonoma County $1,640,000, Napa County $500,000, Santa Cruz County $924,000, San Luis Obispo County $1,500,000, Contra Costa County, $2,000,000, Yolo County $1,000,000, Sutter County $810,000, Butte County $1,800,000, Imperial County $1,000,000, San Diego County $2,300,000.

FARM PRODUCTS SHOW BIG INCREASE.

The United States Department of Agriculture's final estimate of the value of the country's farm products harvested, issued December 12, places the figure at $14,092,740,000, an increase of $1,500,000,000 over 1918.

The area of harvested crops during 1919 totaled 359,124,473 acres, an increase over 1918 of 2,600,000 acres.

TUOLUMNE AND BUTTE COUNTIES HAVE BIG OAK TREES.

Tuolumne County has a large oak tree. Perhaps if it is not the oldest and largest in the world, it is the near oldest and largest. It is on the Duckwall ranch, east of Tuolumne. The City of Chico, in Butte County, claims to have the largest oak (Hooker oak) tree in the world. It is located in Bidwell park, about two miles out of Chico, and is a common valley oak. It is estimated to be about 1,000 years old. This tree has been doctored and braced with cement pillars and cables and has some larger dimensions than the Tuolumne County oak.

The Hooker tree is 101 feet high, has 147 feet spread of branches, trunk circumference of 28 1/6 feet and trunk diameter of 9 feet. The Tuolumne oak is 65 feet high, 134 feet 4 inches spread of branches, 30½ feet trunk circumference six feet from the ground and 9 feet 10 inches trunk diameter. This is a common white or mountain live-oak, and is a grander and more picturesque sight than the famous Hooker oak, because of general spread of limbs, sturdiness of the tree, and the dense growth of green moss all over the trunk and main limbs.—Sonora Banner.

THOROUGH AMERICAN HEADS U. C.

BERKELEY—DR. DAVID PRESCOTT BARrows was, December 2, appointed President of the University of California by the unanimous vote of the Board of Regents. He was born in Chicago, June 27, 1873. His college education was received at Pomona College, followed by a year of graduate work at the University of California, where he received the degree of Master of Arts in 1895. He pursued further advanced studies in Columbia University, New York, in 1896, and secured the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Anthropology in the University of Chicago in 1897. He was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws in 1918 by the University of California.

After three years of teaching experience in the southern part of California Dr. Barrows was called to the Philippine Islands to assume the duties of City Superintendent of Schools in Manila. He was soon made Chief of Bureau of the Non-Christian Tribes of the Philippine Islands, and in 1903 was appointed Director of Education in the Philippines. In the various capacities in which he served the Government during his stay in the islands, he became recognized as the leader of the movement to establish American educational systems in the Philippines. After nearly ten years of public service in the Philippine Islands, Dr. Barrows returned to this country to accept the position of Professor of Education in the University of California. Shortly after his arrival he was made Dean of the Graduate School, and the next year was appointed Professor of Political Science, which office he has held to the present time. In 1913 he was made Dean of the Faculties.

At the outbreak of the war with Germany, Dr. Barrows volunteered his services to the United States and was commissioned a major of cavalry, having previously received military training at Plattsburg in 1916, afterwards being promoted to a lieutenant-colonelcy. He served in the Philippines and in Siberia, and was Chief of the United States Intelligence Service in the Far East. He is now President of the California Division of the American Legion.

President Barrows holds many important public offices in the state. He is president of the trustees of Mills College, a member of the board of trustees of the California State School for the Deaf and Blind, and a member of the California State Commission on Rural Credit and Colonization. He is the author of several works on government, history and the ethnology of the Philippine and American Indian peoples. Chief among these works are "History of the Philippine Islands" (1903) and "A Decade of American Government in the Philippines" (1915). He is a member of the Faculty Club of Berkeley and of the Bohemian Club of San Francisco.

DR. CHAPMAN'S PLACE TO BE FILLED BY EXCHANGE PROFESSOR.

Dr. Francisco Araya will be the first exchange professor from Chile to the University of California, advice of his appointment being received December 5. He is Director of the Commercial Institute of Valparaiso and Professor of History and Geography, and will occupy the post of "Chilean Exchange Professor in Hispanic-American History" in the State University. Dr. Araya, who will arrive at the university this month, will take the place of Dr. Charles E. Chapman, Associate Professor of Latin-American and California History, who will teach in the University of Chile during 1920, and who left Berkeley December 21.

It is expected that Dr. Araya will give two of Dr. Chapman's courses: First—Hispanic-American History, devoted to the history of Chile. Second—Seminar in Hispanic-American History, dealing with questions such as the war of 1879 between Chile and Peru, and the liberal movement in Chile since 1890 under the liberal influence of President Balmaceda. According to Dr. Chapman, Dr. Araya speaks English fluently and he will conduct his classes at the State University in the English language.

Announcement of Dr. Araya's appointment marks the second definite result of plans whereby the University of California was to become a center of exchanges of professors and students with the leading Hispanic countries of the world. The first step was the official ratification of the plan by the government of Chile earlier in the year, and an appropriation of $12,000 by the Chilean government for the purpose.

CALIFORNIA

(A STATE SONG.)

When California first unfurl'd
"Old Glory" to the breeze,
She gave unto a waiting world
The "gem" of all the seas:
Her fruits and flow'rs, her corn and wine,
Her hidden stores of wealth,
And best of all, gift most divine,
A heritage of health.

Her Pioneers, like knights of old,
In thrilling scenes appear;
Their deeds in songs and story told,
Unselfish, without fear.
They builded wiser than they knew,
These men of destiny;
Behold! how quickly cities grew
From mountain-side to sea.

Her sons and daughters proudly view
Her wonderful career;
In royal robes of gold and blue
She greets each coming year;
With graceful mien she onward goes,
Nor lingers by the way;
Love for her friends, smiles for her foes,
Her life a holiday.

(CHORUS)

California, with her treasures,
Holds to all an open hand;
Come and share her many pleasures,
Dwell with us in fairy-land;
Where the snow-clad peaks, eternal,
Cast their shadows on the sea,
Where her valleys, ever vernal,
Heed not Winter's stern decree.

(Editor's Note—These lines, dedicated to the Native Sons and Daughters of California, and signed "G. M. T.," were recently received at the San Francisco office of Fred H. Jung, Grand Secretary, N.S.G.W., and by him forwarded to The Grizzly Bear.)

PROPOSED IRRIGATION PROJECT FOR EL DORADO AND AMADOR.

New York engineers and surveyors have prepared plans which call for the building of one of the biggest irrigation dams in the West, which will bring water to 200,000 acres of land in El Dorado and Amador Counties, utilizing the water of the Consumnes River, now going to waste.

The seheme calls for an investment of $20,000,000, and the building of a dam large enough to store 200,000,000 gallons of water a day and the irrigation of 200,000 acres.—Mountain Democrat, Placerville.

GOVERNMENT'S ATTENTION CALLED TO NEED OF PACIFIC COAST.

The Benicia, Solano County, Chamber of Commerce has inaugurated a movement having for its purpose the appropriation of Federal funds to expand the Government arsenal at that place into a plant for the manufacture of arms and ammunition for the defense and defenders of the Pacific Coast.

Supplies for the army on the Pacific Coast are now manufactured in Eastern arsenals, upon which the Government has spent millions, and they are sent to the Benicia arsenal, the only Government arsenal west of Rock Island, Illinois, for distribution.

The Benicia Chamber of Commerce, in its argument, brings out this pertinent fact: "In the event of a national emergency that might menace the Pacific Coast, a small amount of dynamite in the hands of enemy spies, carefully placed in the tunnels and passes through the Sierra Nevada Mountains, would block the transcontinental railroads. What would the army on the Pacific do then for its arms and muntions?"

"Every one is as God made him, and ofttimes a great deal worse."—Cervantes.

AN EARLY DAY CALIFORNIA PAPER THAT FLITTED ACROSS THE JOURNALISTIC HORIZON

By S. P. Elias

ESTLING AMONG THE VINE-CLAD foothills of Eastern Stanislaus County—in the springtime oncompassed by an irridescent carpetry of California poppies that tint the landscape in a golden sheen of color, in the winter perfumed by an exquisito odor that exhales from the myriads of blossoms in the orange groves—Knights Ferry possesses a peculiarly interesting and romantic history, and experienced all the vicissitudes of the pioneer mining town.

In the spring of 1849, Captain Knight, the famous hunter, trapper and guide who had piloted General Fremont's expeditions across the plains during the early forties, pitched his pioneer tent by the river's side, built the first ferry across the Stanislaus, erected a hotel and began business with a vim. From that time forward, for many years, as the midway station from Stockton, the great commercial center and depot for all trade for this section of country, to Sonora, the queen city of the mines of "Old Tuolumne," Knights Ferry was a prosperous, populous, and bustling trading point. Dying a few years afterwards, Captain Knight was the first to fill a white man's grave in the old cemetery on the hillside and in the place that bore his name. After his death, the business of Captain Knight passed to the Dent brothers, one of whom had a store in Knights Ferry and another of whom was Indian agent, postmaster and justice of the peace.

Knights Ferry has become noted in history as the rendezvous in the early days of a man who subsequently reached the highest position of honor and trust in the Nation. It is said that "while it was yet hot in the summer of '54, there might have been seen sauntering along the trail that led from the ferry to the old mill, a quiet, unobtrusive man who sometimes sought a shady spot where he could comfortably smoke, whittle, watch the mill wheels' noisy whirr, or possibly take a little nap, and dream of future greatness."

That man, who became known to fame a few years later and whose name is tenderly enshrined in the hearts of men the world over, was Captain U. S. Grant, of the United States Army, on his way to join his post in Oregon and sojourning with his brothers-in-law, the Dents.

Originally a portion of San Joaquin County, the Knights Ferry territory, through the influence of Minor Walden, then representing Stanislaus in the State Assembly, was annexed to the latter county during the 1860 session. It was then a town of importance, on account of its mining and agricultural interests, and contained an active business population and many men of wealth and enterprise. In 1862, this town became the fourth county seat of Stanislaus, a prestige which it retained for ten years, until 1872, when Modesto, then a growing city in the center of a rich agricultural and thickly populated section, after a spirited contest at the polls, acquired the coveted honor.

Like all towns of this era, Knights Ferry possessed its early chroniclers—men who followed the varying fortunes of the cities of the old regime, taking down notes of the passing day and transcribing them to the imperishable print. Echoing the thoughts of the people amongst whom they lived and worked, and emulous of the uncertain honors of the journalistic game, these rambling representatives of the fourth estate bequeathed to the future the brief memorials of the time and passed on to more promising fields of activity. From these annals, one may acquire a vivid delineation of the period.

The writer possesses a paper published in Knights Ferry by one of these fortune-seeking journalists at a very early period in its history. It is perhaps one of the earliest papers published in the state. That paper is "The Ferry Bee," issued at Knights Ferry, San Joaquin County, on Monday, September 19, 1859, before the annexation of that portion of the county to Stanislaus. "The Ferry Bee" was a four-page weekly published by J. B. Kennedy every Saturday morning from the "office, north side of the public square." Its subscription terms were five dollars per year, single copies twenty-five cents, with "advertising done on the most reasonable terms." The issue before us is the sixth of the first volume. While the paper purports to be published every Saturday morning, this issue came from the press on Monday morning—a delay perhaps due to the fact that the "foree" failed to return from a bibulous visit to some of "The Bee's" advertisers in Stockton early enough to put the paper to press.

Scanning the columns of "The Bee," one is strikingly impressed with the variety of the advertising. Six saloons and several liquor houses in Stockton and in San Francisco carry space, while only one in Knights Ferry appears. L. Voyle gives notice that he has closed his saloon at Buena Vista Flat and "requests all persons indebted to him to come forward and settle up." Hotels and restaurants both in San Francisco and Stockton have cards, while wholesale firms in each city appear in the advertising columns. Navigation, forwarding and transportation companies in both cities use liberal space. One firm advertises fire and burglar proof safes, while another tells of its line of furniture.

Hotels in Knights Ferry advertise freely. The advertisement of the Centre House, managed by N. B. Buddington, on Main street at the ferry, speaks glowingly of this hostelry's accommodations. The bar attached is extolled, while the "newly-cushioned billiard table, the best in the place," receives favorable mention. The terms of the Centre House are: boarding and lodging, per week, eight dollars; boarding, without lodging, per week, seven dollars; boarding and lodging, per day, two dollars; billiards, twenty-five cents per game. The other hotel of the town, the Gardner Hotel, managed by R. L. Gardner, in its advertisement dwells upon its recent renovation and refurnishing, its table that is abundantly supplied with every delicacy, its choice liquors and cigars, and its fine attached hall for theatres, balls and private parties. From the suggestive matter contained in these advertisements, one can picture the pioneer bon vivants, raconteurs and revellers gathered around the festive board of these wayside inns, hear the bon mots, quirks and stories told, see the interchange of wit as they ate of the fatness of the land and drank deep in the jolly wassail. Ah! if the walls of these hostelries only had tongues that could speak, what a merry tale could be told.

Amongst the general merchandise merchants who advertised in "The Ferry Bee" in 1859 were Bolin & Tenuil, S. Honigsberger, Palmer & Allen, and C. S. S. Hill. The two former firms also carried wines and liquors. From the columns of "The Bee," it is seen that Arnold & Fenessey, and McGlauffin & Dakin were wheelwrights and blacksmiths of the town, while Spaulding and Hilts were proprietors of the livery stable. Antone Fessman was the boot and shoe manufacturer. L. C. Van Allen sold books, stationery and music, and was the agent for the Stockton Bible Society. John Bell dealt in hydraulic hose, while wall paper, paints and oils were the lines represented by J. E. W. Coleman. Everett's express, famous in its day and running to all points in the southern mines, speaks of its surpassing service. Bridges and roads were important in 1859, and several advertise their safety. The Knights Ferry market, owned by Flynn and Reen, ran a poetic advertisement:

"As good as found in 'Frisco bay'
A fresh supply on every day."

Amongst the professional cards are those of S. A. Booker, attorney and afterwards district judge; Hall and Huggins, attorneys; Langdon and Shurtleff, physicians; Thomas Kendall, physician, and W. E. Stewart, notary public. Summit Lodge, No. 112 F. & A. M., with M. C. Edwards, W. M., and W. E. Stewart, secretary, carries a card of its monthly meeting on the Saturday of or preceding the full moon.

It is from the advertising columns of "The Bee" that we get a glimpse of the life of Knights Ferry in 1859. It was indeed a flourishing town, though isolated from the world. The merchants of the day were progressive and enterprising in their time. Thirty years ago, these men who did business in Knights Ferry in '59 were located in Tuolumne, San Joaquin and Stanislaus Counties, filling spheres of activity. The bridge of time that then connected Knights Ferry with its early history was still extant. Today it is gone. All these men have passed to the Great Beyond, the last to leave being C. S. S. Hill who, after filling the position of justice of the peace in Oakdale for many years, passed on at an advanced age.

The miscellaneous columns of "The Bee" contain very interesting reading. There is an exciting description of Blondin's last great feat in walking across Niagara Falls on a tight rope, carrying a man on his shoulders. "Meeting a Duelist," "The Pirate," "The Old Trapper," are readable stories, while the country poet, found in every burg, expands into verse, with the title, "I Wud Knott Dye in Wintur":

"I Wud Knott dye in Wiutur,
When whiskey punches flo—
When pooty gals are skating
Oar fields of ice and sno—
When sassidge meet is phrying
And hickeri nuts is thik;
Owe; hoo would think of dyhing,
Or even getting sick," etc.

The editor of "The Bee" was a strong booster for the Ferry. Editorially he made a strong plea, in an article, for the growth and development of his community upon the score of its position as the half-way station between Stockton and Sonora, its ability to accommodate travelers to and from the mines and to control the inland trade. He vaguely hinted that because of its advantageous location, it was an admirable location for a county seat. The then recent death of David C. Broderick in a duel with D. S. Terry is the text of another editorial. The writer deplores the duel, extolls the virtues of Broderick, and says that "if this duel has any moral, it is to fan the flame and render bitterness more bitter—sectionalism more rife—personalities more spiteful. This death is a calamity which all men must deplore."

"The Bee" devotes a column or two to news, domestic and foreign, just received by overland mail and by steamer. There is very little local news. The journalists of that day were not newsgatherers, although there are a few items of interest:

"A duel was fought on Thursday last at San Andreas between Dr. P. Goodwin and Col. W. J. Gatewood in which the former was killed at first fire. Weapons, rifles; distance, forty paces; cause, matters political."

"We paid a visit to Keeler's Flat mining grounds last week. Most of the claims have been worked across the flat and into the hill and have been abandoned."

"We learn that there has been quite a stir at Buena Vista between the squatters and the squatted-on in the way of fencing in and staking off town lots."

"A young man named Garvin was killed on Saturday by the caving of a bank at Gold Springs, Tuolumne."

"Jack Kilburn was shot and killed by Dennis Mahony at Coulterville on the 3rd inst."

There is a story of the State Fair at Sacramento, and a description of the procession and festivities which signalized its opening. "We have only to say," remarks the writer, "that steady Sacramento has lost its propriety and will be the Donny brook of California."

Another item gives the names of the recently-elected officers in Stanislaus County. The editor publishes the following plaintive appeal:

"Wanted—We want at this office about $300 within a week in order to enable us to continue the publication of 'The Bee.' We must have it or we go under. Our hands must live and so must we. We have no disposition to involve our little establishment because if we do, we have no certainty of ever getting out of the hobble."

"The Bee" flitted across the journalistic horizon of Knights Ferry for a brief space of time. Judging from the call for financial help its career was short lived. The copy in the possession of the writer is probably the only one in existence. As such it is a curiosity and a relic of the days when Knights Ferry was in the making and before it attained its subsequent distinction. It represents the ambitious and earnest effort of the pioneer journalists, many of whom fell early by the wayside

In the days of old,
The days of gold,

CALIFORNIA BREAKS ALL FOOD PRODUCTION VALUE RECORDS.

California's food production for 1919, according to a Federal Government report, broke all records as to value, amounting to $535,496,000. In 1918 it amounted to $436,817,000.

The acreage of field crops harvested fell off slightly—5,881,340 acres in 1919 compared to 5,914,200 in 1918—but the production shows a big increase—7,627,256 tons in 1919 compared to 6,355,668 in 1918. The total value for 1919 is placed at $284,483,000; in 1918 it was $246,599,000.

The fruit crop showed a great increase, both in quantity and value. For 1919 it was 2,071,525 tons, valued at $234,813,000. In 1918 it amounted to 1,766,675 tons, valued at $179,263,000.

CHARLES MORTIMER BELSHAW
TRIBUTES, OF LOVE AND ADMIRATION, TO HIS MEMORY

CHARLES MORTIMER BELSHAW, Past Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, is dead! Born of Pioneer parents March 11, 1861, in the little mining town of Fiddletown, in Amador County, his earthly career terminated November 23, 1919, when, as briefly related in The December Grizzly Bear, his automobile plunged 700 feet down Pedro Mountain from the San Mateo County highway. At the same time, the lives of his wife, Maude Spencer-Belshaw, and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sherwood of Spokane, Washington, were snuffed out.

Senator Belshaw's residence was in Antioch, Contra Costa County, where he had farming, commercial and banking interests, but of late years he spent considerable time in San Francisco, where he had other business interests. He was also extensively interested in mining. His estate is valued at about $1,000,000. He was twice married, his first wife passing away at Antioch some years ago.

His political career extended over a period of many years, fourteen of which were spent in the California Legislature, as a member of both the Senate and the Assembly. At one time he was a member of the State Board of Prison Directors. In 1914 he sought the nomination of governor.

"Charley" Belshaw's activities in the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West began when, on July 26, 1884, he became a charter member of General Winn Parlor, No. 32 (Antioch), and ceased only with his sudden and untimely demise. At the Thirty-first Grand Parlor (Yosemite Valley 1909) he was elected Grand President, and the past five years—since the death of Fairfax H. Wheelan—he has been the chairman and directing head of the Native Sons and Native Daughters Joint Central Committee on Homeless Children, which, in behalf of those Orders, conducts a charity that has won state recognition and which has achieved for them a place of supremacy, as dispensers of charity, in the fraternal world.

To the memory of Charles Mortimer Belshaw, The Grizzly Bear, as the official organ of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, dedicates these pages. From Grand President William P. Caubu for the Order of Native Sons, from Judge Frank L. Coombs for the Past Grand Presidents, from Sheriff R. R. Veale for General Winn Parlor, and from Secretary Mary E. Brusie for the Homeless Children's Committee, were requested tributes to his memory, and they are here recorded:

ORDER OF NATIVE SONS

(WILLIAM P. CAUBU, Grand President.)

"Man's efforts here are compassed by a span, the brief but fateful time that leads on to Eternity." The death of our Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw came upon us so suddenly, so overwhelmed us with mingled emotions of surprise and sadness, that it is only now that many of us are beginning to realize that he has passed to the Great Beyond.

It is not for me, as Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, to pronounce his eulogy; it is not for us to appropriate his fame, but it is for us to bear witness to his character, to do justice to his virtue, and to unite in paying honor to his memory.

The length and variety of his services to our Order running through a period of many years have secured for him the love of every member of our Order, a permanent and lasting place in the records of our Order; in his labor for us I know of no member of a more marked character, of more pronounced qualities, or of a more deserved distinction; I know none equal to him.

This Order has known Charles M. Belshaw as has no other body of men; we have appreciated his inflexible integrity in his fraternal work; there was a fascination in his familiar conversations and arguments in the Grand Parlor; there was a real energy in everything he undertook to do for our Order; there was a quickness of perception and a devotedness of purpose in all that he said to us or did for us; there were the story and the smile which endeared him to every member of the Grand Parlor.

Our great work of Charity, in bringing a real love to the homeless little ones of California, is a memorial to his character; in all our many other works will his name always be found; in everything that we have done of recent years, when the best interests of our State and her citizens was our concern, we have seen Brother Belshaw most active and persistent; just so was he in everything he felt to be the duty of our Order to accomplish.

No member of this Grand Parlor, or of many Grand Parlors of the past, can fail to realize that a star of the first magnitude has passed from our midst; let us hope that it has been only transferred to a higher and purer sphere, where it will shine on with undimmed brilliancy forever.

In the cherished memory of our beloved Brother Belshaw, let us find fresh bonds of fraternity in the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

PAST GRAND PRESIDENTS

In the bright morn, a few days ago, he stood in the wonderful vigor of manly strength; in the usefulness of faculties which time had not threatened to dim. The mists swept across the evening tides, and in keeping, it seemed, with the solemn change, men gathered in lobby, in far field and in mountain home, whispering

"Charley Belshaw is dead!"

Born in the Sierras, where old realities faded into legend, the steadfastness of his character partook of environment; yet, such was his love for native land, he knew its moods, the mysteries of its temples.

We knew him as Senator, fighting, against wrong; we knew him in the constructive work of this Order, original, courageous; we knew him as an officer of the Grand Parlor, as its Grand President, administering its affairs with ability, sustaining them with honor, carrying them with dignity; we knew him at the banquet, driving away the cares of the day with his wit, with the flashing of a mind stored with anecdote; we knew him in greater moments, winning with an eloquence born of high resolve and honest conviction; we knew him moved with the sympathy for adversity, redeeming children, waifs, drifting upon the frail barks of chance to unknown seas, gathering them in American Homes, in the name of American Mothers, the fulfillment of the sweetest of all the Master's sayings, "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

His hand touched and sent vibrating the chords of the finer impulses—the chords of Friendship, Loyalty and Charity; his voice sounded the depths of the pathos that moves, and, leaving us, he has left the marvelous examples of manhood as an incentive to noble things, to hope and inspiration.

The Divine Mandate has summoned our Brother, the Soul has rent the bondage of clay, the earthly tabernacle is laid with the dust; but so long as the generation that knew Charley Belshaw shall live; so long as other Native Sons shall come to fill the vacant places; so long as these shall gather to hear how the children of California builded upon the principles of their fathers, and helped to preserve the memory of their characters; so long will the aims he loved live as a part of the new generations —a part of the light of the indomitable spirit of the West.

To thy memory, our Brother, this tribute is laid, by the Past Grand Presidents of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

GENERAL WINN PARLOR

(R. R. VEALE, Charter Member.)

Moved by a feeling of the deepest sorrow, personal to every member from the oldest to the last to be initiated, General Winn Parlor, No. 32, Native Sons of the Golden West, acknowledges its tribute to our late brother, Charles Mortimer Belshaw. At all times he has, by his actions, caused his name to be deeply revered, respected and treasured by his brothers.

From the incipiency of the Parlor he has continuously been an enthusiastic, ardent and tireless worker on behalf of the Order in general and the local unit in particular. When, on July 26, 1884, General Winn Parlor was instituted at Antioch by the then Grand President, Dr. Charles W. Decker, Brother Belshaw, who had been active in the handing together of the group of about fifteen who were to constitute the charter membership, was made the first secretary of the Parlor. At that time the Parlor presented a great contrast between its then condition and the flourishing situation in which it finds itself today. The institution ceremonies were held in a hall bare of decorations and impoverished as to furniture, there being scarcely a dozen chairs to be found therein and the stations of the officers consisting principally of soap-boxes and other makeshifts. The development of the Parlor, and its growth and prosperity, were greatly due to the exertions and efforts of Brother Belshaw.

He remained one of its executives and became the third president of the Parlor, and for many years thereafter was a trustee. While an officer, he made it an unvarying rule that all of the officers, including himself, should be punctual and regular in attendance at the meetings, and during his incumbency he never missed a single meeting. Personally, he adopted a high standard of efficiency in the performance of his official duties, and required all other officers to maintain the same standard. In his ever-present desire to assist the Parlor, he presented to it its first complete set of regalia and thereafter, from time to time, continued to make necessary and helpful gifts. His assistance at those times was necessary, and greatly appreciated.

Early in the life of the Parlor he conceived the plan of having an annual masquerade ball at Thanksgiving time, and thereafter such balls became one of the most pleasing and leading social events of Antioch. In the early days one of the most delightful features of this hall was the leading of the grand march by Senator and Mrs. Belshaw.

His sympathetic nature caused him early to take a great interest in the movement for the protection and help of homeless children, and each year he personally trained and coached a play given by the members of the local Parlor, in which he also acted, and the entire proceeds of which went to the benefit of the children. At those times he displayed a remarkable histrionic ability, and by his energetic work in the selling and distribution of tickets for the plays, he caused the local Parlor to gain the reputation of turning in to the homeless children fund more money than did any other one Parlor.

At the Parlor meetings he was a constant source of delight to all present, by reason of his wonderful ability as a story-teller and his happy faculty for entertaining and raising the spirits of the members.

It is with pride, that General Winn Parlor looks upon the fraternal record of Brother Belshaw. From a Parlor instituted in humble surroundings, one that struggled against well-nigh insurmountable obstacles, one of its members arose to the position of Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West when, in 1909, in Yosemite Valley, Charles Mortimer Belshaw was made Grand President. It is with pleasure and pride that the members recall his cheerful presence in the Parlor, his valued and needed and frequently-requested advice and assistance, the example which by his own conduct he set for his fellow members, and his stainless record in fraternal and public life. We feel that the development of General Winn can undoubtedly be principally attributed to his sustaining hand and example. It is felt that words cannot express nor tongue utter the depth of gratitude and sincere appreciation of the Parlor to Brother Charles Mortimer Belshaw.

CHILDREN'S COMMITTEE

(MARY E. BRUSIE, Secretary.)

Every Native Son and every Native Daughter of the Golden West has known Charles M. Belshaw,—

GOOD NIGHT, DEAR FRIEND

SAN FRANCISCO — THE FUNERAL OF Charles M. Belshaw, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., and his wife was marked by simple but impressive services, which were held Wednesday, November 26, at 2 p. m., in the main auditorium of the Native Sons Building. Hundreds of the friends of the deceased were gathered within the hall, where the decorations were simple but impressive. The entire front of the large stage was banked with floral offerings, while draped on either side near the proscenium arch was an American Flag and a State (Bear) Flag, the folds of which were caught up by broad ribbons of purple.

Preceding the services, the following Past Grand Presidents, headed by Grand President William P. Caubu, entered the hall and took their seats near the caskets: John H. Grady, Fred H. Greeley, Dr. Charles W. Decker, Senator Thomas Flint, Jr., Judge Frank H. Dunne, George D. Clark, Judge Frank L. Coombs, Lewis F. Byington, Judge Maurice T. Dooling, Joseph R. Knowland, Thomas Monahan, Louis H. Mooser and Bismark Bruck.

The pallbearers were Captain John Birmingham, H. L. Sounders, Lewis F. Byington, Sheriff R. R. Veale, R. V. Davis, Charles Holton, Paul W. De Fremery, Bowman Westrop and Dr. Charles W. Decker. E. Lewis presided at the organ, and vocal selections were rendered by the Knickerbocker Quartet. The Rev. Charles L. Miel recited the Episcopal funeral services, and Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington, who had been chosen to speak the sentiments of the Order of Native Sons, of which Charles M. Belshaw was such a prominent, loyal and well-beloved member, delivered the eulogy. He said:

"I have been requested by the Grand President of our fraternity to voice in words the affection held by the twenty-five thousand members of our Order for the brother who has fallen in life's battle and lies dead in our midst. How feebly words can syllable his praise is a tribute to his integrity, his patriotism, and his manhood.

"Here in this splendid auditorium, within the building which he so zealously labored to rear as a home for the fraternity which he loved and cherished—and which stands as a monument to his loyalty—it is fitting that brothers and friends meet to pay the last outward tribute of affection.

"Brother Belshaw was a typical American, a typical son of California—loyal, brave, upright and true. No man loved this country of ours or cherished its institutions more zealously than did he. He was ever and always intensely American, standing for organized society, a defender of law and order, and the enemy of those who by terrorism or lawlessness sought to disrupt or overthrow our free and beneficent institutions. Springing from Pioneer parents, whose memory he revered and cherished, the spirit of the West was in his soul. His love of California, home, and the family ties, was deep-seated and sincere. How he cherished the romantic history of this state and sought to preserve its traditions and landmarks you all know.

"Speaking to me once of the Pioneers who builded the West and of the prominent part that his father took in the early history of Amador County, he said: 'Lew, I feel that in my father and mother I had the dearest and best parents in the world,' and as he referred to those long departed his voice trembled with emotion and the tears of loving memory filled his eyes and rolled down his cheeks. It was a tribute to the loyal heart of the son as well as to the departed parents. He exemplified what we have always found true in life, that is, that the man who reveres the memory of his parents, who cherishes the thoughts of home and country, is ever upright, God fearing and true.

"Elected and installed the Grand President of our Order when we met for the first time beneath the awe-inspiring cliffs and within sight of the majestic falls and wondrous beauty of the Yosemite Valley, he said no honor could come to him greater than that which betokened the love and confidence of the boys of his native state.

"He was graduated from Harward College, and as a young man filled the position of Assemblyman, State Senator, and member of the State Board of Prison Directors. In every position of public or private trust he was one whom corruption could not reach. He held his honor high and unsullied.

"His tenderness of heart and human sympathy were shown in his work for the homeless children of the state. He crystalized the efforts of the Native Sons and Native Daughters in thus doing good, and gave to fatherless and motherless waifs the environment of a happy home and made of them good citizens. Some one has said that it is better to be driven out from among men than to be disliked by children. And no better tribute can ascend to the throne of mercy than the prayers and blessings of the fourteen hundred orphaned children of this state who have been led to happy and comfortable homes through the efforts of Brother Belshaw.

"These virtues of our dear, dead friend,—love of children, fidelity to the ties of friendship, honesty in public life, and loyalty to state and country,—will keep his memory forever green with those who were blessed by his friendship.

"In silent but peaceful slumber, he lies before us, side by side with the one who in life was the gentle and tender-hearted companion of this strong and upright man. Hand in hand, we may say, with a smile upon their lips, they have passed on together to the home of our Father.

"Good night, good night, dear friends, and flights of angels sing you to your rest!"

liked him, enjoyed him, been proud of his honesty and fearlessness. His fellow-officers of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West have loved him dearly and sincerely. He has made a host of friends during his lifetime and has KEPT them.

No one associated with "Charley" Belshaw in ANY field (political, social or charitable) failed to recognize his worth, and appreciate the stalwart justice and integrity of the man. To all who knew him, there has come a sense of genuine loss.

So many times, during our little while on earth, we sympathize with those who are left alone and sorrowing, but when we lose a friend who was kind and earnest, loyal, honest, and an indefatigable worker for the good things of the Order, we mourn. The tears will not stay back, the tightening of the throat will not relax. To the Homeless Children Committee has come a shock which it is hard to recover from. To the workers in the central office has come a shadow over all. They miss his cheery counsel and advice, his "Hello, what can I do for you today?" as he looked in at 955. They miss his earnest consideration given all problems connected with the children's work.

Only a few weeks ago he sat in the same seat, at the same table, in the Homeless Children Committee-room where he has sat every meeting for nearly ten years, missing not so many as ten, probably, during all that time. Today he was not here —today there was no ringing laugh or voice, no beaming face, or saddened, according to the question that might come up and play upon his heart-strings. Such a little while ago he was meeting with his fellow-members full of life and health and enthusiasm; interested, jolly, helpful in his plans to promote the interests of the children.

To Fairfax H. Wheelan is due the honor of the conception of the children's work; to Charles M. Belshaw is due the credit of carrying on the founder's plans. The indomitable energy and sincerity of Mr. Belshaw at all times has increased the interest of the members of the Order in the work. The friend who was in the fatal accident with Mr. Belshaw and his wife, was a contributor to the children's cause, having become interested when "Charley" told him, as they sat at dinner one New Year's Eve, what the Native Sons and Native Daughters were doing for the children. He never missed an opportunity to talk for the children.

The name of Charles Belshaw will ever be associated with the homeless child, his influence missed as long as a friend of his shall live. Every Native Son and Californian will miss his efforts for the upbuilding of his State and Order, and "until God's Day" every little child who has needed a home, who has wanted to belong to somebody, will have lost a devoted friend; and every little child who shall come seeking the protection of his Order will have lost a vigorous champion.

AN ADMIRING FRIEND

Charles Mortimer Belshaw, as a citizen of the State of California, was a recognized power for good. Firm in his convictions, no earthly power could ever sway him from the doing of that which he conscientiously believed to be the right. His long service as a member of the California Legislature reveals a brilliant record of faithful endeavor in behalf of his native state and his fellow-citizens. As a man of business, he was a complete success, and his success was achieved through persistent perseverance—one of his chief characteristics—and through honest dealing with his fellow-men.

Charles Mortimer Belshaw was an exemplar Native Son of the Golden West—one who, when he had achieved wealth in the business world and distinction in the political world, ceased not his activity in the Order with which he had associated himself when a young man and to which he always rendered such devoted and loyal service; one who, when he had retired from the highest office within

WHY HESITATE?

The anti-Asiatic campaign appears now, for the first time, to have taken root, due to the presentation of such startling, but indisputable, facts as leave no doubt of the intention of the Japanese. People everywhere throughout the United States have begun to see the light, and are realizing that the California-originated agitation against the Japanese is not horn of "politics" or "race hatred" or "labor agitation," as the Japanese propagandists would have them believe, but eame into heing as a result of the diseovery that, aided and eneouraged by powerful pro-Japanese American institutions and individuals, the Japanese are meeting with wonderful success in their "peaeeful invasion" scheme.

The Japanese eancer has already taken an almost-fatal hold on California, whence it will rapidly spread throughout the United States unless its progress is immediately arrested by State and National legislation—legislation at the hands of the National Congress to prevent the importation of more of the yellow virus, and legislation at the hands of the California Legislature to check the local infection and make the State immune from further attacks.

One person in California, however, who has admitted in the public-print that "an eeonomie situation has arisen which demands attention" and has aeknowledged that "if a similar situation should exist in Japan . . . the Japanese nation would take steps to meet it," is aiding in the spread of "Japanitis" (the yellow cancer) by his procrastination, and, although in position to render more valuable service to the State in this critical situation than any other person, hesitates to place the welfare of California above and beyond all other considerations. We refer to the Governor!

He has been importuned by hundreds of organizations, thousands of citizens, and even the Legislature itself, to convene the California Legislature in speeial session, that neeessary laws to save California from the Japanese may be enacted. But he has not acted and, it is our opinion, will not aet unless the maximum of pressure is brought to bear upon him, until the "poor little yellow men," following the advise of the Japanese press, have grabbed all of California's fertile soil they care to aequire.

The latest flood of petitions to flow into the Governor's office, beseeching him to call the special session, was set loose by the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West. What the Governor has admitted, is contended—that a situation has arisen whieh demands attention—and he is requested, in the interest of California, to do that which he admits Japan would do but he persists in not doing—take steps to meet it. The petitions were presented in the form of this resolution, drawn up by the Order's Home Industry Committee after investigation of the Japanese situation, approved by the Grand President, and passed by the nearly two hundred Subordinate Parlors of the Order:

> "Whereas, Japan has been guilty of the grossest violations of the so-called 'Gentlemen's Agreement' to prevent the emigration of Japanese laborers to the United States; and
> "Whereas, The inevitable subsequent marriage of these coolies, hy means of the infamous 'Picture Bride' system, to Japanese women who are then legally entitled to admission to this eountry has the effect of degrading the marriage relationship and is a direct attaek upon the sancity of the American home; and
> "Whereas, The aforesaid evasion of the 'Gentlemen's Agreement' and the importation of 'Pieture Brides,' who are propagating at a rate four and five times that of the white race, constitute a "peaceful penetration' which cannot but menaee the very existence of the white race; and
> "Whereas, The 'peaceful penetration' already threatens the control, by Asiatics, of the food supply of the State of California and the exclusion of the white race from agricultural and allied pursuits; therefore, he it
> "Resolved, That the time for effective action is in the immediate present, and that to permit of more delay in providing the white race with adequate protection from further Asiatic eneroachment is but to inerease the difficulty of meeting the situation effectively; and be it further
> "Resolved, That the Governor of the State of California be respectfully requested to call the Legislature of the State into extraordinary session not later than January 5, 1920, in aeeordance with the concurrent resolution of the Legislature, adopted Novemher 1, 1919, for the purpose of enacting legislation which will
> "(1) Curb the 'Picture Bride' iusult to American standards of morality,
> "(2) Stop the gaps in the Alien Land Law of 1913 so that the white race will be permanently protected from further Asiatic encroachment upon its possession of the agricultural land of the State, and
> "(3) Provide machinery of law which will enable the attorney-general to dissolve eorporations which are organized for the purpose of providing a means of evading the Alien Land Laws of this State."

Yes, Governor, the time for effeetive service to California iu the Japanese situation IS the immediate present, not when the Peace Treaty is disposed of, or, as you express it, "the present national emergency is passed," for that time may not come for many months, and every day that leaves the State without adequate laws to protect herself brings nearer the day of surrender of California to the Japanese.

Really, Governor, are you serious in your declared purpose of waiting until the "specific information needed has been gathered by the State Board of Control," before calling the Legislature in extra session? What more information do you desire, than that whieh has already been presented from reliable sources? That exeuse may satisfy you, but it is not acceptahle to a great majority of the people of California as the real reason for your persistent "stalling" on this question.

You called the California Legislature in extra session, Governor, to aid the women of other states to ohtaiu the franehise, and yet you hesitate to do as much for the women of California. You hesitate to stop the making of California a breeding-place for Japanese "picture brides," those "nauseating stenches in the nostrils of all decent women"; you hesitate to make it possible for the young daughters of California women to attend the public-schools without being foreed into contact with Japanese men students; you hesitate to have enacted laws that will guarantee the soil's preservation for cultivation hy the sons of California women. Why, oh! tell us why, do you hesitate, when the immediate need for action is so urgent?

There have been numerous eharges of miseonduet and graft eonnected with the war, and eaeh of the several investigating committees of the National Congress has promised to "go to the very bottom" of the alleged abuses.

All have "made good" their promise, apparently, for a lack of results indicates they not only did "go to the very bottom," but rested there.

The fact that living prices have heen coming up so regularly sinee the H. C. L. has been under investigation, leads to the surmise that that investigating committee misunderstood its purpose—to force priees, not itself, to "go to the very bottom."

Expressing sentiments in harmony with the teachings of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West and being consistent with the oft-expressed opiuion of The Grizzly Bear, the following resolution adopted by Sacramento Parlor, No. 3, N.S.G.W., anent the bolsheviki, i. w. ws. and other government-wrecking advocates, is presented:

> "Whereas, Sacramento Parlor is founded upou Patriotism, and is loyal to the United States Government and the Amerieau Flag; and

> "Resolved, That Saeramento Parlor opposes all organizations favoring, or willing to eonsider, the overthrow of this Government, or attempting to create anarchy or revolution, and calls upon each and every Native Sou to aid in every way the locating and punishing of every traitorous member of every traitorous organization, and demands the elimination of all such organizations."

The re-election of Victor Berger to the National Congress from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, is a disgraee to America and Amerieanism. Such radicals should be deprived of eitizenship, to preclude the possibility of their being elected to public office by others of their ilk.

Dr. David P. Barrows, elected president of the State University, in the "University of California Chronicle," just recently issued from the University Press, discusses bolshevism, which he defines as a "Program of thoroughgoing communism to be realized immediately and as far as possible simultaneously in all eountries by violenee."

As Dr. Barrows knows what bolshevism is and as he is a one-hundred-percent American, it is a foregone conclusion that if there be any truth whatever in the recently-published charges concerning the State University, which we doubt, there will be a house-eleaning at that institution.

Beeause of the storm in Oregon, the Los Angeles dailies, which get their supply from mills in that state, ran short of newsprint paper and had to cut down the size of several days' issues. The storm in Oregon, to that extent, was of benefit to California.

If the "Chemically Pure City" papers would eliminate the mushy sob-sister rot they delight in featuring, and the filthy divorce, girl-ravishing, murder, etc., stories to which they devote unlimited quantities of space, they could eut down the size of every day's papers by many pages and the community would be greatly benefitted.

The National Congress having recessed for the holidays, the Peace Treaty-Nations League cannot be eonsidered before January 5, when Congress reassembles. Press dispatches indicate the President has no intention of compromising.

We sincerely hope those Senators who insist upon amendments that will safeguard America's interests will also "stand pat," for unless the Treaty is at least amended to the extent proposed by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee all the financial and political troubles of Europe will be forced upon the United States.

WELCOME, NINETEEN-TWENTY, THE LEAP YEAR!

May you hold in store for everybody abundance of happiness and prosperity.

DIES HARD

(ESTHER CRONE.)

[War-time prohibition was held constitutional today by the United States Supreme Court in a unanimous decision.—A. P. dispatch dated Washington, D. C., December 15.]

You kin hit a snake upon the head
With either stone or rail,
And leave him, makin' sure he's dead,
But it's hard to kill his tail.

There is a story runs this way,
'Tis old and quite renown,
The reptile's tail, it goes to say,
Dies when the sun goes down.

Now, old king booze, the serpent bold,
Has had his noodle hit.
But here we find it, true as told,
His tail is wigglin' yit.

FIFTY YEARS AGO IN CALIFORNIA

A RESUME OF INTERESTING HAPPENINGS IN JANUARY, 1870

By Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

NEW YEAR'S DAY IN CALIFORNIA in 1870 was crisp and cold, but sunshiny. It was celebrated in the usual manner, and New Year's calls reached their maximum.

The youths of San Francisco and other cities made New Year's Eve hideous with their noise, and the singing of "John Brown's Body," "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again" and other popular songs of the day. In gangs of twenty to a hundred they roamed the streets, sang, yelled, whistled and cheered until hoarse, and subsided only when exhausted.

The colored citizens of Sacramento observed, on account of New Year's Day coming on Saturday, Monday, January 3, as Emancipation Day with a salute, parade, flag presentation by the Zouaves, and a grand ball in the evening. At this time the colored people of Sacramento maintained a military company called the Sacramento Zouaves, and it was available on any occasion deemed necessary to start a parade for the colored folks to participate in.

A number of corporations in San Francisco reduced the salaries of their employes, January 1. Among them was the Western Union Telegraph Company, and its action caused the telegraph operators of San Francisco, Sacramento and other cities to go on a strike. It being the dull business season, not much inconvenience was caused by the irregularity of the wire service.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company reduced the salaries of all its employes ten percent, and the reduction was quietly submitted to. General O. L. LaGrange, superintendent of the United States Mint in San Francisco, caused consternation in political circles by dismissing fifteen of the Mint employes.

January 13, the first rain of the year fell, and gentle showers prevailed for three days. Another mild storm commenced on the 18th and gave a sufficient precipitation north of Tehachapi to improve crops and feed, but no rain fell in the southern part of the state during the month, and fears of a season of dronth were expressed.

A flock of 10,000 sheep was started, on account of the scarcity of feed, from Los Angeles for San Francisco, to be driven up the coast, and other flocks and herds were to follow.

Suffragettes Meet in Convention.

J. Neuman of San Francisco, the pioneer silk manufacturer, presented to Governor Haight, for the State of California, January 28, a magnificent flag 20x36 feet made of California-produced silk by natives of the state. It was valued at $5,000.

The California Legislature met after its holiday recess, January 4, and resumed the introduction of bills, none of which were passed during the month. Long speeches were made by Democratic orators against the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which would permit negroes to vote, and dire results were predicted if it should be adopted. Looking back from present conditions, it would seem the speeches were a great loss of time and trouble.

One bill that caused state-wide comment, was that to make the legal name Lake Bigler, for the lake now popularly called Tahoe. In the early '50s the lake was named Bigler, but on account of the ex-governor's unsatisfactory attitude during the Civil War, those whose sympathies were with the North named the lake Tahoe and any person calling it Bigler was at once recognized as a Southern sympathizer. The fact that the lake was first seen by white men in the exploring party of Humboldt, in 1804, and then named by the great scientist "Bonplond," after an eminent botanist in the party, seems to have been lost sight of by the editors discussing the matter. That the Indian name "Tahoe," which meant "grasshopper," should remain was evidently meeting with popular approval.

A woman's suffrage convention, well attended by prominent women from all parts of the state, was held in San Francisoc, January 28. A permanent orgauization was effected by electing as president Mrs. Haskell of Petaluma; vice-presidents, Mrs. John McComb of San Francisco, Mrs. A. Eager of Alameda, Mrs. Dennis of Solano, Mrs. Kingston of San Diego, Mrs. E. J. Hall of Los Angeles, Mrs. M. Eddy of Nevada, Mrs. M. R. Lewis of Sacramento, Mrs. Watkins of Santa Clara, Mrs. Kirby of Santa Cruz; secretary, Mrs. Minnio McGee of Santa Clara.

The San Francisco market quotations, at the beginning of the year, were as follows: Wheat, $1.40; barley, $1.15; oats, $1.20; potatoes, 80c; onions, $1.80 per cental; hay, $10 ton; eggs, 50c dozen; butter, 40c pound; turkeys (dressed), 18c pound; chickens, $6 dozen.

Creditors Work Mine.

Prices of mining stocks on the San Francisco Stock Board at the January opening were as follows, based on a dollar a share: Ophir, 14c; Belcher, 15c; Crownpoint, 15c; Savage, 42c; Overman, 72c; Gould & Curry, 66c; Hale & Norcross, $1.50; Kentuck, $1.41. Since that time, all these stocks have sold as high as hundreds of dollars a share, and as low as a cent.

Judge J. O. Goodwin purchased the Larkin rancho of 2,100 acres on the Feather River, about ten miles from Marysville, Yuba County, for $3 an acre.

The Kennedy mine at Jackson, Amador County, was reopened this month by a combine of its creditors, and a crushing of ore after a fifteen-days' run yielded $2,000.

The California Pacific Railroad completed its bridge across the Sacramento River and ran its first train into that city, landing its passengers on the bank of China Slough, at Second and "G" streets, January 30. Since November, 1869, the Central Pacific had been, with applications for injunctions, fighting the crossing of its track by the California Pacific, but at the necessary time the latter company put on a force of men and took muscular possession of the strip of land in controversy. The final outcome of the battle was that the Central Pacific gobbled up the Califoruia Pacific and began landing its trains and passengers in its depot.

Chief Justice S. W. Sanderson of the State Supreme Court resigned January 10, to accept the place of chief counsel of the Central Pacific Railroad. Governor Haight appointed Jackson Temple to fill the vacancy.

A company, to build a railroad called the Colusa, Marysville and Nevada County line, was organized at Marysville with A. J. Binney, I. S. Belcher, W. H. Parks, M. Marcuse, N. D. Rideout, W. S. Good and C. M. Patterson directors.

The Parisian ballet troupe, headed by Mlle. Bonfanti as premier danseuse, and seven coryphei were attracting crowded houses to witness their performances.

A Japanese troupe of jugglers and tumblers, claimed to be the best on earth, arrived in San Francisco from Japan this month. One thousand people attended their first performance.

Los Angeles' Population About 7,000.

A large cave in the Coast Range, forty-five miles east of Monterey, that was once occupied by Father Junipero Serra, who carved a crucifix on a wall in it, was attracting some attention. Near the cave was a sulphur spring, from which water flowed at a temperature of 120°; the drinking of this water was said to be a sure remedy for rheumatism and kindred ills.

A newspaper correspondent wrote the following of Los Angeles: "This city is six miles square. Its population is about 7,000, and growing rapidly. It is surrounded by vineyards and a vast collection of gardens in which semi-tropical trees and plants flonrish in profusion. The perfume of these myriads of plants and flowers diffuses itself in the air each month alike through the year, and the luscious fruits are maturing at all seasons."

The "Truckee Tribune" published the following upon the twenty-first anniversary of the discovery of gold at Coloma, El Dorado County: "It may not be generally known that today the man who discovered gold in this state at Coloma is still alive. James W. Marshall is now living on a small ranch in El Dorado County. He is upwards of 50 years of age, and is so reduced in circumstances that, though feeble, he is compelled to work for a living. The miners of California certainly should not let this man remain in this fix. Were he dead, we would all respond to build him a monument. Would it not be better to smooth the rough way as he moves down life's path by a general contribution being taken? We make this appeal—not at his request—but because it is justly due him. Let the miners of the state contribute 50 cents apieee, sending it to State Controller Watt, and make a fund for his relief."

Nothing seems to have been done in the matter. It did not seem to strike a responsive chord, and no one came forward to lead and enthuse the people. Some months after this, Mr. Marshall made a trip through the mining towns, selling his photograph for 50 cents. He did not then appear to be in a feeble condition, but looked as though he had seen some hard times.

Fires Bring Heavy Losses.

January 8, in the Mechanics Pavilion, San Francisco, a championship game of billiards for the diamond cue was played by Cyrille Dion and John Deery, the two most noted billiardists in the United States. It was the American four-ball pocket game of 2,000 points, and lasted nearly six hours. A big crowd of women and men spectators watched the exciting contest as first one and then the other player, by making a large run, alternated in the lead.

At the end of the one hundred and third inning Dion had scored 1,970 and Deory 1,800 points. Deery then made a run of 187; Dion followed with a miss, and Deery ran the game out. The wildest excitement prevailed amongst the spectators, many acting as if they had lost their wits, trying to kiss Deery and carrying him about on their shoulders.

Another match, of 1,500 points, was played January 23 before a large audience, whose admission fee of $1 each went to the orphan asylums of San Francisco and netted a large sum. Dion won the match, Deery being decidedly out of luck, the balls breaking badly for him, and he scored but 592 points.

The mining town of Laporte, Plumas County, was the first to go up in smoke and down in ashes this year. January 11 about twenty buildings were burned, and a $40,000 loss reported.

M. C. Phipps' store at Bloomfield, Sonoma County, was destroyed by fire January 12, with a $7,000 loss.

San Jose's Chinatown burned January 14, and over 1,000 Chinese were made homeless.

A fire January 23 in Vallejo destroyed several houses and caused a $15,000 loss.

January 28, on Alviso street, Los Angeles, part of a business block burned with a $70,000 loss.

Great excitement prevailed in San Francisco, January 24 and several days afterwards, due to the finding of the dead body of a little girl about 7 years old named Maggie Ryan, under a building at the corner of Drumm and Pacific streets. She had been outraged, murdered, and the shoes stolen from her feet. From information given by a small boy the next day, of the suspicious actions of a young man named Quinn employed in a butcher shop, he, after a long chase over and under the wharves in that neighborhood, was apprehended and several hours afterwards confessed committing the horrible crime.

Plumas Presents "Some" Duck Story.

Over 2,000 angry men gathered about the city jail and for several hours made demands for Quinn, intending to lynch him. Lacking a leader, they were finally induced to disperse. More than 6,000 men and women attended the funeral services of the unfortunate little girl. The parents were in poor circumstances, and the people liberally contributed toward their relief.

At Port Wine, Sierra County, January 25, in the Union mine Edward Reynolds and Alex. La Deuke were caved upon in a drift and killed.

Captain D. G. Whitney, the agent of the Steam Navigation Company at Sacramento, January 21, while walking from the steamboat landing at the foot of "K" street, was struck by a flat car being switched in the Sacramento Valley Railroad yard and had a leg so badly crushed at the thigh that he soon died from the injury. He came to California in 1849 from Quincy, Illinois, and had long been prominent in steamboat life. He was 61 years of age.

Otis Swett, 14 years old, went hunting with another lad up Islais Creek, San Francisco, January 29. Taking a small boat, while the other lad rowed he stood up holding a loaded gun which was accidentally discharged, tearing the palm of his hand into shreds and seriously injuring his left eye.

Sarah Morris, a Jewess 17 years old, in San Francisco awoke the morning of January 19 with a slight pain in her eyes. In a short time she became totally blind. The oculists of the city could not relieve her, and she was sent to Berlin for expert treatment.

A hunter in Plumas County, shooting ducks at Big Meadows, got excited at the approach of a large flock as he was loading his gun and left the ramrod in one barrel. He fired both barrels of the gun into the flock, killing seventeen ducks. When the ramrod dropped to the ground it had twelve ducks strung along it, says the report.

James Bohman, a miner employed in the Allison Ranch mine, near Grass Valley, Nevada County, January 12, while tamping a charge of Haeffnager powder in a drill hole, caused a premature discharge. Both his eyes were destroyed and his face and hands were shockingly burned.

A man named Miller, on Mill Creek, Plumas County, one night heard a commotion in his henhouse. Investigating in the dark, he found an animal therein which he thought was a fox. He grasped it by the throat and choked it to death. In the morning he found he had killed a big wild cat.

An ex-soldier without arms, who had a boy hired to grind an organ on the street corners of San Francisco while he made collections, surprised the citizens by eloping with and marrying a 17-year-old maiden.

BEAUTY'S DEATH RECALLS TRAGEDY

San Francisco press dispatches of October 12 announced the death in that city, at the age of 82, of Laura D. Fair-Snyder. She was in the early days regarded as the most beautiful woman in California, but had a stormy career. Her first husband, William D. Fair, a former attorney and sheriff of Siskiyou County, committed suicide in San Francisco in 1860. In 1869, she wedded a man named Snyder, but after a few months he obtained a divorce.

Laura D. Fair-Snyder was a Southern woman, tall and stately, and in her younger days beautiful of face and form. Shortly after the death of Fair, she appeared on the stage in a stock company, finally going to Virginia City, Nevada, where she established a private boarding and rooming house, which became the home of a number of Southern men, among them A. P. Crittenden, with whom, because of their mutual sympathies with the Southern cause, an intimacy was begun. Accumulating some $80,000, the Widow Fair removed to San Francisco, where she lived elegantly, while her relations with Crittenden became public gossip. In 1869, he desired to cease his attentions to her, with the result that, after several months of stormy interviews, all the vengeance of a woman scorned culminated in a tragedy that caused the people of the state to stand agape.

The evening of November 3, 1870, A. P. Crittenden, a prominent San Francisco attorney, met his wife, son and daughter on their arrival from the East, by train, at Oakland Pier, and escorted them upon the ferryboat "El Capitan," where, just as they were seated on the upper deck, Mrs. Fair-Snyder, heavily veiled, walked to the side of Crittenden and, applying an epithet, shot him in the left side with a pistol, inflicting a wound that caused his death two days later. Dropping her pistol, the woman rushed to the other end of the boat, where she was taken in custody in a hysterical condition. The man sank to the floor of the deck and was carried to a room, while consternation prevailed on the boat.

A. P. Crittenden was a member of the noted Crittenden family of Kentucky, nationally prominent. He was a graduate of West Point, but preferred the law to a military career, was admitted to the bar, and came to California in 1850. He was a member of the law firm of Wilson & Crittenden; giving special attention to land titles, they gained a name and wealth in their profession. He was 58 years of age, and was appointed by Governor Haight, November 1, 1870, as Supreme Court reporter, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his brother-in-law, Tod Robinson, who died in October. During the Comstock excitement, Crittenden went to Virginia City to attend to legal business and was there most of his time for two or three years, and it was during his sojourn there that he became acquainted and infatuated with Mrs. Fair.

For several years after the tragedy, Mrs. Fair-Snyder was the subject of much newspaper notoriety, and during her different trials for the killing of Crittenden columns were filled with her doings. She was finally acquitted of the murder charge by the verdict of what a newspaper wit called a "fair" jury. The defense of her life took nearly all her wealth, and she soon afterwards dropped out of sight.

HOW TO MARKET VEGETABLES.

The principal methods used successfully by California vegetable-growers in marketing and selling their vegetables are outlined in a University of California circular entitled "Methods for Marketing Vegetables in California," published by the University Press, which is obtainable free by writing the College of Agriculture, University of California, Berkeley.

Details of the methods used by growers of small as well as large gardens are thoroughly outlined in the publication, part of which is devoted to a discussion of the establishment of vegetable-growers' organizations.

Receipts Grow—Including December 12, the State Auto Vehicle Department receipts for 1919 totaled $4,412,567.57, an increase of $898,370.43 for a corresponding period in 1918; 460,411 autos were registered.

Irrigation District Voted—Merced County has voted to form an irrigation district of 173,000 acres; about $5,000,000 will be required to finance the irrigation project, and a bond election will be held.

Auto Exhibit—Oakland will stage an Auto Show in its Civic Auditorium, January 19-26.

Acres of Prunes—A mill is under construction at Pixley to manufacture products from 800 acres of encalyptus in Tulare County; during the 1918-19 season, 1,800 acres were planted to prunes in this county.

Almonds by Thousands—Much building activity is reported from the old City of Monterey; in the southern end of the county, 140,000 almond trees will be set out this spring.

For Redwood Park—Humboldt County has purchased forty acres of redwoods which, it is hoped, will some day be part of a national redwood park; 340 acres have now been acquired; state aid is to be asked to acquire additional acreage.

Vegetables for East—Bonds of nearly $5,000,000 have been voted for reclamation work in the Sutter Basin of Sutter County; 60,000 acres already reclaimed are to be planted exclusively to vegetables for Eastern markets.

Big Orange Crop—Butte County reports a larger orange crop for 1919 than the year previous; Butte oranges are the first to ripen in California, and bring fancy prices in the markets at the Christmas season.

Tractor Short Course—At the Riverside Citrus Experiment Station, February 23 to 28, the University of California will conduct a tractor short course. Enrollment is limited to 180, and the course will be open to both owners and operators of tractors. According to the university, there are 14,600 tractors in use in California.

Poppy Island—Santa Catalina will be a garden of blossoming poppies soon, a half-ton of California's golden-poppy seed having been strewn broadcast over the island.

Bonds for Schools—Bakersfield has voted $200,000 bonds for additional high-school buildings.

Flower Festival—Sacramento has arrangements well under way for a week's flower and song festival, to open on May Day.

Good Land—1,289 acres of San Joaquin County land recently were sold at $300 an acre; six years before, the same tract sold for less than $150 an acre.

National Parks Attract—More autoists visited California's national parks last year than ever before. Yosemite had 42,900 motor visitors, the Sequoia National Park 30,433, and the General Grant National Park 21,574.

Has Commerce Chamber—A chamber of commerce, with W. W. Moore as secretary, has been organized at Pittsburg, a hustling Contra Costa County city.

Some Pears—El Dorado County, noted for its luscious pears, sends out this report from a Camino orchard: 2,100 boxes of Bartlett pears from 710 trees and 364 boxes of Winter Nelis pears from 95 trees.

Wealth From Trees—Orange County's 1919 citrus crop brought approximately $15,000,000 and its walnut crop $5,000,000 to the growers.

Two More Factories—Oakland, a city of numerous industries, has added two additional large factories—one to manufacture woolen goods and the other tin cans.

Millions in Buildings—Los Angeles' 1919 building record will eclipse all previous years, the permits including December 12 totaling $26,120,516; in 1918, for the same period, they reached $8,351,048.

Maintains Supremacy—San Francisco, when all the 1919 bank clearances are tabulated, will remain far in the lead as the Pacific Coast commercial metropolis; its clearings alone will total millions more than all other cities combined.

Highway Bonds—During December, citizens of Butte County voted $1,800,000 good-roads bonds, and those of San Luis Obispo County voted $1,500,000 for a like purpose.

To Can Milk—At Gustine, Merced County, $250,000 is being spent on a plant for the canning of milk.

Big Year—Long Beach's 1919 building record will exceed all previous years; it may reach $7,000,000.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

COSTUMING, SINCE THE WAR, REflects something of the upheaval of the social conditions, and in consequence one sees the most extravagant and impossible kinds of clothes alongside of those which are both elegant and in keeping with traditional good taste as formerly engendered by French art and skill. The bizzare sensational and even tawdry creations have spread across the ocean, but American buyers and seekers of inspirational ideas for women will have none of these.

Nothing, so far, has supplanted the favored, practical, one piece daytime dress of serge, tricotine, satin, or tricolette. Some models are shown, also, in silk jersey, which retains its limited popularity. A good deal of color is introduced in embroidery facings. Vestees of braid designs, which are quite plain as to cut, are often much elaborated with all-over embroidery in over-and-over stitch. Machine ornamentation of this kind is coming to notice in high-class garments. It is said that most women are not willing to do the great amount of handwork for dresses which they formerly did.

Great popularity is accorded suits of semi-sports character, which are worn for informal street or country uses. Plain cloth jackets with plaid pleated skirts, or even with the narrow plaid skirts, are much used. Some times such combination suits disclose a vestee of bright-color silk or kid to match one color of the plaid or else to introduce the desirable gay color note of the hour. Gilets of suede or kid with or without embroidery, and others of elaborate brocaded silk or ribbon in tinsel effects, are smart accessories of otherwise somber suits. There is a fine line of distinction to be drawn between the use of sports clothes and accessories in their proper places. The lure of sports clothes for winter and resort wear is strong for those who do not indulge in travel or sports at this time.

Two and three piece velvet suits are growing in favor for elegant afternoon occasions, and velveteen is also in favor for suits and dresses.

Indications are that fuller skirts will be in vogue for spring and summer dresses, which will be made of thin or supple material. If one accepts the proffered models of some designers for evening attire, her raiment will be astonishingly scant above the waist, though it may extend widely at the sides of the skirt, or fall in becoming long lines.

When classic ideas are the inspiration in day dresses, they seem to economize on materials by making sleeves which do not reach the elbow. You or I do not discover that the bill for such frocks is any less, but we do find that in addition we have to pay for long kid gloves to wear with those dresses. Gorgeous metallic brocades, cloths and laces of gold worthy of a king, rich velvets, costly laces, and priceless furs are the significant factors in the fashionable wardrobe of the hour.

The problems of dress concern the contour and the cost. While one may satisfy her choice as to the former, she seems helpless about the latter under existing circumstances.

Individuality is the keynote in the choice of one's evening gowns. Gorgeous colorings, glistening metal cloths and laces, glittering beads and sequins and sparkling jewels are mingled in dazzling effects at public or private gatherings.

Quaint models for youthful dancers are made up in beautiful changeable soft taffeta with lace or net, and silk pleatings or ruchings on the skirt, outlining a flaring tunic or pannier overskirt. Tulle is used with colored metal cloth, and garlands of flowers, small nosegays or bandings of ostrich feathers trim these in unusual ways. One sleeveless evening dress is made of black chiffon velvet with lace tunic having two rows of white monkey fur used as fringe.

Evening gowns for mature women tend to the draped effects, with long lines in train adjuncts to make up for the drapery which is certain to be seen on the hips or lower at the sides. The extremely decollete models are almost guiltless of any back covering, save straps of beads or jet to hold the bodice on the shoulders.

Girdles of beads or braid, strands of ribbon pleated together, and also colored linked chains, have innumerable uses with slip-over blouses and dresses with fulness to be confined ever so slightly at the waist. Wide suede girdles are a later edict than the tiny kid and patent-leather belts much used with dresses and coats. It is the little things that count in style importance, as well as in money, this season, but they are the needful accessories to complete the fashionable outfit at every hour of the day. There are novel sports blouses of very light-weight brushed wool with fancy waistcoat effect and fringed bottom.

How charmingly becoming are children's fashions this season—so lovely, so quaint. There is something about them suggestive of the picturesque little frocks of nursery rhyme character, and especially do bonnets and hats display this trend. A witching little set has a hat of flesh-colored velvet with shirred crown, a long, long streamer and deep band-brim of rich beaver fur. Another such bonnet is of shirred white satin with band of flesh-colored satin adorned with tiny ermine tails.

The step between baby days and childhood is very gracefully taken in a smart bonnet of white silk with velvet ribbon rolled around and ending in a looped streamer. When a youthful miss aspires to a smart black velvet coat, mother will find the hat a most effective compliment to the costume.

Designers of blouses have invented styles beyond belief, almost, even in the opinion of those who are well versed in their history. A new conceit is a casque blouse of metal cloth embroidered with gold and brown floss. It has the "Frenchy" short sleeves and square neck, and is buttoned under the arm. For dressy wear with velvet or duvetyn suits, this elegant blouse ranks with other new designs of dark-colored chiffon over cloth of gold or silver with colored bead and tinsel embroidery.

Others disclose charming conventions in chenille and bead embroidery. Still other very smart blouses with long peplums are made of georgette crepe with heavy wool embroidery. Angora wool on navy or taupe is much admired.

"Airy nothings," added to the blouse classification, are hand-made combinations of embroidered fine white or cream net with filet lace and insertions. Most elaborate designs in flowers and conventions put these fascinating waists in the exculsive set. Irish crochet and other all lace blouses are coming in.

Silk and bead tassels have new uses. Sometimes they are placed at regular intervals on a plain waist or tunic overdress.

Shoes must come in for their share of importance, and while on the subject of individual comfort, who will not welcome the news that the shoe shop specializes in the very oddest and most difficult sizes? Isn't that a joyful revelation? Think how few of us really find a perfect fit in shoes, but must be content to do the best we can. These shoes are all handmade and they display their exclusiveness at every turn.

The new buckskin models, which will be popular for midwinter, range in price from twelve to twenty dollars for high boots. Very smart walking shoes come in Russian calf, black kid or suede. One of the season's neatest pumps comes in black and bronze; it is handmade, of course, and only the finest leather is used.

Iridescent, bronze and cut-steel buckles are stylish. The sheer lace and embroidered stockings to match are worn with the low shoes.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS ENTERTAIN SERVICE MEN

San Francisco—Thanksgiving Day was the occasion for a pleasant gathering at the N.D.G.W. Home Club, when five war heroes were the guests of honor. A turkey dinner, with the etceteras, was enjoyed by fourteen, including the "soldier boys," whose enjoyment and appreciation of the "Home" atmosphere was evidenced by their spending the evening with the Native Daughters, who entertained them with music, dancing, games and cards. Holly berries and ferns had been contributed toward the decorations by Sisters Dellwig and Odell, also by Brother Wilkinson of Calistoga, while the turkey was made possible by a five-dollar contribution from Grand President Mary E. Bell.

As one of the "boys" expressed it, and the sentiment was echoed by all, "May the Native Daughters Home Club live forever." The menu consisted of: vegetable soup, tomato salad, olives, celery, roast turkey, roast pork, cranberry sauce, spinach, boiled onions, mashed potatoes, rolls, mince pie, cake, coffee, nuts, raisins, fruit. From the guests, Past Grand President Clara K. Wittenmyer, secretary of the Home, received this letter of appreciation:

Miss C. K. Wittenmyer,
1052 Jackson street,
San Francisco, California.

Dear Madam:

We, the undersigned, patients of the Letterman General Army Hospital, wish to express our thanks to the Native Daughters, and in particular to Matron Miss Lucy Condrin of the Native Daughters Home and her assistants, Misses Emma Dellwig, Grace Williams, Edith Odell, Mary McLaughlin, Vesta Ludwig, Adele Calanan, and Miss Dellwig's father, Theo. Dellwig, age 87, who was just as young and happy as any of us, all of whom entertained us at the Home at 555 Baker street on Thanksgiving Day.

We also wish to state that it has been the best reception that we have attended since our stay in San Francisco, and that the Native Daughters are "right there" at cooking up a Thanksgiving dinner for a bunch of hungry soldiers.

Hoping that this will be published in your magazine [The Grizzly Bear], so that the Native Daughters all over the state will know that their sisters in San Francisco are right on top at entertaining the returned soldiers, we remain,

Sincerely yours,

A Real Christmas Party.

Oakland—Argonaut 166 entertained Grand President Mary E. Bell, December 16, and she, in turn, truly entertained the members of the Parlor. The Christmas spirit was everywhere—in the six little decorated Christmas trees at the altar and several stations, in the beautiful big Christmas tree all sparkling with tinsel and blue and ruby lights, in the glow of the Christmas berries and the festoons of crimson. It was alive, this Christmas spirit, in the face of the Grand President and in her kindly and interesting talk to the "girls"; and it was kept aglow in the hearts of the sisters and visiting members by the words of Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty and Grand Marshal Dr. Vietory Derrick and District Deputy Grand President Morrison. The Past Grand Presidents who honored Argonaut by their presenee—Sisters Addie Mosher, Margaret Hill, Ariana Stirling and Emma Humphrey—told of enjoying not alone the very attractive Christmas decorations, but the spirit of harmony and understanding which seemed to pervade the Parlor. The visiting members, whom Argonaut was glad to welcome, felt the "Peace on earth and good will to men," and enjoyed the baby stockings of eandy made by Argonaut's treasurer, Mamie Behan, whieb a really rolly-polly Santa Claus in the shape (I use this disereetly) of Agnes Osborne, trustee of Argonaut, distributed from ber paek, after a few remembrances to Grand President Bell and visiting grand officers had been graeiously delivered and accepted.

Ada Spilman was warmly eomplimented for her business-like way of attending to the very important duties of seeretary and for the intelligent reading of Grand President Bell's Christmas message, wbich made it a pleasure to the listeners. Past President Clara Peralta was sincerely praised (and the speaker's words found an echo in every Argonaut heart) for the beautiful way in which she gave the past president's eharge. All of the officers came in for their share of compliments on their presentation of the work. The presideut, for the first time in her life, learned that tbere existed such a thing as Christmas "hammers," and that the Past Grand Presidents knew well how to use tbem.

The members of Argonaut had an awfully good time, the visiting members declared that they did, and the Past Grand Presidents reiterated tbe statement in their dignified addresses to those present.

YOUR BEST FRIEND IS MONEY IN BANK

A Bank Account, steadily growing by accretions of interest, steadily increasing by systematic deposits—this is the basis of real independence.

"Opportunity," said the richest man in the world, "is a word which means nothing except to those who have money in hand with which to use it."

The way to get a Bank Account is to open one—ONE DOLLAR is enough. Then make it a habit to deposit, steadily, persistently, a part of what you earn—FIRST—before you spend it for something else.

GRAND PARLOR
NATIVE DAUGHTERS GOLDEN WEST
Mary E. Bell, Grand President
San Francisco, December 5, 1919.

Christmas Greetings

To the Subordinate Parlors,
Native Daughters of the Golden West.
Dear Sisters:

The great Christian festival will soon be here.

"God is not dead; nor doth He sleep;
The wrong shall fail,
The right prevail,
With peace on earth, good will to men."

What can be done to vitalize the Christmas spirit? I would suggest that we endeavor to keep alive the former spirit of faith, the spirit which made the great Christmas of the golden days, founded on the eonviction that good will among men is a prime necessity of reasonable living.

If good will ean be eonsciously increased the festival of Christmas will eease to be perfunctory. We can best belp the eultivation of good will by eultivating it in our own hearts. We must learn to prize our fellow man for what be is and not for what he has.

If we could but learn to know tbat our only real possessions are spiritual and the best manifestation of them is our readiness to lift a little of the heavy burden of life from some joyless, overburdened soul, we would indeed vitalize tbe Christmas spirit. After all, life reciproeates with those who do unto others as they would that others do unto them.

There is a divine reason in humanity whieh makes it amenable to the kingly sway of sincerity, reality and righteousness. No matter bow fortunate or unfortunate we may be, Christmas sbould be a time for rejoicing. We eannot forget that the hour led to the coming of Cbrist to this earth. He came as the great leveler. It was His mission to inculeate a doctrine that would destroy despotism and injustice.

As we approaeh this holy season let the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West be happy in the thought of good deeds accomplished during the year, marking an epoeh in wbieh much has been realized toward the eompletion of projeets undertaken by the Order and resolve to work with renewed energy during the eoming year.

Let us ever be mindful of the principles upon whieh our great organization was founded. It is my earnest hope tbat we will ever be guided by Divine light and, as Children of God, eonsecrate our work in the furtherance of service to the Order. As we go forward into the New Year let it be with His guidance and blessing with suffieient light to see, with strength to do and a love that shall prove itself in sacrifice.

My thoughts go out to every member of the Order this happy Christmas tide, wishing you joy in all your deeds, wisdom for your work, peace for your pathways and love to the last, I am,

Sincerely and fraternally yours in P. D. F. A.,

Mary E. Bell,
Grand President,
Native Daughters Golden West.

Attest: Seal.

Past Grand President Humphrey said it certainly was "some" show; Past Grand President Stirling said she infinitely preferred it to an attaek of influenza; Past Grand President Mosber said she always loved to visit Argonaut, and while ice eream and eake were good, sbe liked banquets better—the kind she had preached for during war time; Past Grand President Hill said things were a little more according to Hoyle tban when she paid ber last visit. "Mother" Jennie Brown stated that she had seen her ehildren behave better, and spoke of sparing the rod having its effeet upon the ehildren's conduet. There was a spirit of merriment, no one could deny it, but after all did any one fail to feel the deeper side of friendship and loyalty and pleasurable eompanionsbip?

To see and hear the dignified, fine-looking, capable women who hold the high positions in our Grand Parlor is an inspiration and an incentive to those of us who need, ofttimes, a greater impetus to infinence tbe many fine California women to join our Order and to spread the gospel of the real worthwhile projeets we are interested in, and suecessfully earrying on.—One Present.

Vietory Parlor Instituted.

Courtland—Victory, No. 216, the baby Parlor, was instituted bere November 22, in Native Sons Hall, with thirty charter members. Grand President Mary E. Bell officiated, and was assisted by Grand Seeretary Aliee H. Dougherty, Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, Sue J. Irwin (Berkeley 150) as grand marshal, and Lillus Kelley (Calistoga 145). The officers installed included: Carol M. Dye, P.P.; Mary J. Martin, P.; Etbel M. Miller, 1V.P.; Bessie E. Green, 2V.P.; B. Doris Fisher, 3V.P.; Alicia E. Buckley, R.S.; Adele I. Dean, F.S.; Pauline E. Miller, T.; Henrietta Wilson, M.; Doris Wraa, I.S.; Agneda Lample, O.S.; Daisy K. Dobbins, Sarah Miller, Addie Beacon, Trs.

After midnight a banquet was served to the new Parlor and its guests by Courtland 106, N.S.G.W. J. B. Miller presided as toastmaster, and ealled on all the Native Daughter grand offieers, as well as Joseph Berry, George C. Dobbins, J. A. Flinn (Berkeley 210) and George Wilson, who responded with well-wishes for the new Parlor, also words of praise for the Courtland Native Sons as eooks. Mary J. Martin, the president, thanked the grand offieers and Native Sons for tbeir help and co-operation in organizing the Parlor. During the evening, Grand President Bell was presented with a glass Freneh dressing bottle by Victory Parlor, and all the grand officers were presented with beautiful bouquets of flowers by Courtland Parlor of Native Sons.

Visits Home Parlor.

San Franeisco—Grand President Mary E. Bell offieially visited her home Parlor, Buena Vista 68, November 20, and was presented with band-embroidered table eloth and napkins. The hall was prettily deeorated with Ameriean flags and floral bells. Among the speakers of the evening, in addition to the Grand President, were Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs, Grand Marshal Dr. Vietory A. Derrick, D.D.G.P. Elizabeth Muller, Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola and Past Grand President Genevieve Watson Baker. A collation was served at the meeting's close.

Makes Goodly Sum at Dance.

Marysville—At a reeent meeting of Marysville 162, the president, a bride, was presented with silverware, and D.D.G.P. Esther Sullivan witb a brass eandlestick. Each member brought a woman friend, and the evening ended with a "higb jinks" and banquet.

A public danee netted the Parlor $98.50. Cornstalks, greens and flowers were used in the decorations. The greens were interwoven with poppies, and the lights were covered with yellow erepe paper. Merriment was added to the occasion by the fortune telling of two "gypsies."

In Old Tuolumne.

Sonora—Members of Dardanelle 66 gatbered in full force reeently to welcome Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Franeiseo on her offieial visit. After the transaction of business, Mrs. Bell was presented with a handsome souvenir pin of Old Tuolumne gold, as a token of the members' love and esteem. The presentation speech was made by Mrs. H. Doyle, and the reeipient gratefully acknowledged tbe gift.

Prior to a banquet which eoneluded the festivities, eards were enjoyed. Mrs. Mary E. Gorgas won first prize, a fancy basket filled with almonds, and Mrs. E. Burden, the eonsolation, a handsome dish.

Entertains Sons.

Byron—Donner 193 gave a Hallowe'en party in honor of the members of Byron 170, N.S.G.W. The evening was spent at games and whist, for which prizes were awarded. At midnigbt refreshments were served in the banquet-room, which was eleverly and appropriately decorated.

Initiates First Native Daughter.

Nevada City—A feature of tbe offieial visit of Grand President Mary E. Bell to Laurel 6, December 3, was the initiation of Mrs. Mary O'Brien, the first wbite child born in this eity; sbe is a resident of Redlands, but was bere on a visit to relatives. Accompanying the Grand President, was Past Grand President Alison F. Watt of Grass Valley. The ritual was faultlessly exemplified, and in her address Mrs. Bell eongratulated the officers and eomplimented Laurel as the seeond largest Parlor in tbe Order. The Grand President was the recipient of a beautiful nugget pin of native quartz, and Mrs. Watt and Mrs. O'Brien were remembered with gifts.

Previous to the meeting, an elaborate ten-course dinner at a local hotel was tendered Grand President Bell, Past Grand President Watt and other guests. Mrs. Martha Lane presided as hostess.

Play Whist to Help Children.

Elk Grove—Liberty 213, gave a card party during November for the purpose of raising money for the homeless children. Progressive whist was the game, twenty-two tables being filled. After the prizes were awarded all went to the banquet-hall, where a delicious lunch was served by the committee on "eats." Mrs. Geo. Rhodes captured first prize for the women; three tied for the second prize, but Crudythe Wackman drew the lucky number so took it; Jack de Roza won the men's first prize, the second was awarded to Lee Castello, and "booby" prizes went to May Ring and Clarence Polhemus. The door prize, a fine thermos bottle, was won by Mrs. Vernon Coons. The net proceeds were about thirty five dollars.

Children's day was most fittingly observed by Liberty 213 and Elk Grove 41, N.S.G.W., December 12. It was the regular meeting night for both Parlors, but the business was soon gone through with. A big Christmas tree, beautifully decorated and lighted by colored electric lights, occupied one corner of the hall. A pleasing and appropriate program was given by the children, as follows: "Star Spangled Banner," audience; recitation, Howard Kerby, Jr.; piano solo, Olive Ehrhardt; vocal duet, Beatrice Edgington and Lowell Coons; a scene from the Ruggles family, Mrs. Harry Markofer and a group of boys and girls; song, Dorothy and Nell Johnson; piano solo, Orion Kerby; song, Lowell Coons; folk dance, boys and girls from Franklin School; piano solo, Henrietta Ehrhardt; recitation, Crudythe Wackman; darkey song, boys and girls from Victory School.

Suddenly with a biff, bing, hang, horns, bells and all, old Santa Claus (Andy Elliott) came dashing into the hall; he had a bag of candy and nuts for each kiddie, and then followed the distribution of presents, there being one for every child. An immense fruit cake, baked by one of Elk Grove's most famous chefs, Mrs. Dell Cann, was raffled, Mr. Rice holding the lucky number. Over one hundred kiddies were seated at the first table, and as the Native Daughters and Native Sons looked at the happy, smiling faces as the cake and sandwich plates were emptied, they felt amply repaid. The parents and other guests were seated at the second and third tables, and still there was plenty to eat.

All departed declaring the Native Daughters and Native Sons excellent hostesses and hosts, and hoped children's day would be observed again next year. A great deal of credit is due the following, who served on the joint committee: Elizabeth Foulks, Helen Castello, Belle Bradford, Blanche Hooper, Kathryn Martin, Anna Kerby, Francis Ring, Fred Mix, Ed. Polhemus, Howard Kerby and Russel Bond.

Many Assemble to Greet Grand President.

Oakland—A large number of members of Brooklyn 157 were present to greet Grand President Mary E. Bell on the occasion of her official visit, November 19, and also to honor the Parlor's poetess, Mrs. Gabriel Furlong Butler. The occasion also served to bring together the local members of the Order, nearly all the Parlors in Oakland being represented, as well as some of those across the bay. Among the grand officers assembled to greet the much-loved head of the Order were Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs, Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty and D.D.G.P. Gertrude Morrison. The lodge-room was a scene of beauty, being decorated with madrone berries and red roses, plentifully refreshened with greenery.

The ritual was well rendered. Naturally, the address of Grand President Bell concerned the Order's problems, her main topic being the membership, which she desires to see increased; at the conclusion of her address, she read from The September Grizzly Bear Gabriel Furlong Butler's "Thirty first Star." The Grand President, D.D.G.P. Morrison and Poetess Butler were presented by the Parlor with beautiful pieces of hand-painted china. A banquet concluded the successful evening, the festive hall being beautifully decorated with red roses and red bells.

Won Hearts of All.

Vallejo—Vallejo 195 recently enjoyed a very pleasant visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco. Two candidates were initiated, the officers giving their charges in a very pleasing and impressive manner. President Cora Sauels, on behalf of the Parlor, presented the Grand President with a fountain pen. Mrs. Bell gave a splendid talk on the workings of the Order, and won the hearts of all members present.

A banquet followed the business of the evening, the banquet-hall being prettily decorated with asparagus ferns and poppies.

Santa Pays Annual Visit.

Hollister—Santa Clans, with his pack well filled with gifts, paid his annual visit to Copa de Oro 105, December 12, when the members held their usual Christmas "high jinks." From a tree prettily decorated with glittering ornaments and strings of colored electric lights, Santa Clans (Elsie Poage in everyday life) distributed toys, candy bags and fruit. All entered into the spirit of the occasion with the enthusiasm of childhood, and many "stunts" were performed for the entertainment of those present.

During the business session, two candidates were initiated. Twenty dollars, derived from the recent card tourney, was donated to the homeless children fund. A committee was appointed to sell Christmas seals December 15. The Parlor decided to revive the question of a county ambulance, which was started by the Native Daughters and Native Sons several years ago, but which has lain dormant for some time on account of war conditions. With a nucleus of $450, the Parlors, assisted by the women's club and other organizations, hope to be able to complete the project in a short time.

An Evening of Action.

Sonoma—Sonoma 209's meeting November 24 was brimful of action—Grand President Mary E. Bell paid her official visit, a candidate was initiated, the president (Mrs. Amy Engler Drake, a recent bride), was showered with numerous lovely gifts, and a banquet was given in honor of the guests, who included the Grand President, Past Grand President Margaret Grote Hill of San Francisco and D.D.G.P. Veda Vollers of San Rafael.

In the banquet-room, the tables were artistically decorated with chrysanthemums, and a feast of turkey and all accessories was enjoyed. In the course of her address, Grand President Bell highly complimented the Parlor's corps of officers.

Presented With Members' Handwork.

San Francisco—December 17, Grand President Mary E. Bell paid an official visit to Golden State 50, where she was extended a most cordial welcome. The hall was beautifully decorated with ferns and red bells, small electric lights of various colors being interspersed among the greens, reminding one of the coming Christmas season. There were present, besides the guest of honor, Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, Past Grand President May C. Boldemann, D.D.G.P. May S. Noble, and representatives from twenty Parlors.

Five candidates were initiated, and the Grand President complimented the officers for their perfect rendition of the ritualistic work. Mrs. Bell was the recipient of a beautiful set of linen, consisting of tablecloth and one dozen napkins, with crocheted border, the handwork of members of the Parlor. At the close of the meeting a repast was served in the banquet-hall, where a small Christmas tree made a very pretty centerpiece for the table.

Entertain Service Men.

Woodland—Woodland 90, assisted by Woodland 30, N.S.G.W., added another mark of favor to its record as an entertainer December 4, when scores of service-men were guests at an open meeting of the Parlor. The entertainment features were fully up to the standard set by the Parlor for past affairs of like nature.

Preparatory to the reception of the honor guests, the hall had been tastefully decorated with pepper and smilax, and the dining room was a bower of greenery. The supper was one of the features of an altogether pleasant evening. The refreshment committee was composed of Mesdames Zimmerman, F. Weider, C. Simpson, G. Worley, Irene Fox, Lillie Kollo, while on the entertainment committee were Mesdamos Enstis, Woods, Chalmers and Kinkade.

Celebrates Eleventh Anniversary.

Oakland—A turkey feast was served to the members of Bahia Vista 167 last month, when the Parlor's birthday was celebrated. Several of the charter members were present, and also the members of other Parlors who officiated at the institution. The minutes of the first meeting were read, and it was noted that the late Past Grand President Anna Lacy was then Grand Marshal and assisted in the ceremonies. Several other sisters then present have answered the roll call from on high.

The banquet table was prettily decorated in green and red, and a beautiful white birthday cake, holding eleven lighted candles, occupied the place of honor in the center of the table. Sister Buss acted as chef, and had charge of the culinary division of the entertainment, and right well did she perform the task alloted to her as was evidenced by the amount of attention paid to the viands set before the guests. Sister Thomsen had charge of the decorations and speeches, which were enjoyed by all. It might be mentioned that it is the custom in the Parlor for all members to take note of their birthdays by depositing in a box, pennies equivalent to their years. After the "feed" three of the members loyally deposited their allotments, counting aloud as the pennies fell; and, let it be whispered, it was no small sum. The Parlor is going to make a strong pull for the fifty dollars promised to the working Parlors by the Grand President.

Raising Funds for Worthy Cause.

Sutter Creek—Amapola 80 is raising a fund to be used to restore the graves of Pioneers in the local cemetery. To aid in the cause, a large Christmas cake, baked by Mrs. Frances Williams, a charter member, was disposed of.

Injured by Auto.

San Francisco—Past Grand President Clara K. Wittenmyer was seriously injured recently by a careless auto driver, but is now well on the way to recovery.

Initiates Pioneer Descendant.

Long Beach—Long Beach 154 initiated Kitty Breen-Warner, December 12; her father's uncle, Patrick Breen, was a member of the ill-fated Donner Party which crossed the plains in 1846, while her father came a few years later. Among the members present were Mrs. Harper, who has recovered from a recent illness, and her daughter, Mrs. Fay, of Ontario.

Several additional applications were received. January 9, the newly-elected officers will be installed. Miss Marie McFadyen, daughter of Secretary Kate McFadyen and a member of the Parlor, came home from the State University at Berkeley to spend the holidays. From the Monrovia home of Mrs. Mabel Thompson, a member, has come word of the arrival of a native daughter.

Grand President Visits Grass Valley.

Grass Valley—Manzanita 29, the home Parlor of Past Grand President Alison F. Watt, was officially visited by Grand President Mary E. Bell, December 3, when officers were chosen, Rita Fuller being elected president. A large delegation of Laurel Parlor members were present from Nevada City. The Parlor voted to purchase Red Cross Christmas seals to the amount of $5.

Grand President Bell complimented the Parlor on its enthusiasm, and told the members of the Order's work. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Starts Whist Tourney.

Fort Bragg—Fort Bragg 210 gave the first of a series of whist parties December 4, and it was a pronounced success, sixty attending. Prizes were awarded as follows: Carl Bean first, Miss Lenora Clark second, Mrs. Guy Weller third, Mrs. A. H. Sweeney fourth, Miss Ida Gamberg "booby."

Score cards of each party will be kept, and at the tournament's end a special prize is to be awarded the one having the highest score in the tournament. Harvey Reynolds made strenuous efforts to capture the first prize, a goose, so as to maintain his reputation as a goose-hunter.

Masquerade Nets Over $200 for Homeless.

MAKE YOURS, NATIVE SONS, A WHITE MAN'S TOWN.

As briefly stated in The December Grizzly Bear would be done, Grand President William P. Caubu sent out a letter to all Subordinate Parlors requesting them to petition the Governor to call a special session of the California Legislature to pass needed State laws to block the Japs' "peaceful penetration" of California.

Accompanying Grand President Cauhu's letter was a copy of resolutions, directed to the Governor, prepared by the Home Industry Committee of the Grand Parlor, of which Clifton E. Brooks of Piedmont 120 (Oakland) is chairman. The Grizzly Bear is in receipt of information that practically all Parlors have petitioned the Governor to call the special session, and also that they have sent to California's representatives in Congress resolutions urging defeat of the Dillingham (Senate) and Gullick (House) hills that, if passed, will make the National Government a party to the "peaceful-acquisition"-of-California scheme of Japan.

So, the Subordinate Parlors have done all that can be done to get legislation, both by the Nation and State, to stamp out "Japanitis." But they can do very effective work themselves to combat the Japs, and keep within the law. And the Parlors should lose no time in getting to that work.

In every community, the Parlors should lead in the formation of organizations to deal with local conditions. This has been done in Los Angeles and San Francisco, with splendid results. And in the local organizations accept as members every man and woman who wants to do his or her bit to save California from the "yellow peril." Local action is necessary; make it so effective that the Japs will starve to death if they wait for the patronage of whites.

If, in every community, every white person can be pledged to DO WITHOUT RATHER THAN PURCHASE ANYTHING FROM AN ORIENTAL, the Japs' "peaceful invasion" will be turned into a peaceful exodus. The Native Sons Parlors can lead in this movement, and they will be doing a service to the state. MAKE YOURS A WHITE MAN'S TOWN!—C.M.H.

Big Valley a Hundred Percenter.

Bieber—The winter snow has not chilled the enthusiasm of the members of Big Valley 211 one bit; in fact, these "boys" away up in Lassen County keep the home fires burning so brightly all the time that they require an occasional cold spell to replenish their supply of "pep." December 9, the Parlor entertained the members of the recently-instituted Mount Lassen 215, N.D.G.W., and initiated a class of twenty-four, the largest in its history.

Many more eligibles had planned to come into the fold, but could not get to Bieber on account of weather conditions. Some of those who were initiated, however, autoed through six inches of snow, with the thermometer away below zero.

After the initiation, adjournment was taken to the town hall, rented for the evening by the Parlor, where a hundred sat down to one of the finest banquets ever spread in Bieber. The Native Daughters and a few invited guests were "counted in" on this feature.

Big Valley Parlor now has a membership of sixty, a membership gain of 100 percent for 1919. Secretary A. W. McKenzie says "We have just started. We will send two delegates to the San Diego Grand Parlor, and are out for a third delegate. Watch us grow!"

Holiday Greetings

December 19, 1919.

To the Officers and Members of
All Subordinate Parlors, N.S.G.W.
Dear Sirs and Brothers:

As the holidays draw near I am glad to send you my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

In our work as Native Sons I feel that we are closing a very active and successful year. To all of those who have been active in the accomplishments of the past year I express my sincere thanks. I trust that others will be imbued with their spirit and that the active members will increase two-fold in the coming year.

While some people may be inclined to forecast rather a gloomy future I want you all to be optimistic. We have passed through very trying times and have kept well ahead; we can always do that. Continue your work demonstrating your love of country and loyalty to California, and your prosperity for the New Year will be assured.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,

W. P. Caubu

Grand President, N.S.G.W.

Has Annual Whist.

Oakland—Piedmont 120 elected these officers December 4: George V. Manning, P.; Harold H. Flood, 1V.P.; William B. White, 2V.P.; Herman Hulen, 3V.P.; William Dunlap, Jr., M.; Robert Castro, I.S.; John J. Roach, O.S.; Dr. James C. S. Akerly, Dr. Charles D. Cobb, Sgns.; Edward Theile, Tr.; William Husing, O.; John Reali becomes senior past president and George W. Craddock junior past president.

The Parlor has petitioned the Governor to call a special Legislature session, in accordance with a concurrent resolution adopted hy the Legislature in special session November 1, to pass anti-Japanese legislation. December 11, the Parlor held its annual whist tourney; members only were in attendance. The committee in charge provided turkey prizes and special entertainment features.

Berkeley Ends Term Full of Activity.

Berkeley—The annual Christmas jinks of Berkeley 210, December 23, wound up the series of numerous activities for the term. Especially during the past month, has the Parlor been particularly active. December 2, a class initiation was held, at which time five candidates were initiated. It was voted at the meeting to re-subscribe to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for all the members. This action was taken in view of the return of all the members who were in service, for it was only during the period which the Parlor was paying the dues of the fifty-two members in service that the subscription to the magazine was discontinued.

December 9, the last of a series of monthly social dances was held in Native Sons Hall. To these dances during this term the members of Berkeley 150 and Bear Flag 151, N.D.G.W., were invited guests. December 16, the Parlor, with Berkeley Parlor of Native Daughters, held a turkey whist. Aside from turkey orders, wild ducks, chickens, merchandise orders and miscellaneous prizes were given for high scores. The prizes averaged one to every six players for more than thirty tables.

December 23, a class initiation was held, at which time five more candidates were initiated. Following the initiation the Christmas jinks held sway, at which merchandise orders and other prizes were given to the members present. The merchants donated prizes in the aggregate of $45 for this jinks and Santa Claus drew names for these prizes from the complete roster, but only those who were present when their names were called received them. Needless to say, the advertising of this fact stimulated attendance, for more than a hundred members took the winter's chill off the room and the heat was turned off everywhere but in the banquet-room, where it was necessary to have it so warm that the "feed" prepared for eighty would serve a hundred odd. Previous to the aforementioned Mexican "feed," the entertainment committee produced some darktown talent and three fast bouts, the latter proving to be real scraps, instead of boxing exhibitions.

No sooner had the Alameda County Homeless Children Committee announced it would place on sale the forty boxes of the Oakland Auditorium for the homeless children dance, than Berkeley Parlor bid for two at $10 each. Following this Brother Berry, a visitor from Courtland 106, bid for one on behalf of Courtland Parlor. It is expected that at least $2,500 will be realized for the kiddies from the dance at the Auditorium, February 7, to be gifen by the Alameda County Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters.

Returned War Boys Royally Welcomed.

Sacramento—Sacramento 3 entertained in honor of its 102 service members, December 11. Following the initiation of a class of twenty-six candidates, an elaborate banquet was served. The honor guests did not know of the plans arranged, and when they entered the banquet-hall, which was appropriately decorated, they were accorded a vociferous welcome.

Emerson W. Read was the toastmaster, Past Grand President Charles E. McLaughlin delivered the address of the evening, there were several addresses by the returned service boys and others, and a program of vocal and instrumental numbers. The committee in charge was Marco S. Zarick, Jr., A. E. Schmid, Justus Staiger, George Scully, Jr., Charles Teuchel and Charles Scollan.

Spreads Christmas Cheer.

San Francisco—December was a busy month for Presidio 194. Officers were elected December 8. Wiliam J. Hatman was chosen president, and for the twenty-first time Thomas J. Lyons was selected to guard the outer door.

December 15, the annual turkey drive was held, the members' families and friends being invited. George F. Barry, Walter T. Podd, Jr., Joseph L. Burton, Malcolm Goldberg, Milton Goodenough, Thomas C. Comber, Louis Pastorino, Edmund D. Courtier and Grover Tidell did the driving.

December 22, in the banquet-hall of Native Sons Building, the Parlor had its annual Christmas tree for the members' children. Milton Goodenough was the "Santa," and from a superb yuletide stage setting gladdened the "kiddies" with toys and "goodies." Special guests on this occasion were the families of Presidio's sixty war-boys.

Service Boys Presented Honor-Roll.

Wheatland—At the meeting December 11, Rainbow 40 initiated a class of seven candidates. The Parlor continues to grow steadily, and it was never in better condition.

A. K. Dam, a member, presented to the Parlor a roll-of-honor containing the names of the war-service brothers, and to each of the service men the Parlor, through W. H. Niemeyer, presented an honor-roll. As a reward for faithfully performing his duties as an officer of the Parlor, D. C. Baun was presented with a past president's emblem.

Reference in The December Grizzly Bear to Rainbow's membership feature has brought to light the fact that the Parlor has really seven pairs and two trios of brothers on its roster-roll. Can any other Parlor produce as good, or better, a record?

Holds Lodge of Sorrow.

Stockton—Grand Trustee William J. Hayes of Berkeley officially visited Stockton 7, December 1, when four candidates were initiated and officers elected. E. W. Patzenger was chosen president. At a banquet following, President Law. T. Freitas presided, and addresses were delivered by Major Edward Van Vraken, Judge George F. Buck, Grand Trustee Hayes, Charles Westgate and others.

During the evening a baseball used in a game played under the auspices of Stockton Parlor for the benefit of the homeless children was auctioned; three "auctioneers" were employed—Past Grand President Hubert R. McNoble, Law T. Freitas and W. C. Neumiller—and they added $81.69 to the fund, which went away over the $500 mark.

The meeting of November 24 was given over to a lodge of sorrow, in memory of Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw, a great favorite in Stockton Parlor. Among the speakers were W. C. Neumiller, A. J. Turner, Fred Potter, John W. Kerrick and Law T. Freitas. A committee consisting of Past Grand President Hubert R. McNoble, W. C. Neumiller, A. J. Turner and President Law T. Freitas was appointed to represent the Parlor at the funeral in San Francisco.

Passes Important Resolutions.

Sebastopol—Following supper at 6:30, Sebastopol 143 had a well-attended and interesting meeting, December 4. At the election of officers O. A. McChristian was selected for president, and a candidate was initiated.

The Parlor passed two important resolutions—one on Americanization, and the other adverse to Japanese immigration. Sebastopol now meets in its own N.S.G.W. Hall.

Hears of Order's Landmarks Work.

San Francisco—The meeting place of Balboa 234 was crowded to capacity, November 18, when a large class of candidates was initiated. Some splendid addresses were delivered, among the speakers being Grand President William P. Canbu, who told of the Order's landmarks work, E. J. Mitchell, W. J. Dongherty, Charles Dechent, Jr., W. P. Garfield, A. G. Agaton and M. J. Moriarity. An entertainment and refreshments followed.

December 16, the Parlor gave the first of a series of monthly dances. Dr. A. Gottschalk was floor manager and was assisted by Senator William S. Scott, Supervisor Warren Shannon, Andrew Murray, A. Hammer, W. C. Seifert, Thomas Toomey, W. J. Dougherty, Al Anfinsen.

A Good Policy.

Fresno—"You ought to have been with the members of Fresno 25 on Armistice Day," says Past Grand President William F. Toomey, Mayor of the Raisin City. On that occasion the citizens of Fresno City and County tendered the returned service-men a wonderful reception at the Municipal Auditorium, and presented each with a handsome bronze medal.

As a side issue Fresno Parlor, with the consent of the general committee of the day, had open-house at its clubrooms all afternoon and evening and provided a royal entertainment. Music for dancing and refreshments were continuously provided. Ever since Fresno Parlor opened its clubrooms they have been open at any and all times to men in any branch of the service, whether members of the Order or not, and this policy will be continued so long as the Parlor maintains clubrooms.

At its meeting November 25, Fresno Parlor passed resolutions petitioning its Congressional representatives to have laws passed that will exclude the Japanese and favoring a constitutional amendment making it impossible for the children of Asiatics to become citizens of this country.

December 9, Fresno Parlor entertained Fresno Post, No. 4, American Legion, and the clubrooms were filled to capacity. A splendid program of vaudeville numbers, boxing contests, etc., was presented, and late in the evening doughnuts (a la Salvation Army) and coffee were served. Little Miss Violet Stroud, the youngest American Legion member, who has received much favorable mention for her war work, sang and danced; and then, she began a selling campaign for Red Cross tuberculosis stamps, collecting $70; she made her first sale to Mayor W. F. Toomey, who paid $5 for a few stamps, with a kiss included. The committee in charge of the affair was: W. F. Toomey (chairman), Lelan Barbour, George Haines, Sam Harkleroad, E. E. Burke, W. J. Auberry and George Pickford.

Initiates Four.

Placerville—Placerville 9 initiated four candidates December 9 and passed the anti-Jap resolutions. At the election of officers, A. S. Lyon was selected for president.

NATIVE SON NEWS

Getting Ready for Mortgage Burning.

St. Helena—St. Helena 53 is already making plans for a big time in July, when the mortgage on the Native Sons Building will be burned. Walter Metzner, an enthusiastic member, devised a scheme whereby the members came forward with $7,550 to clear the property.

Despite the inclement weather, the Parlor's Thanksgiving Eve masquerade ball was a noted success. The music was good, the crowd large, and the costumes original. At midnight La Junta 203, N.D.G.W., served supper, and dancing continued until 3 a. m.

Arranging for Joint Installation.

Marysville—Marysville 6 has adopted, and forwarded to the Governor, resolutions against the Japanese. Officers have been elected, L. T. Sinnott being chosen president. The officers will be installed early in January at a joint affair with Marysville 162, N.D.G.W. Arrangements for the joint meeting are being made by Misses Cecelia Weber and Mary Meade, L. T. Sinnott and Frank Hosking.

Another N. S. Building in Prospect.

San Jose—Having disposed of one of their building lots at a good figure, the three local Parlors—San Jose 22, Garden City 82 and Observatory 177—are soon to commence construction, on their North First street property, of a four or five-story building, in which the Parlors will have every home convenience, including clubrooms.

Pay Visit to San Diego.

San Bernardino—Thirty-six members of Arrowhead 110 autoed to San Diego, November 29, where the officers of the Parlor exemplified the ritual for the benefit of a large class of candidates rounded up by San Diego 108.

Following the initiation, the visitors were entertained at a banquet. The following day they were taken on a sight-seeing trip, including Tia Juana, Mexico.

December 10, Arrowhead initiated three candidates and elected officers, Harry Lord being chosen president.

All Ready for Annual Ball.

Oroville—December 3, Argonaut 8 entertained the members of Gold of Ophir 190, N.D.G.W., at a musical and dance, which was followed by an elaborate repast. Officers, with A. B. Shreve as president, were chosen earlier in the evening. An exceptionally large crowd enjoyed the entertainment.

The Parlor has made elaborate preparations for its thirty-ninth annual New Year's ball, and it is expected to be the crowning effort of its long career of social successes. A ten-piece orchestra has been engaged, and many special features will be introduced, both in the decorations and in the entertainment program.

Wants City Council's Help in Jap Fight.

Merced—Yosemite 24, at its meeting December 2, unanimously endorsed the Grand Parlor anti-Jap resolutions, and appointed a committee to petition the City Council to urge the Governor to call a special Legislature session, and to request local merchants and housewives not to purchase or sell Japanese products.

A committee was also named to draft resolutions to the memory of Past Grand President Charles M. Belsbaw. Among the speakers of the evening was C. Jameson (Marysville 6), a visitor. December 16, the Parlor elected officers, C. W. Kahl being chosen president.

Ferndale Initiates Twelve.

Ferndale—December 1, Ferndale 93 elected officers, Frank Early being selected as president. December 15, the Parlor initiated another large class. It is steadily growing in membership, and Secretary George L. Collins says "It will not be because of lack of enthusiasm and effort, if Ferndale does not win one of those Grand Parlor trophy banners."

aged 86, passed quietly away December 7; she crossed the plains to Yreka, Siskiyou County, in 1854, and was wedded to T. A. Payne, who died in 1872; with her family, she came to Modoc County, settling at Darris Bridge, now Alturas, where she occupied the first house ever built there; there she married Preston Hays, and they took up a ranch on Parker Creek.

Jesse Newport, a native of Indiana, aged 79, died near Alturas November 27; since 1873 he had been a resident of Modoc County; he was a veteran of the Civil War.

Mrs. Mary Parker, a native of New York, aged 92, passed away November 28; she crossed the plains in 1852, riding horseback most of the way, and locating at Dutch Flat, Placer County; in 1870 she came to Modoc County, settling on Deer Creek, now known as Parker Creek; there were few settlers in this county at that time, the Parkers' nearest neighbors being the Colonel Hess family at Stone Coal, forty miles distant; the Indians were then in a pitiable state, having few clothes, made of rabbit skins, and they lived in constant fear of raids of other tribes.

John L. Kerr, a native of Canada, aged 74, died September 23; he built Modoc County's first court house, the beautiful stone high-school structure at Alturas, and most of the prominent buildings of the little city.

AGED BACHELOR DIES AT FRIEND'S HOME.

Lakeport—George Newman, who came West in 1853, settling in Oregon, and later following mining in Shasta and Humboldt Counties until 1894, when he came to Lake County and engaged in ranching, died November 20 in Scotts Valley. He had never married.

Of late years he had divided his time between the John and Joe Hendricks ranches, passing away at the latter. For the past year he was blind, and bedfast for several months. Deceased was a native of Iowa, aged nearly 90.

STATEMENTS REGARDING DECEASED NATIVE SON NOT CORRECT.

Daniel W. Whepley died recently at Oakland, and considerable newspaper publicity was given the statements that he was "the first white child born in Sacramento," the "first president of California Parlor, No. 1, N.S.G.W.," and "a member of the Native Sons since 1875." These statements are not correct.

According to the record of Califoruia Parlor, No. 1, Native Sons of the Golden West (San Francisco), Whepley was born at Sacramento, November 7, 1849. He was admitted to membership in California Parlor on September 5, 1875, and was the Parlor's fourth president, serving during the January-June term of 1877. He severed his connection with the Order on June 10, 1880.

ALAMEDA TAX COLLECTOR DEAD.

Alameda—James B. Barber, for twenty-seven years tax collector of Alameda County, died suddenly in this city November 23, survived by a widow. He was born at Marysville, Yuba County, November 9, 1850, but had resided here since 1854.

Deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Barber, and is said to have been the first white male child born in Marysville. He had long been affiliated with Halcyon Parlor, No. 146, N.S.G.W., of this city and was prominent in its activities.

NATIVE SON DIES IN SERVICE.

Berkeley—Arnold H. Ohman, a member of Berkeley Parlor, No. 210, N.S.G.W., died December 12 at Whipple Barracks, Prescott, Arizona, from an illness which he contracted last fall at Camp Lewis following an attack of influenza and plural pneumonia. He was the only member of Berkeley Parlor who had not returned from service at the time of his death.

Deceased was born at San Francisco, in 1887, and has surviving him, as members of the Order, two brothers, Oscar and August Ohman, also two half-brothers, J. W. and A. Miller. He was buried with military escort from the residence of his brother in Albany, California.

In Memoriam

LEROY MILTON GRIDER.

Born: Roseville, September 22, 1866.
Died: Los Angeles, November 16, 1919.

Conspicuous among the men who directed the early development of the City and County of Los Angeles, we find the name of Leroy Miltou Grider. Born in the County of Placer, a descendant of one of the early Pioneers, he saw Los Angeles City grow from a Mexican pueblo to the mighty metropolis of today. His implicit faith in its future resulted in thousands of early settlers acquiring property and homes in this city and county, and his activity aided materially in the development of the wonderful resources of the southern portion of our beloved state.

Mr. Grider was of a very genial, social nature, and all who came in contact with him have only pleasant memories of his hospitality, his fidelity, and his charity. Many years ago he became a member of Ramona Parlor, No. 109, Native Sons of the Golden West, and in his passing this Parlor has lost a brother who has been dear to us by ties of friendship and whose death will be mourned by every member thereof. The members of Ramona Parlor extend to the family of our late brother their heartfelt sympathy and consolation in their bereavement. While we shall mourn his passing, we will ever cherish the memory of his association in this fraternity.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE BEEBE,
H. C. LICHTENBERGER,
LORENZO F. SOTO,
Committee.

It is hereby ordered that a copy of the above memorial be sent to the family of our deceased brother, Leroy Milton Grider, that a copy be published in The Grizzly Bear, the official organ of this fraternity, and that our charter be draped for a period of thirty days in testimony of our respect for his memory.

EVA KIDD

To the Officers and Members of Chispa Parlor, No. 10, N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed sister, Eva Kidd, beg to submit the following: The Angel of Death has again entered our sacred portals and taken from our midst our dearly beloved sister, Eva Kidd. We tenderly condole with the bereaved husband and family in this hour of trial and affliction, and commend them for consolation to "Him Who doeth all things well." Let us not think of her as dead, but as having preceded us to that golden shore where she now dwells as one of the daughters of that better land, and where she waits to welcome us as we, too, shall pass through that golden gate. By her death, her husband is deprived of the love and companionsbip of a devoted wife, her children of a loving and affectionate mother, Chispa Parlor of a sister whose noble character aud kind disposition endeared her to all, and the Order of a loyal N.D.G.W.

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning, that these resolutions be spread on the minutes, and that a copy be sent to the bereaved husband and family, and that they be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

Respectfully suhmitted,
ANNIE FITHIAN,
CORA D. MINER,
EDITH L. CAMPBELL,
Committee.

Ione, November 23, 1919.

CHARLES HUGHES.

Whereas, In His inscrutahle wisdom it has pleased God to remove from earth our brother Native Son, Charles Hughes; and whereas, we feel the deep grief and sorrow that fills our hearts at the passing of such an industrious and conscientious Native Son, a patriotic citizen, a loyal comrade and friend, a sympathetic and helpful neighbor, and the honored head of a happy Christian home; be it

Resolved, That in his death we experience a keen sense of personal loss. As a member of Palo Alto Parlor, No. 216, N.S.G.W., for two yeara he discharged well, at all times, those obligations and duties devolving upon him. As a friend and citizen he was of noble nature and incapable of disguise; his thoughts lay open to all around him and won their confidence by his ingenious frankness; and be it resolved, that in token of our grief, the charter of this Parlor be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days and that a copy of these resolutiona be transmitted to Mrs. C. P. Hughes, with the assurance of profound sympathy of the members of the Parlor for her deep personal affliction and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the official N.S.G.W. magazine, The Grizzly Bear, for publication.

CHARLES M. BELSHAW

YOSEMITE PARLOR, NO. 24.

To the Officers and Members of Yosemite Parlor, No. 24, N.S.G.W.—Your committee appointed to draft resolutiona of regret on account of the death of Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw, respectfully submit the following.

Whereas, In the appointed time of destiny it has pleased God, in His all-wise providence, to remove by death our Past Grand President, Charles M. Belshaw; and, whereas, in the death of Brother Charles M. Belshaw the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West has lost a good and faithful member, and the State of California at large has lost one of its best and truest citizens;

Resolved, That we, aa members of Yosemite Parlor, No. 24, N.S.G.W., extend our most heartfelt aympathy to the family of Brother Belshaw in this, their sad hour of bereavement, and sincerely pray that their sorrow may be tempered in the thought that God, in His infinite mercy, knows best; and be it further resolved, that our charter he draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, that these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, and a copy aent to the family of Brother Belshaw.

I. H. REUTER,
J. J. GRIFFIN,
D. K. STODDARD,
Committee.

Merced, December 2, 1919.

BALBOA PARLOR, NO. 234.

Whereas, The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West has suffered an irreparable loss in the untimely death of Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw; and, whereas, Brother Belshaw was for many years Chairman of the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children and gave most liberally of his time, his energy, and his best efforts in furthering the success of this most worthy work of home-finding for orphaned and abandoned children, being a worthy successor of the founder of this most noble work, Fairfax H. Wheelan; and, whereas, Brother Belshaw was indefatigable in raising funds for the erection of the present Native Sons Building, which replaced the one destroyed by the great fire of 1906, and through his efforts the present building was turned over to the Order free of debt, and the great edifice stands as a material monument to his energy, sagacity and fraternal spirit; and, whereas, Brother Belshaw, a Past Grand President of this great Fraternity, during his incumbency in office in the Grand Parlor gave of the best within him for the upbuilding of this Order and the exemplification of its cardinal principles; and, whereas, Brother Charles M. Belshaw served his native atate fearlessly, ably and honestly for many years in the California Legislature, both in the Assembly and in the State Senate; and, whereas, Brother Charles M. Belshaw was a good, loyal, patriotic citizen, a true friend, a man of kindly heart and genial manner, who loved his fellow-men and was ever ready to alleviate suffering and distress, and, withal, was a splendid type of Western manhood; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Balboa Parlor, No. 234, of the Native Sons of the Golden West, extends to the bereaved relatives its sincere sympathy in their great loss; that while we deeply regret the untimely passing of Brother Belshaw from his earthly labors and recoguize the great loas suffered by this Order in his death, we are comforted by the firm faith that he is reaping his just reward in the Grand Parlor on High,—that his life was and will be an inspiration to our beloved Fraternity and an example worthy of emulatiou; and be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to his relatives, that a copy be sent to the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children, and to the local Homeless Children Committee, and that these resolntions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor.

W. J. DOUGHERTY,
W. P. GARFIELD,
DR. A. GOTTSCHALK,
Committee.

RAMONA PARLOR, NO. 109.

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has called from among us our friend and brother, Charles M. Belshaw; and, whereas, Brother Belshaw was a successful business man, having many and varied commercial enterprises, and for a long period of years served his native state honestly and faithfully in public office; and, whereas, in spite of his many commercial and public activities and because of his great love for his native state, Brother Belshaw maintained a most active membership in the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West; particularly did he devote himself to the Homeless Children work and to him belongs the credit, in a large measure, for ita success. He was ever an attendant upon the sessions of the Grand Parlor, being keenly observant and ever watchful of those things which tended to the welfare and progress of our beloved Order. Participating in debate, his ready wit and gentle humor won many a point. He was always genial, straightforward and true; unselfish in his devotion, untiring and unceasing in his labors, and unswerving in his loyalty; and, whereas, in the passing of Brother Belshaw the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West has lost a most loyal and devoted worker, and each member a sincere, true and unselfish friend; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W., hereby expresses its admiration of the attributes of our deceased brother, grief because of his death, and regret that never again, save in the influence of his memory, will he participate in the activities of the Order he so dearly loved; and be it resolved, that, in tribute to his memory, the charter of Ramona Parlor be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to General Winn Parlor, No. 32, a copy be spread upon the minutea of this Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

WORLD TO LEARN OF HOME PRODUCTS

SAN FRANCISCO—IN ANSWER TO INquiries from every part of the United States and abroad, the Home Industry League of California is at work on plans to tabulate data on all the industrial plants in California. The preliminary work will consist of arranging detailed information regarding the location of factories, the character of commodities produced, and the number of persons employed. Later the system will be amplified, and compiled in book form for distribution. This work has never before been attempted, and it is believed the compendium will do much to stimulate interest in the demand for California-made goods.

Circulars have been forwarded to city clerks, chambers of commerce and civic organizations in every city and town in the state, asking their cooperation. The objects are briefly explained in the circular, which says, in part: "The purpose of this compilation is to list all the manufacturing plants in the State of California. These lists will be placed in the hands of the purchasing powers of the big corporations, state and county governments, foreign consulates, Eastern and Middle West chambers of commerce, Federal representatives stationed abroad, and others where it is considered advisable. Through this medium, we hope to keep the manufactured goods of California before the purchasing powers of the country."

"It is a mighty healthy sign," says Edward H. Brown, manager of the Home Industry League, "when, day after day, the mail contains letters from all parts of the country asking where a certain line of California-made goods can be bought. It shows that the eyes of the buyers are turned this way.

"It is our intention to first prepare a tabulation of the most important data on California manufacturing industries, only three or four cities in the state at present having anything definite in the way of information. When the tabulation is completed, it will be prepared in book form for distribution. Then we will see that it is on file in every district throughout the world where there is a market for goods produced in California."

THREE WAYS TO TEST THE WORTH OF TIRE TUBES.

According to the Lichtenberger-Ferguson Company, California distributors of the Norwalk, there are three definite ways to tell whether or not a tire tube is made of the best rubber and embodies the toughest qualities.

The first test, which, according to rubber chemists, is an accurate means of judging the purity of rubber, is to place samples of tire tube rubber in a receptacle of water. If the rubber sinks to the bottom or under the surface of the water it is a sign that the tube contains less than 95 percent pure gum, but if the tube floats it is a guarantee that the tube contains over 95 percent pure gum. The difference between the amount of pure gum and the 100 percent mark allows for the ingredients embodied in the rubber to toughen and strengthen the material.

The second and most important test is to take a small piece of tube rubber about one-quarter inch wide and after tightly stretching it to the very limit, to snip it on the edge with a pair of blunt-pointed scissors. It is claimed by the Norwalk factory that if the rubber, when snipped on the edge, tears apart it is an inferior quality. For the purpose of demonstrating the strength in Norwalk rubber this test is made and the rubber will not tear apart. The argument backing up this test is that when a puncture occurs in the tube the blowout will not spread and form a jogged rip which would practically ruin the tube, but instead the blowout is confined to a very small area.

The third point in favor of a good tube is laminated construction. It is stated that tubes ground from one piece are more apt to tear and be of uneven quality, while those made of laminated piles of rubber are more uniform throughout. At the Norwalk factory nine thin piles of rubber are laid together and vulcanized into one sheet.

dren. Either the popularity of the Parlor members or the worthiness of the project was responsible for one of the largest attended dances ever given in Marin County. At an early hour the Masonic Hall was crowded almost to capacity, and the grand march of the masquers was one of the most spectacular and amusing given here in years. Two hundred and three dollars was netted for the homeless kiddies.

Forty-five members of Marinita Parlor greeted Mary E. Bell, Grand President, December 15, the occasion being her official visit. The hall was artistically decorated with redwood, Christmas berries and smilax; Christmas bells were scattered throughout the hall, in compliment to the Grand President as well as conveying the Christmas spirit. Ten candidates were initiated and welcomed.

The Grand President stated, in the course of her remarks, that the "girls" could congratulate themselves on their Parlor being one of the best in the state, all taking such an active interest in the work pertaining to the Order as well as doing such a lot of civic work. Past Grand President Emma Foley, "mother" of Marinita, was also an honored guest of the evening, she recalling what difficulties the Parlor had had in getting instituted, lacking one member of the twenty to start and of getting this one out of bed, and what a prosperous Parlor it is today. Remembrances of the evening were presented to Grand President Bell (a painting of Mt. Tamalpais), to D.D.G.P. Vida Vollers (cut-glass water glasses), to former D.D.G.P. E. Bishop (picture), to Sister Kemp Van Ee of Alta No. 3 (a verse), and last, but not least, to Past Grand President E. Foley (a savory boiler). A dinner closed this memorable meeting.

Fourteenth Anniversary Observed.

San Francisco—December 9, Grand President Mary E. Bell visited Presidio 148 officially. The occasion was also the fourteenth birthday of the Parlor. The hall had been beautifully decorated with Christmas bells and red streamers, and every station was fitted with holly berries and greens. One candidate was initiated. The Grand President spoke most highly of the officers, who were letter-perfect in their charges.

Under Good of the Order, speeches were made by Grand President Bell, D.D.G.P. May L. Noble and many visitors. President Elsie M. Burton presented Mrs. Bell with two beautiful linen dresser scarfs, which gift was graciously accepted. The Parlor's gift to its beloved D.D.G.P. Noble was elegant linen doilies, which were accepted in the recipient's happy way. After the meeting a banquet and birthday party were held in the banquet-room. Home-made cakes were supplied in abundance, and also three birthday cakes, each burning fourteen candles. Speeches were made by Grand President Bell, D.D.G.P. Noble and many others. Elizabeth Schmidt, chairman of the Good of Order Committee, and her assistants in charge of this double affair, worked very hard to make it the success it surely was, and deserve great praise for their wonderful work.

Adds Another Interesting Chapter.

Oakland—December 18, another interesting chapter was added to the long list of social events in the history of Piedmont 87, the occasion being the official visit of Grand President Mary E. Bell of Buena Vista 68 (San Francisco). The large meeting hall was most beautifully and artistically decorated in garlands and wreaths of Christmas greens tied with red ribbon, and at each officer's station was a potted poinsettia, the gift of Sister Mary McDonald, a most loyal and earnest member of the Parlor who is ever willing to lend her assistance and aid along the floral line on such occasions.

About 200 members and visitors of the Order had assembled, and among the grand officers present were Grand President Mary E. Bell, Junior Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher of Piedmont Parlor, Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, Grand Marshal Dr. V. A. Derrick and Past Grand President Margaret G. Hill. It was indeed with regret that all present learned that D.D.G.P. Sue J. Irwin was unable to attend, on account of illness. As each grand officer was escorted to her seat of honor, she was presented with a potted poinsettia. Three candidates were initiated, President Alice Halnan and all the officers delivering the ritualistic charges in a most creditable manner. Grand President Bell was presented with a sterling silver roast holder, and responded with thanks in her sweet and charming manner, and spoke on the various projects of the Order. The Parlor's own dearly loved Past Grand President, Sister Mosher, was presented with a hand-painted cup and saucer, and she, too, thanked the Parlor in her usual gracious manner for the gift.

After the business session all retired to the anteroom and enjoyed delicious refreshments. Enough praise and credit cannot be given to Gertrude Morrison for her untiring efforts in making this official visit a pleasant memory to all who attended. Other members who worked on the committee were Alice Halnan, Louise McCutcheon, Lillian Murden, Lottie Bruning, Emma Flood, Mary McDonald, Harriet Emerson, Josephine Clark, Daisy Branstetter, Jennie Jordan and Greta Murden. Visitors numbered from among all the Parlors of the bay counties and also from Manzanita 29 (Grass Valley), Laurel 6 (Nevada City) and Forrest 86 (Plymouth), also from San Jose.

CALIFORNIA'S ENORMOUS WEALTH

THE TOTAL ASSESSED VALUE OF ALL the property in the fifty-eight counties of California mounted to $4,067,432,918 during 1919, according to a statement recently issued by State Controller John S. Chambers. This was an increase in wealth, compared with 1918, of $438,533,866.

The total indebtedness of the counties went up to $78,587,757.09, an increase of $7,037,700.56, compared with 1918.

Seven counties of the state have property worth more than a hundred-million dollars, Los Angeles County being in the lead; in fact, that county holds an exclusive position in the billion-dollar class. From the State Controller's reports for 1919 and 1918 the following information is gleaned concerning the "big seven" counties:

Los Angeles—Property value $1,074,404,454, an increase of $52,775,107. Indebtedness $3,000,000, a decrease of $500,000. 1919 tax rate $1.025 inside, $1.475 outside.

San Francisco—Property value $794,459,406, an increase of $13,735,582. Indebtedness $44,259,600, a decrease of $216,500. 1919 tax rate $3.08.

Alameda—Property value $284,635,472, an increase of $14,861,102. Indebtedness $185,885.37, a decrease of $41,062.35. 1919 tax rate $1.58 inside, $1.98 outside.

Fresno—Property value $132,700,905, an increase of $18,492,588. Indebtedness $1,000,000, an increase of $1,000,000. 1919 tax rate $1.70 inside, $2.10 outside.

Kern—Property value $111,112,141, an increase of $9,770,789. Indebtedness $2,735,000, a decrease of $165,000. 1919 tax rate $1.41 inside, $1.81 outside.

Sacramento—Property value $106,900,335, an increase of $139,617. Indebtedness $3,262,694, a decrease of $27,691. 1919 tax rate $1.581 inside, $2.20 outside.

Santa Clara—Property value $100,093,878, an increase of $7,997,972. Indebtedness $280,000, a decrease of $10,000. 1919 tax rate $1.48 inside, $1.90 outside.

The 1919 report of the State Controller reveals these interesting facts:

In number of assessed acres of land, San Francisco County is the smallest—29,760; Kern County is the largest—3,368,037.

Imperial County has the lowest tax rate—$.81 inside, $1.19 outside; Tulare County has the highest—$3.35 inside, $3.95 outside.

Alpine County's total assessed valuation is the lowest—$744,562; this is an increase of $4,255. The county has an indebtedness of $7,587.46, and its tax rate is $2.

The counties of Alpine, Amador, Imperial, Inyo, Merced, Monterey, San Benito, San Luis Obispo, Shasta and Tuolumne are listed as having no money or solvent credits to be assessed.

Amador, Calaveras, Humboldt, Imperial, Inyo, Madera, Marin, Mariposa, Mono, Nevada, Placer, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Trinity, Tuolumne and Yuba Counties are listed as free from debt.

the gift of his brothers, was not content to let his place as a worker in the ranks be occupied by some other member, but increased his activity and contributed unstintingly of his talent, time and wealth to the Order's advancement. Ever an earnest exponent of the precepts of Friendship, Loyalty and Charity, he exemplified those precepts in his everyday life. Within the ranks of the workers in the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, his going hence has created a vacancy that can never be filled.

And so, of Charles Mortimer Belshaw it can truthfully be recorded, he so lived that the pages of his life's history are free of a single blemish. And when "Charley" Belshaw's bark crossed o'er the bar, his native state, California, sustained a distinct loss.

A BRIEF HISTORY

Charles Mortimer Belshaw was the son of Mortimer William and Jennie E. Belshaw, who came to California via the Isthmus of Panama in 1852. After landing in San Francisco they went to Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, thence to Fiddletown (now Oleta), Amador County, where deceased was born March 11, 1861. His father passed away in 1898, and his mother in 1900. He had one brother, born June 5, 1859, who died July 5, 1864.

In 1864 the Belshaws moved to San Francisco, where Charles was reared and educated; in 1879 he took a college preparatory course under Professor George Bates, and then matriculated at Harvard University, from which he graduated in 1883. From the university, he went to Antioch, Contra Costa County, to direct his father's business interests, and that place was thereafter his legal residence; he had a beautiful home and delighted to spend what time he could there, and entertained extensively.

He was twice married, first, on October 1, 1883, to Miriam E. Waite—a splendid woman who attended many sessions of the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., —who passed away at Antioch, January 20, 1914. On October 1, 1915, he was wedded to Mrs. Maude E. Spencer, who was killed in the auto accident of November 23, 1919.

In 1894 he was elected to the State Assembly from Contra Costa County, and was twice re-elected, serving through three regular sessions and the special session of 1899. In 1900 he was elected to the State Senate, and re-elected in 1904.

When General Winn Parlor, No. 32, N.S.G.W., was instituted at Antioch in 1884, he became a charter member, was elected its first recording secretary, and in 1885 was chosen president. He first attended the Grand Parlor in 1885 (San Jose Session) as a delegate from General Winn Parlor; it was at this session that legislation authorizing the erection of the monument at Sacramento to the memory of the Founder of the Order, General A. M. Winn, was passed, and it was in support of this measure that he first became active in Grand Parlor affairs. He was elected Grand President in 1908 (Yosemite Valley Session) and presided over the 1909 Grand Parlor (Marysville Session). Both in the Order and the State Legislature, he took an active interest in having the Yosemite Valley turned over to the Federal Government for a national park.

His surviving relatives are an aunt, Mrs. Violetta Purchase of Jordansville, New York, and these cousins: William C., Thadeus, Charles and Mary Purchase and Mrs. May Parmalee of Jordansville, New York; L. R. and R. C. Starkweather of Berkeley; Mrs. Mae Shimel of Mohawk, New York; Mrs. Lulu Weir of Jordansville, New York; Ozell and Will Mc Laughlin, Mrs. Jennie Burnett and Clarence Waite of Chagrin Falls, Ohio; Mrs. Addie McKenzie of Wynona, Minnesota; Willard B. Dye of Washington, D. C.; John W. Dye of Port Elizabeth, South Africa; Gwin Belshaw of San Francisco; Mrs. Imogen de Saules of Sacramento; W. W. and J. T. Belshaw of Antioch, the two latter being members of General Winn Parlor, No. 32, N.S.G.W. (Antioch).

A WEALTH OF FLOWERS

Possibly never before have so many beautiful floral tributes been laid upon the bier of one departed, as were seen at the funeral of Charles Mortimer Belshaw. They came from all over the country, from individuals and organizations. Among the many were those from the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., the Past Grand Presidents' Association, N.S.G.W., the directors of the San Francisco Native Sons Hall Association, the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children, the Grizzly Bear Publishing Company, in which deceased was a stockholder, and always a staunch advocate of The Grizzly Bear Magazine, and the following Subordinate Parlors of the Order of Native Sons:

Stockton No. 7, Placerville No. 9, Amador No. 17 (Sutter Creek), Yosemite No. 24 (Merced), General Winn No. 32 (Antioch), Los Angeles No. 45, Redwood No. 66 (Redwood City), Calaveras No. 67 (San Andreas), Ramona No. 109 (Los Angeles) and Corona No. 196 (Los Angeles).

NATIVE SON NEWS

Twelve candidates were initiated. It was a rousing meeting, 150 members being present and also a large delegation from Alton. Notices had been sent out announcing the work would be in the "third degree;" this brought out the curious, who found it was a little "stunt" pulled off when, the Parlor closing and reopening as a club, the candidates were given the "third degree." Several boxing bouts were featured. Ferndale is now the largest Parlor in Humboldt County, having 240 members, and prospects are good for further increases to entitle it to another Grand Parlor delegate. After every meeting in future, it is planned to have a dance, to which each member will be entitled to bring a woman friend.

New Year's night, the Parlor will give a grand ball for the benefit of the homeless children, and hopes to raise a goodly sum. The committee making the arrangements is J. J. Niebur, John Lund and Raymond Grinsell.

Reception to Popular Members.

Sutter Creek—Mr. and Mrs. Jesse McKean, who are to take up their residence in Taft, were tendered a farewell reception December 12 by Amador 17 and Amapola 80, N.D.G.W. Mrs. McKean is an active member of Amapola Parlor, and Mr. McKean is secretary of Amador Parlor.

Many friends gathered to say adieu to the popular couple, who will be greatly missed here. Games, singing and dancing were enjoyed during the evening, and refreshments were served. On behalf of Amapola Parlor, Past Grand Secretary Laura G. Frakes presented Mrs. McKean with a handsome emblematic pin.

Back at Work.

Livermore—More than half the members of Las Positas 96 went to war, but all have now returned and are back in the harness. A membership campaign is on, and five applications were presented November 27. Following the meeting a crab supper was served.

Annual Masque Big Success.

Antioch—The thirty-fifth annual masquerade of General Winn 32, postponed on account of the death of its dearly loved member, Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw, was held December 13.

There was a large attendance, many attending from other places, and there were numerous attractive costumes. A six-piece orchestra furnished splendid music, and the local hotels served special suppers. Several cash prizes were awarded those in costume.

Drive Brings 50 New Members.

Colusa—Colusa 69 wound up its membership campaign, which netted fifty new members, with a class initiation December 9. Officers were elected, Wm. Duncan being selected for president, and a duck stew was served. A big celebration of New Year's Eve is being planned.

Colusa Parlor contemplates the erection of a $50,000 home, a committee, with Warren Davison as chairman, having been named to pick a location.

Solano To Initiate Eight.

Suisun—Solano 39 elected officers December 16, A. C. Tillman being chosen president. January 6, the Parlor will initiate a class of eight candidates. Big preparations are being made for the occasion, which will be attended by Grand President William P. Caubu and Judge William H. Langdon, Grand Trustee.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Superior Judge Rex B. Goodcell (Arrowhead 110) of San Bernardino was a Sacramento visitor last month.

Press dispatches from Washington, D. C., December 13, announced United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson's (Sunset 26) candidacy for the presidency.

James Rolph, Jr. (Hesperian 137), Mayor of San Francisco, was a visitor to San Diego last month. Mrs. Rolph accompanied him.

Judge John F. Davis (Past Grand President) of San Francisco was a recent visitor at the National Capitol.

George G. Radcliffe (Watsonville 65) of Sacramento, formerly superintendent of the state capitol and grounds and part owner of the Watsonville "Pajaronian," has acquired an interest in a printing establishment that publishes the "Sunday News" in the Capital City.

HAS "WHITE PLAGUE'S" CONQUEROR BEEN FOUND?

Ask anyone to name the chief enemy of the human race, and he will, almost unhesitatingly, respond, the "White Plague," the term now generally applied to dreaded tuberculosis. And because the "White Plague" IS mankind's chief enemy, annually taking a toll of thousands of human beings, any meritorious method of treatment that has for its object the checking of tuberculosis or any of its kindred respiratory affections in the human body, and, more particularly, a treatment which has been successfully administered, should, as a matter of public duty, be called to the attention of the general public, that those who are afflicted may at least have the opportunity of investigation.

And so, thinking that possibly there may be some unfortunate who may be benefitted, The Grizzly Bear accepted, only after careful investigation, the announcement of the Los Angeles "Vaportorium," appearing elsewhere in this issue. It is a well-appointed residence, in the residence section, not a hospital, for there are no boarding patients. That the methods employed are legitimate, this instance is cited:

While the writer was present, an Italian boy appeared to make inquiry. Before being even asked if he desired to be treated, he was subjected to a thorough examination by a licensed physician, who found a slight lung affection. After the examination he was told that he could be helped, if he came daily and took the treatmeut. He was satisfied and expressed a desire to be treated.

The "Vaportorium" does not employ the vaccine or serum treatment. It treats by what is termed "vaportor," the discovery of the manager of the institution, A. H. B. Roberts, who, through his scientific medical discovery, cured himself of a tuhercular affection from which he suffered for years.

The "vaportor" treatment is administered on the theory that disease originates in the blood. It is a simple treatment, not obnoxious, and the patient can continue his usual avocation while taking it. "Vaportor" is a dry vapor, produced by secret process which carries practically all drugs known to have a beneficial effect on the respiratory tract by inhalation through the blood, and to diseased tissues.

The writer was given the invitation extended to all interested: to minutely examine the institution itself, its methods, and even the administration of the treatment, and was more than satisfied with what he saw and heard. But the writer is not competent to pass judgment on the healing merits of "vaportor," and so, without any objection on the part of Discoverer Roberts, proceeded to get the opinion of those who are competent to pass judgment: the patients, who came, took their treatments, and departed. Many were interviewed, and all declared emphatically that they were being helped.

We are not going to present these testimonies. But one, which created in our mind the belief that "vaportor" is the long-sought and anxiously-looked-for conqueror of the "White Plague," must be presented: A woman appeared for treatment. For more than two years she has been sorely afflicted with tuherculosis in its worst form. Nine months ago, when her case was diagnosed as hopeless, she was taken to a sanatorium on the desert, where for six months she was confined to her bed. Six weeks ago she was packed into the "Vaportorium" from an auto. While the writer was present, this woman, without any assistance, walked from an auto into the house, took her treatment, rested a few moments, and unaided, walked back to her auto. She was emphatic in her declaration that "vaportor" had performed a miracle in her case, and she expressed confidence that through it she would be rescued from the "White Plague."—C.M.H.

EARLY-DAY BUILDING PERMIT AND PROPERTY BILL OF SALE.

As related in The Novemher Grizzly Bear, there recently passed away John T. Gaffey, an old resident. In going over his papers, many early-day documents were brought to light, among them the following:

"To the Constitutional Alcalde of the City of Our Lady of the Angeles [Los Angeles]: I have decreed on this date on the memorial which has been presented to me by Don Luis Macala and Don Guillermo Hartnell, permitting them to build a house at the port of San Pedro, and that no one shall oppose or embarrass them in the erection of said building.

(Signed) "ARGUELLO.

"Monterey, California, May 21, 1823."

"The undersigned hereby certifies that he has ceded and by these presents does cede, to the Mission San Gabriel Archangel, all the rights which he has in the home [referred to above] situated at the port of San Pedro, and hereby admits full satisfaction in payment for the same, and transfers said premises to the above named mission forever.

Los Angeles To Start Membership Drive.

Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W., which meets on Thursdays at Native Sons Hall, 136 West Seventeenth street, has had its meetings interfered with by holidays—Thanksgiving and Christmas—and will not meet until January 8, on account of New Year coming on its meeting night. At the last meeting in 1919, December 18, announcement was made that Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W., would provide Christmas baskets for the poor and that some financial assistance would not be amiss; the Parlor and members present made up a fund of $22 to help the Native Daughters.

The Parlor has all arrangements perfected for a membership drive to close the night of election of delegates to the Grand Parlor. An attractive folder, setting forth the Order's history and aims has becu prepared for circulation among eligibles. The assistance of every member is wanted in this drive, and to compensate any who will devote time to the work liberal cash prizes will be awarded. John J. Craig has been chosen president for the new term.

Corona Initiates Class.

Corona 196, N.S.G.W., which meets in the new Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street, celebrated on November 26 the opening of the new quarters with an open meeting. Henry G. Bodkin presided. There were no speeches, but everyone was required to do a "stunt," and no end of merriment resulted. Two feminine entertainers contributed song and dance numbers, and refreshments were served.

Decemher 17, the Parlor initiated a class of five candidates, and has voted favorably on several more applicants who will be initiated early in January. President Herlihy gave the initiates an apportunity to voice their sentiments, and they pledged themselves to become workers in the Parlor. Wayne E. Jordau was chosen president for the new term, and refreshments were served.

Ramona Has Christmas Party.

Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., has started a membership drive which will continue until the third Friday in March. As an incentive to the members to hustle, valuable prizes are to be awarded, running from a $100 suit of clothes for twenty new members to a year's dues ($12) for three new members. The Parlor announces these special attractions for the new year: February 22, formal ball; May 1, children's day celebration; June 9, Parlor's anniversary and Flag Day (June 14) celebration; September 9, Admission Day celebration; October 30, Hallowe'en party.

December 19, Ramona opened its new home to the women and children, at a holiday festival. A hig Christmas tree was the main decorative feature,

CALIFORNIA MINING NEWS

AN AWAKENING IN OLD TUOLUMNE.

There is no question but the mining industry in Tuolumne County is to experience an awakening in the very near future, says the "Mother Lode Magnet." The recent rich strike at the Black Oak mine, near Soulsbyville, is having its effect, and already, in various parts of the county, old mines are being reopened and new ones developed.

At the Omega mine, on the western slope of Table Mountain, work has begun after many years of idleness. The spring, it is believed, will bring great activity at the old Harvard mine in Jamestown. The Patterson mine, below Tuttletown, will soon be added to the list of operating properties. The discovery at the Donella, at Arastaville, of the vein lost many years ago will place that property among the promising ones of the county. The old Dead Horse mine, sometimes called the Eureka, at Tuolumne, is again to be worked. The Buckborn mine, down on the Tuolumne, is to be thoroughly developed.

OIL OUTLOOK ENCOURAGING.

The dependence of the industries of the Pacific Slope upon California petroleum lends importance to a survey of the conditions affecting the oil business. The total oil production in California during the year 1919 amounted to about 100,000,000 barrels, according to preliminary estimates by R. P. McLaughlin of the California State Mining Bureau. The final figure will probably show that the year's output was slightly more than that of the year 1918. The total value of crude oil at the wells was about $133,000,000, which is some five or six millions greater than the total value of the preceding year.

Current statistics by private concerns disagree as to the actual amount of oil now stored, but do agree in indicating that stocks were somewhat less at the end of the year 1919 than at the beginning. Such a condition, in conjunction with the fact that total production was approximately the same as during the previous year, shows that the industry has not quite held its own. The effort to maintain the status referred to involved the addition of some 500 new producing wells, in order to offset the natural decline of productiveness of oil wells. The 1920 outlook is encouraging.

The acreage of proved oil land was materially increased during the year 1919 by developments in the Elk Hills, in Kern County, and in the Richfield field, in Orange County. The total proved oil land is now probably more than 91,000 acres, as compared with 89,212 acres in March, 1919.

The Elk Hills region constitutes a major portion of Naval Petroleum Reserve Number One, which has long been the subject of discussion before Congress and of litigation in the Federal courts. A recent decision of the United States Supreme Court cancelled patents of the Southern Pacific Company to some 6,000 acres of land, having a value of probably eight or ten million dollars, and returns title to the Government.

The greatest event of the year, in determining title to oil land, was the decision of the United States District Court in the consolidated cases of the Government against the Southern Pacific Company, involving 161,267 acres, of which about 18,000 acres may be classed as proved oil land, having a value of possibly $36,000,000. The decision was in favor of the company, and press reports quote the attorney-general as saying that no appeal will be taken. An important effect of the termination of the suit would seem to be an increased supply of oil to meet the varied demands of industry.

LOOKING UP IN CALAVERAS.

Mining matters in Calaveras County are looking up, says the "Calaveras Prospect." There is a marked activity not only along the whole Mother Lode belt, especially that portion extending from Altaville through Angels to the Stanislaus River, but also in the great east belt, as well as about Copperopolis and Hodson. This county has a record as one of the richest gold producing sections of the state, and capitalists are again turning their eyes this way, looking for rich returns from their investments.

There is also a revival in the placer fields, and if the deal recently consummated of consolidating the big placer holdings along O'Neil's Creek, from near Sheep Ranch to the Kentucky House, is carried out, many of the old dead river channels will be uncov-

P. M. Norboe of Sunset 26 (Sacramento), assistant state engineer and the best-posted person in the state on the early-day trails, was a recent visitor and delivered an instructive and entertaining talk. Walter E. Baskerville has been elected president for the January-June term. New members are being added at almost every meeting. Judging from the number who daily visit them, the new clubrooms are greatly appreciated by the members.

ered, and one of the richest deposits in the state will he soon producing gold.

DEVELOPMENT NOTES.

A rich lost gold-ore vein in the Midas mine near Redding, Shasta County, has recently heen relocated.

Grass Valley, Nevada County, people are largely interested in a new company that has heen formed to operate the Ironclad gold property in the Rough and Ready district, near that city.

Intensive development work, on the 2,700-foot level, is heing prosecuted at the Plymouth Consolidated, near Plymouth, Amador County, one of the Mother Lode's best gold producers.

New owners have honded the Round Mountain group of gravel claims near Nevada City, Nevada County, and installed equipment for extensive development work.

Word comes from Quincy, Plumas County, that a company has ahout completed arrangements for extensive placer mining at Hartman Bar, on the Middle Fork of the Feather River.

The old Lost Camp mine, near Blue Canyon, Placer County, is to be operated hy the hydraulic process, the "Placer Herald" stating a permit has heen issued hy the California Dehris Commission.

Rumors are current, says the "Amador Record," that the South Eureka, an Amador County gold property that has heen a good producer, is soon to he reopened under new management.

Improved methods are to be used hy new owners in further development work at the Flat Iron and Tom & Dick mines, two gold properties near Volcano, Amador County.

A return of the days of '49 is indicated at Forest Hill, Placer County, where there is a noticeahle revival in mining.

From Lower Lake comes word that one of the most extensive strikes of cinnahar made in Lake County has heen made at the Tremper mine in Morgan Valley.

Sixteen miles from Placerville, El Dorado County, Eastern capitalists have purchased and are developing the Pacific Channel deep gravel mine.

The National Congress has postponed until January action on the mineral land leasing hill which, it is helieved, will greatly stimulate mining in California if passed.

The Bully Hill, operating the deepest copper-zinc mine in the Shasta County copper belt, is to erect a large zinc smelter early this year at Winthrop.

JAPAGRAPHS

Many daily papers, the past month, carried a series of articles anent the Jap "picture hrides," which concluded with a statement issued hy the Japanese consul-general at San Francisco that no more of that class of undesirahles would be given passports after February 25. All of this is clever Jap propaganda! If it is left to Japan, the "picture hride" agreement will he as effectively-enforced as is the "gentlemen's agreement."

California has no more level-headed citizen and none more interested in her welfare than Colonel John S. Chamhers, State Controller. He rightly says "The Japanese prohlem is not only the most serious issue confronting California and the Pacific Coast today, but also holds within itself the greatest danger to the future of this country and the people of the world."

The Placer County Realty Board is to he congratulated for its "Californiaism." It has passed this resolution, which enunciates a policy that all land-dealers and "certain attorneys" should emulate: "Resolved, That we are opposed to the ownership of land in this state by Japancse or any other non-assimilahle races, and we pledge our memhers not to make sales to such people. We deplore the manner in which the present state alien land law is heing evaded through the medium of dummy corporations and the assistance of certain attorneys. We earnestly urge all patriotic citizens of Placer County to help maintain the best permanent interests of the county rather than temporary personal gains."

Since the last Federal census (1910) the Japanese hirth rate in California has gone up 1,000 percent and the Japanese-controlled land has increased 1,500 percent. That should he sufficient evidence to convince even California's Governor that a "peaceful invasion" of this state hy the Huns of the Orient is well under way.

United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, while visiting in California the past month, made this puhlic statement: "The yellow peril may yet become a yellow terror. The people of the Pacific Coast may he lulled hy Japanese diplomats, but in my judgment they will soon awaken to the realities confronting them."

For the year endiug June 30, 1919, reported Federal Immigration Commissioner Anthony Caminetti to the United States Senate's Immigration Committee, 9,678 Japanese, illegally in this country, were apprehended and deported. The number not apprehended was not reported. Yet, we are told that Japan always keeps its agreements, hy those in favor of maintaining the "gentlemen's agreement." The system in vogue in Japan knocks all the argument out of the contention that the Japanese government is not responsihle for this evasion, for Japan knows when one of its suhjects leaves that country, and where he is going.

Hurrah for Mrs. Anita Baldwin of Arcadia, Los Angeles County! She has notified fifty Jap families farming 700 acres of her land to vamoose. If every California land-owner would think less of the dollar and more of the state's welfare, the Jap menace would soon be curhed in California.

Startling evidence of the acquirement of valuahle agricultural land in California hy the Japs and the almost phenomenal increase in their population is contained in reports heing received hy the California Oriental Exclusion League from city and county officials of the state.

"Let us fully protect ourselves first, and consider afterwards whether exception can he made with safety to our country," recommends Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner-General of Immigration in his annual report, which gives figures to suhstantiate the claim that a successful "peaceful invasion" is being carried on hy the Japs under the "gentlemen's agreement." That's Americanism—safety first for the United States!

"While we push forward boldly the enemy has no chance to form plans," says the Japanese "New World," and, believe us, the Orientals are pushing forward, having since March of this year grabbed additional acres of California land, in spite of the State's alien land law.

The Placer County Federation of Women's Cluhs has gone on record against the Orientals. No wonder, for over 1,700 acres of old Placer's choicest lands, having an assessed value of more than $60,000, are held by Japanese, and "fake" corporations are heing formed right along to get more. The same condition exists in every other county affected by "Japanitis."

"I sympathize strongly," writes Professor Thomas H. Reed of the Department of Political Science, University of California, "with the general proposition that we should guard carefully against increasing numhers of Japanese in the United States. We have one race prohlem in our country and we cannot afford to allow the intrusion of another."

As evidence that the Japs are heeding the advice of the "Japanese-American" to speed up the Yamato race expansion, the hirth record of Butte County is suhmitted: in three years fifty-one Jap women, mostly "picture brides," gave hirth to ninety-seven children. A similar good production record can he shown hy the Japs of every other county.

"I helieve that this is a struggle between the Caucasian and the Oriental for the possession of the Pacific Coast," United States Senator James D. Phelan has written to the numerous Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters which have forwarded anti-Jap resolutions to Washington, demanding adequate protective laws, "and I am sure you will not tolerate the theft of California. If they want it they must fight for it! We can hold our ground and avert war hy using every lawful means at this time to discourage the presence of these non-assimilahle people. This is our plain duty as Americans." The Pioneers fought to win California for the Union, and, if necessary, their descendants, reinforced hy thousands of other Americans, will fight to save it from the Orientals.

"I deeply regret that our own people, who profess to he real Americans, are going against their own children's future hy selling land to the Orientals," says John J. McCarron of Suisun, in a letter commending The Grizzly Bear for its anti-Jap stand. Regretting the condition does not stop the evil; one thing that will stop it, however, is a law dealing out a long jail sentence to the dollar-hungry land-owner who sells or leases California land directly or indirectly to an Asiatic.

The Grizzly Bear has received many words of commendation for its campaign of puhlicity against the Asiatics, and all are appreciated. This magazine will continue to direct its fire against the Asiatic menace just so long as that menace exists, and no effort will he made to shoot around, under or ahove any person or organization of pro-Japanese tendencies.

If one-half the red tape were employed in keeping foreign radicals out of this country as must he unwound hefore they can he deported, the United States would have fewer of them to contend with.

JAPS IMPERIL PUBLIC HEALTH

THEIR GARDEN TRUCK NOT FIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION

By J. L. Pomeroy, M. D.

(LOS ANGELES COUNTY HEALTH OFFICER.)

OME FIVE YEARS AGO WHEN the writer came into office as Health Officer of Los Angeles County, he was quite astounded to find that one-third of the babies born in the rural districts were Japanese. So far as I know, the public announcement at that time was the first article calling attention to the situation in Los Angeles County. We therefore feel a peculiar interest in this problem, in that our department has been pioneering in the study of this situation.

Success in public health work depends upon the same factors of efficiency such as are well known in modern business. Modern public health, however, relies more and more upon educational methods rather than police methods. Consequently one of the first difficulties that we found in dealing with the Japanese was the lack of a common language. It has been and is still difficult to instruct the Japanese population in the fundamental laws and ordinances on public health of the state and county. When it is considered that about eighty-five percent of our truck garden stuff is handled by the Japanese farmer, and that about fifty percent of the hogs raised in the county are handled by Japanese, and that there are large numbers of Japanese merchants handling more or less of the foodstuffs, the difficulty of proper public health precaution along this line is indeed a serious one. Time and again, on being brought into court, the plaintiff pleads ignorance of the significance of his crime, or claims he was instructed wrongly. The significance and importance of this matter may be made more clear by a few illustrations.

The writer occasionaly makes visits to a sewer-farm, one of the largest in the state, located near Alhambra. Near to this farm there has been an epidemic of typhoid fever. The search for the cause led to a berry-ranch run by Japanese who had leased the privilege from the City of Pasadena. Although they had been instructed by the city officers of Pasadena and hy the county officers, on the day of my visit I found them actually irrigating the plants wits sewage and at the same time picking the berries. Needless to say, drastic measures were taken to stop this practice. Nevertheless, when brought to court, the Japanese farmers claimed complete ignoranee of the law. They were not lacking in legal talent to defend them, inasmuch as they seemed able to employ good attorneys to fight the case. During the past year we have had an increase of typhoid fever in the county which has been traced in every instance to the food supplies, and in many cases to the Japanese farmer.

Again, in dealing with the hog-rauchers, where it is common practice for the Japanese to use the garbage from the cities in the county, we have met with obstinate resistance throughout the whole county. In one case which went to court, the plaintiff went into bankruptcy proceedings to escape the penalties of the law. It seems that in dealing with these cases we are always facing a hidden force bound together for a common purpose, with a strong organization to protect the individual when brought into court. When we consider an area of something like 3,400 square miles, with thousands of individual ranchers to deal with, the difficulties inherent in the lack of understanding is a real menace to our people. This is one of the first big reasons why we should not permit the development on our soil of a large population belonging to an alien race.

Public health officials throughout Southern California are seriously concerned with the danger of importation of other intestinal diseases known only to Japan or the Orient. Such examinations as have been made at immigration stations show that upwards of thirty percent of the Orientals are infected with various forms of dysentery and intestinal worms of grave danger to the health, and which easily might become fastened upon our population. Already several cases of Oriental worms have been discovered in Southern California. With such a large percentage of our foodstuffs handled by the Japanese, we are much alarmed over this problem. The Health Department is seriously handicapped because we have no special investigators to really search the field and find out the extent of this menace. Instances have been discovered, however, where the practice as used in China and Japan of fertilizing the soil with human excrement has been caried out. Since a good percentage of the truck garden stuff, such as strawberries, lettuce, radishes, etc., are eaten raw, it is our opinion that the increase during the past year of dysentery and other intestinal diseases is due to this serious error in public health. How to overcome this is indeed a public question of grave concern.

Again, in the enforcement of the laws relating to quarantine, we have had very serious tronble. On one berry-farm during the past year, where there were several cases of typhoid fever, although I had given very clear instructions as to precautions to be taken, we found the quarantine was being ignored. It was necessary not only to station a guard, but also to chain up the trucks on the place to prevent the crop from being harvested. There is no question that most of this difficulty is due to the lack of understanding of the duty of the citizen to his country and inability to grasp the spirit of community interest against that of individual greed. We find instances where every effort is made to hide sickness and to evade the quarantine laws, all of which makes the work of the Health Officer extremely hard and difficult.

The Japanese claim to be a cleanly race, and yet inspections made throughout the county of the housing conditions scarcely bear this out. The bath-tub as used on a Japanese farm is an imported affair. One tub of water is heated for the entire family group, which often consists of eight or ten people. So far as I know, the water is not changed, but is used by each, in turn, until all are bathed. Facilities for privacy seem to be lacking, and certainly, from a sanitary standpoint, this cannot be too strongly condemned. The care of the food in the Japanese homes is woefully insanitary. Their methods of cooking are primitive. The women seem to have little knowledge of domestic science, and the men often are better able in this respect than the women. The fact that the women work in the fields with their husbands from daylight until dark, undoubtedly accounts for the uncleanly condition of their homes. Whatever the excuse may he, the average Japanese home in the country is dirty and often filthy. The visits of the Health Department furthermore are frequently met with hostility and suspicion. The background for Americanization therefore seems lacking, or at least certainly not yet inspired.

Disposal of waste of all kinds is in many cases so primitive as to cause a nuisance around the house. If it were not for the splendid climate and the abundant sunshine, much more sickness would exist among the Japanese than actually is present.

When United States Senator James D. Phelan addressed the people of Los Angeles, January 5, on the Japanese question, he made the statement that if they knew under what conditions the Japs raised garden truck they would never let a bit of it pass their lips. The Board of Directors of the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association learned from Senator Phelan that he had reference to information given him by Dr. J. L. Pomeroy, Los Angeles County Health Officer.

Dr. Pomeroy was then interviewed, and he revealed startling conditions which had come to his attention in the performance of his official duties; among others, that many of the Jap farmers use human excrement to fertilize growing vegetable plants and strawberry vines. He further stated that on many of the Jap farms he found the filthiest of conditions—conditions which can only he hinted at in public print. The Jap farmers employ here the methods approved of in their native land, having respect for neither the laws nor customs of this country, for they are here solely for the purpose of Japanizing California.

Dr. Pomeroy prepared the accompanying article for The Grizzly Bear. It sets forth some of the conditions affecting the public health that exist on Los Angeles County Jap farms in defiance of the health laws, and similar conditions exist in every farming community in the state where the Japs have colonized. Is it not about time for The People to take action to clean up and keep out this yellow peril?—Editor.

As before mentioned, we regard this situation as peculiarly dangerous to the public health owing to the fact that the Japanese are engaged so largely in the production of food products. If disease becomes prevalent on the farm, it will spread into the city. The problem is very diffuse, and by its very diffuseness it becomes extremely difficult of control. We see, therefore, that the danger of the growth in Southern California of a large element of a foreign race, possesses infinite capacity for harm to public health, and that this danger is a real one not to be hidden by any political question. The problem has been very seriously neglected. The Health Department is woefully handicapped for the necessary inspectors to combat it. It is only of very recent date that the public has shown a serious interest, and we hope that the public health aspect will not be neglected. Whatever the outcome of the question of Japanese immigration for the future, those who are here must not be neglected, for our own protection.

A further factor, from the standpoint of public health, is the extreme fertility of the Japanese race. From tabulations made in the Health Department, the birth rate of the Japanese has risen from seventeen per thousand population in 1910 to sixty-two per thousand in 1918. Furthermore, during the same period the white birth rate has remained almost stationary, except for the immigration from the East. In actual percentage of total births, the whites have decreased in the state almost six per cent in the last eight years. As before stated, in the rural districts of Los Angeles County during the last four years, the Japanese births have ranged from twenty-seven to thirty-five percent of the total births for the unincorporated districts. When it is understood that the proportion of children to potential mothers is much less for California than for the entire nation, the seriousness of this problem becomes apparent. Whereas the birth rate for the entire nation for 1917 was twenty-four and six tenths per thousand, the birth rate for California was only seventeen. Since we have been facing a declining birth rate due to the complex factors relating to modern life, the tremendous fertility of the Japanese, being almost four times that of the whites, is of real serious moment. It is estimated in our department that if the present conditions continue without corrective legislation, in just about a century the Japanese population will equal if not overshadow that of the white race in California.

The question is, what will the people of California do to prevent the Japanization of this state? Whatever is done for the future, we beg of the public not to forget the serious need of additional work along the lines of public health during the coming year.

COLLECTIVE THINKING BRINGS DEVELOPMENT

(JOHN J. McCARRON.)

FOR CULTURE IMPLYING GROWTH, THE unfolding of the heart and mind that comes from contact with what is best, I believe the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West has written within the teachings of its precepts wonderful tools of development. It is not the individual thinker who accomplishes the great things of today; on the contrary, it is the individual thinking of all of us in a collective way. By collective thinking, I mean the bringing together of the best and cleanest thoughts of every Native Son.

California thrives and succeeds only as her children thrive and succeed. It is the meeting of minds, or, rather, the collective thinking of all of us, that develops the state and her people. When we are called together to discuss some important question, it is the collective thinking of every one present that either brings success or failure. The collective thinkers in California today should be the Native Sons, for upon what transpires in the meeting-halls of the different Parlors the future of California depends. The urgent concern of the hour is not what has happened in the past or is happening in the present, but what does the future hold in store for us. I say, it holds in store just what each one of us puts in. If we put in only small thoughts, consequently only small thoughts will develop.

It cannot be a delusive hope that we may yet see the time when the strong may recognize that they are but stewards of their strength for the care of the weak. Our Order never cast a shadow upon a home, never wounded a human heart, and never wronged a human soul. It is never deaf to the cry of the needy, never blind to the wants of the deserving, and its broad and noble heart promptly responds to the call of the erring and the cry for help. It is one of the mighty forces of today working for the betterment of California and towards the upbuilding of California's young men. It deserves the honor due for its great work of goodness. While at times we may seem to have limits, our general tendency is to broaden the human heart and make it capable of including within its sympathies all the men of our race, instead of those who are confined within the limits of narrow channels of thought. We are striving to make men and women happier by making them better, and in this task we have enlisted a great army of hopeful workers. Year by year this great work is moving forward towards the goal of our brightest dreams.

We need to form a cordon of strong hearts to ward off temptations from our brothers, and to keep them from the hands of the destroyer. True brotherhood should make much of this. Warding off the outward ills, which affect the body or the home merely, is not sufficient to meet the needs of men. We need to help in warding off those evils which reach the very vitals of true manhood. The temptations which fight against the life, and the lusts which war against the soul, need, most of all, to be guarded against. The alien hands which strip the soul of its robe of purity and righteous character must be restrained.

We are told the Roman soldiers carried large, oblong shields on their left arms. When a city was besieged, the men, in close rank, locked their shields together over their heads and then marched in safety to the gate. Lock your shields (the emblem of our Order) over your heads, Native Sons of the Golden West, as you march against the vicissitudes, the trials, and the temptations of life—and not over your own heads alone, but also above those of others who may seek shelter beneath them!

Gather as often as possible in the meeting-room, and assist, to the extent of your ability, to fan the fire into a bright and constant glow that shall warm into friendships, loyal and lasting, and which, gradually extending with the growth of the Order, will tend to better assist in the development of our beautiful California!

TO THE LIVE OAK

(ESTHER CRONE.)

Oh, stalwart tower of spreading green,
That stands a maze of shady sheen
To one in passing by,
We look on thee with pride and awe
And wonder by what marvelous law
You were not made to die.

Are all the years that are to be Assigned to only just a tree
That you be called alive?
We wonder then when all is done,
And Time has all his courses run,
If you will still survive.

Los Angeles, California.

FIRST SOLDIER SETTLEMENT

CALIFORNIA, ALWAYS TO THE FOREfront, will start this month, at Delhi, Merced County, the first soldier settlement in the United States, according to an announcement of the California Land Settlement Board made by Chairman Elwood Meade, Professor of Rural Institutions in the University of California.

The Delhi settlement, financed by the State of California, is to consist of about forty farms and twenty farm worker's allotments, the farms comprising from ten to eighty acres and the allotments from two to four acres. Farms suited to general crops or dairying will be from sixty to eighty acres in size; those suited to growing orchards and vegetables about forty acres; while farms for poultry raisers will contain about ten acres.

Referring to the purchase of this Merced County land, Dr. Meade made this pertinent statement: "Two things make this purchase of unusual significance. It will be the first soldier settlement in the United States, and it will be an all-American colony placed between a Japanese colony already established and one for which land has been bought. Parties representing Japanese buyers sought to acquire this tract."

Delhi will be the community center. Plans for its development include water works, sewerage system, railway tracks, fruit shipping platforms, canning factories and other industrial plants. Employment on farms, in the construction of irrigating ditches, or in improving the Delhi townsite will be assured. Several farm worker's homes are already under construction.

The settlement is in the center of a large melon and fruit-growing district. The soil is sandy, the surrounding land being used for growing alfalfa, fruits and vegetables, and especially sweet potatoes. The Land Settlement Board has purchased 100,000 rooted vines, five tons of alfalfa seed and several tons of seed rye, to be sold to settlers at cost. It plans to plant eucalyptus and other trees suitable for growing wind breaks. It has also announced its plan to secure peach, apricot and fig trees for the settlers. The College of Agriculture of the University of California has prepared a circular especially for settlers on the planting of trees, vines and vegetables. General practical suggestions are also contained in the circular.

The land offered is crossed by the State Highway and the Southern Pacific Railway, the station being in the center of the tract. Nearly all the farms are in sight of the highway and the railroad, many of them adjoining the former, and all of them being within a radius of three miles of the station. The farm worker's allotments are to be located close to the town of Delhi or along the State Highway.

This is the second tract of land purchased by the State for colonization, the first being in Butte County, where the Durham Colony has proven a wonderful success. The conditions governing the purchase of land in the Delhi Settlement will be the same as those of the Durham Colony, but returned American soldiers will be given exclusive consideration in making the allotments at Delhi.

JUST BREAD AND A CHANCE

THIS IS THE CRY WHICH IS BEING made across the seas today to every loyal native son and daughter of California—a cry from the starving thousands of Armenia and Syria. And, despite the miles that intervene, California is responding, and her response is being made in the form of a campaign for funds, waged by the Near East Relief. Judge Hugh N. Wells is chairman of the campaign.

There are numerous vividly dramatic and appealing features of the campaign: among them, the fact that the fate of 50,000 Armenian girls, mostly under 15 years of age, depend on whether this campaign is successful or not. They are girls held in Moslem harems, the mark of shame upon their brows. The entente military authorities, upon taking charge in Constantinople, ordered their release—but so pitiful were the conditions under which they would have been turned free, that the Christian missionaries begged to have the order rescinded until America could send money for the care of these girls.

So they are being held in the harems, as slaves of the Turks, till that time because to release them would be merely to drive them out into the streets with unknown dangers ahead. It takes $200 to free one girl from a harem and keep her protected and safe for a year while she has her chance to start over again. These girls, by the way, were dragged from happy Armenian homes into the harems because they refused to renounce God and adopt the Moslem faith.

Another feature of the work lies in the fact that there are 250,000 starving orphans to be cared for. One hundred and fifty little children died last year because there were no funds to save them from death.

"Will the native sons and daughters of God's own land, the Golden State, be responsible for more deaths during this year, or will they give to the Near East Relief campaign?" is the question asked from headquarters.

The drive for funds will close February 22, George Washington's birthday, and Americans will be given an opportunity to make a real celebration by extending the hand of fellowship and help to the suffering Armenians across the sea.

Population Grows; More Schools Necessary.

The Fresno City Board of Education has just let contracts for five new school buildings to cost $238,000. A contract for the new $2,000,000 high school building will be let during February. The new buildings are required to take care of the rapidly growing population.

Specialists Look Into Wine Grape Problem.

California grapes used for wine making before prohibition are likely to find other outlets never thought of before, says the Federal Agricultural Department, which has had specialists in the field. The problem, however, is still a big one.

Have Faith in Home City.

The people of Pittsburg, in Contra Costa County, one of California's most progressive little cities, have voted $500,000 for public improvements.

FRANK MATTISON IS NO MORE

PAST GRAND PRESIDENT, N.S.G.W., PASSES AWAY AT SANTA CRUZ

FRANK MATTISON, PAST GRAND President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, passed away at his Santa Cruz home January 15. While he had been in poor health for some time, his death was not expected, and the announcement that he had departed this life was a shock to his numerous friends. While reading the morning paper, he quietly entered the eternal sleep.

Deceased was born at Soquel, Santa Cruz County, February 5, 1860, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mattison, long dead, coming across the plains to California in 1849. "Frank's" earlier life was spent on the family farm, and he received his education in the schools of Soquel and Santa Cruz. In 1880 he engaged in business in Santa Cruz, and in 1890 was elected assessor of the county, filling that position with marked efficiency for twelve years. In 1902, he was elected a member of the State Board of Equalization from the Fourth District, and served four years. After being in business in San Francisco for several years, he returned in 1915 to his home-city, Santa Cruz, which he loved so well, and assumed the management of a land title company, of which he was the founder. At the last city election he was elected commissioner of public health and safety. Surviving are the widow who, as Miss Carrie A. Peck of Soquel, he wedded November 6, 1883, and a daughter, Lila.

Funeral services were conducted from the Congregational Church of Santa Cruz, January 17, and were attended by large delegations of the many fraternities with which he was affiliated, city and county officials and hundreds of other admiring friends. In attendance, representing the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., were Grand President William P. Caubu, Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung, Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington and Past Grand President Judge Frank H. Dunne. Great quantities of flowers and floral-pieces filled the church altar, in the center of the floral wealth standing the gates ajar, sent by the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W.

Rev. A. W. Hare conducted the funeral services, and the church quartet rendered several selections. Carl C. Kratzenstein, mayor of Santa Cruz City and a past president of Santa Cruz Parlor, No. 90, N.S.G.W., pronounced the eulogy. He said that in the death of Frank Mattison, Santa Cruz had lost one of its most stalwart citizens. "Frank," he said, "was the word of honor, and not one word of mine can add to or detract from the nobility of his character." He referred to deceased as a councilor whose life was worthy of emulation, and closed with the admonition, often uttered by deceased: "If you have roses to strew, strew them while the eye is still keen to see and the ear still alert to hear." A long line of autos followed the remains to their last resting place in the Soquel cemetery, where deceased's father, mother and daughter are buried.

Frank Mattison was a past president of Santa Cruz Parlor, No. 90, N.S.G.W., with which he affiliated September 30, 1886. He represented the Parlor as a delegate in the Tenth (Nevada City '87), Eleventh (Fresno '88) and Fourteenth (Santa Rosa '91) Grand Parlors. He was first elected to Grand Parlor office at the Eleventh Session, when he was chosen Grand Marshal, to which office he was again elected at the Fourteenth Session. At the Seventeenth (Eureka '94) and Eighteenth (Oakland '95) Sessions he was elected Grand Trustee, Grand Orator—an office since abolished—at the Nineteenth (San Luis Obispo '96) Session, Grand Second Vice-president at the Twentieth (Redwood City '97) Session, Grand First Vice-president at the Twenty-first (Nevada City '98) Session, and Grand President at the Twenty-second (Saliuas '99) Session. He presided at the Twenty-third (Oroville 1900) Grand Parlor, becoming a Past Grand President at its close. Since retiring from office in the Grand Parlor, however, he had attended every session, including the Forty-second (Yosemite Valley) last year.

During the term of Grand President Mattison these Parlors were instituted: Cape Horn 203 (Colfax), Sunrise 204 (Pinole), Carquinez 205 (Crockett), Bear Flag (now Petaluma) 27 (Petaluma), Hanford 37, Pomona 174, St. Helena 53, Rainbow 40 (Wheatland), Sotoyome (now Healdsburg), 68 (Healdsburg), Oakdale 142, Los Banos 206, Madera 130, Army and Navy 207 and Dolores 208 (San Francisco). Of them, Nos. 203, 204, 37, 174, 206, 130 and 207 have ceased to exist.

A TRUE NATIVE SON

(WILLIAM P. CAUBU, Grand President.)

Another of our Past Grand Presidents has passed on to the Heavenly Parlor on High. After many years of service to the Grand Parlor, an active life in business and in the affairs of the city in which he lived, Brother Frank Mattison has gone to his Maker.

While many of the younger members of the Grand Parlor may not have known Brother Mattison as well as they did some of the other Past Grand Presidents, he was one of those who was always present at the Grand Parlor. While he did not always actively participate in its affairs, he was there, being drawn to the sessions by his love for and loyalty to those whom he knew so well in the days long gone by—those days, some twenty and more years ago, when he governed the affairs of the Order. His greatest pleasure and happiness came from those meetings, when the older members who cherished the joys when they were giving their best for the Order, enjoyed the telling of its growth and of its accomplishments through the years.

Our Grand Parlors have meant much to Brother Frank Mattison and the other Past Grand Presidents; their memories have been delightful ones. I know that at the next Grand Parlor there will be tears of sadness for the heavy loss we have sustained during this year; it will be especially sad for those who long ago ruled our Grand Parlor.

On a recent visit to his Parlor, Santa Cruz, No. 90, I missed his cheerful greeting. I was informed of his illness, and with the members of his Parlor feared its seriousness. He was a most loyal member of his Parlor. It was his delight to associate with its younger men, and they enjoyed and respected his counsel; by them his loss will be keenly felt. His was always to them the example of a true Native Son; his life exemplified to them all of the precepts of our Order. Because he lived as he lived—strong in his attachments, constant in his purposes, and fraternal to his fellow-men—the memory of Past Grand President Frank Mattison will be everlasting, not only in Santa Cruz Parlor, but throughout the Order.

And as he lies sleeping beside his parents in the old cemetery at Soquel, may his spirit ever be with us, gently guiding our thoughts in our work of love for California, the State he loved so well.

A GOOD CITIZEN

(Editor E. J. DEVLIN, in Santa Cruz News.)

Frank Mattison was of a fine type of public official, a good citizen, a kindly, generous man whose friendships were many and warm. Our acquaintance with him dates back many years, to a day when we sat as a reporter at the meetings of the State Board of Equalization, and Mr. Mattison was a member thereof. His influence on that board was marked. He possessed a superior knowledge of the subjects with which the board had to deal, and his judgment was often appealed to and generally prevailed.

It is customary to think that only under the new dispensation have things gone right in California, but there were bright minds in the old days, too, and while the laws limited authority now exercised to extreme lengths, there was nevertheless call for much ability—a call which Mr. Mattison in his position fully answered.

It is indeed regrettable that his failing health did not enable him to become the factor in the city council he surely would have been in his full physical powers. But he did the best of which he was able in this as in every other post in which the people placed him. His death will be deplored by the people of Santa Cruz City and County, and his family will have the public's heartfelt sympathy.

A FAITHFUL FRIEND

(H. C. LICHTENBERGER, Past Grand President.)

When Past Grand President Frank Mattison passed out of this life, the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West lost a member who held as priceless the friendship of his brothers.

Frank Mattison always traveled the path of right; he was true to his God, his home, and his country. Wherever he went he scattered kindly deeds and words. He invariably expressed sorrow for the misfortunes of others, and was always glad of their successes. He had no harsh word for a neighbor's weaknesses, and no mean motive ever prompted his acts.

As a friend, his broadmindedness caused him to place a charitable construction on the words and deeds of others, and in the debates of the Grand Parlor he never showed a spirit of resentment when his views were opposed.

The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West will miss Frank Mattison; more particularly so the Past Grand Presidents, with whom he had, in the later years, been more closely associated. He never missed a meeting of the Grand Parlor, and always seemed to get his keenest pleasure from the annual reunion of the "old guard." The Past Grand Presidents have, indeed, not only lost a friend, but a comrade who exemplified the cardinal principle of Friendship in its fullest measure.

There has never been associated with the Order one more sincere in his devotion to its success, or who guarded its interests more zealously, or who felt a greater pride in its accomplishments, than this deceased son of California.

His work is finished, but his memory will always cast its shining light, to point the way all real men and true Native Sons should travel.

GEORGE DRYDEN PASSES ON

George H. S. Dryden died in San Francisco January 8, and with his passing the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West lost one of its most loyal, beloved and enthusiastic members. He was born at San Francisco August 18, 1865, and for nearly thirty-three years had been connected with the Order, joining Rincon Parlor, No. 72 (San Francisco), April 6, 1887.

He was enrolling clerk in the State Legislature in 1886-1887, deputy city and county recorder of San Francisco, 1888 to 1892, and wharfinger and assistant chief wharfinger under the harbor commissioners at San Francisco, 1894 to 1903. He was sergeant-at-arms of the California delegation to the Republican National Conventions at Minneapolis in 1904 and at Chicago in 1908. For the sixteen years immediately preceding his death, he had served as deputy clerk of the Supreme Court of California.

George Dryden was a delegate from Rincon Parlor to the Grand Parlor at Chico in 1890, and attended nearly all Grand Parlors since, including the one last year in the Yosemite Valley. He was elected Grand Marshal of the Order at Sacramento in 1893, and had served on many of the important committees of the Grand Parlor, being a member of the Finance Committee during the years 1917, 1918 and 1919. He was a member of no fraternity other than the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, and to that he gave the patriotic efforts of a loyal and upright citizen. He loved his country, was a devoted and tender husband, and a true and steadfast friend. Surviving are the widow, Mary A. Dryden, and a son, Joseph B. Dryden (Stanford 76, N.S.G.W.), secretary to the justices of the California Supreme Court.

SAN DIEGO GRAND PARLOR

SAN DIEGO PARLOR, NO. 108, NATIVE Sons of the Golden West, has plans well under way for the Forty-third Grand Parlor which will convene in San Diego City Monday, April 19, for a week's deliberation. Ever since the Yosemite Grand Parlor last June, when San Diego was unanimously selected for this year's meeting-place, the members of San Diego Parlor, under the leadership of President A. P. Johnson, Jr., have been continuously at work. As a result, many new members have been added and everything is in tip-top shape for the gathering.

This will be the first Grand Parlor ever held in San Diego, where California had its beginning, and it will be the largest-attended in the history of the Order, for San Diego has historic attractions of particular interest to Native Sons. Large delegations will accompany the delegates of each Parlor, all bent on spending a week's vacation in the far-south city as the guests of San Diego Parlor. And the City of San Diego, along with the local Natives, will give them a royal welcome. The business interests are co-operating with the Parlor in every way. That it will be a wonderful Grand Parlor, is assured.

San Diego knows how to entertain, for it has been the host-city of many important gatherings. Its attractions are numberless, and it has accommodations to handle a crowd of unlimited numbers. The entertainment program being prepared for the Grand Parlor is an elaborate one, and will occupy every minute of the time not devoted to the business affairs of the Order. A trip to Tia Juana, across the border into Mexico, is one of the features, and as it is always wet there, rubber-boots should find a place in the visitor's suitcase.

HANDLING THE DETAILS.

A. P. Johnson, Jr., president San Diego Chamber of Commerce, is chairman of the General Committee of San Diego Parlor, N.S.G.W., arranging for the Grand Parlor, and R. B. Whitcomb secretary. They, with the following, compose the Executive Committee: L. C. Masten, Ernest E. White, W. E. Agard, Dr. J. Ross Hardy, Arthur C. Krause. The many details connected with the state meeting are in charge of these sub-committees:

GEORGE H. S. DRYDEN.

Funeral services for faithful "George" were conducted January 10 from the San Francisco residence of deceased by the officers of Rincon Parlor, and were attended by a large number of members of the fraternity and friends, including the chief justice and associate justices of the Supreme Court and of the District Court of Appeal, First District. Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington, representing the Grand Parlor, delivered the funeral address and spoke feelingly of the high character and ability of the deceased and of the sterling qualities of mind and heart which had endeared him to the members of the Order and to the hundreds of friends who cherish his memory.

GRAND PARLOR NEWS.

During March, Subordinate Parlors will elect their delegates to the San Diego Grand Parlor, and many will have increased representation. While rumors of several candidates for the various Grand Parlor offices are rife, until after the delegates are chosen, hats will not be thrown into the ring. The Grizzly Bear, however, has this definite information:

Grand Trustee William J. Hayes (Berkeley 210) will be a candidate for Grand Third Vice-president.

Grand Marshal James A. Wilson (Rincon 72) will seek one of the seven places on the Board of Grand Trustees.

Grand Outside Sentinel I. H. Reuter (Yosemite 24) will ask advancement to Grand Inside Sentinel.

Judge William A. Langdon (Modesto 11), at present Grand Trustee, will not be a candidate for any office, his judicial duties requiring all of his time.

Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung (Stanford 76) and Grand Treasurer John E. McDougald (California 1) are not likely to be opposed for re-election.

The usual custom of advancing the higher officials will prevail, so that unless some unforeseen influence intervenes, at the San Diego Grand Parlor

James F. Hoey (Mt. Diablo 101), Grand First Vice-president, will be elected Grand President.

William I. Traeger (Ramona 109), Grand Second Vice-president, will be advanced to Grand First Vice-president, and Harry G. Williams (Oakland 50), Grand Third Vice-president, to Grand Second Vice-president.

Sacramento has announced its intention of asking for the 1921 Grand Parlor, and will send a big delegation to San Diego.

No place, so far as The Grizzly Bear has been advised, is seeking this year's Admission Day celebration, but there will no doubt be seekers after this honor in due time. The last Grand Parlor revived the general state celebration.

MENDOCINO COAST PEOPLE WELCOME THE NEW YEAR.

Fort Bragg—1919 was bid adieu and 1920 was given a rousing welcome at the New Year ball of Alder Glen Parlor, No. 200, N.S.G.W., which was a pronounced success in every particular. The many people of the Mendocino coast who attended now realize that the Native Sons know how to entertain in royal style.

A canopy of evergreen stringers, interwoven with small colored electric lights, flakes of cotton and red Christmas bells made up the main decorations, while the walls and stage were cleverly banked with greens. Old Glory and State (Bear) Flags were also very conspicuous in the decorative scheme.

A most unique and pleasing effect was obtained in the moonlight waltzes, when only the small colored lights were left burning. A spotlight which was occasionally cast about the hall also added to the nicety of this occasion.

When a large bell from behind the scenes struck the hour of midnight, the merry whirl of dancers was showered with confetti and serpentine from the gallery. Then the horns and other noise machines were turned loose and, to be sure, a cordial welcome was extended.

FIFTY YEARS AGO IN CALIFORNIA

A RESUME OF INTERESTING HAPPENINGS IN FEBRUARY, 1870

By Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

FEBRUARY 9, 1870, A MODERATE storm prevailed in California, north of Tehachapi, followed by another on February 18, which lasted a week and copiously watered the great interior valleys—the Sacramento and San Joaquin. It gave crops and feed sufficient moisture to carry them on. A terrific gale preceded the storm, doing a great amount of damage to property that could be blown down.

A heavy snowfall prevailed in the Sierras, and February 24 a snowslide three miles east of Summit, Placer County, carried down the mountain side several hundred feet of Central Pacific snow sheds. At the end of the month the rainfall for the season at Sacramento amounted to 9:40 inches.

In the southern part of the state, drought conditions became a stern reality. While a small precipitation had occurred previous to December, no rain had fallen in that section for nearly three months, and grass was drying up, feed for stock was getting scarce and the largest herds and flocks were being gathered for driving north to pasture. Temporary relief was given by a few showers in the middle of February, but a serious outlook existed at the end of the month.

A Santa Barbara editor had the following logical view of the situation: "Santa Barbara County can afford to suffer a drought year if our people will thereby learn a lesson. When this was a 'cow country' it would do to buy everything, even vegetables, from abroad, but this time has passed away and will not return. We are now in the transition from stock raising to agriculture; but few are producers, while all are consumers. Our farmers are buying potatoes from San Francisco; we produce no flour; we buy our bacon from Oregon, and in exchange sell a few beans. Is the county to blame? Not at all!

"It is a marvelously prolific county. But we buy everything we eat and wear, and sell almost nothing. We cannot put on a clean shirt unless we get soap and starch from abroad. We must reverse this false economy and produce what we eat, drink and wear. We must exchange commodities which we can produce in abundance and which we can ship at a profit for such things as we cannot produce or manufacture."

It was reported a large number of cattle-buyers from the northern portion of the state had gone south to buy the cheap cattle reported there. A Montana buyer purchased 1,000 California-bred horses in Los Angeles at $8 a head.

Pioneer Dean Tells How Tahoe Got Its Name.

The Legislature continued its session in an uneventful way. Bills to create the new county of Anaheim out of a part of Los Angeles County, the county of Donner out of Placer and Nevada Counties, and San Benito out of Monterey County were introduced, but only the latter was passed.

A bill to allow the Mercantile Library of San Francisco to conduct a lottery, to raise needed funds, opened a pandora box for schemes of this character that seduced many hard-earned dollars from the pockets of our citizens.

The controversy caused by the Assembly bill to legalize the name of Lake Bigler—the designation once given Lake Tahoe—opened the way for a large number of newspaper correspondents to write their views. One advocated the name of Lake Union, and another that of Calvada, because the lake was in California and Nevada. Another stated that Tahoe was a corruption of the Spanish name "Tejon," which had been given the lake by its Spanish discoverers; "Tejon" meant badger, and as the lake shores were prolific with badgers, hence its name.

But the most interesting and reliable communication on the subject was that of R. G. Dean who, in 1863, built the Lake House near the outlet of the lake and established the first tourist resort on the lake. He stated that Judge S. Dean, W. Van Wagner and himself, dissatisfied with the name of "Bigler," decided upon giving the lake an Indian name. He suggested "Washoe," on account of that tribe of Indians frequenting the lake. Meeting Captain Jim of the Washoe tribe, Dean ascertained from him that the Indians called the lake "Taa-oo," the accent being on the first syllable, meaning "big water." A postoffice was established at the Lake House, and that name given to it by the Government, the spelling, probably suggested by Van Wagner, being Tahoe. A small village grew about the Lake House and to this was given the name of Taboe City, and at the suggestion of Judge Dean, through the newspapers, the name of "Tahoo" became the popular name of the lake and a political shibboleth for many years, as the dyed-in-the-wool Democrats stuck to the name of "Bigler."

There was a heavy shock of earthquake in San Francisco at 12 minutes after 12 o'clock, noon, February 17, which caused a big panic in all the places where people were congregated and a wild rush for the street. Little damage was done. One prominent citizen, taking a bath in the Occidental Hotel, rushed out onto Montgomery street naked, but didn't attract much attention. The quake was felt in the adjoining counties, but was not as severe there as in the city.

Women Suffrage Lecturers Appear.

A woman's suffrage club of about fifty prominent women of Sacramento was organized February 3 and began its forty-five years' campaign for the privilege of voting. Mrs. M. S. B. Lewis was selected president, and Mrs. Mattie Shaw secretary; Mrs. Sarah Folger, Mrs. A. Wilsey and Georgiana Brewster were named directors. A big mass meeting was held in the evening in a well-filled hall and addressed by several suffering women.

A number of women suffrage lecturers now began to circulate through the state, and the description of one by a reporter, as she appeared upon the platform, may give a pointer to some of our Native Daughters on how to captivate an audience: "Womanly unpunctual, she came before her waiting audience with a light springing step and on the verge of the stage stopped unembarrassed and graceful with a charmingly affected nonchalance. She remained silent and motionless for a few moments, then she put her pretty head on one side like a canary bird catching on a lump of sugar, pressed one finger a moment to her rosy lips, and then began her lecture."

Ex-Senator Milton S. Latham was married in San Francisco, February 23, to a leading society belle, Miss Mollie W. McMullen. The wedding was a great social event.

The annual report of the Central Pacific railroad, submitted this month, showed it earned in 1869 a gross $5,670,822.25 and had expenses of $4,877,277. It now had 147 engines, 137 passenger, 24 baggage, mail and express and 1,529 freight cars.

The California Pacific Railroad completed its track and began to operate trains to Marysville, Yuba County, February 22.

The Southern Pacific Railroad began construction of its line south from Lathrop, San Joaquin County, this month, and had six miles of track laid.

John A. Ball of Grass Valley, Nevada County, obtained a patent for a dredger operated with an endless chain equipped with buckets. This was the predecessor of our present efficient dredger system.

A small shipment of oranges from San Bernardino was made by express to New York City as an experiment.

Nevada County Big Gold Producer.

A rich strike was made February 1 in the Good Friday mine between Auburn and Ophir, in Placer County. At a depth of forty feet, a vein of quartz was found that carried a proportion of an ounce of gold to a pound of quartz, or nearly $40,000 a ton. In three days over $30,000 in gold was taken out, with more to follow. Cowan & Battis, who were sinking the shaft, were, as was frequently the case, miners who had their share of hard luck. They were heavily in debt for grub, tools and labor, and nearly at the quitting time of their prospecting venture when they made the strike.

Webster and Co., at Randolph Flat, Nevada County, struck a channel where the gravel paid an average of $3 to the pan. One pan yielded an ounce of gold dust. Quite a mining excitement ensued, and several miles of claims were staked off.

The lads attending school at Gold Flat, Nevada County, during their noon recess spent their time sinking prospect holes on some quartz croppings near the school-house. Johnny Johnson, 12 years old, and Henry Bouviere, 11 years old, at a depth of ten feet in their prospect hole, uncovered a gold-bearing ledge of quartz eighteen inches wide. A piece of quartz about a pound in weight was shown, speckled with gold. With seven of their schoolmates they located a claim of 1,000 feet covering the find.

The Eureka mine, at Grass Valley, Nevada County, was yielding at this time $2,000 a day.

The Brown mine at You Bet, Nevada County, cleaned up ninety pounds of gold, valued at over $18,000, this month.

A nugget weighing a half-ounce was picked up by a 7-year-old boy on La Fayette street, Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, February 14.

A coal vein, a few inches wide, was discovered near Hollister, San Benito County, and a company formed to develop it.

Walnut growing in Los Angeles County began to attract attention. There were about 5,000 trees reported as nut bearing, and an average crop of $30 a tree was estimated.

Ninety artesian wells were being sunk in Los Angeles County, and water in ample supply was being found, depths varying from 70 to 200 feet.

Valentine's Day, February 14, seems to have been popularly observed in San Francisco. One stationery firm reported selling 30,000 valentines, and had twelve messengers employed delivering them.

Strawberries Bring 50c a Box in Los Angeles.

A. Booth, the oyster man of Chicago, who was shipping a refrigerator car loaded with oysters each week from Baltimore to San Francisco, decided to load a return car with Sacramento River fresh salmon. He sent a steamer to Collinsville and Rio Vista and gathered about 400 fish averaging thirty pounds in weight and shipped them to Chicago and New York, February 16. The shipment arrived in New York in fine condition, and the fish were quickly sold at a good price.

S. S. Tilden, prominent in San Francisco, caused a sensation by bringing a suit to declare ex-Governor and Minister to China F. F. Low an involuntary bankrupt.

C. E. Williams near Castroville, Monterey County, sowed forty acres to English mustard. He had a contract for the sale of the crop.

Strawberries were on the Los Angeles market at 50 cents a box.

The ship "Golden Gate," Captain Swinton, arrived in San Francisco from Liverpool February 26. The voyage consumed 100 days and was, to date, the quickest on record.

A frolic in the snow and a grand ball were given at the New Summit hotel by James Cordwell, proprietor, on the summit of the Sierra Nevadas, February 8. Special rates and trains of the Central Pacific brought a large attendance from Sacramento and way points. One of the floor managers at the ball was E. Black Ryan, the veteran Southern Pacific employe.

The Martinetti troupe, with La Rita Sangali as premier danseuse and twenty coryphees were playing the "Black Crook" to crowded houses in the cities of the state.

Ole Bull, the famous violinist, came to the state to give a number of concerts. He made a tour in 1854 and was full of reminiscenses of that visit.

Camilla Orso organized and conducted a series of grand concerts in San Francisco, for the benefit of the Mercantile Library, during the week of February 21, and attracted thousands of music lovers from the interior and large audiences in the city. February 22 the "Anvil Chorus" was rendered by a chorus of 900 voices and an orchestra of 240 instruments with a bass drum eight feet in diameter. Sixty firemen manipulated hammers on thirty anvils and six cannons were fired by electricity. While the acousties of the Mechanic Pavilion, where the concerts were given, were bad for the listeners to hear harmony, the noise of the anvil chorus was listened to by seven or eight thousand people on the outside. February 24, over 3,000 school-children sang the "Star Spangled Banner." The receipts of the concerts were about $50,000 and the expenses nearly half as much.

Tong War in San Francisco.

The Davenport Brothers were giving spiritual manifestations to large audiences in San Francisco, and exciting great interest in their mystifying maneuvers.

Professor Carl Bosco, in slight-of-hand performances and an expose of the spirit tricks of the Davenport Brothers, was a big counter attraction.

The arrival in San Francisco of Rudolph, the champion billiard player of Chicago, to challenge Deery for a championship cue game, created a furore with the devotees of that sport, and the billiard parlors where these experts practiced in the evenings were crowded to their capacity.

Deery and Dion played another match game of billiards February 3, 1,500 points for $2,000 a side and the door receipts. It was played in Platt's Hall, San Francisco, and standing room was at a premium, so large an audience attended. Deery won in 81 innings, Dion making only 1,044 points.

The biennial back race was trotted, or, rather, galloped, at Sacramento, February 8, for a trophy of a fine pair of horse blankets. This contest arose through the baiting of the hackmen who had their

THE "MASTER SLEEPER" STILL SLEEPS

The Governor of California still "sidesteps" the Japanese menace, and refuses to call the State Legislature into extra session, although many of his closest supporters have recently added their appeals to the thousands that have been made by individuals and organizations. Can it be possible that he is so well satisfied with the letter of thanks from the Japanese Association of California for his inaction that he cannot be moved to action by the appeals and protests of those concerned solely with the welfare of California, or is he solicitous of the welfare of those white-Jap real estate dealers and attorneys who are waxing fat off the yellow-Japs?

The Governor, according to a public statement made at Sacramento, January 15, by Assemblyman Maurice B. Browne of Tuolumne County—which, by the way, is not a Jap-infested county—"attributes the present anti-Japanese campaign to political aspirations on the part of [two individuals], and said he would not allow such a movement to force him into calling a special session of the Legislature." Even were the Governor correct in his assumption, he has taken a position entitling him to severest criticism when he obstructs the protection of California, whose welfare should be his first and only concern, because of the political ambitions of two individuals. Really, it is he himself who has found it necessary to inject petty politics into a question upon the immediate settlement of which depends the State's future well-being.

But the Governor is wrong in his assumption, and he knows it! Even were he right, however, would it not be far better for a couple of American individuals to gain political advantages than to sacrifice the land of California to Japs? Speaking of them collectively—for there may be associated with the anti-Japanese movement, as with all movements, a few who are seeking personal benefit—those endeavoring to secure necessary State legislation to squelch the Japs' "peaceful invasion" scheme are not concerned with the political ambitions of any individual, and the Governor well knows this, also, to be a fact. His expressed political fear is but another subterfuge to evade doing his duty in a vitally-important situation.

It is a foregone conclusion that if the Legislature is called into special session laws adequate to protect California from the Japs will be passed. The Governor knows this, too, and it is very likely that knowledge which is responsible for his taking the position he does—at the head of the "stalling" politician class. He has admitted the Jap situation is a serious one, there are unmberless undeniable facts upon which to base legislative action, and there are laws which only the State can enact to stop the spread of Japanitis. And so, it is not unfair to the Governor to assume, because of his persistent refusal to act, that either he does not favor putting any obstacles in the way of the Japs' progress in California or he is actuated by some as yet unrevealed motive.

We admit our inability to fathom the Governor's position on the Japanese situation. January 11 he got so excited over a proposed prizefight at Tia Juana, across the border from San Diego in Mexico, that he declared to the Associated Press that "It is my duty to command respect for the laws of California!" Get that? If it is his duty, and it assuredly is, to command respect for the laws of California, why does he not command respect for the land laws? Why is he so muchly concerned about the State's prizefight law which may be indirectly disrespected by a very few people in another country, and so little concerned about the State's land laws which are being daily evaded right here in California by hundreds of white and yellow Japs? The people of this State demand laws that will make it impossible for Japs to get possession of the soil of California, and it is the duty of the Governor, no matter what his personal views may be, to give them an opportunity, through their representatives in the Legislature, to get such laws on the statute books. Can it be that the Governor, because it is his duty to enforce the laws, does not propose to be put in the position of having to enforce such legislation?

It is our opinion that the Governor, for reasons not expressed in his series of excuses but known to himself and his advisors, has no intention of calling the Legislature into extra session to pass legislation that will put a stop to Jap land-grabbing, and our opinion has been strengthened by his letter made public at Sacramento, January 21, in which he courtesly refused to receive a committee which desired to discuss with him the special-session question. And so, California's Governor, described by a special assistant to the Federal Attorney-General sent out to investigate food prices here, as "The master sleeper at Sacramento, willing to do anything to keep from doing something," has returned to slumberland, and while he sleeps the Yamato race will push forward and strengthen its yellow hold upon California.

It has been suggested that the initiative be invoked to secure the legislation that is so urgently needed. The Governor, consistent insofar as his "stalling" policy in the Japanese crisis is concerned, has expressed in his latest petty political epistle approval of the suggestion. Why shouldn't he? The initiative measures could not be voted upon until November, and thus both the yellow-Japs and the powerful white-Jap influences aiding them would secure, at the hands of their opponents, just what they desire most—a few months' more delay. The initiative is of no value in this crisis! The only possible means of preventing the Japs from acquiring all the land they want, through evasion of the law, before the Legislature meets in regular session next January, is a special session. May the Governor awake to the seriousness of the situation that confronts California, and do his duty!

"COST PLUS" THE FATHER OF "HIGH COST"

Every day, almost, an investigation of National Government affairs is announced. The only result, however, is an abundance of publicity accompanied by expressions of disgust on the part of patriotic Americans. And so it will continue, until investigating agencies are composed of other than white-wash experts and those guilty of fraud and other un-American practices put where they belong—behind the prison bars.

The latest alleged fraud under investigation and said to involve millions of dollars, has to do with the building of ships for the Government. The charge is the direct result of the operation of the "cost-plus system," inaugurated by the Government itself during the war—a system which encouraged Government-approved graft.

The "cost-plus system," in vogue in nearly all Government purchasing departments during the war, was the most colossal, and at the same time the most successful, legalized robbery scheme ever concocted, and the fellow who brought it into being should be, and probably has been, given one of those war-service medals. So faultlessly did this "system" operate, that The People, willing to "stand and deliver" anything to win the war, were fleeced out of billions of dollars, not alone by the shipbuilders, but by numerous others who were favored with "cost-plus" Government contracts.

This "cost-plus system" brought with it, too, and is solely responsible for, the high cost of living. Producers would, and did, pay exorbitant wages to incompetent and needless employes—many of whom were taken care of "over here" for the deliberate purpose of avoiding trench service "over there"—and no attempt was made to procure raw materials at fair prices. They did not worry about the costs of production; on the contrary, the larger the expense bills the more they smiled, for the more they paid out the more they profitted, at The People's expense! Naturally, the quantity of production descended to the minimum and the cost of production ascended to the maximum.

Supply and demaud, in peace as in war times, regulate prices, and so, with the putting into operation of the "cost-plus system," which diminished the output when the demand was enormous, prices went up by leaps and bounds. And all investigations and promises of prosecutions to the contrary, they are going to stay up, not until, as the "system" propagandists would have us believe, conditions return to uormal, but until producers return to their normal senses—until both employers and employes realize, as they must eventually realize, that the palmy days of the "cost-plus system" are gone, and that both wages and prices must be readjusted to meet the changed conditions.

The Tuskegee Institute, an institution in Alabama that is doing wonders for the negro race, in its report of 1919 lynchings places the number at 82, 75 negroes and 7 whites, 18 more than in 1918. California is not included in the list of states where lynchings occurred. That, however, is not because this state is free from murders and offenses against women, largely responsible for lynchings,—but because the people of Californuia do uot sanction mob law.

Shocking crimes are becoming of such frequent occurrence here and the law-enforcers deal so gently with the perpetrators, that often we almost wish the people of California were today of the temperament of those of the Vigilaute days, although we know that the only course to pursue to assure the permanency of our goverumental institutions is to let the law take its course, a circuitous and often crime-encouraging one though it be.

HOOVER SPEAKS OUT!

Herbert C. Hoover, former National Food Administrator and one of the best-posted men on world conditions, gave to the Associated Press at Sacramento, January 6, a very plain statement which should shut off those propagandists who are continually howling for United States financial assistance to European countries. He pointed out that those countries can fiuance themselves in the ordinary business way, and that they can also take care of their food needs, except bread and milk, which are being taken care of by charity. Here are some broadsides from the Hoover interview:

"I emphatically disagree with the statement being circulated, either as to the volume of European financial needs from the United States or the suggestion that the great bulk of these needs cannot be met by ordinary commercial credits."

"Our taxes are now 600 percent over pre-war rates, while not one of the allies has increased taxes more than 400 percent. We simply cannot increase this burden."

"These [commercial credits] she [Great Britain] can always obtain if she puts up her ample collateral assets in South America, China, etc. France has unpledged foreign assets that would cover most of her important needs."

"These plans [outlined by Mr. Hoover] require no new appropriation on our treasury, and no additional taxes on our people. But they require an understanding in Europe that this country is nearing the time when it must cease to carry the economic burden of Europe, except through charity and ordinary business processes set up under proper security."

"It would appear that the 70,000,000 people of prosperous nations who have not suffered in the war also should be the scene of European appeals. Many people of Europe are not at work."

"We withdrew from Europe last harvest precisely for this reason—that Europe had to be impressed with the necessity to go back to work with ordinary business processes."

"The world needs to get away from the notion of Government help, both internally and externally, and get back to work and business.'

A conference of approximately twenty Protestant church denominations will be held early this month in Philadelphia, for the announced purpose of conferring on a proposal "for a national merger of Christian interests under the name of the United Churches of Christ in America." The plan of action provides for home and foreign missions, as well as other administrative agencies.

The purpose of this conference is really to reorganize the "Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America," one of the outfits overly active in the Japanizing-California campaign. The name of the church combine may be changed, but not its policy; its leaders' records arouse suspicion that they will continue to labor long and earnestly—no matter what title may be selected to mislead the church people into putting up their money—to have the doors of America opened wide to the yellow hordes in return for the privilege of continuing missionary activities in Japan.

Every man and woman of California eligible to vote should lose no time getting on the register, for several important elections are to be held this year, and no one can vote unless registered since January 1.

May 4 is the date for the presidential primary election, August 31 for the primary election for Congressional representatives and county officials, while the general election will be held November 2.

We are governed by the minority, because the majority does not participate in elections, and there is no hope of being well governed until that condition is changed. Every citizen should vote at every election, and any citizen who does not vote is a very poor citizen indeed. It is because the majority fail in their duty that so many "accidents" hold public office.

Like some individuals, there are some newspapers in the state always ready to do anything for their financial benefit—yes, even do their full share of wrecking California for a few dollars.

As an illustration, the recent annual of the "San Francisco Chronicle" devotes a whole section to heroizing the Japanese in California and spreading their propaganda. The signed articles by both the white and the yellow Japs should have been labeled "Made in Japan," so as not to mislead the "Chronicle's" readers.

For the second time, Berger, the Milwaukeean convicted of treasonable utterances against the United States Government, has been denied a seat in the National House of Representatives.

It is encouraging to know that the House is made up of men with American backbones. As for Berger, he should hastily be given a seat in the penitentiary or on a vessel bound for Russia.

Considerable publicity is being given the assertion that enforcement of prohibition is causing thousands of "red" foreigners to depart for their native lands.

If prohibition will benefit the country even to that extent, we are strong for prohibition! And we are hopeful that the dry-enforcement officials of California will be so active in separating the Japs from their sake that the "yellows" will hasten to join the "reds."

Recently Mount Lassen, for the first time in many months, showed signs of volcanic activity. Old Lassen must have had a "hunch" that 1920 is a political year, and is evidently getting ready to add its hot-air to the supply of volcanic mouthings that will be ejected by the political spellbinders.

Good news! Harris Weinstock, State Market Director, has resigned. He drew his pay from The People, but who can point to a single official act of his in their interest? The producers' combines alone will regret his retirement.

"JACKASS BRANDY" A STAPLE COMMODITY OF PIONEER DAYS.

The "Oakland Tribune" "Notes and Comments" man is evidently not an old-timer. He seems to think the name "jackass brandy" is something new, and evidently never heard of it before. As a matter of fact, "jackass brandy" was a staple commodity way back in pioneer days, and derived its name from the manner of its distribution.

It was, even then, a fearful concoction, and one drink of it would make a jackrabbit sit up and fight. It was a distillation of grape pomace left over from wine making and was mainly fusil oil and alcohol. You could smell it a mile on a clear day! It was usually loaded on pack-jacks and distributed to remote sheep-herders and shake-makers in the mountains. Because it was sold from jacks, it became known as "jackass brandy," or "shake-maker's delight."—Calaveras Prospect.

STATELY TREE MAY BE DESIGNATED HISTORIC LANDMARK.

"Palo Alto," the tall tree from which that city received its Spanish name, will have a bronze tablet fixed on its trunk, to mark it as one of the historical landmarks of California, if the efforts of Palo Alto Parlor, No. 216, of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, succeed.

A committee from the Parlor, including Monsignor Joseph M. Gleason (chairman), E. A. Hettinger, I. P. Vandervoort, J. F. Byxbee, Jr., and N. E. Malcolm, has been appointed to make this request of the Landmarks Committee of the Grand Parlor of the Order. The Parlor hopes to have the work done before the Grand Parlor convenes at San Diego, in April.

The tree marks one of the resting places of the early Spanish padres in their journeys from San Diego to Sonoma.

OLD DOCUMENT RECORDED.

A land patent, signed by President Abraham Lincoln in 1864, has been placed on file with the Fresno County recorder by John M. King of Visalia. The land is an eighty-acre tract near Fresno City.

King held the patent for fifty-five years through dangers of loss by fire or theft, but finally concluded it was safer to place the instrument on record.—Selma Irrigator.

SAN FRANCISCO EARLY-DAY DOCUMENTS FILED FOR RECORD IN OREGON

THE NEXT TIME YOU ARE IN OREGON City, Oregon, drop into the county recorder's office at the courthouse and ask for Miss Lon Cochrane, chief deputy, and tell her you want to see the original plat filed for San Francisco, California. She will take you into the vault where the records are stored and let you look at not only the original plat of the City of San Francisco, but also at the plat of Oregon City, carefully drawn and with a full description, in long hand, of its metes and bounds, signed by John McLoughlin.

It seems strange that San Francisco should have to file its records in Oregon City, but if you will think back seventy-two years or so you will realize that in 1848 Oregon City was the big brother of San Francisco.

The sprawling, irregular handwriting of the original documents is still as legible as the day they were written. The original records have been pasted in a large volume of heavy bond paper to preserve them. They read as follows:

"Capt. Irving,
"Bark John Cates:

"Take this map and file it in the clerk's office of the United States district court for the Territory of Oregon as being entered by William M. Eddy, according to an act of Congress, in the year 1849, in the clerk's office of the district court of the District of Oregon and Cala. Be sure to enter it regardless of expenses and bring me the bill with the certificate of the clerk that the map was filed.

"Yours,
"WM. M. EDDY.

"San Francisco, Nov. 9, 1849."

"I hereby appoint Captain Wm. Irving as my agent and attorney to enter in the clerk's office of the U. S. district court for Oregon the accompanying map as per its title in my name.

"WM. M. EDDY."

"Territory of Oregon)
"Clackamas County)

"Be it remembered that on this first day of February, A. D. 1850, William M. Eddy of San Francisco, California, hath deposited in this office the title of a map the title of which is in the words following, to-wit:

'Official map of San Francisco, compiled from the field notes of the official survey made by William M. Eddy, C. E., surveyor of the town of San Francisco,' the title of which he claims as author in conformity with an act of Congress entitled, 'An Act to Amend the Several Acts Respecting Rights.'

"GEORGE L. CURRY, Clerk
"United States District Court,
"In and for Clackamas County,
"In Territory of Oregon.

"By F. S. HOLLAND, Dep'y."

This map was drawn for Mr. Eddy by Alex Zakrgowski, a former officer in the Polish army. From north to south the streets were named as follows: Bay, Francisco, Chestnut, Lombard, Greenwich, Filbert, Union, Green, Vallejo, Broadway, Pacific, Jackson, Washington, Clay, Sacramento, California, Pine, Bush, Sutter, Post, Geary, O'Farrell, Ellis, Eddy and Turk. The cross streets were: Larkin, Hyde, Leavenworth, Jones, Taylor, Mason, Powell, Stockton, Dupont, Kearny, Montgomery, Sansome, Battery and Front.

Just at present we are having our census taken. It is interesting to look over the census returns of San Francisco taken in June, 1847. There were 247 white males, 128 white females; 34 Indians, of whom eight were females; 40 Kanakas, only one of whom was a female; ten Negroes, one of whom was a female. The total population was 459, 80 percent of whom were under 40 years of ago.

Even in those days San Francisco was a cosmopolitan city. The white residents of San Francisco gave their birth places as follows: Born in the United States, 228; in California, 38; Canada, 5; Chile, 2; England 22; France, 3; Germany, 27; Ireland, 14; Scotland, 14; Switzerland, 6; born at sea, 4. Each of the following countries had one representative: Denmark, Isle of Malta, New Holland, New Zealand, Poland, Peru, Russia, Sandwich Islands, Sweden, West Indies. Of this population 273 could read and write, 13 could read but not write, and 89 could neither read nor write.

Two years later, an Oregon City man, Peter H. Burnett, was elected governor of California, and the "village" of San Francisco had over 25,000 population. Over 40,000 people landed in San Francisco during 1849, in addition to many thousands who came across the plains or from Oregon and other coast points. Over 350 good sized, square rigged vessels were lying in the harbor deserted by their officers and crews and unable to leave the Golden Gate. Wages, rents and provisions were sky high. Interest was from 10 to 15 percent per month. Though San Francisco had grown almost overnight to a city, still it had to file its city plat at the clerk's office at Oregon City, as it was the seat of the district court of the District of Oregon and California.

(Editor's Note—The above article, containing some very interesting early California history, appeared in the "Oregon Journal," published at Portland, Oregon, of January 9. It was read by A. W. Horwege, a member of Petaluma Parlor, No. 27, N.S.G.W., residing in that city and a constant reader of The Grizzly Bear, and sent to the magazine with this statement: "I am inclosing a clipping of the 'Oregon Journal' which I read with much interest, and thought it would be of interest to the readers of The Grizzly Bear.")

HOME

(VIOLA RANSOM WOOD.)

(Dedicated to my grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. McClure, who crossed the plains by ox-team in the early '50s.)

There's a dear old house in White Rock,
Midst the low Sierra hills,
In the County Mariposa—
That name, alone, my memory fills!
I scent the honeysuckle's fragrance,
See nesting birds fly in and out
The groves of orange, fig and peach trees,
While springtime songs are all about.

There I spent my happy child-days,
Going to the country school,
Riding horseback, wading barefoot
In some shallow, shady pool;
And winter nights, before the fireplace,
Grandpa would some story tell,
How they crossed the plains in wagons,
How they faced each danger well.

While the corn in pan was popping,
Grandma would, low-voiced, relate
How the Indians attacked them,
And it seemed it was their fate
To be killed and scalped, or captured—
As often happened in that day—
But the men by fighting bravely,
Won, and drove their foes away.

The sandman then would join our circle
Round the glowing bright fireplace,
And gently toss rest-giving sleep-sand
Into each honest rustic face.
And ere the carved old clock would peal forth,
Long and slow, ten strokes that night,
We'd be a-dream in slumberland
Nor wake again till morning's light.

CAN ANY COUNTY BEAT THIS?

Stanislaus County claims it has the largest almond tree in California, at Crow's Landing. The tree is eleven feet and one inch in circumference, has a spread of fifty-four feet, and is thirty feet high.

State Expenses Incsease—For the first half of the seventy-first fiscal year, July 1 to December 31, 1919, California's expenditures totaled $31,505,514.92, according to a statement of State Controller John S. Chambers; the receipts were $25,190,884.08. The expenditures for the whole of the last (seventieth) fiscal year amounted to $50,681,433.48; if the pace already set continues, they will mount to over $63,000,000 for this fiscal year.

A half-million Armenian girls, mostly under 15 years of age, are held slaves of Turks in their harems. These girls are tatooed with the marks of their shame upon their foreheads. The work of rescuing them still waits upon the hour when America, in the name of her own young girls, shall pour out money—money to be raised in the Near East Relief campaign, February 1-22.

TENTH NATIONAL ORANGE SHOW

(J. A. GUTHRIE.)

CALIFORNIA CITRUS FRUIT-GROWERS will open their annual exposition, the Tenth National Orange Sbow, on February 13 at Urbita Springs Park, San Bernardino. Tbe show will continue for ten days and nights, closing the night of February 23. This gorgeous spectacle of the beauties and ricbes of the citrus fruit industry will be moulded from approximately 1,000,000 oranges, tbe choicest specimens of the golden fruit harvest of the Golden State.

San Bernardino's Orange Show has become one of California's most famous expositions. It is widely known tbroughout the East, for many of tbe hundreds of thousands of people who witnessed the expositions of the past nine years have returned to their Eastern homes to tell of the gorgeousness of the scene tbat is created hy the citrus fruit-growers for their entertainment. Practically every citrus fruit community of importance in California will participate in the Orange Show this year.

Tbere will he an extensive entertainment program tbroughout the Orange Show period, including vaudeville, midway attractions, bands, a water carnival on Urbita Lake and other features. There are three main departments of the exposition: the citrus fruit displays, many of whicb will be moulded into gorgeous works of art; the industrial department, and the automobile show.

Arrowbead Parlor, No. 110, Native Sons of the Golden West, is taking an active interest in the exposition. Ralph E. Swing and J. E. Rich, respectively president and vice-president of the Orange Show, are members of the Parlor, wbile another member, Grand Trustee John Andreson, Jr., is one of the "hig" men in the Advisory Committee and a former president of the show, and Superior Judge Rex B. Goodcell, also a member, is in charge of the feature exhibits.

The Orange Show this year is to he beld at a spot of bistoric interest—Urbita Springs, on the southern edge of the city, a beautiful inland park and fitting place for the exposition. It is close to the scene where Padre Dumetz entered San Bernardino Valley on May 10, 1810, to found the settlement that later grew into an important early-day California point.

Tbere is a strange combination of dates in the Orange Show period this year. The sbow will open on Friday, the 13th, and close on tbe 23rd. The "triple jinx" is the name given the combination, and tbat the Executive Board deliberately selected the dates is declared. The "triple jinx" was summoned in an effort to "out-jinx the jinx" that the weather man has bad on the show for the last nine years. Nearly every show of the past has brought rain ranging from a drizzle to a cloud-burst, and the Executive Board has often wondered just bow big a crowd would attend if the weather was fair every day. Last year there were approximately 100,000 people in attendance.

San Bernardino is on tbe four main paved boulevards from many Soutbern California points, the Footbill, Highland avenue north from Upland, tbe Valley out of Ontario, and the Riverside. The Automobile Club of Soutbern California will sign the highways, and the Pacific Electric is preparing to run special trains from Los Angeles to San Bernardino during tbe Orange Show.

stands on Second street, Sacramento, during the sessions of the Legislature, each claiming to drive tbe fastest team and designating those of tbeir rivals as scrubs or mustangs. Owners were drivers, best two heats in three, and afforded a large crowd a great deal of amusement. J. W. Wilson, John Toomey, Pete Humrich, Frank Thompson and Tim Scriver contended. Wilson won the race, his best time being 4:12.

Notices of the marriage of Mark Twain in Buffalo, N. Y., February 3, to Miss Olivia L. Langdon were received. Information came that Mark Twain's father-in-law had given him, as a wedding present, a $40,000 residence in Buffalo and a suhstantial check to meet expenses. Many of the groom's friends at first had an idea it was one of his jokes, hut every doubt was soon removed and a shower of congratulations were telegraphed and mailed.

The Chinese New Year, beginning February 1, was the cause of a big riot on Jackson street, San Francisco, hetwen rival tongs to the numher of over 2,000. Their combative desire was subsided by a large squad of police who, with clubs, caused the "Chinks" to disperse with many injured heads.

Ye Chow Yung, a distinguished Chinese member of the Rop Woo Company in Sau Francisco, was huried February 3 with noisy demonstrations of Cbinese hands and firecrackers. There were sixty hacks and carriages in his funeral procession, all occupied by Cbinamen, eacb of whom was smoking a cigar as tbe cortage moved away.

The anti-Chinese agitation was the cause of men and hoys maltreating inoffensive Chinamen almost daily in San Francisco and other cities. The afternoon of February 22 a gang of boys, armed witb sticks and stones, demolished the windows of a Chinese laundry on Mission street, near Fourtb, in San Francisco, and forced the domicilers to flee for their lives. The police endeavored to arrest tbe ring-leaders, but several hundred men gathered and prevented them. A crowd of over 2,000 soon gathered, and it required the chief of police and eighty men to disperse the mob.

Thos. Stevenson, a farmer east of Marysville, Yuba County, fell under his wagon February 6 and was killed.

Then, as Now, Accidents Numerous.

Samuel Prothero, nearly 83 years old, left the stage at Firehaugh's Ferry the night of February 6 and wandered over the San Joaquin plains for ten days hefore be was found. In a famisbed condition, witb his clothes torn to shreds, he died soon after being found.

Major Edward M. Harrison, for eight years deputy state controller at Sacramento, went with several friends on a bunting trip in Solano County February 14. The morning of the 16th he left the camp and was gone ahout an hour; when he returned he was taken with a congestive chill and died before aid could reach him. He was a Pioneer of '49 and 42 years of age. His funeral cortege was one of the largest ever formed in Sacramento. The Legislature adjourned, all tbe military companies with their hands marcbed, the Pioneers and Masons attended, and with the state and county officials and hundreds of citizens there were over forty carriages in line.

Lansing Tooker, a Pioneer of '49 from New York, fell from the sidewalk of a building being raised to the high grade at Sacramento aud died February 21, aged 70 years. During the '50s he was a prominent and wealthy merchant, but fire and flood losses took his fortune away from him. He was teaching a class in bookkeeping at the time of his death.

In crossiug Honcut Creek, returning from a dance at Bangor, Butte County, tbe morning of February 18, Johu Rice, driving a huggy in whicb his sister and Miss Holcomh were riding, upset in the middle of the creek. Miss Rice was drowned, although her brother made heroic efforts to save her.

Conrad Heppel, a 15-year-old lad, was catching drift wood on Los Gatos Creek, Alameda County, February 23. He fastened his hook to a large log but, losing his footing, was carried by it into the creek and drowned.

Mrs. George Lawrence, near Healdsburg, Sonoma County, February 13, was swinging ber hushand on the limh on a tree when it hroke and fell, striking her on the back and pressing her down on the ground so as to seriously injure a vertehrae and possihly crippled ber for life.

At the "Anvil Chorus" concert at the Mechanics Pavilion in San Francisco, February 23, George Currier, attending to one of the cannon, had an arm hroken by its premature discbarge, and a boy named Moses Franklin was bit in the ahdomen by the wad and fatally hurt.

C. P. Reeves of Solano County stooped to drink from a hydrant, while holding a horse hy the hridle. The borse jerked his head in such a manner as to drive Reeves' head down upon tbe faucet handle, whicb penetrated an eye aud caused him to lose the sight of it.

General D. D. Colton's carriage team ran away in San Francisco, July 14. Mrs. Colton was thrown out and had an arm broken.

Two tbousand Armenians were hurned to death at one time by tbe Turks because they refused to renounce God and adopt the Moslem faitb. Hundreds of thousands are living in torture now for the same reason. Will you help these victims of Turkish infidels by giving to the Near East Relief campaign, February 1-22?

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

THIS SEASON'S EFFORT TO LAUNCH circular or bell-shaped skirts did not meet with pronounced success, but the intimation that skirts of this character will come in sooner or later should not be overlooked. Skirts that are medium in width, without flaring, are liked best. Just now, many skirts have pleated side panels joining the long waist at the hip line.

Suits, and some street dresses, are featuring the eton jacket style, in serge or tricotine. There have been a few models of distinctive appeal. One-piece dresses, so called, lend themselves to the eton idea, and allow a comfortably loose upper part.

In evening gowns, there is no very decided tendency to fitted waists. The overskirts continue to give extra fullness to scant underskirts, while preserving the straight lines. Though evening skirts are noticeably longer, street-dress and suit skirts are short.

The ridiculously extreme short skirt has grown three or four inches longer, and the fact that shoes are made with tops either eight and one-half or nine inches high is another rather likely assurance that the comfortably short walking skirt will prevail.

It is the collars and the sleeves that give the greatest note of distiuction to the dresses and suits this season. To be sure, an effort is being made to change the lines of the skirts from those of preceding weeks, and to give a more fitted effect to bodices; but, after all, the sleeves and the neck finish attract the greatest interest and indicate the trend of dress detail.

One might write a good deal on the subject of sleeves. They are so varied in length, width, materials and trimmings that they may no longer be considered a mere detail of the dress. The long sleeve has maintained its vogue during the winter, and this despite the revival of the shorter variety. However, all the incoming models indicate a very strong disposition to favor the short sleeve for midseason and for early spring dresses. It is likely that between the two extremes of very short and wrist length the average woman who does not care for violent changes will adopt the three-quarter compromise. Such sleeve lengths are offered with the bell termination.

While the kimono shoulder is very popular, this does not mean, necessarily, that the set-in sleeve is passé. On the contrary, there are many attractive dress models that show the short sleeve seamed to the shoulder. The latter, by the way, maintains the narrow line of several past seasons, and for that reason it is likely that the set-in variety of sleeve will be preferred.

An attempt was made last season to entirely change the silhouette of the figure, but it did not succeed. The straight chemise line is too becoming to be cast aside for the hip development.

Among the new bright colors which every one welcomes, bright Venetian green leads all the rest. Very lovely is a straight hanging dress of this charming color in silk voile all embroidered with silver and finished with a wide collar of black velvet, which hangs loosely across the back. In front the corsage is cut in a wide shallow square; a silver ribbon weighted with silver tassels belts it. Of this same vivid green is a half-long coat which will he worn with a dress of soft black satin.

A perfect rage exists for embroidery, especially on hats. Such a pretty girl sat near me the other day, wearing a tailored costume of mustard yellow duvetyn! Her hat of mustard colored felt was embroidered with reddish brown in a Chineso design and the many buttons on her three-quarters coat were reddish hrown also.

Ordinarily an apron is regarded as a symbol of domestic service,—a thing of cambric, gingham, lawn or the like, not given to much decoration, unless one excepts the parlor maid's apron, which is permitted a trimming license to the extent of a bit of embroidery. But recently the apron has been elevated to the rank of a desirable accessory for dressy wear. It has come about that lace, chiffon, taffeta, velvet and even serge havo been pressed into apron service. Sometimes the apron is of contrasting material, as of black satin on blue tricotine, or of lace on chiffon.

If one likes drapories there are many interesting effects which havo, for the most part, the object of lengthening the figure line. Certain of these are merely broad sash bands drawn from the girdle to the hem and crossed half-way down the front of the skirt.

The trend of fashion toward the Oriental way of dressing, in loosely hung garments, when made of suitable fabrics, has given designers wide play for imagination. In consequence, they have awakened fresh interest in the old forms, by utilizing soft silks and crepes. An entire blouse of rose point lace, with short sleeves and moderately low neck, is one of the almost priceless bits of elegance, designed for wear with black satin or chiffon velvet skirts. A tiny jet chain girdle confines the fullness at the waist line.

Georgette, chiffon and silk voile blouses are in the colors to match suits. Some have dyed laces in combination. As a rule, there are two colors for the dressy models. The lingerie types of hand-made blouses of linen, with tucks, hemstitching and lace, are noticeably different. Irish crochet, venise and val laces are now being used for blouses, as is also filet. The surplice bodice, for instance, is very popular. It is not new by several seasons, but it has the advantage of youthful lines. Blouses of Spanish lace are also to be had. They are lovely with a skirt of satin or velvet. Sometimes the lace is touched up with fine embroideries of floss or metallic threads.

There has been some interesting speculation as to what influence the penchant for white will exert. There is every probability that white will be very much in vogue for evening wear or afternoon functions. We shall undoubtedly see more white than during the last several seasons.

For evening, the feather fan is a delightful accessory. There are fans consisting of but two ostrich plumes, long and gracefully curled and usually of some gorgeous color. Then, there are fans that boast as many as five plumes, not so broad nor so tall as the two-plumed ones, but extremely attractive, nevertheless, and a bit more useful, although it must be confessed that utility is the last thing thought of in the designing or carrying of the fan. It is mostly desired as an accessory, because of the splash of color it imparts to the gown, and it is particularly effective when the gown happens to be all white or all black and the fan of a brilliant green, flame color, gold or sapphire.

There are also bags composed entirely of ostrich feathers to match the fans; they have a drawstring of satin or moire ribbon. In some cases these bags are shaded into three or more tones. Beaded bags continue to be liked by the smart set. To be really beautiful, they should be made of very fine beads, but it is not always possible to obtain these. Floral and tapestry designs are popular, and among the latter are landscape effects, unique and charming. Other than beaded bags, are those of moire and velvet, of the colors liked, including taupe, navy, brown and black.

There is much to be said, too, about the variety of straws, leghorns, milans and panamas. All the soft and flexible kinds that fit every type of face are popular for motoring. Nothing will be quite so smart as leather for sports, though braid is the new thing. Braids combiued with crepes and wool are transformed into the most pliable and becoming hats. One cannot see the very newest hats without a little glad thought that those jaunty crushable styles are too attractive to fade out of favor without further hearing.

The lines of hats for almost every occasion suggest that crushable shapes will be quite as modish for spring and summer as they have been all winter. They are adaptable to every variety of individual beauty, and so good looking always. Braids and straws that are fine and flexible can be made into lines that crinkle and curve around the face. A very new fabric-straw, that one of the smart shops is featuring, will also make its debut. This is a glistening horse-hair straw, finely woven and shot with threads of contrasting colors,—rather fascinating in its newness.

Flowers of the field will adorn horse-hair hats. Perhaps wool embroidery might, too, before the year is much older, and it will be wool of the brightest shade,—warm reds and yellows. Fruits, wide ribbon bows, gay rich scarfs, bits of fringe, wool tassels and motifs, all will be worn, whether the hat is crushable or straight.

Blue—and that's for happiuess, you know,—will insist on being the favorite, it seems. Every shade of blue, from dark navy to hrilliant electric effects, even merging into green blue, are found in the hats which leaders are now showing.

Printed foulards and printed chiffons and georgettes are again with us, in subdued or gay patterns. Also the crinkly silks, either plain or in striped or checked effects, for sports dresses, for separate skirts, or for millinery purposes. In some instances they are trimmed with angora wool.

Among the new cottons, or at least among the revivals, is found chambray, for many years identified with children's clothes. Now it is combined with dotted swiss. With gingham or with organdie, swiss, with small dots in contrasting colors, is very attractive. Cotton etamine and ratine are back again, the former for entire dresses and the latter for trimming. Also, there are suits and dresses of linen with collars, cuffs and belts of embossed toweling. Ginghams and chintzes are trimmed with pique, organdie, moire ribbons and embroideries. Cotton crepes in green, blue, rose and yellow will be popular.

Wraps of satin and taffeta, as well as of duvetyn, should he listed for the spring wardrobe.

They cry for bread. Give them succor through the Near East Relief, February 1-22.

WHY TAKE CHANCES on TUBERCULOSIS

VAPORTOR:
Breaks up any kind of a cold in a few treatments. Removes the obstructions from the head, nose, throat, and lungs almost immediately. CHRONIC COLDS, GRIPPE, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, PNEUMONIA, are all danger-guides that can lead to the dreaded TUBERCULOSIS.

VAPORTOR:
During the past year has benefited or cured many persons suffering from TUBERCULOSIS, CHRONIC COLDS, after-effects of INFLUENZA and PNEUMONIA.

VAPORTOR: Is the logical treatment.
That's what many Los Angeles physicians declared after they had investigated the VAPORTOR method of treating.

VAPORTOR: Is not a serum or vaccine.

VAPORTOR:
Treatments of twenty minutes daily is all that's necessary. You don't have to go to bed. You don't have to diet.

In Memoriam

PAST GRAND PRESIDENT FRANK MATTISON.

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has called from among us our friend and brother, Past Grand President Frank Mattison; and, whereas, Brother Mattison was a successful business man, having many and varied commercial enterprises, and for a long period of years served his native state honestly and faithfully in public office; and, whereas, in spite of his many commercial and public activities and because of his great love for his native state, Brother Mattison maintained a most active membership in the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West; he was ever an attendant upon the sessions of the Grand Parlor, was keenly observant, and ever watchful of those things which tended to the welfare and progresa of our beloved Order; always genial, straightforward and true, unselfish in his devotion, untiring and unceasing in his labors, and unswerving in his loyalty; and, whereas, in the passing of Brother Mattison the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West has lost a most loyal and devoted worker, and each member a sincere, true and unselfish friend; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Yosemite Parlor, No. 24, Native Sons of the Golden West, hereby expresses its admiration of our deceased brother, grief because of his death, and regret that never again, save in the influence of his memory, will he participate in the activities of the Order he so dearly loved; and be it resolved, that, in tribute to his memory, the charter of Yosemite Parlor be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the beloved wife, a copy to Santa Cruz Parlor, No. 90, N.S.G.W., a copy spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

I. H. REUTER,
D. K. STODDARD,
G. E. KIBBY,
Committee.

Merced, January 17th.

LOUIS METZNER.

To the Officers and Members of St. Helena Parlor, No. 53, Native Sons of the Golden West—We, your committee on resolutions of respect to the memory of Louis Metzner, report the following:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to call from our midst our esteemed and respected brother, Louis Metzner; and, whereas, Brother Metzner was one of our best loved members, whose sunny disposition, kindness of heart and sincere friendship endeared him to every member of St. Helena Parlor, No. 53, Native Sons of the Golden West; and, whereas, in his untimely death we have truly lost a brother, his family a devoted husband and loving father and a dutiful and loving son; be it

Resolved, That the family and relatives have our deepest sympathy, and we hope they will find consolation in the fond memories which will ever live in their and our hearts, of his love and kindness during his life time; and be it further resolved, that this resolution be spread in full upon our minutes, that a copy be sent to the family and also the mother of the deceased, and that a copy be forwarded for publication in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

E. G. SCHUNEMAN,
E. F. SARALL,
ED. L. BONHOTE,
Committee.

St. Helena, December 29, 1919.

GEORGE H. S. DRYDEN.

Whereas, In the wisdom of Almighty God, Brother George H. S. Dryden of Rincon Parlor, No. 72, Native Sons of the Golden West, has been called to his eternal rest; and, whereas, Brother Dryden was a loyal son of California and a tried and true member of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West; active always in the work of the Order he loved, living daily its precepts of Friendship, Loyalty and Charity in the manner which won for him the love and admiration of his fellow members; gentle of character, generous of the faults of others, kindly, courageous and true; and, whereas, in the passing of Brother Dryden the Order of Native Sons has lost an untiring and unceasing worker and the members of the Order a true and devoted friend; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Ramona Parlor, No. 109, Native Sons of the Golden West, expresses its sorrow because of the passing of Brother Dryden; that the condolences of the members be offered to the loved ones of our departed brotber and to Rincon Parlor, No. 72; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, a copy be sent to Rincon Parlor, and that a copy be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

ORDER'S OLDEST MEMBER PASSES AWAY AT 90

With the passing at Oakland, December 31, of Senora Maria Christina Escobar de Larios, there went out of this life the oldest member of the Order of Native Daughter of the Golden West. She was born at Monterey in 1830, the daughter of Marcelino Escobar, the first alcalde of that city, who had been sent to California by the Spanish government. He served three terms in that capacity, and at the time of his retirement was the owner of thousands of acres of the choicest lands about Monterey, comprising the Huerta Del Rey and San Jose Ranchos.

Senorita Escobar, at the age of 18, was wedded to Jesse Rojas, an attache of the governor's staff, who died in 1852; then followed, in time, her marriage to Gracia de Larios, a son of "King de Larios," as he was known, because of his enormous holdings of lands and cattle; it was he who gave to the town of San Juan, San Benito County, all the lands upon which stand the convent and cemetery.

Senora de Larios was the mother of twenty-five children, of whom these survive: Joseph, Ignacius and Charles de Larios and Mrs. J. Lillard of Los Angeles, Mrs. William Alviso of Stockton and Mrs. Reuben Smith of Oakland, at whose home she passed away. Despite her age, she was a very active woman, of jovial disposition, and in early life was a noted Spanish dancer. She was a devoted church member, and widely known for her philanthropic work.

April 28, 1904, Senora de Larios was initiated as the one hundredth member of Genevieve Parlor, No. 132, N.D.G.W., San Francisco, in the affairs of which she had always taken a keen interest. In the recent Portola parade in San Francisco, she rode in the Parlor's float depicting the old Spanish days.

Funeral services were conducted January 3 in San Francisco under the auspices of Genevieve Parlor, President Mae Ward, Past President Della Ward and Marshal Lillian Ryan officiating. During the impressive services, Grand Organist Lillian B. Troy, a member of the Parlor, presided at the organ, and the Genevieve Trio—Agnes Troy, Lillian Troy and Bre Johnson—sang the odes.

Grand President's Itinerary for February.

San Francisco—During the month of February, Grand President Mary E. Bell will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors, on the dates noted:

3rd—Calaveras 103, San Francisco.
4th—Minerva 2, San Francisco.
11th—Linda Rosa 170, San Francisco.
19th—La Palma 131, San Francisco.
25th—Bay Side 204, Oakland.
26th—Encinal 156, Alameda.
27th—Las Lomas 72, Genevieve 132, Guadalupe 153, jointly, San Francisco.

Far Away, But Loyal.

The Grizzly Bear, December 30, received this letter from Etna Mills, Siskiyou County, and it is with pleasure given publicity at the first opportunity, in this (February) issue:

It seems that our Parlor is so far from the business and social centers of California, that it might drop into oblivion, were it not for an occasional visit from some grand officer, and though the mention was inadvertently delayed, we wish to state that the visit of Grand President Mary Bell of San Francisco was to us of Eschscholtzia 112 a very pleasant occasion. She was very lenient in her criticism of the floor work, etc., and gave some very inspiring suggestions in her address; they have been of benefit to our Parlor. A light banquet followed the business of the Parlor, and an enjoyable evening came to a close.

Two accessions to our Parlor have recently been made, and the following elective officers await the pleasure of Mrs. Flora Piscantor, from Fort Jones, in the matter of installation: Bird Freitag, P.; Lizzie Stephens, 1V.P.; Nelie Sovey, 2V.P.; Rose Crandall, 3V.P.; Marguerite Geney, R.S.; Carrie Bradley, T.; Evelyn Pitman, F.S.; Laura J. Green, O.; Bessie Pitman, I.S.; Rosa Parrott, O.S.; Freda Facey, M.; Mary Moxley, Emma Herzog, Mary Harris, Trs.; Mary Parker, P.P.

Children Made Happy.

Oakland—The Christmas spirit made itself manifest in Bahia Vista 167's new meeting-hall, December 23, when a large crowd of children and grown folks met to do homage to the big tree which had been prepared for their enjoyment. Santa Claus was there, too, and made merry with the little ones. Every one received a bag of candy and nuts, and also a gift from his hands. The children were so delighted they rendered a program to entertain the older folks. Big folks and little folks played together such games as drop the handkerchief, musical chairs, etc. There was a wonderful grab-bag, with its surprises.

The committee in charge felt well repair for its labors, when they saw the smiling faces of the children who bid them good-night at the close of a happy evening. The program follows: Mildred Cleary, piano solo; Katherine Mulqueeny, character song; Winifred Grant and Jeanette Schults, violin and piano duet; Little Billie, song; Gladys Cuddy, piano solo; Charles Rowley, recitation; Katherine Mulqueeny, character song; Herbert Malama and Clara Carlsen, violin and piano duet; Jessie Carroll, song; Zelda Rowley, recitation.

Member Showered With Kitchen Needs.

Hollister—Officers of Copa de Oro 105 and Fremont 44, N.S.G.W., were jointly installed January 16, D.D.G.P. Anna G. Andresen of Salinas officiating for the former, and D.D.G.P. Walter Reid of Santa Cruz for the latter. Interesting addresses were delivered by the visiting officials, Clyde Mylar rendered musical numbers, and Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs, in behalf of Copa de Oro, presented the retiring president, Mollie Daveggio, with a token. Dancing and a banquet concluded the evening. Officers of Copa de Oro installed include: Josephine Snell, P.; Marie Palmtag, 1V.P.; Elsie Poage, 2V.P.; Jessie Winter, 3V.P.; Hilda Thompson, M.; Harriet Hooten, R.S.; Mary Prendergast, F.S.; Clara Black, T.; Helen Stone, O.; Ruby O'Connor, I.S.; Janey Willson, O.S.; Josephine Winn, Mathilda Wright, Justina Moran, Trs.; Mollie Daveggio, P.P.

Miss Mae Graham, a member of the Parlor, was tendered a kitchen shower January 9 and received many useful presents. The happy hours were whiled away with music, games and refreshments. In the various contests, prizes were awarded Harriet Hooten, Mary Prendergast and Helen Stone.

Little Friends Furnish Program.

San Francisco—Members of Orinda Parlor 56 held their regular Christmas party December 26, and entertained their guests with a short program of entertainment, participated in by little friends of the Parlor. Miss Arvid Miller and Miss Orinda Landers each contributed a fancy dance and song. Miss Gladys Bouquet rendered a piano selection, and Miss Marguerite McAtee accompanied herself on the piano for the singing of a song. The playing of games was a feature of the evening and prizes were awarded for skilled players. All guests were recipients of a bag of candy.

Initiates Four.

Oroville—Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco paid Gold of Ophir 90 an official visit January 15. The ritual was exemplified for the benefit of four candidates. Another guest of the evening was Miss Eva Curnow of Laurel 6 (Nevada City), who has taken up her residence in this city. An elaborate banquet followed the Parlor meeting.

During her stay here, Mrs. Bell was the house guest of Mrs. Bert Baldwin, and the afternoon of the 15th was the guest of Mrs. Frank Egan on an auto ride about Oroville and vicinity.

Entertains Sons.

Lower Lake—Members of Lower Lake 159, N.S.G.W., were guests of Laguna 189 December 30 at a surprise party. An amusing entertainment was given, and from a Christmas tree the "boys" received joke gifts. Games and dancing were provided, and a late supper was served.

January 16 and 17, when thirty members of Marinita 198 presented a complete minstrel and vaudeville show.

The double performance was given for the benefit of a fund being raised by the Parlor to build a memorial to the service men of Marin County who made the supreme sacrifice in the recent world-war.

Big Crowd Greets Grand Presideut.

Woodland—The official visit of Grand President Mary E. Bell to Woodland 90, January 13, was the occasion for one of the largest-attended meetings in the Parlor's history. The Grand President complimented the Parlor for its splendid officers, especially the efficient book-officers, Treasurer Kathryn Simmons, Recording Secretary Anna Kinkade and Financial Secretary Abbie Murray. Her visit will ever be remembered by every member.

D.D.G.P. Anna Kinkade who, because of her efficiency, had been selected for a third term, installed the following officers: Aimee Chalmers, P.; Edna Richter, 1V.P.; Nellie Hebener, 2V.P.; Mary Conger, 3V.P.; Minnie Purkett, I.S.; Cornelia Rath, O.S.; Kathryn Simmons, T.; Anna Kinkade, R.S.; Abbie Murray, F.S.; Florence Weider, Graee Kraft, Blanche Esyeheck, Trs.; Edna Williams, P.P. A banquet brought the pleasant evening to a close. The committee in charge of Grand President Bell's reception included Edna Williams, Aimee Chalmers, Hazel Weider, Florence Weider, Minnie Purkett, Rhoda Maxwell, Blanche Esycheck, Mary Conger, Kathryn Simmens and Anna Kinkade.

Fresno Gaining Memhers.

Fresno—Fresno 187 has entered upon the new year and term with enthusiasm. Joint installation with the Native Sons was held January 13, the installing officer being D.D.G.P. Melissa Noonan. January 16 was held the first meeting with the new officers in the chairs, the very popular new president, Millie Burton, presiding with dignity and charm. The membership campaign is gaining new members every week, and a class initiation was held January 23.

January 13 a surprise party was given Clara Belle Branch, one of the Parlor's members, who is soon to leave Fresno to make her home in Redding. The afternoon was spent in playing cards and, later, in a guessing contest. Melissa Noonan received the prize for high score in the card game, and the prize in the guessing contest was awarded Mrs. Hughes, the mother of Harriett Boust, who is spending the winter in Fresno. Another welcome visitor of the day was Mrs. Leventon, mother of Ethel Cappleman, who is also visiting in Fresno. January 22 being "Red Cross Day," under the supervision of Chairman Harriett Boust the Parlor members were "salesladies" at the salvage shop; children's clothing was the day's "special." Mabel Walker of Sutter 111, Sacramento, who has been ill in a sanitarium in Fresno, has so far recovered as to be able to return to her home.

Officers Jointly Installed.

Marysville—Officers of Marysville 162 and Marysville 6, N.S.G.W., were jointly installed January 14, Cecelia Webber becoming president of the former, and L. T. Sinnott of the latter.

Joint Homeless Children Benefit.

Redding—Hiawatha 140 and McCloud 149, N.S.G.W., gave their joint annual benefit for the homeless children January 19, and it was a great success.

Initiates Two.

Placerville—Marguerite 12 initiated two candidates January 7. A social session followed, refreshments being served at the evening's close.

Grand Officers at Installation.

Oakland—Josephine Clark is now president of Piedmont 87, having been inducted into office January 15, when officers were installed jointly with those of Piedmont 120, N.S.G.W. D.D.G.P. Sue J. Irwin was the installing officer, and was assisted by Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, Grand Marshal Dr. Victory A. Derrick and Grand Trustee Maud A. Wagner.

Native Sons of the Golden West

"CARRY ON!"

That is, don't cease your efforts to get every eligible native son enrolled as a member of some Subordinate Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, simply because the membership campaign for the Grand Parlor trophy banners has closed.

Every native son of California should be a member of this Order, whether affiliated with any other fraternity or not; he OWES THAT DUTY TO HIS STATE, not the Order. And in considering the performance of that duty he should not draw comparisons. For, the Order of Native Sons has no competitor in the fraternal world, so far as the native Californian is concerned. It is an EXCLUSIVE ORGANIZATION, for white native sons of California, engaged in doing UNSELFISH WORK for the benefit of California.

Nor should he look forward to the pomp and ceremony that attract to other fraternities, for the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West has neither time nor money for such, being too busily ENGAGED IN WORTH-WHILE UNDERTAKINGS.

The native son affiliating with this Order will find that he has entered the MOST PRODUCTIVE FRATERNAL FIELD in which to sow his energies, and if he he a faithful cultivator of the opportunities afforded will reap a rich harvest—the knowledge that he has been loyal to California and diligent in protecting her welfare.

"Oh, California, may thy sons he ever true to thee; true to the spirit of thy great destiny! Upon thy broad domain may the heart of the patriot ever beat with love. Under thy night stars, and in thy glorious golden day, may thy temples be their place of worship, thy name their guardian care."

Right now there is a friendly rivalry hetween Parlors to he the biggest, in membership, in the Order. Castro 232 (San Francisco) has passed the 551-mark, which gives it another Grand Parlor delegate, and Sacramento 3, Stockton 7 and South San Francisco 157, all with considerahly more than 500 members, are also going to have additional delegates, for they are carrying on and meeting with success. The real motive back of these Parlors' splendid efforts is, of course, to get into the fold the eligihles in their districts.

Every Parlor should be inspired with the same determination, and if the members of each Parlor will, unitedly, "carry on," the Order's membership will grow, for in every community there are many, many eligibles who, if properly enlightened as to this Order's purposes, will be only too glad to affiliate with it. So, brothers, in the interest of our California, "carry on," continually!—C. M. H.

To Stage Big Benefit.

Oakland—The combined Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters of Alameda County will stage a dance and entertainment at the Municipal Auditorium, February 5, for the benefit of the homeless children of California. The committee in charge of the arrangements has met with such encouragement that it is predicted this will be the largest attended and most successful charity ball ever held here.

Charles P. Corrigan is chairman of the joint committee, and the chairmen of the several joint committees include: A. E. Gerhard, subscription; C. H. Hollis, decoratiug; George Watson, floor; F. C. Merritt, dance; Grand Third Vice-president H. G. Williams, reception; C. T. Porep, refreshment; A. T. Sousa, badge; J. J. Mulgrew, printing; E. F. Garrison, entertainment; M. J. Dolan, music; Grand Trustee W. J. Hayes, publicity; A. R. Larson, concession; M. C. McDonough, box.

Yosemite Has New Home.

Merced—January 6 Yosemite 24 moved into its new quarters in the new Masonic Temple. It is needless to say that the new lodge-rooms are very suitably as well as handsomely arranged. The Parlor has also furnished club-rooms in the same building, which measure up with some of the finest in the state, consisting of a very large reading-room, card-room, pool-and-hilliard-room, and a balcony space, to be used as a museum. One of the most complete collections of relics pertaining to the early days of California, owned by Chas. Rogers of Merced, is to be presented to the Parlor, to be exhibited in these quarters. Many grand officers and other visitors to Yosemite Parlor, who have been taken to the Rogers ranch to view this wonderful collection, have expressed their amazement at its completeness. There is also a stock-room of foodstuffs in the club quarters, suitable arranged so that members of the club can cook up very choice lunches any time of the day or evening. That the Parlor will undoubtedly double in membership in the next two years is assured by the present interest taken by eligibles.

Yosemite Parlor formally opened its new home January 20, when some 500 guests were entertained. Dancing prevailed throughout the evening in the ball-room, while card-playing amused the many who did not participate in the dancing and other amusements. The club, lodge and ball-rooms were beautifully decorated with potted plants, ferns, carnations and pictures symbolic of California's wonderful scenery. Delicious punch was served throughout the evening by young native daughters.

Great credit is due the Parlor's arrangements committee, through whose untiring efforts the new quarters have been made possihle. The kitchenette provided in the club-rooms, which is typically Californian in every way, is the idea of the members. It is equipped with all necessary dishes, cutlery, a complete stock of canned goods, beverages, smokes, pastries, and everything that goes to make necessary a luncheon at any time a member wishes to entertain his friends. The Parlor is very proud of a beautiful fern, presented by Veritas 75, N.D.G.W., in honor of the opening.

February 21, the Parlor will give a social dance, the proceeds to be used to procure an electric N.S.G.W. sign to be erected over the corner of the Masonic Temple above its headquarters. Yosemite has approved the action taken by the Merced County Farm Bureau to oppose the settling of Japs in the county and has assured it every assistance to aid in succesfully combatting the Jap menace.

Courtland Attracts Berkeley Natives.

Berkeley—A trip of more than 300 miles was made by Berkeley 210's past-presidents' team to render the initiatory ceremonies for Courtland 106, January 3, at the thriving little Sacramento River city of Courtland. The event was a surprise to all but a few of the officers of Courtland Parlor, who planned the visit of the Berkeley Parlor team to initiate the class secured for that evening. Brother Berry of Courtland Parlor called in his machine Saturday noon for the six past presidents of Berkeley Parlor, and drove them home on Sunday.

It has been the custom of Courtland Parlor the past few terms to have a visiting team initiate at least one class of candidates during the term. On this occasion, it was a team far from home that was welcomed in a manner characteristic of the well-known hospitality and generosity of 106. At the conclusion of the meeting the visiting brothers and members of the Parlor were served a cold supper, which had been prepared by members of the newly-instituted Victory 216, N.D.G.W.

The end of a perfect day? No! For the supper was so appetizing that the Berkeley Parlor members demanded that they meet the cooks. Courtland Parlor members, ever obliging, could not deprive them of so rare a treat, and thereupon whisked the whole party out to Elk Grove to a dance that was being given for the benefit of the homeless children by Elk Grove 41. The midnight ride included five machine loads of Native Sons, who danced with the fair cooks until the wee small hours. So favorably were the visiting brothers impressed by the country girls with city ways, that they plan to take a delegation of Berkeley Parlor members to the homeless children dance to be given by Courtland Parlor on Washington's birthday, February 22.

Ritual Team Wants Contest.

Palo Alto—The term just closed has been one of the most successful in the history of Palo Alto 216, and the future never looked brighter, for never has there been a time when the individnal members have taken such an active interest not only in matters pertaining to the Parlor, but to the community as well, and each one will use his hest efforts to make 1920 the banner year of the Parlor's existence. R. J. White, retiring president, was pleased at the progress made during his term; the membership was increased thirty-seven, bringing the total to 136, and a united effort will be made to swell the figure to 200 hefore the end of the year. C. E. Tully, the new president, is one of the Parlor's most popular members, and he, too, looks forward to a highly successful term.

Recently a ritual contest between the past and present officers for a birthday cake for the Parlor was won by the former. The cake was in evidence December 8, when 110 members were present to celebrate the Parlor's seventeenth birthday anniversary. In a most eloquent address, Father Gleason presented Past President William Clemo with a beautiful emblem. A program was presented, and a good old-time banqnet served. Palo Alto Parlor is very proud of its two ritual teams. The one made up of the past officers is in the field for a contest, and Past Grand President Dr. C. W. Decker, who has witnessed its work often, is arranging a contest with one of the San Francisco Parlors.

January 10, the Parlor inaugurated a series of old-fashioned whist parties, to end April 12; prizes will he awarded at each party, and at the close of the series a grand prize will be given the one who has the highest total score. A committee of the Parlor is arranging a ritual contest with past officers of Redwood 66 (Redwood City) for early in February. Both Parlors boast of the ability of their ritual teams, so some exceptionally good work is looked forward to.

A Valuable District Depnty.

San Francisco—Officers of South San Francisco 157 were installed January 14, D.D.G.P. Abe Marks officiating. After installation, he got busy and cooked up a lot of corned-beef and cabbage for the "boys"—and it was some job, for he had to feed over 100.

Convenience

We are now in our new quarters on the main floor with entrances on Spring and Fourth and with the interior rebuilt. In February we expect to open the new bank at Hollywood and Hudson Ave. These new quarters together with our five other branches add much to the convenience which we offer you for 1920.

The Parlor's membership has now reached the 514-mark, but 551, at least, must be reached before the San Diego Grand Parlor, and so a membership drive is well under way. Watch the "South" boys go!

President Makes Record.

Sacramento—Theo. S. Lagos, retiring president of Sutter Fort 241, was showered with congratulations January 14, when the newly-elected officers were installed; and well did he deserve all the praise given him, for during his term and largely through his efforts, the Parlor increased its membership by 86, the largest gain made during the Parlor's twelve years of existence.

The jollification meeting was attended by Grand President William P. Caubu, who addressed the large assemblage, as did also George Radcliff (Watsonville 65), Judge Denny, V. T. Meehan, the new president of the Parlor, and others. A splendid entertainment was provided under the direction of Bert and Carl Katzenstein, and a chicken stew was enjoyed at the meeting's close.

Grand Trustee Visits.

Weaverville—January 5 the following officers of Mount Bally 87 were installed by D.D.G.P. R. H. Junkans: A. A. Brady, Jr. P.P.; R. L. Carter, P.; H. H. Hutchins, 1V.P.; E. G. Chapman, 2V.P.; V. E. Ryan, 3V.P.; J. J. Jackson, M.; J. W. Shuford, T.; P. J. Ryan, I.S.; J. A. Wallace, O.S. One candidate was initiated, and refreshments were served.

Grand Trustee F. M. Carr recently visited the Parlor, and there was a large attendance. One candidate was initiated, and a banquet was served. Resolutions against the Japanese menace have been passed.

The dance given by Mount Bally Parlor New Year's Eve for the benefit of the homeless children was both a social and financial success, despite the bad weather.

Solano Initiates Five.

Suisun—At the meeting of Solano 39, January 6, five candidates were initiated. Judge William H. Langdon, Grand Trustee, was present and delivered a splendid address, in the course of which he complimented the Parlor on its fine showing. Officers of the Parlor will be installed in February, and at an early date another class will be initiated. Old Solano is again in the active list, and making good progress.

Has Successful Concert Dance.

San Francisco—Bay City 104 gave a concert dance at Native Sons Building, January 6, several well-known singers, dancers and instrumentalists contributing to the evening's success. The affair was arranged by the following committee: Dr. Peter H. Luttrell (chairman), I. Linderman, Stephen M. White, Leon Stimmel, A. D. Alvarez, Sam Stern, H. L. Gunzburger, H. J. Lyon and Max E. Licht.

Makes Splendid Progress.

Oakland—Officers of Piedmont 120 were publicly installed at a joint meeting with Piedmont 87, N.D.G.W., in Native Sons Hall, January 15, D.D.G.P. John M. Ansel (Halcyon 146) being the installing officer, and George V. Manning becoming president. An entertainment and dance followed the installation. Senior Past President John Reali was presented with a diamond jewel by the Parlor, in appreciation of his faithful services as an official.

January 29, the cash prizes for the membership campaign that closed on December 31, together with the special lapel pin offered by Grand President William P. Caubu, will be distributed to the members entitled to same. During the semi-annual term ending December 31, Piedmont initiated thirty-five new candidates and increased its assets $846.88, now having a membership of 441, and convertible

JUST CALIFORNIA

More Pears—In Lake County, famous for its Bartlett pears, thousands of additional trees are being set out, according to the "Clear Lake Press."

Lamb Farm—At Kerman, Fresno County, a farm is to be devoted to producing Persian lamb pelts, many of which are used annually in America.

Beautifying Roadways—Yolo County will plant 1,200 walnut trees along its highways; in time they will pay for their upkeep.

Phenomenal—The acreage devoted to the 1920 asparagus crop about Isleton, Sacramento County, is phenomenal, says the "Rio Vista Banner"; 12,000 acres are now in full-grown asparagus.

Supervisors to Meet—The California Association of Supervisors will meet in San Francisco, February 10, 11 and 12.

Auto Show—The fourth annual Pacific Automobile Show will be held in the Municipal Auditorium, San Francisco, the week of February 21.

Will Soon Lead—California jumped to third place in the Nation in automotive registrations during 1919, being surpassed only by New York and Ohio.

Gets National Meet—San Francisco has been selected for the meeting place of the Democratic National Convention, June 28.

Big Payroll—Stockton's strictly manufacturing concerns have 5,600 employes, with a 1919 payroll of $7,225,500, according to the Chamber of Commerce of that city.

To Plant Big Acreage—A million-dollar company has been incorporated in Los Angeles to plant 2,000 acres of land in the Salinas Valley district of Monterey to fruit and nut trees.

Business Show—A Better Business Show will be held in the San Francisco Municipal Auditorium the week of March 8.

Has Auditorium—Redlands now has a municipal auditorium available for conventions, entertainments, etc., an opera house having been purchased by the city.

Expanding—It is expected the seventy-nine-mile railroad gap between Crescent City and Grants Pass, Oregon, will be completed this year, and the little Del Norte County city plans a new breakwater that will open the port to foreign commerce.

Industries Grow—Los Angeles is making big strides forward as an industrial city. Its Chamber of Commerce claims that on January 1 it had 2,700 industrial establishments with an estimated output of $1,250,000 each working day.

Big Water Project—Construction of a big dam in northern Lake County, to supply water to the cities on the east side of San Francisco Bay, is now assured, according to the "Clear Lake Press." The contract, filed for record, involves the expenditure of nearly $1,250,000.

Cottou Acreage Growing—California's 1919 cotton crop is valued at $20,000,000; most of it came from the southern part of the state, where the 1920 acreage will be greatly increased. It having been demonstrated that cotton can be successfully grown there, large acreages are to be set out in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys.

assets of $20,093.67. The Parlor expocts to send six delegates to the Grand Parlor which convenes April 19 in San Diego.

Seven Initiated at Livermore.

Livermore—Las Positas 96 initiated a class of seven at a recent meeting. There was a large attendance, including a delegation of twenty from Oakland, among them Grand Third Vico-president Harry G. Williams, D.D.G.P. Emil Hourtain and D.D.G.P. Earl Glaze.

The ritual was impressively exemplified by the following team of Oakland 50: William Ruckor, P.; Maury Pessano, 1V.P.; George Barron, 2V.P.; Harold Anderson, 3V.P.; Chester Case, M.; Ray Weiss, I.S.; Walter Holstrum, O.S.; F. M. Towne, Sr. P.P.; William Crosby, Jr. P.P.

After the Parlor's close, some of tbe initiates "took" the "side degree," and no end of fun was created. Ahout midnight a clam supper was enjoyed, and while seated ahout the festive hoard President Harry Johnson, as toastmaster, called upon visiting and local members for brief remarks.

"A REUTER FOR THE ORDER"

Got Nervous, Gets Help.

Stockton—Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker has been assisting Stoekton 7 to inerease its membership. The Parlor was getting nervous ahout retaining its place as the first in membership in the Order, and sent a call for help to Grand President William P. Caubu, who responded. Well may old 7—one of the best Parlors in tbe Order—look to its laurels, too, for at least three other Parlors are going strong after the first place in the membership column.

Benefit for Homeless Children.

Fresno—Fresno 25 has arrangements complettd for a ball to he given for the benefit of the homeless children, January 31. Mayor William F. Toomey, Past Grand President, says it will he the most successful benefit ever given here. The arrangements committee includes Frank M. Lane, E. E. Burks, Leland M. Barbour, Dr. E. M. Johnston, Arthur M. Drew, B. W. Gearhart, S. W. Harkleroad and William F. Toomey.

Past Grand Transfers Membership.

Sacramento—Saeramento 3 is already making elaborate preparations for the eelebration of its forty-first institution anniversary, Mareh 22, wben those who have been affiliated with it for a quarter-century or more will bc signally honored.

Offieers were installed by D.D.G.P. H. M. Ryan January 15, when ten candidates were initiated, bringing the membership up to over 500. Marco Zarick is the new president, and he has put a corps of member-getters to work to run No. 3's membership up to 600 hefore the anniversary doings, and they'll get 'em! Charles A. Root, county recorder for fifteen years, was installed as trustee, this being the heginning of his twenty-fifth year as an officer of the Parlor.

Judge Charles E. McLaughlin, Past Grand President, who has long heen a resident here, has transferred his membership from Quincy 131 to Sacramento Parlor. He bas presented tbe Parlor with Argonaut Adds Another Success.

Oroville—The annual New Year Eve ball of Argonaut 8 has gone into history, but it set a social mark which exceeded the fondest expectations of the members. There was a large attendance, both of daneers and spectators, and the display of feminine gowns was, in itself, gorgeous. American and State (Bear) Flags were used with a profusion of evergreens in the decorations, while in the center of the Exposition Building stood a beautiful Christmas tree, aglow with eolored lights, red hells and tinsel.

The new year was weleomed with "Auld Lang Syne" by the orehestra, the blowing of horns and showering of eonfetti. Earl Ward, floor direetor, was assisted by all members of the Parlor, who also acted as a reception committee. The executive eommittee, which arranged the affair, included President A. L. Smith, E. B. Shreve (chairman), James L. Looney, F. W. Boyle, R. G. Lawrence, R. W. Smith and H. A. Baldwin.

Can't Stop the Orange City Boys.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead 110, which made sueh a phenomenal membership gain prior to the Yosemite Grand Parlor that it increased its representation at that session, has not been idle since. In fact, "carry on" is the slogan in Arrowhead, and candidates are initiated at every meeting.

Grand Trustee John Andreson, Jr., a member of the Parlor, says there's no stopping Arrowhead's progress, and that when delegates are elected to the San Diego Grand Parlor one more than the number sent to Yosemite will be chosen.

Grand President to Help.

Arcata—Areata 20 is anxiously awaiting the coming of Grand President William P. Caubu and Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker the latter part of January. They will inaugurate a membership campaign that will put the Parlor back on its feet. Arcata has a good treasury, but needs new members, and it is expected the visitors will be able to inject the required amount of "pep" into the old-timers to get them.

Pays Annual Visit.

San Francisco—D.D.G.P. William Toomey installed the officers of Presidio 194 January 19, William J. Hatman becoming president. A committee has been named to prepare an honor roll of the members who served the country during the war; it will be beautifully embossed and framed, along with the photographs of those members who did not return.

Deecmber 29, William J. Wynn, financial seeretary of Rincon 72, paid his twenty-fifth consecutive New Year visit to the Parlor. In the course of an address he eomplimented the officers and extended his good wishes to all the members and their families.

Grand Trustee Visits.

Crows Landing—Grand Trustee William J. Hayes, aecompanied by J. Ashton Flinn of Berkeley 210, offieially visited Orestimba 247 January 14. Prior to the meeting, which was largely attended, a fine supper was served.

Orestimba Parlor is very active, in good condition, and is taking a commendable interest in the affairs of this community as well as all matters pertaining to the Order.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Edwin O. Edgerton (Ramona 109) has been reeleeted president of the California Railroad Commission.

Senator A. E. Boynton (Argonaut 8) of San Franeisco has been appointed a member of the State Board of Prison Directors.

Superior Judge James W. Bartlett (Mount Bally 87) of Weaverville recently presided in the Superior Court of Glenn Couuty, at Willows.

Frank Christophel (Sacramento 3) of Sacramento, treasurer of Saeramento County, was reeently severely injured, but is now convalescing.

William W. Winn (Saeramento 3), who has made his home in San Rafael the past several years, has removed with his family to Eureka. He is a grandson of General A. M. Winn, Founder of the Order.

Two well-known members will seek the honor of representing California in the United States Senate: Senator James D. Phelan (Pacifie 10) of San Francisco is a eandidate for the Democratic nomination, and Edwin A. Meserve (Ramona 109) of Los Angeles for the Republiean nomination.

JAPS RESPECT NEITHER OUR COUNTRY NOR OUR FLAG

INDICATIVE OF THE INTEREST AROUSED at Los Angeles in the Japs' "peaceful invasion" of California scheme, was the open meeting addressed January 5 by United States Senator James D. Phelan, a member of Pacific Parlor, No. 10, N.S.G.W. (San Francisco), under the auspices of the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association—a strictly non-political organization which, in three months' time, has grown to a membership of approximately 200,000 and which is making splendid progress in its campaign against the yellow peril. Senator Phelan came on short notice, and although the association had but two days in which to spread the news that he would speak on the Japanese question, at 8 o'clock the Trinity Auditorium, with a seating capacity of 3,500, was filled to capacity and at least 500 people were turned away when the doors were closed.

William I. Traeger, president of the association and Grand Second Vice-president, N.S.G.W., presided and in opening the meeting said the purpose of the association was to prevent, by laws if possible, the flag of Japan from eventually floating over California. He introduced, in order, Lou Guernsey, representing the New York State Society in the association, who briefly outlined the organization's declaration of principles, and Grove T. Vail of Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W., who sang "I Love You, California." Senator Phelan followed, and at length earnestly presented facts which so impressed his audience that 2,000 signed up for membership in the association. Portions of the address are here quoted:

"When Commodore Perry of the United States Navy opened up Japan, he did not know what was in it. It has been a Pandora's box of trouble ever since.

"One-third of the Japanese men in America have picture wives. For the most part, American sentiment quickly formed against picture brides. It was condemned as traffic in women. The Japanese Society, as a sop to American public opinion, advised that picture brides be abolished. They tried to turn our minds from the greater danger of traffic in lands.

"The Japanese love California. I do not blame them. They find her sky fair and soil fertile. There is no better way to educate the people of the East than to bring them in contact with this condition.

"In ninety years there will be more Japanese in California than whites if the present birthrate continues. The white population here has increased sixteen in a thousand annually; the Japanese population has increased sixty-nine in a thousand.

"This generation is suffering for their presence. Eighty-five per cent of all the truck gardening is done by Japanese in your own county. Prices are dictated by the Japanese. They enjoy a commercial autocracy. If I told you under what conditions they raise that garden truck, you would never let a bit of it pass your lips. They are the masters of agricultural California.

"The principle of racial equality means that the Japanese nationals want to be treated as other nationals. Imagine a Japanese seeking the hands of American women in marriage!

"While they made a 'gentlemen's agreement' in 1906, to keep out Japanese laboring classes, they steal over the border and there is no way of keeping them out.

"These aliens respect neither our country nor our flag. As a military problem alone, I am told, we will not only have to meet a front attack from them, but a rear attack also.

"California in a few years will be a Japanese country and we shall be crowded out if we admit racial equality. We know in California what it means. They don't know in the East, and they don't care in Europe.

"They are forcing themselves into our homes, which means the destruction of our homes. This protest is an effort on the part of our people to prevent the inundation by coolies."

LOCAL EDUCATOR CHOSEN.

Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, a graduate of Los Angeles High School, for years connected with the local school department, and having a national reputation as a successful educator, has been chosen city superintendent of schools by the Board of Education.

This announcement was received with pleasure and approbation by the Native Sons who, in letters addressed to the board, protested against the filling of the vacancy, caused by the retirement of Dr. Albert Shiels, by any but a California educator.

Shortly after the selection of Mrs. Dorsey, who had been assistant superintendent, the board elected Miss Helen S. Watson, for eleven years connected with the school department, to fill that vacancy. So, the Native Sons are perfectly satisfied with the results of their campaign for home talent in home schools.

PAPER DRIVE FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN

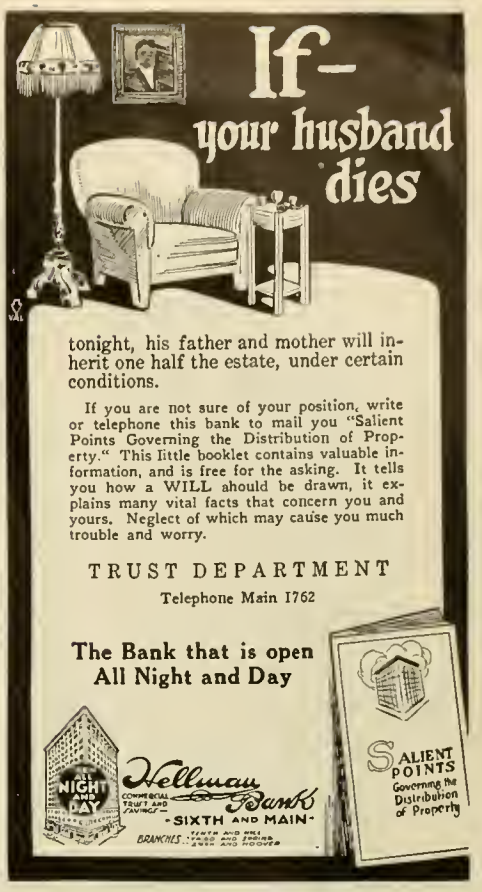

There is nothing in the whole category of charity more splendid than the preservation of the life of a child and the bestowal upon the child of an opportunity to grow into decent, intelligent, efficient manhood or womanhood. And when an effort is made to extend the helping hand to California children, the effort should be encouraged by every Californian. For, though the fact sometimes appears to be lost sight of, in the commendable efforts put forth to raise funds for the needy children of other lands, right here in California there are hundreds of little children who need help.

For about ten years the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, through their joint Homeless Children Committee, have been extending help to the children of this state, and several hundred of them have been taken from orphanages, relief societies and charitable homes—rescued from the heavy handicap of an institutional life—and given opportunity to become good citizens. This committee does not "farm out" children, nor does it conduct an institution for the care of abandoned children. It operates on the only safe-and-sane theory, that, to have proper home training, a child must be a part of a home, and so its efforts are directed toward securing, through adoption, foster-parents for the little one bereft of mother and father love. No distinction is made because of race, creed, color, or place of nativity, in the operations of this committee, which has been most successful in mutually benefiting the homeless children and the childless homes of California.

To carry on this splendid work of charity, which has the unqualified approval of the State Charities Board, requires thousands of dollars annually. Every community in the state is asked once a year to help raise the needed funds, and each responds, for the people appreciate the great amount of good being accomplished at a minimum of operative cost, and they know, too, that under the watchful care of the Homeless Children's Committee every one of its children will have every opportunity to properly develop. And the fact should not be overlooked that for every child placed by this committee the burden of the taxpayer is lessened by a reduction of the state's expenses for supporting institutional children.

Los Angeles is now called upon to raise its share of these funds, and the response should be generous, for this committee has found good homes for chil-

INFLUENZA: TIMELY SUGGESTIONS

(AUSTIN B. HEID, M. D.)

DURING THE PAST EIGHTEEN MONTHS much has been said regarding the cause, prevention, cure and after-effects of influenza; also, much has been written as to the possibility of recurrence. To elucidate and give as comprehensive an idea as possible on the subject, is the object of this article. The cause, no one knows definitely. The influenza bacillus has as yet not ben absolutely identified, so all further statements and arguments are mere theory and guesswork.

Tho prevention is also an unknown factor. Under the general rules of health one must keep himself fit, that is, not abuse nature. Any abuse of nature's precepts for health is subject to most terrible consequences. Good food, eight hours' sleep out of twenty-four, bodily cleanliness, internal as well as external, are necessary; by internal cleanliness, we refer to the bowels. Added to tho foregoing, get plenty of fresh air and keep the feet dry and warm, and the most important rules for the prevention of influenza have been followed.

As to the cure, there is none. A physician can only treat his patient sympathetically,—be on the lookout for pneumonia and other complications. However, if one is stricken, a good dose of calomel and soda, followed by a substantial dose of salts, is the first step towards the treatment. If the patient then still has an elevation of temperature the physician had better he summoned.

Influenza, which last winter took such a toll of lives, has again made its appearance. While more prevalent in the Eastern states than elsewhere, a sufficient number of cases havo developed in California to warrant every precaution on the part of health authorities and individuals to prevent its becoming epidemic here. From January 1 to 24, according to the State Board of Health, a total of 835 cases had been reported in California.—Editor.

History proves that influenza recurs for several years. The type of disease, however, is less toxic after the first epidemic, as a rule, and the spread of the disease depends more on the sanitary living conditions of people in general.

The after-effects of influenza are the most serious. When the bacillus of influenza has once had full sway, it has paved the way for the dreaded bacillus of tuberculosis. When a chronic cough and impaired endurance and strength follow an attack of influenza, see a physician at once, because it is in the early stages that tuberculosis can be cured almost without exception.

In conclusion, permit me to say that no one should neglect himself or herself. It will always remain true, that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

dren abandoned in this city. The local Native Sons and Native Daughters will start a drive to raise their pro rata February 5; they will not ask for money, however, but for old papers and magazines which, accumulated in offices and homes, serve no good purpose—but good use can be made of them in behalf of the homeless children.

Get busy right away, gather up all your dirt accumulating and fire-inviting old papers, books and magazines, and either deliver them to the paper headquarters, Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill, phone Main 7013, or notify those in charge of the drive and they will be called for. Remember the drive starts February 5. It will be directed by Herman C. Lichtenberger, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., who will be assisted by the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Joint Homeless Children Committee of Los Angeles, of which Irving Baxter (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) is chairman and Annie L. Adair (Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W.) secretary.—C. M. H.

May Have Club Feature.

Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W., was officially visited by Grand Trustee John Andreson, Jr., January 29. Officers were installed by D.D.G.P. Dr. Robert M. Dunsmoor, John J. Craig becoming president, and a candidate initiated. January 24 a dance was given at Native Sons Hall, members of the Order and their friends being guests. Good music was provided, and ice cream and cake, as well as punch, were served. The affair was in charge of Lee Rose, Jim Lowe, Al Cron and Harry Alexander.

The Parlor has started a membership drive, and expects to initiate several candidates before the San Diego Grand Parlor meeting. The younger members are anxious for a club, and a plan has been outlined whereby one can be established in Native Sons Hall, of which Los Angeles Parlor is the largest stockholder, and a committee has been named to secure the necessary finances.

Ramona Has New Secretary.

Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., started the new year with a class initiation January 16, and every effort will be made to so swell the membership that the Parlor will soon become one of the largest in the Order. It has every inducement to attract eligibles, the new Ramona Home comparing favorably with the best-appointed clubs in the city. A new feature, a noonday lunch, attracts many members to the clubrooms daily. Visiting members of the Order are invited to make the home, at 349 South Hill street, their headquarters.

The same evening, officers were installed by D.D.G.P. Walter D. Gilman, Walter Baskerville becoming president and Grove T. Vail, elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of C. C. West, taking up the duties of secretary. In addition to his work as secretary, he is the house manager of Ramona Home, and will devote all his time and efforts to the Parlor. Edwin A. Meserve held the closest attention of the members for a few minutes while he spoke feelingly on the death of Past Grand President Frank Mattison, a boyhood friend. A couple of vaudeville acts and refreshments closed the evening. Grand Trustee John Andreson, Jr., will pay his official visit to Ramona February 6.

Going to San Diego.

A big delegation of Native Sons will go to San Diego February 7, to pay a fraternal visit to San Diego 108. A feature of the evening there will be the initiation of a large class of candidates. The ritual will be exemplified by a team from Southern Counties Past Presidents' Association, headed by Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger.

Corona to Give Dance.

Corona 196, N.S.G.W., was officially visited January 28 by Grand Trustee John Andreson, Jr., who was accompanied from San Bernardino by President Harry Lord, Secretary R. W. Brazelton, A. F. Hansen, Judge Ed Wall and Dal Devening of Arrowhead 110. One candidate was initiated, several addresses were made, and light refreshments were served.

Monday, February 19, at Ramona Hall, Corona will give another of its popular dances to which members of the Order, eligibles, and their friends are welcome; John W. Topham is chairman of the arrangements committee. A membership drive has been started, with three contesting teams in the field. If arrangements that now appear likely can be made, the Parlor will change its meeting night to Monday at an early date.

PERSONAL MENTION.

John McGonigle (Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W.) was in Visalia last month on legal business.

Isadore B. Dockweiler (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) was a visitor last month to the National Capital.

J. M. Sanders (Estudillo 223, N.S.G.W.) of San Leandro was a visitor last month; he may make his home here.

CALIFORNIA MINING NEWS

1919 METAL PRODUCTION.

Preliminary figures compiled by Charles G. Yale of the San Francisco office of the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, estimate the 1919 output of gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc at $23,124,045, a decrease in value of 26 percent, compared with 1918.

The estimate for 1919 gold output is $17,320,250, about $791,300 more than in 1918. The deep mines are credited with 53 percent of the production, and the placers with 47 percent. In the latter class, the dredges are producing 95 percent of the gold, which is about 40 percent of the state's entire output.

The report says that the "increase for 1919 merely shows that gold mining in California has begun to readjust itself to present general conditions, and in a few years the mines will no doubt be able to again produce their average normal annual output of about $20,000,000."

MINERAL PRODUCTION IN 1919

The value of all minerals mined in California in 1919 is estimated by the statistical division of the State Mining Bureau, Fletcher Hamilton, State Mineralogist, at approximately $182,463,000. The decrease of about $17,000,000, compared with 1918, "is due to the marked drop in prices and the cessation in demand of the so-called 'war minerals'."

The date of publication of the final and complete report on the 1919 mineral production is dependent upon the promptness of the replies from operators.

INAUGURATES EMPLOYMENT SERVICE.

The California State Mining Bureau has inaugurated a technical employment service, offered free of charge, in the hope that practical benefit will result to those interested in the mineral industry.

Blank forms, for both employer and applicant, may be had by addressing the Bureau at San Francisco (Ferry Building), Los Angeles (512 Union League Building), Santa Paula, Santa Maria, Taft, Bakersfield, Coalinga, Auburn, or Redding.

NOTES OF THE MINES.

The Big Creek Mining Company, says the "Trinity Journal," will soon begin extensive operations on its holdings of placer ground in the Hayfork Valley, Trinity County.

One of the largest copper formations discovered in Plumas County has been uncovered at the Walker mine, near Spring Garden.

The old Comet Mine, close to San Andreas, Calaveras County, is being reopened and promises to become a big producer, says the "Calaveras Prospect."

A cinnabar ledge, assaying $100 to the ton, has been uncovered in the foothills not far from San Jose, on the property of the Guadalupe company.

The Patterson and Atlas mines near Tuttletown, Tuolumne County, formerly good gold producers, are to be reopened with modern equipment March 1 and thoroughly developed, says the "Mother Lode Magnet."

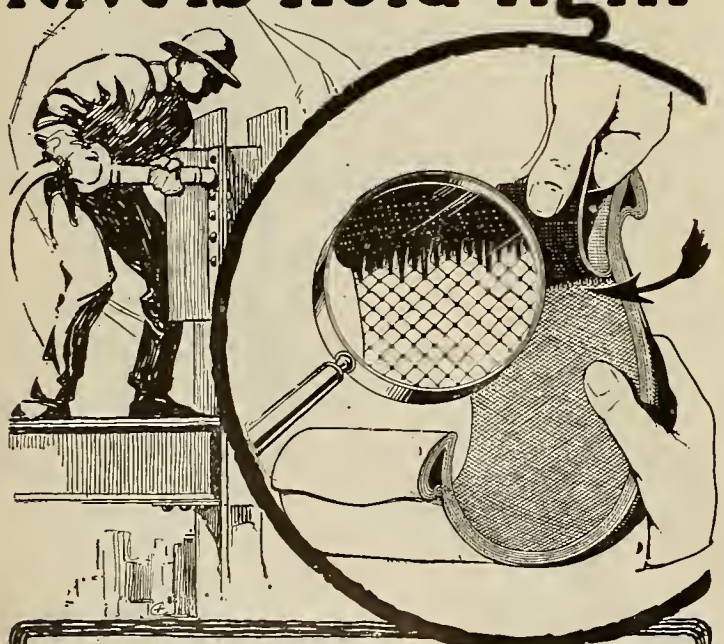

Oil men predict that during 1920 California will be called upon to supply a greater amount of oil than ever before, and they have planned extensive drillings.

Capitalists are investigating the Humboldt Placer Mining Company's holdings near Minersville, Trinity County, and the "Trinity Journal" reports prospects are good for their development in the near future.

The "Placer Herald" says many old gold mines in the Forest Hill and Yankee Jims sections of Placer County are being reopened, and that others are putting more miners to work.

The Federal Bureau of the Mint reports that California during 1919 continued its lead as the greatest gold-producing state in the Union.

SPRING AND AUTUMN IN DOUBLE ROMANCE

By Mabel Pain

OLD SILKY MANSE WAS WALKING home with a letter. It was from the East,—Linden, Massachusetts. The postmark made his heart heat. Many a year had passed since Silky had heard from the East, and the last letter he received containtd a short notice of the death of his wife, from whom he had been separated for many years. Silky waited until he had passed the curious eyes of Pleasant Valley before he opened the letter. It was written in a fine old-fashioned hand. It smelled of lavender, too, and was tied with a pink ribbon. The rough miner could hardly handle the little pink bow, and fumhled with it until it was tied in a hard knot. Helplessly staring at it, Silky mopped his hrow. Before attempting further to uutie the knot, he climbed the steep, dusty hill, sniffing the hreeze, spring laden from the higher Sierras. On the thick grass at the top of the hill he sat down, untied the rihhon hetween puffs of his old pipe, and read:

"Dear One,
"Silky Manse of Pleasant Valley,
"California.

"I have adopted you for my heloved. Over your glossy chestnut locks I rnn my little hands. Your dear dark eyes, they look lovingly at me. I like to rub my pink cheeks on your smooth square chin, and to feel those lips which have said sweet words to me so oft.

"You are way out there in my dreamland, California, and I am way back here in a fussy factory New England town, hut my heart heats for you above the thud of the engines, and my hlue eyes shine for you through the smoke of the sooty chimneys, and my hair which, dear, you call golden and fragrant, still glisteus because such bright thoughts ruu twinkling under it through my brain,—thoughts of you, dear, in the heautiful, far away land.

"YOUR CYNTHIA."

"Well, I'll he damned!" muttered the old man, after having read the note three times before he could recover his power of speech. "I'll he damned! 'Chestnut locks,' eh?" He rubbed his grimy hands over his few gray wisps. "'Dark eyes'? They were green the last time I looked at 'em in the mirror. 'Square, smooth chin'? Thank God, she's too far away to see my old goatee. Aw, the letter's someone else's."

He looked at the address: "Mr. Silky Manse, Pleasant Valley, California." Moreover, there was the return address: "Miss Cynthia Roe, Linden, Massachusetts."

The old man scratched his head and hegan to smile, hut the smile ended abruptly. He had just happened to remember his own courting days hack East, and the memories gave a new turn to his intentions. "By gad, we'll have some letter writing. She has little hands, and hright blue eyes, and pink cheeks!" Old Silky sat for some minutes more in a brown study, then rose stiffly from the ground and walked slowly on to his mountain home.

It was the typical miner's cahin, that of Silky's, a very temporary dwelling, yet used for years permanently, weather-beaten and shabby. It stood, or rather leaned, against a huge pine. The Cosumnes l iver roared at its door. The forest gave forth fragrance, gloom; the promise of life, the promise of death. It was dense, yet feathery; dark, yet brilliant. All alone in this, lived Silky, and he had lived so for thirty years. All day, he picked aud shoveled in his claim, all evening dreamed of gold, and it rose faster with the flames of his fire than it ever did trom the stubborn old earth. The inside of his cabin was comfortahle enough. Its rude furniture sufficed. The bed, like a ship's bunk, was built into the wall. The open fireplace was a guarantee of comfort. The stove and table and two chairs were whole and adequate. Surely a tenement house has much less.

The order of things was not quite as usual the night Silky got the letter from Linden. After supper he pulled his table before the fire, took out his writing-pad and some very clotted ink, and after a period of deep thought penned the following to Miss Cynthia Roe of Linden, Massachusetts:

"My Little Cynthia,—

"To a poor lonely miner like myself your dear letter was a great joy. I do not know how I won some favor of a lovely lady, hut that I have gained enough just to get that one sweet letter is all I ask—no, not all, for I am going to ask for more, for all that her charming generosity will let her send.

"In the meantime, her pink cheeks glow above the gloom of my lonely cabin and her bright eyes shine still when all is dark and her beloved sits happy in a faint hope that he may contiuue in the sunshine of her far-distant smile.

"SILKY MANSE.

"Pleasant Valley, California."

Now, perhaps you would like to meet Miss Cynthia Roe, back in Linden. A woman who can make love across a continent to an unknown heloved is well worth knowing. Miss Roe passed most of her conscious moments in a great, black, huzzing factory—a very insignificant and humhle part of it herself. For twenty-five years she had been insignificant and humhle, hut Cynthia was on the point of coming to her own. And she was coming into her own through dreams. It all began by her examining a Pan-American Exposition pamphlet, and among the nugget exhihitors Miss Cynthia's eye caught the name: Mr. Silky Manse, Pleasant Valley, California.

"'Silky Manse','' she echoed dreamily, "what a beautiful name and 'Pleasant Valley,' what a heautiful country!" And a dark, glossy-haired young hero became the hero of her dreams. Miss Cynthia's little faded blue eyes grew wider and deeper as she thought of Silky Manse, her pale little flahhy cheeks glowed a little when she thought of the sunshine there must be there in Pleasant Valley. It was a land flowing in milk and honey, and it was there that fine young hero, Silky Manse, dwelt.

"If I could just write to him," thought Miss Cynthia. Then, made hold by the romance of her new-found dream, she declared hotly to herself: "I will write to him—but of course the letter is never to be sent. I couldn't send it, oh no! Just think if the young man should consider me hold. It would never do at all—hut I'll write anyway." So, Miss Cynthia wrote. It was surprising how easily the words came—the words of love which Miss Cynthia had never in her life used.

She folded the letter, addressed the envelope, and laid it under the bureau cover for further inspection. It was very soon inspected by Miss Roe's niece, who came to tea at her aunt's house that afternoon before the factory whistle hlew. "Billy" Roe had all the fussy helpfulness of a young puppy, and as she flitted about Aunt Cynthia's room she found the letter addressed to Mr. Silky Manse, Pleasant Valley, California.

"Who on earth is that?" murmured "Billy," looking over the address in an interested way, "and where is that? Oh! it's sealed," she added, disappointedly, as she glanced at the other side. "Never mind, I'll post it for Aunt Cynthy when I go out to get the cake for our tea." And she took the letter with her, slipping it into the nearest box.

It was not until she was undressing for the night that Miss Cynthia missed the letter from under the bureau cover. It was gone! She searched everywhere. Then Miss Cynthia had an awful thought. Slipping on some clothes, she went to the telephone and called up "Billy."

"Billy," she gasped, "Billy, did you see a letter under the bureau"— But "Billy" didn't give her time to finish. "I found your letter, auntie, and posted it, and who on earth is Silky"— But the receiver had hung up. Miss Cynthia tried to think, to realize. The letter was on its way to California, having gone out on the evening train.

And so it was that Silky Manse in California and Cynthia Roe in Massachusetts found something really worth living for—that evanescent poetry of life which, when it dies, leaves mere existence just dust and ashes.

After the posting of the letter Miss Cynthia had moments of suhlime joy. She had a lover! She had written to him a real love letter. He was young, handsome, adorahle. To him, she was a young girl with blue eyes, pink cheeks and golden hair. Oh, the deliciousness of it! And then would come the moments of horror—the moments when she could have killed her niece for posting her letter. Then the cold chills would creep up that unprotected spinal column which stuck through Miss Cynthia's thin shirtwaists—those chills at the mere thought of her boldness. What contempt he would have for her—her hero! Poor Miss Cynthia became once more ber humble, insignificant self. Sbe was nearly sick witb these alternate waves of emotion, and then his answer came. Over and over she read it—that letter from ber hero, tbe young god out there in Pleasant Valley. For a long time tbat was enough to tbink about—just that letter. And then finally Miss Cynthia began to turn ber tboughts to tbe reply.

Wben one event pops up unexpectedly to break the monotony of existence, several more are apt to crowd in. Silky's monotony bad quite broken. A nepbew was coming—a real nephew, also from tbe East, a youth of twenty-three, with glossy cbestnut hair, smooth square chin, and deep dark eyes. As his uncle watched bim climb down from tbe stage, be thougbt Miss Cynthia's dream must be coming true. Here was the embodiment of it, coming to Pleasant Valley as his guest.

"Howdy, Uncle! Don't look mucb like my old man! Got a donkey for me to ride? Good! We're well in the neck of tbe woods. Whoa, Ned!" Tbe boy mounted bis donkey, while Silky prepared to walk by the side of another which was loaded, doubly packed with provisions for tbe boy and himself. But when tbe boy saw the arrangement be insisted on walking by the loaded donkey.

"Feel stiff in my joints after that jolting, uncle. Let me pace it awhile. My, wbat trees!" The boy sniffed the fragrant air eagerly and climbed on—up and up, and then down to tbe Consumnes and Silky's cabin.

And all this time Silky beld Cyntbia's second, unopened, letter in his hand. Before those wide young eyes he couldn't open it. Before tbat frank, young, bumorous face he couldn't read it. He felt, somebow, as if be ougbt to turn the letter over to Bobs and let young dark eyes read what young blue eyes wrote. But at last bis chance came when, after dinner, Bobs left witb a pole for tbe river and again Silky sat over bis fire, alone. Witb trembling bands he tore open tbe envelope and read:

"Silky, Silky, what a wonderful letter that was of yours, all tenderness, interest, respect—three things a girl most longs for! But out in that wonderful country where you dwell, what a lot of those noble qualities there must be! You are near the great Sierras, and tbeir bigness and fineness bave entered your soul, where they find a hospitable abiding place.

"You are up in the clouds. I am down by tbe sea, which thunders along the crags of this New England shore, now bleak no longer, for I have a wonderful lover in the wonderful West.

"YOUR CYNTHIA."

"By gad, it's a pome an' no mistake," said tbe old man. "Silky Manse, yer an ole fool to lead on a poor little girl like tbat an yer an ole fool to let such stuff make yer heart beat—but fool or no fool it sure does, all tbe same, Silky Manse. Gosb! If that gol darn mine would pay, perhaps Silky Manse could youthen up a bit—get a little dye or somethin'. But, damn it, boney, what a wreck yer ole Silky is! It'll take more'n hair-dye to brusb out the crumples of sixty years. Wbere'll I put this gol darn thing? Gee, just the idee, boney!"

He went to bis trunk, lifted the lid, and took from the upper tray an old Bible, one tbing be had kept, though unused, tbrough all the years. Into tbe Bible he slipped tbe lettter and, taking his miner's tools, walked slowly to the dump.

The rainy season of winter had filled in nearly all Silky had dug out the summer before. Since tbe weather had cleared, he had excavated perhaps six feet. A ladder led down to the bottom of tbis little hole; a windlass was stretched across it, and from the windlass hung a bucket. Silky climbed down the ladder painfully, for he bad been getting rheumatic lately and it was hard to climb up and down. Then be dug, and filled tbe bucket. Slowly he climbed the ladder, and dumped the dirt on tbe pile already deposited by the side of the bole. Again be climbed down. The second bucketful was being slowly hoisted wben a cbeerful young voice called out from above:

"Got a place for anotber man here?" Tbe windlass was turned with a quick wind, and Bobs deposited the second load on tbe dirt pile. From that moment it was a firm, Silky & Co., and Bobs became the managing member of the firm.

The next lettter from Silky beld joy, as usual, and amusement, too, for Miss Cynthia, even though her risibles were not sensitive witb over-tickling. It read:

"My Little Cynthia:

"I am beginning to worry about you, in that heartless town, chained to those whizzing wheels, an innocent prey to the wicked wiles of men. If tbat golden hair, those blue eyes, and your little bands can thrill me, a continent away, what must they do to those about you? You live alone? Why have you no protector? Tell me, dear one, about your family and yourself. And doesn't tbat buzzing factory exact an awful toll from those pink cbeeks?

"As the days go by I dream of you, sick and alone in Linden. And then, worse still, I think of some otber owner of dark eyes and glossy hair (as you picture mine) caressing you, who onght to be wandering free in these glorious woods, cared for and adored by

"YOUR SILKY."

Miss Cynthia laughed a low, rippling, contented little laugb. "Billy," deep in a novel on ber lounge, looked up at the unexpected sound. "Auntie," sbe gasped seriously, "wbo is that letter from and what makes you look so radiantly blissful tbese days? I have been watching you, my sly old aunt, and I believe you have something up your sleeve."

A faint rose tinged Miss Cyntbia's faded old cheeks. "'Billy'," she answered, "'Billy', I bave received a letter from a very old friend, and sbe relates some amusing incidents of our youth together."

It was really tbe first deliberate lie Miss Cynthia had ever told, and her voice bad a note of almost triumph in it. Was it tbe same Cynthia Roe who used to creep about like a little mouse, afraid of ber own shadow? "Billy" stared at ber with a puzzled frown.

"Wbat a pretty old lady you are, Aunt Cynthia," sbe said to ber aunt affectionately. "Your eyes are so blue, and your cbeeks are so pink, and you always did bave the cutest little bands."

"'Billy', is it fun you're making of your old aunt, or do you want to see ber a conceited minx, moved to life by flattery and vanity?"

"You're pretty well moved to life by sometbing now, auntie, if that's what you call it. I don't know by wbat, and that's just what I'm curious to find out."

Miss Cynthia started a little. She must be careful to keep those letters in close biding. Once before "Billy" had upset tbe apple cart—sbould she call it that, though, since tbe apple cart bad thrown sucb sweet fruit her way?—and if "Billy" sbould read the letters of Silky Manse—perish tbe thougbt! Miss Cynthia longed for solitude, wbere her inmost tboughts could not be read, any more than ber letters, by the sbarp young eyes of seventeen.

(Concluded in APRIL Issue.)

"LA PRIMAVERA"

(WALLACE RICE.)

CALIFORNIANS WILL BE INTERESTED in the intelligent and forehanded attempt of the citizens of Santa Barbara to give two afternoons in late April to well-devised revivals of the history of the Pioneers. For the first time in the history of the state, it is believed, the resources of modern pageantry and masque will be called upon for a civic performance to be given in the open upon a set stage, where all the world may see.

Wednesday, April 28, as it is now intended, the descendants of the Spanish pioneers will assemble on the beach witb horsemeu and tbe old equipages of long ago to act as escort for tbe viceroy from Monterey, who will make his landing from a barge, horne through the waves by sturdy hands in tbe manner of long ago. He and his suite will be duly escorted up State street to the old Casa de la Guerra, and thence to the barbecue in the old market-place. This is under tbe supervision of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of Santa Barbara, who expect to add a substantial amount to their building fund from the proceeds of the evening.

After sundown a masque, "La Primavera," will be given just beyond the market place on a stage to be erected on the hillside above a broad, flat, natural auditorium, and this will abound not only in dramatic situations taken from the earlier bistory of tbe city, but witb old Spanish music, botb for singing and dancing, several hundred persons being comprised in the cast. In symbolic form, witb tbe "Spirit of Santa Barbara" and her choristers and dancing months constantly on the stage throughout the three acts, tbe annals of the place will be enacted in considerable detail. An orcbestra of thirty pieces will provide tbe necessary accompaniment to tbe singing, dancing, and marching, more than a score of musical numbers being used.

This music includes fourteen songs and dances newly transcribed by Lawrence Adler from the lips of the older Spanish women of tbe community, most of the airs being new to tbe collectors of such tunes, two Latin hymns to he sung by tbe students of St. Anthony's College under the approval of tbe Franciscan Fathers at the old mission, tbe national airs of Spain, Mexico and the United States, and two bits of aborigiual Indian music, a religious dance and a lament. The old Spanish music was composed on the spot in good part, and is melodious to a degree, going far toward assuring the success of the performance in advance.

The masque opens with a prologue wbich explains the action in the ensuing act, thus avoiding the time wbich would have to be consumed in explaining the cbaracters as is the practice in more formal plays. The "Spirit of Santa Barbara" is introduced with her singers and dancers, who perform a dawn dance, followed hy the Indians, who set up their idol and sing and dance about it. To them come the padre and bis friars, who tbrow the idol down and off the stage, erecting in its place the cross. The idol comes to life as the "Duende," or imp of mischief, and thereafter through tbe play this masque appears as urging on all sorts of untowardness, happy when calamity impends or misfortune hefalls, and correspondingly discouraged when affairs go right. He persuades the Indian chief to bribe the padre with gold, and loses heart for a moment when the bribe is refused. The strains of the Spanisb royal march are beard, the Spanish comandante comes to take temporal charge of tbe country, the friars salute tbe standard of Spain as it is flown, and all march off to tbe music of the royal march.

At the opening of act II, after the prologue, a Spanish-Californian air is sung and danced to, and the padre and friars enter with their Indian neophytes, bearing the fruits of field and flock, for the inspection of the comandante, who has the like displayed as tbe result of the labors of tbe civil population. "Yankee Doodle" is played, and the American ship's captain from Boston comes in witb his sailors carrying goods for barter and exchange. A busy scene of trafficking follows, during which the Yankee captain makes love to the daugbter of the comandante and, when the others bave left the stage, sings to her and persuades her to elope witb him. The "Duende" tattles to her father, the captain is driven off witb revilings and tbe senorita sent into tbe house, when word of the Mexican revolution is brougbt by the "Duende," and the Mexican comandante enters, to dispossess tbe Spanish power and take the lands from the friars for the purposes of the new government. The scene closes with tbe lament of the Indians as they file off over the billside, to sink presently into oblivion.

The last prologue is spoken at the beginning of act III, and a lively Mexican song and dance given by the daughter of the Mexican comandante and his wife, who was the senorita in the previous scene. Tbe approach of the Americans following the declaration of war against Mexico by the United States is discussed, and presently the American army officer appears with his soldiers. In tbe hurried preparation for resistance whicb preceded his entrance, one of the two little cannon which made up the armament of the Mexican garrison is stolen under tbe promptings of the "Duende," for whicb tbe American exacts a fine. The gold is paid bim by the Mexican senorita, and he falls victim to ber beauty and proposes marriage. Her father would have forbidden the match, hut the mother, recalling her own disappointment in youth, intervenes.

Wbat follow is a stage presentation of the wedding scene nearly a hundred years ago in accord with the description given in Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast," introducing the dances and songs which were given at Santa Barbara at tbe Fourtb of July fiesta, and the wbole concludes with a pageant procession of all tbe people of tbe masque, at the close of which the American naval officer comes in with the sailors of the United States and hoists tbe Stars and Stripes on the pole from whicb the Mexican comandante has bimself lowered the Mexican banner, the audience rising to sing "Tbe Star-Spangled Banner," and then returning to the old market-place to dance.

Thursday, April 29, the afternoon will be devoted to equestrian feats and exbibitions of borsemanship, and it is hoped that vaqueros from all the southern part of the state will be present to contest for prizes which will be offered, the sports of the old days being especially featured. As it is intended to make tbe festival as a whole an annual event hereafter, it is well to remember that the intention of tbe association having it in charge is to keep strictly to the days wben Santa Barbara, like most of the otber neighboring towns, derived no small share of its wealth from its herds and droves, and nothing more modern will be considered in the way of public entertainment. On the evening of this day the public dancing will be repeated in the old market-place, and at the same time a Spanish costume ball will be given at one of tbe hotels. Tbe entire occasion is to be one of community interest and there will be cbances to see the masque, to dance, see the procession, and he a participant without expense. It is the intention to decorate tbe city in welcome to all the guests who will be drawn to it, and a Primavera flag bas been adopted, showing tbe three-windowed tower of St. Barbara in red on a white uppermost stripe, with the red and gold of Spain below it—the colors heing silver, crimson and gold.

THE DRAMA IN CALIFORNIA '49 AND '50

THE GREAT FIRES IN SAN FRANcisco in the early days having destroyed nearly all files of newspapers, etc., it has become a matter, almost of necessity, that the records of the Territorial Pioneers should contain all possible reminiscenses on every subject that can be contributed by members. I will in this paper attempt to fill that portion of it comprising public amusements, namely, drama, music and circuses, through the great days of 1849 up to the date of the admission of the State of California into the Union, September 9, 1850. As the first regular dramatic entertainment was given in Sacramento, I shall commence with that city.

There was, in 1849, a celebrated gambling establishment there (which probably many Pioneers have great cause to remember), called "the Round Tent." It was situated on Front street, between I and J streets. At the back of and joining the "Round Tent," the Eagle Theatre was built, at a cost of about $75,000. Its size was 30 by 95 feet. The lumber for the framework cost from $600 to $700 per 1000 feet. The canvas for the sides and scenery cost $1 per yard, and the parties who sewed it were paid $16 per day, and didn't work very hard at that. The roof was of sheet-iron and tin, and when the rains set in the noise was not a very desirable accompaniment. The stage was built of any economical lumber that could be found. Dressing-rooms, there were none. The scenery was very sparse, consisting, I think, of three scenes only, and those, with a drop-curtain, were painted by a George Wilson, who was paid $50 per day. The auditorium consisted of a so-called dress-circle and a parquette. The prices of admission were $3 and $2. The entrance to the dress-circle was up a flight of steps erected outside the theatre, while the entrance to the parquette was through the "Round Tent," which was occupied day and night, and fully occupied, too, with monte and other gambling tables.

Sacramento City was at that time a very lively place, and amidst great excitement the Eagle Theatre opened October 18, 1849, with the following company: J. B. Atwater, leading man; Charles B. Price; H. F. Daley; J. H. McCabe (the writer of this article); Henry Ray, comedian; Tensh Fairchild, comic singer and comedian, celebrated for his song of "Coming Round the Horn"; Jack Harris, a Mexican War soldier; Lieut. A. W. Wrigbt, of the Mexican War volunters, and Mrs. Henry Ray. The expenses of this company were very great, amounting to over $600 per night. The salaries were as follows: Atwater, $60 per night; Price, $150 per week; Daley, $60 per week (he was a perfect amateur, and his salary was soon largely increased); McCabe, $100 per week; Fairchild, $75 per week; Harris, $80 per week; Lieut. Wright, $80 per week; Mr. and Mrs. Ray, $275 per week and board, lodging and washing, the latter then costing $12 per dozen; orchestra, $60 per night; treasurer, $50 per week; box door-keeper, $20 per week; parquette door-keeper, $28 per week (on account of the extra risks he ran); carpenters, $16 per day. The cost of posters and programmes was four ounces of "dust," or $64, per day, while the sundries that were required cost enormously.

The disadvantages which confronted the company were terrible. There was little wardrobe, and few books. The shifts we were put to for wardrobe were ludicrous. Every play produced had to be so altered as to require one woman only, and much of our time was taken up by writing out our pieces from memory. On one occasion, we thought ourselves lucky in being able to purchase a copy of the farce of "Box & Cox" for an ounce ($16) of gold dust.

Sacramento had no levee at that time, and when the rainy season commenced the water began to rise all over the city, and eventually in the theatre, so that we had to put the orchestra at the back part of the parquette. At last the water rose over the top of the parquette seats nearest the stage. Some of the miners took great pleasure in wading along the seats covered with water and sitting on the railing around the orchestra. On several occasions, when the company was "piling on the agony" on the stage, one of these miners would appear to be roused to enthusiasm, and while shouting his approbation would throw his arms open, striking his neighbor on either side, and precipitating them backwards into the water. This practical joke sometimes caused a laugh, sometimes a fight, and always interrupted the performance for a while.

Another circumstance was a very common occurrence. When the curtain was down some of the audience would produce a deck of monte cards and give their neighbors a "lay out"; considerable sums sometimes changed hands by this operation, and not unfrequently a fight resulted. Revolvers and knives would make their appearance freely, but nothing serious ever happened. The water continued to rise until it was impossible to get to the theatre, and the season was finally closed the night of January 4, 1850, and the Eagle Theatre was never again opened.

This is an essay, on the drama in California, prepared by John H. McCabe, who arrived here August 30, 1849, and for years was well known in state theatrical circles. It was read September 9, 1875, before a San Francisco organization started in 1874 and known as the Territorial Pioneers of California, whose membership was confined to those Pioneers who arrived here prior to the date of California's admission to statehood, September 9, 1850.

Because of the historical data appearing in the essay, the paper was published in the "First Annual of the Territorial Pioneers of California," printed in 1877, a copy of which recently came to The Grizzly Bear through the courtesy of W. E. Whitehead of Richmond, Contra Costa County.

In concluding the essay, Mr. McCabe wrote: "The foregoing condensed memoranda are, as I before stated, made to September 9, 1850, and are, I think, strictly correct as far as they go."—Editor.

IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The company came to San Francisco and opened in Washington Hall, on Washington street, between Kearny and Dupont, with the play of "The Wife" and the afterpiece of "Charles II," January 16, 1850, this being the first dramatic performance given in San Francisco. The season was brought to an abrupt close on the 23d, for the reason that the treasurer, a Mr. Mattinson, coolly announced that he had been induced on the day previous to play monte, and had lost every cent of the week's receipts. This broke up the company. Mr. and Mrs. Ray left for the Sandwich Islands, and the balance scattered.

The week this company played at Washington Hall was distinguished by the arrival from Australia of: Nesbit McCron, a fine actor, and Mrs. McCron; Mr. Batturs, a heavy man, and Mrs. Batturs, vocalist, who died in this city; Mr. Hambleton, one of the most versatile actors I ever saw, who left early in 1851, and Mrs. Hambleton, a beautiful woman and charming actress, who committed suicide in January, 1851. And from the East: Mrs. J. H. Kirby, who afterwards married the celebrated actor, James Stark.

While Sacramento was indulging in its theatre, the people of San Francisco also had their amusements, which I will classify:

Concerts.

The first entertainment was a concert by Steve Massett, since known as "Jeemes Pipes of Pipesville," which took place in the Old Police Court, southwest corner of Portsmouth Square, June 22, 1849. The price of admission was $3. The concert was given entirely by Mr. Massett, and was highly appreciated.

January 22, 1850, an afternoon vocal and instrumental concert was given at the California Exchange.

April 2, 6, 11 and 27, concerts were given at the National Theatre, Washington street, by Henri Herz, the celebrated pianist. Admission: boxes and parquette, $6; pit, $4.

April 24, the "Orpbean Vocalists" gave a concert at the same theatre. Admission: $3 and $2.

Minstrels.

October 22, 1849, the "Philadelphia Minstrels" commenced a season at the Bella Union Hall, on Washington street, just above Kearny. Price of admission, $2. The company consisted of: Frank Richmond, afterwards known as Frank Wheeler, the fencing master; W. H. Smith, later business manager for Thomas Maguire in the East; Messrs. C. Calverod, Dick de Brough, R. de Meyer, W. Wallace, — Collins and Harry Engles.

December 24, 1849, a party calling themselves the "Pacific Minstrels" were announced to play at Washington Hall, but did not, on account of a large fire in the city.

February 9, 1850, the "Virginia Serenaders" were playing at Washington Hall.

Circuses.

Joseph A. Rowe, October 29, 1849, opened the "Olympic Circus," situated in the block bounded by Kearny, Clay, Montgomery and Sacramento streets. Admission, $3. The only riders I can recollect were Mrs. Rowe and Master Rafael; clown, W. H. Foley, who left suddenly because, as he said, he could not live on the salary he was receiving of $1,200 per month. December 10th an interest was purchased in this circus by the well-known and favorite circus clown, Dave Long. February 4, 1850, a stage having been erected, dramatic performances were given in combination with circus entertainment.

It was here that Mr. and Mrs. McCron, Mr. and Mrs. Hambleton, Mr. and Mrs. Batturs, Captain T. S. Campbell and George Mitchell made their first appearance in this city; also, a Mr. Carleton, a celebrated Eastern amateur. February 21, Mrs. J. H. Kirby (now Mrs. James Stark) also made her first appearance in this city as Pauline, in the "Lady of Lyons."

The dramatic portion of the entertainment ceased March 11th, and during the season "Othello," "Lady of Lyons," "William Tell" and "Richard III" were first produced in this city. May 16th the "Circus" passed into the hands of W. H. Foley, who occupied it for occasional bullfights and a Spanish company of dancers, until June 14th, when it was destroyed by fire.

August 14th, J. A. Rose opened his "New Olympic Amphitheatre," situated on Montgomery street, between Sacramento and California. Admission: boxes, $2; pit, $1; seats in private boxes, $4.

Theatrical Notes.

Washington Hall was occupied for theatrical entertainment by a company from the Eagle Theatre, Sacramento, from January 16 to 23, 1850; in February, by the "Virginia Serenaders," and May 4th was destroyed by fire.

The National Theatre was a brick building, situated on the north side of Washington street, between Montgomery and Kearny. Admission: boxes, $4; pit, $2; seats in private boxes, $5. It was opened February 19, 1850, and devoted to French performances until March 15th. It was then used for concerts, balls, etc., and occasionally for a mixed entertainment of French and English, for the latter portion of which the late James Everard was stage manager. The theatre was finally destroyed by fire May 4th.

The Phoenix Theatre, on Pacific street, was opened March 23d, but did not last long. It was here that Miss Sophie Edwin, later a favorite actress at the California Theatre, made her first appearance.

The Phoenix Exchange, Portsmouth Square, opened for tableau and model artist exhibition, etc., March 24th. Admission: front seats, $4, parquette, $3. This building was destroyed by fire May 4th.

Robinson & Everard's Museum, on California street, opened July 4, 1850, and it was here that Mrs. Birrell made her first appearance in this state. This woman occupied a prominent position in theatres for a number of years, and her retirement to private life was much regretted by all playgoers.

March 13, 1850, Dr. Colyer, with a full model artist exhibition, opened the Athenaeum, on Commercial street, between Montgomery and Kearny streets. Admission, $1.

March 2, 1850. The first masquerade ball was given at the National Theatre.

July 3, 1850. A grand ball was given at the St. Francis Hotel, remarkable at that time as being attended by over sixty women.

July 12, 1850. Charles R. Thorne, Sr., a highly esteemed theatrical manager, arrived from the East.

A CALIFORNIA DAY

(ESTHER CRONE.)

When the sun is shining bright,
And the orange trees blooming white,
And the birds sing forth a merry lay.
If you take a morning hike,
You will find there's nothing like
A springtime California day.

When the hills are dressed in green,
And the mountains may be seen
With their snowcaps looming in the sky.
Makes you wonder at the sight
Of their glory and their might,
And you fancy it is Eden we are nigh.

Oh, a California day!
How we'd like to have you stay,
When the rosebloom time is drawing near.
With its beauty running rife,
You can get the best in life,
For it seems like a Paradise here.

Los Angeles, California.

ANOTHER OLDEST NATIVE SON.

Donner Lake was the birthplace of the oldest living native son of California, born of American parents, according to word from Inyo County.

A census enumerator there listed Robert Hatfield, who stated he was born at Donner Lake, in Nevada County, in 1845, making his age 75.—Siskiyou News.

GOVERNOR FAILS TO UPHOLD LAW

Rumors current the past month aroused hope in some quarters that the Governor of California was about to call the State Legislature together to consider the Jap menace, but no such call has gone forth, and, it is still our belief, no such call will be issued. Judging from the consistent "stalling" policy which has won the Governor national note, the press "dope" emanating from his office was, in our opinion, purposely designed to halt the efforts of those who have declared that California shall be protected from the Japs, in spite of the Governor. No wonder the Japs are "strong" for the Governor; at his hands, they are getting what they want—delay—and California pays the hill!

Those who have watched the Governor's course in the Jap crisis must admit he has become an expert aeronaut, flying first from one excuse for inaction to another, to avoid getting for California, at the hands of the State Legislature, fraud-proof protection from the Jap menace. First he must have data, and when that was supplied in quantities he flew into a rage about "politics." This flight, however, almost wrecked the flying-ship, for the Governor convicted himself of injecting politics into a question that has solely to do with the welfare of California—in fact, of being a petty politician of the first class—simply that and nothing more. Now, the Governor flies to the Peace Treaty, saying he will act when that treaty, as written, is signed by the United States. That means, we venture the opinion, never!

Just the other day, the Governor declared to the Associated Press: "I stand for the law as laid down by the Constitution and acts of the State Legislature. A solemn obligation rests on me to uphold the Constitution and the law and to exert myself to the utmost to defeat the effort of shrewd lawyers, who are earning rich fees." A splendid declaration, but the Governor's course dubs this, as well as his other utterances, simply camouflage, for he has utterly failed to fulfill his solemn obligation in the Jap crisis, the greatest that ever confronted California or any other state, and the only exertion he has shown has been, through delay, in the interest of the Japs and their shrewd lawyers.

The People of California have declared by an act of the State Legislature that they do not want Asiatics to acquire land in this state. Though not fraud-proof, that law, one of the California statutes, expresses the will of The People. Superior judges have declared that that law is being daily openly violated by Japs, aided by shrewd lawyers who are earning rich fees, through fraud—by the formation of "fake" corporations with American names and Jap directors, and also through "fake" guardianship proceedings. Certainly the Governor will not plead ignorance of these facts. Why, then, has he not exerted himself to the utmost to defeat the efforts of those "shrewd lawyers" who, "for rich fees," are nullifying the intent of this law; does not his "solemn obligation" apply, also, to this law which the Japs, because they successfully evade it through fraud, term a joke?

Were the Governor anxious to serve the best interest of California, were he sincere in declaring that he is waiting until the State Board of Control has gathered complete statistics before calling the special session of the Legislature, he would, in the meantime, be exerting himself to the utmost to defeat the efforts of the Japs and their shrewd lawyers to grab, through fraud, all of California's soil they care to aequire, before fraud-proof laws can be enacted by the Legislature. With the present law, inadequate as it is, the Governor could, did he so desire, and without over-exerting himself in the least, fulfill his solemn obligation, uphold the present law, and defeat the efforts of the Japs' shrewd lawyers. The Governor, however, has said nothing or done nothing that would indicate that he is not in sympathy with the law's persistent evasion.

Why has not the Governor, upon whom "a solemn obligation rests to uphold the law," demanded of the Corporation Commissioner, his appointee, that official sanction be withheld from corporations, with American names and Jap directors, organized by "shrewd lawyers" to evade the land law?

Why has not the Governor, upon whom "a solemn obligation rests to exert myself to the utmost to defeat the efforts of shrewd lawyers," requested of the Attorney-General that he intervene, in the name of California, in all Jap guardianship proceedings designed by "shrewd lawyers" to evade the land law?

Why does not the Governor, if he "stands for the law as laid down by the acts of the Legislature," call the attention of all superior judges, county clerks, and district attorneys to the corporation and guardianship frauds being daily "put over" by "shrewd lawyers" in the interest of Japs, and at least suggest that they aid him "to uphold the [land] law"?

Because, in our opinion, the Governor fears the powerful pro-Jap influences in this state, among their number some of the props of his administration, and has not the backbone to defy them and do that which he has acknowledged it is his solemn obligation to do—uphold the land law!

The People of California are confronted with this condition: They have a Governor who has publicly admitted that he knows the Japs are a menace, that he knows his duty as chief executive, that a solemn obligation rests upon him to defeat the efforts of shrewd lawyers to evade the law. And that same Governor has not only taken no official action himself to stop the flagrant violation by Japs of the land law now upon the statute books, but is the one obstacle in the way of the Legislature meeting and passing such laws as will save California from becoming thoroughly Japanized. What are The People going to do about it?

The initiative has been suggested, and while we will support that move if inaugurated, we doubt the wisdom of its invocation, for it means the very thing the Governor and the Japs want—delay. And besides, the initiative would indicate that the Legislature is not to be depended upon, when, as a matter of fact, the legislators are anxious to meet in special session and will pass the necessary protective laws. The initiative should only be invoked when the Legislature fails in its duty, and the present Legislature will not fail in the Jap crisis. Have the legislators not already, almost unanimously, petitioned the Governor to call the special session, and has not the Governor ignored that petition, as well as all other petitions of similar import? Has not the Governor, too, positively refused to even discuss the Jap crisis with two committees of American citizens who are solicitious of California's welfare?

The recall, also, has been suggested, and it is our opinion that if the ballot must be resorted to to stop the Japs' "peaceful penetration" of California, a recall, directed against the Governor, is the proper course to pursue. It will mean an expensive campaign, for the Jap interests have unlimited funds and hundreds of highly-paid propaganda agents. But it will be worth all the cost, for, in addition to smoking out all the pro-Japs in California, both in and out of the administration, it will impress upon the yellow-Japs and their white-Jap admirers and hirelings the knowledge that white voters predominate here, and that they are going to see to it that California remains what it has always been and God Himself intended it shall always be—the White Man's Paradise.

GO NORTH, YOUNG MAN!

In the northern part of the state, in the counties of Lassen, Modoc, Shasta, Siskiyou and Trinity—comprising one-eighth of the state's area but with a population of only about 60,000—mining, lumbering and stock-raising have heretofore been given most attention, but now the people have become aroused to the agricultural and horticultural possibilities of their soil-rich mountain valleys.

A couple of successful irrigation projects awakened them, by demoustrating that most anything can be raised in abundance on these valley lands, and now other irrigation projects are under way or contemplated in every one of the five counties.

Large tracts of land are being cut up into small farms, and a wonderfully productive country is being opened up to new settlers. In time, enormous quantities of alfalfa, grains, rice and fruits will be produced, and the population will be increased by prosperous and contented thousands. No part of the state today offers better opportunities for tillers of the soil than these five northern counties.

BEWARE YELLOW PROPAGANDA!

The country, and particularly California, is being flooded with Jap propaganda, directed at this time principally to national, state, county and municipal authorities, in the hope of enlisting their support for the Japs.

One sheet, headed "An appeal to Americanism," is accompanied by a leaflet sponsored by John P. Irish, who, in a series of misstatements, attempts to show that the Japs are being "persecuted." Very appropriately, the sheet is printed on yellow paper, for it is yellow propaganda.

Keep a close lookout for this stuff, issued over the signature of both white-Japs and yellow-Japs but paid for out of Japan's Japanizing-America fund, and he not deceived. Send it to The Grizzly Bear, which will see that it is put to good use in the campaign to curb the Jap menace.

PLANT A TREE!

March 7 is Arbor Day, and will he observed by Native Sons and Native Daughters with tree-plantings. At San Francisco, they will plant a number of trees, dedicated to deceased Native Son war-heroes, along the highway. This will mark the beginning of a campaign to have Parlors of Native Sons plant trees along all the highways of the state. Arbor Day recalls the words of the late President Theodore Roosevelt:

> "A people without children would face a hopeless future; a country without trees is almost as helpless; forests which are so used that they cannot renew themselves will soon vanish, and with them all their benefits. A true forest is not only a storehouse full of wood, but, as it were, a factory of wood, and at the same time a reservoir of water. When you help to preserve our forests or plant new ones you are acting the part of good citizenship."

DANGEROUS CONGRESSIONAL MEASURE.

What is known as the Dillingham Bill, purposely worded to deceive as to its real intent but having for its object the letting-in of the Asiatic hordes, is before Congress. It has the approval and backing of the combined highly-financed Jap propaganda agencies in this country—the Gulick "Federation of Churches," the "Japan Socicty of New York," and other white-Jap and yellow-Jap interests.

This bill has a mighty good chance of passing Congress, unless those who desire to keep the United States a white-man's country file strenuous protests with their representatives. DO THIS NOW, and call to the attention of your friends everywhere the uecessity for prompt action, that this infamous measure may be swatted.

HISTORY ARTICLE APPRECIATED.

From Modesto, under date of January 28, we received this letter from S. P. Elias of that city who contributed a highly interesting article to the January 1920 Grizzly Bear entitled "An Early Day California Paper":

> "It may be of some interest to you to know that I am in receipt of a letter from one of its members, to the effect that the Knights Ferry story in the January Grizzly Bear was read in the hall and meeting of Summitt Lodge, No. 112, F. & A. M., last Saturday night, and ordered deposited in the archives of the order. This lodge is located at Knights Ferry, and dates back to February 7, 1857, when its first regular meeting was held."

Mr. Elias, a member of Modesto Parlor, No. 11, N.S.G.W., has sent The Grizzly Bear other stories, just as interesting, pertaining to the history of Stanislaus County, which will he given publication at an early date.

In fact, there is nothing that keeps its youth, so far as I know, but a tree and Truth.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

SPREAD THE TRUTH

When you have finished reading your Grizzly Bear, mark the Jap articles and SEND THE NUMBER TO EASTERN ACQUAINTANCES, and ask them to pass it on to their friends.

The East needs and wants to he informed of the true situation regarding the yellow peril, and the East must he enlightened before it will join forces with the West to rout the Asiatics.

The Japs see to it that the East gets limitless quantities of lying and misleading propaganda, and all White-Americans should unite to meet that situation with a flood of facts.

The Grizzly Bear will do its part hy publishing articles dealing with the truth. Will you do your part, by keeping the truth in circulation?

It is suggested, too, that every Parlor of Native Sons not now doing so, subscribe to the magazine for its local libraries—public and high school.

FIFTY YEARS AGO IN CALIFORNIA

A RESUME OF INTERESTING HAPPENINGS IN MARCH, 1870

By Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

MARCH, 1870, CAME IN LIKE A lion, and a heavy storm prevailed during the first week of the month that gave all parts of California a drenching and laid about eight feet of snow on the summit of the Sierras. There were two more storms during the month, which brought the rainfall for the season up to 11.25 inches, sufficient for the crops for the present time.

The Legislature was in session at Sacramento the entire month, and completed its one hundred and sixteenth day without any definite signs of adjourning. Many bills of a local nature were passed. The Assembly passed bills granting an annuity of $250 a month to General John A. Sutter and $100 a month to J. W. Marshall for their discovery of gold; also one providing a state bounty for the manufacture of iron. Bills pertaining to railroad fares and freight regulation were side-tracked for the session. A no-fence law was enacted.

The trustees of the State Library elected R. O. Cravens of Placer County state librarian, and thereby displaced William Neely Johnson.

The incorporating of railroad companies, with big capital and prospects, was prevalent this month. The Benicia and Red Bluff railroad, with a capital of $3,000,000, incorporated with C. F. Reed, John Boggs, A. H. Rose, Wm. Blanding and A. Redington directors. The Los Angeles and San Diego railroad, headed by A. E. Horton, incorporated with thirteen directors. A company to build a railroad line around Goat Island, estimated at three miles, incorporated with J. B. Haggin, L. L. Robinson, S. F. Butterworth, H. F. Williams and C. J. Brenham as directors.

The Santa Cruz and Watsonville railroad, to build from Santa Cruz to San Francisco, a distance of eighty miles, was incorporated by Samuel Purdy, Frank McCoppin and several other directors.

A real estate firm in San Francisco received $300,000 from London capitalists to invest in San Francisco real estate.

St Patrick's Day, March 17, was religiously celebrated all over the state by the Hibernian societies. Over 7,000 people attended mass at St. Patrick's Church, San Francisco, to which Peter Donahue had presented a chime of bells, the first erected in the state, and which were first rung on this day. A big procession marched through the principal streets.

At Sacramento, despite a stormy day, the Hiberuians and fire department paraded. The Legislature adjourned in honor of the day.

Butter Quoted at 28c Pound.

A mining excitement, over the discovery of a rich silver ledge and placer diggings, was prevailing in San Diego County about sixty miles from Los Angeles, and a rush was being made to secure locations. Some 800 men were there during the month.

Two hundred families from Arkansas came to Los Angeles County this month overland, and prepared to settle there.

Herr Schnell, in charge of the Japanese colony in El Dorado County, received and planted 140,000 tea plants. He expected to be picking and curing tea leaves by June.

Wages of servant girls in San Francisco advanced from $20 to $25 and $30 a month. Many families were reported discharging their help, unable to stand the raise.

Rev. A. Coplin of Los Angeles was fined $15 for marrying a couple without a marriage license. The bride was found to be only 12 years of age.

The price of butter dropped to 28 cents a pound in the San Francisco market, and stopped the rail importations of the article from the East, as it could not be sold at a profit here at less than 30 cents.

L. R. Anthony and W. Chesuey found in their hydraulic claim in Nevada County a quartz boulder that yielded over $7,000 worth of gold.

The O'Brien hydraulic claim at Smartsville, Yuba County, cleaned up $70,000 this month.

Wm. S. Johnson, a 12-year-old lad at Monterey, March 1, with a harpoon of his own manufacture, secured over seventy pounds of cod, turbot and halibut fish. One halibut that he harpooned weighed thirty-eight pounds.

L. E. Fiske, prospecting on Quartz Hill, near Placerville, El Dorado County, found some pieces of decomposed quartz that yielded nearly $700 value in specimens.

A lad named McBride, 9 years old, prospecting near Pine Grove, Amador County, found a nugget weighing three ounces and worth over $50.

Professor Herman, claiming to be the greatest living prestidigitator, was touring the state.

The Zavistowski sisters were performing, with an excellent company, in the extravaganzas of "Ixion" and "Forty Thieves."

A troupe of human freaks arrived by train from the East, for exhibition in a San Francisco museum. Among them were a giantess who weighed 413 pounds; a French giant over 7 feet high, weighing 440 pounds; several dwarfs, and Circassian girls.

Angelenos Fight Duel.

A coursing match between Sacramento and San Francisco greyhounds was held March 3 near Sacramento. Over 500 devotees of the sport attended, with a large number of hare-chasers. The Sacramento dogs outfooted those from the Bay, and won most of the contests.

A championship game of billiards, for the diamond cue, championship of America and $1,000 a side, was played in the Mechanics Pavilion, San Francisco, March 5, by Deery and Rudolphe. There were 2,800 spectators. A telegraph line was run into the hall, and the result of each run was wired to Chicago and New York, where large bets were made and great interest was shown in the event. Deery was a 2-to-1 favorite in the betting, but Rudolphe won in seventy-nine innings by a score of 1,502 to Deery's 1,377. Rudolphe's largest run was 279.

General George H. Thomas, who gained fame in the Civil War and was popularly known as "The Rock of Chicamauga," and who was in command of the Department of the Pacific, died suddenly of apoplexy while seated in his office in San Francisco, March 28. He was 54 years of age.

John B. Wilson, son of State Senator B. D. Wilson, and Charles E. Beane, a Southerner, quarreled over a political matter in Los Angeles and fought a duel March 25. With their seconds, surgeon and some friends, they went to a spot near a pleasure resort called Arroyo Seco. With Kentucky rifles, and at a distance of thirty paces, they were placed in position. At a whistle signal both were to wheel and fire.

On the signal being given, Wilson turned quickly and pulled his rifle trigger, but it missed fire. Beane magnanimously refused to fire, and Wilson's rifle was reloaded. On the next signal both turned and fired. Wilson missed his antagonist, but Beane's bullet made a flesh wound in Wilson's arm. Then an amicable adjustment of the quarrel was made; and the party separated after an exchange of courtesies.

Colonel Thos. Hayes, one of San Francisco's best-known and popular Pioneers, died March 25. Over 7,000 people attended his funeral, which was one of the largest corteges seen there.

The Central Pacific railroad bridge across the American River, three miles east of Sacramento, was set on fire by an incendiary and destroyed the night of March 24. Until a temporary structure was built, passengers, mail and baggage had to be transferred across the river by an improvised ferry.

At Pleasant Valley, El Dorado County, the store of A. Alexander was destroyed by fire March 28, causing a $12,000 loss.

Mother and Two Children Burned to Death.

Another duel between less-conspicuous persons but with fatal results was fought at Hayfork, Trinity County, March 22, between "Norwegian Pete" and "Dutch John," mining partners and town characters, who quarreled over a trivial matter and fought with sheathe knives. Pete died in a few moments from the wounds he received, and John lingered until the next day before he "kicked the bucket." Both were fearfully carved.

Hank Lancaster, a well-known and popular conductor on the Sacramento division of the Central Pacific railroad, fell beneath his train a few miles east of Summit, Placer County, March 1, and being dragged over a mile under a car truck was crushed to death.

A force of laborers were returning on a handcar to their camp on the Western division near Pleasanton, Alameda County, March 8. Thos Gilbert was struck by the handle of the car, and in falling fell against J. K. Allen, who was thus pushed off in front of the handcar, run over and killed. Several others were injured.

John A. Meek, near Jackson, Amador County, was thrown off his wagon seat by a wheel striking a rock and had a leg broken.

The infant son of B. A. Sheppard, aged 18 months, at Piety Hill, Shasta County, March 26, fell into a shallow mining ditch and was drowned.

The residence of A. Taylor, at Mud Springs, El Dorado County, took fire about 1 a. m., March 11, and was burned. Mrs. Taylor, her eldest daughter, 13 years old, and an infant child were burned to death, while Mr. Taylor and a son and a daughter escaped with serious burns.

W. D. Laurence of Iowa Hill, Placer County, was buried beneath and killed by a landslide a short distance from that place, March 2.

Patrick Leighton, a 17-year-old lad at San Jose, March 3 was thrown from a horse and had an arm broken in two places.

John Edwards, a miner at Sucker Flat, was blown up by a charge of giant powder and seriously injured, March 4.

Mrs. Joseph White, living near the Cliff House, San Francisco, was gathering mussels from the rocks on a beach in the evening when she was unawares surrounded by the tide and climbed upon a large rock, where she remained until noon the next day. When found she was nearly dead from cold and so chilled her recovery was doubtful.

An 8-year-old lad named Robinette, near Napa, March 8, was thrown from a horse and had a leg broken.

John Meyers, mining in a hydraulic claim at Camanche, Calaveras County, March 9 was caved upon and killed.

Dissertation on the San Francisco Flea.

Michael Kelly of Fiddletown, Amador County, driving a six-horse freight team over a suspension bridge across the Cosumnes River at Michigan Bar, Sacramento County, March 16, fell to the river bed when the bridge collapsed and broke his leg. Most of the horses were killed.

The giant powder works at Santa Cruz blew up March 10. Edward Dutton was killed, and two other employes were injured.

March 2 a young German girl appeared in the police court of San Francisco, charged with petit larceny in stealing a can of milk. She was unable to speak English, and through the interpreter told the court she took the milk because she was hungry, cold and homeless. The owner of the milk then declined to prosecute, and the judge, on her plea of guilty, fined her 25 cents. The fine was paid by an attorney.

Judge Sawyer said it was a shame to let the stranger suffer in a city like San Francisco, and ordered the bailiff to pass his hat around. The judge was the first contributor, and when the hat was handed back to him a sum of money in excess of $20 was given to the girl who, in a state of wonderment, left the court-room. The German Benevolent Society interested itself in her behalf.

Rev. A. L. Stone, in a lecture on San Francisco delivered in Boston, Massachusetts, made the following statement: "Well, I must confess that in San Francisco we have to scratch for a living. Some of our women are accustomed to parody in this way: 'The wicked flea when no man pursueth.' The flea is a wonderful stimulant to activity. It is not true that the California flea is no respecter of persons.

"Visitors, especially if young and tender, are preferred to old residents for a forage. He is rather annoying to those who like a nap in church. Preachers do not object to him. He is especially popular with us. He is admitted to the closest intimacy in the best society, and if a woman on whom you are calling manifests some uneasiness during your interview and makes demonstrations that show what the cause of the uneasiness is, it is not excepted to as a part of good breeding."

FARMERS MAY GET 1921 PROSPECTUS.

Farmers throughout California have been invited by Dean Thomas Forsyth Hunt of the College of Agriculture of the State University to send for the 1920-21 prospectus of the College of Agriculture, a pamphlet of forty-eight pages with complete information of the activities of the State University in its public service efforts to aid the agricultural interests of this state.

For prospective students planning a curriculum in the University of California in the field of agriculture, the circular is invaluable, Dean Hunt states. The prospectus will be mailed free upon application to the State University at Berkeley.

Of all the horrid, hideous notes of woe, sadder than owl-songs or the midnight blast, is that portentious phrase, "I told you so."—George Gordon (Lord Byron).

JAPAN'S CREED A MENACE

TO THE PEACE OF THE WORLD, AND FURNISHES SUBSTANTIAL PROOF OF HER PURPOSE TO JAPANIZE CALIFORNIA, AND, EVENTUALLY, THE UNITED STATES

THE HISTORIC DESIGNATION OF his imperial Japanese majesty, the emperor of Japan, is "Mikado." "Mi" signifies august and "kado" means gate. The official name of his majesty, however, is Tenno—the king of heaven. The mikado has no family name. The functions of the mikado are clearly indicated by the significance of these titles—be is the mouthpiece of heaven—the vice-regent of God. When he speaks, he voices the will of heaven. Loyalty to the emperor is, therefore, obedience to the principles of heaven. No one may question his authority or the wisdom of bis commands without convicting himself of treason against high heaven and bringing upon bimself the execratiou aud anathema of "Japan—the Land of Gods." To the Japanese people, says Dr. Inazo Nitobe, in "Bushido, the Soul of Japan," "the country is more than laud and soil from which to mine gold or to reap grain—it is the sacred abode of the gods, the spirits of our forefathers; to us the Emperor is more than the Arch Constable of a Rechtsstaat, or even the patron of a Culturstaat—he is the bodily representative of Heaven on earth, blending in his person its power and its mercy."

In keeping with the dignity and significance of his imperial titles, the third article of the constitution of Japan proclaims the emperor to be "sacred aud inviolable"—the "king of heaveu." Marquis Hirohumi Ito, in his commentary on the constitution of Japan explains this provision as follows: "The Emperor is Heaven-descended, divine and sacred; he is preeminent above all his subjects. He must be reverenced, and is inviolable. He has, indeed, to pay respect to the law, hut the law has no power to hold him accountable to it. Not only shall there he no irreverence for the Emperor's person, but he shall not he made a topic of derogatory comment, nor one of discussion."

Prof. Knuitake Kume, in "Fifty Years of New Japan," the English version of which was revised and authorized for publication by Marquis Shigenohu Okuma, "the Graud Old Man of Japan," says: "He [the mikado] is regarded as a living Kami (God), loved and revered by the nation above all things on earth, aud himself loving and protecting the nation, who are deemed sons of Kami Nagara and are entrusted to his care by the Kami. This mutual understanding obtains between every individual Japanese and the Emperor. The sovereign studies our needs and feels our sorrows. What more have we, theu, to ask from the Kami directly? Thus Shinto (doctrine of the Kami) is Kundo (doctrine of the Emperor); for Shintoism is Mikadoism; 'the Kami's will is tbe Emperor's will', is a maxim inscribed on the heart of every Japanese. Herein one may see the fountain-head of our patriotic spirit, whose marvelous activity has served to raise Japan in these fifty ycars to the level of the first-rate Powers of the world."

The acts and utterances of the mikado's men, from the highest to the lowest, testify to the firm conviction of their belief in tbe divine nature and prerogatives of tbeir ruler. Etsujiro Uyehara, member of tbe Imperial Japanese Parliament, and head of one of the many war missions from the "Land of the Rising Sun" to the United States in 1917, says, in his book, "The Political Development of Japan": "The Emperor of Japan can say with hesitation, 'L'Etat c'est moi', more effectively than Louis XIV, not because he can subject the people to bis will, but because be is morally so recognized. Theoretically he is the center of the State as well as the State itself. He is to the Japanese mind the Supreme Being in the Cosmos of Japan, as God is in the Universe to the pantheistic philosopher. From him everything emanates; in him everything subsists; there is nothing on the soil of Japan existent independent of him. He is the sole owner of the Empire, tbe author of law, justice, privilege and honor, and the symbol of the unity of the Japanese nation. He has no pope or arcbbisbop to crown him at his accession. He is supreme in all temporal affairs of the State as well as in all spiritual matters; and he is the foundation of Japanese social and civic morality."

Mikadoism, or emperor-worship, is the sheet-anchor of patriotic fervor in Japan—the soul of the body-politic. Tbe vast majority of the people have no otber religion. It is not a relic of bygone days, but the very heart of present-day Japan. "The divine right of the Emperor is the fundamental principle ou which the Japanese polity was first estahlished and on which it still rests. The first national organization known in the history of Japan was religio-political in its character. . . . In fact, the term matsurigoto, meaning worship, is etymologically in pure Japanese identical with that of government. . . . It is singular that Japan has firmly and religiously adhered to her old traditional policy and made no single departure from it in the twenty-five centuries of her existence, during which she has passed through many vicissitudes, political, social aud economic. Many changes have taken place from time to time in the form and mechanism of her government, but its fundamental polity, a unique fact in political history, has never been altered, shaken, or transformed. It appeals, therefore, most intensely to the Japanese people, no matter how primitive and ehildlike its origin, and is engraven on their hearts and minds, and engenders their deepest admiration, reverence, and affection. . . . The foreign religions, philosophies, ethical theories and political principles which have come into Japan from the earliest ages of her civilization, however great their influence generally, have done very little, if anything at all, to modify the traditional attitude of the people towards their Emperor."

Dr. William Elliot Griffis, who believes "with all loyal Japanese that the glory of Japau's triumphs in peace and war is due to the virtues of the Mikado's aucestors," says, in his book, "The Mikado's Empire": "In this enlightened age, when all authority is challenged, and a century after the moss of oblivion has covered the historic grave of the doctrine of divine right, the Japanese still cling to tbe divinity of the Mikado, not only making it the dogma of religion and the engine of government, but accrediting their envoys as representatives of and asking of foreign diplomatists that they address His Imperial Majesty as the King of Heaven (Tenno)."

Ichiro Tokutomi, editor in chief of the "Kokumin Shimbun" and member of the House of Peers, states in "Japan's Message to America," a book issued under the auspices of tbe Japan Society of New York: "Nor is this principle adapted for our nation alone; some of the European powers are also endeavoring to put it into practice, but tbey bave always failed to secure sufficient success. Are not their monarchs sagacious enough? Yes. Generally speaking, their kings or omperors, though they may havo their strong and weak points as rulers, are, every one of them, wise and enlightened. Tbey are quite a match for their chancellors or ministers. Why, then, bavo those nations failed to be unified with their monarchs as centers? The answer must be given from an historical rather than a political standpoint. Tbey look upon their kings or emperors as sovereign apparently as we do; but—to speak figuratively—theirs are the hat, while ours is the head. The hat may be changed as often as you please; the head once gone, the body itself would die. In tbis respect does our constitution essentially differ from tbeirs; so does our loyalty to the Mikado differ from theirs to their own rulers."

Moreover, an editorial in the "Niroku Shimbun" of Tokyo, a translation of whicb was published in the "Japan Advertiser," May 9, 1919, reads: "To preserve the world's peace and to promote tbe welfare of mankind is tbe mission of the Imperial Family of Japan. Heaven has invested the Imperial Family with all the qualifications necessary to fulfill this mission. He who can fulfill this mission is one who is the subject of bumanity's admiration and adoration, and who holds the prerogative of administration forever. The Imperial Family of Japan is as worthy of respect as God and is the embodiment of benevolence and justice. The great principle of the Imperial Family is to make popular interests paramount. The Imperial Family of Japan is the parent not only of her sixty millions, but of all mankind on earth. In the eyes of the Imperial Family all races are one and the same. It is above all racial considerations. All human disputes, tberefore, may be settled in accordance with its immaculate justice. The League of Nations, proposed to save mankind from the hor-

THE OBLIGATION OF THE HOUR

The RECOGNITION of Japan, as a world Power, by the nations of the West, forced the issue arising from contact with Orientals. We know the Orient—the history of Japan is an open book. In geography, in mental perspective, in moral sanctions, and in political conceptions, she is on the opposite side of the globe.

WE ARE PREPARED TO PROVE, WITHOUT QUALIFICATION, FROM THE MOUTHS OF JAPANESE THEMSELVES, THAT THEY CONSTITUTE A MENACE TO OUR INSTITUTIONS AND GOVERNMENT; THAT IN POLITICAL CONCEPTIONS, THEY ARE DIAMETRICALLY OPPOSED TO THE PRINCIPLES ESTABLISHED BY THE FOUNDERS OF THIS REPUBLIC; AND THAT THEIR SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT FOSTERS THE DOCTRINE OF DIVINE RIGHT, WHICH PRECLUDES THE IDEA OF AMALGAMATION OR ASSIMILATION WITH A PEOPLE IMBUED WITH THE SPIRIT OF DEMOCRATIC IDEALS. WE HAVE THE FACTS—AUTHORITATIVE AND INCONTROVERTIBLE.

Resolved to its final analysis, the Japan-American problem is a controversy between imperialism and democracy. By "peaceful penetration," THE JAPANESE HAVE CHALLENGED US TO COMBAT, within our own territory, and by a system of powerful propaganda unparalleled in the history of the world are forcing the issue. Backed by unlimited funds and inspired by the zeal of religious fanatics, they maintain their ground, not infrequently, be it said to our shame, aided and abetted by persons enjoying the privileges of American citizenship. There is no question as to the verity of these facts.

Knowing these things to be true, WHAT IS THE OBLIGATION OF THE HOUR? "He who sees his duty and does it not is a man without courage"; thus spoke Confucius five hundred years before Christ. When we are convinced by the logic of facts—when we realize the imminence of peril to our institutions, to our hearths and homes—the question of means and measures will not give us concern—they will become incidentals. Our sense of duty—our consciousness of right, inspired by the noble maxims of self-defense—will admit of no debate on the incidents of the campaign.

THE PERIL BEING IMMINENT, OUR DUTY IS CLEAR. WE WILL NOT, IN THE DISCHARGE OF OUR DUTY, BE CHARACTERIZED BY A PATRONIZING ATTITUDE—WE WILL NOT BE NEUTRAL. UNLESS WE HAVE THIS CONVICTION, THE BATTLE IS LOST—WE HAVE STULTIFIED OURSELVES BY OUR HALF-HEARTED EFFORTS. UNLESS WE HAVE THIS FAITH, WE ARE WASTING OUR TIME IN OUR DECLARATIONS. UNLESS WE HAVE THIS DETERMINATION, WE CAN OFFER NO PLAUSIBLE EXCUSE FOR OUR ORGANIZATIONS AS PROTECTIVE LEAGUES. BUT WE KNOW WE ARE RIGHT! THEREFORE, LET US MOVE FORWARD—LET US RESPOND TO THE ONSLAUGHTS OF THESE ALMOND-EYED SONS OF THE ORIENT IN KIND, AND, WHERE MEANS ARE LACKING, LET US CREATE THEM. LET US AGITATE, EDUCATE, AND ERADICATE. THIS IS THE ONLY VERSION OF THE CONVICTION THAT WILL CONQUER.

rors of war, can only attain its real object by placing the Imperial Family of Japan at its head, for to attain its object the League must have a strong punitive force of a super-national and super-racial character, and this force can only be found in the Imperial Family of Japan.''

The study of this phase of their character must be given consideration, for it is fundamental. The American people do not realize this element of strength in the political activities of the people of Japan, and the Japanese know it. Naoichi Masaoka, editor of ''Japan's Message to America,'' significantly soliloquizes: ''How many Americans of today understand what this Mikado is? A moment's consideration of this question will show that the Americans' knowledge of Japan has little improved since the times of Mr. Harris''—the first consular representative of the United States in Japan. When the American people realize the creed of Japan—the concept and constitution of the people in relation to the throne—many of the problems hitherto incomprehensible to the mental processes of the Western world will be understood. We can then understand why the Japanese believe they have been ''given facilities to serve as interpreters of the Orient, and to represent the former before the Occidentals''; why their leaders urge ''taking advantage of the present war'' ''to make a confederation of all the Asiatic nations,'' and why ''China and the South Sea Islands'' are ''at present the promised land'' to Japan.

The creed of Japan explains why the Japanese are self-centered; why they are egotistic; why they are non-assimilable. It explains the declaration of Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, in his book, ''The American-Japanese Problem,'' why they believe they ''are inherently superior to the white man, not only in economic efficiency but in brain power, general culture, and moral character.'' THIS CREED CONSTITUTES THE MENACE OF JAPAN. The logic of this creed and system of government will admit of no program less ambitious than world domination. Japan's ''place in the sun'' will be determined by the results of the inspiration arising from this belief and the consequent unity of purpose. Men who think in terms of world-politics and understand the process of empire-building realize that Japan is slowly but surely winning her goal. This is no idle dream. Within the memory of men still living she has ''annexed'' Formosa and Korea; she has ''penetrated'' Manchuria and Mongolia; she has ''traded'' places with Germany in the province of Shantung, China, and she has created a situation in Siberia that requires her presence there as guardian of the peace. The total area acquired by Japan in the last twenty-five years is equal to her original territory. The logic of Japan's creed and system of government is convincing enough, but her statesmen amplify this in terms about which there can be no doubt. Her highest representatives and best-known publicists aver:

First—Prof. K. Ukita, editor of the ''Taiyo,'' says: ''It is the mission of Japan to set up an example of a civilized and independent national state for her Asiatic neighbors, and then to make a confederation of all the Asiatic nations on the basis of international laws (the Mikado, we have learned, is 'the author of law'), just as it is the mission of the United States of America to form one vast pan-American Union of all the republics of the new hemisphere, and thus to hasten on the progress towards the organization of the whole world.''

Second—Dr. Kambe, of the Imperial University of Kyoto, states: ''Whether in the matter of national expansion Japan shall assume an aggerssive policy or merely remain content on the defensive, trusting to the mercy of the world, is a question of fundamental importance to the country, and never more so than at present. As things now look, it would seem that there is nothing but for her to take an aggressive attitude. . . . To Japan at present the promised land is China and the South Sea Islands. . . . If Japan will hut keep up her expansion policy, taking advantage of the present war, there is every hope that her policy will eventually succeed. . . . The natives should, therefore, he taught to see the wisdom of helping Japan's progress rather than interrupting it.''

Third—Marquis Shigenobu Okuma declares: ''The Japan of today is no longer the Japau of Japan, but the Japan of the world. What, theu, is the mission of the new Japan? It is to make a large contribution to human progress by playing an active part iu the great dream of world-politics. To put it in a more concrete way, it is Japan's mission to harmonize Eastern and Western civilizations in order to help bring about the unification of the world.''

The Japanese are a patient and persevering people. They labor and wait. Time is no element in their plans. They believe in their mission; ''it is ordained of heaven.'' They are, says Baron Shimpei Goto, in ''Japan's Message to America,'' the ''immediate attendants of the Creator.'' In Japan's political warfare there is no desultory firing. Her plans aro matured—''tho grand policy for a contury to come.'' Of this policy, Baron Kaneko Kentaro, in the book, ''Great Japan,'' says: ''Our present welfare and happiness is nothing to us when compared with an illustrious past and a great future for our family and our nation. Thus looking forward to our future, wo constantly strivc to mark out 'THE GRAND POLICY FOR A CENTURY TO COME.' This is a rather high-sounding phrase, but when we examine our history we always find it underlying our national movements—social, religious and political—because the Japanese, from time immemorial, have shown the peculiar characteristic of marking out what they will do for the future. In order to establish this grand policy, they always study the problem with a far-reaching foresight. This trend of mind is a characteristic of our race. When they contemplate a great problem for national affairs they never think of themselves, but always look forward through the labyriuths of the future to find out the surest way to attain their ultimate aim and goal. According to Japanese notion, compared to this grand policy for the future, the present welfare and happiness of ourselves dwindles into nothingness.''

Mme. Uta-ko Shimoda, principal of the Jisseu girls' school, in ''Japan's Message to America,'' states: ''Moreover, we have with us a chief magistrate who is peerless in the world, and a national ideal that never changes.'' In working out this grand policy, insidious propaganda, peaceful penetration, and military force are employed. We have an example of ''military force,'' in the ''annexation'' of Korea. Here Japan exhibited all the qualities of a political-cannibal, and her admiuistration there in this year of grace reads like a page from Dante's ''Inferuo.'' In the matter of peaceful penetration, the Hawaiian Islands is to Japan an example of patience well rewarded. In twelve years the Hawaiian Islands will be under the political control of Japanese born under the jurisdiction of the United States. BUT IT SHOULD NOT BE FORGOTTEN THAT JAPANESE ''MADE IN AMERICA'' ARE JAPANESE; THAT THEY HAVE A ''NATIONAL IDEAL THAT NEVER CHANGES.''

The Japanese excel in the art of diplomacy, heing past-masters of Oriental finesse. They understand the psychology of silence, and practice it in their social interconrse with foreigners. They are not free and open-hearted. They assume an air of sphinx-like mystery. They withhold, in their international relationships, facts of vital conceru to mutual understanding. It is almost impossihle to learn the whole truth from any Japanese. Their object seems to be two-fold: first, it enahles them to assume an air of authority over knowledge you do not possess, and second, it provides them with a weapon of self-defense—the role of ''victim of misunderstanding.''

They have been ''misunderstood'' from time immemorial. Consequently, from the time treaty relations began until the present ''embassies,'' ''delegations'' and ''missions'' have visited this country to ''explain the viewpoint of Japan'' and ''justify'' her ways to an incredible puhlic. They are moving heaven and earth to create the impression in our minds that we do not understand Japan. This seems to he fundamental in their propaganda. No prominent Japanese in the past decade has visited this country without telling us that we did not understand Japan. If they succeed in creating the impression—if they make us really believe that we do not understand them—would we not give them the benefit of the douht in questions of dehate? Surely, Japan is the best ''misunderstood'' country in the world. When Marquis Shigenobu Okuma, the Premier of Japan, ''taking advantage of the present war,'' presented the twenty-one demands to China, some apprehensiou was felt in this country for China's safety. The self-same marquis cabled the ''Independent'' of New York, April 12, 1915, that, ''The uneasiness and suspicion in the United States in connection with Japan's negotiations at Peking are basel on misunderstanding and misinformation, scattered hroadcast hy interested mischief-makers.''

The end of the propaganda of Japan, so rampant in this country, is to establish the conviction that she always keeps her promises and that she is misunderstood. The psychological effect of this propaganda is hearing fruit in America. Let us take heed to the words of Washington, ''Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake.'' Japan is militant—and her maxim is ''necessity knows no law.'' Japan represents the god, Janus, in the comity of nations. Did not Premier Terauchi Masakata, when asked, ''What are the chances for an alliance between Japan aud Germany?'' reply, ''That will depend entirely on how the present war may end!'' The menace of Japan is in her creed—her religio-political system of government—and in the zeal of her people, who accept it as the will of heaven. When the Japanese reject as absurd aud ridiculous the doctrine of divine right, they will not be so frequently ''misunderstood.''

We harhor no ill-will towards the Japanese; we have no hymn of hate in our hearts. The best evidence of this is the concrete example of serviee rendered. For fifty years our institutions of religious and social betterment have maintained in Japan, at an annual expense of millions of American dollars, missionaries, teachers and medical experts, to instruct the Japanese in the arts of the higher life, the seiences, and the care of the body. These institutions function in Japan today, and bear evidence that the Japanese cry of racial hate and discrimination is not justified.

We must, however, be just to ourselves as well as generous to others. We must preserve the character of our race hy the assimilation of those who remain in our midst. The theocratic form of Japan's system of government precludes the idea of race equality. This eliminates the possibility of assimilation, and constitutes a danger to our body politic. Large and increasiug numbers of non-assimilable aliens in our midst are a menace to our institutions and government. LET US, THEREFORE, BE WARNED! ''O, Liberty, White Goddess! is it well to leave the gates unguarded?''

The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over this hroad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched, as surely they will be, by the hetter angels of our nature.—Abraham Lincoln.

MAJOR ALBERT FOSTER JONES
PAST GRAND PRESIDENT, N.S.G.W., HAS PASSED AWAY

ALBERT FOSTER JONES, PAST Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, is dead, his earthly career ending February 15—the day following his sixty-second birthday anniversary—at his Oroville, Butte County, home, after a long illness.

Deceased was the son of the late George F. Jones, a Pioneer of 1849, and Mrs. Sidnea McIntosh-Jones, a Pioneer of 1851, and was born in Antelope Valley, Colusa County, February 14, 1858. After attending the public schools of Chico, and an academy of Oakland, he went to Yale, from which he was graduated in 1879 with the degree of Bachelor of Law. That same year he was admitted to the practice of law in the courts of California, and in 1880 established himself in his chosen profession at Oroville, which had since been his home.

Surviving deceased are the widow, Mrs. Mae Evans-Jones, to whom deceased was wedded in 1880; three children, George F. Jones of Oroville, a member of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, N.S.G.W., Mrs. William S. Hall of Chico and Mrs. Ralph Butler of Fresno; his aged mother, Mrs. George F. Jones of Chico, a brother, James H. Jones of Chico, and these sisters: Mrs. John R. Robinson of Chico, Mrs. J. H. Wheeler of St. Helena, Mrs. Isabelle Howard of Preston, Mrs. C. E. Tinkham of Berkeley and Miss Alice Jones of Chico.

No man was more closely identified with the development of Butte County than Major Jones, and none more loved and respected by its citizenry. Although a busy man in his profession, he always found time to assist in any movement that had for its object the welfare and progress of his loved county, Butte, and home-city, Oroville. He was a pioneer in the dredge-mining industry, and was one of those who launched the orange industry in Butte County.

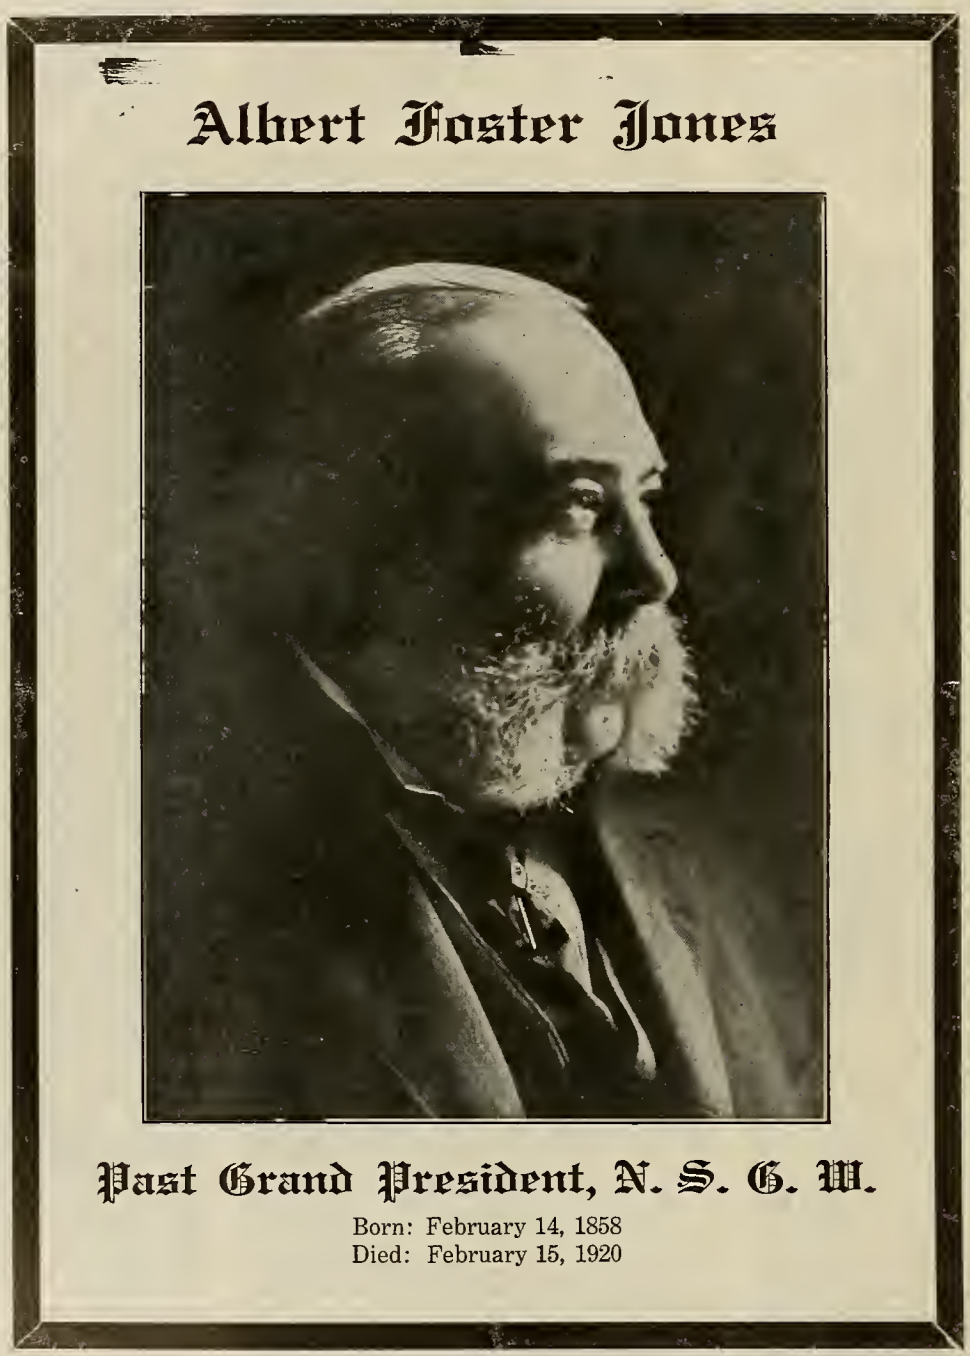

In 1882 he was elected district attorney for a two-year term, and in 1886 was elected to the State Senate, being re-elected in 1888 for a second term. He served Oroville as a trustee, was actively identified with the chamber of commerce, and directed a great deal of his energy toward the public-school system.

Major Jones' membership in the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West dates back to May 14, 1881, when he became a charter-member of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8 (Oroville), being its first president. He represented Argonaut at the Fourth (Oakland and San Francisco '81) Grand Parlor and was chosen Grand Lecturer, an office since abolished. At the Sixth (San Francisco '83) Grand Parlor he was chosen Grand President, and, as was the custom in those days, presided over the end of that session and the first two days of the Seventh (Marysville '84) Grand Parlor session.

During the term of Grand President Jones, these Subordinate Parlors were duly instituted: Amador 17 (Sutter Creek), San Joaquin (now Lodi) 18 (Lodi), Visalia 19, Arcata 20, Bidwell (now Chico) 21 (Chico), San Jose 22, San Mateo 23, Yosemite 24 (Merced), Fresno 25, Sunset 26 (Sacramento), Bear Flag (now Petaluma) 27 (Petaluma), Western Star (now Santa Rosa) 28 (Santa Rosa). He also received applications for charters from two sources outside the state—Virginia City, Nevada, and Seattle, Washington—but they were not granted. In his report to the Grand Parlor, Grand President Jones stated the Order had increased to 1,248 in membership, a gain of 554 during his term.

Referring to the death of General A. M. Winn, the Founder of the Order, he said: "Among the names of those of California's honored Pioneers who have passed to their eternal homes during the last year, I find that of General A. M. Winn. While the news of his death touched the chords of sorrow and sympathy in many fraternal organizations and human hearts, they echoed nowhere with a deeper or more lasting strain than in this, our young Order, where the memory of that paternal solicitude which guarded our infancy through to manhood's strength will ever be cherished. He was buried by Sacramento Parlor, No. 3, at the request of his relatives and of the grand officers," and the Order later erected a magnificent monument over his last resting-place in the Sacramento cemetery.

Funeral services were conducted from Major Jones' home in Oroville, February 18, and were attended by hundreds of friends from all parts of Butte County, as well as the school children, whose champion he ever was. Representing the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., were Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung of San Francisco and Past Grand Presidents John H. Grady of San Francisco, Fred H. Greeley of Marysville and Superior Judge Henry C. Gesford of Napa. Members of Argonaut Parlor, N.S.G.W., attended in force, and with other organizations of which deceased was a member, escorted the remains to the Oroville cemetery for interment. At the home, as well as at the cemetery, simple services were conducted, the Rev. W. J. Johnson officiating. At the grave, a life-long friend, Fred H. Greeley, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., delivered an extemporaneous address in which he referred to the great loss that had been sustained through the passing of Major Jones—"Butte County's first citizen and all humanity's friend."

A LIFE WELL LIVED

WILLIAM P. CAUBU,
Grand President, N.S.G.W.

Once more has the hand of the Grim Reaper knocked upon the outer door of the Grand Parlor. February 15, Past Grand President Major A. F. Jones, the sixth Grand President of our Order, was taken from our midst. Within a very short time the loss of three of our Past Grand Presidents has fallen upon us; we must begin to feel that soon we, too, will be passing on.

While Past Grand President Jones has not attended Grand Parlors of recent years, as a delegate to some Grand Parlors of a few years back I do recall his presence. We have known of his failing health for several years last past, and have known that that was the only reason for his absence at the Grand Parlors. He was of the type of John H. Grady, Dr. Charles W. Decker, John A. Steinbach and Fred H. Greeley, who served the Grand Parlor in the eighties.

Brother Jones, in his attendance at the Grand Parlors, was glad to give expression to his thoughts on matters pertaining to the Order; he was often upon its floor, challenging the right of this resolution and upholding the merit of that. His long service, his trained mind, and his experience of years brought to his mind thoughts which had the favorable consideration of the members of the Grand Parlor. There can hardly be found a worthy resolution of days long ago the adoption of which Past Grand President Jones had not faithfully urged.

Like Past Grand President Mattison, not long since passed away, Brother Jones was of the "old guard," who gathered at the Grand Parlors to enjoy the memories of the past—those memories which have always been their delight. As the Grand Parlor meeting at San Diego draws near, and with

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

THE NEW NOTES WHICH ARE SOUNDED loudly by fashion designers are color, striking contrasts in trimming, much pleating and frills, extravagant use of braids and embroidery, and laces for trimming and entire dresses.

Modest navy-blue is the spring leader among suits and trotteur frocks of tricotine, serge and poiret twill, and the same color taffeta and soft satin dresses stand out among the smart and practical afternoon models. Brilliant green, in the favored parrot or jade color, a red that comes most nearly to the cherry red, and a bright blue are used as facings and pipings on the dark materials.

For suit purposes, navy probably has the first place, followed by leather mixtures and then by shades of tan and beige. Novelty fabrics, such as black and white checked velours, blue and green checks, brown and blue, and effective bright striped worsteds are seen in numbers of smart sports suits for general wear.

A short jaunty separate coat, built on the lines of the winter fur coats of sports character, is one of the spring style developments. This style of wrap flares or ripples in the back and has a more or less confined front and either shawl or notched collar with revers. For general utility wear, it is thought that this coat will become popular. Fancy velours, tweeds and other coating fabrics will be used. Very similar styles, designed in essentially sports colors and materials like polo cloth and plaids, will be used for sports purposes, and the short box coats will be worn with the plaid pleated skirts.

If you would be in the height of the fashion this year, you must have at least one taffeta frock in your wardrobe. Not the stiff and rustling kind, but a lovely soft silk, with just enough crispness to give an adorable bouffant puff at the sides if wanted. An odd thing about the new taffeta frocks, is that dark brown is the favored color, yet not so long ago, a brown taffeta dress stood for all that was old-fashioned and old-maidish.

Why the change? Is it because the style of the new frock is more youthful or because the fashionable browns are more on the seal-brown rather than the medium golden-brown type? Whatever the reason, the taffeta frock designed for spring is a joy to look at and a joy to wear, alluringly youthful and quaintly picturesque; all frills and puffs and plaitings, and almost invariably made with a quaint, prim little bodice.

We should know our own good points, and make a study of the materials and colors which will accentuate them. The woman who succeeds in this line of experiment has an individual charm. Flowers differ in type, so do pretty women. No one expects an iris to look like a geranium, nor a dahlia like the lily-of-the-valley. It is not so much lack of means which keeps many women from dressing well, as it is the lack of courage to wear the bright and youthful styles when first suggested.

Colors and textures, rightly chosen, make subtle harmonies which gratify the eye. If a woman succeeds in the art of self-expression in dress, those who meet her are pleased with the general effect without bothering to know the psychological cause. The average onlooker does not know just how the artist mixed his colors, and he does not care, but he admires the picture. By dressing in good taste, we may brighten the lives of the people we meet, for a well-gowned woman is as much a work of art as is a good picture.

In preparation for the warmer season, designers have made evening gowns of laces and nets, soft satins and lustrous taffeta, in gay and brilliant colors and also in soft flesh, apricot and beige tints, set off by trimming of brighter fabrics.

Youthful dancing frocks are plentiful in taffeta, with lace overskirts distended at the hips and flower garland girdles or garnitures. The bodices are simple straight girdles without sleeves or merely with tiny puffs on the shoulders. Metal ribbons are used for string belts and loops or festoons.

Very interesting is the news of the return of the jumper dress. It is an excellent type for spring and summer appearance and permits the wearing of one frock with several guimpes, thereby maintaining the freshness of each. Sometimes the dress is made of satin or foulard and the jumper cut with an exaggerated armhole, outlined with a shirred band of the material or with contrasting ribbon in tailor effect. Another neat finish can be made by using bias folds of same. The slash pockets of hips and the belt line are usually of the same. The guimpe may be of fine muslin or of chiffon cloth, foulard, organdie or net.

For the last two or three seasons, hats have turned themselves back from the face, although set very firmly on the head and with little inclination to show off the hair. Now, it seems, the coiffure is to have a chance along with the new chapeau.

The hat with the back turned up and with just a wee suspicion of a tilt forward is seen for early wear. There are attractive models of colored straws, coarsely braided and trimmed simply with ribbon or embroidery motifs. They are just the thing for the crowning item of the informal street suit or trotteur dress. The straws themselves are very light in weight, which is a feature to be appreciated by all women.

Patent leather is in evidence as a trimming for silk hats, sometimes being used to form block or diamond outline in an all-over effect. One such model is of turquoise green silk plaided with very narrow strips of the leather and faced with black hemp.

Of course, there are lovely litle hats softly constructed of faille or taffeta, with turban brims shirred by hand in many rows. The crowns of such hats are a bit higher than those of last season, and the brims are dented in at one side with a self motif. Jade green, orchid, ivory-white sand-color and American-beauty are all to be popular, not only in the silks and the silk-and-straw combinations, but also in linen and hemp facings.

Then there is the flower hat. No spring would be worthy the name, if it did not have its own particular variety. Just at present, the fancy is expressed for crowns of flattened flowers made of patent leather, wax, ribbon, kid and the like. Frequently the hat is faced with satin, taffeta, georgette or leather.

Wool embroideries are again rampant on the hat for spring. Grape motifs in natural tones, roses, daisies, violets, pansies, along with berries and greens, are all included in the millinery garden.

Entire hats, both large and small, are made of maline, in brown, black, blue and taupe, and by way of trimming there is cellaphone—the new tubular composition that resembles patent leather and comes in black and colors. Sometimes the hat has a crown of cellaphone and a brim of maline, and the latter may be relieved with flower garlands.

Metallic effects have by no means died out, but have been pushed aside so that the straws and satins may have a better chance to be inspected and approved.

Jet ornaments vie with those of painted wooden ones, and there are lovely hat pins that disdain to be used as such and which are stuck into the hat at a clever angle and remain "put" indefinitely.

Ostrich fancies have a decorative part in the millinery field, but the burnt goose and other varieties take the place of the forbidden paradise, gonra and osprey.

Veils for spring prefer to be wide and fluttery, and most of them find beauty in floral designs. No hat can be plain when draped in an artistic veil.

Neckwear is shown in profusion in vests, gibots and collars. It is predicted that the modish thing for spring is to have vestee, bag and parasol match, and made of one of the newest sports silks. In fact, many new and jaunty vest affairs are seen in the neckwear department, likewise organdie collars, tucked, pleated and frilled, which offer an effective finish for flimsy frocks.

Organdie collars, in pastel shades, are the smartest, and such a variety of very charming square and round effects, in deep cream shadings! Many of them are very old florentine, in appearance, and look as though they had come from some ancient museum, so dainty are they in their antique coloring and real lace novelty.

CONSUMERS WANT LEGISLATION TO RELIEVE H. C. L. PRESSURE.

Consumers' leagues have been organized to bring down the cost of living through legislation, and have petitioned the Governor to call an extra session of the Legislature to deal with the high-living-cost question. Under date of February 17, the Consumers' League of Southern California directed a letter to the Governor to that effect, and inclosed resolutions in which attention is called to these facts:

"The high cost of living has reached the point where immediate and urgent action is necessary by appropriate legislation." "There are no adequate state laws by which unlawful combination in restraint of trade or by which profiteering can be reached."

Let us then, be what we are, and speak what we think, and in all things keep ourselves loyal to the truth.—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Raise Big Sum for Homeless.

Redwood City—January 22 Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco officially visited Bonita 10, El Carmelo 181 (Daly City) and Menlo 211 (Menlo Park), the three Parlors uniting for the occasion, and the meeting being held in the hall of Bonita Parlor. Large delegations from all the Parlors were in attendance, and there were several visitors from Mountain View and San Francisco.

Twelve candidates were initiated, the ritual being exemplified by a select team from the three Parlors, with Minnie Peterson of Bonita presiding. The work was given in a manner to reflect great credit on all the Parlors and was highly praised by the official visitor. Grand President Bell delivered a most instructive talk on the Order's work which was greatly appreciated. At the close of her remarks she was presented with a three-piece silver set. Adjournment was had to the banquet-hall, where the tables were tastily decorated with potted plants and streamers; at each place was a miniature liberty bell, as a favor. A delicious repast was served and greatly enjoyed.

February 7 Bonita Parlor, with Redwood 66, N.S.G.W., gave a dance for the benefit of the homeless children fund. President Carlotta S. Ritter suggested, in addition, a tag day, and acting upon the suggestion the Joint Homeless Children Committee requested Louise Fitzpatrick to take charge of the tag selling.

Assisted by twenty of her young women friends, she tagged nearly everyone who set foot in Redwood City that day and turned $130.41 over to the committee. The dance, too, was such a great success, that the two Parlors sent a total of $314.51 to the Central Committee on Homeless Children.

Organizer Becomes President.

Pescadero—January 23 the following officers of Ano Nuevo 180 were installed by D.D.G.P. Grace Griffith of Halfmoon Bay, assisted by Harriet Nelson as acting grand marshal, Ella Botiano as acting past grand president and Rae Johnson as acting grand secretary: Ida Mesquite, P.; Madeline Gianola, 1V.P.; Lizzie Frey, 2V.P.; Margaret Dias, 3V.P.; Susie Mattei, R.S.; Mamie Dias, F.S.; Rose Mattos, T. and M.; Angelina Souza, O.; Florence Roe, I.S.; Alice Woodhams, O.S.; Ellen R. Bell, Lena Morris, Trs. Accompanying the district deputy from Halfmoon Bay were these members of Vista del Mar 155: Mesdames Mowry, Hall, Francis, Helena and Bettencourt, and the Misses Edwards, Reynolds and Gilchrist.

After the installation a tamale supper was enjoyed, and following this Miss Edwards kept the crowd in a happy frame of mind by her clever entertainment. Music for the occasion was furnished by Mrs. Manuel Bettencourt. February 25 Ano Nuevo Parlor will be ten years old, having been organized in 1910 by Ida M. Mesquite, just installed as president.

Time Passed Too Rapidly.

Sonora—Members of Dardanelle 66 and Tuolumne 144 gathered in force January 30 for joint installation, and their numbers were considerably augmented by visitors from other Tuolumne County Parlors. D.D.G.P. Alta Ruoff of Jamestown installed these officers for Dardanelle Parlor: Nettie Rother, P.P.; Mary E. Gorgas, P.; Cora Rudorff, 1V.P.; Carrie Vanderhoof, 2V.P.; Marguerite Pease, 3V.P.; Emelia Burden, R.S.; Hannah M. Doyle, F.S.; Maggie J. Hampton, T.; Clotilda Bachman, M.; Carmen Heither, I.S.; Susan Lewis, O.S.; Lizzie Johnson, Teasy Mallard, Martha Marshall, Trs. For Tuolumne Parlor, D.D.G.P. John Nash of Columbia installed these officers: Al Osuna, P.P.; Jas. G. White, P.; E. W. Bolter, 1V.P.; J. H. Peters, 2V.P.; Maurice Brown, 3V.P.; Wm. M. Harrington, R.S.; Frank Mallard, F.S.; F. W. Van Harlingen, T.; Reuhen Sylva, M.; Ed L. Gorgas, I.S.; Paul Morris, O.S.; A. J. Sylva, Tr.; R. I. Bromley, Sgn. The installation ceremonies were carried out in a perfect manner and both district deputies were showered with congratulations.

A program of events, arranged by the Native Daughters, followed, and kept the crowd intact until 2 a. m. Musical numbers were rendered by Miss Cora Willey, Harold Ralph, Ed L. Gorgas and F. G. Burden. Then dancing and whist were in order, prizes for the latter being awarded Mrs. Lou Hartvig, Mrs. E. H. McMahon, F. W. Van Harlingen and Harry Peters. Then came the banquet, the flower-bedecked tables fairly groaning under their weight of good things provided under the supervision of Mrs. Carrie Vanderhoof.

Mrs. F. G. Burden presided as toastmistress, and after extending an eloquent welcome called upon the following, who responded to these toasts: "Native Daughters," D.D.G.P. Alta Ruoff; "Native Sons," D.D.G.P. John Nash; "Pioneers," Hannah Doyle; "Generalities," Wm. M. Harrington; "Dardanelle Parlor," Mrs. N. A. Rother; "Tuolumne County," J. A. Van Harlingen; "California," Mrs. Mary Gorgas.

Friday 13th No "Jinks" Here.

Hollister—To prove their faith in the good luck of Friday the 13th, Copa de Oro 105 and Fremont 44, N.S.G.W., joined forces and gave a most enjoyable dance that evening. Pretty decorations, good music and a large crowd made the affair a social and financial success.

February 14, the hearts of the Native Daughters were saddened by the death of Past President Fannie Graham, one of the most highly respected members of the Parlor. Although an invalid for several years and thus unable to take an active part in the affairs of the Parlor, she ever maintained an interest in the work of the Order.

Dance Until Early Morning.

Placerville—Officers of Marguerite 12 and Placerville 9, N.S.G.W., were jointly installed January 22. After the ceremonies dancing continued until 1 a. m. The program of the evening opened with a solo by Miss Mernelva Ball, with orchestra accompaniment, after which Past President Mattie Plank, assisted by Etta Kramp, installed these officers of Marguerite Parlor: Josie Beach, P.P.; Nora Grey, P.; Nettie Leonardi, 1V.P.; Jessie Lyon, 2V.P.; Margaret Smith, 3V.P.; Ida Bailey, R.S.; Lou Shepherd, F.S.; Mary McBeath, T.; Jane McCusker, M.; Monica McCusker, I.S.; Lulu Cook, O.S.; Tillie Christian, Mary Limpensel, Mary Pascoe, Trs.

After a recitation by Jane McCusker, officers of Placerville Parlor were installed by Charlton Rosier, assisted by Joseph McKee. Ted C. Atwood then delivered an address, and members of the two Parlors, led by Mrs. S. H. Rantz, joined in singing "I Love You, California." On behalf of Marguerite Parlor, Mary Swansborough, a pioneer member, presented Josie Beach, retiring president, with an emblematic pin, and Past President Mattie Plank, who efficiently served as installing officer in the absence of D.D.G.P. Margaret Kelly, with a handsome piece of cut-glass.

An Evening of Happiness.

Oakland—When Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco paid her official visit to Bahia Vista 167 the evening was one of happiness, as indicated by the blue-bird decorations. Visitors from Alta 3 (San Francisco), Manzanita 29 (Grass Valley), Angelita 32 (Livermore), Buena Vista 68 (San Francisco), Yosemite 83 (San Francisco), Piedmont 87 (Oakland), Aloha 106 (Oakland), Berkeley 150, Encinal 156 (Alameda), Laura Loma 182 (Niles) and El Cereso 207 (San Leandro) were in attendance and shared in the happiness of the evening.

When the guests and members were seated around the banquet tables the hall was resonant with the sound of blue-birds, and each one there took home with her the happy little thought that caused the merriment. A word about the regular order of business: the officers initiated two candidates, and themselves as well, for they were occupying their chairs officially for the first time, having been publicly installed at the previous meeting.

Three Parlors Unite for Installation.

Jackson—Three Amador County Parlors—Ursula 1 of this city, Conrad 101 of Volcano and Geneva 107 of Comanche—united for public installation in Native Sons' Hall January 27 as the guests of Ursula, the "Mother" Parlor of the Order. Over a hundred people witnessed the ceremonies of installation, which were impressively conducted by Emma Boarman-Wright, past president of Ursula Parlor and former Grand Trustee.

After the installation the following program was presented: Welcome address, President Verne Marcucci; piano selection, Dorothy Mercer; address, Grand Trustee Henrietta O'Neill; violin solo, Prof. Jan van Thiel; piano duet, Mrs. T. G. Negrich and Dorothy Mercer; vocal solo, Alma Michelini; remarks, Sergt. Curtis; fancy dance, Miss Purcell; remarks, Sabra R. Greenhalgh; vocal solo, Harriet Fisher; remarks, District Attorney T. G. Negrich. Dancing followed, and a sumptuous banquet closed the most enjoyable affair.

Native Sons Serve as Waiters.

Napa—Winnie Cassidy of Vallejo paid an official visit to Eschol 16 January 19 and installed the officers. She was accompanied by twenty-four members of Vallejo 195; in addition to these, visitors were present from Woodland, San Francisco and Grass Valley. Two candidates were installed.

A banquet was served at the close of the meeting, members of Napa 62, N.S.G.W., assisting by waiting Joins With Native Sons for Installation.

Oroville—At a joint meeting to which each Native Daughter was permitted to bring a male escort and each Native Son a feminine guest, officers of Gold of Ophir 190 and Argonaut 8, N.S.G.W., were installed January 21. D.D.G.P. Esther Sullivan, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Galligan, both of Marysville, officiated for the Native Daughters, and Past President Robert W. Smith, since deceased, for the Native Sons, Pansy Huse and Gladstone Lawrence becoming, respectively, presidents of Gold of Ophir and Argonaut.

At the close of the ceremonios Miss Pansy Huse and Miss Florence Danforth rendered vocal selections, Miss Hazel Gray gave a piano solo, and William and Herbert Alpers gave a clever and amusing skit. An elaborate banquet closed a highly enjoyable evening.

Officers Publicly Installed.

San Francisco—Keith 137's annual Christmas tree party at Native Sons' Building was attended by a majority of the members; Past Grand President Eliza D. Keith and D.D.G.P. Emma Dieckhoff were guests of the Parlor. All had an enjoyable time and a good dinner, which was entirely prepared at the hall.

The following officers have been publicly installed: H. Mann, P.; J. Lockbaum, 1V.P.; J. Gusto, 2V.P.; E. Estes, 3V.P.; Mae Edwards, R.S.; B. Manser, F.S.; G. Meyer, T.; Anna Barney, M.; J. Stevens, I.S.; G. Martel, O.S.; Eunice Savage, Elizabeth Graham, Alice Gally, Trs. In appreciation for sorvices rendered during her long membership, the Parlor presented Past President A. Y. Gally with a handsome gift, Mrs. E. Graham, who so ably managed the Christmas festival, making a very happy presentation speech. A dance followed, and was greatly enjoyed by the many in attend ance, including visitors from the other Parlors.

Grand President Visits.

Pittsburg—January 28 Stirling 146 was favored with a visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco, and the occasion was made one of special interest to the members of the Parlor. Accompanying the Grand President was Mrs. Ella Wiehe of Buena Vista 68 (San Francisco). The guests were dined at a local hotel and later witnessed an exemplification of the ritual; they were pleased, and highly praised the excellent manner in which the members of Stirling Parlor perform their work.

A pretty banquet followed the regular business session. Florence Latimer, president of the Parlor, presided as toastmistress, and received many entertaining responses to her calls for remarks. Each of the visitors was presented with a box of beautiful hand-embroidered handkerchiefs and D.D.G.P. Amy McAvoy, popular leader in local Native Daughter affairs, was the recipient of a handsome bouquet of flowers; Miss Dolly Canavera made the presentation speeches in her usual pleasing vein. Miss Julia Moran made the closing address of the evening, which was well received. Mrs. Kate Latimer was the chief entertainer, giving a vocal solo entitled "The Raffle of the Stove," accompanied by Mrs. Estelle Evans and Mrs. G. B. Arentz.

San Jose Installs.

San Jose—The following officers of San Jose 81 were installed January 29 by D.D.G.P. Emaline McDonald of Mountain View: Mary Barricklo, 1V.P.; Carrie Trowbridge, 2V.P.; Nellie Gerans, 3V.P.; Lucy Fisher, R.S.; Henriette Pronzini, F.S.; Mary F. Mitchell, T.; Jean Belloli, M.; Nettie Richmond, I.S.; Augusta Singleton, O.S.; Aura Lea Boomer, O.; Amelia Venturi, Laura Gilleran, Margaret Gilleran, Trs. On account of illness, the newly-elected president, Luella Narvaez, was unable to be present for installation.

Enjoys Tamale Supper.

Salinas—D.D.G.P. Anna G. Andresen installed the following officers of Aleli 102 January 22: Mildred Andersen, P.P.; Clara Kalar, P.; Nellie Sherwood, 1V.P.; Emily Brindero, 2V.P.; Anna Soberanes, 3V.P.; Amelia Bottcher, R.S.; Margaret Balestra, F.S.; Julia Larkin, O.; Nathalie Clark, M.; Gertrude Posz, Minnie McGrury, Kate Griffin, Trs.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, a tamale supper was served. Miss Amelia Bottcher presented Past President Annie Watson with an emblematic pin, and Miss Rose Kelleher, also in behalf of the Parlor, presented D.D.G.P. Andresen with a potted plant.

Joint Installation at St. Helena.

He is survived by a widow and seven children, and a sister, Mrs. Catalina Castro of Oakland, wife of the late Juan B. Castro, founder of the town of Castroville. Deceased was noted for his gentlemanly qualities, and was well-known throughout Monterey County.

TUBERCULOSIS

VAPORTOR breaks up any kind of a cold in a few treatments. Removes the obstruction from the head, nose, throat, and lungs almost immediately. Chronic Colds, Grippe, Influenza, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, are all danger-guides that can lead to the dreaded Tuberculosis.

VAPORTOR during the past year has benefited or cured many persons suffering from Tuberculosis, Chronic Colds, the after-effects of Influenza and Pneumonia.

In recent years it has been proven that Tuberculosis

CAN BE CURED

"VAPORTOR is the logical treatment." That's what many Los Angeles physicians declared after they had investigated the Vaportor method of treating.

VAPORTOR is not a serum, vaccine, bath or patent medicine.

VAPORTOR treatments of twenty minutes daily is all that's necessary. You don't have to go to bed. You don't have to diet.

In Memoriam

WILLIAM J. PACKARD.

To the Officers and Members of Santa Barbara Parlor, No. 116, N.S.G.W.—Your committee appointed to draft resolutions of regret an account of the death of Brother Wm. J. Packard, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty, in His all-wise providence, to remove from our midst to the Heavenly Parlor on High our beloved and respected brother, Wm. J. Packard; and whereas, in the death of Brother Packard, Santa Barbara Parlor has lost one of its charter members and a loyal and true Native Son, and his family a loving husband and brother; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Santa Barbara Parlor, No. 116, Native Sons of the Golden West, deeply and sincerely deplore the untimely passing of our beloved brother, and hereby extends its deepest and sincerest sympathy to his bereaved family; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of our departed brother, that a copy be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Santa Barbara, January 22, 1920.

FRANK MATTISON, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W.

Whereas, In the infinite wisdom of Almighty God, our brother and friend, Frank Mattison, has passed on to his eternal rest; and whereas, Brother Mattison was successful in the business world; his integrity, energy and diligence being the foundation for the faith of his business associates. Notwithstanding his private affairs, he never refused to serve his state or community in public life in which his honesty of purpose, his devotion to duty and the elimination of self in the consideration of the things to be done for the best good of the whole people marked him a sincere, devoted public officer; and whereas, in the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West, Brother Mattison became Grand President as a result of the love, esteem and appreciation of his brothers. Ever gently to hear, kindly to judge, and with a heart overflowing with brotherly love he met all with the handclasp that forever won him a place in the recesses of your heart. Thus the influence of his unselfish life went far beyond the vision of his own sphere; his gentleness, his kindliness, his warm heart, his sincere devotion to the ideals and teachings of our Order gave to the members who met him a new inspiration in fraternal life; and whereas, the passing of Brother Mattison is an irreparable loss to the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West and to California and its people; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Ramona Parlor, No. 109, Native Sons of the Golden West, mourn the passing of this gentle, kindly, good man, our friend and brother; express its sympathy to the loved ones of our departed brother; and place the charter in mourning for a period of sixty days; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, a copy be sent to Santa Cruz Parlor, and a copy be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

ROBERT WATSON SMITH.

To the Officers and Members of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, N.S.G.W.—We, the committee appointed to draft resolutions of condolence and respect to the memory of our departed brother, R. W. Smith, recording and financial secretary and past president of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, N.S.G.W., respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has called from our midst our dearly beloved and respected brother, Robert Watson Smith, thus removing from earthly labor and the councils of our beloved Order one of our most devoted and loyal members and a true and faithful friend; and the sorrow we feel of his untimely passing from this life, renders us inadequate and unequal to the task of properly recording the loss sustained by our fraternity, the interests of which he labored so faithfully and untiringly to advance; whereas, we have lost a true and good brother, his family a devoted husband and loving father, a dutiful son and brother, and the community a loyal citizen who, on account of his many public activities, will be greatly missed; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, Native Sons of the Golden West, hereby extends its sincerest sympathy to the bereaved relatives in their hour of sorrow; resolved, that while we record our deepest grief because of his death, we express our greatest admiration for those exceptional qualities which he possessed and which were ever used in the interest of the Order and the native state he loved so well and will serve as an inspiration to those with whom he was associated; resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the members of his family, a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine, "Oroville Register" and "Oroville Mercury" for publication, and that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor.

ANNA M. GORANSON.

Whereas, The summons that awaits all mortals deprived our Parlor, Fort Bragg, No. 210, Native Daughters of the Golden West, of one of the most esteemed, devoted and loyal sisters of our Order, Anna M. Goranson, whose pleasant disposition, charming personality and sincere friendship endeared her to her sister members; whereas, in life Sister Goranson was a true and valued Native Daughter of the Golden West and faithful in the discharge of her official duty; whereas, by the untimely calling of our departed sister, Fort Bragg Parlor lost a charter member whose presence was a kindly influence, and her family a loving wife, a tender mother, and an affectionate sister; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Fort Bragg Parlor, No. 210, Native Daughters of the Golden West, sincerely deplore our loss and tenderly condole with the bereaved relatives, sharing with them their deep grief in this, their sad affliction, and commend them for consolation to Him Who doeth all things well; and be it further resolved, that a copy be spread on the minutes of our Parlor's record, that a copy be forwarded to the bereaved family, a copy be sent to the "Fort Bragg Advocate," and also a copy be furnished The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

"CARRY ON!"

Grand President William P. Caubu is very happy, for reports from Subordinate Parlors reaching the offiee of Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung indicate a NET gain of 1,732 in membersbip for the year 1919.

By the time the Grand Parlor meets at San Diego in April it is firmly believed the membership of the Order will have increased 2,500 since the Yosemite Grand Parlor last June, for the Parlors are continuing their member-getting activities with splendid success.

Stanford 76 (San Francisco) has started a drive to add another one hundred, and Pacific 10 (San Francisco) expects to initiate a class of one bundred March 9, while Sacramento 3, South San Francisco 157 and Castro 232 (San Francisco) have not given up hopes of ousting Stockton 7 from its position, long held, of the biggest in the Order.

And it is uot alone the "big" Parlors that are waging systematic membership drives. Every Parlor has awakened to a realization of the faet that it needs new members, and that there are hundreds of eligibles who will affiliate if they are but informed of the Order and its unselfish work for California.

Keep up the good work, now well started, and in a short time the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West will be what it should be—the biggest fraternal organization in our state.—C. M. H.

San Diego Parlor Active.

San Diego—While busy arranging for the Grand Parlor session next month, San Diego 108 also has time to seek out desirable eligibles, and in the past three months has added many names to its membership-roll, among them some of the most prominent men of the city. February 7 a class of eandidates was initiated, a ritual team of past presidents from Los Angeles Parlors putting on the work in au impressive manner. The team comprised: Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger, P.; John T. Newell, 1V.P.; James A Adair, 2V.P.; Al Cron, 3V.P.; Joseph P. Sproul, M.; Walter D. Gilman, Sec.; Henry G. Bodkin, Jr. P.P.; Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, Sr. P.P.

Followiug the initiation President A. P. Johnson, Jr., extended the thanks of San Diego Parlor to the visitors, and called upon the following for short addresses: Edwin A. Meserve, Grand Seeond Vice-president Traeger, Walter D. Gilman, Henry G. Bodkin, John T. Newell and Past Graud President Lichtenberger, from among the many visitors, and Brothers Hudner and Wilson from among the large number of San Diego members in attendance. Late in the evening all repaired to a local cafe, where refreshments were enjoyed.

Through the efforts of San Diego Parlor, organization has been perfeeted of an association to combat the Asiatic menace, aud many organizations and individuals bave sought membership. At an open meeting February 6 a mass of evidence against the Japanese was presented in an address by Grand Secoud Vice-president William I. Traeger of Los Angeles. E. F. Hastings is chairman of the anti-Jap association; Henry Read vice-chairman and F. F. West secretary.

Joint Meetings Enjoyable and Benefieial.

Redwood City—Offieers of Redwood 66 and Bonita 10, N.D.G.W., were jointly installed January 29. After the ceremonies H. W. Lampkin delivered an impressive address on the demobilization of Redwood's service flag, and Bonita presented a beautiful silk umbrella to D.D.G.P. Frances Maloney. A sumptuous banquet was then served, D.D.G.P. F. A. Reynolds, in his usual able and pleasing manner, presiding as toastmaster, and some most entertaining and enjoyable talks being heard. Daneing coneluded the evening's festivities. These joint meetings are thoroughly enjoyed by the members of both Parlors, and Presidents Carlotta Ritter and Clement Shields promises more of them before their terms of office expire.

At the installation, D.D.G.P. Franees Maloney officiated for the Native Daughters and D.D.G.P. F. A. Reynolds for the Native Sons, the officers installed including: Bonita Parlor—Minnie Peterson, P.P.; Carlotta S. Ritter, P; Emma Mengels, 1V.P.; Dollie Granger, 2V.P.; Margaret Adams, 3V.P.; Sophie Afferman, M.; Dora Wilson, R.S.; Kathryn Budworth, F.S.; Mary McAuliffe, T.; Minnie Murray, O.; Nettie Kinne, Rose Swift, Ivy Kelting, Trs. Redwood Parlor—R. Lombardino, P.P.; Clement Shields, P.; Phillip Bozzo, 1V.P.; Frank Griffin, 2V.P.; Harold Hexner, 3V.P.; Stanley Marcus, M.; H. M. Porter, I.S.; Cbas, M. Rockwell, O.S.; F. A. Reynolds, Tr.

Reeeption for Departing Member.

Wheatland—The meeting of Rainbow 40 January 29 was also a farewell to F. L. Koch, a member who, aecompanied by his wife, has gone to Atascadero to make his home. The Parlor presented him with a past president's pin, T. E. Akins, in the eourse of the presentation address, reeounting his faithful work for and untiring devotion to the Order; in response, the recipient expressed appreciation not only for the remembrance, but for the brotherly kindnesses extended him. Members and their families were in attendance.

Grand Trustee Charles A. Thompson was also present, on his official visit, and delivered an interesting address. At the eouclusion of a program all enjoyed a banquet. Officers of Rainbow Parlor were installed January 22 by D.D.G.P. G. R. Akins, Roswell Cunningham becoming president.

January 22 officers were installed by D.D.G.P. G. R. Akins at an open meeting to whieh each member was permitted to bring a woman friend. Refreshments were served during the social hour that followed.

Forty-second Anniversary To Be Celebrated.

Sacramento—Sacramento 3, instituted March 22, 1878, has a committee composed of T. W. McAuliffe, Wallace Flynn and Charles Teutschel at work making elaborate plans for an anniversary celebration at which the "old-timers" will be specially honored.

The term closing December 31 found "old" 3 in splendid condition, with 506 members and assets of $38,229.48—$23,900 of which is invested in the Sacramento N.S.G.W. Building and $10,150 loaned out on mortgages. A membership campaign is in full swing, and a big class will be initiated February 26.

Out of 101 members in war service, all have returned but three—Elwood M. Miller, now at Ketehikan, Alaska, Roy Brown, at Athens, Greece, and William Wacker, in the Phillipines. The former, in a letter to the Parlor, fully endorses the Order's staud on the Jap question.

Has Tag Day for Children.

Richmond—D.D.G.P. James J. Dignan of Oakland installed the officers of Richmond 217 January 28, Dr. C. R. Blake becoming president. Retiring President G. F. Black was presented with an emblematic jewel by Past Presideut J. Shea.

The Parlor, together with Richmond 147, N.D.G.W., put St. Valentine's Day, February 14, to good use, conducting a tag sale for the benefit of the homeless ehildren fund.

Some Class, Boys!

Stockton—Stoekton 7 has broken all records, having initiated a class of 126. Twenty-one additional candidates had signed up and paid their fees, but the "flu" scare kept them at home. Not only was it some class, but some classy oecasion, the officers appearing in evening dress and exemplifying the ritual in a perfect manner. Among the many visitors present was Graud President William P. Caubu, who was as pleased as any member of the Parlor at the great success which attended the membership drive. Old 7 now feels easier about maiutaining its place as the biggest Parlor in the Order, but at least three other Parlors have not given up hope of overtaking Stockton before the San Diego Grand Parlor meeting.

At the conclusion of the initiation ceremonies, a banquet was served, talent from loeal theaters furnisbing the entertainment while the menu was under discussion. Then came the speechfest and, as was natural for sueb an occasion, it was some feast of oratory. Judge Steele was the toastmaster, and at his best, which means something. Among the others who helped to keep enthusiasm at the boiling point were Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington, Grand President William P. Caubu, Grand Trustee James G. Conlan, Past Grand President Dr. Charles W. Decker, Grand Marshal James A. Wilson and Historiographer Dan Q. Troy, all visitors. District Attorney Edward Van Vranken, who was in service overseas, spoke of the Parlor's soldier boys. W. E. O'Connor, on behalf of the Parlor, presented a gold pencil to Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker, in appreciation for services rendered in the membership drive, and "Andy" made a fitting response.

Santa Lucia Has Installation.

Salinas—In the presence of a large number of members, officers of Santa Lucia 97 were installed January 26 by D.D.G.P. John Souza. Jesse James is the new president. A fiue banquet was served, and while seated around the festive board many interesting addresses were listened to.

Has Grand Trustee Candidate.

Marysville—At tbe San Diego Grand Parlor in April Marysville 6 will urge the election of Judge J. M. Morrissey to the Board of Grand Trustee. This decision was arrived at at a meeting of the Parlor attended by representatives of Argonaut 8 (Oroville), Cbico 21 and Colusa 69.

The Parlors in the northern part of the state believe they should have a representative on the board familiar with their needs and in position to give them moral encouragement from time to time.

Host to Big Crowd at Installation.

Mountain View—Assisted by the floor team of Palo Alto 216, D.D.G.P. George Tinney of that city installed the officers of Mountain View 215, with F. L. Campen as president, January 29. There was a large attendance of members, as well as many visitors from Menlo Park, Palo Alto and Santa Clara. In the delegation from the latter eity was Grand Trustee Charles A. Thompson who, on behalf of the Parlor, presented handsome rings to Emil Christensen and Louis Wagner, respectively retiring president and senior past president. Two candidates were initiated.

At the conclusion of these ceremonies members of El Monte 205, N.D.G.W., were invited in, and then all proceeded to a local grill where, as guests of Mountain View Parlor, an elaborate banquet was enjoyed. The banquet-room was tastefully decorated with the colors of the Nation and the Order, poppies and greenery, and at each place was a small silk State (Bear) Flag. Music was furnished during the discussion of the menu, and the evening concluded with short talks. Mountain View Parlor is in a most healthy eondition, and a recognized leader in civic affairs. Its war record is one of which its members are justly proud.

Officers Jointly Installed.

Ferndale—Ferndale 93 and Oneonta 71, N.D.G.W., jointly installed officers January 19. All the other Humboldt County Parlors were well represented by visitors, and after the ceremonies there was a dance, followed by a midnight supper. Ferndale's officers, attired in '49 costumes, were installed by Past President J. J. Niebur, assisted by Walter Boyd, Henry Giacomini and Chas Kistner, Frank Early becoming president.

Officers of Oneonta, with Mrs. Cecil Hindley as president, were installed by D.D.G.P. Clara Ammer, assisted by Ruby Niebur and Hattie Reberts. During the evening President Hindley, on behalf of the Parlor, presented D.D.G.P. Ammer with a handsome ivory jewel case.

Benefit Ball Nets Nearly $200.

Jackson—The ball given by Excelsior 31 for the benefit of the homeless children was a splendid success, netting $169.30 for the home-finding work. John Tromer, Alton Prentice, Joseph Fassero, Harry Leans and Ben Sanguinetti composed the committee in charge.

Excelsior Parlor has declared its intention of celebrating Admission Day, September 9, at home—in Jackson.

Palo Alto Continues Its Good Work.

Palo Alto—In the presence of over 100 members, Palo Alto 216 initiated a class of fourteen candidates February 16. This brings the membership up to 151, and assures the Parlor another delegate at the San Diego Grand Parlor. The drive is still in full swing, and March 1 another class of fifteen will be initiated; by the end of the year, Palo Alto expects to have a membership of 251. During the evening a fine spread was served, and addresses were delivered by Father Gleason, Past Grand President Dr. C. W. Decker and Appellate Judge E. C. Waste (Berkeley 210). President C. E. Tully, Past Presidents William Clemo and W. E. Southwood and Gus Krause have been on the sick list, but are recovering nicely.

Under the leadership of Recording Secretary Otis Fellows, twenty-five members of Mountain View 215 visited Palo Alto on this occasion, and invited the members of the latter to visit them on February 27, when Grand Third Vice-president Harry G. Williams of Oakland pays his official visit. Mountain View is one of the finest Parlors on the peninsula; it now has eighty members, and adds to the number at nearly every meeting. Its officers take a pride in their work, and the members appreciate their efforts.

During the latter part of January death brought sorrow to several members of Palo Alto Parlor. On the 24th Miss Nancy E. Phillips, sister of Frank and Joseph Phillips, passed away; the 25th, Mrs. Proser, a sister of Dr. E. C. Clendenin; the 27th, the loving wife of Past President Dr. C. M. Decker; the 28th, the father of Past President James Orr and Horatio Orr. The bereaved have the sympathy of every member of the Parlor.

Endorses Historic Celebration.

Santa Rosa—January 19 was a "big" night for Santa Rosa 28, a class of candidates being initiated, officers installed, and a banquet, provided by Thomas J. Hutchinson, retiring president, enjoyed. Visitors were present from all the Sonoma County Parlors. D.D.G.P. Fred Jennings of Petaluma was the installing officer, and W. A. Coekrill was inducted into the office of president.

The Parlor endorsed the celebration to be given here by the Chamber of Comerce June 14 in honor of the founding in Sonoma County, in 1846, of the California Republic. Charles A. Dunbar, a popular member of the Parlor, is chairman of the chamber's arrangements committee. All the Parlors of the county will be asked to join in the celebration, and will have representation on the committee.

A resolution was passed, directed to the Bank of Italy, making a demand for the Bear Flag of 1846, recently found in the bank vaults, as the property of the Native Sons. It was placed there many years ago for safe keeping, and is not regarded as the property of the bank.

Selma's Officers Installed.

Selma—Officers of Selma 107 were installed February 4, Past President William J. Johnson officiating, and E. C. Laughlin assuming the presidency. During the social session which followed, interesting addresses were made and refreshments were served.

Roll of Honor Presented Parlor.

San Francisco—The following officers of California 1 have been installed by D.D.G.P. C. R. O'Donnell: Robert C. La Torres, Sr.P.P.; Clarence W. Morris, Jr.P.P.; William H. Shea, P.; Leonard F. McElroy, 1V.P.; Edward F. Sander, 2V.P.; Harold Levey, M.; John P. Ferry, I.S.; Edwin Samuels, O.S.; Robert C. La Torres, Tr. At the meeting a beautiful roll of honor, giving the names of the members who were in service during the war, was presented the Parlor.

Rossini, I.S.; August Lefring, O.S.; Walter Metzner, A. J. Arighi, Trs.

After delicious refresments had been enjoyed, speeches were declared in order and brief remarks were made by Past Grand President Bismarck Bruck, Everett Risley, Lewis Vasconi and others. Mrs. Ada Grigsby and Lewis Vasconi, the retiring presidents, were presented with the jewels of their respective Parlors, and Miss Klubescheidt, the district deputy, was also the recipient of a pretty gift.

Plans are well in hand for a big dance and card party to be given February 21 for the benefit of the homeless children fund. It is hoped that the two Parlors will be able to turn in a large sum for this very worthy cause.

Grand President's Itinerary.

San Francisco—During the month of March. Grand President Mary E. Bell will offieially visit the following Subordinate Parlors on the dates noted:

2nd—Berkeley 150, Berkeley.
3rd—Donner 193, Byron.
4th—Oro Fino 9, San Francisco.
11th—Keith 137, San Francisco.
15th—Santa Cruz 26, Santa Cruz.

After installation all retired to the banquet-room, where the Native Daughters had prepared a feast. During the evening addresses were made by the district deputies, the newly-installed officers of both Parlors, and visitors from Redwood City and Palo Alto. Dancing closed what was unanimously declared the best time ever.

Parlor for Wheatland.

Wheatland—The chances are excellent for the institution here in the near future of a parlor of Native Daughters. Rainbow 40, N.S.G.W., has started to work with this idea in view, and the members of Rainbow never start anything they cannot finish.

Endeavoring to Increase Membership.

San Diego—The following officers have been installed for the present term: Elsie Franek, P.P.; Rosina M. Hertzbrun, P.; Adele Koop, 1V.P.; Pearl M. Schachtebeck, 2V.P.; Edith M. NATIVE SON NEWS

Following installation, a supper was served in the banquet room under the direction of the Good of the Order Committee, which had provided an elaborate entertainment in honor of the service members, who were present in full numbers. An orchestra rendered jazz selections, and interesting war experiences were related. A diamond emblematic badge was presented Robert C. La Torres, retiring junior past president, in appreciation of services rendered the Parlor.

Faithful Service Appreciated.

Lincoln—With many visitors present from Rainbow 40 (Wheatland) and Rocklin 233 (Roseville), officers of Silver Star 63 were installed by D.D.G.P. G. R. Akins of Wheatland, Robert P. Dixon becoming president.

At a banquet which followed, the Parlor presented T. H. McKenna with a handsome watch-fob, in appreciation for twenty years of faithful service as financial secretary. He having resigned, Harry Schroeder was elected to fill the vacancy, and installed. Silver Star is in a flourishing condition, and the most active fraternal organization in Lincoln.

DEATH TAKES PROMINENT NATIVE SONS

WILL A. DOWER

Will A. Dower, one of the best-known attorneys in the Mother Lode counties, died Fehruary 9 at San Francisco. While influenza was the direct cause of his passing, he had heen in poor health for some time. Announcement of his demise will come as a distinct shock to those Native Sons who knew Will Dower and appreciated his worth as a memher of the Order and as a citizen.

He was horn at Old Gulch, Calaveras County, in 1873, his deceased parents, John and Catherine Dower, heing Pioneers of that county. Surviving are the widow, formerly Miss Annie Hawes, and five sisters: Mrs. M. E. Bennett of Paso Rohles, Miss Joanna Dower, Mrs. May Young, Miss Julia

WILL A. DOWER.

Dower and Mrs. Beatrice D. White of San Francisco.

After completing his education in the puhlic schools of Calaveras County, deceased took a leading part in the affairs of the county. He served as district attorney, and represented the district comprising Alpine, Amador, Calaveras and El Dorado Counties in the State Assemhly. Early in his career he affiliated with Calaveras Parlor, No. 67, N.S.G.W. (San Andreas), always taking a prominent part in its affairs. He represented the Parlor at several Grand Parlors and served on many of the important committees.

In an account of the death of Will A. Dower, his home paper, "The Calaveras Prospect" of San Andreas, said: "While the deceased was widely known throughout the state, and his ahilities in a wide field were recognized, still he was particularly our own, endeared to every citizen of the county by a life of ceaseless activity in all lines of good citizenship. A man of spotless character in hoth private and puhlic life, we had watched his onward progress with a feeling that he helonged to us, and we felt a pride that Calaveras had produced so promising a native son."

TO HONOR DECEASED WAR BOYS AT ARBOR DAY OBSERVANCE.

San Francisco—Carrying out the intention of resolutions passed hy the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., last year, and at the suggestion of Grand President William P. Cauhu of the Native Sons, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of this city will ohserve Arhor Day, March 7, hy planting ornamental shade trees along Sloat houlevard. Arrangements are in the hands of a joint committee of which Grand President Cauhu is chairman, Mae L. Edwards vice-chairman and Emma Dieckhoff secretary. The executive committee consists of Charles J. Powers (chairman), May Barry, Bertha Mauser, Helen Mann, Edward G. Boyle, Thomas Comher, Charles McEnerney.

Some thirty-seven acacias will he planted, and dedicated to the memory of those San Francisco Native Sons who made the supreme sacrifice in the world-war. The program, which is heing arranged by the Native Daughters, will include musical numhers and an oration hy Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington of the Native Sons. A post to he erected alongside each tree will hear a hrass tahlet telling of the dedication and giving the name of the deceased memher in whose honor the tree is planted.

Let us have faith that Right makes Might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it.—Ahraham Lincoln.

ROBERT W. SMITH

Rohert Watson Smith, past president and secretary of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, Native Sons of the Golden West, passed away at his home in Oroville, February 1. As he had been in his usual good health, the announcement of his sudden departure from this life came as a great shock to his many friends. While sitting at home with his wife in the eveniug, he quietly passed away to eternal rest.

Deceased was horn at San Francisco, September 17, 1891. At the age of 3 he moved to Oroville with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Smith. His early life was spent at the mines near there, but later the family move l into the city, where he received his education and which has heen his home ever since. At the time of his death he held a responsible position with the Rideout-Smith National Bank, where his marked efficiency was clearly recognized and assured him a hright future career. Surviving him are his widow, formerly Miss Helen Gambrel, to whom he was wedded Fehruary 15, 1917, a little daughter, Leslie, his mother, Mrs. R. W. Smith, and one hrother, Arthur L. Smith, also a member of Argonaut Parlor.

Funeral services were conducted February 4 from the Catholic Church, whence the remains were escorted hy the members of Argonaut Parlor to Native Sons' Hall, where they rested in state until 2:30 in the afternoon, when the simple but beautiful ritualistic services of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West were held. Interment took place in the family plot at the Oroville cemetery, a large numher of friends from all walks of life, who were greatly shocked and deeply grieved by the passing of a young man who was universally loved and respected, heing in attendance.

In the passing of Robert Watson Smith from this life, Argonaut Parlor of Native Sons has sustained a loss that is deeply felt. A true and loyal Native Son, his unusual zeal as secretary, his enthusiasm for the Order and its principles, were ever an inspiration in the Parlor and will always linger as a delightful memory to its memhers, urging them on to greater efforts in hehalf of the Order and the work it is doing for the advancement of California, his native State.

POPULAR YOUNG MOTHER PASSES.

Palo Alto—Mrs. Alice Celia Decker, wife of Dr. Charles M. Decker of Palo Alto Parlor, No. 216, N.S.G.W., and daughter-in-law of Dr. Charles W. Decker, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., died January 27 of influenza at her South San Francisco home, at the age of 29.

Until three years ago, all her life had heen spent in this city, where she was very popular. In addition to the sorrowing hushand, she is survived hy two children, Charles Jr. and Florence, her father, Charles Wooster, and two sisters, Mrs. George Casey and Mrs. Margaret Hockahout.

Ah, hut a man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?—Robert Browning.

WILL INVOKE INITIATIVE

(FRED C. PATTISON.)

THE MANY ARTICLES PUBLISHED BY patriotic and non-subsidized newspapers and magazines, such as The Grizzly Bear, on the question of anti-Japanesism, should have dispelled any doubt in the mind of the most dubious person as to this menace. There can be but one conclusion: the unassimilable Japanese—those who are already in our midst and the thousands who are planning to cross the Pacific and infest our native land—present the most striking menace which Americans must immediately overcome.

Our Golden State, California, of course is their objective point. Here, we find over 100,000 Japanese cunningly evading, in a most consistent manner, the laws which were intended to afford protection against their intrusions and usurpations.

The Native Sons of the Golden West Anti-Japanese Committee of San Francisco, after several months of investigation, intends to make a nation wide campaign advising all true lovers of America and American institutions and laws of the Japanese system of evading state laws and their utter disregard of the Federal agreement, the "Gentlemen's Agreement," which had for its purpose the issuance of passports by the Japanese government to Japanese travelers and students only, but since that time thousands of cooley laborers, subjects of the mikado, have been landed on the Pacific Coast.

Added to this disregard of Japanese officials for the "Gentlemen's Agreement," there are many Japanese in this country holding passports from Japan to the United States. A Japanese syndicate is believed to have collected, by borrowing or purchasing, a large number of these now precious documents, which were sent to Honolulu for distribution—presumably for a consideration—among the Japanese who lacked the necessary permission of their own government to come to the mainland of the United States.

With all our might and influence and means the N.S.G.W. Anti-Japanese Committee of San Francisco intends to combat this evil, together with all the wrongs caused by Japanese immigration, until such time as we can proudly say that America is indeed only for Americans.

While we realize that Congress alone can afford the only permanent solution, the committee has endeavored to obtain temporary relief, at least, through the State Legislature. The Governor, therefore, has been urged to call a special session of the State Legislature for the purpose of considering more practical laws to protect California's most important and valuable industries from the Japanese menace, but apparently without success. The only attention given the letter was this acknowledgment, the same that has been sent to all other letters and petitions urging action, where even so much as an acknowledgment has been made: "Governor Stephens wishes me to acknowledge receipt of your letter of December 23rd."

The apparent indifference to the Japanese situation, as indicated by this reply, has spurred the committee to greater endeavor. It will earnestly interest the entire Order of Native Sons of the Golden West to circulate or work for an initiative petition, which will bear laws giving California the fullest protection against Japanese encroachments, and which, the committee is confident, will be voted for by four-fifths of the voters of this state.

on several of the building and furnishing contracts. It places the value of the real estate and building at $265,215. The association is capitalized at $175,000. During 1920 it is hoped to liquidate all debts except the original $100,000 building loan.

Serves Roast Pig.

Galt—Offices of Galt 243, with Robert Carpenter as president, have been installed by D.D.G.P. Francis Ring of Elk Grove. A roast-pig supper was served after the business session, and addresses were made by local and visiting members. The Parlor is in a most prosperous condition and is receiving new members right along.

National Adds Twenty.

San Francisco—National 118 initiated a class of twenty candidates at a largely-attended meeting in Native Sons' Building February 19. Grand Trustee Charles A. Thompson of Santa Clara was in attendance, on his official visit.

Exemplifies Ritual for Neighbors.

Georgtown—Placerville 9 members came over in force January 31 and its officers initiated a class of candidates for Georgtown 91. A chicken-pie supper, with several addresses, followed the ritual exemplification.

Amador Initiates.

Sutter Creek—Officers of Amador 17, with Leo Williams as president, were installed February 6 by D.D.G.P. T. G. Negrich. Several candidates were initiated.

During a supper which was served in the banquet-room, a fine musical program was presented and splendid addresses were delivered by D.D.G.P. Negrich and Past Grand President Clarence E. Jarvis.

Sunset's After 'Em.

Sacramento—Sunset 26 has a membership drive well under way. Four teams, headed by Clyde Rust, E. R. Vaughan, James Strachan and Walton Holmes, are out after eligibles, and they plan to increase the membership by 100 at least before the drive closes.

Grand Trustee Charles A. Thompson of Santa Clara officially visited the Parlor January 26 and spoke in praise of the Order's stand against the "peaceful invasion" of California by Asiatics. During the evening the Parlor presented Past President Charles Gannon with a watch-chain, in appreciation of his long and nutiring efforts in its behalf.

Has Grand Inside Sentinel Candidate.

Merced—C. W. Kahl became president of Yosemite 24 at the installation of officers January 27. D.D.G.P. J. F. Moorehead of Crows Landing was the installing officer.

Brief addresses, touching upon the Order's work, were delivered by Superior Judge E. N. Rector, President Kahl, D. K. Stoddard, D.D.G.P. Moorehead and Grand Outside Sentinel I. H. Renter. A committee has been named to urge, on behalf of the Parlor, the election of Brother Renter as Grand Inside Sentinel at the San Diego Grand Parlor.

PERSONAL MENTION.

R. H. Cunningham, secretary Richmond 217, has recovered from an attack of the "flu."

Past Grand President Clarence E. Jarvis of Sutter Creek has been appointed a member of the board of trustees of the Preston School of Industry, a state institution near Ione, Amador County.

Superior Judge William M. Conley of Madera, Past Grand President, was in Los Angeles last month, accompanying his sons, Lieutenant Philip and Ensign Matthew, who were admitted to practice law in the appellate court.

"Andy" Gallagher (Dolores 208) has resigned as a member of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and has been appointed sealer of weights and measures. To fill the vacancy on the board, Jos. Lahaney (South San Francisco 157) has been appointed.

Richard E. Collins (McCloud 149) of Redding, chairman of the State Board of Equalization, paid an official visit to Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Ventura, Santa Barbara and other southern cities last month. He was accompanied by Mrs. Collins.

SACRAMENTO NATIVE SON DEAD.

Sacramento—William J. Fetherston, past president of Sacramento Parlor, No. 3, N.S.G.W., died in this city, of which he was a native, February 8, at the age of 46. Surviving are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Fetherston, a brother, Frank Fetherston, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Dosch.

Deceased was faithful to every trust, and numbered his friends by the hundreds. He had long been active in fraternal circles, and had represented Sacramento Parlor in the Grand Parlor. The past few years he was a trusted employe of Sacramento County.

BIG EASTERN DEMAND FOR CALIFORNIA-MADE CARBURETORS.

With the signing of several important Eastern contracts, Milton H. B. Miller, secretary and treasurer of the Harry A. Miller Manufacturing Company of Los Angeles, expresses the opinion that 1920 will be a very auspicious year for that concern.

The signing of the contracts followed exhaustive tests of the Miller carburetor under the supervision of C. J. Cadwell, the company's carburetor expert, who was in the East several weeks explaining the advantages of this California product.

MAJOR A. F. JONES

the deaths of Past Grand Presidents Belshaw, Mattison and Jones in my mind, my heart fills with sympathy for those remaining loyal Past Grand Presidents of the days long ago. While they are with us, let us show our appreciation of their service to our Order; we can find no more loyal members of our Order than these Past Grand Presidents. Their loss is our loss, and with that thought let us always extend to them the respect and love which is their due.

Let the death of Past Grand President Jones remind us that we are all mortal, and that ere long our bodies, too, will occupy the narrow grave; that in his life we have had exemplified the virtues of the Pioneer, those virtues upon which our Order is founded. From his life let us feel that we have received the lesson of a life well lived, a life spent in a work of love for his native state, California.

A MAN OF BIG HEART

The eulogy on behalf of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West at the grave of Past Grand President Albert Foster Jones was to have been delivered by Past Grand President Judge Henry C. Gesford of Napa, but a sudden illness made it impossible for Judge Gesford to speak, and at the last moment Past Grand President Fred H. Greeley of Marysville was called upon. His words follow:

"Brother Native Sons of Argonaut Parlor and Friends: No one regrets more than myself the illness of Brother Gesford, not because I am forced unexpectedly and without notice to take his place, but because I am conscious of my inability to utter a eulogy such as he would have been equal to, or one that will in any degree be commensurate with the virtues of our beloved deceased brother, Major Jones.

"It is not necessary for me in this presence to speak of the great services he has rendered this community. Your city, with its progress and advancement, stands as a monument to his energy and public-spirit. Living in a neighboring city, possibly I may have the advantage of a perspective that gives me a truer appreciation of the effect upon your community of a citizen of the character and ability of Albert F. Jones. Sufficient, however, it is to say his name is indelibly associated in the minds of the people of my own home with all the community progress your city has made.

"My acquaintance with him has extended over a period covering forty years, and we were associated in the early work of this Order and in the service of our state. Brother Grady (who stands here by my side) and Brother Jones (who sleeps there) and your speaker were respectively the fifth, sixth and eighth Grand Presidents of the Order of Native Sons, and were, prior to last Sunday morning, the three senior living Past Grand Presidents. It is most fitting that we should here hear testimony to the love and esteem in which he was held by his brothers, and stand beside his open grave with hearts heavily weighted with sorrow and eyes bedimmed with tears.

"For you, members of Argonaut Parlor, the loss is irreparable and, coming as it does but a short time after the death of Brother Albert Smith and almost coincidently with that of Brother E. B. Ward, your burden must seem more than you can bear. These energetic planners and executors of your will made Argonaut Parlor famous for hospitality, and Oroville famous for its Native Son celebrations, and to the directing mind of Brother Jones these brothers attributed the major credit.

"Your good pastor has spoken of deceased's great love and work for the children of your community. Surely he had for these little ones the love of Him Who said, 'Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.' Only yesterday, speaking of Brother Albert Jones to a mutual friend, I had occasion to say that 'I believe I know of acts of kindness and generosity on his part of which none but myself had knowledge;' and I doubt not that hundreds of his friends could say the same thing. No one in need of aid or sympathy failed to receive either from the hand or heart of this brother of ours, when the need became known to him.

"Most of all, then, will our brother be remembered for his great loving and generous heart, and in closing this brief eulogy no more truthful or fitting summation of his life and character can be made or expressed than the words of the poet-orator spoken at the grave of a beloved brother, when he said of him, as we now say of our dearly-beloved Brother Albert F. Jones: 'If every one to whom he has done a kind and generous act should come and cast a blossom on his grave, he would sleep tonight beneath a wilderness of flowers'."

The members of 208 are at present engaged in gathering and selling old newspapers and magazines, in the hope of having quite a sum to contribute to the homeless children fund from this source.

Attractive Program at Installation.

San Francisco—Orinda 56 held public installation of officers January 23, Mrs. Elizabeth Muller of Golden State 50 being the installing officer. She was assisted by these acting grand officers: Mrs. Spillane (Golden State 50) grand marshal, Miss Emma Dieckhoff (San Francisco 174) grand secretary, Mrs. Harriet D. Cate (Twin Peaks 185) past grand president, and Mrs. R. Kemp van Ee (Alta 3) grand organist. The new officers include: Adeline D. Johnson, P.P.; Mary C. Connertin, P.; Madeline C. King, 1V.P.; Verena Britschgi, 2V.P.; Mae Joseph, 3V.P.; Alma Reimers, T.; Emma G. Foley, F.S.; Anna A. Gruber, R.S.; Emily J. Fauda, M.; Orinda L. Gunther, O.; Laura M. Landers, O.S.; Faye Curtis, I.S.; Mrs. Leah H. Hudson, Mrs. Ethel Bowley, Mrs. Julia V. Pries, Trs.; Dr. Emma C. Lafontaine, Phyn.

A program of musical numbers, recitation and fancy dancing was enjoyed. Seven little misses participated in individual dances: Vera Adelstein, Norissa Whitney, Lucille Hanshe, Eliese Florence Peirne, Lucille Peirne, Geraldine Gadd, Sylverine Tyllesen, and the sisters Evangeline and Bernardet Whitney danced together. Mrs. M. Hanshe and Mrs. R. Kemp van Ee were accompanists. Miss Vera Adelstein rendered a piano selection dedicated to her by Professor Margraf, "Autumn Leaves." Mrs. May Barry (La Estrella 89) gave a humorous recitation, and Mrs. Antoinette Hecht (Marinita 198) rendered a vocal number.

The retiring past president, Mrs. Blanche Clevenger, was absent on account of the serious illness of Mr. Clevenger, and a testimonial of regard from the Parlor was sent to her. It was received in the hour of sorrow, for Mr. Clevenger passed away the following morning. Tokens were presented to other officers and the district deputy. The station of the president was a bower of evergreen and flowers. Light refreshments were served.

Educational Meeting.

Long Beach—The meeting of Long Beach 154 February 13 was held at the residence of Mrs. Alpha Harper, D.D.G.P. Kate McFadyen installing the following officers: Rose Orelli, P.P.; Kate McFadyen, P.; Lois McDougal, 1V.P.; Ellen Rogers, 2V.P.; Flora Elder, 3V.P.; Mary Brittainfi R.S.; Elnora Martin, F.S.; Mabel Emery, T.; Emily Tower, M.; Inez Rogers, I.S.; Rosa Ford, O.S.; Alpha Harper, Emily Tower, Rose Orelli, Trs.

Following installation, the February Good of the Order Committee—Elnora Martin, Rose Orelli, Marie McFadyen—took charge. Carrying out a rule of the Parlor that when an absentee's name comes alphabetically on the good of the order committee she must furnish a paper on California history, Miss McFadyen, who is attending the State University at Berkeley, sent a paper on the "Origin of the Name California." After reading sketches from "Fifty Years Ago" in The Grizzly Bear, the committee served light refreshments. All declared it an educational and enjoyable meeting.

Entertains Grand President.

San Francisco—Linda Rosa 170 had the pleasure of entertaining Grand President Mary E. Bell February 11, the lodge-room being prettily decorated in acacia boughs. The ritualistic work was presented very effectively, and the Grand President commended the Parlor for the friendly spirit of comradeship existing in the Parlor among the officers and members. There were quite a number of San Francisco Parlors represented among the visitors present.

At the conclusion of the regular business President Annie Prior, on behalf of the Parlor, presented Grand President Bell with a silver cake-plate, and D.D.G.P. Emma Dieckhoff with a silver cake-knife, after which all adjourned to the banquet table and enjoyed a delicious supper, served by the social committee. All were sorry when the time came to say good-night and that Grand President Bell's visit was over, for her visit was greatly enjoyed.

LOS ANGELES BULLETIN

THINK THIS OVER!

THE GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA WAS announced to be in his office in this city late in January, presumably to give citizens of this section an opportunity to discuss affairs of the state with him. The Los Angeles County Anti Asiatic Association, representing approximately 200,000 Americans, named a committee to interview the Governor at his office here, and a week before his visit addressed a letter to his Sacramento office to that effect.

The Governor's office at the Capital sent the usual "receipt acknowledged," but the Governor did not set a date for the committee to see him as requested, and, what is more, did not see the committee.

William I. Traeger, chairman of the Association, made every attempt to see the Governor, and arrange the meeting, but he could get no further than the telephone-operator. The Governor was barred from even meeting this committee of Americans, as the result of orders from somebody, somewhere.

Anyway, the Association is at work, and meeting with great success. Through the facts it has accumulated and made public, many prominent people have volunteered their services, and organizations to defeat the Japs' purpose are being formed throughout the county.

The Boyle Heights Improvement Association has passed a resolution requesting its members to not patronize any store or industry owned, run by, or hiring Japs, and has appointed a committee to ask owners of buildings rented to Japs to get rid of them. That's the stuff! Don't spend a penny with a Jap, or those who employ or rent to one, and the pest will soon take himself away and the flood of American money that has been going to Japan will remain here.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Association it was reported that Mrs. Bellows, wife of the State Corporation Commissioner, had spoken before the Hollywood Women's Club in defense of the Japs, but that she received a very chilly reception. Commissioner Bellows, it was also reported, had been requested to address the Women's City Club, March 1, on the Jap question, but, it was reported, in a letter to the president of the club declined because he did not want to embarrass the Governor.—C. M. H.

Paper Drive a Success.

After ten days of intense campaigning, the Los Angeles Committee on Homeless Children is able to make a substantial contribution to the homeless children home-finding fund. Old newspapers have a high market value, but are usually thrown away at the home unless a call is made for them. The campaign was directed to the gathering of these old newspapers. The response of the citizens of Los Angeles was hearty, and taxed every means of transportation the committee could bring into service. In some instances, a cash donation was sent in when there were not enough papers to make a showing. A boy of 7 donated $2 in pennies; these he had been saving to help "the poor." Thanks are due the daily newspapers for the wide publicity given the campaign.

Credit for the success attained is due almost entirely to the efforts of Past Grand President H. C. Lichtenberger, who originated the idea. He devoted most of his time and energy—also his "flivver"—to the good work. There is one call that will bring "Herman" on the run and make him forget the ease and comfort of his fireside—the call of the homeless child.

Directors Chosen.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Native Sons' Hall Association of Los Angeles last month these directors were chosen: John T. Newell, Kyle Z. Granger, Clarence M. Hunt, Jesse D. Hunter, Albert S. Cron, Sil. A. Lazard.

The hall is now filled with tenants, and the rooms are being repaired and retinted. Unless another "opening-of-Broadway" fiasco is staged, the association will in time get back on its feet.

Young Mother Passes.

Mrs. Sophia Krause-Yates, wife of R. A. Yates and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Krause (the former organist of Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.), passed away January 30 at her parents' home. She was born in this city March 30, 1896, and leaves, in addition to her sorrowing husband and parents, a 2 year-old son. She was a devoted daughter, wife and mother, and her death was a shock to her many friends, especially of the University of California district.

Deceased was the granddaughter of Mrs. Anna Milner, Pioneer of this city, and William and Sophia Jones, deceased Pioneers of San Diego, and a niece of Mrs. C. L. Michod of Chicago, Mrs. H. Stratton of London, England, Mrs. C. McDonald, Mrs. Frank K. Rule and John Milner of Los Angeles, Miss Martha Jones, Miss Stella Jones and Gus W. Jones of San Diego, Mrs. Amanda Potter of San Francisco, and the late Mrs. L. Emerson of San Diego.

The Death Record.

Mrs. Homorena Anderson, sister of Miss Mattie J. Labory (Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W.), passed away February 2.

Victor Hanser, father of Martin S. Hanser (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.), died February 13 at the age of 76.

Louis Nordlinger, cousin of Louis S. Nordlinger (Corona 196, N.S.G.W.), died at the age of 54. For several years he was associated with the jewelry firm of S. Nordlinger & Sons, of which his cousin is now the head.

Pay Visit to San Diego.

The visit to San Diego 108, N.S.G.W., arranged by Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger, resulted in a large crowd going to the Grand Parlor City, mostly by auto, February 7. Those who made the trip included:

Los Angeles 45—A. S. Cron, W. D. Gilman, Herbert Holtz, Warren Hunter, J. T. Newell, W. G. Newell. Ramona 109—J. A. Adair, W. T. Calderwood, A. Fallanday, C. C. Gassagne, Past Grand President H. C. Lichtenberger, E. A. Meserve, Grand Second Vice-president W. I. Traeger. Corona 196—H. G. Bodkin, J. O'B. Bodkin, J. J. Herlihy, W. E. Jordan, J. P. Sproul.

Sells Building Site.

Corona 196, N.S.G.W., has elected as president for the January-June term Henry G. Bodkin, a past president. Candidates are being initiated right along, and the Parlor hopes to soon double its present membership. The attendance at the meetings is good, and frequently a surprise entertainment feature is introduced.

Some few years ago the Parlor started the Corona Home Association, and purchased a site with the idea of erecting a clubhouse, but the proposition was later abandoned. The site has been sold, and the stockholders—Corona, of course, the largest—have received a dividend.

Inaugurates Worth-While Entertainment.

Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., has taken one more step to furnish its members with real club life. A noon luncheon at nominal cost has become popular. All members of the Order and their friends are invited to spend their noon-hour at Ramona Clubrooms, 349 South Hill street, and to fill their little "tummies." The luncheon, billiards, pool and community singing around the piano send the fellows back to their work in better frame of mind. With the new quarters as the attraction, there has been a steady increase in membership.

The Good of the Order Committee, headed by Past President R. L. Hanley, has determined to give the Parlor a new line of entertainment—some worth-while talks by men who have done things. The first speaker was John S. McGroarty, author of the poem "California" and the "Mission Play," who had for his topic "The Romance of California History." He delivered his talk before the members the night of February 27. This plan of entertainment will prove of great interest and worth to the general membership of the Order, which is always welcome.

Ramona Parlor is now making a formal ceremony of the initiation. The third Friday of each month is set aside, and efforts are made to thoroughly impress the initiates with the sense of their new obligation. At a recent meeting each of eleven members promised to bring in applications or to forfeit five dollars to the Parlor; this resulted in nine applications at the next meeting. The plan will be continued.

NEW COUNTY PROPOSED.

At Petaluma recently several citizens organized to launch a campaign for the creation of a new county, to be formed out of Southern Sonoma and Northern Marin Counties.

It is claimed the new county will relieve the people in these sections of heavy tax burdens. The constitutionality of the present county-division law will be tested, several attorneys holding that it is unconstitutional. If it does not stand the test, a bill for the new county's creation will come before the next Legislature.

The proposed new county would include Petaluma, Penngrove, Cotati, Lakeville, Bloomfield and Valley Ford, in Sonoma County, and Novato, Point Reyes and Tomales, in Marin County. If created, Petaluma would likely be made the county-seat.

SCHOOL CLUB WORK PROFITABLE.

The United States Agricultural Department announces that agricultural-club boys in El Dorado County borrowed $592 in March of 1918 to start their pig-club project. By August of 1919 these boys owned or had sold $5,826.25 worth of swine. This should encourage the organization of similar clubs in all public-schools.

SAN DIEGO GRAND PARLOR

SAN DIEGO PARLOR, NO. 108, NATIVE Sons of the Golden West, will have everything in readiness for the opening of the Forty-third Grand Parlor in San Diego City, Monday, April 19. A. P. Johnson, Jr., president of the Parlor as well as of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, is directing the arrangements, and every one of the promises made by him last year at Yosemite, on behalf of San Diego City and San Diego Parlor, will be fulfilled, and then some.

The fear of lack of accommodations needs keep no one away from San Diego during the Grand Parlor, for the "first" city has more and better hotels than any place of like population in the country. It is well, however, for those intending to make the trip to make reservations in advance, and thus avoid room-hunting after arrival. Eating and refreshment places, too, abound in plenty, so no need to worry about those things. As for attractions, San Diego has enough, and of historic interest, to occupy all of the visitors' time for a week.

Indications are that the biggest crowd ever drawn by a grand Parlor meeting will be in San Diego. Many Native Sons have never been "south," and whether they are chosen delegates or not will accept the invitation of San Diego Parlor to visit the city during the session. There'll be no small number of the opposite sex in the vacation party, either, and all will depart at the end of the week glad that they went, for San Diego knows how to entertain—how to make one feel that he would like to abide there permanently.

While the entertainment program has not been fully completed as yet, The Grizzly Bear is in position to give advance notice of a few of the many good things which will be provided:

Monday evening will be given over to a reception and dance. A program will be presented to include addresses by Past Grand President Judge John F. Davis, United States Senator James D. Phelan (Pacific 10) and Edwin A. Meserve (Ramona 109).

Tuesday will be given over to an all-day auto trip, which will include a visit to old San Diego Mission, Point Loma, and the exposition grounds; at the latter place, a recital will be given on the famous outdoor pipe organ. From there the sightseers will go, by invitation of the Savage Tire Company, to that plant and be shown how auto-tires are made. In the evening there will be a dance.

Wednesday evening will probably be left to the visitors to do with as each desires—"take in" the theaters, etc.

Thursday will be a wet day, so bring your rubber-boots along. Not that that day is the official rain-day in San Diego, but it's the one set down for the special excursion across the border into Mexico, Tiajuana being the objective. You can stay there, if you want to, until 9 p. m., then, Uncle Sam says, you must hike back into your own country, for the border closes at that hour.

Friday evening will be given over to a banquet for Grand Parlor members. There will be a program of toasts, and the time will be ripe for a number of unusually good talks.

Saturday, there will be an all-day excursion on San Diego Bay, affording visitors an opportunity to visit the Government aviation field at North Island, Fort Rosecrans, etc.

GRAND PARLOR NEWS.

Subordinate Parlors must elect their delegates to the San Diego Grand Parlor this month (March),—and there will be a greater number than ever before, for many Parlors have so increased in membership as to be entitled to additional representatives.

It is not possible at this time to say who will be candidates for Grand Parlor office. Many are in a receptive mood, but are keeping their plans to themselves until they are sure they are eligible for office in the Grand Parlor—until they are elected delegates. For the higher offices, however, it is safe to predict these successful candidates: Grand President, James F. Hoey (Mt. Diablo 101), Martinez; Grand First Vice-president, William I. Traeger (Ramona 109), Los Angeles; Grand Second Vice-president, Harry G. Williams (Oakland 50), Oakland; Grand Secretary, Fred H. Jung (Stanford 76), San Francisco; Grand Treasurer, John E. McDougald (California 1), San Francisco. As to the other offices, The Grizzly Bear has this information:

Grand Trustee William J. Hayes (Berkeley 210) of Berkeley will be a candidate for Grand Third Vice-president.

Grand Outside Sentinel I. H. Reuter (Yosemite 24) of Merced will be a candidate for Grand Inside Sentinel.

For Grand Trustees (seven to be elected), those who have thus far made their intentions known are: Judge J. M. Morrissey (Marysville 6) of Marysville; Edward Van Vranken (Stoekton 7) of Stockton; Grand Marshal James A. Wilson (Rincon 72) of San Francisco; Judge James G. Conlan (Stanford 76) of San Francisco (incumbent).

Sacramento is the only place that has been mentioned as the 1921 meeting-place, and no place has put in its "bid" so far for this year's Admission Day (September 9) celebration. It is early, though, and these honors will not go begging.

Grand President William P. Caubu of San Francisco, who will preside at the San Diego Grand Parlor, has sent a request to all committees and officers to have their reports in the office of Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung by March 19 at latest, and to make them as brief as possible.

GOVERNMENT WANTS TO HELP ALL DISABLED SOLDIER BOYS.

Free Treatment Provided Under Recent Federal Legislation at Conveniently Located Civilian Hospitals.

Because discharged, sick, or disabled soldiers do not know the extent of Federal aid they are entitled to, a great many of them are buying their own artificial limbs, paying for medical attention, or neglecting themselves, in spite of the fact that they can get the very best of treatment from the Government.

Reports reaching the United States Public Health Service from stations where hospitals are in operation for the benefit of discharged soldiers, sailors, marines and war nurses, show that a great number of men who served in the war and were injured have never fully understood the provisions of the legislation supplementing the War Risk Insurance Act. Under the terms of this legislation, the Public Health Service has established hospitals at convenient places throughout the United States for the free treatment of any member of the military establishment whose disability may be traced to service with the military or naval forces. These are civilian hospitals, not under Army discipline.

The bill provides that the men are entitled to a free medical examination to determine the extent of their disability. If found to be disabled the War Risk Bureau will pay them compensation according to the extent of the disability, and, if the case requires, it will direct that they be admitted to the most convenient Public Health Service hospital or sanatorium.

The hospital furnishes artificial limbs, glass eyes, braces for deformed limbs, etc., free. It also examines the eyes to see whether glasses are needed and looks after the teeth. In case of tuberculosis or other diseases requiring like treatment, special sanatorium treatment is provided. Discharged sick or disabled soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses are urged to write to the United States Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., for further details.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF NATIVE SONS' HALL ASSN.

San Francisco—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hall Association of the Native Sons of the Golden West—and that means members and Parlors of the Order throughout California—will be held March 9 at Native Sons' Building, this city.

Important business, relative to future plans of the association, will come up for consideration. All stockholders are urged to attend in person if possible or to be represented by proxy.

SAN DIEGO CITY

HISTORY OF MEETING PLACE OF 1920 GRAND PARLOR, N. S. G. W.

Rolland A. Vandegrift and Lloyd Mecham

(NATIVE SONS' HISTORY FELLOWS, UNIVERSITY CALIFORNIA.)

INTRODUCTORY NOTE: San Diego's history is both romantic and important. The place was the first Mecca for both Spaniard and Anglo-American. Not only was it the first strategic point occupied by Spain in her long stride up the Pacific Coast from the Peninsula to Puget Sound (1769-1789); it was likewise the objective of the first overland Anglo-American pioneers—the fur traders and the mule drovers. In each of the great epochs of California history, under the flags of Spain, Mexico, and the United States—under the Lion Rampant, the Eagle and the Cactus, and the Stars and Stripes—San Diego has played a conspicuous part, a role which has culminated, for the present, in the Panama-California Exposition, the new Trans-Continental Railroad, and, during the war, the greatest military rendezvous west of Chicago.

The accompanying sketch of the history of San Diego was prepared by two Native Sons' Fellows in Pacific Coast History—Mr. Lloyd Mecham and Mr. Roland A. Vandegrift, graduate students in the University of California. It is the work of trained young scholars, both of whom have benefited by the generosity of the Native Sons. The limited space allotted and the brevity of the time available after the article was requested, made it impossible for the authors to do more than prepare a brief outline of capital episodes. Nevertheless, the writers were able to summarize the best results of the standard general and local histories, and more, for in many cases they have based their account directly on the original sources. Readers, therefore, may feel confidence in the general soundness of the sketch.—HERBERT EUGENE BOLTON, Chairman Department of History, University of California.

UNDER SPAIN, MEXICO

AN DIEGO MAY WELL BE CALLED the cradle of civilization on the Pacific Coast of the United States. What Jamestown is to Virginia, and Plymouth to New England, so is San Diego to Western America. It is here that the first European trod the soil of California; it is here that the first permanent settlement in California was established; and it is here that the first mission was founded. The old ruins on Presidio Hill, west of the present city, remain today as the oldest relics of the first year of civilization in the state.

Cabrillo. It is to Juan Rodríguez Cabrillo that the discovery of San Diego Bay was due. Pedro de Alvarado, one of the companions of Cortés in the conquest of Montezuma's empire, had fitted out a fleet for the purpose of exploring the South Sea, but his untimely death in the Mixton War left his fleet in the hands of Mendoza, the viceroy. Mendoza thereupon utilized the fleet for voyages of discovery, and dispatched two ships under the command of Cabrillo to explore the northwest coast of the Pacific. The ships left the port of La Navidad on June 27, 1542. After rounding the southern extremity of the peninsula of Lower California, they sailed up the outer coast, and, on September 28th, came to anchor in San Diego Bay, which Cabrillo named San Miguel. Here he remained until October 3rd, after which he resumed his explorations up the coast. San Diego was not visited again by the unfortunate sailor, for he died soon after as the result of a broken arm; nor did Ferrelo, who succeeded Cabrillo in command, touch at San Diego on his return to Mexico.

Vizcaíno. Then ensued a long interval of sixty years before San Diego was again visited by white men. True, the Manila galleons plyed the California waters almost yearly, and in 1595 one of the galleons commanded by Cermeño was wrecked upon the California coast. Also, in 1578-1579, Sir Francis Drake visited this coast, for which his name has been applied to Drake's Bay.

Two years after the opening of the seventeenth century San Diego again appears in history. On May 5, 1602, there departed from the port of Acapulco, "for the discovery of harbors and bays of the coast of the South Sea as far as Cape Mendocino," two ships under the command of Sebastian Vizcaíno. The Bay of San Diego, so named by Vizcaíno in honor of his flagship, was reached on November 10, 1602. Quitting this port on November 20th, Vizcaíno sailed up the coast to Cape Blanco. Then he turned, and, like Ferrelo, went back to Acapulco without touching at San Diego.

The Coming of the Missionaries. Once more San Diego relapsed into oblivion. This time one hundred and sixty years passed before the Spanish crown made another attempt to settle California. The presence of Russians and English on the Pacific, and the consequent fear of foreign invasion, at last awakened Spain from her lethargy and stimulated her to renew her efforts to colonize California.

The prime mover of the plan to occupy California was José de Gálvez, Visitador General of New Spain. His aim was to effect the occupation and colonization of Alta California by the joint efforts of the Church and the State. Accordingly Father Junípero Serra, the leader of the Franciscan missionaries who had taken charge of the abandoned Jesuit missions of Lower California, was induced by Gálvez to undertake the spiritual subjugation of Alta California. It was decided by Gálvez and Serra to proceed to San Diego and Monterey by both land and sea.

The "San Carlos," under the command of Vicente Vila, set sail from La Paz on January 9, 1769. In addition to the crew it had aboard twenty-five soldiers under the command of Lieutenant Pedro Fages. Gálvez, on a small vessel, accompanied the "San Carlos" to Cape San Lucas, where he landed to fit out another ship, the "San Antonio." The "San Antonio" sailed from San José del Cabo on February 15th, under the command of Juan Pérez. Though the last vessel to leave, the "San Antonio" was the first to arrive in San Diego Bay (April 11, 1769). On April 29th, the "San Carlos" sailed into the bay, one hundred and ten days being required for the trip, on which over half of the crew died from scurvy.

In the meantime the land expeditions were making their way across the desert in two detachments. The advance party, under the command of Captain Rivera y Moncada, arrived in San Diego on May 14th. The main body, under Governor Gaspar Portolá, accompanied by Father Serra, left Loreto on March 9, 1769. On July 1st, they rejoined their comrades on the shores of San Diego Bay. Such were the hardships encountered on land and sea that of the two hundred and nineteen who undertook the journey, only one hundred and twenty-six remained. To recruit sailors for the "San Carlos," and resupply the impoverished expedition, the "San Antonio" was dispatched to San Blas.

On July 14th, an expedition under Portolá set out to locate Monterey, whose occupation was ordered by Gálvez. Sixty-two persons accompanied Portolá, among them being Padres Crespi and Gómez, Captain Rivera, and Pedro Fages.

Father Serra remained in San Diego, and, on July 16, 1769, he founded the mission of San Diego de Alcalá, the first mission in California. The site selected was at a place called by the Indians "Cosoy," but now known as Presidio Hill, near Old Town. The mission church was merely a hut of boughs, and was erected near the temporary presidio which had been hastily constructed before the departure of Portolá.

The Indians, though they watched the Spaniards with interest, exhibited no desire to be converted. They had, however, a passionate desire to possess cloth, and stole all they were able to lay their hands on. This culminated, on August 14th, in an attack upon the mission in which a boy servant was killed and Father Vizcaíno was wounded.

On January 24, 1770, Portolá returned to San Diego, having discovered San Francisco Bay. He failed, however, to find Monterey Bay. The "San Antonio" had failed to make an appearance, and since provisions were running low, Portolá advised an immediate return to Loreto. In this he was opposed by Father Serra. Finally, it was agreed that a "novena," or a nine-day prayer, should be said, and if at the end of the period the supply ship failed to appear, then they were to return to Mexico. On the ninth day, or March 23rd, when all were ready to depart, the "San Antonio" appeared over the horizon, and, as if by a miracle, the California colony was saved.

Leaving padres in charge of the San Diego Mission, and a detachment of soldiers to protect them, Portolá and Serra departed for Monterey. There, after the mission of Monterey was founded, Portolá turned over his command to Fages, and returned to San Blas (July 9, 1770).

The Mission San Diego de Alcalá. The site of the first mission upon Presidio Hill proved to be unsuitable because of the distractions of the Presidio and the contaminating influence of the soldiers. A site for a permanent mission was therefore selected about six miles up the valley. The new site was admirably situated, and, though sufficiently removed from the Presidio, it was near enough to enjoy the protection of the military. The change was made in August, 1774, at which time a wooden church of 18 by 57 feet was erected. A cactus hedge, remains of which can still be seen, was planted about the mission as a barrier against the Indians.

The encouraging progress of the padres suffered a disastrous setback because of the Indian revolt of November 4, 1775. In the assault upon the mission Father Jayme, the padre in charge, and a blacksmith were killed, and two soldiers were wounded. At length the savages were beaten off, but not until they had set fire to the mission and razed it to the ground.

Upon receiving news of the disaster, a relief party was hastily sent out from Monterey. Little time was lost in erecting new buildings upon the site of the ruined mission. The new mission church was dedicated in 1777, although it was not completed until eleven years later. Due to the severe damage wrought by an earthquake in 1803, and the ravages of time, the mission was rebuilt, and finally dedicated on November 12, 1813. Thus, the old building now standing is the third church erected on that spot; and, if we include the original church on Presidio Hill, it is the fourth mission church of San Diego.

During the period from 1777 to 1834 the mission enjoyed a prosperous existence. During that time 6,638 persons were baptized, and 4,428 were buried. In 1800 it possessed 6,960 head of cattle, and produced 2,600 bushels of grain.

The advent of Mexican independence spelled the doom of the missions. The missionary fathers owed all to the financial and military support of the Spanish crown, and once that support was removed the Franciscan rule crumbled. The first indication of approaching ruin was the Colonization Law of 1824. By that law the Mexican government authorized grants of unoccupied lands to Mexican citizens. These grants encroached upon the mission holdings, and thus were the causes of fear and protest. The final blow came with the Act of Secularization, August 17, 1833. The object of this law was to take all the property of the missions, and after providing for a parish church and a priest, to divide the remainder among those who would use their wealth and influence in the support of the Mexican government. The decree was not put into effect in San Diego until 1835, when José Ortega was placed in charge as administrator. In January, 1846, the Church lost her final legal claim to the mission, when Governor Pío Pico sold all that remained of the venerable ruin to Don Santiago Argüello. Father Olivia, the last padre to occupy the mission, remained at his post until August, 1846. By that time but few Indians remained. The larger part of them had fled into the mountains, there to relapse into barbarism, forgetting all that the padres had taught them. At the present time the California Historical Survey Commission is working on plans for the restoration of the mission.

The Presidio of San Diego. The Presidio of San Diego, the first to be established in California, was founded by Captain Rivera on May 4, 1769. The crews of the "San Carlos" and the "San Antonio," prior to Rivera's arrival, had constructed a camp on the beach east of the estuary, and within the present limits of New Town. Rivera decided to remove the camp to a place "one league further north and on the right side of the river upon a hill of middling height." Here the Presidio was built. Rude huts were constructed, and a palisade of tree-trunks thrown about them for protection. In 1774, when the mission was moved up the river, all the buildings at the Presidio were turned over to the military. In 1778 a stone and adobe wall replaced the wooden stockade.

Though the annals of the Presidio are scanty, we can gather detached information here and there. In 1782 the presidial force, exclusive of officers, numbered fifty-one men. Of these, six were constantly on duty at each of the three missions of the district: San Diego, San Juan Capistrano, and San Gabriel; while four served at the pueblo of Los Angeles, thus leaving a sergeant and twenty-five men to garrison the fort. "The Presidio of San Diego," said Vancouver, who saw it in November, 1793, "seemed to be the least of the Spanish establishments. It is irregularly built, on very uneven ground, which makes it liable to some inconveniences, without the obvious appearance of any object for selecting such a spot. With little difficulty it might be rendered a place of considerable strength by establishing a small force at the entrance of the port, where at this time there were neither works, guns, houses, or other habitations nearer than the Presidio, five miles from the port, and where they have only three small pieces of brass cannon." As a result of Vancouver's visit the viceroy ordered the Presidio repaired. The year 1796, therefore, marks the real beginning of the fortifications proper on Presidio Hill. At the close of the eighteenth century the Presidio had one hundred and sixty-seven souls, mostly soldiers and their families.

Under Spanish rule the Presidio was kept in repair, but Mexican domination was merely the story of progressive decay. In 1826 the presidial buildings were reported in "a deplorably ruinous condition." The ranks of the military were never kept full; they were badly armed, poorly clothed, and seldom paid. In 1830 the force had dwindled to one hundred and twenty men. Illustrative of the distressing condition of the Presidio, we hear that in 1834 Lieutenant Salazár cannot go to Monterey for want of a shirt and jacket. In 1835 the Presidio was abandoned. All vestiges of former greatness came to an end in January, 1840, when the mud-fortress was dismantled and sold for $40.

Political Events Under Mexican Rule. On April 20, 1822, San Diego lowered the Spanish flag and raised in its place the new emblem of independent Mexico. The ceremony was accomplished gracefully, but without enthusiasm, for San Diego clung fondly to the Spanish tradition. Though California took no part in the revolution, conditions grew worse as the revolution progressed. The annual supply ships ceased to arrive, and so pay and supplies for the soldiers and the missions were cut off.

In the quarter century of Mexican rule, California had thirteen governors. Of the long list only two, Echeandía and Pío Pico, exercised sufficient influence over the history of San Diego to merit mention. In 1825 General José María Echeandía came to San Diego as the governor of Upper and Lower California. Though Echeandía established his residence in San Diego, and chose to order the assembly to meet there, the town was never the capital of Upper California in the proper sense of the term. It was, however, for a few years during Echeandía's administration and afterward, a hot-bed of political activity. In 1827 the assembly met in San Diego, but only long enough to launch a protest against the selection of San Diego as the seat of government. Another futile session was held in 1829. The governor then issued a summons to meet in Monterey.

Echeandía's administration was marked also by the arrival in California of the American trail-blazers, Jedediah Smith (1826), and Sylvester and James O. Pattie (1828). Smith had crossed the desert, and reached San Gabriel, whence he was brought to San Diego to be dealt with by Governor Echeandía. Beyond being given a cold reception, he was allowed to depart. The Pattie party had reached the mission of Santa Catalina in Lower California, by way of the Gila and the Colorado Rivers. They were also taken to San Diego by order of the governor, and imprisoned for several months.

In December, 1830, Echeandía's rule came to an end. His successor was Colonel Manuel Victoria, who took up his residence at Monterey, for once more the jurisdiction of Upper and Lower California was divided. Victoria's rule was short-lived, for, due to his harshness, he was promptly ousted. Juan Bandini and Pío Pico, two San Diegans, were prominent in the revolt against Victoria. Pío Pico was chosen governor, which office he held for hut twenty days. A miniature revolution then ensued, which came to an end upon the arrival of Governor Figueroa in 1833. With his assumption of office San Diego ceased to figure as the political headquarters of Upper California.

Foreign Intercourse and Trade. The Spanish trade policy was one of monopolies and restrictions. In applying this policy to California, legitimate commerce was restricted to two supply ships annually. The growing importance and value of the fur-trade impelled foreigners, particularly Americans, to cast aside restraint and engage in a prosperous clandestine trade. The opening years of the nineteenth century saw many Boston traders haunting the California coast.

In November, 1793, George Vancouver visited San Diego. His ship, the "Discovery," was the first foreign vessel to enter San Diego Bay. The first Americans to tread the soil of San Diego were four sailors, who, in 1798, had been left by their ship, the "Gallant," in Lower California. Intercourse by sea with the Americans began on August 25, 1800, when the American ship "Betsy" sailed into San Diego Bay for wood and water. After a stay of ten days she departed for San Blas. Three years later the "Alexander" from Boston attempted to smuggle furs out of San Diego. The furs were confiscated and the ship allowed to depart. The "Lelia Byrd," however, determined to recapture the furs. The attempt was unsuccessful, and after a lively skirmish with the fort on Ballast Point the American ship raced safely out to sea.

In the year 1817 an event of some importance in the commercial history of San Diego took place. That year marked the shipment of the first cargo of grain from San Diego. The grain was sent to Loreto on a vessel commanded by an American, Captain James Wilcox.

After the inauguration of a republican form of government in Mexico, the restrictions on foreign commerce were removed. As a result a profitable trade grew up between the Boston traders and the Californians. The American ships carried veritable department store cargoes, which were exchanged for hides and tallow. The commerce of California during the Mexican era was carried on principally by these ships, called "hide droghers." Large buildings were erected on the bayward slopes of Point Loma, and there the skins were delivered to the supercargoes of the Boston ships. The trade was very brisk during the administration of Governor Echeandía. In 1828 the revenue collected at San Diego alone amounted to $34,000. With the transfer of California to the United States the hide trade came to an end.

Next to the cattle industry, whaling and hunting the sea-otter were the most important occupations of the San Diegans. The heyday of the fur-trade was in the time of the "Lelia Byrd" affair, though the trade lasted to the American Conquest. Between the years 1840-1850 whaling furnished a profitable pursuit. Before the gold excitement multiplied the number of ships, the coast of San Diego was a favorite breeding ground for whales. Indeed, in 1845 it was said to be difficult to cross the channel because of the leviathans. With the coming of the Americans, however, the whales were rapidly exterminated.

When the Boston ships came to trade, they brought great cargoes of Yankee and English goods and finery. The resultant influence upon San Diego society was enormous. Also, the impact of American ideas helped to bridge the transition from Mexican to American rule. Our best picture of Spanish life in San Diego is given by Richard Henry Dana in his classic, "Two Years Before the Mast." Dana's first visit to San Diego was made in 1837 aboard the "hide drogher" "Alert."

Nor was Old Town without its romance. A social escapade, renowned throughout Mexican days, was the elopement in 1829 of Henry D. Fitch, an American trader, and Señorita Josefa Carillo of San Diego. Difficulties being encountered, Fitch not being a Catholic, the couple eloped to Peru, where they were married. After their return to San Diego it was more than a year before the legality of their marriage was recognized by the Church.

The Pueblo of San Diego. During mission days a small secular population was drawn together outside the presidio enclosure. Men who had come as explorers or soldiers remained as settlers. They occupied the valleys and raised cattle, but maintained their households near the Presidio. Coincident with commercial prosperity and military decay, building in the little settlement progressed. By 1830 thirty houses had been built, and in 1835 conditions were ripe for the establishment of municipal government.

The Pueblo of San Diego was organized by an election of the necessary officials on December 21, 1834. In the election thirteen votes were cast, and the following officers were elected: Juan María Osuña, alcalde; Juan Bautista Alvarado, first regidor; Juan María Marron, second regidor; and Henry D. Fitch, syndico. This marks the beginning of civil rule in San Diego. Ten years afterwards the city lands, to the extent of eleven leagues square, were surveyed and granted to the pueblo by the Mexican government. Later the city's title to these lands was confirmed and patented by the United States.

The ayuntamiento of San Diego was short-lived, for at the end of three years there were not enough people in San Diego to entitle it to a council. So, from January 1, 1838, until the conquest, San Diego formed part of the sub-prefecture of Los Angeles. Captain Santiago Argüello was appointed the first sub-prefect.

The period of decline, which began about 1836, continued steadily until the conquest. In 1840 the population of San Diego was the smallest that it had been for fifty years; it numbered only about one hundred and fifty souls. In 1845, in an effort to raise troops for the defense of the country against the Americans, there were only seventy men capable of bearing arms. Everything was prostrated, the mission deserted, the Presidio in ruins, and the town almost depopulated. The quarter-century of Mexican rule had certainly added nothing to the achievements of their Spanish predecessors.

II.

UNDER THE UNITED STATES

The American Conquest. When war with Mexico broke out San Diego played a conspicuous part in the brief contest which made California one of the United States. It was the only important port in Southern California and therefore had a strategic importance.

Commodore Stockton superseded Sloat after the taking of Monterey and at once organized an expedition to subjugate the southern part of California. Major John C. Fremont's exploring party was recruited to a battalion of about one hundred and seventy men. The frigate "Cyane" carried this command from Monterey to San Diego. Fremont was to procure horses and supplies in order to act as cavalry in the conquest of the territory to the north. In July 1846 the "Cyane" sailed into the harbor. The town was immediately occupied and the American Flag replaced the Mexican.

Fremont had to do considerable skirmishing to secure horses, since the Californians had driven them to the mountains and concealed them. With new mounts, on August 8th Fremont marched for Los Angeles to join in the taking of that city. He left a small garrison to hold San Diego. This band of about twelve men under Ezekiel Merritt was assisted by the Bandinis, Arguellos and other leading families who were disappointed at the poor treatment received under the Mexican government.

After Fremont left, San Diego was in a state of siege. The garrison was not strong enough to make a sortie, and the Mexicans early in October determined to retake the city. Francisco Rico at the head of fifty mounted men marched against the small post. Being in no condition to withstand them, the garrison, the American residents, and the Californians who feared for their safety, took refuge on the whaler "Stonington," which was in the harbor. The town was immediately occupied by the enemy.

BUSINESS CENTER SAN DIEGO TODAY (1920).

These illustrations graphically picture the advancement of San Diego City. At top, is the Horton House; in front is the Plaza, with its little Christmas trees. Below is pictured the identical spot, now occupied by an imposing hotel; the Plaza, now beautiful with cocos plumosa palms, is seen, and also, in the background, other important city developments.

To secure aid John Bidwell was now sent in a small boat to San Pedro. Lieutenant Minor and a small force returned and with the assistance of the others he recaptured the town. But the enemy continued the siege and cut off all supplies. Skirmishes between hostile parties were constant. Late in October the besiegers were increased by about one hundred men and the garrison slept on their arms constantly, expecting an attack.

Early in November Commodore Stockton sailed into the harbor and decided to fortify. Up to this time the American loss was one man killed and one wounded, while the enemy is said to have had three killed and several wounded. The enemy attacked in force now but were driven off with a loss of two men and horses killed and four wounded. They were also driven from the earthworks which had been built in 1840. This fortification was now improved and named Fort Stockton.

Early in December a messenger arrived from General Kearny saying that he was at Warner's Pass and wanted to open up communication. In response Captain Gillespie and Past Midshipmen Beale and Duncan were sent with a force of about fifty men. They reached Kearny safely, and warned him that Andreas Pico with about ninety well-armed lancers was between him and San Diego and might prove a formidable force to his worn-out command.

Being told by Kit Carson that the Californians would not fight, Kearny continued on his way and was engaged by Pico's forces at San Pasqual. The battle was the hardest contested in the fight for California. General Kearny lost in killed Captains Johnston and Moore, Lieutenant Hammond and fifteen dragoons, and eighteen men wounded. Kearny was therefore forced to take a defensive position and send to San Diego for assistance. In response Stockton sent a force of two hundred men and artillery. With this aid "The Army of the West" reached San Diego, December 12, 1846.

The American force in San Diego now numbered about six hundred men. This detachment began on December 29th its march on Los Angeles, leaving a small garrison at San Diego. With the successful outcome of this expedition the war ended, so far as San Diego was concerned.

The Mormon Battalion. Soon after this the famous Mormon Battalion reached San Diego, and for the first half of 1847 seventy-eight of them formed the garrison at Fort Stockton. Upon the departure of the Mormons they were succeeded by Company I of the Stephenson Regiment. September 25, 1848, this company was mustered out there, and this ended the military occupation of San Diego, except for a garrison of the regular troops.

San Diego During the Gold Rush. San Diego did not owe her origin or growth to the large amount of gold obtained in the vicinity, like San Francisco, or like Melbourne in Australia. Nevertheless upon the announcement of the discovery of gold the town was drawn into the swirl of excitement. Many residents, not knowing that the mountains about them held a store of the yellow treasure and not caring to work quartz instead of placers if they had known, went to the diggings in the northern part of the state. It is not recorded, however, that any San Diegan filled his poke to overflowing with the precious dust, or joined the few who were listed with the men of millions.

New San Diego. Until 1867 the written history of San Diego belongs entirely to "Old Town." On July 7, 1846, when California passed under the American Government, the pueblo lands were guaranteed by the treaty with Mexico in 1848, subsequently confirmed by the United States Land Commission and again by the Department of Interior on January 3, 1872, which finally settled the dispute over title.

The form of Mexican government was continued in California until the organization under the American Government could be completed and elections held. Two voting precincts were established in San Diego County, one at Old Town, the other at La Playa. The election was held April 1, 1850. Of the one hundred and fifty-seven votes cast Old Town had eighty-eight and La Playa sixty-nine.

Abortive Attempts to Establish New San Diego. Old Town and La Playa were not well situated for a promising city or to take advantage of the harbor. The Americans very early realized this fact, and a company was formed by William Heath Davis. They secured a grant of one hundred and sixty acres of land a few miles south of Old Town and on the bay, for the purpose of "a new port," and it was stipulated that a wharf was to be built within eighteen months. It was completed in 1851. The company secured the locating of the new army barracks there and New Town started off propitiously.

Now began the fight for existence between Old Town and New Town. The latter had the better location, the wharf, and government buildings. On the other hand, Old Town was the county-seat and post-office and the established seat of wealth and population. In the end the victory was with New Town.

The First Newspaper. In May, 1851, the first newspaper, the "Herald," was established in San Diego by John Judson Ames, who cast in his lot with New Town. Later he moved to Old Town when "Davis' Folly" proved unsuccessful. The paper was suspended early in 1860, and San Diego had no paper until the coming of the "Union" in 1868.

Soon after the removal of the "Herald" to Old Town the decay of New Town began. The wharf and warehouse fell into ruin and were used for fuel by volunteers at the barracks in 1861-2. The toredos cleaned up the piles. Old Town, the establishment of the padres and the overflow from the old presidio, had again come into its own. True to form, its life was much like a continuous siesta. There was some shipping. An occasional emigrant party for the gold fields arrived or departed. A rumor of a railroad awakened a drowsy interest now and then.

The words of Richard Henry Dana, who revisited San Diego in 1859 after an absence of twenty-three years, are evidence of its sleep, for he wrote: "The little town of San Diego has undergone no change whatever that I can see. It certainly has not grown."

PUT YOUR HEART INTO CALIFORNIA

LABOR EARNESTLY AND CONTINUALLY FOR HER WELFARE AND DEVELOPMENT; KEEP HER A WHITE MAN'S PARADISE

William P. Caubu
(GRAND PRESIDENT, N.S.G.W.)

ANOTHER GRAND PRESIDENT IS about to relinquish the duties of directing head of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West and to be succeeded by one who will assume those duties. The one can speak of his work and the pleasure it has brought him, the other of his plans and the pleasure which awaits him. Let me assure him of a plenty of labor and the happiness that comes with the doing thereof.

If the performance of his duties was not a labor of love the term of Grand President would indeed be a trying one. But thought, time and energy devoted to the upbuilding of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West and the accomplishment of some of its objects and purposes do bring a real pleasure and happiness to a loyal Californian.

It is not the privilege of many to occupy the exalted position of Grand President. I sometimes wish it were possible for ten or twelve members to act in that capacity at one time—that so many more would obtain for themselves the feelings that I have enjoyed during the past term; to enjoy the appreciation expressed to you by many and many citizens for our patriotic and sentimental preachings, for our reverence of the Pioneers, for our support and assistance to worthy purposes; to feel the pride which comes to you in speaking of the things our Order has accomplished, is doing, and will continue to do, all for California.

There is a feeling that every person in California should be doing what you are trying to do; you wonder how others can help from devoting time to the service of their state, why you did not do more in the past, and you are convinced that your closest attention will always in future be given to the affairs of the Order. You see in this a reason for that close tie which hinds the Past Grand Presidents to each other and to the affairs of the Grand Parlor.

It should be urged upon all members of our Order—upon all Californians—that in the tedium of every-day work and worry there is an opportunity for rest and peace in the performance of an unselfish lahor for California. We find some people do appreciate it and enjoy it; why not many thousands? I have come in contact with many good citizens of the state, not members of our Order, who are interested in some of our purposes. Their particular interest has become a hobby with them—it is a California hobby; they are glad for the pleasure their small help affords them; they envy us our opportunities to accomplish in a big way these many things and the gratification which comes to us in the doing of them; they are unselfish, too, and they urge us to further accomplishment.

In all things undertaken, our Order, through every Subordinate Parlor, must keep a strong heart. You remember the old story of the mother who was training her boy on a trapeze; he had made three or four ineffectual efforts to get over the bar when she suggested: "Johnny, if you will throw your heart over the bar, your body will follow!" So it is with us: let our hearts beat fast with our pride of California, our nativity, and they will carry our bodies strongly into the effort we must continually put forth. Remember there is much in being a Californian, a Native Son of the Golden West.

Considerable effort has been given during the past year to regain our natural stride in increasing the membership. During several previous years this work suffered from the war and the plague. With peace came the renewed hope that our patriotic teachings would be rewarded, and that the young men would become interested in our Order. Past Grand President Toomey observed at the close of his term an awakened interest, and foretold an opportunity for his successor. This opportunity has been grasped, and we are all pleased to know that during the year 1919 there was a real substantial gain in membership, the net gain being in the neighborhood of 1,750—perhaps one of the largest gains, for a year, in some fifteen years past. How faithfully all members joined in the drive for members; I am sincerely thankful for their interest. I am thankful, too, for the interest created and the impetus given by the efforts of Past Grand Presidents Snyder and Toomey. For this year the motto has been "Carry On!" The Parlors are awakened, will continue awakened, and I feel that during the year 1920 we must have even a greater membership gain.

WILLIAM P. CAUBU OF SAN FRANCISCO .
GRAND PRESIDENT OF THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST.

And this increase in membership, while it adds strength in numbers, brings also a more important result: just that many more units of interest in our accomplishments. It means that our Homeless Children's Committee will receive all that the increased costs of living force them to demand of us; that our Landmarks Committee will have added support for its efforts; that our Committee on History will continue to bring to us the praise of every California student; that the mission restoration work may receive added help from us; that every public-spirited movement of interest and importance to California will have behind it a greater power to do good for the best interests of California.

The Committee on Homeless Children has continued its wonderful work with even greater success. Requests for help and assistance have been heeded, and from all parts of California has come the money needed so badly—money with which to do so much good. The combination of efforts by the Native Daughters and Native Sons in such a worthy cause must bring results; the greater the demands, the greater will be the effort. No person can understand the purposes of this committee and not join in the movement to help. I recall not long since talking to a man about town who did not know of our interest in this work; I did not think it possible, and was thankful for the opportunity to tell him. It was with great pride that I told of the efforts of this committee, of the work done, of the happines brought to the silent home, and of the gift of a future to the very young citizens of California.

The Grand Parlor at the Yosemite Session last year adopted a resolution pledging us to some effort in the planting of trees along our most wonderful highways. Can you realize what it would mean to the Order to see to it that those highways become the most beautiful, too? I have been glad to urge an interest in this work whenever possible and believe some efforts have been directed along that line. I want to urge greater effort and a sincere interest by all of the Parlors. On Arbor Day last, in San Francisco, together with the Native Daughters, a ceremonial planting of trees was held in honor of the Native Son heroes who died in the world war. These trees were planted at the starting point of the highway in that city, and it is hoped that trees will be planted along the highways of the state for every California hero, for every California soldier. Can you imagine a highway from Siskiyou to San Diego bordered with green trees? What a wonderful memorial to those who fought victoriously the battle of their country for justice and freedom in the world!

And while we are planting trees, let us not forget to use our every means and strength to preserve for California those redwoods which now so gloriously decorate and adorn some of the highways in the northern part of the state; the hand of man is fast encroaching, and these mighty giants of the forest are rapidly passing from our sight. You who have passed in their midst and wondered at them as the rays of sunlight gleamed through, remember,

CONQUEST BY COLONIZATION

Japs' Peaceful Penetration Means Ultimate Dispossession of Whites

John S. Chambers
(STATE CONTROLLER.)

THE PEOPLE OF ANY NATION, through their government, possess the inherent right to manage their own internal affairs, and any people worthy of being called, collectively, a nation will assert and maintain this right to the utmost of their ability. This is "home rule," or, as expressed at the Versailles Conference, "self-determination." There can be no weakening along such a line, when national prestige and national solidarity are involved, without the loss of national stamina and national morale. And this would mean a lower grade of patriotism at home and a lower standing among the nations of the world at large. Neither hope of commercial gain nor fear of international complications would offer for such a course any justification whatsoever. A principle does not admit of argument or compromise.

America is a white man's country. And it will remain a white man's country just as long as the white men of the country have the vision and the courage to keep it so. It may be well to recall that once upon a time it was the red man's country. Perhaps the parallel is not justified; but history teaches that great changes do not come in a day, but through slow development during generations and even centuries.

In the days of Jefferson, the Government of the United States realized that America must be kept out of entangling alliances if international complications were to be avoided, internal growth promoted and its future safeguarded. So, too, in the days of Monroe, the Government of the United States realized that the nations of the Western Hemisphere must he protected against encroachments by European powers that its own security might be firmly established.

PROCLAIM NEW GREAT POLICY.

And today the Government of the United States faces a duty, based upon the God-given right of self-protection, of proclaiming to the world another historic policy—the policy that America is now and always shall be a white man's country, that it shall he kept so against armed aggression or so-called peaceful penetration; that the issue is the control of its own internal affairs, including immigration, and that the principle involved is subject to no reservation whatsoever.

But unfortunately the Government of the United States, while facing this duty, has not yet appreciated it, much less acted upon it, unless we choose to so consider certain treaties and agreements now known to be totally inadequate to meet the situation. To date, the issue is not a national one in the sense that it is understood as such throughout the nation. It is a Western issue as yet, or so considered; and even then more Coast than Western, and more Californian than Coast.

This is because California, with its vast area, the great fertility of its soil, the wonderful variety of its resources, its unlimited water supply, tidewater facilities and mild climate, has appealed tremendously to the possessory desires of the Japanese. They have come here by the tens of thousands; by fair means and foul, they have seized upon our choice lands, have colonized here, there, and in between, to the banishment of former white owners and residents; have engaged not only in production but in distribution, and likewise have taken up banking and general business—determined by such means and the record reproduction of their species (all in pursuance of a firm and long-established policy of the Japanese empire) to possess themselves of this wonderland. Peaceful penetration, first; other means later, if need be, or practicable.

But California, while the greatest sufferer among the states to date, due to its natural attractions and geographical location, is by no means the only victim of this invasion. Oregon and Washington, too, are in the toils; Idaho, Nevada and Arizona, to a lesser extent, also, while Colorado, the cotton-growing states of the South and others likewise feel the blight.

The future of the United States of America is tremendously involved in the situation. But were California the only state concerned now, and even if the menace could he confined to California, the Federal Government at Washington owes a distinct duty to it—to each and every state in the Union—to protect it, when, because of the Federal Constitution and international relations, the state concerned cannot properly protect itself. The Japanese menace today threatens not only California and the Pacific Coast, but the Western states of America and eventually the United States at large.

THE CALIFORNIA BLIGHT.

In the main, the policy of the Japanese in California—at present, at least—is conquest by colonization. Necessarily, in a vast country such as ours, development has been slow, and the significance of the policy did not obtrude itself at once, but it has progressed, now, to such an extent as to be not only distinctly but alarmingly discernable—except to those who are "color blind" or do not care to see.

The Japanese in California now number, in my judgment, between 100,000 and 150,000. One of the things their leaders seem determined to keep in the background is the exact total of their population in this state. Prior to the effective activity of the Japanese, recently, in acquiring land here, they held title to between 75,000 and 100,000 acres in California. This acreage may have been doubled in the past few months because of the alarm of the Japanese over the agitation against them and their frantic desire to possess themselves of every foot of land possible before being finally and effectively restrained. It is estimated that they have under lease between 200,000 and 300,000 acres of land. March 1, 1919, the capitalization of California corporations owned outright or controlled hy Japanese, as shown hy the records of the State Board of Equalization at Sacramento, was $72,357,998, and careful estimates indicate that fully one-half of this vast sum is in land holdings. Since that date approximately 100 Japanese companies have filed articles of incorporation, all or nearly all of which propose to deal in land or produce.

That the Japanese have violated treaty provisions and agreements between their government and ours in order to enlarge their population and power in this state and along the coast, is beyond question. How many have entered surreptitiously along the borders will never be known. Picture brides have been brought here not only to increase the number of Japanese through the bearing of children, but also to be used as laborers in the fields, a clear violation of the "gentlemen's agreement." The action of the government of Japan, recently, in putting a stop to the coming of picture brides, was merely a sop in the hope that it would check anti-Japanese agitation in California and along the Pacific Coast. So, too, was the action of that government in liberalizing its land-owning and land-leasing laws.

NOT RETALIATION BUT PRESERVATION.

America is not concerned as to these matters. It is more than willing that Japan should control its own internal affairs. But at the same time it demands the absolute right to manage its own concerns. The opposition to Japanese immigration, land owning, land leasing and other lines of industry which they take up in this country is not based at all upon any of the laws or practices of the empire of Japan, is not based at all upon the spirit of retaliation, but is based solely upon the purpose of the people of this country to keep it a white man's country. The two races can never mingle! Socially, politically and industrially the standards of the Japanese differ from the standards of the Americans. The two can never be made to amalgamate! Continuance of present conditions means future trouble of the most serious sort. The wise thing is to stop it now.

Not only have the Japanese evaded treaty provisions and agreements, but once here they have consistently violated our land-owning and land-leasing laws. Unfortunately, the Federal Constitution provides that children born here are American citizens; and so, with the manipulation of Japanese minors, it has been made easy for alien Japanese to acquire control and possession of thousands and thousands of acres of fertile California land. In the counties of Fresno and Tulare, recently, instances of gross manipulation along this line were brought to the attention of the courts and openly denounced. Through corporations making use frequently of white men as dummy directors, the Japanese also have acquired, illegally, the ownership of acres and acres of the best land in the State of California.

And when they acquire these lands they people them in colonies, gradually forcing out the white residents and white owners. They have no trouble in financing their operations, backed, as they are, to a large extent hy banks of their own in this state, behind which are the banks and the government of Japan. The whole procedure is along the lines of a policy established long ago in Japan, to acquire possession of the western coast of America through peaceful penetration, if possible, and other means later, if need bo and practicable.

When the present population of the Japanese in California is considered, with fully 25,000 native sons and daughters, the rahhit-like fecundity of the race, their possession and control of thousands and thousands of acres of land, their dual citizenship and established loyalty to the government of Japan, the seriousness of the issue cannot he questioned. To sit idly hy and permit this condition to continue and to grow, would he to invite disaster! The future, as we look upon it today, is menacing indeed.

I have not gone into detail here as to Japanese birth statistics in California or even quoted the very careful and disquieting tabulations prepared by V. S. McClatchy, publisher of the "Sacramento Bee," along national lines, because much publicity recently has been given them in the press, including The Grizzly Bear. But such data should be studied and borne in mind.

JAPANESE PROPAGANDA.

The Japanese Association of America and its co-partner, the California Farmers' Co-operative Association, with individuals here and there who mainly are actuated by personal and selfish motives in defending the Japanese, are spreading propaganda from one end of California to the other and throughout the United States, aimed to thwart the purpose of those who would preserve California, this coast and the nation as a white man's country.

Unsubstantiated figures as to population, immigration and departures are given; likewise, as to acreage owned and leased and the comparative value of crops produced and sold by the Japanese. But not a word is said as to the capitalization of Japanese corporations in California, for the record as to this is too plain to admit of evasion or manipulation. Moreover, most of the figures given by these proponents of the Japanese are not later than 1918. Recent acquisitions of land are not shown in these figures. And the forthcoming Federal census should demonstrate the fallacy of the population figures as presented. Recently, in San Francisco, United States officials in charge of the census work there openly protested at evasion hy the Japanese, and the puhlic and the police were called upon to force these people to make proper census returns.

The propaganda issued by the Japanese and their white friends lauds their industry. It calls them "pioneers and upbuilders" of the State of California. No one has ever questioned the industry of the Japanese, though the conditions under which they are willing to work are obnoxious to white men. We do not want them, nor do we need them here to develop or upbuild this commonwealth! This is a white man's state, and will be built up by white men upon an enduring hasis. No other kind of help is required. No temporary development due to Asiatic labor would offset the future harm that would follow this contamination.

For all the reasons here set forth the people of California have demanded an extra session of the Legislature, first, that the state may be protected within certain limits, clearly defined, practicahle and constitutional; and, second, because of the effect of such legislation in the East, where the importance of the issue, not only to California but to the Nation, is not yet understood. Hence the need of a campaign of education. The people of California appreciate that ultimately the final solution must come through Congress, through national legislation, because the problems involved are largely international. But they also understand fully that there is little hope of attaining this until sentiment has been created throughout the nation and Congress thus induced to act.

PUT TEETH IN OUR LAWS.

We need further legislation in California at this time to put a stop to land leasing hy Japanese and the fraudulent acquisition of land hy them through the manipulation of their minor children, and through hogus corporations. These and certain other things can be done, and done legally and constitutionally, at the present time. They would mean a great deal now, for the protection of Cali-

SAN DIEGO, THE BIRTHPLACE OF CALIFORNIA

William Tomkins

(SECRETARY CHAMBER COMMERCE.)

THE OBSERVING TRAVELER, whether he comes from near or far, cannot fail to note the natural beauty, the rarely-favored situation, and the saluhrious conditions surrounding the City of San Diego, California's Gem City of the south. From the earliest times it has appealed to the eye and the imagination, and now that its dreams of growth and prosperity have largely come true, and it is entering upon an era of still greater advancement, it is fitting to review its past achievements and to record its present aspirations.

The opening of the San Diego and Arizona Railway now an accomplished fact, marks the heginning of an era in the history of the city which is destined to have a far-reaching influence not only upon the life and spirit of the city, hut upon the entire Southwest, with its vast resources and interests. Linking the city with the Southern Pacific system at Yuma, it gives a direct transcontinental route to the Atlantic seahoard along a latitude free from winter snowsand storms, and also a shorter route than that of more northern lines.

The marvelous Imperial Valley, right at San Diego's hack door, is having its vast empire of valuahle products opened up hy this new railway, with its logical distrihuting point at San Diego. The Panama Canal, practically shut out of use during the world war, and hefore its great value had been demonstrated, will open up a vast field of trade with the West Indies and the South American repuhlics on the Atlantic coast, giving a direct outlet for San Diego commerce in that direction, while the city has the Pacific coast of Latin America right at its doors. Then there is a large husiness to come from Southern California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. Therefore, it can readily he seen that there will he a need for a hig commercial terminal at this point, with warehouses, docks and switching facilities to handle all this husiness, including the large cotton output of the Imperial Valley as one of the important items. And the cattle industry of Southern California, Arizona and Lower California will require stockyards, packing houses, cold-storage plants, refrigerated ships, etc. The fruit and vegetahle packing industry, also the fish canning interest, will also grow into a resource the magnitude of which is hut just heginning to he realized.

And as a scenic route it will appeal to tourists at all times of the year; running for a large part of the distance between San Diego and the Colorado River through Mexican territory, it will add a novel touch to travel; some of the huge rock mountain formations through which the road winds are of wildly picturesque grandeur, and there are smiling valleys to he seen through vistas of titanic granite clefts which would delight the soul of the artist. The quaint Mexican villages, the primitive agricultural development, soon to he superceded hy more modern conditions with the coming of the railway, will all make an irresistihle appeal to travelers who journey hy the frostless route to the Harbor of the Sun.

From its earliest settlement the strategical as well as the commercial value of San Diego harbor has been recognized, and the United States established a military post here immediately after the conclusion of the treaty of peace after the war with Mexico. Some years later Fort Rosecrans was estahlished on Point Loma and its armament added to from time to time, and the recent four years of world war have brought ahout stupendous operations and developments in the estahlishment of permanent construction hy the Government on San Diego Bay.

San Diego was chosen as the location for the great United States military encampment for the training of 30,000 troops, and Camp Kearny was created on a tract of 10,000 acres adjoining the city. This was the training camp for the men from California, Utah, Arizona, Colorado, Nevada and New Mexico. The eastern section of the heautiful grounds and buildings of the Panama-California-Internation Exposition in Balhoa Park was selected for the estahlishment of the largest naval training station on the Pacific Coast. In other parts of the grounds near hy were established camps of the U. S. Marine Corps and the U. S. Army.

THE HARBOR OF OPPORTUNITY.

SAN DIEGO is the first Pacific American port of call north of the Panama Canal. A natural harhor, land-locked and absolutely free from storms st all seasons of the year. Here Nature hss combined utility and beauty in forming one of the world's greatest harhors, capahle of handling the largest vessels afloat. Ninety percent of the population of the United States is closer to the port of Ssn Diego than to either of the other ports. It lies within 100 miles of the grest circle traversed hy vessels voyaging to and from the Orient. It has natural channel waters deeper and wider than those of Baltimore, Boston or Philadelphia. Compared to any of the world's great ports, it can he proven conclusively that none possess better opportunities for facilitating husiness. The terminus for the southern low-sltitude rsilroads and unexcelled harhor advantsges determine this port to be the trans-canal and transcontinental competitive point.

The city donated 500 acres of tide lands at the northern end of San Diego harhor, and the Government acquired 232 acres additional, and on this comhined tract is now being constructed the largest marine hase on the Pacific Coast.

San Diego is the training port for vessels of the Pacific Fleet, and hecause of its location is regarded as the most important strategic point in the Southwest. On North Island, comprising 1,200 acres, recently acquired by the Government, are located the U. S. Army and the U. S. Navy permanent air stations, where hundreds of aviators are heing trained for service.

The largest naval high power radio station in the United States is located at Chollas Heights, in the eastern suburhs of the city, and another station is on Point Loma. San Diego is the only place in America where two U. S. naval radio stations are located.

At Fort Rosecrans, on Point Loma, which guards the entrance to San Diego harhor, and augmenting the large hatteries of coast defense disappearing guns already there, eight modern mortars have recently been installed at an expense of one million dollars.

At La Playa, near Fort Rosecrans, is the U. S. naval coaling and fuel oil station, with an average capacity of 50,000 tons of coal and 5,000,000 gallons of oil. The Government investment in the development of this unit is $650,000. The U. S. quarantine station adjoins the coaling and fuel oil station and has adequate equipment, including quarters for the personnel, hospital and detention huildings, for crews and passengers when necessarily detained under ohservation for quarantinahle diseases.

At the Marine Corps base six two-company harracks buildings are under construction. The cost of these will he $1,000,000. These will he followed by an industrial group containing a power house, laundry and a hake shop; also a sewer and drainage system, and of roads leading to the barracks from the city center. The total cost of the improvements to he made here hy the Government will be $5,000,000. This estahlishment will accommodate one marine hrigade.

Rockwell Field, the U. S. air service station on North Island, has an area of 775 acres, and is a home station for two squadrons. One is a horder patrol squadron and has an outpost at Calexico with one flight squadron. The permanent improvements at Rockwell Field have cost over a million dollars. There are twelve large hangars for planes, and eight which are utilized for machine shops and other industrial purposes. One hundred and one officers and 381 enlisted men are now stationed here. The total numher of planes is 497 of all types. Ream Field, of 900 acres at Imperial Beach, near the southern end of the hay, has thirteen hangars which are now used for the storage of planes.

The U. S. naval air station occupies 524 acres on North Island and has a water front on the hay of two and one-half miles. Here is a very large assemhlage of buildings, some of them of enormous size, giving the appearance from all directions of a city of some magnitude as North Island is approached from the sea or from the San Diego side of the bay. The permanent construction here has cost up to the present time $1,900,000. Other huildings to the amount of $250,000 are under construction. At present the station will accommodate 800 enlisted men, 40 officers and 110 student officers.

The U. S. naval hospital in Balhoa Park has, hesides the large exposition huildings in use, a series of isolation harracks, galley, storeroom and tend wards. The estahlishment is prepared to handle 550 patients and, with three days' notice, 800 patients. All departments are fully equipped as to apparatus and nurses and attendants. The foregoing, however, is only temporary, the Government having recently accepted a site of fifteen acres on Inspiration Point of Balhoa Park, presented to the Government hy the City of San Diego, on which arrangements are heing made to construct a permanent naval hospital at a cost of upwards of a million dollars. Preparations have alreay heen made and work will commence this spring.

San Diego is the home port and operating base for squadrons four and five of the Pacific Fleet. It is the operating hase for mine and air-craft detachments and 108 torpedo-hoats destroyers, with tenders, tugs and other auxiliary craft. There are continuously in the harhor from fifty to sixty destroyers, which, with auxiliaries, make an imposing naval spectacle.

The Navy Department has recently designated San Diego as a naval hasė and delegated an admiral in charge of same. This will necessitate further extensive development to care for the fleet. Among these is a naval storehouse, which is about to he constructed at a cost of $600,000, which will adjoin the municipal pier at the foot of Broadway.

During the term of the war the Government installed at San Diego a hranch yard of the Emergency Fleet Corporation for the construction of concrete ships. This plant occupies 123 acres on the bay front of the southern portion of the city; $500,000 was expended in preparing the yard for construction work and two concrete ships have been built and will soon be ready for launching. Each ship is a reinforced tanker of 7,500 tons dead weight, with a carrying capacity of 58,000 barrels of oil, is fitted with three water tube boilers of 1,000 horsepower each, or 3,000 horsepower, and each ship is driven by a 2,800 horsepower triple expansion engine. Each vessel is 428 feet long, 54 feet beam, weight at launching 5,600 tons, draft loaded, 27 feet. The reinforcing used in each ship amounts to 1,600 tons and concrete 2,500 cubic yards. There are 14 bulk heads and 36 oil tanks, four of which are for bunker oil and 32 for cargo. The big bronze propellers are 16 feet 9 inches in diameter. The launching of each ship will require but seven seconds and will be made side-wise instead of stern first as is usual with wooden ships. The cost of each vessel is approximately one million dollars.

Owing to San Diego having been established as a naval base, and the majority of the vessels of the Pacific Fleet basing here, a navy yard for the repair of these ships is naturally a necessity, and the Government has recently taken over this concrete ship plant and will convert it into a navy yard. An appropriation has been made to cover the first item of further development, namely $750,000 for the construction of a marine railway to be capable of carrying anything except the capital ships of the navy. With the development that can reasonably be expected during the next few years, this yard should assume an important position in the construction division of the Pacific Fleet on this coast.

AERO VIEW OF SAN DIEGO.

The City of San Diego recently presented to the Government a site of 125 acres on San Diego Bay for the construction of a naval training station, and an appropriation of one million dollars has been made to start work on this station which, when completed, will cost five million dollars and will house five thousand men.

A very notable feature of the city's civic life is the San Diego Museum, an outgrowth of the exposition, and which occupies several of the large buildings of that great enterprise which brought so many permanent and beautiful improvements to Balboa Park. The San Diego Museum Association was organized for the purpose of co-operating with the city in making the benefits of the exposition perpetual. The park, buildings and scientific collections are the permanent possessions of the people, and by developing a great cultural and recreational center, as has been done, the exposition is made a permanently productive investment. The museum has been planned to meet the high standard of the exposition and the park, and to develop with the future growth of the city.

The science of man building contains the famous authropological collections, assembled with the assistance of the Smithsonian Institution, under the direction of the ethnological division of the exposition. It is comprised in five sections, illustrating the evolution of man, pathology, man's variations in racial groups, present developments of man, pathology, the anthropological laboratory. The collections for this exhibit were gathered by expeditions sent out to all parts of the world. It was prepared and installed by the staff of the United States National Museum, and undoubtedly ranks as the most important of its kind in existence.

The Indian arts building comprises the hall of southwestern archaeology, the hall of culture history, the Indian collection of the California coast and island tribes, the Mohave, Pueblo and other Indians of the Southwest. Here are the great groups illustrating by means of lay figures such important steps in the beginning of native American culture as the manufacture of stone implements, the working of ancient soapstone quarries of Catalina Island, the prehistoric obsidian workers of California, the beginnings of sculpture among the ancient Mexicans, primitive copper mining about Lake Superior, and prehistoric iron mining in the Ozark Mountains. This valuable exhibit also embraces collections representing the evolution of stone art from the simplest forms to the highest achievements in the shaping of stone and the manipulations of metal.

The building also contains one of the largest collections of ancient Pueblo and cliff dwelling pottery in existence, and a series of village group models illustrating houses and house-life in the most important culture areas from Greenland and Alaska to Patagonia. There is in the Indian arts building a public hall, a class room and an ethmological laboratory.

The museum is not a mere depository for collections, but an active educational institution. Lecture courses, art exhibitions, concerts, are regular museum activities. By modern methods of circulating lectures, exhibitions, libraries, etc., the museum serves a clientele far beyond the limits of its own neigbborhood, and becomes a great free university for the people.

In the industrial line, San Diego has a wide variety of establishments, some 200 manufactories in all. One of the most interesting is a large sawmill on the bay front, where immense log rafts are to be seen anchored in the bay waiting to be cut up into lumber. These rafts, each containing about five million feet of lumber, are built on the Columbia River in Oregon, where they are launched for their long journey to the bay of San Diego. Full tree lengths are used, and an idea of the magnitude of the rafts may be had from the fact that 150 tons of heavy iron chain are used in the construc-

CONSIDER THE FORESTS, OUR HERITAGE

Arthur W. Ford

OUR HERITAGE—THE FORESTS! What, more than the forests of Califoruia, remind us of our fathers, the Argonauts?

It was in tbe forests that the early miners labored over mountain trails. It was in their dark recesses that ravines with gold-bearing gravel were found. It was in them, on some mountain slope, that quartz outcroppings were discovered. The smoke from the Argonaut's campfire was mingled with the breath of the pines.

The forests are truly our heritage. They come to us as natural resources from which we take our lumber and fuel. They retain rain-water in the hills and mountains, giving it off gradually during the summer months when it is needed for irrigation purposes in the valleys. They furnish us cool retreats to which we turn in the summer for days of recreation. In their streams we find trout that leap to our fly. In their undergrowths we find deer and quail. The odor of our boiling coffee and frying bacon is wafted by the breeze through the tree corridors.

California is noted for its beautiful forest trees. During the summer of 1919 one million people sought recreation among them. But our forests cannot be preserved for recreational purposes alone. Their timber is needed to build the Greater West. The East, which has harvested the most of its forests, is now turning to us for more and more lumber. In the July 1919 number of "The Timberman" the editor writes: "The timber supply of the United States in melting away. We are cutting the present stand faster than it is growing. If we keep up the present rate of lumber production and take no definite steps to insure a future supply of timber, we shall come to the end of our resources much sooner than is generally anticipated."

This short statement sums up the problem, and at the same time hints at the answer. The answer appears to be the adoption of a forest policy for California that will embody "definite steps to insure a future supply of timber." But how can we provide for a future timber supply? How can we continue our forests and at the same time supply the market that must depend more and more on the forests of the Pacific Coast for lumber? Can we eat our cake and have it, too?

The State Board of Forestry, made up of Dr. George C. Pardee (chairman), Solon H. Williams of Yreka, Colouel Ed Fletcher of San Diego and State Forester G. M. Homans, has carefully investigated forestry problems of California and those of the Nation that are related to the problem in this state. They declare the problem is not impossible of solution—that careful consideration of all interests and the adoption and enforcement of wise legislation will make it possible for those people, whose good fortune it is to live in California, to continue throughout the generations to enjoy all the benefits which forested areas afford.

As the first steps toward answering the problem the State Board of Forestry has adopted four definite clauses looking toward a definite forest policy. They follow: First—Appropriatiou by the State Legislature of sufficient funds for the preveution aud suppression of forest, grain and pasture fires outside of National Forests. Second—Acquirement of logged-off areas, both in the redwoods and pine forests, as a nucleus of state forests for future timber supply. Third—Acquirement of watersbeds necessary for the conservation of water for domestic and irrigation purposes. Fourth—Renewal of forests on logged-off areas and watersheds in need of reforestatiou.

There is no cause for hysteria, but the moment has arrived wheu it is the patriotic duty of every citizen of this state, and especially the duty of those to whom the forests have come as a heritage, to see that wise action is taken concerning them by our Legislature. The question will arise: "How do we know the time for action has arrived? Is the timber supply of the United States actually melting away? What are other states doing? What is the attitude of the Federal Government?"

Figures will best auswer these questions. The forests of the United States are disappearing at the rate of forty billion feet board measure per annum in excess of what is grown. A point has been reached when the exhaustion of the forests is in sight. We are now using our timber three times as fast as it is being grown. At the present rate of cutting the timber resources of the United States will last seventy-five years. It is certain the demand for lumber will increase, causing increased cutting operations. This indicates that children in the kindergartens today must look to logged-off areas for forest products for their convenience and necessity. With the problem one that will actually inconvenience our own children aud no longer one that deals with remote future it is apparent that the time for action has arrived.

Is the timber supply of the United States actually melting away? This year will witness the cutting, through the exhaustion of tbeir forests, of the last log in two mills of the Lake states that have a combined cut of one hundred million feet per annum. The total reduction of production in 1920 through the depletion of the forests of the Lake states alone will be approximately four hundred and fifty million feet. The Southern Pine Association, operating in the Southern states, estimates that 99 percent of its mills will cut out their supplies in fifteen years, and that 3,000 mills in these states will junk their machinery within five years. Already the Eastern states are turning to the Pacific Coast for timber supplies. Michigan, whose forests were once thought inexhaustible, is importing sugar pine from California. New England comes to the Pacific Coast for its Douglas fir.

Not long ago the head of the largest lumbermen's organization in the Southern states, while talking to the West Coast lumbermen, said: "You will be here long after the rest of us have junked our mills and have gone, but you will not be here forever. Just a short time ago from St. Louis to Maine was one vast forest. The forests of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota were regarded as inexhaustible, yet today all that country is producing only a straggling little bit of timber. In the South today we have only a fringe of forest, here and there a little. All the world substantially has got to be supplied from the Pacific Coast in a little while." Apparently the question, "Is the timber supply of the United States actually melting away?" is answered.

What are other states doing? Pennsylvania, New York, Minnesota and Michigan have taken the most forward steps and have established state forests where reforestation work is in progress. These state forests are given fire protection so that Nature can proceed with the work of reforestation. Areas that need replanting are replanted. Insects and fungi that kill trees or prevent their natural growth are combatted.

What is the attitude of the Federal Government? National Forester Henry S. Graves, in a recent address before the New England Forestry Conference at Boston, declared: "The experience of the war called sharp attention to the condition of our remaining timber supplies. The bulk of the material for general construction was obtained from a few large centers of original forests, often involving long rail hauls and high cost. Extreme difficulties were encountered in obtaining promptly an adequate supply of specialized products, like some of the high-grade hardwoods. If the emergency had come fifteen years from now we would have had very great embarrassment in obtaining even the lumber needed for general construction, except at great sacrifice in time, cost, and crowding of the railroads. Most of the lumber would have come from the Pacific Coast. We may not expect a repetition of such a grave emergency as we have just passed through, but we would be unwise indeed if we failed to recognize that the sources of timber supply on which we have relied are being greatly depleted, with far-reaching economic and industrial consequences. . . .

"We have been discussing these problems for many years, but we have made little progress in securing the right handling of private lands. The need of the general public to have the forest lands of the country productive and the need of wood-cousuming industries alike call for the initiation of a broad program of forestry that includes private as well as public forests. . . . I urge that those interested in the forest problem join in bringing about some definite and conclusive action."

It will be seen that the State Board of Forestry of California is backed up in its forest policy by the head of the National Forests. But why, if the exhaustion of the forests of the United States is in sight, and if in fact a remedy is at hand, is time allowed to elapse before applying the remedy?

Before the State Board of Forestry can hope to secure the necessary legislative actiou to put into practice its forest policy it will be necessary for the public voice to demand its consideration. It must have public support. But there is danger of waiting too long. There is danger of delaying until the emergency actually exists and the shoc of necessity begins to pinch.

The policy adopted by the State Board of Forestry is most conservative. It does not seek the acquirement of areas not yet logged, but merely the acquirement of logged-off areas so that they may be given the protection necessary to make them again timber producers. Board members estimate that $150,000 is necessary to install a fire-protection system that will even partially protect the forests, pasture and grain lands that are outside of National Forests. Fires in the hay and grain areas of the state destroyed foodstuffs worth nearly twice this amount during 1919 alone.

Everybody in tbe southern part of California knows the value of watersheds in providing continued water supply during summer months and in preventing floods during seasons of storm. They know the necessity of protecting these areas from fire.

On summer vacation trips into the mountains may be seen vast logged-off areas where nothing is being done to aid reforestation and where "slash" from logging operations lies like tinder awaiting but a spark to cause a holocaust.

"Immediate action must be taken in California," declares Dr. George C. Pardee, chairman of the State Board of Forestry, "if this state is to profit by the mistakes of states and nations that allowed their forests to be devastated without providing for future forests. Vast logged-off, fire-swept forest areas will not attract tourists, support sawmills and thriving communities, nor provide lumber for future generations."

Our heritage—the forests—call to us for consideration. What will we do? What can we do? Careful, painstaking consideration of forestry problems should be had. The proposed four clauses of a forest policy should be studied and, if warranting support, tbe State Board of Forestry should be given concrete evidence of this support in the nature of endorsements from the various Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters. We have undertaken to guard the heritages found in the Golden West. Let us, then, consider our forests!

FIFTY YEARS AGO IN CALIFORNIA

A RESUME OF INTERESTING HAPPENINGS IN APRIL, 1870

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

APRIL 2, 1870, AT 11:48 A. M., A shock of earthquake sent a thrill of danger through the minds of San Francisco's populace and caused a precipitate rush for the streets of all those indoors. Beyond the breaking of much glass, no damage of consequence occurred. The shock was felt in adjacent counties, too. The quake was followed hy a heavy rain, and some connection was thought to he shown in the storm so quickly following the shock.

April 11, a severe thunder and lightning storm, with hail, passed over the state. Several inches of hail fell in the Sacramento Valley. The storm was followed by a cold spell, and the frost did much damage to fruits and flowers. The balance of the month was warm and pleasant.

Odd Fellows in different parts of the state inaugurated the picnic season by celebrating the anniversary of that fraternity's institution April 26. The picnic in Marin County was attended by over 8,000 people from San Francisco.

April 30 a picnic at Woodland, Yolo County, was attended hy over 3,000 schoolchildren, who came by excursion trains from Sacramento, Marysville, and Yolo County towns. A parade from the town to the picnic grounds was marshaled by W. A. Henry, and Miss Mary Prather was crowned queen of the May.

A. Booth, the Chicago oyster shipper, came to Sacramento to secure a refrigerator carload of Sacramento River salmon for consignment to London. Several salmon of a former shipment had been sent to England, and sold at a good profit. He secured 900 fish of good size and started the shipment East April 12.

I. S. Platt, a fruit merchant of Chicago, came to California to arrange for fruit shipments by rail during the summer to Chicago.

Ten tons of strawberries from Santa Clara County were received in San Francisco April 30. They were sold at 15 and 20 cents a pound.

Oranges by the shipload were coming to San Francisco from Tahiti, and forcing the Los Angeles crop off the market.

Blossom Rock, an obstruction in San Francisco Bay between the shore and Alcatraz Island, was blown to pieces the afternoon of April 23. Thousands of people gathered on Telegraph Hill to observe the work of General Von Schmidt and the government engineer, who had honeycombed the rock and placed in the holes 43,000 pounds of black powder, in forty water-proof barrels, to he fired hy electricity.

Legislature Adjourns After 120-Day Session.

The blast was fired at 2 p. m., and a column of water over 400 feet in diameter shot upward more than a hundred feet, followed by a shower of stones from the shattered rock. The work of the engineers was a complete success, as a depth of thirty-four feet at low tide was left by the blast. A large number of men in boats awaited, along the bay shore, the explosion, expecting to reap a harvest of dead fish killed by the blast, but they were bitterly disappointed, for very few fish were killed and nearly all of them were of small size.

Samuel Brannan was preparing an extensive tea plantation near Calistoga, Napa County, and received from the Orient 300,000 tea plants in vigorous condition to be set out this month.

Forty immigrant families from Mississippi arrived in Monterey County and were looking for land upon which to settle and engage in farming.

Governor E. S. Soloman of Wisconsin came to the state with a party of Germans to look for land upon which to settle a German colony.

James W. Marshall, the discover of gold at Coloma, El Dorado County, essayed to deliver lectures upon his discovery and life experiences and made his first effort at Grass Valley, Nevada County, the evening of April 17. His lecture was stated to be a very interesting discourse.

John F. Swift was delivering a lecture on Pompeii, which he had visited, and as the buried city was being uncovered of its mantle of ashes the discoveries being made were attracting popular attention.

State Senator George C. Perkins of Butte County, then a merchant at Oroville and afterwards governor and United States Senator of California, started April 20 to visit his old home in Maine, after an absence of eighteen years. The whole town of Oroville joined in giving him a hearty send-off the day of his departure.

The Legislature adjourned sine die after 11 p. m., April 4, terminating a 120-day session. According to the Republican press it passed away unlamented, the evil it did outhalaueing the good, as is the usual summary. It is remarkable how many disasters of this kind the state has undergone and yet prospered.

The Senate presented Lt. Governor Wm. Holden an expensive silver set, and Senator E. J. Lewis, president protem, a beautiful gold watch and chain. The Assembly presented Speaker Geo. H. Rogers a magnificent seven-piece set of silver costing $1,000. Several members were "caned" by their friends, and the members parted from each other with friendly feelings.

Chinese Feed the Dead.

Senator Wm. Burnett of Sonoma, on reaching his home at Petaluma, suddenly died April 6. He was a very popular citizen and a largely-attended funeral procession followed his remains to the grave.

The ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, giving negroes the suffrage, being made by a sufficient number of states to make it the law of the Nation, the colored citizens fired salutes in many of the towns of the state April 5. Several thousand of them were registered hy the different county clerks as voters during the month, and many were in the seventh heaven of delight when exercising the privilege.

The Oriental circus opened its annual tour of the state at Sacramento April 20. It had Charles Fish, the American bareback rider, and Charley Parker, the clown of "Whoa January" fame, as its principal attractions. Charley Parker, in an act depicting an intoxicated man on stilts, was a riot of fun.

Camilla Urso, with a concert-giving troupe, was touring the state.

The Chinese residents of San Francisco after elaborate preparations proceeded during the first week of the month to feed their dead in the Chinese cemetery near Lone Mountain. Over 100 express wagons were required to take the roasted pigs, surrounded with lighted red-painted candles and bowls of edibles, from Chinatown to the graveyard. Hundreds of hacks whose drivers reaped a coin harvest, were for several days employed galloping to and from the banquet of the dead with the living Celestials who were attending to the details of the spiritual feast.

Throughout the state the ceremonial was carried out by the Chinese residents. At Jackson, Amador County, after the Chinamen had conveyed the roast pig and edibles to the cemetery, performed their rites and left the dead to partake (?) of the feast, the Digger Indians swooped down and carried off to their rancheria the pork and rice and, with keen appetites, soon left nothing but bones for the Celestial spirits to dine upon.

There was a big break in the prices of mining stock on California street, San Francisco, during the month, and Comstock Lode shares caused much financial tribulation. Gould & Curry dropped from $400 to $140 a share, and others in proportion. California street was crowded with financially-singed mining stock investors, and the month closed with gloom and distrust of the future for them.

Fire in Amador County Mine.

Ryan & Co., at Scott's Bar, Siskiyou County, struck a rich deposit of decomposed quartz and took out $6,000 in two days, with more in sight.

A rich decomposed ledge of granite and quartz was discovered north of Placerville, El Dorado County, and caused a mining excitement there. It was traced for four miles, and a score or more of rich strikes were made by some of the many locators on the ledge. L. G. Fisk took out of a hole about eight feet deep over $3,000 in a day. Over 500 locations were made on the ledge April 16 and El Dorado County was as lively as a disturbed ant-hill.

A Mexican miner near Omega, Navada County, ground sluiced from a gravel bank a nugget weighing fourteen ounces and worth $250.

C. F. Eaton, at a depth of 100 feet in the St. Patrick mine, a few miles from Auburn, Placer County, struck a vein of quartz that was yielding $1,000 a ton.

The first bar of tin produced in California was presented to the Society of California Pioneers in San Francisco April 12. It came from San Bernardino County.

A prospector named Flynn came into Los Angeles this month with specimens of tin ore, claiming he had located a twenty-five-foot ledge in San Bernardino County, and created some excitement, as the ore specimens he had assayed 22% tin.

A schooner, "Maid of the Mill," loaded with lime and lumber for San Diego, caught on fire in San Francisco Bay, opposite the Presidio, April 3. It burned all night, giving the citizens a fine sight of a vessel burning at sea.

A fire broke out April 11 on the 800-foot level of the Hayward mine at Sutter Creek, Amador County. Fortunately, all the miners escaped. The fire burned for several days before it was put out. The stock was selling at $380 a share; when the fire broke out it dropped to $200.

The clothing store of S. Jacobs, in Georgetown, El Dorado County, was burned April 26 with a $7,000 loss.

Charles Bradley, living at First and Bryant street, San Francisco, April 24, in attempting to solder a leaky pipe in an oil stove, caused a can of naphtha to explode. His house was destroyed, his one-year-old baby boy burned to death, and himself and wife seriously burned by the flames.

At Georgetown, El Dorado County, April 22, two miners named M. W. Collins and Wm. Brooks were killed by the premature explosion of a blast.

Charles Williams, a popular young man of San Francisco, April 25 was one of a party of about forty women and men on an excursion on San Francisco Bay. He was struck by the main boom of the boat, knocked overboard and drowned.

A. E. Pierce, a settler in Sutter County about ten miles south of Yuba City, was found burned to death in his destroyed cabin the night of April 19. Subsequently a bullet wound, found in his skull, caused three brothers, named Ross, to be arrested on suspicion of causing his death, as there had been a dispute over land boundaries between them and the deceased.

Stage Robbers Make Hauls.

George Vela, a lad 11 years old living near Jackson, Amador County, April 29 with several playmates climbed into a tree. A limb broke, causing him to fall to the ground and sustain fatal injuries.

Mrs. Lathrop, the mother-in-law of Governor Leland Stanford, president of the Central Pacific railroad, in getting off a train in Alameda County fell and broke her arm.

George Griffin, a section foreman near Galt, Sacramento County, April 7 fell from and was run over by a hand-car, receiving serious injuries.

Wm. Lemmons, a stage driver operating in Monterey County between Castroville and Watsonville, April 21 died from heart disease while holding the lines. A passenger by his side fortunately took control before the horses could get away.

An old miner, in hard luck from sickness and poor diggings, appeared at a Sacramento bank with the torn leaves and remnants of an old bank-deposit book. He stated that in December, 1850, just before sailing from New York for California, he made a deposit of $500 in a bank, the name of which he had forgotten. After much effort a word supposed to be part of the name of the bank was deciphered, and with this clue a search for the New York bank was made and found. The record showed the statement of the old miner was correct. The deposit, with the addition of semi-annual interest payments, had increased to $1,445.72, which was a god-send to the unlucky prospector.

The afternoon of April 4 three lads about 12 years of age entered the "Alta" newspaper office on Commercial street, San Francisco, and carried a large stove to the sidewalk. They then hired an expressman to haul it to a second-hand store, and while engaged in selling it were arrested. It was the boldest larceny ever committed in the Bay City.

A man named Krauss stole from a stable in Sacramento the well-known trotting stallion "John Conness" with a sulky and drove to Alameda County, where he was arrested April 5. Handcuffed and leg-ironed, an officer started on the train with him for Sacramento. A few miles east of Stockton he jumped off the train while it was running over thirty miles an hour and disappeared in the brush.

Two highwaymen, at 4 a. m., April 5, stopped the stage enroute from Murphys, Calaveras County, to Stockton and, taking the express box, secured $2,400 for their risky work.

The stage from Fiddletown, Amador County, for Ione City April 9 was stopped four miles from the latter place by two highwaymen, disguised in masks and nightgowns, who took the express box, containing about $2,500, and $15 from a passenger and then disappeared in the greasewood brush nearby. They were captured by four citizens of Mud Springs in their camp in a chaparral thicket about a mile from the place of the holdup two days later and the booty recovered. They were two young Germans, new to the highway robbery business, and promptly confessed. Their captors secured a reward of $1,000 from the express company.

SPRING AND AUTUMN IN DOUBLE ROMANCE

Mabel Pain

R. SILKY MANSE, JUNIOR, OR, IN other words, Bobs, instituted a new regime at the Lucky Dog mine, and old Silky "fell" for all he undertook. Machinery, real machinery, was put in, and the hole worked in dead earnest. And then, about the middle of the summer, it began to yield. Silky's wildest dreams had never gone to such lengths as the reality. Gold poured into his lap, and he and Bobs were rich men.

It didn't take Silky very long to decide just what he wanted to do, and just where he wanted to go. A trip to the East, with Linden as its goal; and, romantic thought, Bobs must go along to make good in Silky's place, should he be needed. But there was an extremely weighty question to be settled—whether or no to let Bobs know the truth. It would be too horribly an embarrassing situation to explain. What an old fool Bobs would think him. But then, when they arrived and Miss Cynthia met her young hero face to face, how terrible it might be for her. Really, he couldn't have her casting herself before a possible young indifferent.

So Silky fully made up his mind to make a clean breast of the whole affair. He would wait, however, he thought, until they were once fairly on the train. In the midst of a long journey, Bobs might be interested in something as romantic as Silky's confession.

They bought tickets for Boston, where Bobs' father—Silky's brother—lived. From there the journey to Linden would be nothing. Once on the train, where, somehow, Silky realized more potently his maturer years, he couldn't screw up courage to tell the true state of affairs to Bobs. It was many, many years since he had taken a journey, and the wonder of it all held him almost spellbound. He almost forget his object in taking this wonderful trip.

Once in Boston, his attention was more diverted. Moreover, in that rushing, matter-of-fact life it seemed harder than ever to make a confession of so sentimental a type—much harder than in the Pleasant Valley woods, which abounded in romance. So Silky put off the evil day.

He wrote a very polite little note to Miss Cynthia, however, asking the opportunity to see her on July 6th, and then waited in dread her answer.

A very satisfactory answer set Silky again to thinking about the Bobs question and his part in it. He mentioned, in a rather off-hand way to Bobs, a proposed trip to Linden on the 6th, to which his nephew appeared perfectly agreeable, also in an off-hand way. And then Silky began to worry. What could he say? The whole thing might end in—well, he hated to think of it. He looked at his wrinkled, rugged old face and shook his head. And Bobs—could he depend on him?

On the Fourth of July a party of young people suddenly took off Bobs to the mountains for two days. "Now, my last chance is gone," moaned Silky, as he watched his nephew depart, without any expectation of seeing him till the morning of the 6th.

On that memorable morning Silky dressed with great care, and met Bobs at the depot. Bobs vibrated with suppressed excitement. Silky was a bit flustered himself, and watched his nephew with mixed apprehension and surprise. They stepped into the long train and sank down into the fat velvet seat.

"Unc," began Bobs at once, "are you a clairvoyant? How did you know enough to arrange this trip for me?"

The old man, who, at that moment, had plucked up courage to confess all to Bobs, started at his question. But Bobs, not noticing the changing colors in his uncle's face, went on enthusiastically: "Gee, she's some girl! But, Unc, how did Miss Cynthia Roe of Linden ever come to hear of me, Silky Manse, Junior, of Pleasant Valley? Gee, it's all a mystery to me! I told her my uncle was going to take me to Linden on the 6th. She knew all about that, too. I said it was you she was expecting, but she said no, they were expecting a young man answering my description. Gee, it's queer! Some put-up job you have on me."

Old Silky's heart almost stopped beating. What was Fate doing for him now, anyway? "Sure, we're going to see her, Bobs. What kind of a looking girl is she?" inquired Silky, Senior. Forthwith Bobs plunged into a description of the girl of his uncle's dreams.

And Miss Cynthia, all this time, was doing some worrying on her own account. To learn that Silky was coming to Linden was a terrible blow to her. The romance was shattered and, worse still, she herself was in danger of appearing very ridiculous in the eyes of her young hero, whom she always pictured as many miles away. What did an old lady like her want to meddle in romance for, anyhow? It was fit retribution! Her forebears were Puritans, and she had crept through the cast-iron net of their prejudices just the least bit in writing those letters. Now stern Fate stepped in, in the shape of a young laughing hero! Laughing? Yes, that was just where the rub came. Little glistening beads of perspiration stood out on her brow. She had attained the unattainable, and now she was going to lose that dream in doing so.

Her heart beat wildly as she read the request from Silky Manse of Boston to call upon her at Linden. She must get away somehow. He must never come there. Some story must be invented to keep him away. Here she was, again meshed in a network of lies. She wrung her hands, and proceeded to write her answer.

So Miss Cynthia sat down and hastily penned a brief little letter, to the effect that they would be out of town for a few months and so it would be impossible for them to entertain Mr. Manse, which was regrettable, as he had come so far. She was so anxious to meet Mr. Manse, as he well knew. She cried a little over this letter, and left it open on her table as she was called to the phone. "Billy" had been watching her aunt with curious eyes and now, creeping quietly to the table, read the little note to Mr. Silky Manse.

"It shall never go to him!" muttered "Billy" to herself. "It shall never go. I shall try an experiment, and if I get found out I don't care."

She sat down with her aunt's pen and, imitating her handwriting, wrote a second note, inviting Mr. Manse to have dinner with them on the sixth. Then, folding it exactly as Miss Cynthia had folded hers, she hid the former in her bosom and awaited anxiously her aunt's return. Miss Cynthia came back hurriedly, scarcely glanced at the note, slipped it in its envelope, stamped it, and took it with her to be mailed.

Two days later "Billy" went into the mountains. Among the several very attractive-looking young men gathered there for a few days' merry-making, one especially impressed himself upon her notice. Tall and dark, romantic and merry, Mr. Manse, Junior, made inroads upon many a feminine heart. He asked almost immediately to meet "Billy."

"Miss Cynthia Roe, Mr. Silky Manse," they were introduced. "Billy's" formal name sounded strangely in her own ears, while that of Silky Manse bewildered her. Here was the friend of Aunt Cynthia's letters. Could it be possible? "Billy" acknowledged his greeting vaguely.

"Where do you come from?" she asked abruptly. "I come from Pleasant Valley, California," smiled Bobs. "Don't you think it sounds nice? I wish you could see those great swaying pines, and I wish you could just feel that velvety sunshine which casts a glamour over the whole place. You'd"—

Bobs stopped short and eyed his pretty little companion appreciatively. "Billy" was distinctly interested. But she didn't quite like to ask him about Aunt Cynthia yet.

"Do you know anyone here?" she finally asked. "Not a soul, except you," replied Bobs. "No, I mean from before," she responded.

But Bobs seemed perfectly innocent of any previous acquaintance in the neighborhood. So "Billy" let her curiosity remain unsatisfied for awhile and turned her attention to the task of getting acquainted with Bobs. It was no hard task. At the end of the two days their friendship had reached a critical stage, and Bobs was to go home.

"We shall meet once again, Bobs," "Billy" had whispered as he pressed her hand in farewell. "Once at Linden. And then you must fly back, I suppose, to that Pleasant Valley in the California mountains."

Bobs didn't answer at once; he had other thoughts and "Billy" was a part of them. "Yes, but Linden first," was finally his reply.

In this meeting at her house in Linden on the 6th of July, Miss Cynthia was the only unconscious participant. She rose early that day, as usual, put on her ordinary spotless apparel, and went to her factory five minutes before the whistle blew. "Billy" had the house to herself, and she set about cleaning and adorning it and cooking the noon meal, preparatory to receiving Mr. Silky Manse of Pleasant Valley, and it seemed an endless time to wait from then on. The door-bell rang often. First came the Sunday-school superintendent; how "Billy" feared he would stay. Then came the meat for Miss Cynthia's cat; the meat-man was very talkative and "Billy" had to invent some burned bread in the oven to get away from him.

Then "Billy's" dinner got a contrary streak. She was stirring a pudding, which had boiled over, when she was suddenly confronted by an old weather-beaten man. She dropped the spoon and gasped. "Your pardon, miss, but I'm afraid I got in the wrong door. Is this Miss Cynthia Roe? I am Mr. Silky Manse of Pleasant Valley."

Silky's words were spoken breathlessly. He had been running at full speed, and now he had hutted in through the back door. He gritted his teeth painfully, advanced slowly to the young girl, and, fairly hissing the words, said: "Don't mention the letters we wrote. It is Bobs that loves you, and we will let him know nothing about them. You are such a child"—

A step sounded on the stair outside. "Billy" turned. "Let me introduce Mr. Silky Manse to you, auntie. This is my aunt, Miss Cynthia Roe. And," she added roguishly, "this is the lady to whom you have been writing." For "Billy" had finally grasped the situation which had puzzled her for so long.

It was as they were nearing Linden, in the midst of Bobs' enthusiasms over little Cynthia Roe, that Silky had formed a desperate plan. He must, somehow, get there first. Bobs must not know of these letters to him. He must release her from all responsibility in them, and give her to Bobs unconditionally. His generous old heart throbbed with excitement, and he stopped listening to the words of the boy. He heard only the steady beat of the engine, bringing them nearer and nearer to Linden.

Finally the thud slowed. Silky leaned over to his nephew, desperately. "Take this pattern for me to the Linden Foundry and have another made just like it. Then come on to No. 5, Elm row. I shall be there. You come on afterwards."

Without waiting for a reply from the astonished Bobs, Silky leaped for the platform and fairly ran to No. 5, Elm row. How he happened to get in the back way, he never knew. At any rate, there he was, face to face with the babyish heroine of his dreams. And, much more fitting, she was the heroine of Bobs' dreams. Bobs could have her—he must have her. That was Silky's only thought. Regret played no part in it. He must hasten the explanation, and bring about the required result.

And then, in stepped the dainty, white-haired little lady. The young heroine had turned, a roguish smile alight on her features, as she said, "Miss Cynthia Roe, Mr. Silky Manse—and this is the lady you have been writing to."

A sort of whirl followed. Youth and frivolity had blown out, answering some sort of ring. The door closed. Silky made a low bow to the little lady. She stepped forward timidly, and then laid a hand on his shoulder. There was nothing else for Silky to do but to take her in his arms.

Thus Bobs and "Billy" found them, some time later, and "Billy" declares to this day that it was Uncle Silky and Aunt Cynthia that first put romantic notions in their heads.

At any rate, not long after, two Roes and two Manses traveled out to Pleasant Valley together, making a double romance. You never can tell how correspondence will end!

Thoughtful and tender,
Always eager to do.
He who has met the struggles of life,
Fought them and conquered
Without bitter strife.
He who has been a man among men,
A splendid comrade,
A trusty friend.
He who has felt the goodness of God,
His loving help

HISTORY WORK BEARING CREDITABLE FRUIT

William J. Hayes

(CHMN. GRAND PARLOR, N.S.G.W., HISTORY COMMITTEE.)

THE NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN West should feel that their maintenance of Fellowships in California History has been an important element in promoting historical research at the University of California. The means supplied by their generosity has formed the mainstay of this research; the work done by these Fellows has been the nucleus about which has grown the greater part of our advanced work in history during the past ten years. The cumulative effect of a steady policy of encouragement to historical study on broad lines is beginning to bear creditable fruit. For this support the Department of History is deeply thankful to the Native Sons."

The above statement made by Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, head of the Department of History at the University of California, indicates the value of the Native Sons' History Fellowships and the appreciation which the Order has won on account of this splendid work, which will stand forever as a living and growing movement to the public-spiritedness and farsightedness of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West. The accomplishments of the past year can best be told by summarizing the work of those holding the fellowships at this time:

MISS DORIS BEPLER, first woman holder of the Native Sons' Fellowship, has been working during the past year on the compilation of a detailed and comprehensive catalog of materials relating to California history contained in early California magazines. In the early days a number of notable magazines were established in California, some of which went out of existence, and most of which have been overlooked by makers of indexes of periodical literature, such as "Poole's Index." The result is, that a great deal of very interesting and some times very important matter bearing on the history of California has been lost sight of.

Miss Bepler has assembled the files of all of the early periodical publications, not including weeklies, has systematically gone through every number of each publication, and listed on a card every item of any importance bearing upon the early history of the Pacific Slope, and particularly of California. She has carried her lists to the end of the nineteenth century, that being a convenient stopping place. As a result she has listed 6,000 titles and, when published, they will form a large volume of references to materials on the early history of California which hitherto have been unknown or unavailable to workers.

As an introduction to her publication, she has written a general essay on early California periodicals, telling of the circumstances of their foundation, their pioneer difficulties, why some of them went out of existence, their notable contributions, etc. In addition she has written a special introduction for each one of the magazines, stating more specifically its character, the nature of its contents, and other matters of importance to historical workers. Miss Bepler's volume will be a notable one, and a fit companion to Dr. Charles E. Chapman's "Guide to Materials for California History in the Archives of the Indies," a book written by another Native Sons' Fellow. It might be noted, too, that Miss Bepler's work has been directed mainly by Dr. Chapman. This shows how Native Sons' Fellows are now occupying important professional positions and are directing the work of a younger generation of Native Sons' Fellows. The work is continuous and cumulative.

J. J. HILL, Native Sons' Fellow, has devoted himself during the past year to the study of southern overland trails from the Middle West to California. This work has involved a study of the pre-American activities in the opening of southern trails from Sonora and Arizona into the Great Basin and into California as a preliminary step in making the way known. In the course of this preliminary study, Mr. Hill has brought to light some unknown documents and has brought together a great many documents and episodes dealing with both Spanish and Mexican activities leading toward the establishing of connection between the Old Southwest and California. On that basis, Mr. Hill has taken up the American movement into the Southwest from the old centers at St. Louis, Natchitoches, and San Antonio, and has made a systematic study of the coming of the succession of American pioneers, the trapper, the mule-driver and horse-driver, the official explorer and the settler, carrying the study down to the coming of the gold seekers of the days of '49 and thereafter.

Mr. Hill's most notable contribution, probably, aside from the establishment of the fact that there was always communication between Sonora and

WILLIAM J. HAYES,
Grand Trustee, N.S.G.W.

California, with very little interruption, in the Spanish and Mexican days, is in the direction of the development of trails from Santa Fe by way of the Utah basin, and then to the Southwest by way of the Mojave Indian settlements, over the Sierras to Los Angeles and San Diego. A notable document bearing on this aspect of the subject has been discovered by Mr. Hill in an overlooked French publication, the document being a French translation of a Spanish diary of an expedition from New Mexico to California in 1829. In other words, Mr. Hill will bring together, for the first time, a connected story of the continuous movement into the Southwest and California by Spanish, Mexican, and American Pioneers.

LLOYD MECHAM is at work on the approaches to the Pacific Coast by way of the great central plateau. Dr. Chapman, in his "Founding of Spanish California," worked out the approaches by way of the Sonora-Arizona route and by water. At the same time that the movement up the coast was under way, and especially in the later sixteenth century after the coast route was cut off by hostile Indians using poisoned arrows, and in consequence of the opening of the rich mines of southern Chihuahua, a movement toward California by way of the central plateau began. It was accelerated by dangers of foreign intrusion in the upper Pacific coast, made manifest to Spain by the buccaneering expeditions of Drake and Cavendish on the west coast, and by the fear that other Englishmen, or Frenchmen, of Dutchmen, would find the fabled "Strait of Anian" leading through the continent by way of Chesapeake Bay, or perhaps by way of the St. Lawrence River, and that Spain would thus be crowded from her claim of exclusive right to the California coast. At the end of the sixteenth century this movement up the central plateau toward California took the form of an expedition to occupy the Pueblo Indian region of New Mexico, and with the idea of pushing thence westward to California to protect the coast. This movement was directed by the adelantado Don Juan de Onate and culminates, so far as Onate is concerned, in his famous expedition to California in 1602. This expedition had much to do with the return to the ancient notion that California was an island, an idea which was not completely exploded in European circles till the opening of the nineteenth century.

During his summer vacation, 1918-19, Mr. Mecham spent several months working in the British Museum, where he found very important materials concerning early California hitherto unknown, amongst them a large number of letters written by Father Serra, letters which had never been used or even known of by historians. Transcripts of these precious documents will be gathered by the University of California and added to its stock of documentary materials available for use in the study of this vital period.

Mr. Mecham's study of the approaches to California by way of the central plateau illustrates the fact, which is becoming more and more patent every day, that California history cannot be isolated from the general history of the continent. The study will serve as an excellent background for that being made by Mr. Hill on the southern American trails into California, because the work of the early Spanish period by way of the central plateau was the basis on which the later comers built.

ROLAND VANDEGRIFT is engaged in a study of the methods employed by Spain in carrying out her various measures for defense of her colonial realm in the New World. This is a work in which he will bring out the interplay of international relations and the diplomacy, secrecy, and all other methods utilized by Spain from the time of the first papal bull down to the close of the colonial period. He undertakes a discussion of the naval and maritime policies adopted for maintenance of commercial and maritime supremacy over the New World. He makes a study of the extension of territorial holdings in North and South America, the lengthening of military lines of defense on land as the basis of safeguarding the valuable interior territories held by Spanish colonies. His study is in fact a study of the general diplomatic relations of Spain with European nations in her attempt to maintain her policies of exclusion in the New World throughout the colonial epoch.

Mr. Vandegrift is making special use of early and neglected documents in this study, reinforcing his treatment by the general use of many of the manuscripts which have been brought from Spain by previous Native Sons' Fellows, which have not been utilized with this particular aim in view.

A special feature of this thesis is the fact that it will make manifest the importance of the occupation of California and the Pacific Coast as one of the chief movements for the attempted control of the northern continent by Spain, demonstrating the fact that the occupation of California has an important bearing on the development of American history. The culminating movement of that system of defense was the establishment of the presidios in California incident to the international contest with Russia.

This sketch of the work which has been done by the Native Sons' Fellows at the University of California during the past year indicates that the results of their labors will be, in all, of inestimable value in the scheme of developing California and Pacific Coast history. It shows also that since the first establishment of Native Sons' Fellowships there has been a continuous policy in the work of investigation and gathering of material by all the Native Sons' Fellows, their work on different topics being directed toward the formation of the complete whole.

The History Department of the University of California has nominated the following Fellows for next year, which nominations will be subject to confirmation by the History Committee at its next meeting: Ralph E. Kuykendall for traveling fellowship; Lloyd Mecham and Rolland Vandegrift for resident fellowships.

HISTORICAL SURVEY COMMISSION.

Quite as much a child of the Native Sons of the Golden West as the Fellowships in Pacific Coast History is the California Historical Survey Commission, and its work is likewise a visible monument to the foresight and the generosity of the Order.

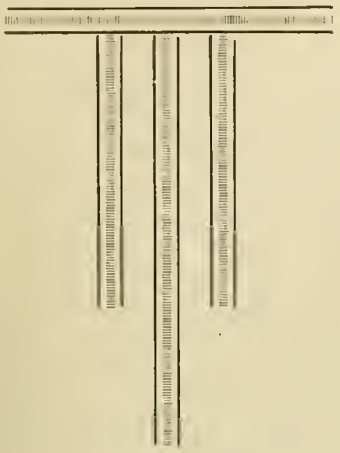

The work of the Commission has already produced highly substantial results. The most notable of these is the "Guide to the County Archives of California," by Dr. Owen C. Coy, Secretary and Archivist of the Commission, a work which will undoubtedly set the standard for similar work for other state historical commissions. The report contains an excellent treatise on the care and use of archives, a remarkable set of colored maps showing the historical development of the county boundaries, and a systematic and highly useful list of the contents of the archives of each county. It is to be hoped that the publication of Dr. Coy's guide will lead to the encouragement of archive legislation for the state, looking to the better management, preserveration and care of our precious historical records. Such legislation might be taken up as another matter of care by the Order in the future.

The Historical Survey Commission is doing other work of great importance for the state. Amongst these other activities none is more interesting than the study of the history of the building of the missions. This work is already well under way and the Commission has practically ready for publication the architectural history of four of the missions. This work has been done chiefly by Mrs. James Perrin Smith of Palo Alto, who was selected by the Commission because of her known competence resulting from many years of study of the missions. The work on these four missions will form a large and highly interesting volume, and will be of vital importance in the restoration of the missions.

KENT FOR SENATOR

"Kent of California" is a name that stands for something in Washington. Eight years of service in Congress and as Tariff Commissioner have stenciled it with meaning.

Courage, independence, devotion to the welfare of the plain citizen who works with his hand or brain; insistence on equality of opportunity and the square deal.

Above all, hard work and knowledge of the facts—knowledge gathered not only as politician and student, but as practical farmer, cattle grower, and business man.

Wealth devoted unselfishly to the public welfare. Zeal to wipe out injustice and special privilege; equal anxiety to preserve the sturdy self-reliance and the neighborly good-will of the America that he loves.

A rare combination of constructive idealism, hard common sense, hatred alike of buncombe and injustice, courage to oppose even his friends when he thinks they are wrong—and this with personal simplicity and a sense of humor.

Mr. Kent's love for his State has been shown in many ways---by his gift of Muir Woods for the people; his fight to save the redwoods along the state highway; his donation of twenty-two acres for a public camp-site on the north shore of Lake Tahoe; his stalwart stand through many years against Japanese immigration and land-holding.

TO GIVE EVERY CHILD HIS DUE

PURPOSE OF NATIVE SONS' AND DAUGHTERS' HOMELESS CHILDREN COMMITTEE

Mary E. Brusie
(SECRETARY CENTRAL COMMITTEE.)

THE END OF THE TENTH YEAR OF the Native Sons' and Native Daughters' homeless children work will be here on the thirty-first day of this month of March. When Senator Charles M. Belshaw, Past Grand President of the N.S.G.W., the chairman of this committee since the work began, was taken from the helm, there was aroused in the mind and heart of every Native Son a determination to work harder than he had ever worked before, "to make up for his great loss to the cause," as one Native Son wrote.

It sems to those who are left to "carry on" that in all of the ten years of faithful response on the part of the members of the two Orders, there never has existed a greater sense of responsibility—there never has been manifested a keener interest in every angle of the work than during the past six months. When we say interest it does not mean money alone (although money is essential if we are to maintain our standards of quality and quantity), but by interest we mean also a personal responsibility in recommending a home, a personal concern in the development of a child placed in one's vicinity, enthusiasm over the right sort of publicity; determination to give every child his due, whether it means strengthening parental responsibility or taking a child from unfit conditions through the channels of the court; by interest we mean willingness to help any child needing care and protection. It is a beautiful tribute to those men who have gone to their long home, a fitting memorial, this surging, warm-hearted, spontaneous awakening of the individual to the consciousness that "the future of this particular child in my particular vicinity is 'up to me'."

We never have received a greater amount of money. We never have had a greater need. From the beginning of the fiscal year April 1, 1919, up to March 1, 1920, we have spent $11,497.87. The board has amounted to $5,201.54 and one more month's expenses to meet. The complete figures for the 1919-20 fiscal year were not available for this article, which was written March 15—and the fiscal year extends through March 31—but to the first of March we have received a total of $12,205.19, from these sources:

Since March 1 the San Francisco Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters have jointly given an additional $500, making their total for the fiscal year $3,500, the largest amount ever donated by those Parlors.

The Parlors of Oakland have jointly sent a check for $1,900, the largest donation ever received from that source.

The Parlors of Los Angeles have made a joint contribution of $300, the result of a very successful paper drive conducted by a hard-working and deeply-interested committee. The names of the Parlors of both Orders contributing to March 1, and the amounts forwarded to the Central Committee, follow:

THEN.

NOW.

Surely an object lesson is found in the illustrations here printed; one of an infant when two months old, and the other as she is now, at two years of age. If it were possible to provide the space, numberless pages of The Grizzly Bear could be filled with like proofs of transformation in the homeless child under the wise and careful guidance of good foster parents which you—Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West—are responsible for bringing together.

At the time of this writing there have been found 1,729 homes; 1,457 different children have been permanently placed, and 922 have been legally adopted.

On account of one or two epidemics of cold and influenza, thirty children are at present not in physical condition to be placed for adoption.

The influenza epidemic made it impossible for some Parlors to make their public appeal this year. The Fresno and Salinas Parlors had completed their plans, but were compelled to postpone their entertainments, which will account for their names not appearing in the lists of contributing Parlors.

ANNUAL PILGRIMAGE.

Hollister—The sixteenth annual pilgrimage to Fremont, the highest peak of the Gabilan Mountains, for flag-raising ceremonies, was made March 7 by several hundred patriotic citizens of this city. Copa de Oro Parlor, No. 105, N.D.G.W., directed the pilgrimage, and specially invited San Benito Post, American Legion, and Fremont Parlor, No. 44, N.S.G.W.

The ceremonies at Fremont Peak opened with the flying to the breeze, from the flagpole previously erected there, of Old Glory, members of the American Legion releasing the flag while the assemblage, led by the Native Daughters, rendered "The Star Spangled Banner."

George Moore, who has been present at every flag-raising ceremony, presided. Bertha Briggs, Grand Vice-president, N.D.G.W., recited an impressive piece lauding Old Glory, and Herbert Sutton, speaking for the American Legion, concluded with: "The American Legion stands for what The Flag stands for, and you all know what that means."

The weather was ideal, and more people made the pilgrimage this year than ever before. A picnic lunch was enjoyed after the ceremonies, and the balance of the day was occupied in touring the Gabilans.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

PLANT TREES, SYMBOLS OF TRUTH AND LOYALTY.

Following is the address of Grand President Mary E. Bell delivered at the Native Daughters' and Native Sons' tree-planting ceremonies at San Francisco March 7, when several acacias were planted in memory of deceased Native Son war heroes:

"The Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West has set aside March 7th as official Arbor Day of California. The purpose of this day is to beautify our respective localities by planting trees or shrubbery in prominent places. This particular day was chosen because it is the birthday of the world-famed Luther Burbank, California's greatest horticulturist.

"Today we have a two-fold purpose: We are here to honor the living who has dedicated his life to the preservation of our state flora and horticultural possessions, and to honor our hero dead. It is fitting that we plant beautiful trees, man's oldest servants. In all the ages of the world the tree is true to our interests and loyal, like those we honor, to our service. It has furnished the cradles as well as the last resting receptacles for the poor and for the potentate.

"'Trees have always figured in our patriotic and divine relations.' Among them the religion of man was born; groves were the first cathedrals of our race. Birds, singing in their branches, gave us the first idea of sacred music and the choir. God planted them in the Garden of Eden for the sustenance of the first parents. Noah looked into the forest and found means of salvation. It was in the treetops that David heard the voice of the Lord. It was among the palms of the Garden of Gethsemane that Jesus spent the last evening of His life. The battle of American freedom was consummated under the apple tree of Appomattox. It was in the forest of Argonne that many of our brave boys made the supreme sacrifice that we might live in peace and contentment.

"So it is fitting that we today gather here to plant these flowering acacia trees, commemorating the heroic deeds of our brave sons and daughters which will ever remind us that they are immortal and that their memory will ever live, which brings to mind the 'Pictures of Memory' by Alice Cary:

"'Among the beautiful pictures
That hang on Memory's wall,
Is one of a dim old forest,
That seemeth best of all.
Not for its gnarl'd oaks olden,
Dark with the mistletoe;
Not for the violets golden
That sprinkle the vale below;
Not for the milk-white lilies
That lean from the fragrant ledge,
Coquetting all day with the sunbeams,
And stealing their golden edge;
Not for the vines on the upland
Where the bright red berries rest,
Nor the pinks, nor the pale sweet cowslip,
It seemeth to me the best.

"'I once had a little brother
With eyes that were dark and deep;
In the lap of that dim old forest,
He lieth in peace asleep.
Light as the down of the thistle,
Free as the winds that blow,
We roved there the beautiful summers,
The summers of long ago;
But his feet on the hills grew weary,
And, one of the autumn eves,
I made for my little brother
A bed of the yellow leaves.

"'Sweetly his pale arms folded
My neck in a meek embrace,
As the light of immortal beauty
Silently cover'd his face;
And when the arrows of sunset
Lodged in the tree-tops bright,
He fell, in his saint-like beauty,
Asleep by the gates of light.

"'Therefore, of all the pictures
That hang on Memory's wall,
The one of the dim old forest
Seemeth the best of all'."

Makes Social Progress.

Stockton—Joaquin 5 has thus far given two successful dances this season. The first was held at the Auditorium, which was beautifully decorated with numerous electric lights, together with baskets of ferns and red crepe paper fancies hung artistically from the balcony. On the large stage were placed potted plants and poinsettias, with pretty bows of red that made an unusually handsome setting for the "jazz" orchestra.

The spacious and popular Dancing Arcade was chosen for the second dance, when a large attendance celebrated Abraham Lincoln's birthday. During the grand march the committee presented those participating with appropriate souvenirs. Those attending these affairs are already anxiously awaiting the announcement of the next social dance of the Parlor.

Anniversary Celebration.

Oakland—The twenty-first institution anniversary of Aloha 106 was fittingly celebrated February 24. A short business meeting was held, after which the members of Athens 95, N.S.G.W., were ushered in by the chairman of the committee, Sallie Rutherford, and were given a warm welcome by the officers and members of the Parlor. Special honor was given during the evening's festivities to three recent brides—Mrs. Matie Swan, Mrs. Lillian Zerikiotes and Mrs. Velle Reeves.

The program was informal, but very interesting. Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher was called upon for a short address, in which she said she "congratulated Aloha Parlor on its twenty-first birthday, and was glad we were not now sweet sixteen but old enough to vote, and hoped we would cast a successful ballot at next Grand Parlor for our charter member, Dr. Victory A. Derrick, for Grand Vice-president of our Order." The Parlor's talented musician, Consuelo de Laveaga, favored with several piano solos; the most cleverly arranged and unique number was a mock wedding, in which members from Athens Parlor, as well as Aloha's girls, took part and displayed great vaudeville ability.

Grand Marshal Dr. Victory A. Derrick, of whom Aloha Parlor is very proud, in her usual pleasing manner presented the brides with tokens of silver. Games were participated in by all, and prizes were awarded to the lucky contestants. The decorations were very tastily arranged, the predominating color being yellow, the color of the Parlor. Among the visitors were Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, Minne Luhr of Brooklyn Parlor, and Sister Ladd of El Pescadero. The inability of D.D.G.P. Sue J. Irwin to be present was much regretted. After the completion of the games and much social merriment the Parlor and guests were conducted to the banquet-room, where a bountiful spread was in waiting, and which occupied the remainder of the evening till the wee small hours.

Initiation Is Frequent.

Halfmoon Bay—Vista del Mar 155 observed Arbor Day by planting a tree at the grammar school, the tree being dedicated to the memory of Manuel Pareuti, the only fallen hero of the late war from this place. The program, rendered by pupils of the Union high and grammar schools, follows: Recitation, "The Tree," Iris Bello; reading, "Arbor Day," Mary Bernardo; recitation, "Apple Seed John," Edna Adams; recitation, eight little tots of Miss Gilcrest's class; song, "Planting of the Tree," school; Scriptural reading, Franklin Granocca and Maria Fierra; reading, Alta Clark; remarks (during planting of the tree), Mrs. J. W. Johnson, president Vista del Mar Parlor; christening of the tree, Dorothy Siegle; remarks, extending thanks to the Native Daughters, Professor Hall of the grammar school; song, "Star Spangled Banner," assemblage.

February 26 Vista del Mar Parlor initiated six candidates, and March 11 four more. Much is being accomplished in the way of helping others and promoting patriotism. After each meeting delightful hours are spent in social intercourse.

Initiates Eight.

Oakland—The official visit of Grand President Mary E. Bell to Bay Side 204 was one of the events of the week in the East bay district. Visitors from San Francisco Parlors and each Parlor of Alameda County welcomed the Grand President, Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, Past Grand President Margaret Grote Hill, Grand Marshal Dr. Victory A. Derrick, the organizer of Bay Side Parlor, Mrs. Francis Kenny, and D.D.G.P. Nell Crowley.

A feature of the evening was a class initiation of eight candidates, among whom were a mother, four daughters and a niece. The initiatory ceremonies were conducted in a remarkable manner, particularly the charges delivered by the president of the Parlor, Mrs. Minni E. Flynn. The meeting hall was profusely decorated with American Flags, ferns and evergreens, while in the banquet hall a color scheme of pink was carried out in every detail. Presentations of hand-painted china and flowers were made to the grand officers and various officers of the Parlor.

In the banquet hall the guests of honor were joined by grand officers of the Native Sons of the Golden West and the president, Richard Fenton, and members of Bay View 238, N.S.G.W., and D.D.G.P. Walter White of Brooklyn 151, N.S.G.W. Much praise and credit are due the chairman, Mrs. Anita Bradley, and her committee, who worked so zealously to make the affair such a grand success. All did justice to a well-laden table and the guests reluctantly departed in time for the last trains.

Berkeley—On the occasion of the official visit of Grand President Mary E. Bell to Berkeley 150 March 2 the following grand officers accompanied her: Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, Grand Secretary Alice Dougherty, Grand Marshal Dr. Victory Derrick, and Grand Trustee Maud Wagner. To prove that the Parlor had long looked forward to this visit, nine candidates were initiated. In the acquisition of these new members Berkeley Parlor materially strengthened its actual working forces and it is expected that these charming young daughters will be of the greatest assistance in the campaign launched to double the membership.

Not in years has the lodge-room been graced with such a large attendance. Visitors including members of nearly all the Parlors in Alameda County and a delegation of twenty from the sister Parlor, Bear Flag 151 of this city more than filled all the chairs in the artistically decorated lodge-room. Berkeley Parlor Native Daughters not being satisfied with the accomplishments above mentioned, had set off the Native Sons' banquet-room with decorations appropriate for the month of March. The members of Berkeley 210, N.S.G.W., were invited to join them in the "green" banquet-room; place-cards designated the order of seating in the semblance of clay pipes and miniature harps. It was quite evident before the banquet was over that all assembled had taken on the spirit of the "17th of Ireland," for aside from the warm-hearted addresses made by the grand officers, toasts were offered and jokes told on the Irish.

Single Members Entertained.

San Francisco—Grand President Mary E. Bell officially visited Keith 137 March 11, the meeting being attended by members and visitors, who filled the spacious hall. Other grand officers present were Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, Grand Marshal Dr. Victory A. Derrick, D.D.G.Ps. Emma Dieckhoff, May L. Noble, Harriet Cate, Elizabeth Muller, May Barry, Helen Mann. At the conclusion of her address, the Grand President received a beautiful gift, for which she graciously thanked the Parlor. Refreshments were served, and the evening was most delightfully spent.

The married members of Keith Parlor recently entertained the single ones, the affair proving very enjoyable. Songs, recitations and fancy dancing were well rendered by the hostesses, and Sister Schwerin spoke in memory of Abraham Lincoln. Refreshments were served. Anna Barney, Keith's latest bride, was chairman of the evening, and due largely to her efforts it was declared a wonderful success.

Officers Installed.

San Juan Bautista—Officers of San Juan Bautista 179 have been installed by Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs, who officiated in the absence of D.D.G.P. Anna G. Andreson, unable to be present on account of illness. Several visitors were present from Hollister, and a splendid banquet was enjoyed at the meeting's close.

Shasta Pioneers Honored.

Redding—Hiawatha 140 observed Arbor Day, March 7, by planting trees in honor of two of Shasta County's earliest Pioneers—Simon F. Southern and his wife, Sarah E. Southern, who settled in the old town of Shasta in 1848 and spent the remainder of their lives in the county.

Appropriate exercises were held in the Presbyterian church, in the yard of which the trees were planted. These deceased Pioneers were members of this church, and were always in attendance at its services. In addition to the members of Hiawatha Parlor, the services were attended by those of McCloud 149, N.S.G.W.

To Gather at Luncheon.

San Francisco—Members of the Order in this and the other bay cities will gather at a "hooster" and "get-together" luncheon at a local hotel April 10, the purposes being to get acquainted and to increase the Order's membership. This will be the first luncheon given by the Order, but it is hoped to make it a future yearly event.

Grand President Mary E. Bell will preside, and the presidents of the federated clubs will be guests of honor. Those who wish to obtain tickets should get in touch with Eda Urmy, 1011 Church street. Emma O'Donnell is chairman of the general committee making the arrangements. The luncheon will be held at the Palace Hotel.

Officers Installed.

Byron—March 3 Donner 193 was favored with a visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell and D.D.G.P. Amy McAvoy of Pittsburg, the latter being accompanied by many members of Stirling 146. These officers were installed by D.D.G.P. McAvoy: Bella Santos, P.; Grace Krumland, P.P.; Anna Hudson, 1V.P.; Leavice Wightman, 2V.P.; Leora Stone, 3V.P.; Kate Richardson, O.; Nell Lewis, M.; Mrs. Studderts, I.S.; Edna Andersen, O.S.; Helen Richards, Wilma Shultz, Erma McFarland, Trs.; Anne Pimental, T.; Clara Houston, F.S.; Jasamine Burdewick, R.S. A banquet followed installation.

Go to School for Arbor Day.

Fort Bragg—March 8, in celebration of Arbor Day, Fort Bragg 210 members went to the Park grammar school and planted a tree, dedicated to the fifth grade. The program follows: Salute to American Flag and song "America," school; remarks, Prineipal P. W. Smith; tree presentation, Mrs. Thome, president Fort Bragg Parlor; tree acceptanee, fifth grade pupils; dedication tree, Mrs. Reynolds; recitation, "Trees," Wesley Wallace, Edward Dorffi, Robert Caldwell, Julian Colberg, fifth grade boys; salute to State (Bear) Flag and song "I Love You California," Native Daughters and school. During the singing of the last number the members of the Parlor, led by the president, passed around the tree and each put a spadeful of earth at its roots.

Grand President Visits.

Tracy—Grand President Mary E. Bell paid her official visit to El Pescadero 82 March 19. About forty members were present, and also visitors from Joaquin 5 (Stockton), Ivy 88 (Lodi) and Alta 3 (San Francisco). The grand officers present included Past Grand President Mamie G. Peyton, Grand Trustee Mattie Stein, Grand Outside Sentinel

BOTTLED SUNSHINE AND COLORS AID IN KEEPING WELL.

Sunlight and exercise are Nature's two great healers, and these work through the simple methods of elimination and restoration. The worn-out tissues, as well as poisonous secretions, are, with the help of the sun, thrown off, and new and healing tissues take up the work of re-energizing. Exercise and sunlight are both difficult to obtain in sufficient quantity, under our "civilized" conditions, to enable us to secure the required elimination through their agencies. The failure to perspire is one of the fundamental causes of disease in our modern life. In order to run our human automobile and secure sufficient human energy, a proper application of sunlight is necessary.

This radiant light should be applied, preferably, to the uncovered skin. When this is impossible, the wearing apparel should be of porous material, light in color and weight. When we cannot, on account of our social training or climatic conditions, come in contact with the sun's direct rays, the bottled sunshine (the chemical analysis being the same) will prove quite as beneficial. Incandescent lamp bulbs are used, which reproduce the spectrum rays, thus securing the therapeutic value of the sun's radiant lights and colors.

Sunlight is undoubtedly the greatest germ destroyer and the greatest purifier, as well as being the source of warmth and healing power. Sunlight not only opens the pores of the body in order to cleanse the blood and lighten the heart it pulses through, but it stimulates and strengthens the mind and dissipates the depressing "blues" and "greys," thus giving way to wholesomeness and purity. After all, there is only one disease, and its name is congestion. If congestion affects the mind, it is termed ignorance (lack of a high, normal vibration); if it affects the physical body, it is termed disease by the natural scientist and error by the Christian Scientist. But in either case, it means "lack of ease," and the existence of an irregular, abnormal, unnatural condition. The ordinary so-called civilized being is not nourished with sufficient sunshine; hence the mind of man has harnessed sufficient sun in a convenient manner to serve him with the "bottled sunshine" in order to bring about the required equilibrium and normal poise to counteract the diseased or erroneous condition. This is the most convenient modern method of administering light, heat and the necessary colors required for bringing about a true state of health, and harmony within the human machine.

The electric light bath cabinet is the most effective method of using the radiant light and heat, with the colors. Home treatment may readily be applied daily or weekly, from the standpoint of ordinary cleanliness and natural stimulation, or for healing and purifying the body and mind, by the use of the De Luxe, home or office model, reasonably-priced electric light bath cabinet, or the large-sized radiant applicators, which are modern, scientific and always beneficial.—Ernest Jac. JAP QUESTION TO THE PEOPLE

GOVERNOR, BY PERSISTENT STALLING, FORCES WHITE AMERICANS TO ACT

William I. Traeger
(GRAND SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT, N.S.G.W.)

AN ECONOMIC QUESTION OF grave importance now confronts the people of California for solution. For many years the citizens of this state have viewed with alarm the "peaceful penetration" of the United States, particularly California, by the Orientals. It is now apparent that the forces of the conquest by "peaceful penetration" have been centered within the territorial confines of this state. The extreme activity of these forces menaces the economic and institutional life of our people. Being non-assimilable, the presence of the Asiatics threatens our social life; having a very low standard of living, competition with them in commercial and economic life is impossible. One nation of the Asiatics—Japan—has shown definite plans of colonizing California. The problem now before the people of this state is the passage of remedial and restrictive legislation which will prevent such colonization.

Remedial legislation has been attempted by the California Legislature in past years. Each time the Federal administration has requested that such legislation be "killed" because it might cause complications with Japan. In 1913 the California Legislature passed the Alien Land Law bill notwithstanding the protests of the Federal administration. It may be noted that the California Alien Land Law is similar to that passed by other states without protest from the administration. In 1919, the California Legislature again attempted to pass legislation for the protection of the people from the aggression of the Japanese. A bill was introduced forbidding the lease of agricultural lands by Japanese and the use of corporations for that purpose; one limiting the age for admission to the public schools of lower grades to prevent the association of our little girls with full-grown Japanese; one proposing the stopping of further admission of "picture brides"; one to segregate the Japanese and other Asiatics into separate schools. All these bills were "killed" at the request of the Federal administration, lest there be complications with Japan.

The 1913 Alien Land Law has not afforded the means of protection that were anticipated. The Japanese have found many ways to evade its provisions. Under the Federal Constitution the children born here of alien parentage are citizens of the United States, and as such do not come within the provisions of the Alien Land Law. There are instances in the courts of this state in which the father of such child has been appointed its guardian and has thereafter purchased lands in the name of the child. Superior Judge McCormick of Fresno County and Superior Judge Wallace of Tulare County have refused guardianship papers on the ground that they were sought purely and solely to evade the provisions of the Alien Land Law. That these judges are right in their conclusion, is founded upon facts that are indisputable. Another way that has been found to evade the Alien Land Law lies in the use of corporations to purchase lands. Either the majority of stockholders or the owners of the majority of the stock of these corporations are Japanese. THE ASSISTANCE OF THE CORPORATION COMMISSIONER CANNOT BE HAD TO PREVENT THIS EVASION OF THE ALIEN LAND LAW BECAUSE THE CORPORATION COMMISSIONER IS ON RECORD AS FAVORING THE JAPANESE. The number of these corporations has increased alarmingly during the last two years. Through the guardianship proceedings and the use of corporations the Japanese have secured possession to many thousands of acres of the best agricultural lands in California.

The Japanese have become so active in their evasion of the Alien Land Law that immediate action by The People of California is imperative, if California is to remain a white man's country. The activity of the Japs to gain their end, and the failure of the last Legislature through the intervention of the Federal administration to enact laws to protect California from the Jap colonization scheme, have aroused the citizens to the fact that the peril is real. Many individuals and many societies have petitioned the Governor of California to call an extraordinary session of the Legislature; the Legislature in special session in the month of November, 1919, passed a resolution, with only three dissenting votes, asking the Governor to call it into extraordinary session for the purpose of legislating on the Japanese question. The Governor, while stating to the press that the presence and activities of the Japanese are a menace to California, through one excuse and another has not called the extraordinary session of the Legislature and there appears little hope that he will call such session. In the meantime, the Japanese, finding themselves balked by the Superior Courts in some counties in the matter of guardianship proceedings, have resorted to the formation of these land corporations; specific numbers of the applications for charters may be cited, but it is sufficient here to say that they justify the proposed action by the people of California—the INITIATIVE.

There are in California two main organizations having for their purpose the bringing about of the remedial and restrictive legislation which the Governor has thus far refused to permit. The California Oriental Exclusion League, composed of many affiliated bodies, operates in the northern end of the state, and the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association, composed of many affiliated bodies, operates in the southern end of the state. The persistency with which the Governor has ignored the petitions for immediate action for the protection of the people against "peaceful penetration," brought about a conference of the representatives of the above organizations. There was lengthy debate, every angle of this serious problem being considered. The result of the conference was that all affiliated organizations became united for a common purpose—that of placing before The People of California an initiative measure embodying restrictive laws which will prevent the aggression of the Japanese and other Asiatics.

The proposed initiative measure will stop up the gaps found in the 1913 Alien Land Law. It is proposed: 1. To prohibit ownership of real property by aliens not eligible to citizenship. 2. To prohibit the leasing of agricultural lands to aliens, not eligible to citizenship, for either money or croppage rentals.

At a conference in San Francisco March 13 of individuals and representatives of all organizations determined to have The People say whether or no they desire California to become a Jap colony, it was decided to invoke the initiative. This action has been made necessary because the "master sleeper," who was elected to the Governorship by a minority of the citizens of this state, persistently refuses to do his duty.

This conference delegated to a committee of six—three from the California Oriental Exclusion League, with headquarters in Sacramento, and three from the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Committee, with headquarters in Los Angeles—the duty of preparing an initiative measure that will save California from the yellow-Jap peaceful invaders and their white-Jap co-conspirators. This committee, also, will direct the campaign for the initiative in behalf of the anti-Jap forces. The committee has been named, and is made up as follows:

From the California Oriental Exclusion League—Milton A. Nathan of San Francisco, representing the Spanish War Veterans; C. L. McEnerney of San Francisco, representing the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West; J. Le Roy Johnson of Stockton, representing the California American Legion.

From the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Committee—William I. Traeger, representing the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West; George J. Burns, representing the Massachusetts State Society; Louis G. Guernsey, representing the New York State Society.—Editor.

3. To prohibit aliens, not eligible to citizenship, acting as guardians of their minor children born in the United States by making the public administrator of the county in which the minor child resides, or in which the real property is situated, the proper party for appointment as such guardian, thus insuring that the estate of the minor will be administered primarily for the benefit of the minor child. 4. To prohibit the owning or leasing of real property by corporations in which the majority of the stockholders or the owners of the majority of the stock are aliens not eligible to citizenship. 5. To authorize the attorney-general and the district attorneys of the counties to proceed in the name of The People of California in all matters of the owning and leasing of agricultural lands by aliens not eligible to citizenship in which title was gained by fraud. THE PROPOSED LAW BY INITIATIVE WILL STOP, AT LEAST IN CALIFORNIA, THE JAPANESE COLONIZATION SCHEME.

It is conceded that the proposed initiative law will afford relief only to the people of California, but it is a relief that is most needed. With the proposed law in force, California can go to the people of the United States and demand the exclusion of those aliens whose presence here menaces her economic and institutional life; whose interests are inimical to those of her people. An Eastern magazine in a recent editorial said, in part:

> "Sufficient reason for us to go to war with Japan might be found in our ignorance, cheap politics, and fretful distrust of a nation which, as Elihu Root has said, has never broken her agreements. . . . California knows her own business best. . . . California's obligation to us—and the wartired world—is great indeed."

The thoughts expressed in this editorial are not well considered and are based only in part upon facts. Japan cannot object to the United States excluding Japanese coolies from her territorial confines, because by imperial ordinance number 352 Japan forbids the immigration to her territory of Chinese and Korean labor. Japan's reasons for this policy are those urged by California in her fight on the Japanese. Australia and Canada exclude the Japanese for the same reasons. What Elihu Root said about Japan's honesty was said many years ago, before Japan began to show her real self. THE CONSTANT VIOLATION OF THE "GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT" IS SUFFICIENT ANSWER.

California does know her own business best, and in the face of opposition is trying to work out her own salvation. California is standing guard today as the outpost of Western civilization. If the Asiatic hordes invade the Eastern states as they have the Western, California's point of view will be understood. California hopes that this invasion will never take place, and she is determined to stop it if she can. CALIFORNIA, FROM THE TIME HER PIONEERS FOUGHT FOR HER ADMISSION TO THE UNION OF STATES, HAS FULFILLED HER EVERY OBLIGATION TO THE NATION. IT MAY BE TRUTHFULLY SAID THAT THE NATION'S OBLIGATION TO CALIFORNIA IS GREAT INDEED.

That this Nation has the right to protect her people from menace by the peoples of other nations, cannot be disputed; that it is the Nation's duty to help California will be shown, if the united efforts of California's citizens prevail. There are two measures before the Congress of the United States: the Gulick bill in the House of Representatives, and the Dillingham bill in the Senate. Both of these bills provide for progressive percentage immigration of aliens and make eligible to citizenship those who are here. THEY ARE BOTH BAD AND MUST NOT PASS.

Congress should be considering two other measures: an exclusion bill to include all Asiatics, and one offering an amendment to the Federal Constitution which shall provide that no child born of alien parents in the United States shall be eligible to American citizenship unless both parents are eligible to such citizenship. THE UNITED STATES HAS THE RIGHT, AND IT IS HER DUTY, TO ADOPT THE LATTER TWO MEASURES. Japan cannot be heard to complain, because she has invoked such laws against other nations. Racial consideration need not enter the debate; rather, the matter is based upon economic necessity. California claims that industrial competition with Japanese by Americans is impossible, and California prays that the Nation will recognize its obligation to her.

It is realized that the initiative is reserved to the people of California to be used only in times of

CALIFORNIA COURTS OF APPEAL

DIVISION TWO OF THE SECOND APPELLATE DISTRICT, AND ITS JUDGES

FRANK G. FINLAYSON
Presiding Justice.

W. H. THOMAS
Associate Justice.

W. A. SLOANE
Associate Justice.

At the election held in November, 1904, the people, by constitutional amendment, created three District Courts of Appeal for the State of California. For that purpose the state was divided into three districts. The Second District, with its seat in Los Angeles, embraces the thirteen Southern counties. The crowded condition of the court calendars, due to the very great increase in litigation, necessitated the creation of additional appellate courts. Accordingly, by constitutional amendment adopted at the general election held in November, 1918, a new appellate court was created in the first and second districts, respectively. The new court in the second district, with its seat at Los Angeles, is designated as Division Two of the District Court of Appeal for the Second Appellate District. Each division of the court consists of a Presiding Justice and two Associate Justices.

On January 1, 1919, the Governor appointed Judge Frank G. Finlayson, of Los Angeles, as Presiding Justice, and Judge W. A. Sloane, of San Diego, and Judge W. H. Thomas, of Santa Ana, as Associate Justices of the new court. All three of these appointees were promoted from a long term of service as judges of the superior courts in their respective counties. Their appointive terms will expire in January, 1921. They will, however, be candidates for election to the same positions at the coming elections.

The District Courts of Appeal have appellate jurisdiction in all appeals from the superior court in which the amount involved amounts to $300 and does not exceed $2,000; in all cases of unlawful entry and detainer (except such as arise in justices' courts); in proceedings in insolvency; in proceedings of mandamus, certiorari and prohibition, usurpation of office, contested elections and eminent domain, and in such special proceedings as may be provided by law; in all criminal cases prosecuted by indictment or information in a court of record, excepting cases where sentence of death has been imposed; and in all other matters originally appealable to the Supreme Court, which that court may refer to a district court of appeal for decision.

The newly created appellate courts have, during the past year, been working most of the time upon appeals transferred to them from the Supreme Court, and have contributed largely to the very marked progress that has been made in clearing the calendars of a vast accumulation of cases. The "Recorder," the law publication of San Francisco, commenting in a recent edition upon the immense volume of work turned out by the appellate courts of California in the past year, says: "The last year has placed a burden upon the publishers of the decisions—publications that few subscribers appreciate. Much of this burden was caused by the establishment of two additional divisions of the District Courts of Appeal, and the more efficient methods adopted for disposing of business. For the entire year there have been printed in California Decisions 368 opinions of the Supreme Court, aggregating 1,188 pages. In the District Courts of Appeal the amount of work accomplished during the year was even more astonishing. Three volumes of California Appellate Decisions were issued. . . . The total number of opinions of the District Courts of Appeal rendered in 1919, printed in California Appellate Decisions, was 1,082."

With the progress that is being made, another year or two of equally effective work in the appellate courts ought to see the prompt disposition of litigated cases that the public has long desired.

RALPH CRISWELL

IS A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS FROM THE NINTH DISTRICT.

Hon. Ralph L. Criswell, member of the Los Angeles City Council, has announced himself as a Republican candidate for Congress in the Ninth Congressional District.

Mr. Criswell has made a most excellent record in the City Council, and is highly esteemed. He is Chairman of the Public Service Committee, and also a member of the Welfare and Finance Committee. He is now serving his second term as a Councilman.

Mr. Criswell is a member of the Odd Fellows, the Masons, and the Sons of the Revolution, and is also one of the Board of Directors of the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association.

Reuben S. Schmidt

Would be a Judge

I hear that Reuben S. Schmidt will be in the race for one of the long-term Superior Court judgeships, and that he will have a corps of enthusiastic supporters back of his candidacy.

Mr. Schmidt, who is of the law firm of Schmidt & Riggins, is a native son of Los Angeles, having been born in the Grand Central Hotel in 1881. Both his parents were born in Copenhagen, Denmark, and his father came to the United States when 17 years of age, becoming a naturalized citizen in 1870. They were pioneers of Los Angeles county, settling in what is now the heart of the Wilshire district, the new Ambassador Hotel being erected on a part of the old homestead.

A graduate of the Los Angeles High School, Mr. Schmidt later graduated from both the literary and law departments of the University of Michigan, and was admitted to practice in California in 1905. He has been engaged in the general practice of law for the past fifteen years. —From "The Watchman," in Los Angeles Times, Sunday, March 28, 1920.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

QUITE PROPERLY, THE SMARTEST OF sports toggery is adapted from the fashions of the sterner sex. All fripperies have heen eliminated, so that there is harmony between the severe weaves and the cut of the garments. Velveteen is the one concession to feminine whims; and even so, it is douhtful if the woman who demands consistency in attire will choose that in preference to the semi-rough worsteds, homespun, the soft leathers and smart vicunas.

Plaited skirts are fancied for sports wear, and the deep plaits are in greater evidence than the narrow knife variety. Nothing could he more attractive than the gaily marked skirts that complete the dull jackets of velveteens, leather, camel's hair or cheviot. A few of the skirts are in tartan stripes, and others of modish little checks, and still others of Scotch colorings.

Homespun and cheviot suits are indispensable to the real sports woman. They are the acme of smart simplicity in their softly tailored lines and the comfortahly widened skirts. With such suits are worn the unstarched shirts of madras, linen, or washahle silk. The collar is high or with a slight roll to leave a small V-opening at the throat. Either the windsor tie or the four-in-hand is the correct finish, as are the link-fastened cuffs for the sleeves.

Fashion declares that the scarf or knitted fahric may be appropriately worn. The angora scarfs are the favored ones for the new season, the choice heing those of genuine camel's hair. Brown shades lead, hut for those who like hright colors there are greens, purples, rose, several shades of hlue, and also roman combinations. In a way, the scarf has taken the place of the sweater. At least it has heen sponsored hy women who find the contrast in color hetween the accessory and the sports coat a trifle more decorative, and the length of line secured by the scarf adjustment more graceful and hecoming than the sweater itself.

Footwear is of the greatest importance. No longer may the sports woman wear hoots merely because they are serviceahle; they must he shapely, as well. Pointed toes and high heels are deemed in the worst of taste, and are never worn except by the amateur who has much to learn. The silk stocking, also, is entirely out of keeping with the outing costume. Light-weight woolen, in hrown and gray shades, are now worn, sometimes ribhed and sometimes of plain weave. The hand-made variety is especially well liked. Cotton hosiery may be properly adopted hy those who dislike the feeling of wool.

Fortunately, all the horrors of fantastic footwear are things of the past. We have grown sedate and dignified, and have therefore added dignity and elegance to the pedestals of dress. One may, of course, he fanciful in her evening slippers, which are so contrived of tinsel cloth, metallic, hrocades, satins, and pastel kids, that they appear to have no knowledge whatever of the existence of the daytime hoot. Immense huckles of rhinestones add to the dazzling splendor of the evening slipper. For those who do not care for brilliant "steps," so to speak, there are modest little how-knots of rhinestones, cut steel, jet and headed ornaments. The hosiery, of course, must he heautiful. Fine silks, with drop-stitch clocks, are favored for day uses, brown and black being in leading demand. For evening, there are stockings of cobwehby delicacy, with lace motifs inset on the instep, or with dainty emhroideries.

Beautiful rihhons fairly flame with color. Faille rihhons, of all widths, are finely striped and squared with color on a hlack or marine ground. Gay colors, like cerise, jade and yellow, are massed together on a hlack ground. Enormous quantities of light-weight taffeta rihbons, with picot edges, will he used as frills on straight skirts and hats, and for trimmings.

Ginghams we accept as a matter of course. They have grown more beautiful in pattern and colorings and this, in a way, makes them seem worth their advanced price. Indeed, there is nothing plehian in the wearing of cotton frocks these days, if one measures value and fabric in terms of dollars and cents.

Linens have lost none of their old-time attractiveness. They are liked, in the heavier weaves, for the trig-looking suits and one-piece dresses of tailored variety. The finer qualities are used for delightful little frocks, made hy hand and whose only decoration is drawn-work and headed seams. The alternative for such, is fine insertions of real lace. Delicate colors are preferred to white.

Dotted swiss has come into its own again. It is associated with organdie, taffeta, satin and printed georgettes—anything, so long as the effect is artistic as well as novel. The old-fashioned way of using emhroidery and lace along with a rihhon girdle is the hest looking after all. The very fine dots are liked better than the larger variety, hut hoth are attractive.

Spring wraps are of the utmost importance, not that one cares very much ahout the comfort of the top garment, hut, rather, that the style influence imparted hy the jacket, the cape and the coat, is such a momentous thing that more than ordinary thought should he given its selection and wear. So we have capes for evening wear and capes for street wear and beach wear.

The newest idea is to incorporate the cape as a detail of the suit, and the form is different from that of predecessors. In fact, the cape is cut jacket length, has circular armholes and no sleeves, and is sometimes supplied with a little waist coat, usually of contrasting material. When worn with a matching skirt, the effect is very smart.

The draped dresses make an appeal of novelty, not that draped materials are so new in themselves, but this season the designers have elected to arrange the folds and loops rather lower on the skirt than formerly. The idea is that of the polonaise hrought strictly up to date.

Another type of drapery draws the material up toward the hips and finishes it there in single or douhle cascades. This naturally gives a greater width of line to the hips, hut in such a manner that the slender silhouette is not impaired. It may be that the drapery is hardly more than a long apron pulled across the front to form little wrinkles and folds and terminated in such a manner that the hack of the underskirt is left free. The idea is varied hy cutting the panel of the hodice in one with the under panel of the skirt.

Distinctly youthful is the drapery that indicates one side is ahsolutely unmindful of what the other is. In other words, one side is flat and the other is caught up in an amhitious puff and almost entirely surrounded hy a draped rihhon, which is tucked into the girdle at one end and trails off into floating loops at the other. The fluffy dresses have hecome, in the course of the last two or three seasons, a series of flounces.

Taffeta is one of the most prominent silk materials in use this seasou. Soft ruffle weaves, notahly the pussy willow, lend themselves to pleating for entire skirts or panels, and even the stiffer taffetas are used for narrow pleated frills which compose a favorite sort of trimming for street and afternoon dresses.

Wide douhle frills with a cord through the middle are placed vertically on the sides of skirts which require two hreadths. Such trimmings are finished off at the hip or turned to continue as a peplum across the back of the skirt. The edges are usually finished with a narrow hinding or self-covered cord. Contrasted colors are much used for small cordings and to line the tops of distended side pouches of skirts when the extension takes the place of drapery.

Youthful dancing frocks of taffeta in pastel colors show lace petticoats and narrow lace frills on the waist. Jade green, royal and Atlantic blue, hrown, and a burnt orange shade that is quite light, also hydrangea hlue, are among leading colors of fashionable interest.

"Keep the wolf from the door" is just as applicable today as it was 100 years ago. There are unthrifty people now, as there will always he, who find it difficult to make ends meet—a hard task to "keep the wolf from the door."

If you are not saving money, you are not paying a dividend on your existence—as a business proposition you are a failure.

If you could only save $5 a month you could he classed as a "going concern," with an opportunity of making a success. Why don't you try? We will help you.

PROTEST STREET NAME CHANGES

A COMMITTEE OF NATIVE SONS—PAST Grand President H. C. Lichtenberger, Cal J. Foy, H. J. Lelande, J. W. Krause, T. A. J. Dockweiler, Grand Second Vice-president W. I. Traeger, Walter Baskerville and Edwin A. Meserve—appeared before the city council March 9 and registered such an emphatic protest against changing old street names, that the council will likely leave those reminders of the days long gone by alone in future.

The cause of the protest was the proposal to change the name of Macy street to Brooklyn avenue, an extension, hut after the Native Sons were heard the council decided to retain the name of Macy street and also to give that name to the extension. Incidentally, too, the council—through which street name changes in the past have been quietly slipped—was impressed with the fact that due notice of proposed future changes should be given so that, if desired, protests may be lodged. Speaking for the Native Sons hefore the council, Past Grand President Lichtenberger gave this hit of history of Dr. Macy, after whom Macy street was named:

"One of the objects of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West is to perpetuate the memory of the Pioneers who laid the foundation upon which this great City of Los Angeles is huilded. As this commnnity grew from a small Mexican pueblo to a city of importance, new streets were opened and many of them were named after the men who played an important part in molding the destiny of the growing town.

"Among the earlier Pioneers was Dr. Obed Macy. He was born on the Island of Nantucket in 1801. He moved West with his family when a young man and practiced medicine for years in southern Indiana. In 1850 he crossed the plains with his family and nine children, one of whom died of cholera on the way, arriving in Los Angeles in December of that year. He was a man of undaunted courage, for on that perilous trip to the land of gold he faced the dangers of an unknown future, and when we think of him undertaking this journey and assuming the care and protection of a wife and nine children, we must concede that he was a hardy and brave Pioneer, indeed.

"He first settled in El Monte, Los Angeles County, but afterward rented and conducted the Bella Union Hotel, the leading hostelry in Los Angeles in early days. Dr. Macy bought land on Macy street, east of Main street, and started the Alameda Baths, and it was he who opened and improved that thoroughfare, which came to be used as the leading highway across the river and east to San Gabriel, El Monte and beyond. In 1856 he was elected a member of the city council. He died July 9, 1857, an honored and respected citizen. In his honor Macy street, then one of the most important thoroughfares in the city, was named.

"This name is one we desire to preserve and perpetuate, and we most respectfully urge you to prevent the contemplated change. We feel that you not only honor and respect the memory of the early Pioneers of Los Angeles, but that you, as well, appreciate the fact that we owe them a debt of gratitude for making this heautiful and delightful city possible."

California Library—Splendid Idea.

A movement has gotten well under way to have a library of California literatnre in connection with the clubrooms at Ramona Hall. No books are to be taken from the premises, but one may put in as much time as desired in the library devonring their contents.

Harry J. Lelande started the library with a collection of valuable books. Several authors have been communicated with and requested to donate autographed copies of their California works, and these have thus far responded: Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt of U. S. C., with "California the Golden"; Mrs. Eliza P. Donner-Houghton, herself a member of that party, with "Expedition of the Donner Party"; Montaville Flowers, national lecturer, with "The Japanese Conquest of American Opinion," dealing with the Jap question in this state. It is hoped to make this one of the largest libraries of California literature, with special attention being given to the getting together of history works.

A "Carry On" Over the Top Conspiracy.

March was a lively month in Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., President Walter Baskerville keeping things moving incessantly. Thirty new members were added, and that many more applications were filed. The social committee, directed by Robert Hanley, had something to present each meeting night, the programs being so diversified as to appeal to all tastes.

The attendance at the clubrooms increases each day, for the "boys" are beginning to appreciate the fact that they have a home, with every attraction, that is entitled to their prescuce. It's alone worth going to Ramona's clubrooms any time of day to receive the smiling greeting of Secretary Grove Vail, always "on the job." And then there's the lunch, the pool and hilliard tables, the community piano, the library, and all the other fixings for a first-class club. Incidentally, visiting Native Sons are requested by Ramona to make its home their home, also, while in the city.

Ramona has struck the "carry-on" gait, and its officers promise some special attraction every Friday night. Some of the "old guard" have conspired to make this the largest Parlor in the Order, and they are not going to put off doing it, having already started in. Their slogan is "The Largest Parlor by April 1921." If you're a loyal Ramonaite, join in the conspiracy.

Wants to Be Doubly Capable.

The Good of the Order Committee of Los Angeles 124, N.S.G.W.—Harry Alexander, Tom Golding, Al Cron, Harold Whisnand and John McGonigle—has elaborate entertainment plans under way. There'll be "pep" at each Thursday night meeting. March 25 the committee was responsible for something new in the way of a whist tournament; every player got a prize, and the play was fast.

The Parlor wants some of the numerous eligibles in this city to affiliate with it, and has called upon every member to give a little of his time to the cause and bring in at least one application. Several have volunteered to do so, and will; all should make the effort, and if they do, they, too, will succeed. The result will he a Parlor twice as capable of "putting over" the Order's work.

Joe Lillard, Herbert Holtz, Senator Charles Lyons, Jake and Gus Goldsmith, among the members who have been on the sick list, are back "on the job" again.

Extends Dance Invitation.

Corona 196, N.S.G.W., has changed recording secretaries and also its meeting night. Commencing April 5, it will meet every Monday night in Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street; F. G. Stiles is the new secretary. Initiations are of frequent occurrence, and there is something doing in the social line every meeting night.

April 12, the Parlor will give a dauce, to which all members of the Order and their feminine friends are extended an invitation. At the San Diego Grand Parlor this month, Corona will have a candidate for Grand Trustee, President Henry G. Bodkin, who is also a past president.

Past Presidents to Meet.

Southern Counties' Assemhly, No. 4, Past Presidents' Association, N.S.G.W., will hold its semi-annual meeting at Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street, the evening of Tucsday, April 6. Officers will be elected, and several candidates will be initiated. A program of entertainment will be provided.

FORWARD MOVEMENT OF UNIVERSITY SOUTERN CALIFORNIA

The University of Southern California is rightly regarded as one of the biggest and best assets of Los Angeles. In growth and expansion it has more tban kept pace with the city. It has won recognition as the leading institution of higher learning in the great southwest.

It is the aim of the university to serve the community needs of Los Angeles. Tbis is a large order. Therefore a program of expansion has been entered upon in order that this oldest and largest of the southern universities may be adequately endowed and equipped. The citizens of Los Angeles and Southern California are asked to contribute $5,000,000 to meet immediate needs; the entire ten-year program calls for $25,000,000.

A group of seven large and substantial buildings will be erected on University avenue and adjacent to Exposition Park (with its 130 acres). Of these the administration and auditorium building, to cost, complete, about $600,000, is now well along and will be ready for use next autumn. Others will include library, hall of applied sciences, and gymnasium. The university has just purchased the land on which is situated the college of pbysicians and surgeons, ou Washington street, thus assuring permanency and good hospital facilities.

A recent development is the establishment of the college of commerce and business administration. There is great demand for higher commercial and business training, and this college is intended to meet one of the most pressing needs of Los Angeles as a new era of industrial expansion is entered. Courses will fit students for responsible positions iu general business, foreign trade, accounting, banking and finance, factory managemeut, insurance, real estate, public service, etc.

The University of Southern California deserves well of the community. It already has a student body of 4,500. If adequately supported, it will in a few years be one of America's greatest universities.

ANNIVERSARY STANISLAUS COUNTY'S CREATION

RECALLS HISTORIC EARLY-DAY CALIFORNIA POLITICAL BATTLE

S. P. Elias

STANISLAUS COUNTY WAS USHered into existence as a separate political subdivision of the State of California on the first day of April, 1854, when Governor John Bigler signed a bill for its creation, after the measure had experienced a hard and bitter fight in the Legislature and after it had been made the buffet of all the political scheming, intrigue and activity of the statesmen of the period. The stake involved in the contest was no less than the election of David C. Broderick, the leader of the northern wing of the Democracy of California, to the Senate of the United States.

Previous to that date the territory now contained within the boundaries of this wonderful empire that leads the state in agricultural productivity and in progressive citizenship, was a wild, almost uninhabited and unimportant portion of Tuolumne County, the economic interests of which were but slightly considered by the authorities of the parent county. While the chief industry of "Old Tuolumne" was that of mining for gold in the virgin fastnesses of the mountains of the Sierras, the energies of the sparse population that had settled on the banks of the Tuolumne River in that area that subsequently became the imperial county of Stanislaus were devoted to agriculture and grazing.

While the desire of the settlers on the bottomlands of the Tuolumne River to promote their own agricultural interests was a potent factor in the creation of the new county, fundamentally the strife between the two wings of the Democracy in this state and the effort of the Broderick followers to secure another senatorial vote for their chieftain in the Legislature and to thereby insure his election to the United States Senate was the moving cause for the carving of the new county out of the western portion of the older domain. Interesting, indeed, is this story that carries the reader back to the ante-bellum days when the fight was strong between the slavery and the anti-slavery elements of the Democratic party in California.

A native of New York and the son of an obscure stonecutter, who died when the son was only 14 years of age, David C. Broderick, by his indomitable will and forceful tactics, compelled the Democratic party of California to acknowledge his power and supremacy. In early life he followed the trade of his father. Allied with the Tammany organization, he was a Bowery leader and an active member of the fire department of New York City—the political machine of that day. A great favorite among his companions and with his neighbors, he received the nomination of his district in New York for the United States Senatorship, but was defeated through the influence and the efforts of the aristocratic friends of President Polk. The ambition of his life was to be a member of the United States Senate. His anger at his defeat was so intense that he left New York for California, asserting that he would never return to his native state until he should go as a senator of the United States. He arrived in San Francisco in 1849. Eight years later he accomplished his life's ambition, only to be subsequently killed in the famous duel between himself and David S. Terry, his political opponent and implacable foe. In the Senate, Broderick defied his party, voted against the Kansas-Nebraska bill which favored slavery, denounced the president, espoused the cause of Stephen A. Douglas, and by his general attitude of independence and opposition to slavery invoked the wrath and condemnation of the pro-slavery wing of the Democratic party in California, which called upon him to resign from his position. Broderick was an interesting personality, a self-made man, and possessed of a towering intellect and a powerful physique. He was fearless in the advocacy of that which he deemed the right.

The fight for the organization of Stanislaus County took shape early in the session of the Legislature of 1854, which convened at Benicia, but adjourned to the new capital, Sacramento. As a candidate for the United States Senate, Broderick sought to induce the Legislature to pass his famous election bill, which authorized the Legislature to vote for United States Senator two years before he could take his seat in the national body. The ordinary practice had been to elect the preceding year. Though an unusual and audacious proceeding, none could assert that it was illegal. Broderick assumed that if this measure were adopted his election to the Senate of the United States would be assured. It was a battle royal. Into it entered all the bitterness and vindictiveness, as well as all the acumen and intrigue, that the political giants of the early day could muster.

The Assembly was safe for the Broderick bill, but the Senate was doubtful. The divided Democrats, torn asunder by intecine feuds, were brought together to defeat the plotting of Broderick. In this contest, powerful political and financial influences were arrayed against each other on both sides. Money was freely used. Senator Peck, on the floor of the Senate, openly declared that Palmer, of the banking house of Palmer, Cooke & Company, had offered him $5,000 to vote for the bill to insure the election of Broderick. It was a big game of politics that was being played in the Legislature. Peck and Grewell, both senators, were held prisoners by the Broderick contingent—the former to prevent his voting and the latter to forestall his being intimidated by the opposition. Grewell at first was opposed to the bill, but later, for certain causes, espoused the Broderick program and announced that he favored the measure. The leader of the opposition to Broderick was William Gwin, one of the first two United States Senators from California, who was desirous of succeeding himself and who, during the Civil War, was confined for treason. He also was possessed of strong financial resources, which he marshaled to the best advantage.

The Assembly voted for the bill by a majority of three votes. The Senate was known, as the developments subsequently demonstrated, to be a tie on the measure, with Lieutenant-Governor Purdy holding the balance of power and being favorable to the Broderick program. In this situation, one or two more votes were an indispensable necessity, hence the effort to secure the additional vote in the creation of the new County of Stanislaus and in the allotment to it of a state senator. Purdy carried the measure by his vote in the Senate. Grewell was kidnaped from the men whom the Broderick supporters had secured to hold him in custody pending the vote, when the Terry adherents found them in a drunken stupor. In the Senate on the next day, intimidated or purchased, and faithless to the cause, Grewell moved for a reconsideration, and on the roll-call voted against the measure. The immediate chances of Broderick to secure the United States Senatorship were shattered by a majority of two votes against his election bill.

On the 26th of January, 1854, Hon. B. D. Horr, a Broderick Democrat and subsequently a Republican, as a member of the Assembly from Tuolumne County and a resident of the Stanislaus portion of the district, took the initiative in the movement for the creation of the new county and for the gaining of another senator for his leader. Horr was one of the early-day lawyers on the plains of Stanislaus. He achieved eminent success as a criminal practitioner, possessing the record of acquitting all of his clients in those primitive times. A man of ripe legal learning and classic education, he was an eloquent pleader and possessed a suave personality. One of the first settlers on the Tuolumne River at a very early period, his residence was at Horr's Ranch, named after him, a small settlement east of the present town of Waterford. He was an intense partisan of Broderick and was antagonistic to slavery, espousing the Union cause during the Civil War and leaving the Democratic party when the cleavage came. In harmony with the plan determined upon, Horr presented a petition from a number of the residents of his locality praying for the formation of the new county. This petition was referred to the Assembly committee on counties and boundaries, consisting of E. O. F. Hastings of Sutter, William S. Letcher of Santa Clara, B. D. Horr of Tuolumne, Pedro C. Carillo of Santa Barbara and Martin Rowan of Calaveras.

In the act providing for the creation of the new county as finally passed by the Assembly, the title of "Stanislaus" was selected rather than that of "Merced," which was the name given in the original bill—"Stanislaus" being the name of the principal river in the proposed district and the name by which the locality was generally known. It was also provided that Stanislaus County should form the twenty-fifth senatorial district and that two of the five assemblymen allotted to Tuolumne County should be assigned to Stanislaus. This act represented the ambitious scheme of the Broderick organization in its effort to insure the election of its master.

After its transmission to the Senate the political features of the act were eliminated by the opposition and Broderick thereby failed to secure the senator so sorely needed to consummate his ambition—the one vote that would have given him the election at this session of the Legislature. After much parliamentary maneuvering in the Senate, the act was so amended as to permit Stanislaus to elect one assemblyman and to remain in the seventh senatorial district, as it theretofore had been, composed of the counties of Tuolumne and Stanislaus. This act as thus amended was adopted by the Legislature, but Broderick failed to obtain the additional senator.

When this act for the creation of the new county came up for its initial consideration March 22, 1854, there was a strenuous effort made to rush the measure through the Senate. It might have succeeded, had not its progress been delayed by the offering of an amendment by one of the senators who sensed the scheme. This amendment deprived the bill of the advantage that it was designed to secure. After this episode, it experienced hard sledding in the Senate. Had the plan met with the contemplated success, and in view of the fate of Broderick's audacious bill to practically elect himself to the United States Senate one year ahead of the allotted time, the presumption was that an election would have been ordered at the earliest moment for the

CLARA BARTON HOSPITAL AND NURSES' SCHOOL

The Clara Barton Hospital, situated at 447 South Olive street, Los Angeles, was incorporated several years ago by Dr. H. P. Barton, nephew of Clara Barton, founder of the National Red Cross. Under his able management it has come to be recognized as one of the most complete and efficient in the State. All reputable and representative physicians have access to it, thus enabling patients to have the attendance of their own family physician, if they so desire.

The hospital has accommodations for one hundred patients, and is equipped throughout with every modern convenience for their care and comfort. The operating rooms are not excelled by those of any hospital in the State, and special efforts are made to carry out the technique of the operating surgeon.

A Training School for Nurses is conducted in connection with the hospital. A corps of sixty-five nurses, under the careful instruction of proficient teachers, render patients every attention. This school is an accredited one, and is registered in New York state, where the requirements are the most exacting. Pupils' applications are received at any time, and appointments made in the order of application.

Situated near the heart of the city, the Clara Barton Hospital is of easy access to patients and physicians alike. Applications for reservations should be directed to Dr. H. P. Barton, Clara Barton Hospital, Los Angeles.—Advertisement.

return of a state senator. By the aid of such influence as would have been brought to bear to secure him of the proper stripe, it was hoped that by the preponderance which his vote would have given to the Broderick party it would have been able to have forced the election of a United States Senator at this session of the Legislature.

In accordance with the provisions of this act, the board of commissioners named in it—John D. Patterson, Eli S. Marvin, G. D. Dickenson, John W. Laird and Richard Harmer—met at Dickenson's Ferry Monday, May 29, 1854, and designated the election precincts and appointed the officers of the election to be held June 10th of that year. At this election Adamsville, then a small town about two miles southwest of the site upon which is now located the City of Modesto, and situated on land owned by Dr. Adams—a settlement that dated back to the year 1849, and which has long since passed out of existence—was selected as the first county-seat of Stanislaus County.

The following officers were elected to serve the newly-formed county: H. W. Wallis, county judge; W. D. Kirk, sheriff; R. McGarvey, clerk, recorder and auditor; W. H. Martin, treasurer; S. P. Seaniker, district attorney; E. B. Beard, assessor and superintendent of schools; Silas Wilcox, surveyor; Heth Williams, coroner. The first supervisors of Stanislaus County were D. B. Gardner, J. M. Newsom and Robert Smith, and their first session was held May 7, 1855.

The board of commissioners met at Empire City June 15, 1854, canvassed the vote, and declared the result of the election. The county judge, the Hon. H. W. Wallis, took the oath of office before the president of the board of commissioners, and entered upon the duties of his office immediately. The other county officers were sworn into office by the county judge, and Stanislaus County, possessing a complete set of officers, thereupon became a full-fledged county of the State of California and began its historic career.

(Editor's Note—David C. Broderick was elected to the State Senate from San Francisco, sitting in the first, second and third sessions; was president of the second Senate, and was the acting lieutenant-governor 1851-2; January 10, 1857, was chosen United States Senator, which position he held at the time of his death, September 16, 1859.)

A CALIFORNIA INDUSTRY WITH A NATIONAL REPUTATION.

The Cawston Ostrich Farm at South Pasadena has been known throughout America as one of the show-places of Southern California for more than a quarter-century, not only through national advertising, but by word of mouth through the army of visitors who annually make it popular as "one of the interesting sights" of America. Ever since the ostrich-feather industry has been known in America the name "Cawston" has been identified with it, for Cawston is the man who established it. The early history of the farm is entwined with romance and interest.

Cawston chartered a vessel and made a voyage to Africa for the purpose of selecting the best birds he could buy. The peculiar dietary habits of the birds, and the uncertainty of their seafaring abilities involved many a problem in arranging for their transportation across the ocean. The birds were caged in padded enclosures on the boat which, by the way, was loaded with several tons of gravel, the favorite dessert of the ostrich. Cawston was just in time to avoid the prohibitory export duty which the people of Africa very promptly placed upon the birds and upon the eggs, otherwise the ostrich-feather industry would perhaps even now not include the growing of the birds.

The southern part of California was chosen as the home of the Cawston Ostrich Farm because of the adaptability of the semi-tropic climate. Cawston's judgment has never been in question, for the birds have thrived and from a small institution the farm has grown until today its productions are marketed very widely throughout all America. Although many changes have been effected from time to time to keep pace with the growing demands and with the march of progress, many of the old landmarks of the Cawston Ostrich Farm of more than thirty years ago still exist. Comparatively few people residing in California are as well informed on the sightseeing attractions of the place as are Eastern visitors.

The ostrich is a peculiar bird and a real sport. He is very fond of "sparklers." He perhaps comes by this honestly, inasmuch as he is a native of South Africa, where diamonds really germinate. The ostrich would just as soon eat the most precious gem-stone as the cheapest imitation. He is, however, no respector of values. A gold-plated watch fob or watch chain, or the sparkling earrings, or even the lighted pipe protruding from the face of the tourist all look alike to him. For the protection of visitors, however, the birds are kept in corrals which are staunchly fenced. The process of raising ostriches by natural methods is, however, too slow, so modern principles have been employed. Huge incubators are used to germinate the ugly chicks which soon become giant birds. The eggs sometimes weigh as much as three pounds each. The ostrich lives a contented married life, and as a rule after once mating worries but little about affinities.

It is interesting to watch the guide feed the ostriches whole oranges; sometimes one will have a dozen or more of them on the way down his long throat all at the same time; he eats them first and masticates them afterwards. Occasionally there are such performances as riding and driving the ostriches. The plucking of the ostrich is accomplished with absolutely no injury or pain to the birds; the word "plucking" is really a misnomer, as the feathers are clipped.

Perhaps the most conspicuous thing about the Cawston Ostrich Farm, however, is the highly developed manufacturing equipment and corps of expert ostrich workers. It is significant that its ostrich productions have won the highest honors in competition with the whole world at no less than nine international expositions. Designers are employed to create new ostrich styles, and it is a fact significant of note that to a large extent at least the ostrich styles of the country are created right here in California.

While the products of the Cawston Ostrich Farm were originally very largely confined to luxurious plumes for which the name "Cawston" has become so nationally famous, the scope of production has greatly widened until today the plume is only one of its many specialties. The luxurious fan of milady's evening adornment is perhaps the most popular of all the productions. There are, however, many other clever creations, such as the dainty ostrich trimmed bags for matinee and party wear, and beautiful ostrich neckpieces, some of them small neck throws and others elegant capes. There are many styles of turbans and hats in which ostrich feathers are employed exclusively. There are comfortable and very smart muffs, and all sorts of fancy gown and hat decorations, pompoms and flowers, and dear knows what not. From a modest beginning the Cawston Ostrich Farm has developed today into a national necessity catering to the demands of fashion and fancy, and contributing to the adornment of milady beautiful.

KROTONA, THE CENTER OF THEOSOPHY IN AMERICA

Krotona is the home of Krotona Institute of Theosophy, organized in 1912 to promote the teachings and practical demonstrations of theosophical principles. At Krotona is the Headquarters of the Theosophical Society in America, a branch of the International Society of which Mrs. Annie Besant of India is president. Krotona is set in the foothills of the Santa Monica Mountains, overlooking lovely Hollywood. The electrics pass one block from the grounds, and a thirty-minute ride puts one in the center of Los Angeles.

The school at Krotona provides courses which present theosophy in its various aspects as synthetic religion, science, and art and philosophy. The students come from all over the world, and represent the greatest diversity in race, religion and methods of training,—united and drawn to Krotona by their love of the ideal of Universal Brotherhood,—the first principle of the Theosophical Society. A branch of the Theosophical Publishing House of India has been established at Krotona and publishes and sells books and pamphlets in all branches of theosophy, occultism and allied subjects. One of the largest Occult Libraries in America is a part of Krotona Institute, and is free for the use of students and visitors. A well-equipped Scientific Research Laboratory has been established in "The Science Hall," where research work is going on in the subtler fields of physics and chemistry, psychology and psychic research, in the endeavor to prove by scientific means the existence of the conscious universal life, manifesting in everything, uninterrupted by physical death, and capable of infinite expansion through the consciousness of man.

The public is cordially invited to visit beautiful Krotona. The grounds and buildings are always open. Demonstrations are frequently given in the laboratory, and lectures are held every Sunday at 3:00 p. m. The officers of the American Section of the Theosophical Society and the directors of Krotona Institute extend a cordial invitation to all to familiarize with Krotona and its manifold activities for uplift and brotherhood.—Advertisement.

Native Sons of the Golden West

"CARRY ON!"

Some forty-five Parlors have made substantial increases in membership during the term of Grand President William P. Caubu, and under date of March 12 he sent this letter to them:

"Dear Sirs and Brothers:

"My term as Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West is fast drawing to a close, and from the reports given to me I feel that I must extend to you my sincere thanks and appreciation for your fine gain in membership. For the past year the net gain in membership in our Order will be close to two thousand.

"Now is the time to 'carry on.' This year is started well; the young men are interested; they are waiting to be asked. Have the new candidate propose the name of his eligible friend or friends. Keep the membership ball rolling. We want to double that net gain for our next Grand President, James F. Hoey.

"With sincere thanks from your grateful Grand President, and with best wishes for your continued growth and active interest in the work of our Order, I am

"Sincerely and Fraternally Yours,

W. P. Caubu

"Grand President, N.S.G.W."

Initiates Twenty-six.

Sacramento— A class of twenty-six candidates were initiated by Sunset 26 March 1. After the ceremonies a banquet was enjoyed by the 180 members in attendance. Superior Judges Peter J. Shields and Malcolm C. Glenn were the speakers, and vaudeville numbers made up the entertainment program.

Sunset will propose John J. Monteverde for Grand Trustee at the San Diego Grand Parlor—the same "Monte" who is largely responsible for the splendid Native Sons' building here. Every Parlor in Sacramento County, and there are seven of them, has endorsed his candidacy.

No More Hesitating.

Suisun—Solano 39 is rapidly getting back on its feet, having added nineteen new members since January 1. At the class initiation February 17, when fourteen candidates were brought in, Brothers Dimpfel, Guberson, Palmer and Ostrowski of Vallejo 77 assisted in the initiatory work.

Secretary John J. McCarron is taking a very active part in the anti-Jap campaign, and is a staunch advocate for initiative legislation. "He who hesitates is lost; no more hesitating on this Jap question," says McCarron. "When we show John P. Irish and other Jap advocates that we mean business, they will stop."

Wisely Spoken

Persistant in Behalf of Homeless Children.

Courtland—Since Thanksgiving Eve, Courtland 106 has persisted in an endeavor to hold a monster dance for the benefit of the homeless children. On that occasion a wind which threatened to make the homes of the peaceful Sacramento River community roofless blew terror into the hearts of even the courageous dancers, hence no attendance, save a hired orchestra. Soon after this occasion of the defeat of good intentions in behalf of the homeless kiddies, the newly-instituted Victory 216, N.D.G.W., joined their brothers in Courtland in an endeavor to turn defeat into victory. Stimulated by "Victory," the valiant Native Sons proposed a joint dance for February 21. That widely-advertised dance found Sacramento County in the grip of the second "flu" epidemic. The sick couldn't come, and the well didn't dare, so the night of the 21st found the ballroom bare. Undaunted by a second defeat, the joint Parlors prepared for a dinner-dance March 20. They were rewarded by the presence of the largest crowd that ever attended a joint undertaking in Courtland.

Too much credit cannot be given Berkeley 210, N.S.G.W., for its assistance in making this dance a financial success. Not satisfied with having led the Alameda County Parlors in the returns for their recent joint benefit dance for the homeless children, it contributed the music gratis and the presence of sixteen of its members to the Courtland dance. Courtland and Victory Parlors being imbued with the thought that too much publicity cannot be given to this noble undertaking of the Order, prevailed upon Grand Trustee William J. Hayes to attend the dance and, in his able way, explain not only to the Native Sons and Daughters the magnitude of this movement, but also to the friends and relatives of the members who were present at the dinner-dance. The success of this affair has proven to Courtland Native Sons and Daughters the value of an undying spirit in behalf of a movement for so worthy a cause.

Unite in District Meeting.

Wheatland—The Parlors of District No. 18—Marysville 6, Silver Star 63 (Lincoln) and Rainbow 40 (Wheatland)—met here in joint session March 11 and a drill team from Silver Star Parlor exemplified the ritual for four candidates—three from Silver Star and one from Rainbow.

A big, "live" crowd was in attendance, among the visitors being Grand President William P. Caubu of San Francisco, Superior Judge E. P. McDaniels and Judge J. M. Morrissey of Marysville. Following the business session a banquet was enjoyed and several good talks were listened to. It is the intention to hold a district meeting each year, as a means of promoting the Parlors' interests and goodfellowship among their members.

Wants Native Daughter Parlor.

Palo Alto—March 15 another class of six candidates were initiated by Palo Alto 216, Father Geo. Lacombe, the new pastor of Mayfield, being one of the class. The work was exceptionally well put on by the officers. Grand Third Vice-president Harry G. Williams of Oakland dropped in during the evening rather unexpectedly, giving the members an exceptionally good talk; he complimented the officers on their work, and the Parlor on its growth. The Good of the Order Committee had prepared a nice "feed," to which all did justice. Numerous brothers were called on and gave interesting talks.

March 14 the Parlor ball team journeyed to Mountain View, where they played against the Mountain View brothers, winning in a very close game. The Parlor's drum corps is being reorganized, and getting in trim for the spring and summer months. John De Guerrero has that work in hand, and feels confident this will be one of the best drum corps in the state. Dr. Geo. N. Hall, who has been sick for some time, is improving, and the other brothers who have been on the sick list have fully recovered. The last games of the series of whist parties which was inaugurated some time ago will be played April 12.

A committee of three has been appointed by Palo Alto Parlor to consult with the Grand President of the Native Daughters as to the possibility of having a Parlor of the Native Daughters established in Palo Alto. The boys who have been in the habit of visiting Mountain View 215 and enjoyed the social meetings of the Mountain View Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters, being much impressed are anxious to have a Native Daughter Parlor established here, so that similar joint affairs may be enjoyed.

Mayfield now furnishes a large percent of the membership of Palo Alto Parlor, and they are some Natives, too. Many of them seldom miss a regular meeting and they take great interest in the future of the Parlor. Past President P. A. Crowley is one of them; "Pat," as he is familiarly known, is one of the best-thought-of Natives on the Peninsula; he is the chief of police, as well as street superintendent and tax collector of this thriving and growing city. Father Lacombe, in his talk when initiated, promised the greatest future for Mayfield. March 29 another class of thirteen will be admitted into Palo Alto Parlor; this will raise the membership to more than 165.

Takes On New Life.

Richmond—By means of a tag day, inaugurated by Richmond 217, $121.25 has been sent to the Homeless Children's Committee. The Parlor was assisted in the work by Richmond 147, N.D.G.W., several young women from the high school and a committee from the one-minute girls. "Tag day" will be repeated every year in future.

Under the splendid leadership of the new president, Dr. Chas. R. Blake, Richmond Parlor has taken on new life, and applications are coming in so lively that it is predicted the membership will be doubled during 1920. Social features are being given special attention.

Celebrates Institution Anniversary.

Pittsburg—Diamond 246 celebrated its eleventh institution anniversary, with a banquet which was attended by members of General Winn 32 (Antioch) and Stirling Parlor 146, N.D.G.W., of this city. Accompanying the Antioch delegation was Judge William H. Langdon, Grand Trustee, who delivered a stirring address on the state's history and traditions.

Among the other speakers were W. G. H. Croxon, who presented an emblematic jewel on behalf of the Parlor to Frank Buckley, retiring president, William Abrams and Jos. M. McAvoy.

Hears of Missions.

San Francisco—Pacific 10 had a membership rally and smoker March 9, when a splendid program was presented. Judge William H. Waste (Berkeley 210) delivered a most interesting illustrated address on the California missions, and remarks pertaining to the Order were made by Grand President William P. Caubu and Past Grand President Daniel A. Ryan. Several vaudeville numbers and boxing bouts were also introduced.

Goes Over the Top.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead 110 initiated a class of four March 10 and went over the top far enough to gain an additional candidate to the San Diego Grand Parlor.

No Parlor in the Order has been making greater strides forward than Arrowhead. In the past year it has more than doubled its membership, and the meetings are full of "pep" and well attended. Arrangements are already under way for this year's Admission Day outing at Big Bear.

Another N. S. Building to Rise.

San Leandro—Estudillo 223, along with most of the other Parlors, is "carrying on," and has added several new names to its roster-roll.

The Parlor has decided to build its own home, to include up-to-date clubrooms. President W. J. Gannon is one of the prime movers in the enterprise, and has the support of a united membership. Stock is being rapidly subscribed for.

Grand Trustee Performs Miracle.

Berkeley—Grand Trustee Chas. A. Thompson after having to postpone his previous intended visit to Berkeley 210 because of illness, arrived in Berkeley the evening of March 2, motoring up from Santa Clara with several members of San Mateo 23, including Chief of Police Wright. Perhaps it was well that he chose such protection, for be admitted that he had established a record that would eclipse an acroplane flight; causes, distance too great, time too short. Awaiting his arrival were nearly eighty members who had come without notifying the Good of the Order Committee and this necessitated the chairman's calling upon the Grand Trustee to perform the miracle of the barley-loaves and fishes. Grand Trustee Thompson was equal to the occasion, proving to the members that his friendly relations with the Native Daughters would work miracles. It was because of the presence of the Grand Trustee that the Native Daughters responded to the "S.O.S." and invited the Native Sons to join them in a banquet which they had prepared in honor of their visiting Grand President.

Berkeley Parlor members have been gaining a reputation as visitors, and to such a degree has its orchestra gained a reputation that it was invited by Courtland 106 to play for its homeless children benefit dance March 20. A delegation of twenty members left Berkeley that noon and after being most hospitably entertained by the members of Courtland Parlor and Victory 216, N.D.G.W., returned home late Sunday evening. The dance was attended by more than 150 couples. The magnificent success which the Courtland Natives made of this benefit should inspire all to have courage in spite of seeming defeat. It is safe to estimate that the Courtland Parlors will subscribe the largest amount, per capita, of any Parlors in the state for homeless children.

More power to the Courtlanders, and long live their good example!

Berkeley Parlor will send a large and enthusiastic delegation to the San Diego Grand Parlor to work for the election of Grand Trustee William J. Hayes to the Grand Third Vice-presidency. In addition to the delegates-elect, the "boost" party will include: J. Geo. Moore, C. F. Fraser, R. J. Garrett and W. C. Latham.

Will Stage Big Show.

Oakland—Athens 195 will stage a big street carnival the week commencing April 5, for benefit of its building fund. All Native Sons of Alameda County are looking forward to the big show, and "Happy Land" will be their mecca during that week. Grand Mogul E. F. Garrison and his company of stars from Athens Parlor will surprise Oakland with their original stunts: Brother Barnet, the snake charmer, is a scream; Brother Gerhard, in "The Naked Truth," Brother Hearn as little Jeff, Brother Corrigan as the human skeleton, Brother Miller as Stella, Brother Carroll and five dancing girls, Brother Biven as Big Dick, Brothers Farley, Guild, Lewis, Chanquet, Rudey, Snyder, Costa, Johns, Hollis, the original Diving Girls.

Each night is set aside for some fraternal order. The opening night U. C. boys have the stage; Tuesday is Elks' night, Wednesday Moose night, Thursday Foresters' night, Friday Native Daughters' night, Saturday Athens' night. Besides the Parlor's own stunts, a road show with all the usual paraphernalia will be in "Happy Land." It promises to be the big event of the year, and the boys expect to raise a substantial sum for the building fund. March 17, Athens Parlor passed a motion endorsing Wm. J. Hayes for Grand Third Vice-president and instructed the delegates to the San Diego Grand Parlor to vote for him.

"Side Degree" Fun Creator.

Livermore—Las Positas 96 is making steady progress, initiations being of frequent occurrence. Grand Trustee William J. Hayes of Berkeley officially visited the Parlor March 4, when there was a large attendance. The Parlor has a "side degree" which creates a lot of fun when new-member victims are "put through."

"Night in Baloon Land."

San Francisco—Balboa 204 had an official visit from Grand Third Vice-president Harry G. Williams of Oakland February 24 and also initiated several candidates. At a banquet following the meeting Supervisor William S. Scott acted as toastmaster and the guest of honor delivered an address in the course of which he highly complimented the Parlor.

March 2 the Parlor featured a "Night in Baloon Land." Those who were responsible for its success were: M. J. Moriarity, Andrew Murray, Edward Anderson, Charles Dechent, Edward Bordenave, Leslie Anfinson, Dr. A. Gottschalk, H. H. Brugge, W. C. Seifert.

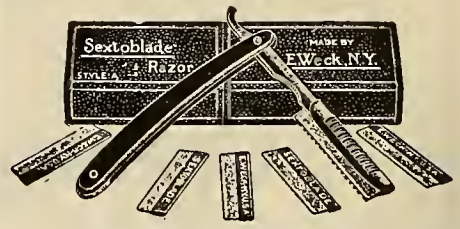

Initiates Five.

Calistoga—Calistoga 86 had a lengthy meeting March 1, when five candidates were initiated and Grand Third Vice-president Harry G. Williams of Oakland paid his official visit. A banquet was enjoyed.

Has Busy Month.

Merced—Yosemite 24 elected delegates to the San Diego Grand Parlor March 9. At the suggestion of Grand President William P. Caubu a committee composed of D. K. Stoddard, Judge E. N. Rector and C. W. Kahl was appointed to confer with local officials, ministers, newspapermen and civic bodies regarding restoration of the missions.

March 16 several candidates were initiated, unusual "pep" being displayed. Stanley Peard and Jack Graham had charge of an elaborate banquet, to which the Masons, meeting in an adjoining hall, were invited. A splendid example of fraternalism was exemplified, and interesting addresses were made by Scott Hughes for the Masons, and Judge E. N. Rector and C. W. Kahl for the Native Sons.

In a hall beautifully decorated in California colors, the Parlor gave a St. Patrick's ball March 17. It was a splendid success, over 200 couples participating. Past Grand President William F. Toomey and wife of Fresno led the grand march. F. A. Paul and Miss Rachael Buecholz of Alameda were the winners in the prize waltz. Refreshments were served throughout the evening. The dance was given for the benefit of a fund being raised to erect an electric sign over Yosemite's clubrooms in Masonic Temple, and about $100 was realized. Grand Outside Sentinel I. H. Reuter was chairman of the Dance Committee, and D. K. Stoddard looked after the refreshments.

Gains Additional Delegate.

Hayward—Eden 113, by the addition of fifty new members during the past year, will have an additional delegate at the San Diego Grand Parlor. A clubroom has been fitted out in the Parlor's own home, the first Native Sons' building ever erected, where the members may spend their leisure hours.

At San Diego the Parlor will ask the re-election of State Senator Frank M. Carr as Grand Trustee, basing the request on his record as a grand officer and its increase in membership.

Helps Sister Organization.

Colusa—Colusa 69 gave an informal dance and chicken supper March 9 for the purpose of arousing interest in Colusa 194, N.D.G.W. Grand President Mary E. Bell of San Francisco and D.D.G.P. Kate Kincaid of Woodland were present, and secured the applications of eighteen eligible native daughters, who will be initiated April 5 by a ritual team from Woodland 90, N.D.G.W. A. E. Clement, L. Houchins and W. G. Davison was the committee in charge for Colusa Parlors of Native Sons.

Grand President Bell gave a history of the Order of Native Daughters, told of the things it is doing, and the plans it has for the future; she outlined its principles which, she declared, made for better citizenship and more patriotism, and declared those eligible would be well rewarded by affiliation.

Champion Bowlers.

San Francisco—At the close of a sixteen-week Native Sons' bowling tournament the team of Golden Gate 29 was declared the champion. The team finished the contest with a percentage of .897, winning thirty-five contests and losing but four.

PERSONAL MENTION.

W. H. Johnston (Byron 170) of Santa Rosa is enjoying a three months' vacation in Honolulu, T. H.

Assemblyman Clifton E. Brooks (Piedmont 120) of Oakland has returned from an Eastern visit.

Theodore A. Bell (Napa 62) of San Francisco was a visitor to the National Capital last month.

Christian C. Holtum (San Francisco 49) of San Francisco went to Los Angeles last month to recuperate after the "flu."

Federal Judge Maurice T. Dooling (Past Grand President) of San Francisco, who is slowly recovering from an auto accident, has been in Arizona.

Lewis F. Byington (Past Grand President) of San Francisco recently addressed the history and landmarks section of the New Century Club at Napa.

Frank M. Silva (Napa 62) of San Francisco has resigned as assistant United States district attorney to take the office of Federal prohibition enforcement officer.

Carl A. Heilbron (San Diego 108) of San Diego is planning a trip to St. Louis, Missouri, about the middle of this month.

Grand President William P. Canbn and Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker, both of San Francisco, went to Areata, Humboldt County, March 19 in the interest of Areata 20. A visit was also paid to Humboldt 14 at Eureka.

Dr. Chas. A. Cale, President

N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W.: Your attention is here called to the leading Chiropractic college in California,—your native State. Now is the time to study Chiropractic. Three school sessions and two clinics are held daily.

Students may enter at any time. The new school year opens in June. Write or call for catalogue. You will be called on to VOTE for a straight STATE CHIROPRACTIC EXAMINING BOARD at the November election.

Native Sons of the Golden West and Native Daughters of the Golden West are invited to visit the Los Angeles Chiropractic College at any time,—forenoon, afternoon, or evening classes.

Chiropractic corrective therapeutics,—i. e. spinal adjustments of subluxated vertebrae, CURE many hundreds of patients of almost every form of maladies when other "tried methods" have failed. CHIROPRACTIC is the new "TWENTIETH CENTURY" method of healing. The tuition now reduced.—Advertisement.

In Memoriam

ALBERT FOSTER JONES, Past Grand Pres., N.S.G.W.

To the Officers and Members of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, N.S.G.W.—We, the committee appointed to draft resolutions of condolence and respect to the momry of our departed brother, Albert Foster Jones, Past Grand President, and past president of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, N.S.G.W., respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has called from our midst our dearly beloved and respected brother, Albert Foster Jones, thus removing from earthly labor and the councils of our beloved Order one of our most devoted and loyal members and a true and faithful friend; and the sorrow we feel of his untimely passing from this life, renders us inadequate and unequal to the task of properly recording the loss sustained by our fraternity, the interests of which he labored so faithfully and untiringly to advance; whereas, we have lost a good and true brother, his family a devoted husband and loving father, a dutiful loving son and brother and the community a most loyal citizen who, on account of his many public activities, will be greatly missed; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, Native Sons of the Golden West, hereby extends its sincerest sympathy to the bereaved relatives in their hour of sorrow; resolved, that while we record our deepest grief because of his death, we express our greatest admiration for those exceptional qualities which he possessed and which were ever used in the interest of the Order and the native state he loved so well, and will serve as an inspiration to those with whom he was associated; resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the members of his family, a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine, "Oroville Register" and "Oroville Mercury" for publication, and that they be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor.

FRANK M. KELLY.

Whereas, God Almighty, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to call to the Grand Parlor on High our esteemed brother, Frank M. Kelly, who has answered the final roll-call and departed from this life to take his place in the Great Beyond. We deeply deplore the loss of our worthy brother, and feel that after living such a good and upright life, his happiness beyond his watery grave is assured. To him belongs the honor and glory that come only to those who have offered up their lives in the cause of liberty and humanity. Before the altar of our Parlor our deceased brother pledged his allegiance to his country and his flag, and he has kept that pledge, even to the making of the supreme sacrifice. As the years pass by, the golden star in our service flag will ever remind us of the service he has rendered, and that there is something more than sentiment in that love of country and loyalty to the flag which our ritual teaches. In offering this tribute to his memory, we trust that time, which alone can console the afflicted, may lessen the grief of those by whom he was loved and cherished; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the officers and members of Piedmont Parlor, No. 120, Native Sons of the Golden West, extend their condolence to the bereaved mother and sisters of our departed brother, in their hour of affliction; and be it further resolved, that the charter of our Parlor be draped in mourning, and that a page of our minutes upon which this testimonial be spread be dedicated to his memory, and that a copy of this testimonial be sent to the relatives of our departed brother.

Respectfully submitted in Friendship, Loyalty and Charity,

ELLA LUCILLE McKISSON JAMES.

To the Officers and Members of Sequoia Parlor, No. 160, N.D.G.W.: We, the undersigned committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect and condolence to the memory of our departed sister, Ella Lucille McKisson James, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, By dispensation of a Divine Providence the Angel of Death has taken from Sequoia Parlor, No. 160, N.D.G.W., a dear and beloved member who was respected and loved by all who knew her and whose loss is deeply felt by all, especially those nearest and dearest to her.

"None knew her but to love her,
None named her but to praise."

Resolved, That while bowing in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, we do not the less mourn for our sister who has been called to the Grand Parlor on High; resolved, that in the untimely death of Sister James, this Parlor has lost an honored and faithful member, and her family a devoted wife and daughter; and be it further resolved, that the members of Sequoia Parlor do condole with the family of our deceased sister, and earnestly hope that the healing influence of time may ease their affliction and enable them to bear up with courage until the time when they shall meet their loved one in the great beyond; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our departed sister; that the resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, and a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

ALBERT FOSTER JONES, Past Grand Pres., N.S.G.W.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst our friend and brother, Albert Foster Jones; and, whereas, Brother Jones was a Past Grand President of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West, having been in the early days of the Order's history one of its most untiring workers and having attended the Grand Parlors each year with mind and heart devoted to the best interests and to the progress of the Order he loved so well; those who encountered his bluff greeting, his warm handclasp and his hearty cheer will feel the loss in the going of this brother to his eternal rest; and, whereas, Albert F. Jones so loved the state of his birth that he lost no opportunity to serve its interests; his public life was one of honest, unselfish effort to promote those things which tended to the upbuilding of the state and community and to the uplifting of the people; his tender care of those in need, his kind words of cheer and encouragement will live ever in the minds of those who could call him friend; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Ramona Parlor, No. 109, Native Sons of the Golden West, expresses its sorrow in the passing of Brother Jones and extends its sincere sympathy to the bereaved loved ones and to the members of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, in this hour of their sad loss; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of Ramona Parlor, that copies be sent to the family of the deceased brother and to Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, and that a copy be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

LOUISE WOOD.

God in His wisdom has seen fit to remove from our Parlor, severing the link which bound us together and calling to her eternal home, our dearly beloved sister, Louise Wood, who passed to rest February 11, 1920, surrounded by her loved ones.

Whereas, Believing in the infinite wisdom of Almighty God, Who has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved sister, while we shall sadly miss her dear presence we know that in the Heavenly Parlor to which she has gone she has received the reward so nobly earned.

Resolved, That we are with the bereaved ones who are left to mourn her loss in their dark and trying hour; our hearts are bowed in sympathy, and may God, our Father, comfort their aching hearts and may they trust Him, Who doeth all things well; and further be it resolved, that these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our Parlor, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

MARVIN E. STOREY.

To the Officers and Members of Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, N.S.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed brother, Marvin E. Storey, submit the following:

Whereas, Our Parlor has been again visited by Death, which has claimed our highly respected brother, Marvin Edwin Storey; and whereas, the sudden passing of one of our youngest members has cast a gloom over our Parlor on account of his many qualities that won for him the respect and lasting friendship of those with whom he became acquainted; while Brother Storey was young in years and in the deliberations of our Order, his zeal in its work, combined with industry, keen intellect and enthusiasm for the principles of the Order, gave promise of making him a most active and valued member of our Parlor to assist in the work of the future; and whereas, in his passing from this life his parents have sustained the loss of a loving son, our Parlor a beloved and respected member, and our community a young man just entering upon a bright and useful career; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That Argonaut Parlor, No. 8, Native Sons of the Golden West, extends to the bereaved family its sincere sympathy in their sad affliction, and we hereby record our deepest grief because of his untimely passing from this life; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, an engrossed copy be sent to the bereaved family, and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine, "Oroville Register" and "Oroville Mercury" for publication.

HISTORY OF SAN DIEGO CITY

The Horton Period. The history of modern San Diego really begins in 1867, when Alonzo E. Horton became interested in the prospects of the wonderful harbor. He visited San Diego in the spring of that year and conceived the idea that the city should be built directly on the bay, and that it would be an excellent speculation.

New Town at that time consisted of the government barracks, two or three small dwellings and store buildings and the ruins of the old Davis wharf. Horton selected the site for his town about four miles south of Old Town, on the water front near New Town. He bought nine hundred and sixty acres for $265, or a little over twenty-seven cents per acre. The land was covered with cactus and sagebrush.

The "father" of San Diego at once laid out a townsite under the name of "Horton's Addition" and put it on the market. This tract is now the center of the present City of San Diego. At first the proposition did not take well, but the enthusiasm and energy of Horton brought San Diego to the front. He used every means to build up the town. He gave away lots to get buildings and business.

About this time the revival of the projected thirty-second parallel railroad from the Mississippi Valley to the Pacific, with San Diego as the terminus, gave Horton material to boom the place. Property began to go rapidly. Investors wanted to get there before the railroad.

The rivalry between Old Town and the Addition was keen. Old Town, having the court-house and post-office, secured most of the overland trade with Yuma. By donating a block of land, the new $75,000 court-house was secured for Horton's Addition. That was the doom of Old Town and a further boom for the Addition. The siesta of Old Town, now just past the century mark of its founding, gave way to old age and decay. The post-office followed the court-house, and Horton's Addition became San Diego.

In 1869 Horton's wharf was completed. In the same year the first public-school was opened, and a line of the Western Union telegraph was secured for San Diego. The back country was being put into crops. By 1870 the population had reached the 3,000 mark. Wharves, residences, business houses and population had gone beyond all expectations.

The First Railroad Boom. The plans of San Diego for rail connections with the East had been completely crowded out by the Civil War. In 1870 lively hopes of the speedy building of a railroad again blossomed forth. Several projects were put on foot, but they all collapsed without result. However, the city did not remain long without prospects of a transcontinental line, for March 3, 1871, a very powerful company was organized under congressional charter to build a railroad from the Mississippi Valley direct to San Diego on the thirty-second parallel. The history of this corporation, the Texas Pacific Railway Company, under the presidency of Colonel Thomas A. Scott, is part of the history of San Diego. It was on the hopes of this road that the first substantial boom was built.

In a few weeks the city was in the midst of real estate speculation. Lots advanced from $250 to $5,000 and $10,000, with plenty of buyers. Population increased by leaps and bounds. The tide of prosperity was in the flood.

In due time the Texas and Pacific began to be graded on the San Diego end. The office building and depot was begun, but before it was completed the "Black Friday" of 1873 came. This monetary panic shook the Union from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Scott was unable to carry out his scheme. San Diego's dream of a railroad vanished with the failure of Scott. For eleven years the city slept almost as drowsily as Old Town.

A Period of Slow Development. From Scott's failure in 1873 to 1880 San Diego's growth was slow and stinted. Disappointment in the fulfillment of the railroad did not kill the town, but San Diego's development was almost at a standstill. The city did, however, make some progress and on a more substantial basis than formerly. In 1875 there were only about 1,500 inhabitants out of the boom population of over twice that figure. A good many buildings were empty and out of repair. The back country, however, was being settled and cultivated and wealth and population began to show a steady annual gain. It was during this period that Frank and Warren Kimball came to the San Diego Bay region and laid out National City.

The Coming of the Santa Fé. From their first arrival the energies of the Kimball brothers were directed toward securing rail connections for San Diego. Frank Kimhall succeeded in organizing a company of the largest stockholders of the Santa Fé system to build a railroad from San Diego Bay by way of Colton to a junction with the Atlantic and Pacific, which was building from the East. A large subsidy of land and money was given by the citizens of San Diego and National City.

The California Southern Railroad was chartered October 12, 1880, for the construction of the railroad. By November, 1882, the road was completed from National City to Colton, on the line of the Southern Pacific. This was the hour the citizens of San Diego had long looked for, but their joy was cut short. The Southern Pacific served an injunction upon the California Southern preventing them from crossing their track and pushing on to connect with the Atlantic and Pacific railroad. Still darker days were in store, for in the spring of 1883-4 floods completely washed away the railroad in Temecula Canyon. Gloom again descended on San Diego. Many gave up hope and departed during the nine long months before rail communication was again reassured.

Again Frank Kimball came to the rescue and threatened to enforce the bond he held of the California Southern requiring them to operate and to complete the road to a connection with the Atlantic and Pacific. His demands were complied with.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad Company, which had assumed control of the Atlantic and Pacific, took over the California Southern. Traffic was resumed. The extension which was to link San Diego with that great system and make it the Pacific terminus was continued. November 15, 1885, this extension was completed.

As soon as it became certain that the California Southern would operate again an era of great progress and development began. Speculators, investors, health-seekers and home-seekers came in so rapidly that the hotels could not accommodate them. In 1885 more than $1,000,000 was expended in the construction of businesses and residences. In one year the population increased over fifty percent.

Public improvements kept pace with other activities. The ungraded streets were leveled to beautiful driveways. Electric lights were provided for the city and private consumers. Street railways were begun. New lines of steamships were put on to care for the increased commerce.

Coronado. Coronado, famed the world over, came into existence at this time. Elisha S. Babcock, the principal promoter, came to San Diego seeking health in 1884. At the coming of the boom he announced the project of building the largest hotel in the world. Under his hand Coronado Beach, with its $2,000,000 worth of improvements, sprang up like an Aladdin lamp scene.

The boom was at its flood in 1886. By the close of 1887 the population had reached 35,000. Unheard-of real estate prices were current. However, the greater part of the evidence of prosperity was on an unstable basis. All went well until early in 1888, when there was a general collection of debts secured by real estate. The result was that real estate went down in price and deposits were withdrawn from the banks at an unprecedented rate. By spring San Diego had lost 10,000 of its population and over $2,000,000 in bank deposits. It looked as if a general crash in business would follow. This was averted by the hanks making liberal loans and the continuation of public improvements and contracts made during the boom period. The population began to increase again, so that by the census of 1890 San Diego totaled nearly 17,000.

The Last Decade of the Nineteenth Century. The last decade of the nineteenth century contained but few memorable events. The city continued on its course in an even way, laying the foundations of the modern city. Population and building continued to grow gradually. At the end of this period of general depression throughout the United States, San Diego had increased slightly in population and was now over 17,000.

One of the best-remembered events of the period was the celebration of the 350th anniversary of the discovery of San Diego Bay by Cahrillo. This was held the last three days of September, 1892. Fitting ceremonies marked the event. The many visitors attracted by it were impressed by the celebration and the hospitality of San Diego.

The Twentieth Century. The twentieth century has given years of promise and fulfillment to San Diego. The opening of the century brought new prosperity and activity which particularly affected commerce and material development on the Pacific Coast. San Diego secured her share, both in the development of natural resources and in a dividend from world-wide prosperity due to superlative attractions in climate. Since 1901 the city has gone forward with steadily increasing strides, developing resources, gaining population, attracting investors, and increasing in civic improvement. So much has occurred of importance that only the more memorable events in the city's history can be mentioned.

The San Diego and Arizona Railway. In 1901 strenuous efforts were made to revive the movement for a direct transcontinental railway to San Diego.

Spreckles Savage Tire Factory Will Have Open House for Natives Visiting San Diego

THE Spreckles "Savago Tire" Company has issued an ivitation to the visiting Nativo Sons and Daughters of the Goldon West attending the Grand Parlor to bo held in San Diego in April, for a tour of inspoction, on Tuesday, April 20th, through the largost and best-equipped rubber factory on the Coast. Though the loyalty of Native Golden Westerners for native products would alone insuro a general acceptance, this opportunity to look behind the scenes and see the wheels go round holds such unusual attractions that the occasion promisos to be one of the real features of the convention.

From the tons upon tons of raw rubber in the great basement rooms, gathered from equatorial jungles and great modern plantations in far-off wild spots of the earth, to the thousands upon thousands of finished tires in their piled-up tiers of racks, poised as though ready on the instant to spin out upon the highways of the world—where they are destined to go such a multitude of different ways—the whole plant is full of the keenest romance and human interest to the privileged visitor. And, big as it all appears to the spectator, the fact that production is even now being doubled, and the business of exporting to foreign lands increasing by leaps and bounds, catches the imagination.

Since early in 1912, when the Savage Tire Company made the first pneumatic tire in California, the area of the plant has increased greatly, now being a veritable young city of bustling industry. With the purchase, on December 22, 1919, of the plant by the Spreckles Savage Tire Company, plans for further expansion and development were immediately undertaken, with the result of a greatly increased output during the first few months of the year, as well as the erection of a great new warehouse covering the area of an entire city block. Into this warehouse, now being built, will run tracks from the San Diego & Arizona Railroad, which the factory adjoins.

Probably one of the most interesting features in this big tire building plant is its chemistry department, which conducts its work of constant research into improved methods through all the stages of progress from the processes of washing rubber when it arrives to the final wrapping of the carefully hand-built "D" type tire, the special pride of the factory. Here the never-tiring search for flaws is also carried on with a watchful accuracy which protects the finished product from the most infinitesimal blemishes.

This thorough study of materials, conditions and requirements is apparent; in fact, in all departments of the factory. It reminds one in its spirit—especially in view of the setting, with the many big buildings scattered about as over a large campus, the hundreds of men and women busy about their work, the exhaustive libraries, and, perhaps most of all, the very evident atmosphere of enthusiasm and interest everywhere on the grounds—of a large university. Certainly the pleasure in life, as shown on the faces of the employes, together with the unity of purpose as displayed throughout the factory in the signs reading, "Aim to Excel,"

From a native son of illustrious fame—though so young—to the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, greetings! Also, welcome to his wigwam, on Tuesday, April 20th, when during the Grand Parlor meeting in San Diego, Little Heap, the young Ssvage chief, will entertain in state and all his feathers.

In introducing the youthful host, through these columns of The Grizzly Bear, to his future guests among his large relationship of Native Golden Westerners, it would seem in order to relate something of his history. Here, however, an embarrassment presents itself, since Little Heap, though evidently hy hirth a Savage, can, like Topsy, claim no hirthday, hut "just grew." Undonhtedly he can trace his ancestry hack to Heap Big Injun Chief, a great American and native son of the Golden West, as everyhody knows. Further than that, it can only he said for the little hronze hrave that, spontaneous as was his origin, his affectionate reception has heen more so, not only in the circles ahout his own camp fires, hut among those who travel the trails of the world today. For, no matter how far from home Native Sons may wander, even to the furthermost corners of the glohe, there they will find the outposts of Little Heap, the good little Indian.

From this combination of thoroughness and live enterprise, so the force claims to a man, has evolved the "D" type tire, which is the pet of the whole establishment. Assuredly it impresses the observer as a product of the utmost care and attention, haud built from tested and re-tested materials.

The great rollers of the "calenders," perpetually consuming great masses of pliable rubber which inevitably remind one of enormous "wads" of chewing gum, as the children would say, masticated by giant jaws, to emerge on the other side smooth sheets of a thickness—or rather thinness—exact to the thousandth part of an inch, the continuous thundering of heavy machinery, and the painstaking accuracy to the last degree of fineness of thoso same ponderous servants, present a fascinating spectacle to the visitor.

And ever coupled with the romance of a big, modern industry as seen in the actual process of constructing an important modern utility which intimately touches the lives of each and every citizen of civilization, is the less tangible, though equally strong appeal of that phase of the business which has to do with the export trade. Even surpassing the romance of the old days of sailing merchant ships which brought to the shores of the more advanced peoples the stores of the Orient and the Southern seas, the treasures of teas and spices and precious fabrics and wrought jewelry, is that of the factory of today which sends to the ends of the earth the newest devices of civilization's best efforts.

And in no field could this be more apparent than in the shipping out from an American port such products as Savage Tires for instanco. Constructed on metric dimensions to meet foreign requirements, instead of inch sizes such as are used in this country, and specially packed according to the conditions of its destination, its pilgrimage is a story of many intriguing chapters. To Australia, New Zealand, the Orient, to Spain or South America, the tale of its going is truly one for dreams. Today it penetrates to spots so remote that it must be transported, at the last, hundreds of miles on muleback. The question as to what highways it will travel at the end of such a journey, or whether it will simply take to the hills, cross country, is one for endless speculation. And then, one hears that the missionaries have taken to automobiles, hundreds now being enroute to distant points for their exclusive use. So that it is easily within the range of possibilities that Savage Tires, made in San Diego, will soon be literally carrying the Gospel about in Timbuctoo and kindred spheres. Certainly at the present rate of demand, as shown by the Savage Company's shipping figures, it would seem that the business of converting the far-off heathen is being very effectively carried on right now, when it comes to enlightening them on the merits of American-made automobile tires!

Pioneer tire factory of the Coast, as well as the largest plant of the kind in California, the Spreckles Savage Tire Works stand today as a monument to progress in the West, deserving of the special pride of every Native Son and Daughter. Located in beautiful San Diego, strategically situated on trans-continental railroads and exceptional harbor, its further rapid growth and expansion is inevitable. The natural interest and pride of all Westerners in such an industry will without doubt be greatly augmented by a first-hand acquaintance as can be gained on the tour tendered by the management of the Spreckles Savage Tire Company. The company feels that personal knowledge will add to personal enthusiasm for a Western enterprise in which all Sons and Daughters of the Golden West already have a certain common share.

This enterprise had died out when the Santa Fé came, but its failure to provide a direct outlet had not met the needs of the city. The movement was repeatedly considered, but failed continually until in December, 1906. At that date John D. Spreckles took up the matter and determined to build a railroad from San Diego to Yuma. This road was very difficult and costly in construction and required over ten years to complete. However, San Diego's "impossible dream" became a reality in November, 1919, when the last spike was driven.

This road links the first city founded in California directly with the East and taps the rich Imperial Valley. It makes San Diego the Pacific terminus of a transcontinental system. At Yuma the road has direct connection with the Southern Pacific and the Chicago-Rock Island railroads. This shortens the distance between San Diego and Chicago one hundred and twenty-five miles. The completion of this project at the opening of 1920 marks the beginning of greater progress and prosperity.

The San Diego Panama-California Exposition. San Diego determined in 1909 to celebrate the opening of the Panama Canal with an exposition. Well might the city celebrate the event of the completion of this stupendous undertaking. By virtue of its location San Diego is the first port of call in California from the canal. Its direct route to the Orient and its advantageous trade location made it pre-eminently the city that should celebrate the event.

The exposition was placed in Balboa Park, in the heart of the city. The site for the exposition of six hundred and fifteen acres was selected on the level mesa overlooking the bay. Fifteen main buildings of the architecture of Old Spain, set in wonderful gardens and planned with the utmost care and ability, housed the exhibits.

It was planned to keep the exposition open the whole of the year 1915, the eveness of San Diego's climate making this possible. However, it was such a complete success and attracted so large an attendance that the year was extended and it was not until the last of March, 1917, that the exposition was closed.

San Diego gained in a twofold manner from this celebration. The visitors departed with a good word for the city, its hospitality and its unsurpassed climate, and the permanent improvements remained. The parks were beautified for the exposition. Balboa Park in particular was turned into a veritable paradise.

San Diego's Part in the World War. The City of San Diego played a part in the war equaled by no other city of its population in the United States. It furnished all that any other city of its population furnished. Besides this it was the greatest military rendezvous ever created west of Chicago—all branches of the Army and Navy represented.

Prosperous Community. At the writing of this article the 1920 census has been taken and the estimated population of San Diego is placed at over 80,000, an increase of 142 percent over the 1910 census. The area of the city is 78.84 square miles, extending in a strip of varying widths from National City on the south to a point some twenty-five miles up the coast. The city proper lies on the shores of San Diego Bay. It is a prosperous community, with all the industry, business, and civic development that go with a progressive city of its population.

tion of each raft. Each raft is towed on its voyage by a large tug, with a crew of about sixteen men, the trip requiring about two weeks. An interesting fact in this connection is that this is the only place in the world where log rafts are transported by sea.

The fish-canning industry, established at San Diego eight years ago, has grown into one of the most important and profitable of the city's commercial interests. There are a dozen large establishments, occupying up-to-date buildings of mission style architecture as a rule, located on the bay front, and giving employment to 2,000 persons. The plants represent an aggregate investment of $2,225,000 and pack 415,000 cases of fish per annum. The product, valued at $3,750,000, is sent to all parts of the United States, Europe and Asia.

San Diego and vicinity have steadily grown to be recognized as a sportsman's paradise, and a sportsmen's association, to have world-wide membership, is being actively organized through the Chamber of Commerce, to set forth adequately the fact that San Diego is really the greatest hunting and fishing ground, with 365 days a year of excellent sport. The beaches offer surf fishing near at hand, and the back country affords a wide variety of game in the various seasons. There are the gamey mountain trout and fresh-water bass; and deer, geese, ducks, snipe, quail, doves, squirrels and rabbits are plentiful. During recent years this section has attracted the attention of some of the most noted sportsmen of the East, and of several from foreign countries.

San Diego is progressing steadily in building and in municipal improvements, new business enterprises are being established, and it is becoming recognized that San Diego is both a good place to live in and a good place to work in.

SAN DIEGO VISITOR HAS GENUINE GARAGE SURPRISE.

A young woman recently motored from Los Angeles to San Diego, and when she arrived at the beautiful furtherest-south city parked her car with the Auto Electrical Equipment Company garage at Eighth and E streets. In a letter, made public, she said she had the surprise of her life, for she found there the "so different garage." Here's what she wrote:

"The parking space was airy, with large skylights giving the place the light of day. An industrious young man with a pleasant smile made me feel I would be well taken care of and, after giving me my car check, tactfully suggested that, as I had had such a long trip, I might want to refresh myself at the ladies' rest room on the second floor, reached through the accessory room. Coming to the entrance of this department, I stopped with amazement and marveled at the accessory display before me. Something I had never seen before—the whole room was in ivory, and not a spot of grease anywhere. I felt as if I had stepped into a department store, as until then I had always had the feeling that where automobiles were, there was the place of grease, dirt and darkness. This was different, and I would not be afraid to enter that garage in my most delicate gown.

"Proceeding to the ladies' rest room, there awaited me another surprise. This was a large, airy room with windows looking out into the street; it was furnished with the nicest of reed furniture, and had all kinds of magazines to read while waiting for minor adjustments on one's car. Opening into the rest room was a nice dressing room, where one could feel at home. I had expected to have to return to my hotel, but as I had been able to clean up before leaving the garage I decided to go and make a few purchases which the trip had made necessary. I left the garage with high praise in my heart, for here was a garage that really knew what is appreciated by the motoring public. The next morning I went back to get my car and get it ready for our party for sightseeing. On presenting my check I was ushered over to my car, and behold! the windshield was cleaned, the car dusted, and all ready for the day. Incidentally, I might add that the price is the same here as in other garages where no accommodations are provided for customers."—Advertisement.

fornia, and a great deal eventually for the protection of the Nation.

It may be of interest to note here, incidentally, in connection with the agitation for an extra session of the Legislature, that the "Nichi Bei"—the "Japanese-American News," the leading Japanese newspaper of San Francisco—recently asserted that the Japanese proposed to raise a fund of $100,000 with which to "conduct negotiations" with the Legislature, should it be called into extra session eyes and make conquest by colonization easier of accomplishment. As California sees it, the real need to consider Japanese affairs, and that of this sum one-half is to be secured in the "old country" conditioned on a like sum from Japanese residents in America. Parenthetically, not only are Japanese acquiring our lands, but also certain of our bad habits.

Hundreds of organizations, fraternal, business, political and social, have petitioned and demanded that the Governor call an extra session of the Legislature. In many communities the organizations or the people themselves have gone on record against further leases or sales to Japanese, and have called upon real estate men and land owners not to countenance transactions of this kind as being against public policy and unpatriotic. There is no doubt as to the attitude of the people of California. The opponents constitute a pitiful minority. But as long as the Governor refuses to call the session demanded they hold the upper hand. Assuming that the Governor will not call an extra session, preparations are now being made by all Japanese-opposing organizations, united, to circulate petitions under the initiative law of the state. Unfortunately this will mean a long delay, and will afford the Japanese just that much more opportunity to dispossess the white people of California. This is the great sin of the Governor, in failing to meet the demands of the people of his State.

THE LABOR ASPECT.

It is not proposed to deport the Japanese now here. Although it is recognized that many of them have entered California illegally, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to prove this fact in the majority of cases. And so the entire effort is to stop immigration, not to disturb conditions as they now exist. For this reason the labor situation in California would remain as at present or grow somewhat better. But even otherwise, it is asked, what is the better thing to do—hasten the temporary development of California through the employment of Asiatics—an unsound policy, economically, in the long run—or temporarily check development, if need be, in order that the future may be built up solidly and enduringly? We are dealing with a problem which in its entire scope looks far ahead of the present day or the present fortunes of those who demand cheap labor. The issue is temporary prosperity and future demoralization, or permanent prosperity based upon the social, economic and political standards of the white man.

In the matter of labor, the white people of the County of Fresno found last year, notwithstanding the general shortage and an enormous crop, that such conditions could be met and overcome. I quote as follows from an editorial in the "Fresno Republican":

> "It has been demonstrated that not only can white labor be had, but good white labor—the sort that farmers prefer to Orientals. Formerly when we got the best of Orientals and the worst of the whites nobody wanted white men. They were unreliable, dishonest and drunken. And we thought it was their fault! Now we have found out that better men can be had, or the same men will prove better, if we treat them decently. We have made the work fit for a white man to do, and white men do it. We have so organized the distribution of workers that they do not have to become tramps between jobs; we have provided them with decent conditions of work and of living, and we have paid them well. And everybody likes them."

Fresno has pointed the way. It must be conceded, of course, that California even now has a labor problem and that the supply of labor at present probably would not make possible a statewide solution under the Fresno plan; but that plan will help tremendously if taken up generally, and in time, through attracting more white labor to California, meet requirements to a very satisfactory degree.

ONLY STRINGENT LAWS WILL HELP.

It has been suggested, pending legislation, or indeed, if necessary, before new legislation be drafted, that the United States send to Japan, more or less frequently, commissions to discuss conditions and bring about a better understanding and a better feeling between the two nations. It is pointed out that Japan has sent a number of commissions here to make a study of American conditions and to tell of Japan. Insofar as facts can be ascertained, the Japanese commissions so far sent to this country have come to do propaganda work for the Japanese government, not with a desire to better the understanding between the two nations, but to blind our is not to send delegations to Japan, but to our own Middle and Eastern states. That is where light is needed. Recently the dispatches called attention to the fact that the Japanese government desired a conference at Tokio to consider Japanese-American matters. We should be well on our guard as to the character of the American delegates to such a conference. The Japanese government is cunning beyond our Western comprehension.

NOT COMMISSIONS, NOT CONFERENCES, NOT PRATING ABOUT THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN, BUT STRINGENT LEGISLATION IS THE NEED OF THE HOUR AND THE DAY, AND THE ONLY REAL HOPE FOR FUTURE NATIONAL SECURITY!

It is the duty of every resident of California to do his or her part in helping to educate the people of the other states who do not yet appreciate the menace of the Japanese invasion. It is the duty of the Governor of California to call a special session of the Legislature that he and the Legislature may do their part in this tremendous task. We cannot hope for relief through Congress until we have made the people of the East and members of Congress realize just what the situation is.

And what we ask of Congress is as follows: First, cancellation of the "gentlemen's agreement"; second, exclusion of "picture brides" by action of our government, not trusting to the pronouncements of the government of Japan; third, absolute exclusion of Japanese, with other Asiatics, as immigrants; fourth, confirmation and legalization of the principle that Asiatics shall be forever barred from American citizenship; fifth, amendment of Section 1 of Article XIV of the Federal Constitution, providing that no child born in the United States of foreign parents shall be eligible to American citizenship unless both parents are eligible to such citizenship.

and speak a protest against their destruction. All who are proud of the glories of California must join in that protest; let it be so powerful that the state will re-echo it, and the trees preserved.

Another matter of preservation which has called forth a protest from many of the Parlors of our Order, and a protest I have been pleased to join in and to aid when possible, pertains to the rights of Asiatics in California. In visiting various parts of the state during the past few years I have been brought into close contact with members of our Order who are fighting the battle we should all join in. It is more serious than many of us care to believe. We are given figures and data and sometimes some of us smile—they must be exaggerated; but not so, they are truthful and exact.

California was given by God to a white people, and with God's strength in us we must keep it as He gave it to us. We want no taint of the Asiatic life on our Western civilization; the standards of our race must be held high and kept clean. Let us not be lulled into a passive way of thinking, and, on the other hand, we must not be too greatly alarmed. We can, however, appreciate the menace, and in a clear and defined plan bring about such education and legislation as will bring thoroughly home to this Asiatic mind the fact that he is not wanted here, as we are not wanted in his country; that his standards of life, of morals, and civilization cannot exist in California. Our attitude toward him must be one of discouragement—no recognition, no intercourse, no relations of any kind. This will help greatly.

And so with all questions of interest to our state. Let us always keep in mind the best interests and welfare of our citizens; let us realize that with greater numbers will come our greatest accomplishments. When we shall have done those things, and continue to do those things, we shall have, and hold, in the minds of every Californian the position we know our Order occupies, that of the Grandest Fraternity on Earth.

GRIZZLY BEAR CLUB OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

San Francisco—At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Grizzly Bear Club held at the clubrooms in Native Sons' Building, the old officers, Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel, president, Judge James G. Conlan, vice-president, Edward Tietjen, secretary, Edward J. Burton, treasurer, were unanimously re-elected.

The club is in a very prosperous condition and is anxious that all Native Sons from all parts of the state make their headquarters there while in San Francisco. The faithful steward, Joseph Clement, who has successfully conducted the affairs of the club since its organization, has resigned, to take a position in New York City, and Eugene Fisher has been elected as his successor.

OLD MISSIONS OF CALIFORNIA

(JOHN STEVEN McGROARTY.)

THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT THE stranger in California finds himself more interested in the old missions than in any other feature of the Golden State. The ruins of these once vast establishments that were erected between San Diego and Sonoma along El Camino Real, the "King's Highway," for a distance of 700 miles, tell the history of California's glamorous past and of a civilization that has departed forever.

It is in the pathetic ruins of the missions that we read the wonderful story of the bringing of Christianity and civilization to the Western shores of America. And it is a curious fact to think of, that while the Puritan was establishing the white man's civilization on the Atlantic seaboard, the brown-robed Franciscans were doing exactly the same thing on the shores of the Pacific. Yet the one knew nothing of the other.

California was discovered by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, a Portngese admiral sailing under the flag of Spain, in the year 1542, only fifty years after the discovery of America by Christopher Colnmbus. Thirty-seven years after Cabrillo's voyage, California was visited by Sir Francis Drake, the English sailor. Twenty-three years after Drake came Sebastian Viscaino, a Spaniard with a Spanish fleet, but none of these mariners and explorers made any attempt whatever to colonize the bright new land which they had seen.

In the year 1769 an expedition was sent up from Old Mexico to California by order of the king of Spain, with the purpose of really taking possession of the country both for the crown and for the holy church. This expedition was under command of Don Gaspar de Portola, who thus became California's first governor. Portola came by sea from La Paz, but two other arms of the expedition made the journey overland across the then unknown and still terrible desert wastes.

With one of these land parties was a man whose name has become a household word in California—the renowned and venerated Fray Junipero Serra, a Franciscan friar and the founder and first father president of the California missions. Serra was, at the time of his arrival in California, 56 years old, and he was one of the most remarkable men in all history, not only because of the qualities of his heart and mind, but because of what he accomplished in the face of the most discouraging difficulties. The feat he accomplished was to redeem an entire race of savages from heathenism and the most abject ignorance. Serra lived only sixteen years in California, at the end of which time he was laid in his grave at Carmel Mission, six miles from Monterey. But the work he started was continued by his successors until 80,000 Indians had been taught the Christian faith as well as to do a white man's work in field and shop.

The mission period in the history of California may be said to have covered a space of approximately fifty years from the time the mission was founded in San Diego until the execution of the Mexican government's edict of "secularization," which meant, in plain language, confiscation. During these fifty years the Franciscan fathers had taught the Indians to work at fifty-four European trades, to till the fields, to raise cattle and sheep, and to do almost everything else that white men knew how to do in those times. As a result, twenty-one missions had been founded and built and were in successful operation in California.

THE MISSION PLAY.

The "Mission Play," from the pen of California's poet-historian, John Steven McGroarty, in three acts tells the story of the Franciscan missionary enterprise in California, beginning with the arrival from Mexico of Fray Junipero Serra and Don Gaspar de Portola with the first expedition of 1769 at San Diego, the rise and full glory of the missions fifteen years later, shown in the second act, and their decay and ruin in after years, as shown by the third act, in which the scene is laid amid the broken and deserted walls of the Mission San Juan Capistrano, in 1847.

With unerring dramatic perception, the author chose Junipero Serra as the dominant figure of the "Mission Play." Frederick Warde in his portrayal of this character has lifted it to the pinnacle where it belongs, and the whole play has come into its own through his inspired interpretation of Fray Serra. Other leading roles are taken by the best actors and the best-suited types to be found in the country, but the play as a pageant is a personal pride of San Gabriel. Members of the old Spanish and Mexican families of the mission town enact the minor roles year after year, sing the songs their forefathers sang at the fiestas and dance the dances of other days. It is this that gives the play its beauty and sincerity.

March 16 was given the fifteen hundredth performance of the "Mission Play." This marks the greatest record ever achieved by any American play or pageant. "Purely an American play, written by an American, American in conception, origin and execution, the 'Mission Play' is unique in the annals of the drama," said Frederick Warde, a veteran of the classic drama stretching over a period of fifty-six years. "Never in America has any play or pageant made a record equal to four years eight months and five days of continuous performances. 'Chu Chin Chow,' which has been running for four years in London, comes nearest to this remarkable record, and 'Our Boys,' which ran for several years in England. Los Angeles may truly be proud of the distinction of having this great American play as its permanent institution, which is only in keeping with the dramatic and art center which it has come to be recognized as."

To produce the "Mission Play" has cost more than half a million dollars, and nearly one million people have gone to San Gabriel, the quaint little mission town, to see this wondrous pageant. For seven years McGroarty struggled to put it on a financial footing, but as it well known, an author is seldom a business man. An efficient business management for a play is as essential for its success as is the talent of its cast. Two years ago E. K. Hoak, a Los Angeles publisher, took into his capable hands the business management of the play, and today the Mission Play Association is one of the recognized business institutions of Los Angeles.

Property Values and Paint

One never-failing way in which to increase the value of your property is to keep your home well painted. Homes that are worth $5,000.00 unpainted have been increased in value to $6,000.00 when properly painted.

This fact is unquestionably true. Paint will not only beautify, but will increase the life of your home. Sun, rain, snow, frost, heat and cold are all enemies of exposed woodwork, and unless protected from these influences of destruction, decay and depreciation of value take place.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS
PAINTS AND VARNISHES

protect your home against decay. They are products of the highest quality, manufactured primarily to protect property from ruin. In addition they beautify your home, add much to the attractiveness of your community, and assist materially to increase property values.

stress to secure legislation that cannot otherwise be had. The spirit of the initiative should not be violated in proposing inconsequential matters to the people. Having in mind that the initiative should not be invoked except for most urgent reasons, it was determined by the conference of the California Oriental Exclusion League and the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association to present to The People of California the initiative measure containing the points above set out. The reasons considered urgent will be presented to the public from time to time during the coming months. All citizens of California who are in sympathy with the measure proposed are urged to co-operate. The fight must be made in the face of strongly entrenched opposition; the opposition of the best organized system of propaganda, of thousands of dollars, and of the belief of some people that the Japanese can be persuaded to give up religious teachings of centuries and adopt those of Christianity. THE FIGHT TO ELIMINATE THE ASIATIC MENACE MUST BE MADE NOW; the longer the evil is allowed to exist, the more strongly will it grow, with less likelihood of its being determined in favor of the American people. The call is made with full knowledge of existing facts, and those facts urge most strongly immediate action as proposed. The best interests of the people of this Nation should be considered before those of another; if this means complications with that other nation, it is our duty to face such complications as arise. But the first law of nature is self-preservation. SELF-PRESERVATION IS THE ISSUE HERE INVOLVED.

California has always been a most coveted territory. Its riches, climate and beautiful mountains and valleys have called here the peoples of the earth. In her history, the flags of four nations have floated over her soil in possessory rights. The fifth flag now threatens to be planted here. The Pioneers of this state, far from the reaches of civilization, enduring untold hardships, struggling against odds and after months of bitter opposition in the Congress of the United States, saved California to this Nation. They suffered, endured and accomplished what they did, that this land may belong to and be developed by their children and ours, and by the citizens of other states in this Union. Shall we permit all that they have done to go for naught? Shall we permit Asiatic aliens—aliens who shall be among us, but not part of us—to reap the harvest that has grown from the efforts of our true, loyal, patriotic forefathers? No, let us dedicate ourselves to the propositions that California's resources shall be for Americans; that California shall be an American province, peopled by Americans, under the protective folds of the American Flag. THE CALL HAS BEEN MADE, LET NO CITIZEN SHIRK HIS DUTY!

BIG BENEFIT AFFAIR TO AID MISSIONS RESTORATION.

San Francisco—At the suggestion of William P. Caubu, Grand President, N.S.G.W., the San Francisco Mission Restoration Committee has been organized to aid in the campaign to restore the old missions of the state. Judge James G. Coulan, Grand Trustee, N.S.G.W., has been elected chairman.

At the Civic Auditorium, April 17, the committee will stage a ball and pageant for the purpose of raising funds to aid in the mission restoration work. Mary E. Bell, Grand President, N.D.G.W., is chairman of the committee arranging the program, which will be one of the best ever presented here and will include many unique features.

FORTY-THIRD GRAND PARLOR, N.S.G.W.

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

ONDAY, APRIL 19, AT 10 A. M., the Forty-third Grand Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, will be called to order in San Diego by William P. Cauhu of San Francisco, Grand President. Sessions will be held in the assembly-room on the top floor of the U. S. Grant Hotel Monday, Wednesday and Friday, the intervening days being given over to pleasure. Incidentally it might be mentioned that the site of the imposing building in which the Grand Parlor will meet sold, not so many years ago, for 27 cents per acre.

The report of Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung, dealing with the membership and finances, will show the Order to be in a most flourishing condition. The membership, it is believed, will show the greatest net increase for several past years. Since the Subordinate Parlors filed their semi-annual reports, December 31, 1919, there has been an exceptionally large gain in membership. Many of the Parlors will have increased representation at the Grand Parlor; Stockton No. 7, which maintains its membership lead, will have eight delegates, the largest single delegation. December 31, thirteen Parlors had over 400 members, their status, according to the Grand Secretary's report, being:

Parlor.	Mbrshp.	Worth
Stockton 7	554	$56,030.02
Castro 232	552	8,881.97
Stanford 76	538	18,686.44
South San Francisco 157	514	15,889.38
Sacramento 3	506	38,229.48
Ramona 109	467	13,095.71
California 1	474	23,928.49
Rincon 72	456	9,332.97
Piedmont 120	441	20,093.67
Twin Peaks 214	437	7,748.26
Pacific 10	429	20,131.50
Sunset 26	423	17,801.43
Mission 38	421	9,131.08

Indications are that for the contest ending December 31 the following Parlors will be awarded the Grand Parlor Trophy Banners for greatest percentage membership gain; this is a forecast, however, and late reports may change the Parlors' standings:

District 1—Castro 232, San Francisco.
District 2—Sacramento 3, Sacramento.
District 3—Rincon 72, San Francisco.
District 4—Athens 195, Oakland.
District 5—Santa Cruz 90, Santa Cruz.
District 6—Sutter Fort 241, Sacramento.
District 7—Guadalupe 231, San Francisco.
District 8—Tracy 186, Tracy.
District 9—San Lucia 97, Salinas.
District 10—James Lick 242, San Francisco.
District 11—Palo Alto 216, Palo Alto.
District 12—San Miguel 150, San Miguel.
District 13—Sebastopol 143, Sebastopol.
District 14—Rainbow 40, Wheatland.
District 15—Seaside 95, Halfmoon Bay.
District 16—San Diego 108, San Diego.
District 17—Golden Star 88, Alton.

JAP MENACE WILL BE CONSIDERED.

The Jap menace to California is one of the questions that is certain to be given earnest consideration by the Grand Parlor, and it is believed the Order's weight will be thrown on the side of the initiative measure which will appear upon the November ballot. Resolutions will be presented dealing with all phases of the Jap situation, and such action will be taken as will leave no doubt in the minds of anyone as to the Order's stand on this most important question that has ever confronted California. Yosemite Parlor, No. 24 (Merced) delegates will present this resolution:

"Whereas, It appears that people of the Japanese race are leasing and buying great portions of land within the State of California, in direct violation of the intent of the law; and whereas, the occupancy and right of possession of said lands by said Japanese is detrimental to the best welfare of our beloved state; and whereas, the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West intends to exert every lawful force to prevent any Japanese from obtaining any leasehold interest in or any title to any of said lands, and to discourage all immigration of Japanese to the State of California; be it

"Resolved, By the Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, that any member of any Parlor of this Order who wilfully and knowingly shall directly or indirectly aid, abet or assist any person of the Japanese race, or any organization or corporation controlled by members of the Japanese race, in obtaining any leasehold interest in or any title or right of possession to any of the lands within the State of California, and any member of said Order who wilfully or knowingly shall aid, abet, assist or encourage any Japanese person to immigrate to the State of California, shall, upon conviction thereof, be expelled from membership in the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West; be it further resolved, that the Constitution and By-laws of the Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West be amended to conform to the foregoing resolution."

Delegates of Presidio Parlor No. 194 (San Francisco) will submit a resolution proposing that the Grand Parlor place a N.S.G.W. tablet in the Washington monument at the National Capital.

In the way of amendments to the Grand Parlor laws, Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger of Los Angeles will introduce several resolutions. One changes the status of district deputies, making it their duty to visit, at the expense of the Grand Parlor, once each month from June to January all Subordinate Parlors in their districts and to file a report with the Grand Secretary after each visit; they are also given the power to organize Subordinate Parlors.

GRAND PARLOR OFFICE CANDIDATES.

Others provide: that the board of grand officers shall meet at least once a year; that all grand officers and committees shall file a report with the Grand Secretary at least fifty days before the opening of the Grand Parlor; for the creation of a State of the Order Committee of five members, three of whom shall be the first, second and third grand vice-presidents.

At the election of grand officers for the ensuing term, which will be held the morning of Friday, the 23d, these will undoubtedly be chosen without opposition:

James F. Hoey (Mount Diablo 101) of Martinez, Grand President.

William I. Traeger (Ramona 109) of Los Angeles, Grand First Vice-president.

Harry G. Williams (Oakland 50) of Oakland, Grand Second Vice-president.

Fred H. Jung (Stanford 76) of San Francisco, Grand Secretary.

John E. McDougald (California 1) of San Francisco, Grand Treasurer.

For the remaining offices, quite a number of hats have been shied into the ring already, and more will be there, no doubt, when nominations are made on Wednesday, the 21st. The Grizzly Bear has received these announcements:

Grand Third Vice-president—William J. Hayes (Berkeley 210) of Berkeley, at present Grand Trustee.

Grand Inside Sentinel—I. H. Reuter (Yosemite 24) of Merced, at present Grand Outside Sentinel.

Grand Outside Sentinel—George A. Wilson (Bay View 238) of Oakland.

Grand Trustees (seven to be elected)—Of the present board, these three are declared candidates for re-election: Judge James G. Conlan (Stanford 76) of San Francisco; Judge Charles A. Thompson (Santa Clara 100) of Santa Clara; Senator Frank M. Carr (Eden 113) of Hayward.

Places on the board will also be sought by: Clarence W. Morris (California 1) of San Francisco; Judge James M. Morrissey (Marysville 6) of Marysville; John J. Monteverde (Sunset 26) of Sacramento; M. M. London (Mission 38) of San Francisco; Grand Marshal James A. Wilson (Rincon 72) of San Francisco; Max E. Licht (Bay City 104) of San Francisco; Arthur M. Dean (McCloud 149) of Redding; Henry G. Bodkin (Corona 196) of Los Angeles.

No candidate for Grand Marshal has been announced; this is probably due to the fact that no place has yet come forward with an Admission Day invitation; the Grand Marshal is usually selected from the place where the celebration is held. Who wants the celebration? It's a big prize for a "live" community!

At the Yosemite Grand Parlor last year, the Sacramento delegation said they would ask this year for the 1921 Grand Parlor; what the Sacramento Parlors will do at San Diego in this regard is unknown at this writing. So, no seekers for the Forty-fourth Grand Parlor can be definitely announced; there'll be several seeking this honor, no doubt.

MAKE-UP OF THE GRAND PARLOR.

The Grand Parlor is made up of grand officers, Past Grand Presidents, certain committee members, and Subordinate Parlor delegates. Those entitled to a seat and a voice in the San Diego Grand Parlor include:

Grand officers—William F. Toomey, Junior Past Grand President; William P. Cauhu, Grand President; James F. Hoey, Grand First Vice-president; William I. Traeger, Grand Second Vice-president; Harry G. Williams, Grand Third Vice-president; Fred H. Jung, Grand Secretary; John E. McDougald, Grand Treasurer; James A. Wilson, Grand Marshal; Hubert B. Scudder, Grand Inside Sentinel; I. H. Reuter, Grand Outside Sentinel; Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel, Grand Organist; Dan Q. Troy, Historiographer; John Andreson, Jr., Grand Trustee; Frank M. Carr, Grand Trustee; William H. Langdon, Grand Trustee; William J. Hayes, Grand Trustee; Roland Becsey, Grand Trustee; Charles A. Thompson, Grand Trustee; James G. Conlan, Grand Trustee.

Finance Committee—J. Clem Bates, Charles A. Koenig, John T. Regan.

Board of Appeals—Past Grand President Manrice T. Dooling, Edward E. Reese, Charles J. Powers, M. J. McGovern, Angelo J. Rossi.

Past Grand Presidents—John H. Grady, Fred H. Greeley, Dr. Charles W. Decker, William H. Miller, Robert M. Fitzgerald, Senator Thomas Flint, Judge Frank H. Dunne, Judge Henry C. Gesford, George D. Clark, Judge William M. Conley, Judge Frank L. Coombs, Lewis F. Byington, Hubert R. McNoble, Judge Charles E. McLaughlin, Walter D. Wagner, Judge Maurice T. Dooling, Joseph R. Knowland, Daniel A. Ryan, Herman C. Lichtenberger, Clarence E. Jarvis, Thomas Monahan, Louis H. Mooser, Judge John F. Davis, Bismarck Bruck, Jo V. Snyder.

Subordinate Parlor delegates—The following list includes the names of those delegates of Subordinate Parlors which had reported up to time of going to press with this supplement of The Grizzly Bear:

EDWARD VAN VRANKEN

ATTORNEY AT LAW

DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S OFFICE

Stockton, California, March 19th.

Editor The Grizzly Bear,
Los Angeles, California.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Will you kindly inform the membership of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, through the columns of The Grizzly Bear Magazine, that I will not be a candidate for office in the Grand Parlor at its session in San Diego next month? I have arrived at this decision after a careful consideration of the present situation and the duty that we all owe to be of usefulness to our Order. I greatly appreciate Grand Trustee Becsey's letter in my behalf, but I do not want to do anything that would shock the membership's sense of propriety. I know that notwithstanding the action taken at Modesto in 1916, there is an unwritten rule that no person shall be seriously considered as a candidate for the Grand Third Vice-presidency who is not at the time of the election a Trustee of the Order. I think it is a poor rule, but it is the one under which we have always worked, and I do not feel that I should ask Stockton Parlor No. 7's friends to disregard it at this time.

Thanking those who have interested themselves in my behalf, and assuring all of my interest in the Order, I am as ever,

Yours fraternally,
EDWARD VAN VRANKEN.

IMPORTANT REPORT

San Francisco—At a conference of the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., Committee on Development of the Resources of the State of California held here March 20, it was decided to participate in the campaign for State legislation to curb the Jap menace. Those in attendance were Assemblyman Clifton E. Brooks (chairman) of Oakland, Superior Judge E. N. Rector and T. W. Fowler of Merced, George N. Upham of Martinez, John J. Monteverde of Sacramento and A. S. Liguori of Redwood City. The program outlined to meet the Jap situation includes, among other things:

Stringent qualifications for guardians of minors to prevent aliens ineligible for citizenship from evading our land laws by purchasing in the names of children.

Curbing the publication of newspapers in foreign languages so that these media may not be used to encourage and assist evasions of the state's land laws.

State Forester G. M. Homans made a plea in behalf of the state's forests, and the committee went on record as in favor of the adoption of a constructive forestry policy which will guarantee reforestration of cut-over lands and adequate protection to existing forests.

The committee will submit its report to the Grand Parlor which meets at San Diego April 19, and in addition to recommending action by that body along the above lines, will include a recommendation favoring a reorganization of the State Government, with the purpose in view of placing it upon an efficient and business-like basis through the elimination of overlapping boards and commissions.

R. F. McCLELLAN

SUPERVISOR FOURTH DISTRICT

CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION.

When Mr. McClellan took office as Supervisor of Los Angeles County three years ago, he immediately entered into the task of cutting down every expenditure possible that would not seriously hamper the carrying on of the County's business, on account of the condition of the county funds. This, together with war conditions, resulted in the delaying of all new road work for two years; also a delay in carrying on other building projects, and curtailing expenditures that in normal times would be considered necessary; but the deficit was saved up and is now ready to replace in the proper funds, and the County's finances are now in excellent condition.

The great County flood control project has been under Mr. McClellan's special supervision. His past engineering experience has enabled him to render a vast amount of assistance in this important work, and he has labored tirelessly to make it a success, and at the same time his practical, honest mind has guarded the expenditures as carefully as if they were his own.

Mr. McClellan takes his office seriously, and gives his whole time to the many problems that come before a supervisor of this great Los Angeles County.

TRANSPORTATION ARRANGEMENTS.

One and a Half Fare for all Who Follow Closely These Instructions.

All main-line railroads will sell first-class tickets through to San Diego at full fare. These will be on sale in advance to enable one to reach San Diego in time for Grand Parlor opening.

Get receipt-certificate when purchasing ticket. At San Diego, the certificate, when OKed by the Grand Secretary, will entitle holder to purchase ticket back to starting-point at half-fare. Start for home must be within two days after meeting's close.

No special train either way, and no stopover either way.

Half-fare tickets will be issued at San Diego back only to place at which ticket was bought through to San Diego.

From stage, steamer, and small-railroad points, buy best available round-trip ticket to nearest main-line railroad point, and there buy through to San Diego as per above instructions.

These transportation arrangements apply to all members of the Order and their families. To get a half-fare home, however, bear in mind that a RECEIPT-CERTIFICATE MUST BE PROCURED when purchasing ticket through to San Diego, and that the "NO-STOPOVER" PROVISION CANNOT BE BEATEN by buying ticket from home-point to stopover-place, and thence to San Diego, for when it comes to getting half-fare ticket to return it will be sold back only to stopover-place at which ticket was purchased to San Diego, and from there full fare to home-point will have to be paid.

ANNIVERSARY BANQUET ALSO WELCOME HOME FOR WAR BOYS.

Oakland—April 8 Piedmont Parlor, No. 120, N.S.G.W., will have a dual celebration, a welcome home reception for its members who entered the Government's service during the war and its thirty-second anniversary banquet. The committee in charge is Henry Weber (chairman), Harold Flood, Robert Castro, Wm. Dunlap, Sr., Wm. Bailey, Charles Morando, Joseph Thomas, John Reali, Wm. Husing.

Following the discussion of an elaborate menu, a program of toasts, to be responded to by prominent speakers, will be presented, with snappy vaudeville numbers interspersed. A feature of the evening will be the lowering and demobilizing of Piedmont's service flag, with its seventy-seven stars, including one of gold.

JUST CALIFORNIA

Population Estimated—Basing his calculation on the 1919 average daily attendance in elementary schools of 371,182, Superintendent of Public Instruction Will C. Wood figures the 1920 population of California at approximately 3,500,000.

Breaks Record—February holds the record for green vegetable shipments from the Imperial Valley, 1,127 carloads being sent out; lettuce was the leader.

Music for Everywhere—The University of California Extension Division has arranged to supply the best music of the Pacific Coast to every California town, no matter how remote from population centers, wanting it.

Fruit Trees Galore—To March 6, 71,450 fruit trees had been planted in Lake County this season, according to the "Clear Lake Press," and planting still continues.

Prize Alfalfa Yield—In a national crop contest, the prize for the biggest yield of alfalfa in the United States during 1919 was awarded a Chino, San Bernardino County, farmer; his five-acre field yielded 7,748 pounds per acre.

Good Investment—Bakersfield's citizens have voted to invest a half-million in school bonds—$200,000 for the Kern County high school and $300,000 for city schools.

Earn Good Profit—To January 31, the San Francisco municipal railways earned nearly $4,500,000 in excess of operating costs since December 28, 1912, when they began operating.

Millions From Field Crops—The 1919 grain, fruit, vegetable and nut crops brought to the Sacramento Valley counties—Butte, Colusa, Glenn, Placer, Sacramento, Solano, Sutter, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba—a total of $108,500,000.

Thousands Seek Knowledge—15,690 students are affiliated with the University of California, according to announcement made March 8; 8,555 of them were enrolled at the Berkeley college alone, and 1,416 in the Los Angeles branches.

New High School to Rise—Berkeley is to have a magnificent high school building, to cost $892,000; a contract for its construction has been let.

To Open Up—A proposed railroad from Crescent City to Grants Pass, Oregon, will end the isolation of Del Norte County and open the greatest redwood forests in California.

New Farm School—A 300-acre tract adjoining the State Citrus Experiment Station at Riverside has been purchased by the University of California; a school similar to the University Farm School at Davis, Yolo County, will be conducted.

Millions Fish Planted—18,500,000 baby trout and 12,300,000 baby salmon from the state fisheries were planted in the streams of California last year.

Raisin Day—Fresno is arranging for its annual Raisin Day festival, April 30.

Important Gathering—One of the most important gatherings ever convened in California, will be the National Foreign Trade Convention, billed for San Francisco, May 12 to 15.

More'n Million for Schools—Stockton voters have authorized a bond issue of $950,000 for elementary school buildings and an additional $325,000 for a high school.

Beef Raisers to Confer—The State Cattlemen's Association will meet in Los Angeles April 15 and consider the establishment of union stockyards there.

To Experiment—The University of California has taken over on an eight-year lease considerable El Dorado County land for use as an experimental cattle ranch.

Educational Show—Los Angeles is arranging a week of pageantry for May 17-23; window displays, parades, etc., will be employed to educate the people in home products.

Comes High—The first carload of this season's asparagus sent out from the Sacramento River delta region brought $13,000 in New York.

Pencil Pushers to Meet—The Northern California Editorial Association will meet at Sacramento May 1 and 2.

New Grammar School—Willows, Glenn County, has voted $123,000 for a new grammar school building.

Some Chickens—12,000,000 chicks were hatched in Petaluma, the "Egg City," last month.

May Day Frolic—Colusa will have a May Day festival in which all the county schools will participate.

SAN DIEGO GRAND PARLOR PROGRAM

California's "First" City Arranges Fine Entertainment Features for Native Sons

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

SAN DIEGO IS ALL READY TO RECEIVE the Grand Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, and its citizens will join with San Diego Parlor, No. 108, N.S.G.W., the official host, in welcoming the visitors and making their brief sojourn there one that will ever be remembered. San Diego is the "first city" of the state—it was there that California had its beginning—but this will be the first time the Grand Parlor ever met there; San Diegans, however, say it will not be the last time—that San Diego, with its numerous attractions, will lure the Native Sons back again.

Indications are that this Grand Parlor will attract more members of the Order and their families than any of its predecessors, for very few Native Sons from north of Tehachapi have ever been to the farthest-south city, and they will take advantage of the opportunity to visit there and enjoy the entertainment features specially arranged for the occasion.

San Diego is well equipped, so far as hotels are concerned, to care for any number of visitors. It is well, however, to make reservations in advance. Look over this issue of The Grizzly Bear, select your hotel, and write to the chairman of San Diego Parlor's Hotel Committee. In this connection, President A. P. Johnson, Jr., requests publicity of the following:

> "Grand Parlor members should write in early and make reservations, and then keep engagements with hotels making same. It is not fair to any hotel to at the last hour change one's mind and go somewhere else. Remember that when a room is reserved it is held for the party engaging it, and the hotelman cannot rent it to someone else."

The Grand Parlor will be in session Monday, Wednesday and Friday, during the daytime, and the balance of the time, including all day Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, will be devoted to entertainment features. An innovation on the program is the ritual exemplification, billed for Wednesday evening. San Diego Parlor expects to have a class of 50 or more candidates, and the grand officers will officiate. This feature, of course, will be open only to the members of the Order.

GRAND PARLOR OFFICIAL PROGRAM

MONDAY, APRIL 19
Grand Parlor Convenes.
Evening—Reception, Dance.
TUESDAY, APRIL 20
All Day Auto Trip.
Evening—Lodge of Sorrow.
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 21
Grand Parlor All-Day Session.
Evening—Ritual Exemplification.
Evening—Theatre Parties.
THURSDAY, APRIL 22
Tia Juana Excursion.
FRIDAY, APRIL 23
Grand Parlor Session.
Afternoon—Outdoor Picnic.
Evening—Grand Ball.
SATURDAY, APRIL 24
All-day Bay Excursion.

While the program for the week has been definitely decided upon, some of the details are still in the making, particularly the speech-making portions. The Order of Native Sons occupies first place, when it comes to orators, and several of them well known throughout the state have been invited to speak at the different San Diego functions, including Past Grand Presidents Judge John F. Davis, Lewis F. Byington and Judge Charles E. McLaughlin, Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, United States Senator James D. Phelan, Edwin A. Meserve, United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson.

ENTERTAINMENT FEATURES.

The program of entertainment will open Monday evening with a reception and dance. Musical numbers and short addresses will be presented, preceding the dance. Fred A. Heilbron of San Diego Parlor, president San Diego City Council, will welcome the visitors, and Grand President William P. Caubu will respond. Everybody welcome.

Tuesday, the visitors will be taken for an auto trip in an about San Diego. Points of interest to be visited will include the old mission, Point Loma, theosophical homestead, exposition grounds and stadium. The ride will wind up at the Spreckles Savage Tire Company plant, which will have "open house" and show the Natives the inside workings of a modern auto-tire manufacturing plant.

Tuesday evening will be given over to a Lodge of Sorrow, and the general public will be admitted. A special musical program will be presented, and some splendid eulogies will be heard, for during the past Grand Parlor year many men, prominent in the Order's affairs, have gone on that long journey from which no traveler returns.

For Wednesday evening, while the members of the Order are witnessing the ritual exemplification by the grand officers, other visitors will invade the San Diego playhouses.

Thursday's the "big" day—the day set aside for the trip into Mexico, with Tia Juana as the mecca. It will be "Native Sons' Day," and the Tia Juanites are arranging a lot of special features there, too. One of them is a native-son handicap for a $1,000 purse, and it will bring out a corking good field of runners, including the best horses of both the East and the West. A special train will be run for this occasion, and all Grand Parlor members will be guests of San Diego Parlor on the ride.

Friday, from 2 to 6 p. m., will be given over to a great family outdoor barbecue-picnic in beautiful Balboa Park, to which all visitors are invited. There will be a special program of music on the outdoor pipe-organ, and also some speeches.

Friday evening, from 8:30 to midnight, will be devoted to the grand ball. It will be held in the U. S. Grant auditorium, and will be an elaborate, though informal, affair to which all visitors will be admitted.

Saturday has been set aside for an all-day excursion on San Diego Bay. In things to see, this trip has no superior anywhere. Among the places to be visited are North Island aviation field, Fort Rosecrans, and other Government enterprises.

While not a part of the Grand Parlor entertainment program, visitors' attention is called to arrangements being made by the San Diego Odd Fellows to run an excursion to Imperial Valley, Saturday, April 24. All Native Sons who are Odd Fellows are invited to go along.

THE WORKERS.

San Diego Parlor, No. 108, N.S.G.W., has charge of the Grand Parlor entertainment, and when the delegates depart, at the close of the session, they will with one voice declare its work to have been well done. Everything possible to assure the visitors' comfort, too, will be looked after, and every member of the Parlor will assist the Reception Committee in looking after the guests' needs.

Too much credit cannot be given President A. P. Johnson, Jr., a very busy man who is also president of San Diego Chamber of Commerce, for the time and energy he has devoted to the coming Grand Parlor. He has, however, as chairman of the Parlor's Grand Parlor Committee, the united support of the Parlor membership, and he has had a most willing and competent assistant in Secretary R. B. Whitcomb. The several sub-committees handling the details of the Grand Parlor arrangements include these members of San Diego Parlor:

Entertainment—Carl H. Heilbron (chairman), A. D. LaMotte, C. C. May, T. J. Dowell, W. J. Fulkerson, F. F. West, A. P. Johnson, Jr. 2nd, C. C. Ghio, F. H. Robinson.

Finance—L. C. Masten (chairman), Rufus Choate, Geo. D. Easton, F. A. Frye, C. W. Wilson, Sam Schiller, Don. M. Stewart, Paul R. Jennings.

Reception—Ernest E. White (chairman), Edgar A. Luce, Fred A. Heilbron, David E. Lee, Louis Sensenbrenner, James Murphy, Chas. F. Cline, Sam S. Donnells, Jas. D. Johnstone, C. W. GRAND PARLOR HEADQUARTERS ARRANGING SPECIAL FEATURES.

From San Diego comes word that no stone has been left unturned by the San Diego contingent of the Native Sons to insure everyone attending the Grand Parlor in the southern city enjoying a record-breaking time. Plans have been made to insure every minute being crammed with pep and jazz. The U. S. Grant Hotel, convention headquarters, is making special arrangements to provide the hospitality befitting the occasion. The spacious palm-court is being "dolled up," and the roof-garden prepared for those who will want to watch the antics of the bird-men or enjoy panoramic views of the city, bay, ocean and mountains. In the blue-room there will be dancing every night, the program being strictly informal; toe teasing music is assured by Harvey Ball, musical director, who says his orchestra will outdo itself, as each member is a native son and is determined to prove that only Native Sons understand the expressing of real red-hot jazz. Extensive improvement work is being done, too, in the hotel's coffee-shop, where tempting

Tijuana, Old Mexico, but a thirty-minute ride from the U. S. Grant Hotel by train or auto, is also planning to play its part as host to Native Sons, horse racing, historic and scenic interest spots, and quaint sights with which this pretty little village abound offering much of interest and entertainment. That the new Sunset Inn, which adjoins the casino at Tijuana, might be ready for the arrival of Native Sons, the management has set extra crews of men at work, which means that the hit of Old Mexico, enlivened by dancing, dining and cabaret offered by Sunset Inn, will be enjoyed by many who have never experienced the thrill of making merry or squaring the festive board in a foreign land where music, laughter and the spirit of youth hold sway.

San Diego has many big, unusual and very much worth-while attractions to offer the Native Son-er. In fact, entertainment extraordinary is the way the committee describes the program, and that there will be a big turnout and representation at the convention seems to be indicated by the many reservations being made at the U. S. Grant Hotel. "As convention headquarters, we plan on out-doing ourselves as hosts," says Baron Long, managing director of the hotel. "So tell every reader of The Grizzly Bear that he is more than welcome and can rest assured that his arrival and stay in San Diego will be one he never will forget,—will be one sure to go down in the annals of the Native Sons as one of the greatest of the organization's convention successes."

OLD DOCUMENT PRESENTED MARYSVILLE NATIVE SONS.

Marysville—W. C. Latham of Berkeley Parlor, No. 210, N.S.G.W., has presented to Marysville Parlor, No. 6, N.S.G.W., a copy of the original constitution and bylaws of the Marysville Athletic Association, formed February 18, 1858, and said to be first organization of its kind in Northern California.

The association had fifty-six original members, and women were admitted to the clubrooms and permitted to use the apparatus. S. P. Wells was the first president, and W. B. Latham, Jr., the first secretary.

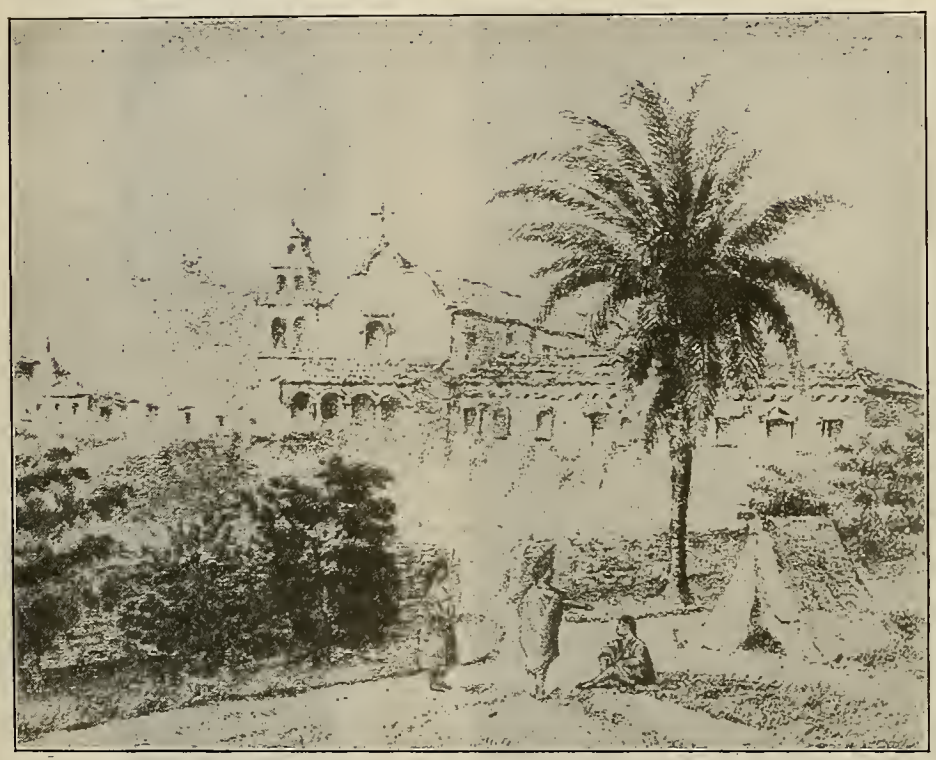

MISSION SAN DIEGO DE ALCALA

Owen C. Coy, Ph. D.

(SECRETARY AND ARCHIVIST, CALIFORNIA HISTORICAL SURVEY COMMISSION.)

THE MISSION SAN DIEGO DE Alcala was founded by Father Junipero Serra July 16, 1769, and therefore antedated by nearly a year any other mission in Alta California. The site first chosen overlooked the bay at what is now known as Old San Diego or Old Towu. Since the presidio was also located near this same place, and as the Indians had their habitations nearer the mountains, Father Serra soon decided that a removal of the mission farther inland would be advisable. Consequently in August, 1774, notwithstanding the fact that the construction of permanent mission buildings at the old site was already under way, the mission was removed to its present site about six miles up the river.

MISSION SAN DIEGO DE ALCALA.

This sketch of the mission was made by Major Charles Churchill in 1858; an original photograph copy of the sketch hangs in the San Diego Public Library and bears the following certificate:

"1904, Newport, R. I.

"I certify that this photograph of my drawing of the old mission of San Diego, California, made in 1858, is a correct copy. "CHARLES C. CHURCHILL,

"Maj. U. S. A. Retired."

During the succeeding year many buildings were erected and all appeared to be progressing well until the night of November 4, 1775, when Indians, aided by many of the neophytes, attacked and destroyed the mission. Father Jayme, one of the priests in charge, was killed. After this misfortune the padres once again located temporarily near the presidio, but began immediately to plan for the rebuilding of the mission at the site chosen up the valley. During the year 1776 the reconstruction began and the mission was soon reoccupied by the zealous fathers.

The mission church, the ruins of which are now extant, was begun September 29, 1808. Five years were occupied in building the church, it being dedicated November 12, 1813. This church was built of adobes and was fifty varas long by about niue wide. At the left of the entrance stood a tower containing five bells, while adjoining the mission were padres' quarters, neophytes' buildings, workshops, storehouses and corrals, the remains of which are still to be seen in tiled floors and ruined walls. Fortunately the original plans of San Diego Mission have been preserved in the state archives and are now most useful in helping to discover the remains of walls and floors which in many cases have been buried for years under the debris of crumbling adobe walls.

At the time of the building of the church San Diego was the largest of the missions in number of neophytes, although others were more prosperous. Frequent droughts, however, greatly hampered the cultivation of the fields so that the industrious padres installed an irrigation system, the remains of which are still to be seen. This system has been described by the historian Bancroft ("California," II, p. 106) in the following words:

> "Some three miles above the mission the river was dammed by a solid stone-wall, thirteen feet in thickness, and coated with a cement that became as hard as rock. In the center was a gate-way twelve feet wide lined with brick. . . . From this dam an aqueduct of tiles, resting on cobble-stones in cement, and carrying a stream one foot deep and two feet wide at the surface, was built down the stream through a precipitous gorge, impassable on horseback, to the mission lands. The aqueduct often crossed gulches fifteen or twenty feet wide and deep, and was so strong that in places it supported itself after the foundation was removed."

In spite of this, however, the decline of the mission already had begun. Since the food supply was not always certain the Indians continued to rely largely upon their own resources and retained their connection with their former mountain haunts. Duhaut-cilly, a French explorer who visited San Diego in 1827, describes the buildings as dilapidated and poorly preserved.

In 1835 its functions as a mission establishment ceased upon order of the Mexican rulers and the property was parceled out to the mission Indians or seized and sold by the Mexican government. Notwithstanding the fact that in 1843 it was once again ordered restored to the friars, it was never again the institution it had been before its secularization.

In 1846 when the American army occupied San Diego, the mission being practically deserted was seized upon by the officers as a suitable building for the army barracks. For the next decade or more it was used for this purpose. As a result many changes were made in the church, which was the principal building. New partition walls were added and a floor put in so that, according to tradition, the soldiers were able to use the second floor as sleeping quarters and the ground floor as a stable for their horses. This necessitated cutting openings for doors and windows through the thick adobe walls, which greatly weakened them, and hastened the ruin which is now so complete.

After its occupancy by the United States Army it was again deserted and for many years the work of destruction by the elements or by vandal hands continued unchecked. Only recently, in fact, has the idea of preserving the charm and romance of the old mission gripped the minds of the people of San Diego in an adequate manner, so that plans are now under way to restore the glories of the past generations, or at least stay the hand of destruction in so far as that is possible.

STATE EMPLOYES AT NAPA TO HEAR OF STATE'S HISTORY.

Napa City—The Azalia Social Club has been organized among the officers and employes of the Napa State Hospital for the promotion of social intercourse, and arrangements have been made with the Extension Division of the University of California to supply speakers. The lectures are given on Thursdays, bi-monthly, are held in the amusement hall of the Napa State Hospital, and are open to the public.

Thursday, April 8, the speaker will be Judge William H. Waste of Berkeley, a member of Berkeley Parlor, No. 210, N.S.G.W., who will have for his subject "Early History of California and the Missions." The lecture will be illustrated, and will deal with the history of California to the establishment of the state government. Judge Waste is a devoted student of the history of California, and has perfected a lecture that is both highly interesting and instructive. Among those who have interested themselves in this lecture course is A. S. Tong, a member of Fresno Parlor, No. 25, N.S.G.W., now located at the Napa State Hospital as secretary to the superintendent.

Native Daughter Meets With Accident.

Grass Valley—Mrs. Allison F. Watt, Past Grand President, N.D.G.W., met with a painful accident when she slipped on an icy pavement and fell, breaking her ankle. She is getting along nicely.

SPREAD THE TRUTH

When you have finished reading your Grizzly Bear, mark the Jap articles and SEND THE NUMBER TO EASTERN ACQUAINTANCES, and ask them to pass it on to their friends.

The East needs and wants to be informed of the true situation regarding the yellow peril, and the East must be enlightened before it will join forces with the West to rout the Asiatics.

The Japs see to it that the East gets limitless quantities of lying and misleading propaganda, and all White-Americans should unite to meet that situation with a flood of facts.

The Grizzly Bear will do its part by publishing articles dealing with the truth. Will you do your part, by keeping the truth in circulation?

It is suggested, too, that every Parlor of Native Sons not now doing so, subscribe to the magazine for its local libraries—public and high school.

THINK IT OVER!

The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West is, we believe, with the exception of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, the only organization that limits membership exclusively to NATIVE-BORN AMERICANS.

Knowing the serious conditions in this country today, this fact alone should impel every Native Son of California to immediately SEEK AFFILIATION with that American-born and American-operated institution, the man-power and wealth of which are pledged to the protection of American institutions in times of peace

JAPAN A DIPLOMATIC BLUFFER

DRUNK WITH CONCEIT, SHE IS INSOLENT, AND RAISES AN ISSUE WITH ENTIRE CAUCASIAN RACE; SHE MUST BE REBUKED

George J. Burns

Every conceivable charge—politics, jingoism, race hatred, etc.—has been directed by yellow-Jap and white-Jap propagandists against those who, because of the success which has come to the Orientals in their "peaceful invasion" of California—a scheme born in Japan and being aided in this country by the American Church Federation, pro-Jap Americans and similar organizations and individuals—have determined that California shall not fall a prey to Japanitis. It has been repeatedly proven that those charges are baseless, and simply advanced to camouflage the real issue.

The Japs are not the kind of people we want to become citizens of or landholders in the United States; they and their sponsors know they are not assimilable and that right is on the side of their opponents, yet they hope, through an endless chain of brotherhood-of-man-kind propaganda, to win that which they are in nowise deserving of nor entitled to—any of the rights of American citizenship. The Good Lord never intended that there should be a mixture of the different colored races, else He would not have created some of white, some of black, some of yellow, and some of red. The inherent nature of the Jap is being unfolded; that he believes his ruler is in reality The Christ, is a fact beyond dispute, and because each individual Jap considers himself the son of his christ (the mikado), he believes the earth and all that therein is belongs to his ruler and governs himself accordingly. It is rank hypocrisy for any Christian American to plead the cause of such a people. It is gratifying to know that the ranks of those unalterably opposed to giving the Japs any rights in this country are growing rapidly, day by day, as the truth concerning the Japs and their government is being exposed by those publications which are 100 percent American in policy always.

The Grizzly Bear is pleased to present the accompanying article from George J. Burns, for he is not a Native Son. He is an American, however, every inch of him. He hails from the grand old State of Massachusetts, in both houses of the Legislature of which he served with distinction for several years. He has come to California to make his home, has investigated for himself the Jap situation, and has been so convinced of the justness of California's cause that he is doing yeoman service as a voluntary member of the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association. He has declared, after close observation and much study, that if he had a million dollars he would consider it a great honor to be permitted to spend it to rid these United States of the Jap pests now here and to prevent more of them from coming.—Clarence M. Hunt.

WHEN LORD ROBERTS WARNED his countrymen that military Germany menaced the peace of Europe, he was denounced as a jingoist by those who believed that the dove of peace had taken up its permanent abode in the haunts of mankind. A few weeks before the World War erupted upon an unprepared world, David Starr Jordan, from an intimate first-hand study of European conditions, went on record as being of the opinion that another great European war was impossible because of economic conditions. Andrew Carnegie, who endowed a society to fill the ears of the world with the wax of peace—a society that tells us that fear of Japanese aggression is unjustifiable—declared that the German kaiser was a man of peace. While Hun outrages in Belgium and Northern France were a stench to High Heaven, ex-Mayor McClellan of New York City was a guest of Germany, who showed him what she wanted him to believe and convinced him the stories of German outrages were baseless fabrications.

Japan excels in conducting sight-seeing parties. Within the past few weeks there sailed for the Orient, on a Japanese steamer, as guests of the imperial government, a delegation whose ostensible and carefully-advertised errand is to investigate our relations with the Far East—particularly with Japan—where they will be afforded as much facility for forming an intelligent opinion as ex-Mayor McClellan was, and who will be as competent to advise, on the basis of that junket, as a babboon would be to make an observation of the transit of Venus. Upon their return they will be expected to inform us that the issue raised by the Pacific Coast states is an unjustifiable menace to the peace of the world.

THE PEOPLE OF CALIFORNIA ARE NOT, AND CANNOT AFFORD TO BE, JINGOISTS. If a war ever comes between the United States and any nation in the Far East, the Pacific Coast states will suffer first, the most severely, and for the longest period. That they would jeopardize everything they cherish for other than patriotic motives to sustain principles alike sacred to all the states, is inconceivable. Nothing they could gain by such a war would compensate for the sacrifices they would make. That they are the only section of the country to have first-hand knowledge of the menace of Japanese penetration, entitles their attitude to some weight.

There cannot be a more serious error than the belief that the Japanese issue is limited to the attitude of California or that of the Pacific states. Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, the official news representative of the Japanese empire in the United States, has said: "Unless America comes to an understanding of the Japanese viewpoint, there will be more serious disturbances in the relations between Japan and America than has been caused by the California affair." How about coming to our "viewpoint"?

That Japan is seeking to attain ends by demanding concessions we cannot grant without sacrificing our national dignity and national sovereignty is amply evidenced by her propaganda. If she is bluffing, she is insulting us by presuming upon our stupidity and cowardice. If she is in earnest, the responsibility for war is on her. If she is talking for home consumption, she is sowing seeds of dissension that will lead to war.

In Japan, the censorship of the press is so rigidly enforced that nothing of which the imperial government disapproves is permitted to be published. What we shall quote is in the light of that censorship, and is backed up by those who are in position to speak with authority. What she says is too plain to be misinterpreted, and too emphatic to be disregarded.

There is no attribute of national sovereignty more fundamental than that every nation, regardless of its size, has the right to decide whether the subjects of any foreign nation, or what part of them, shall be admitted to its borders. For the first time in modern history—if we may except the rape of Belgium—Japan is the nation that denies to other countries the right to restrict immigration.

Kawakami, who is at the head of the Japanese Association in America, an organization recognized by the imperial Japanese government, says: "There is another point which America must bear in mind in discussing the immigration question. The pet theory [sic] of the Japanese exclusionists has been that the American government has the right to decide what should be admitted and what should be barred out. For the sake of politeness [sic] Japan has been willing to concede that point in favor of America. THE TRUTH IS, THAT AMERICA, OR ANY OTHER NATION, HAS NO SUCH RIGHT."

That Kawakami is expressing a national sentiment is manifested by the brigandage method Japan adopted in taking possession of Korea and the violence with which she has suppressed every attempt of the Koreans to assert their independence. The right of every nation to control immigration is as well established as that of a housebolder to refuse admission to any outsider who may beg, ask or demand admission. From the refusal of neitber is tbere a rigbt eitber of appeal or to demand an explanation for the refusal. If the right to control immigration does not exist, Japan has a causus belli with every nation that places restriction on the immigration of her nationals; and we have infracted that right in every immigration law we have enacted. If we do not possess that right, we must dismantle our forts, disband our army, sink our navy and brand as brigands our brave boys who helped check the invasion by the Huns of the lands they desired to possess. Armed protection is unavailing, if any nation may send her subjects into any country until they crush it industrially. If Japan means what Kawakami says, the issue is unescapable. IF SHE DOES NOT ENDORSE HIS OPINION, HE SHOULD BE DEPORTED. Emma Goldman is a martyr compared to him. If we submit, without protest, Japan will be justified in believing that we are "anxious for peace at any price." If she is behind that statement, compromise with her is impossible.

Count Okuma demanded that we "remove all barriers to Japanese in this country, and consent to racial amalgamation." That he used the word demand advisedly, is evidenced by his opinion that "diplomacy, to be really effective, must be backed by force." Pinckney, an old-fashioned statesman, expressed an American sentiment when he said: "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute."

In closing the diplomatic correspondence which followed the enactment of the land law of 1913, Japan said: "The Imperial Government is unable to acquiesce in the unjust and obnoxious discrimination complained of or to regard the question closed so long as the existing state of things is permitted to continue," and further demanded "the elimination of the rights of the individual states to interfere in any way with the treaty rights granted by Washington."

In plain language, Japan denies the right guaranteed to the states to control the land within their borders. Along that line, the Japanese official organ said: "What we demand is a fundamental remedy, a new treaty providing for the elimination of racial incapacity of our nationals."

Kawakami says: "Not only should Japanese be granted the right of American citizenship, but they should be given the right to inter-marry."

Kazan said: "The population of Japan has now reached the explosive point and Japan must adopt by all means some method to decrease it; now that we are at the parting of the ways, is our foreign office right in keeping silent? We want to emigrate to South and North America and to the British colonies, FIRST BY PEACEFUL MEANS, IF POSSIBLE, AND SECOND BY FORCE OF THE IRON HAND AND MAILED FIST IF OUR DESIRES ARE RESISTED. THE UNITED STATES IS DESIROUS OF PEACE AT ANY PRICE. SHE IS A WOMAN'S COUNTRY AND WOMEN LOVE PEACE." How glibly the expression "mailed fist" fell from the lips of the German war lord a few years ago. As for a "woman's country," Japan is decidedly not one; she has no respect for women, as clearly indicated by her creed and laws.

In protesting against the proposition of California to control her schools,—an attempt that was compromised by the most stupid effort in our diplomatic history, the "Gentlemen's Agreement,"—the "Japanese American," published in San Francisco, came out with this significant headline in its issue of October 5, 1906: "OUR NATIONAL DIGNITY ASSAILED. TO ARMS, MY COUNTRYMEN!"

Japan does not intend that her people understand that she is playing a game of mere diplomatic bluff. She is a past-master in the art that brought Germany to her knees. The Japanese Year Book of 1914 contained the following significant notice: "The object of expansion of national armament is primarily to guard our interest in Manchuria and China, and next to be prepared against a possible emergency with the United States of America."

Jinji Kasai, a member of the Japanese Press Bureau and a graduate of the Chicago University, referring to what he considers as discrimination against his countrymen, said: "Such ungenerous attitude on the part of your people will, I fear, seriously imperil the friendly relations between our two countries. How can the Japanese who hold such high regard for justice and honor, hear patiently such continued irritating injustice?"

Do you mind that? "Such high regard for justice and honor!" Where was Japan's regard for justice and honor when by force and arms she stole Shantung? Where was it when she blackened the page of history with treatment of Koreans so fiendish as to render that of the Germans toward the Belgians humane by comparison? Where is it in the carrying out of the "Gentlemen's Agreement"? HER OFFICIAL ACTS INDICT HER FOR STUPIDITY, DUPLICITY AND HYPOCRISY. She protests against the discrimination against the Asiatics. Does that protest emanate from her sense of justice?

By imperial ordinance 352, promulgated in 1899, Japan does not admit the cheap labor of China and Korea, notwithstanding, like her own nationals, they are mongolians and pagans. She says frankly that she excludes them for industrial reasons—because their lower standard of living would make their competition unfair to the Japanese. WHAT IS MORE TO THE POINT, SHE LIVES UP TO HER PRINCIPLES WITH COMMENDABLE VIGOR. In 1918 some 200 Chinese were brought into Japan to labor in charcoal works. They were deported at the expense of those who brought them in. That the action of the government met with hearty approval, is manifested by an editorial in the "Herald of Asia" of December 28, 1918, which said: "This is the first importation of Chinese labor into Japan. We hope that it will be the last experiment ever made. If it is brought into this country in any large force, the welfare of our laborers will be seriously affected."

THE LEXINGTON MINUTE MAN.

Japan's sense of justice is manifested in the privileges the imperial government extends to her own people, FOR WHOM SHE DEMANDS IN THIS COUNTRY RIGHTS NOT GRANTED TO THEM IN THEIR OWN. In Japan, about two and one-half percent of her male population are accorded the privilege of suffrage, while eighteen percent of the male population of the United States actually voted in the last presidential election. Furthermore, what does suffrage in Japan mean? Those who are privileged to vote elect a diet, which is nothing more than a debating society. No edict it enacts has any effect until it is promulgated by the mikado, who is not only in no way answerable for his declination, but his personality is so sacred that neither he nor his motives are the subjects of debate. He is so superior to the diet that he has the power to dissolve it whenever its action does not please him.

Of the Japanese who seek residence in this country, but a negligible percent of the two and one-half percent would be entitled to suffrage in their native land. Further, it is a fundamental of the Japanese politico-religion that her nationals and their descendants remain subjects of Japan to the end of time, with the exception of those who, in the immature ages between fifteen and seventeen, decide to renounce their allegiance to Japan and become ostracised, as the few who have tried it have found to their sorrow. Those are the people for whom Japan asks the full rights of American citizenship. IT MAY ACCORD WITH JAPAN'S SENSE OF JUSTICE, BUT IT DOES NOT ACCORD WITH AMERICAN SENSE OF DEMOCRACY.

On Lexington Green, in Massachusetts, facing down the highway along which the British grenadiers advanced in the gray hours of that memorable morning of April 19, 1775, stands the heroic statue of the Minute Man, which appears opposite. By its side on the historic boulder are the immortal words of Captain John Parker, whose little company received the baptism of bullets that inaugurated the war for American Independence: "IF THEY MEAN TO HAVE WAR LET IT BEGIN HERE."

America is a war-detesting country, but, when her principles are at stake, not a war-fearing nation. She is patient, charitable and indulgent in permitting free expression of political and religious sentiment, but she is jealous of her national sovereignty. When that is impugned, she stands where our forefathers stood in 1775.

In denying the right to limit or forbid immigration, Japan throws down the gauntlet to civilization. Personally, I believe SHE IS SO DRUNK WITH CONCEIT THAT, LIKE GERMANY, SHE IS INCAPABLE OF GAUGING THE SENTIMENTS OF HUMANITY. I believe she is bluffing. But, bluffing or not, SHE IS INSOLENT AND, IF HER INSOLENCE IS NOT REBUKED, IT WILL LEAD TO FURTHER ACTS OF AGGRESSION.

The United States cannot accede to her demand. The time to take exceptions, prepared to stand by them to the issue of battle, is when you have justice and a strong alliance on your side. If Japan means that we must accede to her demands or fight, there can be no alternative. We are not jingoists, neither have we any patience with an international bully. SHE HAS RAISED AN ISSUE WITH THE ENTIRE CAUCASIAN RACE.

THE BEST SWEETHEART

(IDA E. GLIDDEN.)

MARY WAS QUITE A FAVORITE among her classmates. Being full of mischief, she decided to play a little joke on them and, at the same time, teach them a lesson.

As she came dancing into the classroom at school one day, a classmate said, "Mary, why so happy?" In a moment all the girls were about her, and she decided this was her opportunity.

"I'll tell you why I am so happy," replied Mary. "I have a most wonderful sweetheart, and if you will all come over to my house tonight I'll introduce you."

At the appointed time, all the girls were there, anxious to meet Mary's sweetheart. "Now, girls," she said, "go on your tiptoes and steal gently up to that big armchair, as my sweetheart does not know you are coming."

Upon reaching the chair, the girls were greatly surprised to find seated there, unconscious of what was going on about her, a charming little white-haired woman.

"Allow me, girls," broke in Mary with a smile, "to introduce to you the best sweetheart a girl has—mother! Just remember, sweethearts you may have amany, but only one mother."

As the girls, recovered from their surprise, were seated about the fireplace, Mary continued: "Tomorrow, the second Sunday in May, is Mother's Day, and each of us must wear a carnation in honor of our mother. And this recalls that little poem, full of meaning, 'Mother Mine':

"'If you must forget a playmate,
If you must forget a chum,
Forget the old friends who have gone
And the new ones who will come;
If you must forget your sweetheart
When you find you love another,
Forget the rest from whom you part,
But don't forget your Mother'."

FORTY-THIRD GRAND PARLOR PROCEEDINGS

COMPLETE ACCOUNT WHAT NATIVE SONS ACCOMPLISHED AT SAN DIEGO

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE FORTY-THIRD GRAND PARlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West has gone into history. It was held at San Diego, April 19-23, with Grand President William P. Cauhu presiding. Harmony prevailed throughout the deliberations, and the delegates departed for their homes resolved to "carry on" for the Order's advancement.

The San Diego Grand Parlor was one of the most successful in the Order's history, due, in no small degree, to the splendid arrangements made by San Diego Parlor, No. 108, whose president, A. P. Johnson, Jr., was on several occasions roundly cheered by the Grand Parlor members for his individual efforts. Following is a summarized account of the Grand Parlor proceedings:

GRAND PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

First consideration was given to the report of Grand President William P. Cauhu and its reading was frequently interrupted by outbursts of applause. The report dealt with the Grand President's official acts, and showed that he had had a busy year. Referriug to the splendid membership gain, he said:

"Following the period of the war and several seasons of epidemics, with a good foundation for an increase in membership already laid by the two previous Grand Presidents, I was anxious to do all there was in my power to have a large increase in membership; with a renewed interest stirred in all of our Parlors my desires in this respect were realized. . . . We will have to look over many reports of the past to find a year in which the net gain for the year will equal that of the past year. The reports show a net gain of 1,761 members, which, since the losses include a loss of 263 by taking off the roster members of Parlors declared dissolved which had been moribund for a long time before, really means a net gain in the active membership of the Order of 2,020 members during the year 1919. Thanks, as I have said before, to the impetus already given, to an awakened interest in the things we do and the principles we teach, to a desire to have every Parlor a strong Parlor, we have been able to make this big increase. And not only for 1919 does our increase appear, but in the spirit of 'carry on' the Parlors have persisted and the interest continued, for since January 1 to March 31, 1920, returns to the Grand Secretary show the wonderful gain of 816 members in three months. Let me assure my successor that he has before him the same fine opportunity presented to me upon my installation."

"Too much praise cannot be given by me to our Grand Secretary, Brother Fred H. Jung," said the Grand President; "even more than other Grand Presidents have I depended upon him and his staff; it was a very simple matter for me to take down a telephone; it was a very big help to always find him at the other end with his suggestions, advise and assistance; he has been a thoroughly faithful and loyal brother—a most capable and efficient Grand Secretary."

"I desire also," continued Grand President Canbu," to give praise to the good work and the fine assistance given me during my term by The Grizzly Bear Magazine, our Official Publication; through its columns we obtain publicity of the character we so much desire; it is a magazine that should be read by every member of our Order, and to that end I was pleased to address a communication to all of our Parlors asking their support. It is gratifying to know that its value and worth are being more appreciated as time goes on."

Referring to Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker, the Grand President said: "Too much praise cannot be given to Brother Andrew Mocker for his faithful and untiring work as Grand Organizer; he has not rested once during the term; if not assisting a Parlor in enlarging its membership he was investigating causes of stagnation in other places. His keen perception in ascertaining the trouble in a Parlor and his ability to remove the cause was of great value to your Grand President. I have endeavored to comply with every request for his services; every visit by him has meant not only an increase in membership, but a renewed interest in a Parlor."

GRAND SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The report of Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung dealt largely with statistics of the Order. He announced that in the "Status of Parlors" section Presidio 194 (San Francisco), with 374 members and assets of $23,401.26, had been inadvertantly omitted.

The report showed that during 1919 benefits amounting to $103,224.24 had been paid by Subordinate Parlors. Their total income was $326,061.87, and expenditures $299,087.06; at the close of the year their assets totaled $934,868.45. The membership was shown to have increased from 11,958 January 1, 1900, to 22,918 January 1, 1920.

The returns of the Parlors' membership showed winners of the Trophy Banners to be those mentioned in The Grizzly Bear for May, except in District 9, in which Balboa 234 (San Francisco) was declared the winner.

MARKING HISTORIC SPOTS.

The Historic Landmarks Committee—P.G.P. Joseph R. Knowland, P.G.P. Lewis F. Byington, J. P. Sproul (Corona 196), A. Sutter (Pacific 10), P.G.P. Louis H. Mooser, C. W. Chapman (Hydraulic 56), P.G.P. John F. Davis—reported that during the past year a bronze tablet had been placed on the building at the northwest corner of Sansome and Clay streets, San Francisco, marking the early-day site of the emigrant ship "Niantic." Also, that a tablet had been placed to mark the site of the Murphy cabin of the Donner Party, near the Donner Monument.

The committee still has in its possession the tablet proposed to be placed on the Donner Monument, which occupies the site of the Breen cabin of the Donner Party. [The Grand Parlor referred the disposition of this tablet jointly to the Historic Landmarks and Donner Monument Committees; if the committees cannot agree, the Board of Grand Officers is given full power to decide the matter.]

The committee has had cast, and will place as soon as the Jackson-Silver Lake road across the Sierras is opened, a bronze tablet to mark the site where the tree on which Kit Carson, the famous scout, inscribed his name in 1844, stands. The tablet's inscription reads:

> "On this spot, which marks the summit of the Kit Carson pass, stood what was known as the Kit Carson tree on which the famous scout Kit Carson inscribed his name in 1844, when he guided the then Colonel John C. Fremont, head of a Government exploring expedition, over the Sierra Nevada mountains. Below is a replica of the original inscription cut from the tree in 1888, and now in Sutter's Fort, Sacramento.
> "Erected by Historic Landmarks Committee, Native Sons of the Golden West, 1920."

Having secured accurate data, the committee is soon to place a tablet at First and Market streets, San Francisco, to designate the bay water-line in early days.

GRAND PRESIDENT COMMENDED.

The State of the Order Committee—Henry W. Gaetjen (chairman), George W. Kinney, Frank P. Estrade, Arthur M. Dean and Arthur J. Falvey—to which was referred reports of grand officers, deputy grand presidents, etc., presented the following report, which was approved by the Grand Parlor:

"We are pleased to note the Order has made such a remarkable gain in membership during the past year, and trust the good work will be carried on.

"Total assets of Subordinate Parlors January 1, $934,868, an increase over the previous year of $23,235.

"Subordinate Parlors paid during the year 1919 benefits amounting to $103,222, a decrease of $4,663, compared with 1918.

"We commend Grand President Cauhu very highly for the extraordinary accomplishment which has characterized his work. We feel that his highly successful efforts to increase the membership of the Order should meet with special commendation of every one who has the Order's welfare at heart.

"We concur heartily with the Grand President's praise of the work of Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung, Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker and The Grizzly Bear Magazine. The work of the Grand Organizer cannot be a success without the co-operation of all members.

"We feel that with but a little individual effort the Subordinate Parlors should, during the coming year, increase their membership by a large percentage."

MAY GIVE MONUMENT TO STATE.

The Donner Monument Committee—C. W. Chapman (Hydraulic 56), Elam Biggs (Quartz 58), M. E. Estrada (Donner 162), P.G.P. Jo V. Snyder, P.G.P. Lewis F. Byington, P.G.P. Herman C. Lichtenberger, P.G.P. Clarence E. Jarvis, P.G.P. John F. Davis—reported it has under consideration the purchase of additional lands surrounding the Donner Monument, with the purpose in view to proffer the entire acreage together with the monument to the State of California to maintain as a public park. [The Grand Parlor authorized the Board of Grand Officers to transfer title if the committee is successful in its efforts.]

The committee reported it is also negotiating a lease of the holdings to a company which will maintain a tourists' service on the property; the company will be required to keep the monument accessible and in good condition and to protect it from vandals.

LODGE OF SORROW.

The afternoon of Wednesday was devoted to the Lodge of Sorrow, arranged for by a special committee of Past Grand Presidents—Louis H. Mooser, Lewis F. Byington, Judge Frank H. Dunne, Dr. Charles W. Decker and Joseph R. Knowland—appointed by Grand President William P. Canbu. Past Grand President Mooser presided, and addresses were delivered by the following:

Fletcher A. Cutler, in memory of Past Grand President Albert Foster Jones.

Edwin A. Meserve, in memory of Past Grand President Frank Mattison.

Lewis F. Byington, in memory of Past Grand President Charles Mortimer Belshaw.

Charles L. McEnerney, in memory of Past Grand Marshals Steven V. Costello, Louis Juillard, George H. S. Dryden and Dr. William A. Gaston.

Philip M. Carey, in memory of the many members who passed away between January 1, 1919, and April 20, 1920.

PER CAPITA TAX.

To carry on the work of the Order through the new year, the Finance Committee—J. Clem Bates (Halcyon 146), Charles A. Koenig (Golden Gate 29) and John T. Regan (South San Francisco 157)—submitted a budget calling for $38,100, $15,000 of which was charged to the mileage for the San Diego session. Other appropriations include $3,000 for History Fellowships $3,600 for organization work and $500 for landmarks work.

The per capita tax was fixed at $1.50, 30 cents of which is to be applied to Native Son hall investments and to the Donner Monument fund. The tax may be paid in four installments—50 cents June 30, 1920, 30 cents September 30, 1920, 40 cents December 31, 1920, and 30 cents February 28, 1921,—or may be paid 80 cents June 30, 1920, and 70 cents December 31, 1920.

NEW GRAND OFFICERS.

At the election for grand officers, 414 votes were cast, the number being the largest in the history of the Order except at the 1914 (Los Angeles) Grand Parlor, when 418 members voted. As the result of the election, these grand officers were chosen, and were installed just preceding the final closing by Past Grand President William F. Toomey, assisted by A. J. Turner and Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, acting grand marshals:

James F. Hoey (Mount Diablo 101) of Martinez, Grand President.

William I. Traeger (Ramona 109) of Los Angeles, Grand First Vice-president.

Harry G. Williams (Oakland 50) of Oakland, Grand Second Vice-president.

William J. Hayes (Berkeley 210) of Berkeley, Grand Third Vice-president.

Fred H. Jung (Stanford 76) of San Francisco, Grand Secretary.

John E. McDougald (California 1) of San Francisco, Grand Treasurer.

Hubert B. Sendder (Sebastopol 143) of Sebastopol, Grand Marshal.

Isadore H. Reuter (Yosemite 24) of Merced, Grand Inside Sentinel.

John S. Ramsay (Castro 232) of San Francisco, Grand Outside Sentinel.

John J. Monteverde (Sunset 26) of Sacramento, Grand Trustee.

Henry G. Bodkin (Corona 196) of Los Angeles, Grand Trustee.

Edward J. Lynch (Pacific 10) of San Francisco, Grand Trustee.

Charles A. Thompson (Santa Clara 100) of Santa Clara, Grand Trustee.

James A. Wilson (Rincon 72) of San Francisco, Grand Trustee.

Frank M. Carr (Eden 113) of Hayward, Grand Trustee.

Arthur M. Dean (McCloud 149) of Redding, Grand Trustee.

William P. Caubu (South San Francisco 157) of San Francisco, having retired from the Grand Presidency, automatically became and was installed as Junior Past Grand President.

Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel (Bay City 104) of San Francisco was appointed Grand Organist by Grand President Hoey.

Frank C. Merritt (Brooklyn 151) of Oakland was appointed Historiographer by Grand President Hoey.

Following installation, Junior Past Grand President William P. Caubu was presented, by Past Graud Prosideut William F. Toomey on behalf of the membership of the Order, with a handsome silver service. In responding, the recipient thanked the members for the honor he had relinquished and for their united support during his administration, and said he knew the gift would be specially enjoyed by his good wife, who had always seconded his efforts in the Order's behalf.

RITUAL LEGISLATION.

The Initiatory Ritual was amended to provide that in future the obligation must be recited to candidate before he is asked to subscribe to and repeat the same.

Providing that persons re-entering the Order are not to be required to again be initiated but simply to re-affirm allegiance to the obligation and laws.

Authorizing a committee of nine to prepare, and submit to 1921 (Stockton) Grand Parlor, an installation ceremony for Subordinate Parlors which shall contain reference to California history.

Providing that in making awards of membership Trophy Banners, initiates secured by organizer employed by Grand Parlor shall not be considered in computing gains; that banners will be awarded only to Parlors making gain of at least three members and 5 perceut of membership; that where no Parlor in a class makes such minimum gain banner of such class may be awarded Parlor in another class, not already a banner winner, which has made most meritorious gain.

ORIENTALS NOT WANTED
EITHER AS CITIZENS OR LANDHOLDERS

Early in the session there was a flood of resolutions pertaining to the Asiatic question, and all were referred to a special committee authorized by motion to be named by the Grand President and designated the "Asiatic Committee." The committee named—Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger (chairman), W. J. Dougherty (Balboa 234), J. W. Bates (Sunset 26), Joseph Berry (Courtland 106), Frank L. Hart (Stanford 76) and A. K. Dam (Rainbow 40)—during the week listened to the statements of those concerned and considered all legislation on the question proposed.

As a result of the committee's careful deliberations, two resolutions were reported the last day of the session. They set forth the attitude of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West on this most important question confronting California today—the Oriental menace—and were unanimously adopted. The resolutions follow:

Whereas, The security of our national life is menaced by the presence in this country of members of races that cannot be assimilated by the white race; and

Whereas, The economic and institutional life of our state must be protected from the invasion of non-assimilable aliens and its lands conserved for the benefit and enjoyment of the white race; and

Whereas, It has developed in recent years that there is intense activity by aliens ineligible to citizenship of our nation in evading the laws designed to protect our social and industrial life; and

Whereas, Many public officials, civic and fraternal bodies and individuals have labored to secure protection for the ideals of our national life, and the security of our American civilization; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Native Sons of the Golden West, an Order founded upon patriotism and dedicated to the principle of loyalty to state and nation, and being deeply concerned in the proposition of maintaining and preserving American institutions and ideals, is appreciative of the unselfish and devoted efforts thus put forth, and hereby expresses its grateful acknowledgment and commends continuance of such efforts until success is attained and we have secured in California an American province peopled by Americans, progressing and developing according to American ideals and standards of civilization, under the protective folds of the American Flag.

Resolved, That the Native Sons of the Golden West, in Grand Parlor assembled, declare that this Order is opposed to the acquisition of citizenship by those who, by reason of race or tradition, cannot assimilate with the white race; that it is opposed to the ownership or control of land by those who cannot, or who should not be permitted to, become citizens; and that it is opposed to the presence of bodies of such people in our country; and be it further

Resolved, That this Grand Parlor favors the enactment of legislation, both Federal and State, by constitutional amendment, statute, and treaty abrogation, to the end that such undesirable people be denied the right of citizenship either by birth or by naturalization; and to the end that people thus not eligible to acquire citizenship be not permitted to own or control land; and be it further

Resolved, That the Grand Parlor approves the participation by Subordinate Parlors, and declares it to be the highest duty of every Native Son to use his utmost efforts, in a movement to provide a remedy for the evils set forth herein.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Favoring the building by the State of a highway from Placerville to Coloma, the site of the Marshall monument.

Advocating adoption by state and local governments of business-like management which will produce the greatest possible economy without loss of efficiency, and distribute the tax burdens in an equitable manner.

Urging the securing by the State of a forest policy which will guarantee forests sufficient for the needs of future generations.

Approving and endorsing the initiative amendment to the Land Settlement Act proposed by the Land Settlement Committee of the American Legion.

Favoring the placing of an N.S.G.W. stone tablet in the Washington Monument at the National Capital, and authorizing the Grand President to name a committee to investigate and report.

Commending the movement to restore the missions of California, and recommending to the people that they give every encouragement to the saving of these historic landmarks.

Favoring the planting of ornamental shade trees along the highways throughout the state, and requesting the Grand President to promote the work in the Subordinate Parlors.

Urging all those charged with the retaining and hiring of public-school teachers to give preference and precedence, all other things being equal, to those who have received their training in California institutions.

Pledging loyal support to any movement having for its object the preservation of a sufficient area of redwoods of the northwestern coast of California for a state redwood park, and recommending that the State take action to acquire same.

Protesting against proposed removal from Market and Mason streets, to Civic Center, San Francisco, of statue erected to the Order of Native Sons in commemoration of California's admission to statehood.

Expressing unalterable opposition to any project which will in anywise interfere with Lake Tahoe as it now exists, and particularly protesting against the proposed lowering of the level of the lake.

Endorsing the project to purchase by popular subscription the Andrew P. Hill painting, "Crossing the Plains," that it may be hung in some suitable public place and preserved.

Approving the four-fold beneficial optional legislative program proposed by the American Legion and now in committee in Congress, and urging the adoption of same by Congress.

Endorsing, in the interest of thrift, the opportunity offered by the National Government to purchase War Savings Stamps, and urging all Subordinate Parlors to assist in their sale.

Extending vote of thanks to San Diego Native Sons, Native Daughters and people generally for courtesies extended to and entertainment provided for members of the Grand Parlor and accompanying visitors; to the commander and men of the Reserve Destroyer Division, U. S. N., for entertainment; to the press, for full and authentic reports of proceedings; and to all those who in any way contributed to the complete success of the gathering.

SAN DIEGO INITIATES BIG CLASS.

One of the most pleasing features of the Grand Parlor session was the initiation April 21 for San Diego Parlor, No. 108, of a class of fifty candidates, among whom were Commander Milton S. Davis of the U.S.N. destroyer squadron, Supervisor Joseph Foster and other prominent San Diegans. The Parlor met in regular session, with President A. P. Johnson, Jr., presiding, but for the purpose of exemplifying the ritual the several stations were relinquished to the following corps of officers from the Grand Parlor: Grand President William P. Caubu, president; Grand First Vice-president James F. Hoey, first vice-president; Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger, second vice-president; Finance Committeeman James J. Regan, third vice-president; Grand Marshal James A. Wilson, marshal; Grand Inside Sentinel Hubert B. Scudder, senior past president and inside sentinel; Grand Outside Sentinel Isadore H. Reuter, outside sentinel; William C. Neumiller (Stockton 7), financial secretary; Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, recording secretary; Grand Organist Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel, organist; Grand Trustee James G. Conlan, junior past president.

The meeting-place was filled to overflowing, and San Diego Parlor was showered with congratulations for the great progress it has made; through this initiation the Parlor became entitled to an additional delegate, making three, and W. E. Agard was elected. After the initiation ceremonies addresses were in order; the speakers encouraged the Parlor to continue its member-getting drive and also gave some wholesome advice. FIFTY YEARS AGO IN CALIFORNIA
A RESUME OF INTERESTING HAPPENINGS IN MAY, 1870

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

HOT WAVE MADE ITS APPEARance in California, May 5, 1870, the thermometer being over 80° in San Francisco and 90° in the shade in the interior for several days.

A desiccating north wind prevailed, that shriveled the grain and withered the grass to a disastrous extent. Heavy losses were reported in the Sacramento Valley by grain-growers.

The rainfall this season, to May 1, in the San Joaquin Valley and Southern California averaged less than 8 inches.

The grain crop on the West Side of the San Joaquin River, from Antioch to Visalia, was reported a failure. Many acres of wheat were being cut for hay, but hundreds of other acres were being leased for pasture, as the stalks were too short to be cut even for hay.

The price of flour was advanced by the millmen $1 a barrel, in anticipation of a partial crop failure. A report reaching Chicago that two-thirds of the California grain crop was a failure, caused prices to advance, and for the first time the crop prospects of the state had an effect upon grain prices in the United States.

In addition to this unpleasant condition, grasshoppers were reported a plague in Los Angeles County, and the army-worm made its appearance in Yuba County. The latter marched in such numbers upon the railroad bridge at Marysville that May 12 the engine of a train stalled, its drivers slipping on the crushed mass and thus rendering the locomotive powerless to move off the bridge.

Showers of rain fell May 16, but too late to do any good. This was followed by a heavy frost in the foothills that greatly damaged fruit and vegetables in Nevada and other mining counties.

In fact, agricultural conditions were in a gloomy state in California this month, with no prospects of being bettered as summer came on.

San Francisco market quotations were: Wheat $1.85, barley $1.30, oats $1.70, potatoes 75 cents a cental, oat hay $15 a ton.

The spring meeting of the Stockton Jockey Club was held during the week of May 10. A running race between "Oliver Cromwell," sired by "Lodi," and "Emma Barnes," sired by "Norfolk," mile heats, attracted great attention from turfites, as it was the first contest of the get of these noted sires. The "Norfolk" filly won the first heat, but the "Lodi" colt won the next two. Best time was 1:51. A running race, mile heats, 3 in 5, between "Thad. Stevens," "Al. Bascom" and several other thoroughbreds, was another popular contest. "Bascom" won the first two heats, then "Old Thad" took the next three. The best time was 1:51.

Many Visitors Come to California.

The spring meeting of the Sacramento Jockey Club was held during the week of May 23 and was the most successful yet held. While the trotting races were contended for by the 2:40 class, the running races were great events in the turf world, the colts sired by "Norfolk" and "Lodi" attracting much attention. The meeting opened with a California derby run by "Norfolk" colts.

May 25 there was a 2-mile heat race between "Modoc Queen" and "Thad Stevens," which was a big betting affair and was won by "Modoc." Best time 3:46. May 26 mile heats, 2 in 3, between "Nell Flatherty," a "Rifleman" filly, "Emma Barnes," a "Norfolk" filly, and "Oliver Cromwell,' a "Lodi" colt, drew a large, enthusiastic betting crowd who backed the get of their favorite sire with avidity. The race was won by "Nell Flaherty" in 1:46¾ and 1:47. This filly followed her victory by another 3-in-5 mile-heat race, defeating May 27 "Bois d'Arc" and "Al Bascom." Her best time was 1:46 4-5 and she was crowned queen of the California turf by her admirers as a result of her unexpected development of speed and stamina.

The meet closed May 28 with an equestrienne tournament which was competed in by Mrs. T. D. Scriver, Miss Mary A. Mahoney and Mrs. A. K. Quigley of Sacramento, Mrs. C. M. Hunt and Miss M. E. McDowell of Yolo County, Mrs. A. E. Edding of El Dorado County and Mrs. J. A. Kriss of Solano County. It was evidently a democratic affair, as three democratic state senators, Pendegast, Lewis and Boggs, were the judges. Mrs. T. D. Scriver won the first prize. All the other women were complimented and given prizes as classified.

The Grand Lodge of the I.O.O.F. of California met in San Francisco May 10. There were 160 lodges and 12,877 members represented. G. W. Dannals of Sweetland, Nevada County, was elected grand master and T. Rodgers Johnson grand secretary.

The State Turn Verein societies hold their annual meeting at Marysville for the three days commencing May 28. The city was brilliantly illuminated with candles and Chinese lanterns on the night of the 28th, and a parade of over 1,000 Turners, from different cities of the state, met with an enthusiastic reception.

Among the notables of the United States who came to the state this month was P. T. Barnum, the famous showman, who delivered a lecture on his personal experiences in San Francisco. After which he tried the efficacy of the then noted "chicken soup" hot spring at Calistoga for a couple of weeks, but did not buy it.

Bayard Taylor, the noted traveler, author and poet, came to San Francisco to deliver a series of lectures.

First Negro Jury Convicts Negro.

An excursion train of Pullman sleepers and dining-car, occupied by about 100 prominent people from Boston, arrived in California May 31. They were given a big ovation at Sacramento and were met by a crowd of former New England residents, numbering over a thousand, upon their arrival in San Francisco.

An excursion train of nine Pullman sleepers, occupied by about 300 teachers of San Francisco, left California for New York May 28.

A carload of hams from Chicago were sold on the San Francisco market at 25c a pound and attracted as much attention as the other Eastern celebrities.

John Keach a Portuguese mining on Pony Creek, Trinity County, found two nuggets, each weighing 35 ounces and valued at over $1,200. He took out of his sluices over $900 in other nuggets in one week.

The railroad line north of Marysville, headed for Oregon, was completed to Nelson Station May 17.

The Fenian Brotherhood of San Francisco had a picnic at Redwood City May 7, attended by over 15,000 people.

Fifteen gold fish were placed in the fountain basin of the Masonic cemetery in San Francisco in 1865. A count this month showed they had increased to over 2,000 and some were over a pound in weight.

The Mercantile Library lottery opened offices for the sale of tickets this month, an act of the Legislature having given the scheme a legitimate lease of life. The drawing was to be held Oct. 31. May 25 orders to the number of 150 were received in the San Francisco office, some by telegraph from the East for ticket 1849. One would-be purchaser offered $50 bonus for the ticket. A ticket cost $5.

Hugo Youke, a noted musician, gave two monster concerts in the state pavilion at Sacramento May 17 and 18. A program, rendered by local talent, was well received and brought music lovers from many towns to listen to their harmonious efforts.

The first California jury composed of the new Fifteenth Amendment citizens was impaneled in the police court, at Sacramento, May 25. Out of twenty subpoenaed, only nine were found eligible, and these tried the case. It was one where a colored man was charged with battery upon a Chinaman. The colored jurymen found the colored defendant guilty as charged.

A billiard tournament for the champion cue of the Pacific Coast, with seven contenders, was played in San Francisco during the first fortnight of this month. Twenty-eight games were played before a large and enthusiastic audience of knights of the cue who did a large amount of betting. A tie resulted between John W. Little and Wm. Mott which, on being played off, was won by Little, who became the coast champion. The games were caroms of 1,000 points.

A big Chinese riot occurred in San Francisco the night of May 22. The Chinese washermen had organized what could be called a labor union. They districted the city to its members, and then found some were infringing on the rights of other members. A meeting in a joss house on Sacramento street developed into a fight, in which about 125 Chinamen started proceedings. In a few minutes over 3,000 Chinamen apeared like ants in a disturbed hill from every direction with all kinds of weapons.

Three Lynched at Watsonville.

The police rushed to the scene, and succeeded in scattering the Celestial combatants. They captured eighteen prisoners, eighteen iron bars, and filled several barrels with knives, pistols, swords, cleavers and pokers. No dead bodies were found, though numerous wounded were conveyed by their friends from the field of action. The joss, though badly disfigured, was retired from inactive duty.

A fire at Downieville, Sierra County, May 4, destroyed several business houses, and caused a $20,000 loss. Nessler and Blohm were the heaviest losers.

The store of I. Sokolowsky in Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, was burglarized the night of May 8. The safe was blown open and $1,400 in coin and jewelry taken.

May 21, at Sonora, Tuolumne County, H. Crepin, a merchant closing his store about 10 p. m., was attacked by two masked men who gagged and robbed him of $500.

The infamous forgers known as Brotherton brothers, who had operated in England and the United States, came to San Francisco this month. Under the names of George and Lewis Clark, they succeeded in passing, May 12, a forged check for $14,000 on the Hickox & Spear's bank, taking payment in greenbacks. May 14 they were caught on a train at Stockton, while enroute East, and the currency recovered.

Antonio Garara, alias "Indian Bill," May 11 was killed near Watsonville, Santa Cruz County. Valentine Varaga, Gregoria and Jesus Gomez, brothers, all Mexicans, were arrested for the crime. It developed all had been engaged in a number of robberies and May 17 about forty masked men appeared, took the three men from the custody of the officer, and hanged them from the Pajaro River bridge.

General George S. Evans was elected mayor of Stockton May 4.

James T. Brown, a prominent attorney of Jackson, Amador County, who went there a Pioneer in 1849, died May 5.

Alexander Cameron, a merchant at Banta, San Joaquin County, while inspecting the Corral Hollow coal mine was caved upon May 16 and killed.

Wm. Goodson was seriously injured May 24 in the Eureka mine at Grass Valley, Nevada County, by being caught and crushed between the cage and shaft.

"Uncle" Jake Killinger and W. W. Allen, working a claim on Canyon Creek, Trinity County, May 17 were caved upon. Uncle Jake, a popular mining man in the county, was instantly killed, while Allen escaped with a slight injury.

Isaac Tripp, a prominent mining man of Amador County, working in his hydraulic mine at Butte City, near Jackson, was caved upon and buried beneath twenty feet of earth May 20 and instantly killed.

Four Cremated in Yolo County Fire.

Thomas Massey, a 14-year-old lad, May 20 at Oroville, Butte County, tied a horse to the beam of an old building. The animal suddenly pulled back, causing the timber to fall. It struck the boy on the head and caused his death.

Frank Canuon, a lad 10 years old, while swimming with other boys in a reservoir near Nevada City, Nevada County, was drowned May 12.

Edward Miley, an 8-year-old boy, May 4 was sent by his mother on an errand to the store at Poker Flat, Sierra County. Crossing a log over Canyon Creek, he fell into the stream and was drowned.

James Fewings, a 12-year-old lad of Auburn, Placer County, May 24 was hunting near that place; while trying to capture a wounded bird and dragging his gun by its muzzle, the latter was accidentally discharged. The charge of shot struck near his stomach, making a dangerous wound.

A coal-oil lamp exploded, on the evening of May 20, in a dressmaking parlor on Howard street, San Francisco. The burning fluid was thrown upon Josephine Platter and Theresa Sieglemier, young women 18 years of age. Miss Platter was fearfully and fatally burned, and Miss Sieglemier was seriously injured.

May 28, near Knights Landing, Yolo County, a rancher named Hughes went to Sacramento with his wife and left their four children in the care of Miss Emma Wright, a 16-year-old maiden sister of Mrs. Hughes. At 2 a. m. the next morning neighbors saw the house in flames, and Miss Wright and the four children were burned to death. The cause of the fire remained unknown.

J. J. Riggs, a farmer living three miles from Yuba City, Sutter County, May 30 while working in his field about 11 a. m., saw his home in flames. His wife, who was alone in the house, was cremated. The cause of the fire was unknown.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT IN PRESENT CONDITIONS

SAYS NEW HEAD OF ORDER OF NATIVE SONS; NAMES ASSISTANTS

By James F. Hoey

(GRAND PRESIDENT, N.S.G.W.)

THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF the Golden West has, through the Subordinate Parlors' representatives assembled in Grand Parlor at San Diego, conferred upon me a great honor, the greatest that could come to any Californian and one which but few are privileged to enjoy. Words cannot express my appreciation for the confidence reposed in me. I sincerely hope that my administration will be as successful as that of my predecessor, and that when the time arrives for me, too, to he succeeded by another, it will not be said that that confidence was misplaced.

The term, as Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, of one who has given many years of service to the advancement of those great principles upon which the Order is founded, has expired. He has stepped on, to be numbered among the "Past Grands," where he will be ever ready to extend to those who follow a guiding hand. The term of Past Grand President William P. Caubu is crowned with success and accomplishments, and it should he with pride that he adds additional pages to the great book containing the history of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

I realize that, coupled with the honor of the exalted position of Grand President, there is an abundance of lahor, and that an opportunity is offered for some sober and serious thought. The plans which a Grand President may formulate to advance the best interests of the State and Order, will bear no fruit, and the achievements which he may have contemplated will be in mind only, unless he be given the support, assistance and cooperation of the brothers who are close to the line of actien. The growth of the Order is regulated hy the activity of its members, and an additional spark of enthusiasm may kindle the interest of the brothers of a Parlor, with the ultimate result that the annual report will show a record to which all may point with pride and admiration.

The people of this state are now awakened to the fact that this land of liberty, freedom and equality finds itself looking fairly and squarely into the face of some most serious problems, and it therefore hehooves every loyal Californian, prompted by that inseparable feeling of love for country, pride of nativity, and loyalty to the Stars and Stripes, to renew with additional energy his devotion to state and country through the channels of our Order, and he will reap his reward in the achievements to follow. The impression that a young man receives when he first crosses the threshhold of a Parlor of this Order should be a lasting one, and should serve to keep fresh in his memory the lessons there learned—that he has become affiliated with a fraternity founded upon patriotism, conceived in loyalty, and born under the Stars and Stripes—then will he find it easier to battle the dangers which are fast encroaching upon his state. It has heen said that our Order is a genuine school for patriotism and that its teachings and practices in times of peace bear fruit in times of war. The truth of these statements was manifested in the recent world conflict by the ready response of Native Sons to the call of the colors in defense of those great principles of liberty and equality.

Like Grand Presidents who have preceded me, I have visions of the accomplishments of a successful term. I realize that a standard has been set by my predecessors which will require time and lahor to follow, but I feel that the outlook for a prosperous year was never more favorable. Many of the sons of California have returned to their native land, after passing through the dark tunnels of a world war, with the realization that it is a proud privilege to be a native son, in addition to the enjoyment of the greatest heritage on this earth—that of being an American citizen. These young men are now seeking the portals of an order, the foundation-stone of which is patriotism, and we should not be slow to extend to them an invitation to join our ranks, that they may have an opportunity to take their place in this great army of patriots and continue their fight for the advancement of those same principles for which they battled in a foreign land.

Although a Grand President finds many weighty problems confronting him at the commencement of his term, his thoughts are generally first directed to the extension of the Order. The net gain made during the past term is the best that has been made for many years, but I feel that with the combined effort of the workers of our Order, prompted by their love for the fraternity and their loyalty to the state, that we will enjoy a realization of the prediction of Past Grand President Caubu, that the increase during his term will not only be surpassed hut that it will he doubled.

We should lend every effort to assist that committee which is performing such a noble work for the elevation of humanity by hringing together the childless home and the homeless child. Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw, one of the most sincere Native Sons the Order has ever produced, has passed on to that greater and grander fraternity. No longer may the Homeless Children Committee look to him for counsel and advice, and no longer will his voice be heard echoing through the halls of the Grand Parlor in praise of the year's accomplishments.

The future welfare of California finds itself endangered by the Asiatic menace, and a question now confronts loyal Californians which is of a most serious nature and one which may be difficult to solve. The Japanese have been aided in their well-laid plan to colonize California, not only by the wealth of their own country but also by the liberal conditions which exist in this state. Their "peaceful penetration" brought forth no protest. When they became firmly seated on the fertile soil of California and had driven thousands of Americans from their homes, they refused to seriously consider the California Land Law, hut with the ultimate hope of accomplishing their purpose they carried on their operations behind the mask of a guardian or a corporation.

We have also within the confines of our state

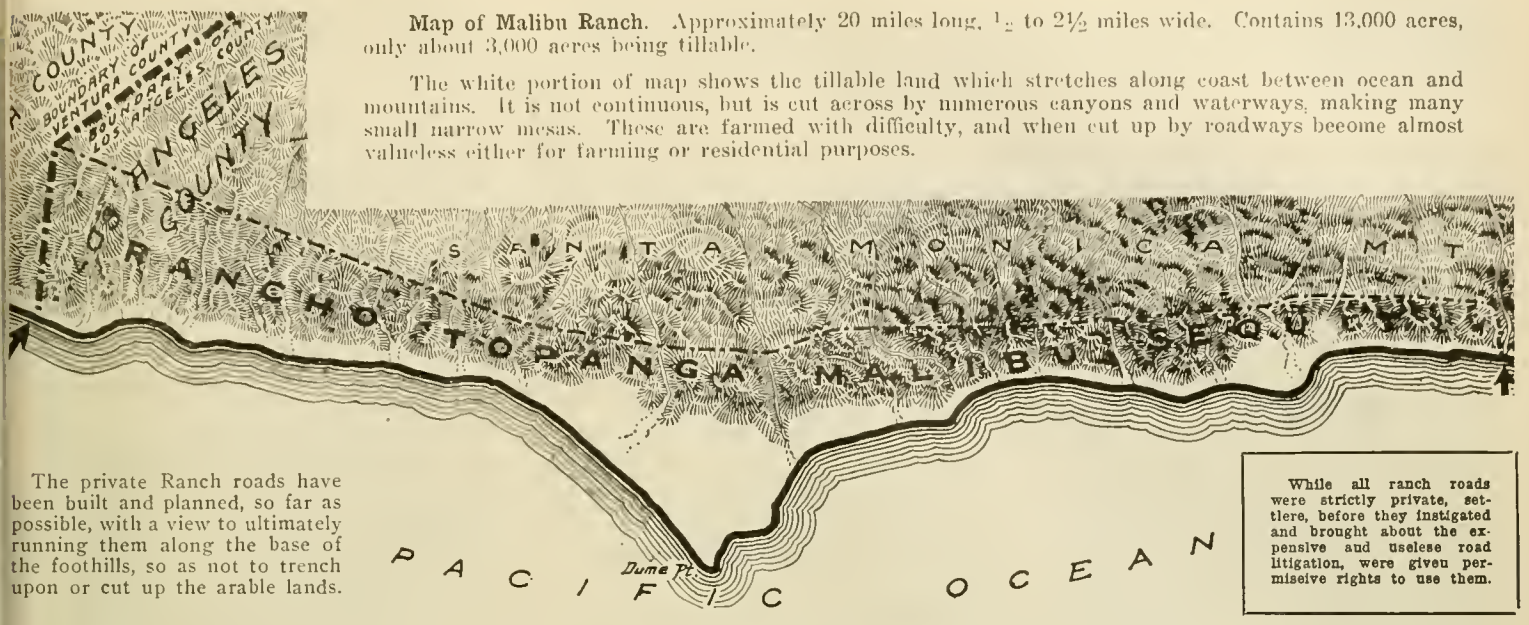

JAMES F. HOEY.

You may be in a position to materially assist some of the other committees that are carrying on our creditable work. You have been told annually of the achievements of the Landmarks and History Committees; their accomplishments would be far greater, if the membership would take a keener interest in their labors. We still have in our Golden State many Pioneers who could divulge much valuable information relating to early days, and their story should be recorded before their lips are sealed forever by death. We have for many years advocated the restoration of the old missions, which are fast decaying, and if not soon protected these precious landmarks will be in memory only. It now appears that the seed sown by our Order has firmly taken root, for the citizens of California have awakened to the realization that immediate action is necessary to preserve these connecting links of our state's early history.

another class of people who are equally as dangerous—those who have left their own homes to escape the heel of autocracy and the burdens of a tyrannical government and have come to a land of justice, liberty and freedom, where they had extended to them the hand of the Good Samaritan. They are unahle to endure the prosperity which they have enjoyed, and in appreciation of the hospitality extended to them we find them standing upon a soap-hox on the street corners not advocating the great principles of Americanism but, instead, that of i.w.w.-ism and attempting to create a condition of unrest and dissatisfaction. There is no room in the good old U. S. A. for this class of individuals, or for any others who have no respect for the Stars and Stripes, and in my judgment they should be speedily dealt with.

These matters, and others that might be mentioned, furnish food for thought for the memhers

Map of Malibu Ranch. Approximately 20 miles long, ½ to 2½ miles wide. Contains 13,000 acres, only about 3,000 acres being tillable.

The white portion of map shows the tillable land which stretches along coast between ocean and mountains. It is not continuous, but is cut across by numerous canyons and waterways, making many small narrow mesas. These are farmed with difficulty, and when cut up by roadways become almost valueless either for farming or residential purposes.

The private Ranch roads have been built and planned, so far as possible, with a view to ultimately running them along the base of the foothills, so as not to trench upon or cut up the arable lands.

While all ranch roads were strictly private, settlers, before they instigated and brought about the expensive and useless road litigation, were given permissive rights to use them.

The ranch owners have also sought to keep their ocean frontage free from road invasions that would destroy both its beauty and sea-frontage value.

The County Highway, as surveyed and contemplated, utterly disregards the owner's interests as regards ocean frontage, and also ruthlessly cuts through and destroys the value of much of the arable lands.

The surveyed coast-route State Highway runs so near the ocean that it will rob the ocean frontage as such, of all future value, in addition to its other detriments to the Ranch as a whole.

The Amazing Injustice Which County Supervisors Now Threaten

Against the People of the County and Against the Rindge Company

An Indefensible Project

Never was there an act more unjust, indifferent to legal consequences or disregardful of business prudence, than the avowed intentions of the Los Angeles County Supervisors to build a certain highway into Mslibu Ranch.

Fact 1—Uncertain Title

Having obtained a Lower Court judgment in condemnation proceedings for a 40-foot right-of-way for a road into the ranch, the Supervisors ignore the fact that this case has been appealed to a higher court, and that many doubtful questions of law are involved, snd stste they will proceed to construct the road, taking s chance, at the tax-payers' risk, of losing all of the vast sums they are threatening to expend upon it. THEY KNOW, THAT OVER A PERIOD OF THIRTEEN YEARS, EVERY CASE INVOLVING ROADS INTO THE MALIBU RANCH HAS REACHED A HIGHER COURT AND HAS BEEN DECIDED IN FAVOR OF THE RINDGE COMPANY, and they know, therefore, that there is a strong probability that this case will also he decided in accordance with the legal interpretations of the company and its attorneys. They know further that should this prove to be so, and the judgment be reversed, the whole enormous outlay of moneys will, as we have said, he irretrievably lost to the County.

Yet the Supervisors stste they are preparing to huild and will build the rosd. In fact, the preliminary work to thst end hae been commenced.

Fact 2—The Injustice

This proposed roadway does not skirt the base of the mountain sides iu order to avoid cutting up the narrow patches of farm lsnd, but criss-crosses from ocesn to mountain sides, all within the confines of this narrow belt. This causes unnecessary and terrible damage to the Rindge property; but, nevertheless, the Supervisors have caused this survey to be made in this manner and profess the determination to so build the "County Road."

Fact 3—A "Cul de Sac"

Nor does the proposed highwsy make s connection with any road lying beyond, but comes to an abrupt end inside the Rindge Ranch, the western terminal heing a fence on the boundary between Los Angeles and Ventura Counties. On the opposite side of this fence stretches additional Rindge properly, lying in Ventura County, and having within it no road.

After realizing that the constrnction of such a palpably worthless road would be sure to srouse a storm of indignation, the Supervisors then obtsined the like Lower Court condemnation of a right-of-way leading hack into a steep and mountainous canyon, three miles from the end of this proposed road, the theoretical plan being that s road could be constructed winding back through the mountains and ultimately joining with some inland highway. The cost, difficulty and practical uselessness of this road, however, makes of it a mere pretense to justify the enormous outlays which have heen made and which are still contemplated. Moreover, the validity of this proceeding is still in litigstion and equally in doubt. From a practical standpoint the proposed county road is a mere blind lane, running for twenty miles into a fenced cattle ranch, and ending iuside the ranch at a fence on private property.

It is upon this "right-of-way" of doubtful validity and no utility that the Supervisors are ahout to expend hundreds of thousands of tax money.

Fact 4—Parallels State Survey

Perhaps the most astonnding fact in connection with this absurd highway is that it parallels the survey which has heen made by the State Highway Commission for one of the new boulevards authorized under the recent boud act.

The State boulevard survey enters and leaves the Malibu Ranch at the same identical points as the proposed county road. It travels the same narrow belt of land. In some spots the bench of land is so restricted that both surveys practically merge into one, while nowhere are they more than three-quartera of a mile apart.

The State Highway engineers have given positive assurance tbat the route of the county road is not acceptable to them, and that under no circumstances will it be used for the State Highway.

Regardless of the fact thst such a State Highway wonld greatly surpase the County road in every particular of road-msking, yet tbe Supervisors still are determined to undertake constrnction of this fenced-in, useless and under-litigation road.

Fact 5—Prohibitive Cost

Estimates of the actual construction cost of this propoeed County road without paving reach $300,000.00, and this, with the litigation that will accompany it, msy easily bring the total cost to half a million dollars. The fact that the public of Los Angeles County will derive no benefit from this expenditure, and that, if the condemnation proceedings are set aside, the whole expenditure will be lost, has not beeu considered of sufficient importance by the Supervisors to prevent their proceeding with the work of construction.

Fact 6—Superior Route Available

There exists the survey of another route commonly known as the "SETTLERS' TRIUNFO ROUTE," almost identical in lengtb with the surveyed Coast Highway, snd having none of the objections of the County rosd, snd of fsr grester general public benefit than a strictly Coast State Highway.

This leads from the Ssnta Monica beacb road through the country in back of the Malibu, joins with other roads making a through thoroughfare, connects with many side roads, thus serving a large population and opening up more than 25,000 scres of farming land.

It would injure no one. It would benefit many. It posseeses superior scenic beanty. It is not involved in litigation, with the accompanying dsnger of loss of investment.

The County road, on the other hand, goes nowhere, benefits no one, and would be paralleled by the new State Highway whichever route for the lstter is selected.

The strictly Coast route for the new State Highway would run for thirty-odd miles through two great cattle ranches, without laterals to the north or south, and for thst part of its distance through this section would serve no local or neighhorhood purpose whstever. The acquisition of rights-of-way for it would involve long and expensive litigstion. It would benefit nothing but through traffic. Every possihle facility that it can afford would be equally or better sfforded by the Settlers' Triunfo Route, with the vastly important added benefit of serving actual settlers and settlers' propertiee along every mile of the way.

Is not this situation one that sbould give the taxpayers and citizens of Los Angeles County cause to think?

Moreover, is it not the utmost folly to spend further County money on a purely problematicsl and probsbly useless County road—in fact, a completely useless County road if either the Coast or Settlers' State Highway route is adopted and the State Highway constructed?

Furthermore, coming to the question of the State Higbway itself, shonld not the citizens of this County who desire the County to benefit generally by this grest business artery protest sgainst the adoption of a route through the Mslibu Ranch—(for the benefit of and fostered hy the few who are mistakenly laboring under the idea that an all-Coast route will be more desirable scenically snd for sutomohile purposes), WHEN BY GOING A LITTLE TO THE NORTH AND AT PRACTICALLY THE SAME EXPENSE, A ROAD CAN BE BUILT OF FAR MORE VARIED POSSIBILITIES IN THE MATTER OF SCENERY, AND WHICH WILL BE ACCESSIBLE TO AND OPEN UP AND FURNISH TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES TO AND FURTHER DEVELOP AN ALREADY FAIRLY SETTLED LOCALITY OF MANY SMALL HOLDINGS AND OF THE GREATEST FUTURE POSSIBILITIES?

Should not our public officials in these road matters not only seriously consider but actually build their roads with a view TO THE GREATEST GOOD TO THE GREATEST NUMBER—the greatest benefit to the tax-payers of the County and of the State whose servants they are?

FIRE AT SAN LUIS OBISPO MISSION MAY RESULT IN LANDMARK'S RESTORATION.

San Luis Obispo—San Luis Obispo de Tolosa Mission here was badly damaged by fire March 27. The walls, of adobe and five feet thick, are still firm, and all the statues, paintings, and vestments used in church services, were saved.

This mission, the fifth in the chain extending from San Diego to Sonoma, was established September 1, 1772, by Father Junipero Serra, the buildings being erected and dedicated the following year.

As a result of the fire, the Chamber of Commerce immediately started a movement, that is now well under way, for a complete restoration of the mission. A large committee to carry out the plans was named at a mass meeting March 29.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

THE OPENINGS ARE OVER AND THEY brought many pleasant surprises and some shocks. One exhibit showed the definite departure from scant, short skirts to longer ones. This does not mean that they are very long, hut they are very full, and the fullness is confined to the belt, in hox-plaits, clusters of shirrs, and gathers. The new length, which is very graceful, measures from the ankle-hone to the edge of the hem, five inches.

Plaited and flounced skirts will reach the highest point of favor this season. These skirts will he worn with separate jackets of any sort or color. Little colored coats with short flaring hasques are also to be worn with the odd skirts. Enormous side pockets are shown on the plain skirts.

The Turkish hem has not heen overlooked; it is really a sort of compromise effect, the greater width of the hem heing gathered and confined into a narrow underskirt to give a slim line. In certain instances the material is gathered over an elastic, which permits greater freedom in locomotion.

Tunics composed entirely of plaits are modish, and they are particularly effective when the tunic is of a fabric contrasting with that of the skirt. For example, a recent model is of hlack satin and serge; the latter for the tunic, and the satin for the foundation. This frock has the bodice of the serge with the three-quarter sleeves of satin; the collar is high, after the manner of the choker, and slightly higher at the sides.

While silk fringe is modish, a newer idea is to cut the material into half-inch ribbon finished with picot edges and to loop it into fringe semhlance. The sashes, hy the way, are much given to gaily contrasting color, as if through the color medium to give a nipped-in effect to the waist.

Apple-green rep rihhon on a frock of black taffeta is very pretty, the more so if one side of the rihhon happens to he old gold, or indigo blue, or purple. It sounds rather harsh, hut the truth is, that when such two-faced rihhons are properly manipulated the effect is smart. Another way to gain the desired results is to use two different rihhons, selecting contrasting colors and widths, and have them picoted together. One may comhine her own color scheme.

Speaking of rihhons, calls to mind that the Roman stripes have been revived and that they are in request not only for sashes, hut for vestees of serge suits and jackets as well as for linings. It is rather a pretty idea to face skirt hems with Roman silk and to repeat the silk in the girdle or the bit of a waistcoat.

Hats, of straw raffia principally, are made in colorings of the Roman stripe, hut the hat is a far hetter complement of the plain suit or dress than of the costume already trimmed with the varistriped material.

Of course, a lot of hraid enters into the trimming detail of the new clothes. The hraid defines the yoke, the plaited hem, or the overlapping seams of the front or sides. There are instances where the hraid is more than nine inches wide and of a novelty pattern, and in such cases it frequently takes the place of a rihhon sash as well as composing the collar and the deep cuffs of wing sleeves.

It is astonishing to note the use of navy hlue in every department. Always dark blue has heen popular during the spring and summer of each year, hut during the last two or three seasons it has heen forced to share honors with other shades and with other colors. Now, however, hlue is "it," for gowns, suits, hats, wraps, veils, parasols, and, indeed, for everything that can he associated with women's clothes for the next six months at least, and navy hlue is generally becoming to women, and also has quality.

Incidentally, it may he mentioned that, while other styles come and go with the regularity of the seasons themselves, the little crossover or surplice hlouse stays on forever. For one thing, it is becoming to every type of figure, making the stout woman appear less so, and giving the slim one a suggestion of plumpness.

Then, too, the surplice model is susceptihle of the greatest variety of treatment. It may be crossed over the front and the ends tucked into a girdle, or it may have the fronts extended almost to form a girdle hrought once or twice ahout the waist and tied according to the individual taste of the wearer —at the hack, front, or side.

Just now, there is a fancy for the crossover hodice with the kimono shoulder and the very short sleeve. Now and then, there is a hit of a collar, but the average model is usually shy of the collar feature.

Even the separate blouse has adopted the popular type. One finds it made of rather heavy tricolette in sand color, in cream, in dark hlue, and in high shades to go with the suit of matching color. Emhroideries play an important part in such hlouses, heing of a harmonious color with just enough contrast to make them attractive.

The hlouse that comes to the hip line and is cut on straight lines from neck to termination is very popular. When not of tricolette, it appears in satin and in taffeta. At present the short effects have precedence over the long hlouses.

Many of the dresses and hlouses continue to he fashioned with the kimono sleeve, after the manner of the original Chinese garment, and several of the incoming fashions are inclined to use a hroad girdle, which, by a little stretch of the imagination, may he termed an "Ohi." The latter feature of the kimono is employed hy the native to give distinction to the garment, and it may or may not match the kimono.

A revival of eyelet emhroidery is one of the new ideas. Batiste is seen in all-over eyelet and emhroidered patterns. Embroidered organdie or white lace makes the overdress to be hung against a foundation of hlack, hrown, or navy taffeta silk.

Some very elaborate white lingerie gowns introduce puffs of organdie, insertions of lace, and appliques of organdie or silk flowers. Fine nets are made up over dark-colored silk or satin with sashes of narrow rihhons of hright color placed at the waist.

No more heautiful summer dresses have appeared thus far than some of yellow, orchid, or strawherry pink organdie, with full tunic overskirts, trimmed with valenciennes and flowers emhroidered in gay natural-colored silk floss. Simple kimono short-sleeved hodices, or those with surplice fronts, which form a sash tied in the hack, are sufficient for the upper part, while the skirts are full and quite short.

Another dainty effect, suited to the needs of a young girl, is a dancing frock made of ecru lace flounces, each headed hy a hand of light hlue fancy-edged rihhon which is veiled hy the scallop of the flounce. The rihhon, at intervals, has pink silk roses in small motifs appliqued on it; and a similar use of rihhons and roses adorns the corsage.

Another delicate frock is of apple-green chiffon, with tunic overskirt, composed of rows of white net footing sewed half an inch apart, each row being tied in a how at the left side.

Laces are conspicuous this season. Black and white Spanish lace, in metal effects, is much used. Coral, apricot, turquoise, green, silver, and citron, are among the colors for evening.

Practical long and medium length coats for street and motor uses offer a wide choice of styles suited to many types of wearers.

Plain natural-tan camel's hair or polo cloths are made up in elegant coats, and also in the inverness cape, which swings from a short yoke in the hack.

N. S. HISTORY FELLOW IS AWARDED FELLOWSHIP TO FRANCE.

Miss Doris West Bepler, for two years a Native Sons' History Fellow at the University of California, Berkeley, has been further honored—and deservedly so, because of her ahility and amhition—with a fellowship from the Society for American Fellowship in French Universities.

The society, with headquarters in New York, was recently organized to strengthen the cultural and scholarly bonds between the United States and France, and plans to send twenty-five students ahroad each year.

Miss Bepler, whose home is in San Francisco, is a memher of Buena Vista Parlor, No. 68, N.D.G.W. She is a graduate of the State University where, for some time, she has heen actively identified with the History Department. Readers of The Grizzly Bear, in which have appeared many history articles contributed hy Miss Bepler, will rejoice at her good fortune. She leaves for France in July.

In Memoriam

CHARLES E. BERRY.

To the Officers and Members of Kelseyville Parlor, No. 219, Native Sons of the Golden West—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of regret and condolence on the death of our brother, Charles E. Berry, heg leave to submit the following:

Whereas, In the infinite wisdom of Almighty God our heloved and respected hrother, Charles E. Berry, has passed on to his eternal rest; and whereas, Brother Berry was a charter member, and for many years secretary of our Parlor, and a man whose genial face and sunny disposition had earned for him a large circle of friends throughout our connty; and whereas, in the passing of Brother Berry, Kelseyville Parlor has lost one of its true and loyal members, his family a loving husband and father, and our community a loyal and enterprising citizen; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Kelseyville Parlor, No. 219, Native Sons of the Golden West, deeply and sincerely deplores the passing of our heloved hrother, and herehy extends its deepest and sincerest sympathy to his hereaved family; and he it further resolved; that our charter he draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, and that these resolutions he spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, a copy sent to his wife, and a copy published in the "Kelseyville Sun," and in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

J. M. FERGUSON,
GEO. R. SMITH,
ELMER C. KELSEY,
Committee.

Kelseyville, March 25, 1920.

J. H. SKINNER.

To the Officers and Brothers of Golden Anchor Parlor, No. 182, N. S. G. W.—We, your committee on resolutions of respect to the memory of Brother J. H. Skinner, deceased, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Divine Providence has willed that our hrother, J. H. Skinner, be called from among us to a seat in the Grand Parlor above; and whereas, Brother Skinner was one of our best-loved members who was ever ready to stretch forth a helping hand to assist the sorrowing and distressed, thereby endearing himself to the whole community in which he lived; and whereas, in his untimely death onr Order has lost one of its staunchest and most deserving members, and the community at large one of its most valuable and respected citizens; therefore, he it

Resolved, That we shall ever hold in sweetest memory his many splendid qualities, and shall recall with tenderness our associations with him while in this life; and he it further resolved, that we tender to his relatives our deepest sympathy in their hereavement, that as a mark of onr respect to his memory onr charter he draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, that a copy of these resolntions he spread upon our minutes, and that a copy he published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

R. H. KINGDON,
T. G. CAYOT,
A. W. ROBINSON,
Committee.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

DO YOUR DUTY!

Petitions for signatures of registered voters, to get on the November ballot initiative measures to curb the Jap menace in California, will be in circulation at an early day. Several thousand signatures are required.

The name of every Native Daughter should be attached to one of these petitions. Don't wait until the petition is presented to you to sign, however, but look up its circulator, and thus assist in the cause.

This Jap question is the most important, so far as California's welfare is concerned, the Native Daughters have ever been called upon to help solve. Do your duty, voluntarily, and it will be satisfactorily solved, and California will be made safe for the white race.—C.M.H.

First "Booster" Luncheon.

San Francisco—The first annual "booster" luncheon of the Native Daughters of the Golden West was held at the Palace Hotel April 10, being arranged by a committee of which Emma O'Donnell was chairman, Mrs. May Barry treasurer, and Mrs. Wm. H. Urmy secretary. Guests of honor included the presidents of many women's clubs.

Grand President Mary E. Bell presided, and toasts were responded to by the following: Lewis F. Byington, Past Grand President N.S.G.W., "San Francisco;" Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola, "The Flag;" Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs, "The State;" Past Grand President Eliza D. Keith, "The Pioneers of California;" Past Grand President Genevieve Watson-Baker, "The Native Daughters;" Judge James G. Conlan, Grand Trustee N.S.G.W., "The Native Sons;" Past Grand President Clara K. Wittenmyer, "The Native Daughters' Home-Club;" Past Grand President Ariana W. Stirling, "The Homeless Children;" Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, "Mills College," in which the Order has a scholarship.

Madame Rickel Davis led in the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," and an ode dedicated to the Native Daughters by Josephine Howard was read. The successful affair concluded with a highly interesting and instructive illustrated lecture on "The Old Missions of California" by Judge William H. Waste of Berkeley 210, N.S.G.W.

Initiates Big Class.

Anderson—Camellia 41 initiated a class of twenty-five candidates March 19, the largest number of initiates ever received in one evening. There was a large attendance, among the number being Past Grand President Olive Bedford-Matlock, Grand Trustee Mary E. Donnelly, Grand Inside Sentinel Edna Saygrover, three charter members of the Parlor, and fifteen visitors from Hiawatha 140 (Redding). The meeting-place and banquet-tables were prettily decorated in California poppies and yellow candles.

Camellia Parlor gave a grand ball March 27 in celebration of its thirty-first institution anniversary.

The OLD BANK with A YOUNG SPIRIT

This Bank has been for Thirty Years under the same general management as it is today. But it has kept young, adding to the experience and intelligent caution of the men who have carried on its affairs successfully all these years, the enterprise and ambition of well-trained YOUNG men.

You—who plan to take part in the development of the Newer, Greater Los Angeles should make this Old, Large, Safe, Complete, Active, Growing, Enterprising Bank—YOUR Bank.

Honors Centenarian.

Stockton—Joaquin 5 followed its custom of observing Arbor Day by planting a blue cypress tree in Weber Park. The tree was dedicated to Henery Stier, a centenarian who has made his home here since 1857; his daughter, Miss Clara Stier, is a charter member of Joaquin, and has been active in the work of the Parlor for many years. All the Pioneers of Stockton and San Joaquin County, as well as the general public, were invited to join in the ceremonies, at which the following program was presented: Address, President Hattie Struthers; speech of acceptance, A. L. Banks, acting for Stockton's mayor; words of appreciation, Henery Stier; prayer, Miss Lorraine M. Kalck; chorus, "America."

At the St. Patrick social of Joaquin Parlor the members of the capable committee having the affair in charge were costumed as Irish coleens. Games were played, and dainty prizes given the most successful in guessing contests. Refreshments were served a la cafateria in the banquet hall, where St. Patrick favors and greenery carried out the color scheme.

Memorial Day Observance This Month.

San Francisco—From the office of Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty the following notice has been directed to all Subordinate Parlors:

Nominations of officers takes place on last regular meeting in May, and election first regular meeting in June.

All necessary supplies must be ordered before May 1; no supplies will be sent out after that date until after the San Jose Grand Parlor session.

Subordinate Parlors are requested to observe Memorial Day in month of May, though the date of such observance is optional with the Parlors.

Grand Secretary Dougherty also announces the consolidation of San Francisco 174 with Castro 178 (San Francisco).

Celebrates First Birthday.

Manteca—Phoebe A. Hearst 214 celebrated the first anniversary of its institution with a grand ball April 10. The committee in charge was Mesdames Rose Trotter (chairman), Eva L. Patterson, John Reynolds, Truey Patterson, Nina Williams.

The Parlor was instituted March 13, 1919; it has met with great success, and has become one of the most influencial fraternal organizations in this thriving San Joaquin County community.

Raises Over $200 at Dance.

Elk Grove—Crowds of people from all parts of Sacramento County were guests of Liberty 213 at its third annual ball March 27. The hall was simply but beautifully decorated, the colors nsed being green and orange. Good mnsic was provided, and refreshments were served.

The ball was a complete success, netting Liberty Parlor over $200. The proceeds will be used to purchase stock in the Native Sons' Hall to be erected in this little city.

April 9 about forty-five members responded to the Parlor's annual roll-call. Members of Elk Grove 41, N.S.G.W., were guests. The officers of the Parlor had charge of the evening's entertainment, whist being played. On behalf of the officers, Mrs. Mary Coons presented President Frances Wackman with a beautiful bouquet. A delicious chicken-pie supper was served, and the evening concluded with three rousing cheers for Liberty Parlor by the Native Sons.

Costumes Hark Back to Olden Days.

Oakland—In place of the usual party for members whose birthdays come in March, Piedmont 87 had an old-fashioned party at which qnite a number appeared in gowns of the style of their grandmothers' days. It proved a very enjoyable affair.

Sister Ward sang several selections, after which the Parlor presented her with a cut-glass vase, in appreciation for her many acts of kindness. Three candidates were initiated, and after the business and program delicious refreshments, prepared by the committee, were enjoyed.

Good Rules for Grown-ups, Too.

Berkeley—Berkeley 150 observed Arbor Day by planting a walnut tree, dedicated to Luther Burbank, at the Whittier school, the children of which presented an appropriate program. Mrs. William Luhr, in the course of an address while the tree was being planted, said:

"Parents, teach your children to plant and cultivate flowers. A glance from your windows at a simple cala lily, beautiful snowdrops in your garden at this time of the year, or a bed of golden poppies and the shade of a tree in your back yard on a hot summer day, will pay you and them for all the labor connected with the care of them. I wish to read you a few rules for the children of this state, adopted by the Grand Parlor of Native Daughters of the Golden West at their session at Santa Barbara in 1910:

"1. Let us not injure in any way any tree, shrub or lawn. 2. Let us not kill or injure any bird or destroy any bird's nest, the eggs, or the young. 3. Let us not throw or sweep into the streets, alleys or parks, any paper, fruit skins or rubbish of any kind, or throw any of these things upon the floor of any school or other public building. 4. Let us not cut or mark in any way fences, poles, sidewalks, or buildings of any kind."

Grand President's May Itinerary.

San Francisco—Grand President Mary E. Bell will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors during May on the dates noted:

3rd—Oakdale 125, Oakdale.
4th—Ivy 88, Lodi.
5th—Veritas 75, Merced.
6th—Mariposa 63, Mariposa.
7th—Fresno 187, Fresno.
8th—Tejon 136, Bakersfield.
11th—Aloha 106, Oakland.
13th—Portola 172, San Francisco.

Secretary of Children's Work Pleases.

San Diego—As an indication that the Order, and all it stands for, is more and more coming to be appreciated in this city, San Diego 208 initiated a class of eight candidates April 12, and a second class of six April 26.

The Parlor has unanimously voted to present Grand Trustee Dr. Louise C. Heilbron for the office of Grand Marshal at the San Jose Grand Parlor.

The Parlor looked forward with a great deal of pleasure and interest to the visit of Miss Mary Brusie, secretary of the Joint Central Committee on Homeless Children, who arrived April 20. She delivered a report to the Native Sons Grand Parlor, and also favored a large number of visitors, welfare workers and local Native Daughters with portions of this report, accompanied by stereopticon views of the children and the homes in which they had been placed through the efforts of this committee. Miss Brusie's address, delivered in her own inimitable way, was a source of pleasure and profit to all her hearers, and local workers feel that an added impetus has been given to the work in this city. Miss Brnsie was accompanied to San Diego by Past Grand President Ariana Stirling, who made many friends during her brief visit and renewed several old acquaintances.

Strengthening Efforts Successful.

Colusa—A ritual team of eight from Woodland 90 came over April 5 and initiated a class of fifteen candidates for Colus 194. It was a delightful occasion. At the close of the ceremonies initiates and visitors were guests of the Parlor at a dainty luncheon.

This class initiation was the direct result of the joint efforts of Grand President Mary E. Bell and Colusa 69 N.S.G.W. to strengthen the local Parlor. Additional candidates are to be initiated at an early future date.

A Day's Labor of Love.

Middletown—Members of Clear Lake 135 were ont in full force Arbor Day to replace the trees destroyed when this little Lake County town was destroyed by fire two years ago. All day long they toiled, with pick and shovel.

Trees to the number of thirty-seven were planted on both sides of the main street. In years to come they will stand as living monuments to the public spiritedness of the members of Clear Lake Parlor, and will afford comfort to the community as well as beautifying the town.

Grand President Visits.

San Francisco—La Estrella 89 was favored with a visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell April 12. In addition to a large number of members present to greet her, were visitors from ten of the local Parlors, Past Grand President Mary E. Boldemann and D.D.G.Ps. Helen Mann, Elizabeth Muller, May Noble. Two candidates were initiated, one the daughter-in-law of Past Grand President Boldemann.

At the close of her very interesting address, Grand President Bell was presented with two silver spoons, President May Barry having the honor of making the presentation on the Parlor's behalf. D.D.G.P. Helen Mann received a hand-painted cup and saucer, and Past Grand President Boldemann a small remembrance. Refreshments were served in the banquet hall, and a most delightful evening passed all too quickly.

La Estrella Parlor is making preparations to celebrate the twenty-fourth anniversary of its institution May 12.

Has Kiddies' Easter Party.

San Rafael—The evening of Easter Monday, April 5, Marinita 198 entertained sixty-three little boys and girls at a party. Games were played, and some of the little ones sang, recited or danced. At 9:30 the excitement reached its highest point, for then each childish heart was made happy upon receiving a basket of Easter eggs. Ice cream followed.

St. Patrick's night a hard times party was held at the home of President Julia Sousa. The costumes, unique and original, created much fun. Games and dancing were indulged in until a late hour, when supper, at which the place-cards, menu and decorations were all reminders of the occasion, was served to twenty-eight members. The event will long be remembered as a most happy one.

Raising Admission Day Fund.

Oakland—An enthusiastic crowd of Natives and friends met in the home of Past President Buss of Bahia Vista 167 and enjoyed a spirited game of whist. The immediate incentive was a trial of skill for prizes; the ultimate purpose is to create a fund for the Admission Day celebration. A series of whists are being held at intervals in the homes of members. A nominal fee is charged, and each succeeding event seems to prove more successful than the last.

March 17 was the cue for St. Patricks' decorations. The walls and ceilings were draped with paper streamers and harp banners of green. The women's score cards were baskets of Shamrock, and the men's Paddy's green hats. Little green bows were pinned on the guests as they arrived, many of whom wore other touches of old Erin's color. The prizes were varied and beautiful; a hand-painted cup and saucer, a hand-painted plate, a decorated card-case with cards, ornamental flower holder, a framed picture and a child's hook as a booby prize. Besides these there was a door prize, an envelope containing a dollar bill. As a consolation for those who did not win a prize, good coffee and plenty of good home-made cakes were passed around. Ruby Ketjen and Belle Kath had charge of the evening.

Announces Candidacy.

Redding—At the Grand Parlor which meets at San Jose in June, Hiawatha 140 will propose the advancement of Grand Inside Sentinel Edna E. Saygrover to the office of Grand Trustee.

Initiates Class of Six.

Modesto—Morada 199 met in adjourned session March 20 to welcome Grand President Mary E. Bell. A delicious dinner was served in the banquet-hall by the social committee, at the close of which the Grand President was presented with a beautiful "baby" and D.D.G.P. Nellie Dunlap with beautiful flowers.

In the lodge-room the regular work was carried out for the visitors' benefit, and a class of six initiated. Visitors were present from a number of Parlors, and all enjoyed to the utmost the Grand President's speech and instructions.

Big Class in Prospect.

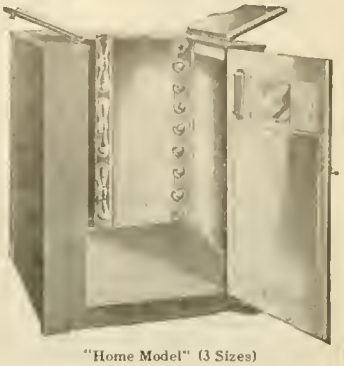

Lodi—Ivy 88 is looking forward to the official visit of Grand President Mary E. Bell May 4, when, it is expected, a class of twenty candidates will be presented for initiation.

Grand Trustee Mattie M. Stein will be a candidate for Grand Marshal at the San Jose Grand Parlor.

NATIVE DAUGHTER NEWS

Complimented by Grand President.

San Francisco—Grand President Mary E. Bell visited Yosemite 83, March 16, the hall being beautifully decorated with American Flags, greens and eschscholtzias. The ritualistic work was rendered in an exeelleut manner, the officers being perfect in their work. Among the visitors present were Past Grand President May C. Boldemann and D.D.G.P. May Barry.

Grand President Bell complimented President Marguerite Kanfman ou her perfect work, the officers on their splendid appearance in the opening mareh, and all the uembers iu the halloting mareh. She was presented with a picture, and D.D.G.P. Barry and Grand Treasurer Susie K. Christ with hand-painted ehina on behalf of the Parlor. After adjournment refreshments were served in the bauquet-room. A most enjoyable evening was spent hy all.

President Entertains.

Placerville—Arhor Day was observed by Marguerite 12 at the home of President Norah Gray. A pear tree was planted. Mattie Plank, in presentiug to the president the shovel with which to place the first soil on the tree, recited the following:

Our Manual says as plainly as can he
That each year to honor Luther Burhank, we mnst plant a tree.
Accordingly we are planting one today
In the garden of our president, Nora Gray.
We will dedicate, plant and name this tree
With the hope that it will prove to be,
Whether in summer's heat or winter's rain,
A source of pleasure and of gain.
The hole is dug—the tree is laid;
I herewith tender you, worthy president,
the spade
To fulfill a custom that is very old—
That the president place on the tree the first spadeful of mold.

The president then dedicated and named the tree "Margnerite," in honor of the Parlor. A program followed: Recitations, Josie Beach, Jessie Lyon, Bertha Reeg and Ida Bailey; reading, Etta Kramp, "Preserving the Forests"; original recitation, "Trees of All Seasons," Jane McCusker; song, guitar accompaniment, Nettie Leonardi. The serving of delicious refreshments by Sister Gray, assisted by Sister Plank, hrought to a close a very enjoyable afternoon.

Class of Sixteen Initiated.

Hollister—April 9, Copa de Oro 105 entertained Grand President Mary E. Bell at a well-appointed dinner, the occasion heing her official visit. Sixty-five were seated at tables, prettily decorated with French bouquets in brass baskets, while dainty high school girls served most graciously.

At the conclusion of the repast, those present were joined at the Parlor meeting by visitors and members unable to atteud the dinner. Sixteen candidates were initiated, the officers performing the initiatory ceremonies in a most creditable manuer. Grand President Bell was presented with a gold pencil, following an interesting address upon the projects of the Order. She commended the Parlor upon the work aud persounel of the members.

Miss Justina Moran presented dainty baskets of Ceeil Bruner roses to Sisters Helene Ellis and Ruth Patton, recently returned from serviee overseas, after which the two-starred service flag, dedicated in honor of these sisters, was retired in a most impressive manner. Both sisters gave interesting talks on their experiences while in service. Short talks were also given hy Mrs. Stevens of Buena Vista 68 (San Franeiseo) and Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs, who was presented with a floral tribute.

Grand President at Home Parlor.

San Francisco—Buena Vista 68 entertained its members in an elahorate manner in honor of the Parlor's twenty-eighth institution anniversary. Grand President Mrs. Charles H. Bell was present and enjoyed a very pleasant eveuing with her home Parlor.

Storm No Hindrance.

Lincoln—Grand President Mary E. Bell paid her official visit to Placer 138, April 14, and although a very storm night, a great number of members turned out to greet her. She made a splendid talk on the workings of the Order, and by her pleasing manner won the hearts of all members present. Grand President Bell complimented the Parlor on its enthusiasm, and was much pleased with the manner in which the work was exemplified. Games were played and refreshments served.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Native Sons of the Golden West

CARRY ON!

Petitions for signatures of registered voters, to get on the November ballot initiative measures to curb the Jap menace in California, will be in circulation at an early day. Several thousand signatures are required.

The name of every Native Son voter should be attached to one of these petitions. Don't wait until the petition is presented to you to sign, however, but look up its circulator, and thus assist in the cause.

This Jap question is the most important, so far as California's welfare is concerned, the Native Sons have ever been called upon to help solve. Do your duty, voluntarily, and it will be satisfactorilily solved, and California will be made safe for the white race.—C.M.H.

It Pays to Advertise.

Antioch—General Winn 32 proved this at its annual benefit for the homeless children, when the farce, "It Pays to Advertise," was admirably presented by a splendid company to a large and appreciative audience. The Parlor has for many years led the contributors to the homeless children cause, and heretofore Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw directed the benefit. This year the boys, knowing that "Charlie" would have it so, were he with them in the flesh, decided to do better than ever before, and as a result General Winn Parlor not only continues to head the list of contributing Parlors but its contribution is the largest ever made by any one Parlor—an amount equivalent to about $7 for each of its members.

To win such success, the Parlor had the assistance of the merchants and people generally of Antioch. The cast of characters included J. T. Belshaw, Miss Thelma McElheney, C. R. McElheney, Miss Ruth Field, W. B. Juett, Charles Hornback, Matthew Ward, Miss Mary Smith, Mrs. C. R. McElheney, Elvin Lilley, John McGinley. Upon receipt of General Winn's check for $668.95, Miss Mary Brusie, secretary of the Homeless Children Central Committee, sent this letter to Secretary W. J. Laird for the Parlor:

"This is to acknowledge General Winn Parlor's douation of $668.95, the largest amount ever contributed by any one Parlor since the work began. Of course, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West have learned to expect General Winn No. 32 to lead, but this year there came to your Parlor the loss of Charles M. Belshaw, chairman of the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee since the work began. To face this great loss has taken genuine interest, determinatiou, hard work and the loyal support on the part of the members of General Winn and of the citizens of Antioch, who always have so generously responded. It must have been difficult, we realize, to rise to the old enthusiasm. Mr. Belshaw used to say: 'Oh, we've got some hard workers in Antioch and I wish you could know how faithful in attendance are the boys and girls who take part in these little plays, and how responsive are the business men of our town and how proud everybody is to have General Winn always ahead in contributing to the children's fund.'

"Charles M. Belshaw has left the work in good hands, and to the committee in charge of the entertainment, C. R. McElheny, W. B. Juett and J. T. Belshaw, and to those who so nobly and untiringly worked with them during the sad time, this committee sends a thank you, as proud in the accepting of this donation for the homeless children as General Winn members are proud in the giving. As one long identified with Mr. Belshaw in the children's work and deeply concerned in the success and always interested in the annual benefit given in Antioch, may I add a personal thank you."

Honors Service Men.

San Francisco—El Dorado 52 celebrated its thirty-fifth institution anniversary April 17, and at the same time honored its members who served in the army and navy during the war. President A. B. Chaquette presided, and John Hauer paid tribute to the service meu. The committee in charge was F. A. Bonivert (chairman), Angelo J. Rossi, J. B. Hauer, Harry Downey, F. Martell, Fred Krause, William Thomas, J. Jolly and J. J. Crowley.

Celebrates Forty-second Anniversary.

Sacramento—Sacramento 3 observed what was termed "pioneer night" March 25. It was a celebration of the Parlor's forty-second institution anniversary, and among the 250 in attendance were several "old-timers," who were accorded special honors. Jack Stafford, president in '81, conducted the meeting, and was assisted by William Henderson, Howard Johnson, Charles Root, Tom Cody and Ed. Kraus, also of the "has beens" brigade. There was a feast of oratory, and late in the evening au Italian supper. The committee in charge was Marco Zarick (chairman), Roy Cothrin, Arthur Delano, J. F. Didion, Henry Ryan.

Palo Alto's News Budget.

Palo Alto—The sixth and final of the series of whist parties conducted by Palo Alto 216 was played April 12. The capital prize, a thirty-piece silver set, was won by A. R. Museller, who made a score of 875 points in the series of 120 games. A very large crowd was in attendance and refreshments were served. The whist parties proved a great social success.

The second game of ball between Palo Alto and Mountain View Parlors was played at Mountain View April 11, the former winning by a score of 6 to 3. The third game in the series will be played May 9. Both Parlors have good teams, and through interest in this national sport the membership of both has been considerably increased. April 9 several members of Palo Alto Parlor went to Mountain View and witnessed the initiation of a class of seven by that Parlor.

D.D.G.P. George W. Tinney of Palo Alto Parlor is very proud of the fact that during the Grand Parlor year just closed the Parlors in his district made the greatest gain of membership in their existence. Garden City 82 (San Jose) increased its membership 50, Mountain View 215 33, and Palo Alto 216 70.

Personals—E. C. Thoits has been elected mayor of Palo Alto City. C. P. Cooley, a former mayor, is a candidate for supervisor of Santa Clara County. J. C. Friedman has accepted a position with a local bank. Past Presidents P. A. Crowley, Chas. A. Hanson and Geo. W. Tinney, delegates to the Grand Parlor, made the trip to and from San Diego by auto. They were accompanied by Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker. The party journeyed south via the coast route, and returned through the wonderful San Joaquin Valley.

Past Presidents Organize.

Napa—Past presidents of Napa 62 to the number of sixty-two met March 25 and organized a past presidents' association. There was much enthusiasm, plans for active work were outlined, and after the meeting a banquet was served under the direction of L. J. McCollam. Samuel Errington is president of the new organization, and H. J. Hoernle the secretary.

Revival Meeting Successful.

Arcata—Grand President William P. Caubu and Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker paid a visit to Arcata 20 late in March and discussed plans for building up the Parlor, instituted thirty-seven years ago, in strong financial condition, but needing an additional supply of "pep," in the way of new members, to make it a thriving institution. The visitors were showered with hospitality of the Humboldt County variety, and were successful in their mission.

As a result of their visit, Arcata's membership was considerably increased by the initiation of a large class of candidates March 29, the ritual being exemplified by a team from Ferndale 93. At the meeting's close the new members and visitors from Ferndale were guests of Arcata Parlor at a banquet.

Celebrate Birthdays Jointly.

Grass Valley—Quartz 58 and Manzanita 29, N.D.G.W., joined forces March 29 to celebrate their thirty-fifth institution anniversaries. Both Parlors have won their way to success, and their history of progressiveness is linked with the advancement of this city, for they are important parts of the community and have given liberally of their best in its iuterest.

President Rita Fuller extended the Native Daughters' welcome and told of that Order's aims and accomplishments, while President Ray Fuller performed a like service for the Native Sons. At the conclusion of a splendid program, a banquet was served, and there was presented a program of toasts.

The toast cards were very unique, being decorated with a bloom of manzanita and a small piece of quartz in one corner, embelished with gold color petite ribbon, and the inscription being in gold. The following responded: "Our Flag," Elizabeth Plummer; "Native Daughters," John Thomas, Jr.; "California," Vera Hansen; "Pioneers," Herman Fuller; "Native Sons," Loretta Henwood.

To Encourage History Study.

Oroville—To encourage California history study, Argonaut 8 has presented to the local high school a silver cup, to be semi-annually awarded students who prepare the best essays on the history of the state. The committee in charge consists of Principal James B. Hughes of the high school, and R. G. Lawrence, J. L. Looney, F. W. Boyle of Argouaut Parlor. The first contest will be held May 20, entries closing May 10.

Conducts Successful Drive.

Hayward—Eden 113 has been waging a most successful membership drive. March 25 a large crowd witnessed the initiation of a class of nineteen. As a result of its drive, the Parlor increased its representation at the San Diego Grand Parlor, giving it three delegates.

At the close of the initiation there was a banquet, followed by several enthusiastic addresses and musical numbers. Among the speakers were Grand Third Vice-president Harry G. Williams, Supervisor C. W. Heyer, Phil Carey, Auditor Frank Garrison and Mayor Arthur E. Manter, one of the initiates of the evening. George A. Oakes, the Parlor's first president, presided over the festive board.

Old Napa Has Another Birthday.

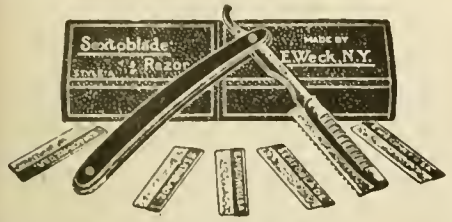

Napa—Napa 62 was thirty-five years old April 10, and celebrated its institution anniversary the 12th, when members of neighboring Parlors were guests. There was a big attendance, and past presidents filled the various stations for an initiation which brought the membership-mark to over 400.

Napa Parlor started out with seventy members, and nineteen of the originals are still active members. It has had its troubles, but surmounted all difficulties and is today the leading fraternal institution in Napa City. It owns its own home, a class A, three-story steel building, and is identified with every movement that has for its object the advancement of Napa's interests. This is the home Parlor of Past Grand Presidents Judge Frank L. Coombs and Judge Henry C. Gesford.

GOOD WORKMANSHIP.

25 twenty-two candidates were initiated, and at the close of the meeting a banquet, with enthusiastic addresses, was enjoyed.

There was a large attendance, including a big delegation from Argonaut 8 (Oroville) and several members of Marysville 6. Among the latter was D.D.G.P. J. M. Morrissey, who officially visited the Parlor in place of Grand Third Vice-president Harry G. Williams of Oakland.

Presented Gold Pin.

Hayward—In recognition of his twenty-five years of faithful service as financial secretary of Eden 113, Dr. Henry Powell has been presented with a handsome emblematic gold pin, on the back of which is his name and his record in the Parlor.

The presentation was made by Past Grand President William F. Toomey of Fresno, an old-time friend of Dr. Powell. Mayor Toomey, when Grand President, promised the doctor the pin when he should have reached the quarter-century mark in his secretarial career in Eden Parlor.

Honors Deceased War Hero.

Petaluma—Petaluma 27 observed its annual arbor day outing April 11 at the Old Vallejo Adobe, which it acquired some time ago, has restored and beautified. Each year the members gather at this old landmark and put in a day at work.

This year the feature of the day's outing was the planting of a tree dedicated to the memory of Leo Canevascini, a member who died in England while serving in Uncle Sam's forces during the world-war.

Old Solano Is Awake.

Suisun—Solano 39 has wakened up, candidates being initiated at every meeting. The "boys" have a basketball team, and, it, too, is meeting with success. The Parlor is a strong advocate of anti-Jap legislation, and sent its delegates to the San Diego Grand Parlor with instructions to work and vote for measures looking to the protection of the state from the Asiatic menace.

PERSONAL MENTION.

GRAND PARLOR DOINGS

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

Division No. 1, Ancient Order Hibernians in America (San Diego) extended greetings, with wishes of success.

Several letters and telegrams of greetings from those unable to be in attendance were received and filed.

Adjournment at the close of the first day was had out of respect to the Honored Dead whose names were listed in the Advance Reports.

All newspapermen in attendance were named as a Publicity Committee to furnish news of the session to the press. Past Grand President Joseph R. Knowland of the Oakland "Trihune" was the chairman.

A beautiful hoquet, sent with fraternal geetings by Red Star Lodge, Knights of Pythias (San Diego), adorned the Grand President's station at the opening of the Grand Parlor. This, hy the way, is the largest Knights Pythias lodge in the country, having 1,400 members.

Miss Mary E. Brusie of San Francisco delivered an interesting address on the work of the Central Committee on Homeless Children, and presented pictures of several of the children who have been adopted into good homes.

Dr. Herbert Eugene Bolton, head of the University of California History Department, addressed the Grand Parlor and thanked it for the great assistance being given to history research; he gave an outline of early California history which was well received.

Brigadier-General Joseph H. Pendleton of the United States Marines, whose father came here in 1849 and mined in Trinity County, was a visitor and expressed appreciation for an opportunity to address his "step-brothers," as he termed the Native Sons; he was not born here, hut is a loyal Californian and in sympathy with all that the Order stands for.

Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger addressed an open meeting of the San Diego Anti-Japanese Association, and in his convincing way pointed out the Asiatic menace. He is a much-sought-for speaker on this most important question, and in his addresses deals solely with startling facts.

PLENTY OF ENTERTAINMENT.

San Diego did herself proud in entertaining the Forty-third Grand Parlor, Native Sous of the Golden West, and her guests went away delighted with their visit. While San Diego Parlor, No. 108, N.S.G.W., had charge of the entertaiument, the whole city seconded its efforts to extend a genuine California welcome.

Upon the arrival of the visitors, ahout half of whom made the trip by auto, they were greeted hy the Reception Committee and presented with tickets to the various entertainment features and a souvenir hooklet, done in golden poppy design, showing attractive scenes in and ahout San Diego.

Monday evening there was a reception and hall. A. P. Johnson, Jr., president of hoth San Diego Parlor and the chamber of commerce, presided and extended the former's welcome. The freedom of the city was handed out hy Fred Heilbron, president of the city council and a member of San Diego Parlor. Edwin A. Meserve was the orator of the occasion, delivering a splendid address on "The Mission and Accomplishments of the Order of Native Sons."

Tuesday the visitors were taken on an anto tour of the many interesting and historic places. They were guests at the Spreckels Savage Tire Company, where they saw how tires are made and received miniature "Savages" as sonvenirs. From 3 until 5 they enjoyed a program arranged by the men of the torpedo flotilla, Milton A. Davis, Commander.

Thursday was the day set aside for tho trip out of the country, into Mexico, and it was "somo" day.

Friday afternoon the visitors were entertained at a harbecuo in Balhoa Park. President A P.. Johnson, Jr., presided, and short addresses were made hy Grand President James F. Hoey, Junior Past Grand President William P. Cauhn, Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington and Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger. Following the barbecuo a redwood treo, brought from Santa Cruz, was planted. It was presented by Mrs. Rosina M. Hertzhrun, president San Diego Parlor, N.D.G.W., to Graud President Hoey, who dedicated it to the memory of Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw; after "I Love You, California," had heen sung hy the assemhlage Edwin A. Meserve delivered an address.

Friday night a hall, complimentary to the Grand Parlor, was given. Saturday the official entertainment program was concluded with a boat ride ahout San Diego Bay.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

of Tehama County, was killed hy Indians on Deer Creek May 4. His hrother was killed by Mill Creek Indians several years hefore, and the captain never let an opportunity slip that gave him a chance to revenge his hrother's death. This was considered to he the cause of the Indians summarily removing the captain.

Duge, the chief of the Trinity River Indians, was shot and killed hy an unknown assassin May 15. His burial was attended hy the whole tribe. A large and deep hole was dng, and the bottom covered with grass. The chief's hody, dressed in his hest clothes, was wrapped in two pairs of hlankets, and ahout thirty feet of rope was wound around and cinched tight hy a numher of bucks pulling at each end. The hody was then lowered into the hole, into which was thrown old clothes, hows and arrows, old guns, powder flasks, knives, heads, and a saddle and bridle that helonged to the chief. A supply of acorns, pine nuts and other articles of food was also placed near his head, and then the grave was filled up with gravel and earth.

STATE UNIVERSITY SUMMER SESSIONS.

The University of California will this year conduct two summer sessions at Berkeley. The first, called the intersession, from May 10 to June 19; the second, called the summer session, from June 21 to July 31.

At the State University hranch in Los Angeles, the summer session will he held from June 21 to July 31.

A hulletin giving complete information about the summer session may he had upon application to Walter Morris Hart, Dean of the Summer Sessions, University of California, Berkeley.

HELP THE SCHOOLS

SCHOOLTEACHERS SHOULD BE ADEquately paid, but they are not. Any proposal which will insure their receiving a salary commensurate with their worth to the community should be heartily concurred in by every citizen, whether or no a parent. We must have them, and we should be more than willing to pay them a living salary.

Adequate pay for schoolteachers is the remedy which will insure a continuation of the high standard of Los Angeles County schools. This is the appeal that every community in this county is urged to present to the members of the Board of Supervisors as the direct answer to a situation which now seriously threatens to impair the efficiency, in fact the very life, of the county school system in city and town and rural community alike.

Locally, there may be only a few citizens who are aware of the situation. The teaching profession in Los Angeles City schools lost hundreds of members during the past year alone. The members left because they claimed to be unable to live on the salaries paid. This means that unless salaries of teachers are adequate there will be fewer teachers available next year. Records show that there are fewer normal students, which means that there will be fewer teachers in the future.

This is not altogether a local matter, however. In New York, San Francisco, Boston and other centers, local campaigns are under way to get increased pay for the schoolteachers. Communities are thoroughly alarmed, because it is recognized that a shortage of almost 150,000 teachers in the nation means the curtailment of the educational privilege of a vast number of American boys and girls.

In Los Angeles County the work is well under way. The public is the employer in this case. The schoolteachers in the smaller towns have the same complaint of inadequate pay as do the teachers in the larger cities.

The Board of Supervisors will be asked to remedy the situation. They will be guided by the sentiment of the people. The intensive campaign is under way in every section of Los Angeles County, and it is up to each community, in order to safeguard its own interests, to take steps at once to endorse the movement for a living wage for the teachers. Otherwise the scarcity of schoolteachers next year will be so acute that teachers of the required standard will not be obtainable in sufficient numbers to care for the rapidly-growing school population of the county.—C.M.H.

WOULD DESTROY SCENERY.

The hobbies of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West are few, but those few are evidenced by marked enthusiasm. There is a strong tendency among all to guard and protect Nature's beauty spots in California, where God's handiwork is shown in such a marked degree. The natural scenery of the Golden State beggars description, and the spoiling of Nature's work by the haud of man is particularly looked upon in amazement and horror.

The proposed despoliation by the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles County of the Malibu (Rindge) Ranch, situated in the Santa Monica Canyon, is certainly not understandable, either by Native Sons and Native Daughters or by those who love what California is noted for—natural beauty of mountains, hills and landscape.

The Board proposes to cut this ranch up by highways, and thus destroy its beauty, so much admired by not only California people, but visitors as well. Few indeed there are in Southern California who have not visited the beautiful Malibu Ranch. The final solution of this matter is now pending in the higher courts, and it is hoped that the natural beauties of Malibu Ranch will there be spared.—J.P.K.

NEW BUILDING FOR BEKINS.

In order to meet the unprecedented demands of their rapidly-growing storage business, Bekins are erecting another reinforced concrete building immediately adjoining their large fireproof storage plant at 1335 South Figueroa street.

The new structure will have seven floors, and will furnish an additional 40,000 square feet of storage facilities. It is anticipated that space in this new building will be obtainable on or before June 1 of this year.

Past Presidents Initiate Eleven.

At a largely attended meeting April 2 Southern Counties Assembly No. 4, Past President Association, N.S.G.W., initiated the following: Walter Gilman (Los Angeles 45); Charles Bright, Julius Kraus, Edwin Meserve, Robert Hanley (Ramona 109); James Herlihy, Dan Lauberscheimer, Lester Bernheim, John Bodkin, Henry Ireland, Fred Kitts (Corona 196).

Officers were elected as follows: Henry G. Bodkin, governor; Al Cron, first vice-governor; Deacon Taggart, second vice-governor; Irving Baxter, third vice-governor; Walter D. Gilman, secretary; Harry J. Lelande, treasurer; Joseph R. Sproul, sergeant-at-arms; William T. Craig, inner guard; Herman C. Lichtenberger, outer guard; Ed. F. Cohn, Henry Brodek, Hugh Koch, trustees; James B. Coffey, chaplain.

Affairs pertaining to the local Parlors were discussed, and it was decided to offer a trophy, to cost $100, to the Parlor making the most creditable showing in a ritual contest, to commence with the June term. Refreshments closed a pleasant evening for the "has beens."

Many Answer Summons.

Although April 15 was a stormy night, many answered the cleverly gotten-up "summons in the name of the cardinal virtues of Friendship, Loyalty and Charity" sent out by President John J. Craig and Secretary Walter D. Gilman to the local Native Sons to attend the meeting of Los Angeles 45. Several enthusiastic addresses were made, the outcome of which was a determination on the part of the members of Los Angeles Parlor to wage a drive that will double the present membership; several then and there pledged themselves to present an application or forfeit $5.

A feature of the evening was a delicious chicken-rabbit stew prepared by Tom W. Golding. He was declared "some" chef, and promises to "come through" often. It is well to be at Los Angeles Parlor every meeting night, for the Social Committee always has "something donig."

Ramona Surprised.

For once in their lives, members of Ramona 109 were completely surprised April 16. Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger had announced two weeks previously that he had a surprise for that night, and carefully guarded the secret; the result was, that there was a big attendance of members, as well as several visitors on their way to the San Diego Grand Parlor.

The usual routine of business, including the initiation of several candidates, was carried out, and when "Good of the Order" was reached Lichtenberger sprang his surprise—a handsome set of silk American and State (Bear) marching flags. They were made to order by Maneke & Co. of San Francisco, and were declared to be the finest possessed by any Parlor. Lichtenberger has long had the procuring of such a set of flags in hand, and he was as delighted to present them as the Parlor was to receive them. To show the flags, a big class initiation has been proposed, to be preceded by a parade through the public streets.

During the evening there was a flow of oratory, contributed to by several members of Ramona and these visitors: Past Grand President Clarence E. Jarvis of Sutter Creek, Joseph Barry of Courtland, J. Ashton Flinn of Berkeley, A. J. Cleu of Oakland, A. J. Mazzini and Julius Godeau of San Francisco, Raymond Whitcomb, former secretary of San Diego Parlor, who has come here to reside.

Celebrates Anniversary.

The twenty-fourth institution of Corona 196, N.S.G.W., was observed April 14 with a banquet at which a splendid menu was served. Wayne Jordan, first vice-president, was the toastmaster, and impromptu remarks were made by Justice Thomas J. Lennon, Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenherger, William T. Craig, Justice F. H. Kerrigan, Grand Second Vice-president William I. Traeger, Clarence M. Hunt and Joseph P. Sproul.

A marked increase has been noted in the attendance at Corona's meetings since the change to Monday nights. New members are heing regularly received, and if the plans of the members do not miscarry Corona will show a big increase by the end of this year. The Parlor is happy over the election of President Henry Bodkin as a member of the Board of Grand Trustees at the San Diego Grand Parlor.

Many Visitors.

On their way to and from the San Diego Grand Parlor, a large number of Native Sons stopped over to take in the sights. Many of them found their way to the Ramona Club, 349 South Hill streets, which, through the courtesy of Ramona Parlor, is always open to all visiting members. They expressed themselves as delighted with Ramona's home, and were appreciative of attentions shown them.

The Death Record.

Miss Cora Calvert Foy, a prominent member of the Women's Press Club and influential in local musical circles, died April 24. She was a native of this city. Among the surviving relatives is a brother, J. C. Foy, a long-time member of Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W.

SAN JOSE GRAND PARLOR

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

SAN JOSE NATIVE DAUGHTERS ARE busy arranging for the meeting of the Thirty-fourth Grand Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, in that Santa Clara County city on Tuesday, June 8, for four days' deliberations. Past Grand President Mamie Pierce-Carmichael is chairman of the Accommodations Committee of the San Jose Parlors.

Grand President Mary E. Bell has had a most successful administration, and reports received by The Grizzly Bear disclose the fact that the Order is gaining rapidly in membership, this being due to the encouragement given member-getting by the Grand President. Several Subordinate Parlors will have increased representation at San Jose.

Delegates will be chosen by the Subordinate Parlors the first meeting in May, Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty having sent out notice to that effect. Information relative to transportation will be sent out later.

Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs of Hollister will undoubtedly be chosen Grand President.

Announcements of candidates for Grand Parlor office will not be generally made until after delegates are elected. The Grizzly Bear, however, has been advised of the following candidacies:

Grand Vice-president—Grand Marshal Dr. Victory A. Derrick of Oakland.

Grand Secretary—Alice H. Dougherty of San Francisco (incumbent).

Grand Treasurer—Susie K. Christ of San Francisco (incumbent).

Grand Marshal—Grand Trustee Mattie M. Stein of Lodi, and Grand Trustee Dr. Louise C. Heilbron of San Diego.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Grand Outside Sentinel Pearl Lamb of Tracy.

Grand Trustee—Grand Inside Sentinel Edna E. Saygrover of Redding.

MONTEREY LANDMARK RESTORED

(ANNA G. ANDRESEN.)

THE RESTORATION OF LANDMARKS, especially the California missions, is attracting considerable attention at the present time. Interest, however, is being taken not only in the restoration of the missions, but in private buildings as well. In the old historic town of Monterey three private adobe houses are being restored, among them the Abrego home, which has an interesting history.

This house has recently been purchased by Mrs. Esther Stevens Barney, an artist. No radical changes have been made in it; it has simply been cleaned up, equipped with modern plumbing, and made comfortable and livable. A new fireplace has been built in the sitting-room, and a light has been put in the north end of the house, which is being used as a studio. The distinguishing features about the place are the twelve-foot ceilings with paneling in all the front rooms, and the three pairs of teakwood doors.

This home was built by Don Jose Abrego, a Spanish merchant who came to Monterey from Mexico in 1834 with the colonists under Don Jose Maria Hijar, on the vessel "Natalia," which is said to have been the vessel on which Napoleon escaped from the Isle of Elba. In 1835 the vessel was sold to smugglers, who carried on their dishonest business for a few months. One night, while the men were on shore, a heavy northeast gale parted the anchor chain, and it drifted ashore and was wrecked. Portions of the timbers of this historic vessel were used by Don Jose Abrego in building this house. In 1836 Senor Abrego married Josefa Estrada, a half-sister of Governor Alvarado, and moved at once into a part of the house which he had built, and to which additions were afterwards made.

In this house was one of the first three pianos ever brought to California. A paper on the inside of it, written by Don Jose, had the following inscription: "In 1841 Captain Stephen Smith arrived with his vessel in Monterey, and I engaged him to bring me a piano on his next trip to the country. In March, 1843, he returned to this city in a brigantine; he had three pianos on board. I bought this one of him for $600. He then sailed for San Francisco, where General Vallejo purchased another of the pianos. The third one was afterwards sold by Captain Smith to E. de Celis at Los Angeles."

This piano is now in the possession of Mrs. Francis Davies, a granddaughter of Don Jose, at her ranch at Tres Pinos, near Hollister, San Benito County. The writer of this sketch remembers the piano, having often played on it in her childhood. The piano is a six-octave one, made by Beitkopt & Hartel of Leipzig, and imported by Brauns & Faukem, Baltimore.

The Abrego home was the scene of many a social gathering, "cascarone" parties, receptions, etc., and up to the time of Mrs. Abrego's death, in the '90s, the most prominent and distinguished visitors to Monterey were entertained in this historic house. Bayard Taylor, the poet, who visited Monterey in 1849, was entertained at this home, and in his "El Dorado" writes as follows:

"I attended an evening party at the house of Senor Abrego, which was as lively and agreeable as any occasion of the kind well could be. There was a piano in the parlor on which a lady from Sydney, Australia, played with a good deal of taste. Two American gentlemen gave us a few choice flute duets, and the entertainment closed with a Spanish quadrille, in which a little son of Senor Abrego figured to the general admiration."

JAMES STERLING TOLAND

(ANSON B. WILCOX.)

(James Sterling Toland, a native of Butte County, California, was instantly killed in the battle of the Argonne, September 29, 1918. The Alm-Toland Lodge of the American Legion will perpetuate his name.)

No fairer lad stood forth that day,
In answer to his country's call;
No truer, braver marched away
And left behind youth's prospects all,
While we stood wondering at the cost
Of Liberty, should he be lost.

How could he leave his hills behind,
Familiar since his life had voice,
Leave comfort's home and friends refined?
E'en love, tear-eyed, changed not his choice—
'Twas country's honor like a star
And duty's drum-beats from afar.

So fine his courage and serene,
So radiant his spirit's glow!
He felt, with throb in every vein,
The fervor which true patriots know;
And we our prayers new purpose gave
That Heav'n should intervene and save.

His regiment was swiftly called
To check, on foreign shores, a foe
That like a scourge the world appalled
With death and desolation's woe;
Whose slaughters would the world surround
And make a shambles of the ground.

Then war in dreadful tumult raged
With steel and flame and deadly fume,
Till millions the fierce conflict waged
To save France from awful doom,
And prove that honor still had worth—
That Freedom still should bless the earth.

And there upon that shot-torn plain,
'Mid heaving earth and shrieking sky,
While deadly shells fell thick as rain,
Our precious lad was called to die;
Just as the foe was beaten down
And Liberty regained her crown.

And Heaven heard our prayers that day
But answered from its wiser throne;
It saved our lad from time's sad fray,
Took him where selfish war's unknown;
It gave his spirit quick release
From conflict's vale to the Hills of Peace.

And Heav'n knows best, yet fall the tears
For one we called our very own;
Whose life was brief in measured years,
Yet none more full in promise shown;
And none shall have more grateful praise,
Long as we Freedom's paean raise.

(Editor's Note—These linea came to The Grizzly Bear from Oroville, with this note: "If you can give the inclosed lines a place in your excellent magazine, yon will please many of its readers.")

A Family Affair—The home vegetable garden should be a family interest and all members of the family who are able to do so should take part in its cultivation. There is no better form of outdoor exercise than moderate working in the home garden, and few lines of recrcational work will give greater returns for the time employed.

"Made in Los Angeles"
Product

Plays All Records

The simplicity of the Burnham reproducer gives the Burnham Super-tone Phonograph a decided advantage. When it is desired to change from a vertical cut to a lateral cut record, it is not necessary to remove one reproducing device and substitute another; simply twist the reproducer to another position.

Silver Grain Spruce Tone Chamber

There is but one wood which is supreme for this purpose—Silver Grain Spruce—the material from which Stradivarius constructed his master violins. The Silver Grain tone chamber of the Burnham Super-tone Phonograph is so constructed as to enrich and add a lyric quality to vocal, and a clear, bell-like quality to instrumental music.

Cabinets of Exquisite Design and Beauty

Each Burnham Super-tone Phonograph is not only a masterpiece of artistic design; it ia also a fine example of highly skilled cabinet work. Our artisans are masters of the wood-worker's art and take a pardonable pride in their splendidly made products.

CALIFORNIA, THE OPTIMIST'S LAND,

OFFERS COMPENSATING OUTLETS FOR WOMAN'S TALENTS

Mary E. Bell
(GRAND PRESIDENT, N.D.G.W.)

AS GRAND PRESIDENT OF THE Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, my prescribed duty is to visit, during my term of office, all Subordinate Parlors throughout the state. This pleasant task will soon bring me to the end of a year replete with valuable training and a wealth of pleasant and happy memories.

It is with reluctance I retire, and transfer my authority and responsibilities to my worthy successor. There will be one regret, and that is the opportunity the office affords of meeting so many fine women of our organization, to observe the magnificence of country, and to exchange ideas with those living in sections of an entirely different atmosphere and environment.

I am convinced that California offers compensating outlets for woman's talents, and the organization of Native Daughters of the Golden West is one of the main avenues for work that is constructive and results would be of incalculable benefit to all her people. We must co-ordinate to the fullest extent with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

Experience has taught us that the worth and strength of a state depend upon the character of its citizenry, rather than on the form of its institutions. Our organization has adopted philanthropic plans dedicated to the welfare of humanity and to culture, besides aiding in national progress and supplying, in a measure, public needs by these agencies.

We are urged to have special consideration for people of foreign birth, and to impress upon the young minds that they are not wrong or queer because they differ from us. One must have both his state and his fellow-man's interest at heart.

To the door of the EXPLOITER may be traced, in every country, revolutions and other disturbances. California has, unfortunately, within her midst exploiters who would sell another's birthright and thus excite revolt. This we must guard against.

The art of living is to know how to give one's life. Living counts for nothing. We must see the heart. It is not gold that complicates, corrupts and debases life; it is the mercenary spirit. We find the world today is seeking new adjustments, the old order of artificiality has been condemned, and only the real, the true, stand or count.

The women realize the fact that perfect adjustment cannot be accomplished without their assistance, and they are rapidly taking their places and will accomplish much good if they will aim high, avoid rashness in judgment, and work with diligence to preserve the home and encourage the study and practice of home economics. It will do much toward stabilizing conditions that are now a source of national concern.

The importance of studying household questions is evidenced by the serious problem of the high cost of living. A generation ago such subjects would have been thought beneath the dignity of scientific investigation, but the last few years have seen a great change in this respect. The science of home economics is now in much the same position that scientific agriculture was in twenty years ago. The leader had shown that science can improve crops, and some of the more progressive farmers were giving the new ideas a practical test, but many farmers were still doubtful whether it was worth while. Few farmers of today, however, would care to go back to the days before experiment stations, fertilizer control, etc., were in vogue.

It being a fact that the problem of making the home as efficient as possible will make necessary a great deal of study along many different lines, the intelligent housekeeper, like the intelligent farmer, will study the household problem and with the help of practical experience and scientific information hasten the day when household management can be as accurately planned as that of the factory and the farm.

As far as the element of pleasure or beauty is concerned, it is the necessary things, rather than special ornaments, which make the greatest difference in the attractions of a home. The best-equipped house is the one in which all features and furnishings are most completely suited to the needs of its occupants and regulated by the amount of the family income, the size of the family and their different occupations and interests. The home should serve as the material setting for the life of the family, also as a place to rest and recuperate. It is highly important that it be made a place for comfort, provided with wholesome enjoyment.

The present tendency on the part of girls is to despise all housework as a species of degrading drudgery. This attitude makes them not only inefficient, but unwilling as well. With greater knowledge would come greater satisfaction in the performance of their duties.

The home should be guided by the same principles that would be followed in the equipment and carrying on efficiently of the modern business institution. Lighting, heating, ventilation, sanitation are as necessary as the machinery in the workshop.

Many of the things which we buy with our money or get with our work are not desirable for their own sakes; they are desired merely because others have them and we want to keep up with our neighbors. We are suffering infinitely more from competitive consumption than from competitive production! There is the rivalry among members of a community to outshine one another in matters of consumption, display or ostentation. Conspicuous waste becomes a recognized method of advertising respectability when this spirit prevails. No matter how much money we have, we can never have enough to live in mental comfort, but will strive with might and main for more. Standardization of consumption, to stop this form of strenuous competition, would be one step towards solving the economic problems that we are now confronted with.

In closing, it cannot be emphasized too much that patriotism, like charity, begins at home,—that is, willingness to sacrifice, if need be, for the good of the community, is just as important as national loyalty and willingness to sacrifice in the interest of the Nation. No nation can be strong, prosperous or progressive which does not command the loyalty and support of its citizens. Neither can a community. It is as true of a community as of a nation, that "a house divided against itself shall not stand." Herein lies woman's power!

THE TIME HAS ARRIVED

TO ELIMINATE THE JAPS AS CALIFORNIA LANDHOLDERS

Senator J. M. Inman

DOES THE AVERAGE WELL-FED, happy-go-lucky, complacent Californiau know that there is a well-organized, definite plan on foot to colonize California with Japanese by any one of the schemes I shall mention? I sball attempt to show this, entirely by their own language. A Japanese clergyman says: "In 1933 the Japanese will control the situatiou in Honolulu, an Ameriean city, capital of an American dependency."

Let us consider this amazing appeal to tbe Japanese, recently published in the "Japanese-American," a Japanese newspaper published in San Francisco: "Awake! Even if we cannot expand our country's borders, let us expand with all speed the Yamato Race, of wbich we are justly proud. Wbat I mean is simply this: I firmly believe that it is only tbe propagation of our Yamato Race, by every good Japanese, that we can solve the anti-Japanese, nay, the Japan-American problem. And this is the conclusion to wbich I have arrived during the past year. For the next ten, twenty, fifty or one hundred years, Beget! Beget! Cbildren: boys and girls, will be treasure more valuable to you, Countrymen, than hundreds of millions of gold. And at the same time they are the supreme treasures for the development of our Race. . . . Let those who live in separate bouses immediately live together in one house. Let newly married people without cbildren, all tbe more immediately adopt sons and bring them to America.

"Then immediately give a lovely bride to the adopted son. And let every one who has dependent relatives immediately send for them and bring them over. . . . That strange doctrine of birtb-control, wbich those who fear America are advocating, is nothing but the first step in the destruction of our hoasted Yamato Race."

The editor of the "New World," another Japanese publication, points witb derision at the efforts of the California Legislature to stay the land grabbiug of bis race. The editorial is entitled "Japanese Should Co-Operate and Advance," with a sub-caption, "If We Hesitate tbe Bigots Will Take Advantage." The editorial says, in part: "Even if photograph marriages should be prohibited we cannot be stopped from leaving our descendants on this American continent. Even if not a single Japanese woman comes it is impossible to prevent the seed of our great Yamato race from being sown on the American continent by marriages with Americans, with Frencb, with Indians and with Negroes; especially since there are already a hundred thousand Japanese here and five thousand children are born annually. Pbelan and Inman cannot stop this great force. What stupidity! What ignorauce of a mighty force!"

WHAT IGNORANCE, INDEED! HOW PUNY THE EFFORTS OF ANY TWO MEN! BUT THERE IS A MIGHTY FORCE THAT THESE ALIEN MINDS CANNOT CONTEMPLATE. THE MIGHTY FORCE OF AN AROUSED CALIFORNIA!

In the "Japauese-American News" of December 27, 1919, appeared an article headed "Don't Neglect to Study Law," with the sub-head, "Attention Land-Buyers! Many Japanese Victimized by Americans, Whom They Trust Too Mucb. Ignorance of Law Weak Point of Japanese." A translation of that article follows: "A number of legal questious have ariseu receutly with reference to Japauese land ownership and many Japanese have suffered loss on this account. A Japanese legal expert has looked into the matter, and we give his statemeuts for the benefit of all Japanese buyers of land: 'Investigation of this matter discloses many surprising facts. One of the most embarrassing is the excessive confidence our countrymen have in friendly Americans and lawyers when tbey come to buy land, and the exceedingly large number wbo become easy prey to them. Among my own clients, are uot a few who have bought land in the name of some friendly American who seized the land after all payments were completed. In such cases there is no use to appeal to the courts for the Americans have everything in their own favor. Hereafter this sort of purchasing should be most carefully considered.' It goes without saying that the right to own land in California is tremendously important to the Japanese residents. We are waiting for the opportunity to seek the abolishment or relaxation of the present Alien Land Law."

An editorial in a recent issue of the "Japanese-American," commenting upon tbe agitation to prevent tbeir developmeut of the Pacific Coast, says, among other things: "If any anxiety for the future is felt and it is desired to take preeautions for perfect security, such persons ougbt to buy land at the present time. Everyone knows that farming cannot be carried on without land. To go about from place to place working other people's land under lease never can he permanently possible. And especially if we fear the outcome of the present anti-Japanese movement, the necessity of buying land is all the greater. . . . We should abide undisturbed and work diligently at our callings. Even if the anti-Japanese schemes sbould be to some extent realized, we sbould make it our aim witbout the least bit of agitation, to concentrate our efforts upon the single purpose of construction wbich cannot be sbaken."

Referring, in another issue, to the land question, the Japanese "New World" said: "Again let us consider the land law. Supposing that the ideas of Inman and Phelan were carried out, and we Japanese were prohibited from owning or cultivating land. We would find some way to continue farming and making a good living as producers. If we cannot conveniently do so in California we shall go to some other state and devise some plan."

The wiley Japanese, ever ready and ever awake to the main cbance, bas made his appeal to tbe well-known sense of justice and fair play of the Californian. And upon tbat appeal he has rested his ease, and, strange as it may seem, the appeal has, in some instances, met witb ready response. The average American is ever ready witb his sympathy for the "under-dog." This cbaracteristic has been played upon and its cbanges rung by the Japanese and his wbite apologists and sponsors until it is threadbare. But wben tbe same Californian comes to, and finds that he has been imposed upon, what a ruckus there is going to be!

Now, there is not and never bas been any real argument—an argument that appeals to the logic, reason and understanding—as to wby the Japanese should control our agricultural lands. We have found in this campaign three classes of people.

The first is what I believe to be by far and away the largest—that is, tbe citizens who believe that THE TIME HAS ARRIVED TO SETTLE THE QUESTION, ONCE AND FOR ALL, AND TO ELIMINATE THE JAPANESE AS OWNERS AND TENANTS OF OUR LANDS.

The second, those honest but misguided souls wbo have harkened to the cry of tbe Japanese (sometimes through white moutbpieces) of the "brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God," and of those who, to confound us, quote Scripture and the Declaration of Independence and wind up by citing the late lamented Theodore Roosevelt. But, as to real argument, they have been strangely silent. And as tbe Japanese asks, in high-sounding language, for justice, he says nothing of imperial ordinance No. 352, which forbids importation into Japan of Chinese or Korean labor. The Japanese give, as a reason, the perfectly laudable one tbat the standard of living of Chinese or Korean labor is lower than the Japanese and they cannot permit this cheap labor to come into competition with their own people.

The third class comprises those who are reaping a golden harvest hy exploiting the Japanese,—those who rent their lands to Japanese, and, profiting by the bigher rentals, become absentee landlords. Of this class little can be expected, for their cupidity has beclouded their patriotism.

And now for statistics, usually dry and uninteresting, but necessary to prove that tbe Japanese, born to obey, and obsessed with a determination to colonize California, are literally falling over tbemselves to "beget! beget!"

The phenomenal fecundity of the Japanese in California wbich threatens the submersion of the white population by an alien race, if eontinued, is sbown by the birth rate of the race in this state during the month of July, 1919, wben all previous high records relating to the ratio of births among any particular nationality were broken by the Japanese.

Figures obtained from the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health disclose the fact that during this one montb there was a total of 400 Japanese births in California. Using these figures as a hasis in connection with tbe Bureau's estimate of Japanese population, which is conservatively placed at 70,444 (as a matter of fact, the Japanese admit that "there are already a hundred thousand here and five thousand are born annually"), gives the race an indicated annual birth rate of 68.1 per thousand population against 17 pcr thousand a year among the wbites.

Recent statistics indicate tbat all Japanese women in California between the ages of 15 and 45 are bearing children at the rate of one every other year. Tbe birtb record as established by the Japanese in July is declared to be unprecedented and without parallel among any otber race in any country anywhere in the world.

Statisticians are deeply interested in a feature of Japanese birtb statistics, wbicb appears to indicate that the number of births among their race is largely regulated hy the anti-alien agitation of the white people. During the years that anti-Japanese agitation has been strongest the percentage of births generally has been the highest. The fluctuation bas been apparent, it is said, from the time the Legislature was asked to deal with the situation.

The following table gives the births and marriages among the Japanese in California for a period of thirteen years, since 1906. Prior to 1911, Japanese marriages were not tabulated separately from Caucasians; the marriage figures for 1919 are not available:

Year.	Births.	Marriages.
1906	134
1907	221
1908	455
1909	682
1910	719
1911	995	589
1912	1,467	906
1913	2,215	718
1914	2,874	887
1915	3,342	907
1916	3,721	705
1917	4,108	349
1918	4,219	129
1919	4,378

Prior to May, 1917, the Government insisted on a marriage ceremony on American soil, but wiley alien statesmen convinced Uncle Sam that tbis was an infringement on the customs of the Japanese. The requirement was abolished, and thereupon the number of Japanese weddings at the port of San Francisco dropped from an average of forty to fifty per month to two or three per month.

The California State Board of Health, in its tweuty-fifth biennial report, gives tbe following vital statistics of births for 1917: White, 47,313; Japanese, 4,108; Chinese, 419; Negro, 328; Indian, 52. The report makes this comment: "The percent white decreased steadily tbrough the last twelve years, thus: 98.04 (1906); 97.07; 96.8; 86.3; 96.1; 95.5; 84.6; 93.2; 91.9; 91.3; 91.4; 90.6 (1917). Tbe decrease in tbe proportion of wbite babies is due to marked increase in Japanese birtb registration. According to the table THE INCREASE OF JAP-

Carrying on its campaign to enligbten The People regarding tbe intolerable Jap situation in California, The Grizzly Bear presents the accompanyiug article by State Senator J. M. Inman of Sacramento, president of the California Exclusion League and a member of Sunset Parlor, No. 26, N.S.G.W. The startling FACTS bere presented, coupled with tbose made publie in previous articles in this magazine, point the course of duty that every Californian should follow from now until the close of the polls in November.

On the November ballot will be presented laws, for Tbe People to enact, whicb will stop tbe Jap invasion of California. The enactment of those laws will be California's answer to the Japs' invasiou-cry, "Beget! Beget!"—that California may be defrauded of her fertile acres. And their enactment, too, will cure the blindness and the deafness of those public-servants paid by The People to upbold the Alien Land Law but utterly failing to render tbe service for wbich tbey are paid, by cbanging the eourse of tbe avalanche of Jap funds and propaganda, unlimited in quautity; public-servants wbo, througb tbeir failure to carry out the will of Tbe People as expressed in the Anti-Alien Land Law now upon the statute-books, have become traitors to California by permitting ber to be defrauded of ber lands.

As Senator Inman says, "by the grace of God and the help of all real Californians," we will put these initiative laws "over the top" at the November election. And then we must rid the state of traitorous puhlic-servants; otherwise, tbe demands of The People will continue to go unbeeded!—Editor.

ANESE BIRTHS IN THIRTEEN YEARS, FROM 1906, IS 3,000 PERCENT.

The county health officer of Los Angeles County gave recently in his report the birth rate by races in the rural sections of that county as follows: White, 48 percent; Japanese, 33.4 percent; Mexican, 8.2 percent; Chinese, .1 percent; Negro, .3 percent. In other words, ONE-THIRD OF THE BIRTHS OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY—one of the most fertile counties in the state—outside of incorporated cities and towns, ARE JAPANESE.

In Placer County, a rich deciduous fruit belt, the Japanese births were nearly twice the number of whites in 1918. In 1916 there were 67 Japanese born in Placer County and 119 whites. In 1917, 93 Japanese and 79 whites, and in 1918, 123 Japanese and 61 whites.

The records of the San Pedro Health Department, at the Port of San Pedro (Los Angeles), where the Japanese have colonized in large numbers, monopolizing the fishing and canning industries, show that twenty-five percent of the births recorded since July 1, 1919, are Japanese. Of 125 births recorded since that date, 81 were of white parentage, 29 Japanese and 15 Mexican.

SINCE 1906, APPROXIMATELY 29,556 JAPANESE BABIES HAVE BEEN BORN IN CALIFORNIA. EVERY ONE OF THOSE BABIES, BORN IN THE STATE, ARE ENTITLED TO OWN LAND OUTRIGHT, AND WILL SOME DAY BE VOTERS. Between January 1, 1919, and April 1, 1919, twenty-five percent of the children born are Japanese.

In Butte County, fifty-one Japanese women, in three years, produced ninety-seven of their kind.

In the Florin, Sacramento County, public school, there are 123 children—82 Japanese and 41 whites. There are in Sacramento County 669 Japanese children under 5 years of age. Sacramento County, outside of the Capital City, showed that in 1918 there were born to white parents 221 children; to Japanese 236 children.

The Placer County school census for 1919 showed more than ten percent of all children to be Japanese. One school in that county shows that there are seventeen pupils; thirteen are Japanese. And in this school there is one little white girl. Would that some of those that believe that all men are born equal had fathered this little girl!

In the last fourteen years there have been born in California 29,556 Japanese children; all native sons and daughters of this Golden West; all potential voters, gifted by a benign and good-natured country with the right to own the soil of California. Aye, beget! beget!

The land ownership feature is one so big that in the space of a magazine article may be only touched upon. In the year 1913 a flood of bills was introduced in the California Legislature to meet this constantly-growing menace. Out of this mass there sprung what is known as the present "Anti-Alien Land Bill," so-called. It was intended to prevent entirely the ownership of agricultural lands by certain classes of aliens, among whom were Japanese, and to prohibit leasing for more than three years. Both of these provisions have been flagrantly violated. Thousands of acres of our best lands have passed forever into alien hands through the medium of dummy corporations, citizen children of alien parentage and complacent or corrupt collusion of so-called white men.

And when the pro-Japanese tell you, in their coming campaign, that we propose to violate the rights of a friendly people, just tell them that to all intents and purposes the proposed law contains but one paragraph dealing with their rights, and says that they "May acquire, possess, enjoy and transfer real property or any interest therein, in this state, in the manner and to the extent and for the purpose prescribed by any treaty now existing between the Government of the United States and the nation or country of which such alien is a citizen or subject, and not otherwise."

In other words, WE SAY THAT THEY SHALL TAKE WHAT THEY, THROUGH THEIR TREATY-MAKING POWERS, HAVE BARGAINED FOR, AND NO MORE. And if the exercise of this right by California at this time gives offense, it is rather late. The time for offense was at the time of making the treaty.

Every other word, line and section of the bill is but strengthening that section in order to prevent a repetition of the flagrant violation of the present law by these "mild and friendly people."

Before this article comes under your eyes, there will be in circulation an initiative petition for placing on the ballot a measure maturely considered and carefully prepared by the best legal minds of California which we believe will, if passed, forever prevent these practices. And when we have "mopped up" the question in California, we shall turn our attention to the question in its national aspect AND BY THE GRACE OF GOD AND THE HELP OF ALL REAL CALIFORNIANS (AND AFTER ALL IS SAID AND DONE THERE ARE A LOT OF THEM), WE ARE GOING TO "GO OVER THE TOP" IN WASHINGTON!

And in conclusion, and in further reply to those who fear "offense to a friendly people," I offer the language of that great Native Son, Hiram W. Johnson, when asked by Wm. J. Bryan for Woodrow Wilson to veto the Alien Land Law:

"WE OF CALIFORNIA BELIEVE FIRMLY THAT IN OUR LEGISLATIVE DEALINGS WITH THIS ALIEN LAND QUESTION WE HAVE VIOLATED NO TREATY RIGHTS; WE HAVE SHOWN NO SHADOW OF DISCRIMINATION; WE HAVE GIVEN TO NO NATION THE RIGHT TO BE JUSTIFIED IN TAKING OFFENSE.

"So believing—with a strong reliance on the justice and the rightcousness of our cause, and with due deference and courtesy and with proper consideration for the feelings and the views of others—we had hoped the authorities at Washington would have seen the question as we in this state have been forced to see it—as we must see it or be blind.

"It is with the highest respect for yourself and the President that I feel my duty to my state compels me to approve the action of the Legislature."

ANNIVERSARY C. P. R. R.'S FINISH.

San Francisco—May 10, the fifty-first anniversary of the completion of the Central Pacific Railroad, by the driving of the last (golden) spike at Promontory, Utah, was observed at a luncheon which was attended by veteran railroad men and officials of the Southern Pacific, which has succeeded the Central.

The golden spike and the silver hammer used on the memorable day when the Central and Union Pacifics were joined, and California afforded through transcontinental train service, were displayed, along with other mementoes of the occasion.

EDUCATION MEANS PROGRESS

Mariana Bertola, M. D.

(PAST GRAND PRESIDENT, N.D.G.W., CHAIRMAN EDUCATION COMMITTEE.)

THE ORDER OF NATIVE DAUGHTERS of the Golden West has for many a year worked along the lines of what is best in Education. To be sure, it has, like any other organization, its Brachiopoda which are said to have flourished in the Silurian period, and who oppose any innovation, but the Order has accomplished much in the enlightenment of this generation.

Our work in the Red Cross has been much, and of great variety. Every Subordinate Parlor in the state has contributed its heartiest effort to this organization, which works so unceasingly for all humanity irrespective of race or creed. Our co-operation with the Anti-Tuberculosis Society has been of an educational nature, and much has been done by assisting those afflicted by tuberculosis.

When the Grand Parlor met in Oakland in 1914, I introduced a resolution establishing a scholarship at Mills College; the resolution passed unanimously, and substantial sums were donated immediately. This scholarship is to be maintained from the interest derived from the principal of five thousand dollars which we are now endeavoring to complete. The interest will be devoted to assisting Native Daughters who desire an education at that college. The sum of five thousand dollars is to be invested in stable securities that may return a fair interest. For some unknown reason, we have lagged behind in collecting this sum. I cannot believe that it is for personal reasons. It cannot be because of the college itself; it is an accredited college, non-sectarian, and beautifully situated on one hundred acres covered by fine buildings, splendid trees and many flowers. Its women occupy, and have occupied, positions of trust in the community, and they are distinctly Californian.

Sometimes, a few of us allow personal prejudice to interfere with the dictates of our best judgment. Personal prejudice becomes the cacozyme which produces the disease of narrowness. Without Education we cannot progress, we cannot expect to reach the ideal. By Education, I mean a preparation of the individual for the life that he is to lead, and the position he is to fill in the world. To be sure, no mere college can give the individual the necessary preparation, but it can give very necessary tools which may assist in preparation, and not like Ignorance and Unpreparedness become impediments before his feet.

Education embraces all that disciplines the mind and the emotions, enlightens the understanding, corrects the temper, cultivates the taste, forms the manners, and establishes the habits of life. We are beginning to feel that all men must be educated; not only the professions must contain trained men and women, but also the trades, and all of the callings.

The college of today takes up physical, intellectual, esthetic, moral, and technical education. We have been shown that we have been lacking in physical education; more attention will be paid to this important branch, but all physical training should be carefully supervised by those competent to decide how much, and what kind, the indivdual needs. The intellectual, esthetic, and technical have received the most attention, and are being constantly changed to meet the demands of the times.

Moral education has been left mainly to the school and to the church. Every home should be a school; this will be true some day. Until that time, may we see that every child gets the moral education he is entitled to at a good school. The cynic says we have little need of this training in morals, that the intellectual training brings the moral training with it, but the best men and women of today know that the best training obtainable for the child includes his moral education.

Marcus Aurelius said: "In the life of man you find nothing better than justice, truth, sobriety, manliness, and in sum, nothing better than the satisfaction of your soul with itself in that wherein it is given to you to follow right reason; and with fate in that which is beyond your control. If you find every other thing small compared with this, see that you give place to no other thing that might turn, divert, or distract you from that good which is especially and properly your own."

Mills College will so assist a young woman in her preparation for life, and to properly take her place in the community. Let us, Native Daughters, renew our enthusiasm, freshen our efforts to make this scholarship a living thing that will benefit one of our own; let us awaken those who are asleep; let us put aside any atavistic tendency of those not with us; let us co-operate fully and freely, establish this fund to help some one, and then let us go on to other things.

There is much for us to do, and life is so short, we have little time left to do the work that lies before us. And sisters, I doubt not but that our reward will be according to our works. In the days to come, many a girl who will have been benefited by this scholarship may have cause to bless the Native Daughters who established this fund. It will prove an influence for good which we cannot estimate, and it may be so far-reaching that we have no conception of the many lives it may touch and enrich. Said Longfellow:

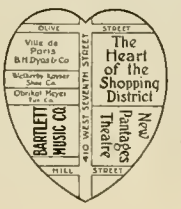

"I shot an arrow into the air;
It fell to earth, I know not where;
For, so swiftly it flew, the sight
Could not follow it in its flight.

"I breathed a song into the air;
It fell to earth, I knew not where;
For who has sight so keen and strong
That it can follow the flight of song?

"Long, long afterward, in an oak,
I found the arrow, still unbroke;
And the song, from beginning to end,
I found again in the heart of a friend."

SANTA CLARA COUNTY

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE COUNTY AND ITS CHIEF CITY, SAN JOSE

Doris West Bepler

OVER 150 YEARS AGO, THE BEAUtiful Santa Clara Valley lay waiting, in all its loveliness, for the first visit of the white man. But the Spanish explorers, all unsuspicious of the gem so close at hand, kept near the coast on their first exploring expedition to the San Francisco Bay region, in 1769. In their efforts, however, to go around the great body of water which they had discovered, a small band of the explorers under Sergeant Ortega did cross the northern end of the Santa Clara Valley, but, not pausing to examine the surrounding country, they hastened back to Monterey, again taking the shore route.

Two years later, orders came from the viceroy of Mexico to Fages, military commandant of California, to advance northward and explore the port of San Francisco, with the purpose of founding a mission there as a protection against possible encroachments by other European powers. Accordingly Fages set out in the spring of 1772 from Monterey with Father Crespí, a few soldiers, and helpers. The party jonrneyed to the northeast, and on the third day entered that fair land today called Santa Clara County.

Their first night in this part of the country was spent just a little north of the present town of Gilroy, and the next day the party marched the length of the county, pitching their camp near the mouth of what is now known as Penitencia Creek, hut which they called Encarnacion Arroyo. Here the expedition went to the right, and after exploring the eastern shores of San Francisco Bay as far as the San Joaquin River they turned their faces once more toward Monterey, again passing through the Santa Clara country, this time camping one league beyond the Encarnacion Arroyo on a little stream called San Francisco de Paula, not far from Milpitas.

The next expedition through this region was made in 1774 by Rivera, successor to Fages. He and his party turned to the left instead of to the right when they reached the end of San Francisco Bay, and there encamped below the present Searsville, on the San Francisquito Creek, which is now the northeastern boundary of Santa Clara County. Father Palou, who was with the expedition, considered this spot a good location for the establishment of a mission, and so he planted a cross on the banks of the creek before the little band pushed on to explore the peninsula.

Two or more expeditions traversed the Santa Clara Valley in 1776, but as yet none stopped to found a settlement there. However, the beauty, fertility and accessibility of this country, for awhile called the San Bernardino Valley, did not pass unnoticed. The San Francisquito Creek site of Father Palou having been found inadequate, because of lack of water in the summer, was given up for a location on the banks of a little stream tributary to the Guadalupe River, and where Father Tomàs de la Peña, on the 12th of January, 1777, celebrated mass in honor of the founding of a mission, dedicated the spot to Santa Clara, and planted the mission cross which today stands before the old mission church in Santa Clara. The mission buildings were at once commenced, and a messenger was sent to Father Murgía at Monterey to immediately set out with cattle, church paraphernalia and other necessities for the new foundation. In September of the same year, Father Junipero Serra, president of the California missions, paid his first visit to the new establishment, and there sang high mass and preached.

The original site of Santa Clara Mission soon had to be abandoned, due to the rising waters of the Guadalupe, which flooded the settlement twice in 1779. Consequently the entire establishment was moved to higher ground, near what is now known as Franklin street and Campbell avenue in Santa Clara. Here, on November 19, 1781, Father Serra laid the cornerstone for the new church. This cornerstone was dug up in 1911 by accident, and now rests in the library of the University of Santa Clara. Three and a half years after the laying of this cornerstone the second Santa Clara Mission was dedicated by Father Serra, the ceremony, however, being saddened by the recent death of Father Murgía, one of the founders of the mission, and the architect and builder of the church.

It is said that this second place of worship in the Santa Clara Valley was the finest mission built in California. Like the first mission, however, it was subject to floods, and so some years later a new site was selected, this time the location of the present Santa Clara church being chosen. Although much of the original structure of this third church remains the same today, the appearance of the Church of Saint Clare is quite different from what it was at the time of its dedication in 1822. The old adobe steeple was replaced by one of wood in 1841, and later still this one tower was taken away and a facade with two towers was erected. The adobe walls have also vanished, for they are now covered with wood. The bells of the church date from the end of the eighteenth century, being gifts presented to the old mission with the condition that they should be rung every evening to call the faithful to say De Profundis for departed souls, a custom observed to this day. Such is the story of the first religious establishment in the lovely Santa Clara country.

Miss Doris West Bepler, who prepared the accompanying article, is no stranger to readers of The Grizzly Bear, having written several history articles which have appeared in previous numbers of the magazine. She is a member of Buena Vista Parlor, No. 68, Native Daughters of the Golden West (San Francisco). For the past two years, she has been one of the Native Sons' History Fellows, and has been working at the University of California, of which she is a graduate, on a catalogue of history material contained in California magazines. This work, about completed, will be published by the University of California Press.

Miss Bepler is soon to leave for France, having recently been awarded a scholarship there by the Society for American Fellowship in French Universities, organized in New York to strengthen the cultural and scholary bonds between the United States and France, and which will send twenty-five students abroad each year. Some day, we predict, Miss Bepler will be the directing head of a woman's college, for she possesses all the requisites. She is a home product whom California and all Californians may well be proud of.—Editor.

SAN JOSE FOUNDED

The initial civil settlement in the Santa Clara Valley was not long in following the religious one. It seems that Don Felipe Neve, governor of Upper California from 1776, was required to make a survey of his domain for the purpose of selecting favorable situations for pueblo settlements. After traversing the country he recommended a site on the Guadalupe River, three-fourths of a league from the Mission of Santa Clara, as being one of the most advantageously situated for the purpose. Feeling that no time should be lost in the founding of a town in the fertile Santa Clara Valley, Neve did not wait for instructions from Mexico City, but ordered José Moraga, lieutenant-commandant of the presidio of San Francisco, to set out for the Guadalupe River and with a party of nine soldiers and five settlers with their families to found a settlement on the spot which he had chosen. Moraga accordingly started on the 7th of November from San Francisco, and with his little band established, on the 29th of the same month, the first pueblo or town in California, naming Saint Joseph as its patron. Such was the founding of San José, the oldest town in California.

The main purpose of this pueblo was the furtherance of agriculture in California, because it was desired to make the country self-supporting and no longer dependent upon Mexico for its supplies. To carry out this aim, each settler of the pueblo of San José was given a piece of cultivable land besides a house-lot, ten dollars a month, and a soldier's rations. Also each one received certain animals—a yoke of oxen, two horses, two cows, a mule, two sheep and two goats. Furthermore, seed and various implements were supplied, payment being required for these latter necessities, as well as for the animals, in products of the soil.

The first work undertaken hy the earliest inhabitants of San José was to construct shelters which naturally were but crude structures, being made of sticks and coarse grass. However, as time went on the settlers were able to replace these habitations with more substantial adobe brick dwellings. Before the fields could be used for agriculture it was necessary to irrigate them. Therefore, as soon as possible the men turned their attention to the task of daming the river above the settlement, and digging a ditch to carry the water to the field. The first attempts at this work proved unsuccessful and the first sowing was a failure. It was therefore found necessary to change the site of the dam, which move was instrumental in making the next sowing a success. A second dam was built above the first one for protection in time of freshet, but in 1779 this last dam was carried away, at the same time considerable damage resulting to the Mission of Santa Clara and the Pueblo of San José. This and similar occurrences strengthened the conviction that the pueblo had been founded on ground too low and marshy for the safety and prosperity of its inhabitants. At times the miry conditions were so precarious that the settlers were in serious danger from the Indians, who took advantage of the situation. The pueblo dwellers, however, put up with their surroundings until 1785, when they petitioned the governmental authorities to permit them to remove the settlement from its original site (about a mile from the center of the present city of San José) to higher ground a little distance to the south. But so slow did the wheels of government move in those days, that it was not until a little before 1791 that the change was undertaken.

In 1799 an avenue of trees, some of which are still standing, was started by Father Maguin de Catala to shade the wayfarer between Santa Clara and San José, because there was constant intercourse between the two places, for even up to 1851 nearly all baptisms, marriages and burials of the region were celebrated at the mission. This work, it is said, required the services at one time of some two hundred Indians, who not only planted the trees and fostered their growth, but whose presence was also necessary to protect the young leaves and branches from roaming cattle and goats. It might be thought that this roadway was but a symbol of many other connections of friendship and amity between the two settlements in the Santa Clara Valley, but all was not smooth in the relations of mission with pueblo.

It appears that the friars experienced a certain amount of uneasiness regarding the pueblo inhabitants, and watched with a jealous eye any encroachments upon their rights, especially in regard to the boundaries of their domains. Suspicion led to complaints, and finally to a dispute which lasted for about ten years. The boundary matter was at last settled in 1800, when the viceroy decreed that in the future the Guadalupe River should be recognized as the dividing line between pueblo and mission lands, save that the former should have part of the mountains to the west in order that the settlers might provide themselves with timber and wood.

So well recognized had the Santa Clara Valley become as a fertile spot, that before the close of the eighteenth century another mission was established only some twelve miles northeast of the Pueblo of San José. This was the Mission of San José, founded June 11, 1797, which in a short time became one of the largest missions of California. [This mission is now within the confines of Alameda County.]

The growth of the pueblo was exceedingly slow; in fact, in some decades the population and produce declined instead of increased. This was the case in the first decade of the nineteenth century. During these ten years the number of inhabitants of San José fell from 170 to 125, considerable of this loss being due, however, to the fact that many men were forced to withdraw from the pueblo with their families to serve in the presidial companies of San Francisco or Monterey. The number of horses, cattle and sheep also diminished in these years, but the causes for this decline were in the main intentional, for it was found necessary to slaughter a large part of the stock of these animals to keep them under control.

In spite of the scanty population, religious authorities, impelled by the petitions of the dwellers in San José, undertook in 1803 the erection of a chapel in the pueblo to answer the needs of the people when flood conditions made communication with Santa Clara Mission almost an impossibility. The little church put up was the first religious structure within the confines of San José. It was necessarily a crude affair of adobe bricks with a tule roof, and adorned with sacred pictures, but it lasted until a more pretentious building could be erected.

While the Indians of the region were taught at the missions how to weave, do carpentry, and how to be more or less proficient in various forms of agriculture, there were for some time no provisions made for the education of the children of the pueblo settlers. Under Governor Borica, however, toward the

The Chiropractic Law

California Chiropractors Are Asking Voters of State to License and Regulate Their Practice.

More than sixty-five thousand voters of the State signed the petition to place the Chiropractic "Initiative Bill" on the ballot for the coming fall election.

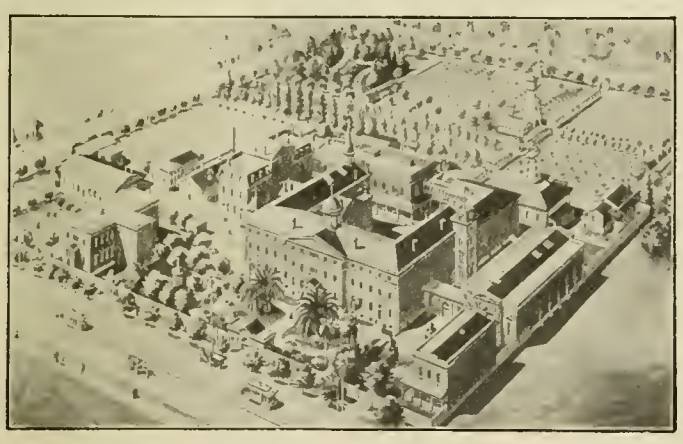

Section 5 of the Act says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to practice Chiropractic in this State unless he shall have first obtained a license as provided in this Act."

Also: "Each applicant (for a license) shall be a graduate of a chartered Chiropractic school or college which teaches a course of 2,000 hours or more, and he must give documentary proof of having attended not less than 90 per cent of 2,000 hours."

EDUCATIONAL REQUIREMENTS:

	Hours
Anatomy	600
Histology	100
Elemental Chemistry and Toxicology	100
Physiology	200
Bacteriology	60
Hygiene and Sanitation	40
Pathology	200
Diagnosis or Analysis	400
Chiropractic Theory and Practice	300
Total	2,000

This "Initiative Act," if passed by the people, will create a "Board of Chiropractic Examiners" appointed by the Governor and paid out of the fees of the applicants for license, so no additional tax will be placed upon the people.

end of the year 1794 a school was started in San José. It was held in the public granary, with a retired sergeant, Manuel Vargos by name, as teacher. The following year Vargas was offered the munificent sum of $250 per year to go to San Diego, whereupon Ramon Lasso de la Vega filled the vacancy at San José. In order to support the school a tax of thirty-one cents a month per pupil was ordered, and compulsory attendance required. The scholars were instructed in the "doctrina cristiana" before all else, and then were taught reading and writing.

Some years later, in 1811, a contract was entered into between the commissioner of the pueblo and one Rafael Villavicencio as teacher, for the schooling of the children of San José. The master was to receive eighteen reales annually from each and every head of a family, to be paid in grain or in flour. For this remuneration he was not to give his attention to anything else but teaching, which was to occupy him six hours of each day, and as he was responsible "in the Divine presence for the education and good examples of his scholars" he had "the right to correct and punish his scholars with advice, warning and lashes, in cases of necessity." Such were the beginnings of education in the Santa Clara Valley, a field in which this section of the country is today particularly noteworthy.

GROWTH RAPID

Foreigners began to penetrate into this valley as early as 1814. The earliest to arrive was a John Gilroy, who became the first permanent foreign settler within the present confines of Santa Clara County, and, in fact, of all California. Gilroy established himself on a ranch near or at the town now bearing his name, about thirty miles south of San José. Another flourishing town [originally in the same county, but in 1853 made a part of Alameda County] named after an early foreign settler is that of Livermore, some twenty miles northeast of San José. Robert Livermore, who came to the valley in 1816 and settled in this district, was the man who gave his name to the town.

As time went on other foreigners came to Santa Clara County, some to settle and others to stay only for a brief period. Between the years 1824 and 1830 several foreign visitors passed through here, and have since left written accounts of their impressions of the valley, especially San José. An interesting feature of these records is the difference in the descriptions of the pueblo. The Russian, Kotzebue, described it as a group of clean, pleasant homes of stone embowered in fruit trees and vines. The inhabitants, to him, were courteous, healthy and happy, unburdened by taxes, and rich from the products of the soil. The English navigator, Beechey, found the settlement the largest in Upper California but composed of miserable mud-houses. To the Frenchman, Duhaut-Cilly, the town did not seem prosperous and numbered only about eighty houses. In 1830 the American, Robinson, described San José as consisting of one hundred dwellings, beside a church, court-house, jail and grist-mill.

With the revolt of Mexico from Spain and the subsequent transfer of the allegiance of California little change came to the Santa Clara Valley. The oath of obedience to Mexico was taken on May 10, 1825, by the people assembled in the plaza, and the event was celebrated by three days of bull-fighting and other characteristic festivities. Under Mexican rule the missions of California lost their temporal power. The Mission of Santa Clara was the last one to be secularized, the change taking place early in the year 1837. Some temporal management was restored to it in 1843. During the revolutionary period in California, when governors and generals fought against one another, San José and the surrounding country stood for that faction opposed to the central authority of Mexico.

Early in 1846 it was seen by the Californians that there was to be trouble with the Americans, who of late years had been crossing the Sierra Nevada Mountains in ever-increasing numbers. In the year mentioned, Colonel Frémont advanced northward through the country, and in June, 1846, the Bear Flag was raised by Americans at Sonoma, with the declaration that from thenceforth California was free and independent from Mexico. As soon as he had received news of the event, Castro, acting general commander of the Department of California, set up his headquarters at Santa Clara and prepared to defy the Americans. Hoping to defeat General Castro, Captain Fallon raised a small force of men to fight under the Bear Flag, and advanced into the Santa Clara Valley from Santa Cruz. However, he soon found that Castro had a superior number of men, and so he prudently retired. A few days later word reached the Californian headquarters that the United States was at war with Mexico and that the Stars and Stripes had been raised at Monterey. Upon hearing this news Castro immediately departed for Mexico with such men as would follow him, whereupon Captain Fallon entered San José, and took possession of it in the name of the United States, raising the American Flag as soon as he could get one from Monterey.

This act did not settle matters entirely in the district, for Colonel Francisco Sanchez was ranging the country ready to attack the Americans whenever a favorable opportunity offered. He did, in fact, take captive several Americans who were out collecting cattle for the use of the United States forces. Re-enforcements were at once sent from San Francisco to the vicinity of Santa Clara Mission and San José; and it was not many days before Sanchez was obliged to sign an armistice, and subsequently he surrendered early in January, 1847, thus bringing an end to the warfare between American and Mexican forces in Northern California.

The development and growth of Santa Clara County and its principal city, San José, have been rapid indeed since the beginning of the American period. The gold excitement, as in nearly all other valley districts, depopulated Santa Clara for a brief time, but soon a large permanent population began to flow into the fertile and lovely garden county of the state. San José experienced a sudden and almost overwhelming influx of people in 1850 and 1851, for the State Legislature held its sessions there in those years. When this state body decided to remove to Vallejo the decline in population

COMPEL HISTORY STUDY

Anna Geil Andresen
(CHAIRMAN N.D.G.W. CALIFORNIA HISTORY AND LANDMARKS COMMITTEE.)

THE WORK OF THE CALIFORNIA HISTORY Committee of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West is an inspiration, and every one who works in this delightful field is conscious that she is contributing to make the foundation of the Order more substantial and abiding. No time is misspent that is devoted to the preservation and presentation of the true story of early California. We believe that the sory of California and of her early builders should be told, and that the inspiration of it should be caught by the children of today and passed on to those of the years to come.

We believe, too, that the schools should take up, in a competent and thorough manner, the study of the state's history, so that the children throughout the state (which also means the next generation) will have the necessary information concerning the early builders and the history of their period. This will lay the foundation for an intelligent appreciation of, and an abiding love and veneration for their state—a fine step toward good citizenship, and, of course, good Americanism.

It is certainly a reflection upon our educational system of the past that pupils were graduated from the grammar grades, high schools and universities, without knowing anything of their state's history. Matters have been somewhat improved in this regard, however, and within the last two or three years a course in state history was introduced in the elementary grades. The University of California offers splendid courses in Pacific Coast history, and through the liberality of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, scholarships and traveling fellowships are maintained for research work in California history. A limited number of students, however, enter the university, and thus only a few avail themselves of these courses.

The high schools, upon which we depend for the bulk of our trained citizens, give no attention to the subject, except in isolated instances where it comes within the whim or fancy of a high school superintendent. This is not right; it should not be a matter of individual choice. The study of state history in the high schools should be made compulsory, not only by the State Board of Education, but the State herself should demand it by statute.

It is, therefore, the duty not only of the California History Committees of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, but of all members of these Orders, to lend their assistance to this work, and see to it that our state history has a proper and dignified place in the curriculum of study in our high schools.

Much of our time and efforts have been spent in procuring a hearing in this regard, and we are also working with this end in view, that not only should the history of California be fully preserved and presented, but that it be presented as widely as possible. No better medium can be found to spread the beautiful and romantic story of California than through the pages of The Grizzly Bear Magazine, which should be in the home of every Native Son and Native Daughter of California. This valuable publication is something more than the official organ of two fraternal organizations, and should be substantially supported by every lover of California and her history.

While we would thus preserve the spirit of old California, as a moral force in our onward progress, we should also preserve the material evidences of old California, the wonderful landmarks, of which the most important are the Franciscan missions. While much has been done by the Native Sons and Native Daughters in this latter regard, the work has not been sufficient to prevent some of those structures from crumbling into dust. The spirit has at last seized the people of the state to recognize the glorious works of our first Pioneers, and to preserve them to posterity.

Other monuments of the past are facing us on every side, and it is for us to see that they are properly preserved. We are also especially interested in the first buildings erected by the Americans in the state, and other landmarks that have any connection with the early life of the American Pioneers. The history of these houses—private homes, schools, churches and other buildings—will prove of great value to students and lovers of California. Another activity of this committee is to obtain accurate records of the lives of the early Pioneers. All Native Daughters are requested to assist, by sending brief biographical sketches, and any other material bearing on the history of California, to the committee.

We have offered our assistance to the California History Committee of the Native Sons, and are ready at any time to help them, and to co-operate with them in furthering the aims and objects of the work in which both committees are mutually interested.

It is in this spirit that the committee of the Native Daughters of the Golden West is working. All its details go to achieve these ends, and when these results shall have been obtained we believe that something substantial will have been done to preserve the story of California and her builders.

Vallejo—The superdreadnaught "California" will be completed at the Mare Island Navy Yard November 1, and will be formally placed in commission in December.

Through the efforts of United States Senator James D. Phelan, a member of Pacific Parlor, No. 10, N.S.G.W. (San Francisco), the "California" will be made the flagship of the Pacific Fleet, and will be manned with California young men.

FIFTY YEARS AGO IN CALIFORNIA

A RESUME OF INTERESTING HAPPENINGS IN JUNE, 1870

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE BOSTON EXCURSION PARTY that arrived in California May 31, 1870, were the center of attraction in San Francisco during the first ten days of this month (June). Their palatial train of Pullman cars was sidetracked in the railroad yard, and was inspected by several thousand people daily.

June 2, the party was driven out to the Cliff House and entertained by many of the prominent people of San Francisco. A bottle of Atlantic Ocean water was, with proper ceremony, emptied into the Pacific Ocean. It did not cause any noticeable effect. The bottle was refilled with Pacific Ocean water, to be emptied into the Atlantic on the return of the party to Boston.

W. C. Ralston entertained them at his San Mateo place June 4. A greeting to the members of the party who belonged to the Boston Board of Trade was extended by the Chamber of Commerce on the evening of June 2. Many prominent citizens attended, and felicitous speeches were made.

A large portion of the party left Stockton June 11, aboard seven four-horse coaches, for the Yosemite Valley; others went to the Calistoga hot springs, and the rest of the party scattered over the state, either visiting relatives and friends or looking for opportunities to make remunerative investments in mines and real estate.

The party departed for the East in their chartered train June 24. It was stated that the members represented a wealth of $50,000,000 and the life insurance carried by them would, in case of a rail disaster to their train and party, cripple some of the companies carrying the risks.

The steamer "Active" was wrecked by striking a sunken rock June 5, south of Cape Mendocino. All the passengers were taken to land in the small boats and afterward sent overland to Crescent City, Del Norte County.

The Eureka mine at Grass Valley, Nevada County, paid a dividend of $750 a share for June.

John Mallory, near Yreka, Siskiyou County, had been for seven years, off and on, prospecting in the Humbug Mountains with a divining rod for a metal-bearing ledge. He located on the side of a hill what he claimed was a saddle shaped deposit of ore and tunneled in. He struck this month ore that, crushed in a mortar, yielded $17 a pound, or equal to $34,000 a ton.

How good luck can unexpectedly hit a man was well illustrated in some events this month. F. Rochon and two companions, carpenters out of work in Sacramento, in May decided to go to Shasta County on a prospecting venture. They located a placer claim on Spring Creek, and after delving a week unearthed a nugget weighing fifteen pounds, four and one-quarter ounces, and worth over $3,300. Other nuggets found increased their wealth another thousand.

People Go Lottery Mad.

John Manning, for twenty years a miner near Shasta, Shasta County, lived alone in a cabin and was supposed to be eking out a scanty existence. Coming occasionally into town, he always complained of his hard luck and frequently borrowed a dollar from an acquaintance, which, they claimed, he never repaid. June 1 he departed for his former home in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and forwarded by express a sack containing $25,000 worth of gold dust.

Several Italians working a placer claim on Wet Gulch, Calaveras County, June 17 washed out of the bank a tin box that contained $1,570 in gold coin, several of the pieces being $50 slugs. A Frenchman kept a store in that vicinity in early days and was murdered by robbers in 1852. It was thought the treasure was buried by him, and that his murderers failed to find the money they were after.

San Francisco market quotations this month made prices of beef 9, mutton 6, pork 7, veal 10, beans 3 and butter 25 cents a pound. Eggs were 30 cents a dozen.

Byron Jackson, a farmer near Woodland, Yolo County, exhibited a steam thresher of his own build and design. It created a furore in agricultural circles.

As had been prognosticated, the population of San Francisco became demoralized with the lottery fever. Men, women and children, of all classes, were feverishly investing their $5 pieces in tickets of the Mercantile Library lottery scheme. June 2 15,000 tickets were sold, and orders were coming from all parts of the country; a brokerage firm in New York telegraphed for a block of 30,000 tickets. Many schemes for securing winning tickets were being hatched, and suckers searched for.

Grasshoppers appeared in devastating numbers in Merced, Mariposa, Stanislaus and other counties in the San Joaquin Valley, and everything green in the way of their advance was being voraciously devoured.

Sacramento City had an agitation, which at intervals has been kept up since, to obtain a supply of clear water. Wells were enthusiastically advocated.

San Francisco voted by a small majority in favor of granting the Southern Pacific Railroad, building south, a subsidy of a million dollars. Quite a controversy arose over the result, and it was likely to be taken into the courts.

Census marshals were appointed in the different counties of the state to take the United States census of 1870 in July.

A Spanish opera troupe, enroute from Spain to Peru, gave several concerts in San Francisco and Sacramento before sailing for their destination this month.

Miss Adelaide Phillips, a famed contralto, and J. Levy, claimed to be the world's best cornet player, with other talented musicians were giving concerts in the different towns of the state.

Many Pioneers Pass On.

William Horace Lingard and Alice Dunning Lingard, talented stage favorites, were on a tour of the state with an excellent company, playing in the then latest success, "Frou Frou."

The frequenters of the railroad depot at Sacramento were entertained one day this month by the arrival from the East of a Chinese giant, seven feet eleven inches tall, named Chang Woo. He remarked in disgust, as a crowd gathered around him, "Too muchee foolee." The same day they witnessed the departure of "Admiral Dot," a Lilliputian protege of Barnum's, for the East. He was born in Sacramento about a decade before, but Barnum claimed he was several years older. His father was a German drayman named Kahn, and weighed 250 pounds.

The Sacramento baseball club played a match game with the Marysville club June 17. The Sacramento club won with a score of 51 to 22.

A billiard game for the champion cue of the Pacific Coast and $200 a side was played in San Francisco June 18 between J. W. Little, the champion, and John F. McCleery. It was a four-pocket American carom game of 1,200 points. Little won in a score of 1,200 against 669. His largest run was 123.

George Donner, who survived the ill-fated Donner Party and was brought to San Francisco by the rescuers, was given by some charitable people a 100-vara lot in that city. He sold it this month for $35,000.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Elias Viera at Vallejo, Solano County, June 26, that weighed 16¼ pounds. She was claimed to be the largest child born in California on record. The world's record showed only two children weighing more had been born in the world during the century.

Guy F. Flynn died at Napa City June 4, aged 83 years. He came to California in 1826 and worked as a blacksmith at several of the missions until he went to Napa Valley in the late '40s. He was a whole-souled Irishman, convivial and jolly, and had many friends although, during his later years, he was in needy circumstances.

James Block, who came to California in 1832, located in Marin County and became an extensive farmer, died in San Rafael June 18. He left a will distributing his estate, valued at $850,000, to domestics and friends, and disinheriting his only daughter, Mrs. Dr. Burdell, on account of her marriage displeasing him. After the will was read, Mrs. Burdell grabbed it and tore it into scraps. She was afterwards arrested for the act.

Francis Hinton, who came to California a member of Stevenson's Regiment and was in evidence after gold was discovered in '48, died in San Diego June 26. He became a prosperous and prominent merchant in that city and Yuma, Arizona, and left a fortune estimated at $300,000. He was 52 years of age.

Robbers Make Haul During Funeral.

Jesse Morrill, who visited California in 1823 and came here to live in '49, died at Sacramento June 30. He was 70 years old and was the oldest member of the Pioneer Association of Sacramento. He was also a prominent Mason and a highly esteemed citizen.

Samuel Brannan, the well-known California Pioneer and millionaire who had been wealthy since the days of '49, was sued by his wife for divorce. In answer to her demand for an injunction to prevent him disposing of any of his property, he stated his assets amounted to $600,000, and his liabilities to over $400,000, that his monthly income was $5,000, all of which went to pay interest on his indebtedness and his living expenses.

Lady Franklin, the widow of Sir John Franklin, the lost Arctic explorer, came to San Francisco enroute to Australia this month.

An Indian 117 years old wandered on the railroad track near San Jose June 10 and was killed by the locomotive. It was thought that he did not know what the train was, having never seen one before.

June 2 three highwaymen stopped the Los Angeles to Gilroy, Santa Clara County, stage in San Luis Obispo County. They secured and carried off the express box, but did not molest the passengers.

June 2 two highwaymen robbed a teamster named James Taylor near Copperopolis, Calaveras County, of $85.

June 5 at Gibsonville the funeral of a well-known resident was attended by nearly the entire population. During the time of its progress the office of the Meikle & De Noon Mining Company was broken open and over $5,000 in gold dust taken, and the house of Miles Schofield, owner of a mine in the same place, entered and a sack containing $4,300 worth of gold dust, concealed in the cellar, taken. No clue to the robber was left.

John Wilson of Shasta County, traveling on the Red Bluff road June 16, was held up by two armed highwaymen who relieved him of $2,700 in currency. He had received the money in payment for a drove of horses.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Brown of Folsom, Sacramento County, visiting in San Francisco, were June 1 driving in a buggy on the Cliff House road. They were run into by another vehicle and their carriage upset. Mrs. Brown struck upon her head and was fatally injured. She was 31 years of age, grew to womanhood in Georgetown, El Dorado County, and was a greatly esteemed woman. Mr. Brown was but slightly injured.

Robert Joint, 8 years old, at Folsom, Sacramento County, June 4, playing with other children jumping on and off a horse's back, struck the ground heavily with his feet. Shortly after going home his jaws set rigidly and he died in a few days afterward from lockjaw. A nerve of his spinal column was said to have been injured in his jumping.

A 17-year-old boy named Layton went hunting near San Jose June 6. In climbing a fence he caused the gun to be accidentally fired and the charge entered his head above the right eye, killing him instantly.

Accidents, Many Fatal, Numerous.

Philip Knauth of the Orleans Hill Vineyard, Yolo County, June 13 while hunting climbed a fence and in so doing accidentally discharged the gun. The shot hit the wrist of his right arm, shattering the bones so that amputation below the elbow was necessary.

Jimmy Corr, a lad 10 years old, in Marysville, Yuba County, June 3 was kicked by a horse on the chin. He had his jawbone broken and several teeth knocked out.

John Burres, a citizen of Antioch, Contra Costa County, trying to break a fractious colt, was kicked in the face by it June 4. His jawbone was broken and he was badly disfigured.

William Coffin, a 14-year-old lad, was drowned while bathing in the Feather River June 9 with other boys near Oroville, Butte County. He tried to swim across the river, but sank near the middle of the stream.

A 15-year-old boy named McNobb, near Ukiah, Mendocino County, was helping his father June 7 in a hay field. He was driving the hay wagon when the horses ran away. The rack fell off and he upon it. A wooden peg penetrated his body and killed him.

June 15 a little boy 8 years old, son of a man named Williams, in Healdsburg, Sonoma County, was put on a horse by his father with two other children to ride around the block. When the other children got off they frightened the old horse and it ran away. The little boy fell out of the saddle, but a foot caught in a stirrup and, hanging with his head striking the ground, he was dragged screaming through the streets of the town; finally his head struck a post and he died in the arms of his frantic father.

At Fruitvale, Alameda County, June 18 a San Francisco boy, 12 years of age, was visiting the

SAN JOSE CITY,
IMPORTANT CENTER OF "THE VALLEY OF HEART'S DELIGHT"

Fred Lewis Foster

(ASSISTANT SECRETARY SAN JOSE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

SAN JOSE HAS BEEN WIDELY known for years as the center of the richest and most productive deciduous fruit section in the United States—the Santa Clara Valley, "The Valley of Heart's Delight." But it is rapidly becoming an industrial center of no mean proportions, a subject, however, that cannot be intelligently discussed except in connection with that of the vast local fruit industry, because this industry is the basis upon which the city's largest industrials have been built, and in turn the presence of these has been to a considerable extent instrumental in attracting others. In fact, it is difficult to speak of production or business of almost any kind in San Jose or Santa Clara Valley without taking the city and county as a unit.

San Jose, for example, has numerous large fruit and vegetable canneries and fruit-packing houses, all of which are dependent upon the fruit and berry and vegetable production for their existence, and besides, several of the individuals and firms engaged in the canning business in the city have other canneries in various districts of the county. The headquarters of the corporation controlling the apricot output are in San Jose, but it has plants not only here but also at Los Gatos, Campbell, Morgan Hill, Gilroy and Mountain View, all in this county, besides of course its many other plants in all the prune and apricot producing counties of the state. And affiliated with this great organization of growers are several outside packers, at Campbell, Saratoga and Cupertino, in addition to those in town. There are thirty-eight large canneries in both city and county, and in considering this industry they must all be viewed as a whole. Of fruit-packing houses, there are almost as many, there being twenty-two in the city and fourteen in the county. In addition, there are several extensive green fruit-packing firms, the majority of which, however, are in the city.

A WORLD LEADER.

Our largest manufacturing firms and corporations, whose products supply not only the domestic trade throughout the United States but are continuously being exported in large quantities to European countries and to South America, are directly connected up with the local fruit industry, which made these industries possible. Beginning as small concerns many years ago to meet the local demand for the implements and machinery, then comparatively simple, for use by the fruit growers, canners and packers, such as spraying and irrigation pumps, fruit graders, etc., they have gradually grown up with the growing fruit acreage, constantly improving their old products and inventing new ones, until at present in certain lines of production they have practically no competitors in this or any other country, and their output, vast as it now is, is steadily increasing. Incidental to the local fruit industry also is the manufacture of fruit cans, which has grown to gigantic proportions. In 1918 the local concern turned out 150,000,000 cans, which total last season was increased to 200,000,000 cans, all for use in the local canneries

Last season there were shipped from this county, mostly through San Jose, approximately 100,000 tons of canned fruits and vegetables, 65,000 tons of dried fruits, and 11,000 tons of green fruits. It will readily be seen therefore that in all the essential phases of the big deciduous fruit industry—growing, canning, drying, and the manufacture of machinery incidental to these—San Jose and Santa Clara County, as a single unit, lead California, lead the United States, lead the world.

> San Jose City was incorporated in 1850; it is the county-seat of Santa Clara County, created February 18, 1850, as one of California's original twenty-seven counties. The county derived its name from Mission Santa Clara, named for Saint Clara of Assisi, Italy, the first Franciscan nun and founder of the Order of Saint Clara. The city is also the center of life and business activity in the wonderfully productive Santa Clara Valley.
> San Jose is a delightful city of broad streets, imposing public buildings, elegant homes embowered in flowers and shade trees, attractive church and school buildings, and beautiful parks. The purest of mountain water is piped in from the mountains and all the appointments of the modern city are provided. Its retail stores will compare favorably with those in a city of ten times its population.—Editor.

BIG VOLUME BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

There are several other industrial concerns that have grown to large dimensions, and many smaller ones, covering numerous lines of industrial activities. Several of the biggest box factories on the coast are located here, also a number of planing mills; wagons, agricultural instruments, tractors, stoves, harvester teeth, harness, mattresses, boilers, gas engines and radiator compounds, auto bodies, labels by the millions for fruit cans and boxes, brick, concrete drainage tiles, brooms, furniture, cots, cartons, breakfast foods, glaced fruits, pottery products, engines, pumps, sheet metal products, rugs, leather, trucks, violins—these will give a general idea of the variety of local products. This city supplies practically the entire Western territory with tents, cots and cooking and camping outfits that can be placed in small compass and carried in automobiles by tourists and campers. Recently, through the instrumentality of the local Chamber of Commerce, a corporation purchased a convenient tract of twelve acres in this city upon which modern-style factory buildings soon will be erected, and the factory will be in operation by September, turning out rear axles for auto trucks, for which it has contracts that will keep it going from the very start. Its market will be the entire West, and as the demand for these axles has been and is far greater than the supply and is increasing, the success of this enterprise is fully assured. It is confidently expected that other factories, manufacturing certain automobile parts, will settle in the vicinity of this one. The Chamber of Commerce is in touch with other concerns that are inclined to locate here, and the prospect is excellent for the acquisition of many new industrials within the next few years.

The volume of business transacted in this city of less than 60,000 people is indicated by the number and financial standing of its banks and the monthly bank clearings. There are in San Jose five banks, and another that is about to open. Bank clearings in 1919 were $242,587,056; total deposits were $37,585,114; total assets, $40,687,127. Santa Clara has two banks, Gilroy two, Palo Alto three, Los Gatos two, Campbell two, Mountain View two, Morgan Hill one, Los Altos one, Sunnyvale one, Milpitas one, and Saratoga one, or a total in city and county of twenty-two banks, all thriving institutions, a condition that could be made possible only by healthy, active and steadily growing business throughout the entire county.

DEVELOPS INTO MANUFACTURING CITY.

From factories and banks to roses is rather an abrupt transition, but in San Jose the production of roses has risen to the dignity of "big business," and therefore it should not be overlooked as one of our productive and commercial activities that is bringing a lot of outside money into the city and valley. Portland, Oregon, is widely known as the "City of Roses," and the reader doubtless will be surprised to learn that Portland sends to San Jose for the young rose bushes that develop such wonderful roses in that beautiful northern city. Millions of them are grown under contract for dealers in the East, also, and in Europe, Japan and other far-away countries, and the business is developing so rapidly that it is difficult to keep up with the orders. And the fruit nursery industry is another big asset, growing bigger every year, with orders from all parts of the globe; the seed industry is still another.

So, having begun with the products of our soil in outlining our industrial activities, we close this brief sketch by coming back to them. For as a matter of fact this community is so used to seeing and hearing and talking about our valley fruits—prunes (150,000,000 pounds dried was the local production last season), cherries, apricots, plums, pears, apples, peaches and other kinds, with more or less of figs, lemons and oranges, and our almonds and walnuts, and berries ten months out of the twelve, and peas and potatoes in March—that we cannot yet realize that gradually our small shops have been growing into big manufacturing concerns, or that others have been stealing in practically unnoticed, until we have developed almost unconsciously into a manufacturing city of no small repute, shipping the products of our shops, no less than those of our soil, to the markets of both hemispheres. All this is gratifying, nor does it in the least detract from the satisfaction and pleasure experienced by those whose good fortune has placed them in this "Valley of Heart's Delight."

Native Daughters of the Golden West

Long-To-Be-Remembered Occasion.

Stockton—Joaquin 5 celebrated the thirty-third anniversary of its institution April 27, and the occasion will long he remembered hy the many in attendance. Grand President Mary E. Bell was present on her official visit, and other visitors included Grand Trustee Mattie Stein of Lodi, Grand Outside Sentinel Pearl Lamb of Tracy, Margaret Sullivan (Alta 3) of San Francisco. Thirty-five candidates, among them seven mothers with their daughters, were initiated, and an elaborate banquet was served.

The banquet-room was beautifully decorated, a color scheme of red and green being carried out in minute detail. Overhead, a canopy of red pepper berries and foliage, strung with tiny red-shaded lights, was lovely in effect. Three long tables were garlanded with red roses and lighted with red-shaded candles. In the place of honor stood a large birthday cake iced in white and lighted with thirty-three red candles; a large red candle in the center of the cake represented the growth and expansion of the past year. Presiding as toastmistress was Miss Beth Gallagher, who gave an intensely interesting history of Joaquin Parlor from its founding to its present flourishing state. Among those who entertained during the evening were Mrs. Frank Buthenuth, Miss Lorraine Kalck, Miss Elise Eichoff and Miss Lois Nelson.

After the banquet, members of Stockton 7, N.S.G.W., arrived on the scene, and dancing was enjoyed in the lodge-room, which was beautifully adorned with masses of Lady Banksia roses. The splendid affair was arranged by a committee of fourteen; Mrs. Della Garvin originally headed the committee, but illness interrupting her activities, Mrs. Roy Porter assumed her responsihilities and carried the plans to a glorious conclusion.

Native Sons Guests at Anniversary.

Sutter Creek—Amapola 80 celehrated the twenty-sixth anniversary of its institution by entertaining the members of Amador 17, N.S.G.W., April 23. About eighty-five were present, and whist and other games occupied the time. During the evening Mrs. Elmarie Hyler gave several vocal selections, and instrumental numhers were furnished by the Native Sons orchestra—Jackson Dennis, Lester Casagrande, Charles Gorman, William Obradovich.

At 11:30 a grand march was formed and all proceeded to the banquet-room, where a delicious supper was served. A large birthday cake, with twenty-six candles, adorned the tahle; at the hanquet's conclusion the candles were lighted and each person present was served with a piece of the cake. For amapola Parlor, Mrs. Elmarie Hyler was chairman of the entertainment committee, and Miss Olga Ohradovich of the refreshment committee.

President Will Entertain.

Oakland—Brooklyn 157 held a cafeteria April 26, the proceeds going to the social fund. A cafeteria is held, on an average once a month, and is always a success. At the request of President Anna Silva, the last meeting of each month has heen set aside for her. She will entertain in some novel manner. Plans are now being made for the Admission Day celebration in San Francisco, and to raise funds a theater party is being arranged for the near future.

Keith Parlor Apron.

San Francisco—The single memhers of Keith 137 entertained the married sisters recently, and the evening was most delightfully spent in singing, dancing, and games for which beautiful prizes were awarded. The committee was in charge of Lillian Herzog, Genevieve Martell, Bert Mauser, with Jennie Giusto as chairman, assisted hy all the single sisters.

Rosalie Andrews of Keith Parlor has struck a novel way of raising money for the sick fund. Tiny aprons were made with pockets, and the following piece of poetry enclosed. The result, Keith Parlor is $10 to the good.

This little apron is sent to you,
And this is what we wish you to do:
The little pocket you plainly see,
For a special purpose is meant to he;
Now measure your waistline iuch by inch,
And see that the measure does not pineb;
For each small inch you measure around,
In the pocket put a penny sound.
The game is fair, you will admit—
You "waist" your money, we pocket it.
Then bring it or send it without delay,
To Keith Parlor, on the thirteenth of May.

"On the Train" Creates Laughter.

Ferndale—Oneonta 71 initiated three candidates April 23, the ceremonies being followed by a social time at which the following program was giveu: Recitation, Miss Ann Schortgen; solo, Mrs. Bernice Mills; comedy, "On the Train," Mary Spencer, Verna Hawley, Mary Casanova, Jane Trigg, Clara Ammer, Hattie Roherts, Cecil Hindley, Mrs. Florinda Early.

The members attended in school-girl costumes, and each hrought along a well-filled lunch basket. At midnight a delicious "community" repast was enjoyed. Much merriment prevailed, the comedy keeping the audience in a continuous uproar.

Grand President a Visitor.

Placerville—Grand President Mary E. Bell officially visited Marguerite 12 April 21. A banquet was served at 7:30, with Mattie Plank as chairman; it was a decided success, as were also the original toasts, written by Mrs. Grace Ryan, a Placerville woman, for the occasion, one of which was as follows:

Here's to the Belle of our meeting,
Here's to Mary a greeting;
Here's to a sister, staunch and true,
Here's to Mary E. Bell—that's who.

After the banquet Mary Swanshorough, in behalf of the Parlor, presented the Grand President with a gift in a few well-chosen words, to which the recipient graciously responded, thanking the Parlor. Her address was both instructive and delightful, and was greatly enjoyed.

The feature of the evening was a class initiation of six candidates. There was a large attendance of memhers of the Parlor, and several visitors from El Dorado 186 (Georgetown). The lodge-room was decorated with poppies and ferns. The program was informal, consisting of songs by Jennie Pierce, Nettie Leonardi, Monica McCusker, an original poem hy Jane McCusker, and a very heautiful poem hy Grand President Bell.

Social Affairs Planned.

Oakland—President Myrtle Bellcrieve being unable, hy reason of illness, to attend the San Jose Grand Parlor as a delegate from Argonaut 166, Secretary Ada Spilman will go in her place. The Parlor's other delegate will be Marie Brusie, loved by all Native Daughters hecause of her work as seeretary of the Homeless Children Committee.

The Parlor has outlined a series of social affairs, starting May 18 with a henefit for out-of-Parlor activities, to be followed by one of its famous masquerades.

Silver Anniversary.

San Francisco—Yosemite 83 celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its institution at a downtown cafe April 29. Thirty-two members, among them the charter president, Dr. Mary Page Campbell, were present. The table was decorated with flowers and greens brought hy Amelia Jacohsen from her Landsdale home. Silver favors were given all in attendance, while May Larroche, in appreciation of her twenty-five years of contiuuous service in the Parlor, was presented with a silver sugar-shell.

The program rendered included remarks by Dr. Mary Page Camphell, May Larroche, Amelia Jacobsen; song, Irene McNeill; impersonations, D.D.G.P. May Barry; character recitation, President Marguerite Kaufman; solo, Rose Johns; Spanish dance, Phelita Reagan; piano selections, Lucille Kimbark. The committee in charge of the arrangements was Emma Wolf, Alice Ervin, Grand Treasurer Susie K. Christ, Janet Wadsworth, Emma O'Keefe, Margaret Randolph, Lorretta Lamburth, Phelita Reagan, May Larroche, Mamie Monahan, Catherine Batterton.

Two Years of Success.

Elk Grove—Liherty 213 celehrated its second institution anniversary—two years of phenomenal success—April 23 and was also officially visited by Grand President Mary E. Bell. Visitors included memhers of all near-hy Parlors and Past Grand President Eua Gett of Sacramento. One candidate was initiated. The Grand President addressed the Parlor in a pleasing manner, complimenting the members on the successes they had achieved and praising the officers for the exemplary manner in which their work is performed. Past Grand President Gett, who was active in the Parlor's organization, also showered praises. Freuch nosegays were presented Grand President Bell, Past Grand President Gett and Recording Secretary May Rhoades.

A march was then taken up to the banquet-room, which had been heautifully decorated in yellow. Here, the Grand President was presented with a silver meat-fork in a novel manner, it being suspended over her head by a yellow streamer and, at the appointed time, dropped in front of her. The lodge-room, too, was attractively decorated for the occasion, pink being the color scheme; Miss Marie Ajax had charge of the decorations. During the evening Beatrice Edgington, Lois Mitchell and Myrtle Idzinga delighted with vocal numbers.

Member Given Dual Surprise.

San Rafael—At the San Anselmo home of Past Grand President Emma Gruher-Foley April 28 a farewell surprise dinner was given by the memhers of Marinita 198 to Sister Anna Gerona, who has removed to Sonoma. Thirty-five members were present, and a delightful evening was spent with games, dancing and music. The memhers of the Parlor wish Mrs. Gerona success and happiness in her new home, but hope that hefore long she will return to them. At the dinner table there was a second surprise, when the guest of honor was presented with an emblematic pin, as an expression of the esteem in which she is held hy Marinita's memhers.

Recent Bride Showered.

Hollister—Copa de Oro 105 initiated three candidates April 23, and gave a surprise kitchen shower to a recent bride, Gladys Simmons Pierson. The guest of honor was the recipient of various and sundry kitchen articles with original poetical effusions attached. A social hour was spent over the teacups, and when the bride's cake was cut the following lucky women won the prizes contained therein: Eileen Hausen hit into the piece contain-

Big Class Initiated.

San Jose—A committee from San Jose 81 composed of Laura Gilleran, Amelia Venturi, Nellio Gerans, Mamie Delaney, prepared a delicious Spanish supper and decorated the banquet-room in red and yellow crepo paper flowers; everything was so dainty and attractive, and the supper so appetizing, that they were highly commended for their good cooking and excellent service. May 6, Evelyn Anderson, Muriel Blass, Mary Breitwieser and Aura Lea Boomer had charge of the entertainment; they featured a guessing game, after which cake and ice-cream were served in tbe gaily decorated dining-room.

As the result of an earnest and systematic membership drive, San Jose Parlor initiated a large class of candidates May 20, tbe coromonies being followed by a banquot. Thero was a largo attondanco.

Big Turn-Out for Grand Presideut.

Oakland—Aloha 106 received its official visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell May 11. Proceding the meeting a well-appointed dinner was onjoyod by several grand officers and members of tho Parlor, after which all adjourned to Corinthian Hall ia tho Pacific Building, where a very successful evening was enjoyed, with President Ruth Tornblom presiding. Upon taking up tho password, seven grand officers and D.D.G.P. Suo J. Irwin, ono hundred and one visitors, representing fourteen Parlors, and sixty members of Aloha Parlor were announced. During the ritualistic work four candidates wore received.

Under "Good of the Ordor," tho Grand President complimented tbe Parlor upon its work, and ex-

For a "Guest" Luncheon

An intimate friend drops in during the morning. Before you know it, it's twelve o'clock. The morning work has been at a standstill—lunch is unprepared. The butcher hasn't been given a thought.

BOOTH'S

come to the rescue. A pot of tea, a few slices of bread and a can of these most appetizing, delicious big fish make a lunch that is unexcelled.

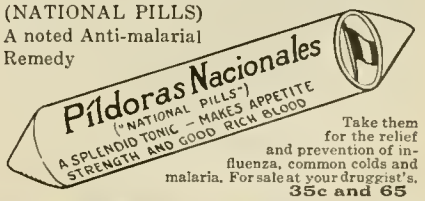

There's enough in a can for four persons—six to eight big fish. They are packed in three sauces; tomato, mustard and spiced, to suit your taste.

They are unusual in flavor and unusual in size. Each fish is five to seven iuches. They are called Sardines only because Uncle Sam says they belong to the Sardine family.

When you ask for them say "Booth's" Sardines. If you don't your grocer will think you mean the ordinary kind. There is no substitute. Insist on Booth's Crescent Brand.

pressed her appreciation of having had the honor of being at the head of the Ordor. Gifts were presented to Mrs. Bell and D.D.G.P. Irwin by Grand Marshal Dr. Victory A. Derrick, a beloved membor of Aloha Parlor, to which responses were made. After the meeting adjourned the visitors were invited to the banquet-room, where an hour was enjoyed at a hountifully-laden table, where Athens 195, N.S.G.W., band dispensed sweet music during the repast.

The decorations in the meeting-room were white iris and greens, and in the banquet-room the eschscholtzia, the state flower, in large baskets was elaborately used together with yellow streamers and favors in the shapes of fancy baskets. The grand officers were presented with corsage bouquets of sweet peas.

Helps Playground.

San Francisco—El Vespero 118 gave a whist party for the purpose of raising money to purchase a needed appliance for the Bay View playgrounds, which is under the supervision of the Bay View Community Club, in which many of the members of the Parlor are active workers. Many useful and beautiful prizes were contributed by the members, especially the two Johnson grocery baskets, filled to overflowing with staple articles; Charles Zahn of South San Francisco 157, N.S.G.W., won one of the baskets, and Carl Hansen the other. A goodly sum was realized, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

El Vespero Parlor gives a whist party every second Tuesday in the month, and those who go once become steady patrons, as refreshments are always served as well as good prizes offered.

Initiates Seventeen.

Lodi—On the occasion of the official visit of Grand President Mary E. Bell to Ivy 88, a class of seventeen candidates was initiated. Past Grand President Carrie Roesch-Durham of Stockton and Grand Trustee Mattie Stein were in attendance, as were also many visiting members of surrounding Parlors.

The lodge-room was beautifully decorated in California poppies, while in the banquet-room, where an elaborate banquet was served, a color scheme of red, white and yellow was carried out with roses. The evening was indeed both beneficial and enjoyable.

Decorates Departeds' Graves.

Lincoln—Placer 138 observed May 2 as Decoration Day, strewing the graves of departed members and Pioneers in the cemeteries in this vicinity with flowers, in loving remembrance.

To Hold Public Whist.

San Francisco—Presidio 148 is planning a public whist for June 22, when a basket of groceries will be raffled. The committee in charge is Maud S. Stimmel, B. Molinari, E. Belden, D. Denning, S. Finner, E. Gilbert.

The Parlor is making satisfactory progress, new members being added every month. The socials, held the fourth Tuesday evening of each month, are well attended.

Has Busy Month.

Oakland—Piedmont 87 initiated a class of candidates May 13. The month of May was a busy one for the Parlor, there being a theater party, in charge of Sarah Realy, a birthday social, in charge of Sister Emerson, and a whist party, in charge of Louise McCutcheon.

Mothers Honored.

Redding—Hiawatha 140 gave its annual Mothers' Night entertainment May 17, about a hundred mothers and Pioneer women being present. The hall was decorated in mother's flower—the white carnation—and each visitor, as she entered, was presented with a bouquet of carnations and ferns. Members of the Parlor came dressed as, and acted the part of, well-known book characters, and the mothers were required to guess the characters. The prize, a beautiful house plant, went to Mrs. Lizzie Kise of Eltapome 55 (Weaverville).

A musical program was rendered hy memhers of the Parlor, and dainty refreshments were served. This affair is annually looked forward to hy the Pioneer women of the community and the memhers' gray-haired mothers.

Grand President Tendered Banquet.

San Francisco—Grand President Mary E. Bell having completed her official visits to all Suhordinate Parlors, was the guest of honor May 19 at a banquet tendered hy past presidents of the local Parlors. The committee in charge of the affair, which was a complete success, was Grand Treasurer Susie K. Christ, May Barry, Carrie Turner, Lela Williams, Past Grand President Emma G. Foley.

Mrs. Bell was the recipient of a heautiful silver token, and was showered with congratulations upon the success of her administration, which is soon to close.

Enjoys Outing.

Oakland—Memhers and guests of Bahia Vista 167 were guests the latter part of April at a long-to-herememhered outing at the heautiful home of President Mrs. Frank Rose in Niles. In the evening whist was played, Adelaide Francis and Marie Nunes assisting the hostess. Early the next morning autos conveyed the party to Niles Canyon for a picnic, past thirty miles of blooming wild flowers and hlossoming fruit trees. Field games were played, a hasehall team of both sexes being formed; they made "some" hits! A splendid repast was served, and tired but happy all started for home, sorry that the outing could not continue forever.

May 8 Bahia Vista held a successful dance, the door prize, a $2.50 merchandise order, heing donated hy Sister McCarthy, a zealous worker for the Parlor. Ida Rowley was chairman of the evening, and was assisted hy Sister Edwards.

Children's Night Celebrated.

San Francisco—Orinda 56 celehrated Children's Night on May 14 with a gathering of little folks and their elders as invited guests. As in years past, the children rendered the program of entertainment, which was greatly enjoyed hy all present. The participants were: The sisters Norissa, Evangeline and Bernardet Whitney and Arvid Miller in fancy and classical dances, accompanist Miss Verena Britschgi; Freddy Tietjen, Margie Kompf, Gladys Bouquet and Miss Marguerite McAtee in piano numbers; Alton Bowley, Arvid Miller and Mrs. May Barry in recitations.

A little time was given over to the game of musical chair, which was as much amusement to the adults as for the children. The occasion marked a surprise miscellaneous shower to Miss Orinda Gunther, the namesake of the Parlor, on her approaching wedding. Ice-cream and cake were served at the close of the program.

Campaign Losers Entertain.

Anderson—During the recent campaign for new memhers, Camellia 41 was divided into two teams. The losing team, as a penalty, entertained the memhers of the Parlor and invited guests at a whist party and dance May 7.

Initiates Large Class.

Fresno—Fresno 187 enjoyed an official visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell May 6. Memhers of the Parlor were entertained at the home of President Millie Burton May 13. Secretary Harriet M. Boust has returned from a visit in the northern part of the state, and will soon leave for New York City, to visit her son, Lieutenant H. S. Boust of the U. S. N.

May 27 a large class of candidates were initiated by Fresno Parlor. The ceremonies were followed hy a social function.

HAVE JOINT MEMORIAL SERVICES.

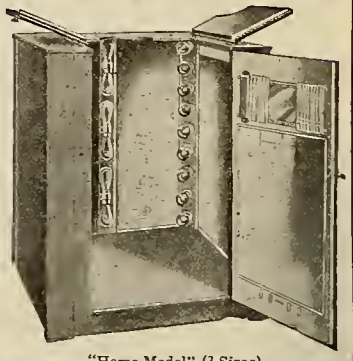

San Francisco—The local Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West held joint memorial exercises, May 23, at the hase of the memorial monument in the Civic Center, a special program heing presented.

Officers of the joint committee that made the arrangements included: Thomas F. Duffy chairman, Miss Margaret Kaufman vice-chairman, Mrs. Mae Edwards secretary, James Hayes treasurer.

family of G. L. Lynde. With the son of Lynde, about his own age, he was playing "robbers." Entering a closet in the house he found a loaded rifle, which he pointed at his playmate, and accidentally fired. The ball struck the Lyndo lad in the chest, passed through both lungs and made its exit under his arm, inflicting a serious wound.

Moses Eaton, an old resident of Stockton, June 9 was thrown off his wagon and in falling struck so as to break his neck.

Ignatz Murekenschnabel, another old resident of Stockton, June 13 fell off his wagon, was run over and killed.

The night of June 17 a fire at Farmington, San Joaquin County, destroyed the house of Mr. Campbell. Mrs. Campbell was seriously injured and her infant daughter was fatally burned by the flames.

James Vickers, a Pioneer of Placer County, June 16 near Iowa Hill was hauling stringers with a yoke of oxen. While adjusting the load at the rear of the wagon, the yoke suddenly started, causing a timber to slip and, striking Vickers on the head, instantly killed him.

S. B. Music, a resident of San Joaquin County, crossing the railroad track on horseback was struck by a train and instantly killed June 16.

Convicted Murderer Walks Away.

Napoleon Reed, a young man working on a thresher near Marysville, Yuba County, June 17 had his foot caught by the cylinder of the machine and his leg was so badly crushed below the knee it had to be amputated.

Henry Henry, a shoe merchant in San Francisco, June 22 riding a horse on Mission street, was thrown off and struck on his head, breaking his neck.

Sunday, June 5, about forty boarders who partook of dinner at the Bella Union Hotel in Los Angeles were poisoned. They were seriously ill with cramps, nausea and great distress for hours and several days, but none died. Two ex-employes of the hotel were arrested on suspicion and held to answer for committing the deed. They claimed the poison originated from the hotel chefs cooking food in copper vessels.

A man named Granville near Timber Cove, Sonoma County, killed a Mexican, took possession of his cabin, land and livestock, claiming he had bought the property and its owner had left the county. Subsequently, it becoming known that the Mexican had been killed, the officers went to arrest Granville. He made a fight, firing his rifle a number of times at the posse, and then attempted to escape into the brush. A bullet fired by one of the officers killed him.

"Tip" McLaughlin, a well-known sporting man of Sacramento, shot and killed a barkeeper named Charles Lundholm June 17. He claimed that Lundholm was the correspondent of a scurrilous sheet called "The Mazeppa," published in San Francisco, and had libeled him. Lundholm, dying, claimed he was innocent and was believed by so many citizens that, on his trial, McLaughlin was found guilty of murder in the first degree. The case became notable from the fact that McLaughlin, after the jury rendered its verdict and during a temporary confusion, walked out of the court-room, disappeared, and was never apprehended.

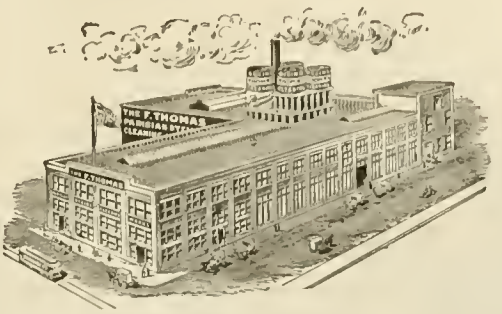

John Claffey, a boy 14 years old, was accused of killing a boy of his own age named Nicols near Sebastopol, Sonoma County, and burying the body. He denied the charge, but was making conflicting statements. It afterwards developed the boys had appropriated two horses from a rancher's barn; that Nicols was thrown off, and had his neck broken. Then Claffey, who was an orphan, frightened, buried the body and fled.

August Miller discovered the bones of a mastodon in a bank of earth on Dry Creek, about twelve miles from Knights Ferry, Stanislaus County. It was thirty feet below the surface. One tusk was fourteen feet long and eight inches in diameter. The other was missing. A tooth weighed sixty pounds, and the skull measured four feet between the eye sockets.

A Chinaman selling blackberries in Stockton entered the grounds of the insane asylum. Meeting several of the women inmates walking about, he asked them to buy his berries. One took two-bits' work, another four-bits' worth, while the last took all he had. They then left him, and under the impression they had gone to get the money to pay, he patiently waited some time for their return. Finally one of the women appeared and, upon the Chinaman making a request for his pay, she began to sing and dance around him; then grabbing John's queue, she compelled him to gyrate with her until an attendant stopped the movement. John quickly disappeared, declaring "No sabbee" in vehement tones.

A FRIEND'S TRIBUTE TO "JOE" MONTEVERDE, DECEASED.

Joseph G. Monteverde of Sutter Creek, a member of Amador Parlor, No. 17, N.S.G.W., died at Stockton, April 26, leaving to mourn his passing his mother, six brothers and sisters—among them Grand Trustee John J. Monteverde of Sacramento—and a host of friends.

Sutter Creek—How sad we all felt when the message came, "Joe" is dead"; while it was not unexpected, yet it was a shock. We had boped the change, away, might help him, but it was not to be. His young life just slipped away, and the places that once knew him shall know him no more.

"Joe" was born and reared in Sutter Creek, and attended the Sutter Creek grammar school until his graduation. For eight years he worked for his brother, John, as salesman. He came home, later on, to care for his father, whose failing health required his constant care. These two, father and son, became inseparable companions—where you would see one, there the other was sure to be. The father passed on, and from that date "Joe's" health began to fail.

No matter what was done for him, "Joe" did not respond, and day by day we saw him fading away. It was thought a change of climate and environment might do him good, but to no purpose, and now "Joe's" ashes rest beside those of the dear father he loved so well, and without whom life held no interest for him. It is not usual, these days, to see such devoted friendship and comradeship between the old and the young. Poor "Joe" would say, again and again, "Father is dead; my best friend is gone." "Joe" was a dutiful son, a kind and loving brother, a loyal Native Son and a true friend.

"Every year the Father calleth
Some loved ones to endless rest;
And our hearts, though filled with anguish,
Can but cry, 'He knoweth best'."

LASSEN LOSES STALWART CITIZEN.

Bieber—At his home here April 11, William Henry Woodmansee, one of the best known and most loved residents of Lassen County, passed away. He was born at Linden, San Joaquin County, May 28, 1865, and came to this county in 1875. He was the father of ten children, but two of whom—W. D. and C. M. Woodmansee, both members of Big Valley Parlor, No. 211, N.S.G.W., of this place—survive.

Deceased was one of the most valued members of Big Valley Parlor, No. 211, N.S.G.W., whose members and those of Mount Lassen, No. 215, N.D.G.W., attended the funeral services in large numbers. At the grave, the burial service of the Native Sons was read by the officers of Big Valley Parlor.

In Memoriam

CHARLES SOTO.

To the Officers and Members of Palo Alto Parlor, No. 216, N.S.G.W.—We, your committee on a resolution of respect to the memory of Brother Charles Soto, deceased, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, In the infinite wisdom of Almighty God, our beloved brother, Charles Soto, has passed on to his eternal rest; and whereas, Brother Soto was for many years a member of our Parlor, and a man whose genial face and sunny disposition earned him a host of friends both within the Parlor and without; and whereas, in the passing of Brother Soto the Parlor has lost one of its true and loyal members and the community a loyal and enterprising citizen; therefore be it

Resolved, That Palo Alto Parlor, No. 216, deeply and sincerely feels the passing of our beloved brother, and hereby extends its heartfelt sympathy to his family; and, be it further resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, and a copy be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

F. M. OSTRANDER,
WM. CLEMO,
E. S. HETTINGER,
Committee.

Palo Alto, May 17, 1920.

WILLIAM HENRY WOODMANSEE.

To the Officers and Members of Big Valley Parlor, No. 211, N.S.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late brother, William Henry Woodmansee, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, to remove from our midst our beloved brother; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in view of the loss we have sustained in the departure of our friend and brother, and of the heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him, Big Valley Parlor, No. 211, N.S.G.W., laments the passing of one who had promise of being an active member of the Order, a friend and companion who was dear to us all; the community also has lost an upright and honest citizen; resolved, that the heartfelt sympathy of the Parlor be extended to his sisters, brother and sons; that our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, and a copy thereof be published in the "Big Valley Gazette" and The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

Respectfully submitted in F. L. and C.,

BOARD OF GRAND OFFICERS TRANSACTS CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS.

San Francisco—The Board of Grand Officers met May 8, Grand President James F. Hoey presiding, and transacted the following business:

Made the San Francisco Savings and Loan Society, Crocker National Bank and First Federal Trust Company official depositaries for Grand Parlor funds.

Arthur E. Curtis (Precita 187) and Joseph B. Keenan (Niantic 105) both of San Francisco, were named Grand Parlor representatives on the board of directors of the San Francisco Hall Association, and Clifton E. Brooks (Piedmont 120) of Oakland was delegated to represent the Grand Parlor in the Home Industry League.

July 1, 1920, to March 31, 1921, was fixed as the time for the Trophy Banners contest. In Class 18, no Parlor having made a membership gain last year, the banner was awarded Big Valley 211 (Bieber) of Class 16, which gained twenty-five members.

The debt of the Native Sons Hall Association of St. Helena was ordered cancelled, the association tendering in full payment $600 cash and stock in the Native Sons Hall Association of San Francisco valued at $400, which offer was accepted.

Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung was directed to have made a photograph of grouped portraits of the grand officers, and to secure a set of new regalia for the elective grand officers.

On suggestion of Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger, a supply of blank report forms was ordered prepared; these reports will be filed with the State of the Order Committee by visiting grand officers and district deputies immediately after each visit to Subordinate Parlors. Visiting districts were assigned as follows:

District No. 1, Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger—Sacramento 3, Placerville 9, Sunset 26, Woodland 30, Elk Grove 41, Hydraulic 56, Quartz 58, Auburn 59, Georgetown 91, Downieville 92, Golden Nugget 94, Mountain 126, Donner 162, Corona 196, Rocklin 233, Sutter Fort 241.

Has Continuous Growth.

Ferndale—Ferndale 93 will initiate a class of ten candidates June 7. It has made most gratifying progress the past twelve months, this being largely due to its having taken the leadership in all civic affairs. It is "on the job" continually, for both the Order and the community, and its membership grows with the district of Humboldt County of which Ferndale is the center.

At the request of the Chamber of Commerce, and the merchants individually, Ferndale Parlor has taken charge of the Decoration Day celebration, a committee consisting of J. J. Nieubur, W. Slisman and Cyril Collins having the details well under way. The Parlor will bear all the expense, except for the band, that amount having been willingly subscribed by the merchants.

SIGN UP, FOR CALIFORNIA!

If you're loyal to California's best interests, sign the initiative petitions to get on the November ballot laws that will save her from the Jap menace. Don't wait to be asked; look up the petition circulators, and aid this worthy cause by voluntarily placing your name on the list of those who fear neither the Japs nor the pro-Japs.

Organize Baseball League.

San Francisco—California 1, Pacific 10, Rincon 72, South San Francisco 157, Twin Peaks 214 and Castro 232 have organized a baseball league, and opened their season May 16. Three games will be played each Sunday for fourteen weeks, at 10:15, 12:30, and 2:30.

Grand President's Activities.

Martinez—Grand President James F. Hoey has appointed John J. May (Twin Peaks 214), Henry J. Downie (El Dorado 52) and Willis H. Edwards (Fruitvale 252) as the Grand Parlor Committee on Laws of Subordinates.

To convene in San Francisco June 4, to form a membership campaign committee, he has requested each San Francisco Parlor to name three representatives.

Garden City 82 (San Jose) has petitioned the Grand President to merge with San Jose 22; because of letters of objection received, he is withholding approval, and has ordered the matter of consolidation re-submitted to both Parlors on more complete notice to the membership and to be voted on by secret ballot.

Doing His Bit to Eliminate Menace.

Suisun—Solano 39 keeps going right ahead, initiating two more candidates May 18; applications are coming along regularly. The Parlor has organized a baseball team composed of McGinnty, Roland, Lambert, Grothier, Burrell, Goosen, Bransford, Hemmingway, McCarron, Staples, Ferrari, Milo Long, Ed Long Jr., McDonald; Jasper Wing is the manager. The first game was played May 23 at Cement.

Secretary John J. McCarron is taking great interest in the anti-Jap campaign. May 21 he addressed an assemblage at Dixon, Solano County. Not only does he tell the people about the Jap menace, but he takes every occasion to address letters setting forth unchallenged facts before those who are defending the Asiatics in their invasion schemes.

Favors More Pay for Teachers.

San Francisco—Presidio 194 has adopted a resolution requesting the finance committee of the Board of Supervisors to set apart in the annual budget an amount sufficient to pay the teachers in the school department adequate living salaries.

Grand President a Visitor.

Palo Alto—Palo Alto 216 was host May 17 to Grand President James F. Hoey of Martinez. More than 125 members of the Parlor were in attendance, as well as many visiting members, among the latter being Past Grand President Charles W. Decker and Grand Trustee Charles A. Thompson. A class of candidates were initiated, and several applications are on file; so far as Palo Alto Parlor is concerned, Grand President Hoey's administration will break all records for membership increase. A banquet was served under the supervision of Brothers Farmin, Krause and Schilling.

Monsignor J. M. Gleason, a member of the Parlor, made a report on the marking of the historic Palo Alto tree. It is expected the celebration of the white man's first acquaintance with this tree, more than a century and a half ago, will occur in November, when an appropriate tablet will be placed. Palo Alto's baseball team is looking for more victims, although it has several dates ahead; Manager Moore is very proud of the "boys," who have won all the fourteen games already played. The sudden death of Charles B. Soto cast a gloom over the members; this was the fifth death in the Parlor's seventeen years of existence.

In New Home.

San Francisco—Balboa 234 opened its new home in Masonic Hall, First avenue and Clement street, with a most successful entertainment and banquet May 13. Supervisor William S. Scott was chairman of the evening. The meeting night of the Parlor has been changed to Thursday. A committee has been named, with Charles Dechent chairman, to arrange a grand invitational affair for June 5.

Pebble Beach Adds Thirty-five.

Pescadero—This San Mateo County community was the mecca, on Sunday, May 16, toward which the Native Sons of San Mateo County bent their steps, for it was here they had extended to them the hand of hospitality by Pebble Beach 230 and Ano Nuevo 180, N.D.G.W. The occasion was a class initiation by Pebble Beach Parlor. The ceremony was staged at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, as many of the candidates, owing to their agricultural pursuits, would have found it very inconvenient to attend in the evening at this season of the year. Preceding the initiation, the visitors, local Parlor members and candidates were the guests of Ano Nuevo Parlor at a sumptuous chicken dinner. The tables were laden with everything that goes to make up a good old-fashioned country spread. It was remarked by bystanders that Grand Secretary Fred Jung, on this occasion, displayed a great weakness for chickens.

After the festivities a splendid class of thirty-five young men were initiated, the ritualistic work being performed by a selected team from Redwood 66 clad in white duck trousers and blue coats. At the conclusion of the initiation ceremonies the following addressed the meeting: Brother Hevey on behalf of the novitiates; Grand Secretary Fred H.

Is Appreciative.

San Diego—Fully appreciating the support given by the people of this city generally in making the Forty-third Grand Parlor the success that it surely was, San Diego 108 issued this letter of thanks:

"To the General Public: It is my pleasure to announce that at the last regular meeting of San Diego Parlor, No. 108, N.S.G.W., the secretary was, by a unanimous vote of the Parlor, instructed to convey to the general public the thanks and appreciation of the Parlor for the kind and generous support, both moral and otherwise, given us to help make the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons the success that it was.

"The wonderful success of this meeting was not only due to the efforts of the local Native Sons, but also in no small measure to the business men, hotel men, newspaper men of the city, and, in fact, to the public as a whole. It was indeed a credit to the city, as well as to all Native Sons.

"A lasting impression of San Diego's liberal hospitality was made on the minds of the visiting delegates. In fact, many were so taken with San Diego and its environs that they emphatically stated that they were going home to clean up their affairs and return to San Diego to make it their permanent home. Such was the spirit with which many of the delegates and their friends left our fair city.

"Again thanking every person, business and organization who helped us 'put over' this great event, to the credit of San Diego and the Native Sons, I am,

"Yours very truly,
"COTTARDO C. GHIO, Secretary."

Past Presidents in Ritual Contest.

Oakland—East Bay Counties Assembly, No. 3, Past Presidents Association, held its regular monthly meeting in Native Sons Hall May 3, Governor Frank C. Merritt presiding. The Assembly's ritual team accepted a challenge from the past presidents' team of Berkeley 210 and exemplified the ritual at that Parlor May 18, initiating a class of candidates. June 3 the Berkeley Parlor team will appear at Piedmont 120 (Oakland). Judges of the contest will be selected by J. F. Stanley, president San Francisco Assembly, No. 1, P.P.A.

Memorial Tablet for P.G.P. Proposed.

San Francisco—Mission 38 is the prime mover in a most commendable undertaking, which other local Parlors will be asked to assist in—the placing of a memorial tablet in honor of the late Past Grand President Charles M. Belshaw in Native Sons Building, which he was instrumental in erecting. The Parlor has named a committee consisting of Dan Q. Troy, Louis Schmitt, Herbert Delarosa, Jack Henney and M. M. London to carry out the project.

Big Crowd at Anniversary Banquet.

Sacramento—Sutter Fort 241 celebrated with a banquet May 5 the twelfth anniversary of its institution. There was an immense attendance, among the number being many visitors from near-by Parlors. A roll-call of every member who has joined the Parlor since its institution was a featnre, and eighty percent of them were present to answer.

Speakers of the evening included Ed Dalton, Grand Trustee John J. Monteverde, E. D. Skeels, Ed Head, Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn. The Capital City quartet rendered vocal selections and an orchestra jazz numbers throughout the evening. The committee in charge was A. W. Katzenstein, C. S. Shaw, T. S. Lages.

Want an Auto?

Mountain View—Mountain View 215 is pushing right ahead, gaining new members at nearly every meeting and becoming the leader in civic affairs. May 14 a class of candidates was initiated, among the many visitors being Grand Trustee Charles A. Thompson and delegations from Santa Clara 100 and Palo Alto 216. At the close of the meeting, members of El Monte 205, N.D.G.W., joined the crowd in the banquet-room, where coffee and one cream-puff were served; additional puffs were sold at five cents per, and it was announced that the one who consumed the most would be awarded a prize. And the prize was—six cream-puffs.

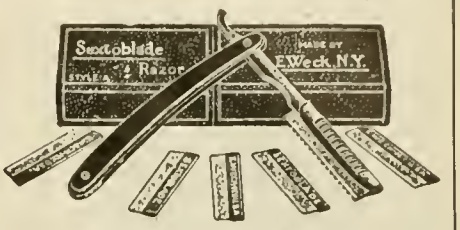

Mountain View Parlor is now arranging for a big Independence Day celebration for July 3. Many entertainment attractions have been provided for, and there will be a big display of fireworks. A feature of the celebration will be the giving away of a fully-equipped auto. That all Native Sons may have an opportunity to receive the gift, tickets are to be sent to all Subordinate Parlors, to bo disposed of at one dollar each.

Surprised the "Girls."

Oakland—Athens 195 gavo a banquet May 4 in honor of several newly-initiated members. On the 11th the Parlor's band surprised the members of Aloha 106, N.D.G.W., by installing themselves in the banquet-room, whoro the "girls" betook themselves after their meeting. While the Alohans were enjoying a repast, at which the Athens "boys" served as waiters, the band played jazz music. The surprise was much appreciated by the "girls."

May 25, Athens and Aloha gave a joint whist party at Native Sons Hall. Valuable prizes were awarded, and the affair was a great success. The joint arrangements committee consisted of Miss Maude Mitchell, Mrs. Minnie Martin, Mrs. Nettie Wyman, Gerald Barnett, Chester Guild, Clarence Hearn.

Proposes Home-Coming Celebration.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead 110 has started a movement for a big home-coming celebration here early this fall. Tom Shay, a member, is the originator of the idea, and all civic and fraternal bodies will be requested to get behind the celebration. It is planned to invite all former residents of San Bernardino Valley to spend a week in the city and renew old acquaintances. During the week an entertainment program will be presented.

Retires Service Flag.

San Francisco—May 8 Niantic 105 retired its service flag, and was presented with a bronze roll-of-honor containing the names of its forty members who served in the war. A banquet followed the ceremony, the forty service men being guests of honor. Past Grand Presideut Lewis F. Byington was the toastmaster.

Picnic Under Giant Redwoods.

Eureka—Hundreds of people thronged Sequoia Park May 1 to particiipate in the annual May Day celebration of Humboldt 14. It was an all-day affair, and all kinds of athletic sports, as well as dancing, were provided. In the course of a program, Irwin T. Quinn of the American Legion delivered an oration, vocal selections were rendered by Walter Thorsen and Miss Ida M. Davis, and a large number of school children appeared in patriotic choruses. The day was an ideal one, and the merrymakers had a memorable outing under the big redwoods.

Tells of Early History.

Oakland—At the meeting of Fruitvale 252 April 3 Historiographer Frank C. Merritt spoke on the early history of the eastern portion of Oakland, known as Brooklyn Township. This was the first of a series of lectures Merritt plans to give before the several Subordinate Parlors.

Sacramento Delegation Banqueted.

Saeramento—Sacramento County delegates to the San Diego Grand Parlor were guests of Mrs. John J. Monteverde May 3 at a sumptuous banquet given at a local hotel in honor of her husband, John J. Monteverde (Sunset 26), who received the highest vote for Grand Trustee. After the menu had been disposed of, toasts were responded to and experiences at many Grand Parlors were related by Ed. E. Reese, W. F. Brand, C. F. Gannon, George L. Popert, W. E. Holmes, Grand Trustee John J. Monteverde, J. W. Bates, Marco S. Zarick, H. M. Ryan, C. A. Ryan, E. H. Kraus, C. P. McLaughlin, R. C. Cothrin, T. W. McAuliffe, Dr. C. B. McKee, J. A. Hoerner, C. S. Shaw, P. K. Bradford, R. W. Ring, R. E. W. Hooper, C. D. Higgins, F. W. Johns. Musical numbers were contributed by Clay Chipman and Dan Lewis.

After voting the good wife of the chairman of the Board of Grand Trustees a most hospitable hostess, the guests adjourned to Native Sons Hall to attend the meeting of Sunset 26. There, the oratory continued its uninterrupted flow until midnight.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. V. Rourke (Mission 38) of San Francisco has been in Los Angeles the past month on business.

Harry Hammond (Byron 170) of Byron, editor "Byron Times," has been on a visit to Portland, Oregon.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

IT SEEMS TO BE DEFINITELY SETTLED BY now, that the woman of fashion will wear rather straight-line frocks for summer, with here and there an exception to the rule expressed in the wide-hip effects; straight, but not scant, and the length of line gracefully interrupted by flounces, bandings, draperies and the like.

When real summery fabrics are employed, the prospects are that a real lingerie summer will develop as the weeks go by. Not in many years have there been so many exquisite frocks of sheer cotton and linen stuffs; their very advance in price seems to have been beneficial in establishing their prestige.

The little dresses of cotton voile, of batiste, of handkerchief linen, and of organdie, are the simplest sort of affairs. But the truth is, that their simplicity is brought about by the vast amount of handwork bestowed on them from top to bottom—embroideries, laces, and all sorts of beading.

It is astonishing the part that ribbons play in the new dresses, and there is no special weave, color, or width that is specially marked for popular favor. The velvet ribbons, in brilliant colors, are well liked for lingerie dresses, as well as for the printed georgettes and chiffons.

Frequently, a frock is seen whose girdle is of such contrast to the fabric as to inspire distaste and adverse criticism at first glance. For example, one finds grass-green on a frock of amber chiffon, the green girdle topped by Egyptian blue which, in turn, may show a facing of gold. It is all so deftly and cunningly done that, for the sake of the novelty, one is willing to overlook the rather startling results.

The most interesting detail is the arrangement of the sash or girdle. As a matter of fact, its uses are legion—the figure may be lengthened or shortened. It is in the width of the sash that the possibilities lie at present; this is because of the ease with which it may be looped into pannier semblance. Roman stripes are well liked for the sash fabric of little trotteurs of serge, of pongee, of taffeta and even of linen. Others are boldly striped, in flowered designs, in rather gaudy brocades, and even in the smart cotton ribbon.

Then there are the hats, with their sash trimmings. Not a few of them indicate the broad ribbon done in embroideries, or in raffia work. The decoration is placed across the front and the fringed end falls slightly over the brim of the hat, a little to one side of the back. Of course, the sashed hat is more or less of an informal affair, but according to its texture, its color, and its trimming one must judge of such things for herself, to a large degree.

There is a distinct liking for ruches, and they lend themselves very gracefully to ribbon uses. The cost of the ribbon—for it takes quantities to make ruches—may be more than balanced by the time saved in hemming and fringing material by the yard, for the same purpose. Hats with ruched bands are to be popular. There are parasols, too, that have a ruche-laden edge, which reminds one that there are sunshades made entirely of ribbon, or of ribbon with chiffon, taffeta or lace. They are more or less dressy, and, therefore, for general use.

The better selection of a parasol, however, would be a plain taffeta with a club handle. Then there are the plain colored ones, stamped with such design as may correspond to the trimmed gown or hat, and often embroidered in soft wool. Beautiful studies I have seen, in fawn and copen blue, but still more handsome are those in the contrasting shades. One of the daintiest gave the impression of a shower of roses on a silver pool; the sunshade was a silver grey, while a large wreath of pink wild roses crowned the top, one or two drooping from the wreath and a couple falling, disclosing petals in tints from shell pink to vivid rose.

Silk gloves seem to have a place in the summer fashions, and this season they are really very pretty and dainty. They have colored stitchings and lining about the wrist to match the gown. The creams and whites are always stylish; these are stitched in feather lines of black or grey on the back and around the wrists, giving a very dainty and delicate appearance.

Afternoon frocks for misses have a dash to them quite fascinating, and such variety of style! Ruffles and frills are so youthful, and add attraction and crispness to the plainest garment.

Flowers, flowers, are everywhere—on dresses, hats, lingerie, belts, and are even used for evening headdress, while ribbons in double tones are dotted with rows of tiny rosebuds or daisies. Hats are radiant with them, the vivid blossoms being arranged flat against the brim or crown. This style is especially good on the small, close-fitting hat. The larger hats, of course, are always pictures, with wreaths and garlands.

One may use everything this year to much advantage to both wearer and purse. Think of what can be done with lovely old feathers and marabou collars. Ostrich feather boas can be made, for instance, with sprays of paradise on each end, as well as feather fringe for gowns, and edgings for hats; in fact, feathers can be used wherever they blend and lend charm.

Lace lends itself very gracefully to flounce expression. It is not surprising to find many of the dresses with two or three flounces in tier effect topped by a slightly lengthened bodice of taffeta, sometimes belted, and often merely drawn in little wrinkles about the waist and finished with perky bows of the taffeta or of narrow velvet ribbon.

Quite as important as the extended length of bodice, is the varied length of the sleeves. Young girls are wearing them very short, and we have them full length for afternoon frocks.

I am glad to note that the sports blouses are truly sporty this season, and that one can golf and play tennis and the various sports in comfort and still look smart without being overdressed. Satins, silk broadcloths, radium silks, in fact, very elaborate materials are being used, but so sensibly made as to be as neat and appropriate really as the linens, piques and dimities.

The ripple sweaters will be worn again this year; some are alike and some are different. The filet sweater is also with us, in its second year, more numerous than last year. Perhaps we see more changes in this than in the ripple styles. Last year filet was more or less of the same pattern; this year there is no limit to its infinite variety. One called a sensible short model is made of two-fold shetland floss of one's favorite color. Its sensible portion must be the wide but plain crochet girdle, but so very sleeveless and neckless as to almost reduce itself to a vest.

Sweater dresses promise to be much more numerous than last year, when only a few were seen. They are fashioned of simple, plain, straight knitted skirts, and the sweaters are either of the slip-on or coat order. Bands of contrasting angora or of teezle wool are frequently seen. Collars of white, in which there are colored bands matching the sweater wool, are also quite smart, and gay patterned borders for scarf ends are more numerous.

As to fringe, this year it is to be hoped that it will not prove so "taking" as to take away its own charm of novelty, for having begun to fringe, the 1920 sweater does not seem to know where to stop. Its range is from half an inch to knee length at present. The latter style was seen on a superbly handsome silk model in the new tangerine.

Shrimp color is one of the new tones. It is lovely in a sash for the voile dresses as well as for those of batiste or of organdie. The possibilities are that there will be a lot of shrimp pink used for hats and for certain accessories. It is a charming color for the entire dress as well as in the use of bows, belts and loops in skirt decorations.

A dress of black taffeta, with loose two-inch plaits topped by a jaunty smock, embroidered, was turned into something quite unusual by a great bow of Chinese red ribbon tied into two standing loops and two short ends.

The University of California announces a summer session will be held at the branch university here from June 21 to July 31. Registration will commence June 19. Complete information may he had at room 417, Union League building. In connection with the summer session, the California High School Teachers' Association will be in session June 25.

During each of the thirty schooldays of the six weeks' session, 100 classes will he in session. Work will be conducted from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., and complete courses will be given in agriculture, chemistry, commercial practice, criminology, economics, education, English, French, geography, graphic art, history, journalism, Latin, mathematics, music, philosophy, physics, political science, public health, public speaking, and Spanish. Excursions to the territory neighboring Los Angeles will he part of the recreational program to be offered.

Native Daughters in County Meet.

A joint meeting of the three Los Angeles County Parlors of Native Daughters—La Esperanza 24 (Los Angeles), Los Angeles 124, Long Beach 154—was held May 8 in Ramona Hall, the guests of honor being Mrs. Eliza P. Donner-Houghton of the Donner Party, and her daughter, Miss Honghton. Fifty sat down at the tahles, which were prettily decorated with Cecil Brunner roses and ferns; the place-cards, of hand-painted California poppies, were the work of Miss Dehuca, house-guest of Miss Estelle Camphell (La Esperanza 24).

In the main hall, following the luncheon, a program was presented. D.D.G.P. Kate McFadyen presided, and delivered the welcome address. The Jap situation was explained hy Walter D. Gilman (Los Augeles 45, N.S.G.W.), secretary Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association, and Dr. William Wenzlick, president of the Los Angeles Pioneer Society, urged closer co-operation on the part of the Native Daughters and Native Sons with the Pioneers. Miss Marie McFadyen (Long Beach 154), home from the University of California for the summer vacation, gave a reading.

Mrs. Eliza P. Donner-Houghton gave a most interesting talk, relating some of her experiences while crossing the plains in 1846 and also recounting early California history of which she has personal knowledge. Mrs. Annie L. Adair (Los Angeles 124) told of the work being carried on in hehalf of the homeless children. A solo dance was given hy Miss Dehuca, a reading hy Miss Wenzlick, and a piano solo by Miss Pazola. The afternoon was greatly enjoyed, and the county meeting idea heartily endorsed.

SIGN UP, FOR CALIFORNIA!

If you're loyal to California's best interests, sign the initiative petitions to get on the November ballot laws that will save her from the Jap menace. Don't wait to be asked; look up the petition circulators, and aid this worthy cause hy voluntarily placing your name on the list of those who fear neither the Japs nor the pro-Japs.

Fishing Party; Not Party of Fish.

Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W., out for a 100 percent membership increase this year, made a good start May 20, when twelve candidates were initiated. Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger briefly, hut forcibly, impressed upon the initiates the Order's purposes, and "Chef" T. W. Golding put out a fine spread.

June 5 and 6 are the dates selected for the Parlor's first of a series of summer outings; it will take place at San Onofre, a few miles beyond San Juan Capistrano, the mission town. Three prizes will attract the anglers: for the most fish, for the largest fish, and for the smallest fish. The Parlor's Good of the Order Committee will furnish the foodstuffs for the occasion. This is going to be "some" party, those in charge promise; and they say fishing is not the only attraction on the bill of amusements —the top-liner heing kept secret. All Native Sons are invited; autos will leave Native Sons Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street, at 1 p. m., Saturday, June 5.

Los Angeles Parlor, for the benefit of its members, is planning to huild a summer cottage at one of the heaches, and has under consideration a clubroom, with all necessary paraphernalia.

HIBERNIAN BANK MERGER.

The merger of the Hibernian Savings Bank and the Home Savings Bank has been completed, and on and after June 1 the combined banks will be known as the "Home and Hibernian Bank." The new bank will have over $30,000,000 resources. It will also have sixteen locations, covering all sides of the city, as well as downtown at Second, Fourth and Eighth streets.

All business will be transacted in the usual way at the usual place and all old officers will be found at their customary locations. Largely increased capital will make the new bank a power in the commercial development of Los Angeles. Announcement of policy will be made by the bank after completion of the final details of the merger.

200 Class for Anniversary Celebration.

The membership of Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., are very active in preparations for the celebration of the Parlor's thirty-third anniversary. The celebration this year has taken the form of a membership campaign. It is proposed to initiate two hundred candidates on Ramona's birthday; this being the most fitting observance of the occasion. It is gratifying that the active campaigners are the young members who have had a taste of the club-room features installed some time ago. They have ambitions for something more pretentious, and know that such ambition can be realized only by a substantial increase in membership.

It is planned to have fitting ceremonials commemorative of the anniversary. Grand President James F. Hoey will be present to personally welcome the initiates into the Order and to commend them to active participation in its work. Response to the welcoming address will be given by some orator among the newcomers; and two or three have been lined up. The eleventh day of June, 1920, will be the banner day in the life of Ramona Parlor.

Every Friday night, to further the activities of the teams at work, some sort of entertainment is presented. Bill Coffey, an old war-horse of old Army and Navy Parlor (San Francisco), who is starting anew in the Order's work, has charge of the "good of the order," and with the assistance of his "kid" is making good. There is lots of life, pep and go-get-'em. The youngones of Ramona challenge the Order!

Corona With the Schoolma'ms.

Corona 196, N.S.G.W., May 24 adopted a resolution favoring the payment of adequate salaries to schoolteachers, and, at the request of the San Francisco Teachers' Association, of which Eliza D. Keith, Past Grand President, N.D.G.W., is chairman, passed a resolution requesting that in the employment of schoolteachers preference be given those educated in California.

The Parlor has raised its initiation fee to ten dollars. Applications are coming in right along, and Corona is out to double its membership before the Stockton Grand Parlor.

To Celebrate State's Birthday.

Committees have been named by the three Parlors of Native Sons—Los Angeles 45, Ramona 109, Corona 196—and the two Parlors of Native Daughters—La Esperanza 24, Los Angeles 124—to meet early this month (June) to arrange for the proper observance of Admission Day, September 9.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. M. Sanders (Estudillo 223, N.S.G.W.) has removed here to make his home.

A. M. Corbett (Berkeley 210, N.S.G.W.) of Berkeley is in the city, and may reside here permanently.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS SAN JOSE
READY TO WELCOME AND ENTERTAIN GRAND PARLOR VISITORS

ATIVE DAUGHTERS OF SAN JOSE, represented within the membership of San Jose Parlor, No. 81, and Vendome Parlor, No. 100, devoted some months working on an entertainment program for the Thirty-fourth Grand Parlor, which meets in that city the week of June 7. They have perfected their plans, and are ready to receive their hundreds of guests, who will be conveyed by autos, upon arrival, to their respective quarters. The program is an attractive one; all of the events, except the Tuesday outing, are to be held at the Vendome hotel, the headquarters of the Grand Parlor. This will he the second time the Grand Parlor has met in San Jose, the Nineteenth Session being held there in 1905.

Not only has the entertainment of the visitors heen looked after, but their comfort as well. All Subordinate Parlors have been communicated with, and if any Parlor's representatives are not properly cared for while in San Jose it will be solely hecause the committee's communication was ignored. Past Grand President Mamie Pierce-Carmichael is chairman of the Native Daughters' joint committee.

The program will start the evening of June 7 with a reception, in charge of Grand Trustee Mary Frances Mitchell. Dr. W. C. Bailey will, in a welcoming address, present the key of San Jose to Grand President Mary E. Bell, and she will respond for the Native Daughters. A program of exceptional merit, contributed to by the best talent in Santa Clara County, will be presented. Not only will the memhers of the Grand Parlor be entertained, but the reception will prove to them that San Jose and its citizens are proud to welcome the Native Daughters from all parts of California.

MAMIE PIERCE-CARMICHAEL, P.G.P., Chairman General Committee.

Friday, the last day of the session, will, also, be a busy business one. The newly-elected grand officers will be installed at night, following which the Thirty-fourth Grand Parlor will be closed.

While nothing is listed in the calendar of events for Saturday, it will be an important day, for most of the visitors will remain after the Grand Parlor's

CHAIRMEN OF THE VARIOUS SUB-COMMITTEES IN CHARGE OF DETAILS.

Tuesday afternoon, the three local Parlors of Native Sons—San Jose 22, Garden City 82, Observatory 177—will have charge of the entertainment, the details of which are being arranged by a joint committee composed of A. B. Langford (chairman), Past Grand President Thomas Monahan, Jos. Lawrence, J. G. Soares, H. W. McComas, W. A. Katen, J. E. Payne, H. I. Lee, T. R. Dougherty. The visitors will be taken on an auto trip, which will terminate at Alum Rock Park, where, in the evening, supper will be served, to be followed by an informal dance.

Wednesday afternoon will be left to the visitors to do with as they desire—visit the many places of interest in and about San Jose, shop, go to the theater, etc. At night, the grand ball will be held. Grand President Mary E. Bell and Judge Charles A. Thompson, Grand Trustee, N.S.G.W., will lead the grand march. Visiting Natives are assured there will be no dearth of males of the specie at this grand ball, for there has been a heavy demand from all the Native Son Parlors of Santa Clara County—Santa Clara 100, Mountain View 215 and Palo Alto 216, in addition to the three in San Jose—for invitations.

Thursday will be a busy day for the Grand Parlor members, that being the day for the election of grand officers. In the evening the ritual will be exemplified by a corps of officers selected from San Jose and Vendome Parlors.

THE WORKERS

All details of arrangement for the comfort and entertainment of the attendants at the Grand Parlor have been looked after by a joint committee of the local Parlors—San Jose and Vendome—with Past Grand President Mamie Pierce-Carmichael as general chairman. Mrs. Carmichael, to get results, named the chairman of each sub-committee and delegated to her the privilege of choosing her own committeewomen. The several committees are composed of:

Reception—Grand Trustee Mary Frances Mitchell (chairman), Maude Jury, Beldon Gallagher, Aura Lea Boomer, Josie Barboni, Bessie Tripp McCrone, Helen Trengrove, Amelia Hartman.

Finance—Matilda Moak (chairman), Sara Veit, Mabel Southeimer, Lotta Koppel, Aura Lea Boomer, Laura Gilleran, Frances Plamondon.

Grand Ball—Beldon Gallagher (chairman), Sadie Howell, Jean Belloli, Alcidene Buswell, Lucy Fisher.

Entertainment—Mary Myers (chairman), Marjorie Ganong, Susie S. Bickford, Aura Lea Boomer, Beldon Gallagher.

Accommodations—Anna Farnsworth (chairman), Helen Trengrove, Adelaide Morton, Elizabeth Gehrens, Eva Locicero, Mabel Southeimer.

was very noticeable, but since that time San José has established herself as the center of the enormous fruit business of the Santa Clara Valley, and she ranks today as one of the largest cities of California.

The county seat is not, however, the only business center of the valley. Santa Clara has grown to be not only the seat of one of the finest Catholic colleges in the country, but is also a thriving town of affairs. Palo Alto shares the same kind of existence; its main attraction is the Leland Stanford, Junior, University, opened in 1891, but it has other interests as well. Mountain View is another center, particularly appealing because of its beautiful location, but also well known for its floriculture, its deciduous fruits, and its fine vegetables.

Besides these focusing points of business and educational interest, there are many other notable features in Santa Clara County. Her mines of New Almaden have an historical as well as a commercial value, and Mount Hamilton, with its Lick Astronomical Observatory, is a mecca for all tourists. In short, so many are the attractions of this part of the country that Santa Clara may be considered as particularly blessed among the counties of California.

FEDERATION WOMEN'S CLUBS AGAINST JAPS

Sacramento—One of the most stirring endorsements of the anti-Japanese movement in California was that given last month by the California Federation of Women's Clubs, in session here, which passed a resolution calling for "early enactment of such legislation as will prevent further Japanese colonization of lands, either by ownership or leasehold interest and further domination of industry."

More than three hundred women were in attendance at the convention, and the resolution was passed by an overwhelming majority. Women from the northern, southern, eastern and western parts of the state, who were delegates at the convention, voted and spoke for the resolution. AMONG THE FEW WHO OPPOSED THE RESOLUTION WAS MRS. SUE REYNOLDS OF LOS ANGELES, SISTER OF THE GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA. Mrs. Bradford Woodbridge of Roseville, Placer County—a Jap-infested county—introduced the resolution and was its successful champion.

It was clearly pointed out by several of the proponents of the resolution that the situation to be remedied is purely of state concern. The legislation being sought will merely plug up the holes in the present Anti-Alien Land Law. While the resolution passed by the women did not specifically mention the initiative measure that is to be circulated to put anti-Japanese measures on the November ballot, it "urged and recommended to the people," as well as the Governor and the Legislature, the early enactment of needed legislation, which served the same purpose.

DIGEST THIS!

Under the caption, "Outrageously Illegal," the "Sacramento Daily News," a Jap paper, commented May 15 on the action of the California Federation of Women's Clubs. The article, translated for the "Sacramento Bee," said:

"We have great respect for the honorable white women of Southern California, who are far ahead of those in the Northern part in common sense. In the recent meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs in this city, the women who opposed the outrageously illegal anti-Japanese proposals were chiefly honorable women of Southern California."

The "outrageously illegal" cry is simply more Jap camouflage. As for the "honorable women of Southern California," the discussion and vote at Sacramento show that EFFECTIVE MISSIONARY WORK IN BEHALF OF THE JAPS WAS CARRIED ON BY MRS. E. C. BELLOWS, WIFE OF THE STATE CORPORATION COMMISSIONER, AN APPOINTEE OF THE GOVERNOR, AND THE OFFICIAL WHO HAS THE POWER TO STOP THE JAPS' GRABBING OF CALIFORNIA'S LAND THROUGH "FAKE" CORPORATIONS. MRS. BELLOWS, FOR SOME TIME PREVIOUS TO THE WOMEN'S FEDERATION MEETING, VISITED CLUBS IN THE SOUTHERN PART OF THE STATE, AND DELIVERED ADDRESSES IN BEHALF OF THE JAPS.—Editor.

1. Slight subluxations at this point may cause so-called headaches, eye diseases, deafness, epilepsy, vertigo, insomnia, wry neck, facial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, etc.

2. A slight subluxation of a vertebra in this part of the spine may be the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in the shoulders and arms, goiter, nervous prostration, la grippe, dizziness, bleeding from nose, disorder of gums, catarrh, etc.

3. The arrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein subluxations may cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism of the arms and shoulders, hay fever, writers' cramp, etc.

4. A vertebral subluxation at this point may cause so-called nervousness, heart disease, asthma, pneumonia, tuberculosis, difficult breathing, other lung troubles, etc.

5. Stomach and liver troubles, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy and a score of other troubles, so-called, may be caused by subluxations in this part of the spine, sometimes so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained Chiropractor.

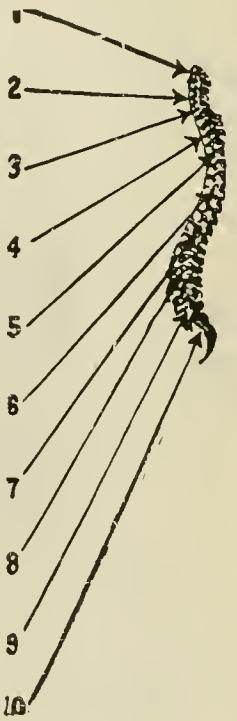

6. Here may be the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccoughs, worms, etc.

7. Bright's disease, diabetes, floating kidney, skin diseases, boils, eruptions and other diseases, so-called, may be caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal opening at this point.

8. Regulations of such troubles as so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lumbago, etc., follow Chiropractic adjustments at this point.

9. Why have so-called constipation, rectal troubles, sciatica, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause?

10. A slight slippage of one or both innominate bones will likewise produce so-called sciatica, together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

When I speak of vertebra being subluxated or displaced I refer to its being separated more or less from the one above or below.

Ill health may continue in varying degree until the nerve pressure is adjusted away. I use only my hands to make such adjustments, which I do in a manner that is no part of the teaching or practice of any other health form of an earlier origin than Chiropractic.

The Chiropractic adjustment, by restoring normal action to these nerves, supplies new life force to the weakened organs of the body. You owe it to yourself and family to investigate this wonderful science.

HOTEL VENDOME

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA

The Hotel Vendome, thoroughly up-to-date, located in a beautiful park of twelve acres within a few blocks of the center of the City of San Jose, offers the advantages of both city and country life. The atmosphere is a combination of mountain and sea air, well mixed because of unusual relative location of ocean, mountains, bay and valley.

A Hotel of High Standard, But Reasonable In Its Charges

An hour's trip from San Francisco by motor car through the mountain-bordered sea of blossoms that is known as Sauta Clara Valley brings one to California's famous winter resort, the Hotel Vendome of San Jose, which, set in a garden park of twelve acres, attracts travelers by train and automobile from all parts of the world to enjoy a sojourn amid the pleasantest and most typical phases of California life.

This homelike hotel is particularly popular with motor tourists, not only because of the distinctively delightful fare that is served, but for the refreshing spirit of recreation that enlivens their visit and the opportunities for amusement that abound. Guests have golf privileges; a buge swimming pool invites relaxation; the best of music is furnished for the dancing that is a notable feature of the hotel—in short, entertainment is realized to the nth degree.

Short trips take one to the Lick Observatory on the summit of Mount Hamilton; California Redwood Park; Stanford University; the ancient Almaden quicksilver mines, with eighty miles of tunnels; and innumerable other attractions. No tourist can afford to miss the enjoyment of a stay at tbe Vendome.

Although all service features of the Vendome are up to the last minute of scientific ingenuity, the management follows a successful policy of very moderate rates.

THE AMERICAN PLAN, ONLY

THIRTY-FOURTH GRAND PARLOR, N. D. G. W.

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

TUESDAY, JUNE 8, AT 9:30 A. M., the Grand Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, will assemble in Thirty-fourth Annual Session at San Jose. Four days will be taken up with consideration of the affairs of the Order. Meetings will be held at Hotel Vendome. Grand President Mary E. Bell will preside.

The Order has made noteworthy progress since the Grand Parlor at Berkeley last year, particularly as regards increase in membership. Realizing that in numbers there is strength, and the Order requiring more strength to insure the complete success of its various and important undertakings, Grand President Bell offered a cash prize of fifty dollars to the Subordinate Parlor making the largest percentage gain in membership during her term of office; this acted as a sort of inspiration to the members to spread the gospel of Native Daughterism, and the result has been the largest membership gain in the Order's history.

What Parlor will be awarded the prize-money is a secret that will be revealed by the Grand President at San Jose. Practically every Parlor has gained in membership, however, and that's what counts. There is a rumor that Joaquin Parlor, No. 5 (Stockton), with 293 members, has taken the lead in membership, a position long held by Parlor No. 7, also of the San Joaquin County capital, in the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

Speaking of membership, it should be called to mind that if all eligibles were made acquainted with the foundation-principles and real purposes of the Order of Native Daughters, its membership would grow by the thousands, for it is the one worth-while fraternal organization for native daughters of California. The facts should be heralded throughout the state by every Native Daughter proud of her affiliation, for she knows the value of the Order to her native state. One feature that should be particularly impressed upon eligibles is that when they affiliate with the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West they have become members of the one woman's fraternal organizations which limits membership to American-born white females.

Immediately following the formal opening of the Grand Parlor, Grand President Bell will present her report, which will set forth her official acts and the condition of the Order, as well as contain recommendations for the future. This will be followed by reports of other grand officers, also of the several Grand Parlor committees having the various undertakings of the Order in charge.

Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty's report will detail the numerous transactions of her office. It will show, among other things, that during the closing Grand Parlor year four Subordinate Parlors—Buena Ventura 95 (Ventura), Tejon 136 (Bakersfield), San Francisco 174 (by consolidation with Castro 178 of San Francisco) and Artemisia 200 (Susanville)—have surrendered their charters, and that two splendid Parlors—Mount Lassen 215 (Bieber) and Victory 216 (Courtland)—have been organized and granted charters. Parlors are in process of formation in other places, too.

The Jap question is bound to come before the Grand Parlor, and there is every reason to believe that the action already taken by Subordinate Parlors will be approved and commended. The Native Daughters are familiar with the inherent principles of these not-wanted foreigners, and if we mistake not the Order will pledge its moral support to the movement which has solely for its purpose—the Governor of California and white and yellow Jap propagandists to the contrary notwithstanding—the putting of an effective stop to the Japs' scheme to colonize California with their kind through "fake" corporations and guardianship proceedings which superior judges have held to be purposely designed to nullify the intent of the Alien Land Law of this state.

GRAND PARLOR OFFICE CANDIDATES.

Selection of Grand Parlor officers, always of great interest, will, because of the number of candidates for some of the offices, liven up the San Jose Session. The Grizzly Bear makes the prediction that Bertha A. Briggs (Copa de Oro 105) of Hollister, now Grand Vice-president, will, unopposed, succeed Mary E. Bell (Buena Vista 68) of San Francisco as Grand President. The latter, automatically, will become the Past Grand President. The following offices, too, so far as any information or rumor has been received, will have but one seeker:

Grand Vice-president—Dr. Victory A. Derrick (Aloha 106) of Oakland, now Grand Marshal.

Grand Secretary—Alice H. Dougherty (Angelita 32) of Livermore, incumbent.

Grand Treasurer—Susie K. Christ (Yosemite 83) of San Francisco, incumbent.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Pearl Lamb (El Pescadero 82) of Tracy, now Grand Outside Sentinel.

From here on, the no-opposition ceases, and it is not unlikely that, before election-day, other offices will take their place in the opposition class; it is also probable that other aspirants will join those now in the running. Here's the latest authentic information The Grizzly Bear has received:

Grand Marshal—Mary E. Donnelly (Camellia 41) of Anderson, Mattie M. Stein (Ivy 88) of Lodi, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron (San Diego 208) of San Diego, all now members of the Board of Grand Trustees.

Grand Outside Sentinel—Helene T. Hitchings (Occident 28) of Eureka, Lucio E. Hammersmith (Darina 114) of San Francisco.

Grand Organist—Rebecca Kemp Van Ee (Alta 3) of San Francisco, Lillian B. Troy (Genevieve 132) of San Francisco (incumbent), Mrs. S. B. Clantou (Fresno 187) of Fresno.

Grand Trustees (seven to be elected)—Henrietta O'Neill (Ursula 1) of Jackson (incumbent), Dr. Winifred M. Byrne (Minerva 2) of San Francisco, Hattie E. Roberts (Oueonta 71) of Ferndale, Mary Frances Mitchell (San Jose 81) of San Jose (incumbent), Edna Saygrover (Hiawatha 140) of Redding (now Grand Inside Sentinel).

ALTA PARLOR, NO. 3,
NATIVE DAUGHTERS GOLDEN WEST.

San Francisco, May 16, 1920.

Alta Parlor, No. 3, N.D.G.W., presents the name of one of its members, Rebecca Kemp Van Ee, as a candidate for the office of Grand Organist at the coming session of the Grand Parlor. Sister Kemp Van Ee received the highest vote for delegate, and was unanimously selected as the Grand Parlor's representative for Grand Parlor honors in 1920.

The sister is skillfully versed in the theory and practice of music, an entertaining devotee of the art, is thoroughly acquainted with the ritualistic ceremonies and an ardent and enthusiastic member of our Order. Possessed of a genial disposition, a kindly manner, and a fervent zeal for the welfare and progress of the N.D.G.W., she has never hesitated to grant the charm and grace of her accomplishment to the pleasure, instruction and completeness of the meetings of Sister Subordinate Parlors.

Alta Parlor hespeaks the favorable consideration of the Grand Parlor in behalf of Sister Kemp Van Ee.

man), Millie Tietjen, Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty—has made arrangements with the railroads for a one and one-half fare on the receipt-certificate plan, which all members, whether delegates or not, may take advantage of.

For the going trip, tickets will be on sale June 5 to 10 inclusive, and for the return trip June 9 to 13 inclusive. Where fare from starting point to San Jose is less than one dollar, the full fare must be paid both ways.

Purchase a ticket from starting point to San Jose, paying full fare and get receipt-certificate from agent for same. At the Grand Parlor the receipt-certificate will be verified, and upon presentation of this to the agent at San Jose ticket to starting point will be sold at one-half the regular fare.

The committee advises that the Grand Parlor will positively allow only a one-and-one-half fare to accredited members of the Grand Parlor. No one attending the session, as visitors or otherwise, can secure the half-fare to starting point unless the above instructions are carried out. To do otherwise simply means the individual will be the loser, for the railroads will make no refund.

Past Presidents to Grow

San Francisco—Delegates from the various Assemblies of the Past Presidents' Association, Native Sons of the Golden West, met May 8 for the purpose of forming a central governing body. Those in attendance were J. F. Stanley, Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung, H. T. Dupont, H. E. Faure and John G. Schroeder from San Francisco Assembly, No. 1; E. A. Theile, J. G. Beatty and J. J. Mulgrew from East Bay Counties Assembly, No. 3; Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger from Southern Counties Assembly, No. 4. Grand Trustee John J. Monteverde, presiding officer of the Sacramento County Past Presidents' Association, was present and invited to take part in the discussion.

The Past Presidents' Association was formed years ago for the purpose of keeping active in the work of the Order of Native Sons the men who had passed through the chairs of their respective Parlors. These men, meeting together, exchange ideas drawn from their experiences as officers of the Subordinate Parlors and propose matters for the progress and development of the individual Parlors and the Order generally. Thus, there has been a stimulating influence in the ritualistic exemplification, in membership campaigns, in the homeless children work, in the matter of historical research, and the many other activities of the Native Sons. Heretofore, each Assembly has acted mostly upon its own initiative. So successful and beneficial have been the results, that it was determined that even greater benefits could be had if there could be more unified action on the part of the various Assemblies. To this end, this meeting was held.

J. F. Stanley was selected as presiding officer of a temporary central governing body, with power to organize assemblies of the Past Presidents' Association throughout the Order; with one assembly to each county. A committee of five on permanent organization was appointed. It is the plan to have each assembly send three delegates to the next Grand Parlor, at which time the committee on permanent organization will report. Upon the acceptance of this report, the central governing body will be formed with equal representation from each assembly, the officers for the ensuing year elected, and the Past Presidents as a united body will be in a much better position to carry on the work of stimulating interest, advising, encouraging and promoting the best interests of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

"The Californian"—At Los Gatos, Santa Clara County, June 18 and 19, a pageant, "The Californian," is to be presented.

Historic Event—At Monterey, June 5 and 6, the 150-years-ago landing of Father Junipero Serra, founder of the California chain of missions, will be celebrated with an historical pageant.

Growing—Reports from the Federal Census Bureau at Washington, D. C., show that California's population is steadily increasing. So far, Long Beach has shown the greatest percentage of increase since the 1910 census.

CALIFORNIA ART TO BE PRESERVED TO STATE

"Crossing the Plains"—Wonderful Historical Painting

THERE are some paintings which by their beauty of design and coloring and the idea represented, hold one's attention and admiration at sight. Such an one is "Crossing the Plains," by Andrew P. Hill, of San Jose, admittedly one of the greatest and most sublime of the historical paintings of this country. The massive canvas, which tells the story of the sturdy pioneers crossing the plains, is the magnificent conception of a master mind and the equally magnificent product of a master hand. One need not be a connoisseur of art to appreciate that this beautiful painting is not only a masterpiece of execution, but embodies an idea which the artist has brought out with telling effect. "Crossing the Plains" reincarnates and perpetuates the spirit of adventure, the indomitable courage, the indifference to hardship, the dogged purpose and the idealistic vision which spurred men and women to give up the comforts and culture of civilization and blaze a trail to unknown homes and through untold dangers.

The Inspiration

The father of Andrew P. Hill crossed the plains in 1853, and just seven days after the party reached California he succumbed to the hardships of the journey. The tragic event was the inspiration of Hill's great painting. He learned the story of the caravan, of the bleaching bones along the way and the buzzards floating overhead, a grewsome convoy, and of the Indians ever waiting. Then one day he told the story to the world in beautiful, low-toned colors and a big, masterful style that grips one. The composition is charming, the feeling is fine, and Hill's drawing leaves no doubt as to his ability as a draughtsman. The exquisite blending of colors will immediately attract attention. But the artist's greatest opportunity has been in his representation of animal life. Imitation of nature to the minutest detail is shown in the oxen in the foreground. They seem ready to step out of the frame. The cringing of the black ox in fear of the leash, the look of fear and expectation in the eyes of the leaders, the clouds of dust kicked up by their dragging hoofs, the shadows, the glaring sunshine—one can almost hear the shouts of the men and the creak and clatter of the caravan as it winds its weary way westward, ever westward. The painting, while hanging in the California Building at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, attracted much attention. Though completed too late for the regular art exhibit, it was pronounced by judges to be the finest animal painting at the Exposition.

Historian on Canvas

Andrew P. Hill is essentially California's historian on canvas. He feels her spirit; he knows her story; he gets her atmosphere. His work as an artist is well known and covers a wide range of subjects. Probably the best known of his pictures is his "Mission of Santa Clara," painted in 1876, and for many years featured by the University of Santa Clara. His large painting "The Murphy Party," showing a party of emigrants ascending to the summit of the Sierras from Donner Lake under the leadership of that famous Indian Chief, Truckee, was destroyed in the San Francisco fire of 1906. "The Rodeo" and "A Bull's Head" are marvelous portrayals of animal life and highly prized by their owners. However, it is not alone by his work as an artist that Mr. Hill is known to the people of California. Unselfish devotion to the interests of others has been his motto through life—even to the exclusion of his own. His invaluable work of preserving to posterity that wonderful group of the world's oldest living things, known as California Redwood Park, is well known and has earned for him the title of "Father of the Forest." Years of his life have been spent in this labor of love (for which he neither expected nor received compensation) and millions of men, women and children will live to bless him for this work.

Gift to the State

Hoping some day to be able to present his masterpiece to the State, the artist has deferred the sale of "Crossing the Plains" with that end in view. His personal fortunes, however, would not permit so great a sacrifice and the picture, valued at $15,000, was recently placed on sale. This action was the motive of a resolution passed by the Sempervirens Club of San Jose, "That this picture representing an event so dear to the traditions of California should not be permitted to pass from California, but should be owned by the State and preserved for posterity by being hung in some suitable public place."

Believing in the sentiments expressed in this resolution, and with a deep appreciation of the painter's art as well as his invaluable public services, a committee composed of his friends and associates was formed to devise ways and means to raise the funds necessary for preserving the picture to the State. By the very nature of the thing this committee was of a single mind that this noble purpose should be undertaken by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, and plans are now being formulated whereby that laudable purpose will be effected.

This beautiful painting has, pending its final disposition, been hung in the lobby of the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, where it is attracting much attention. That the painter's art and the tradition his work represents touches a responsive chord in the hearts of the general public is evidenced by the admiring groups before the picture at all times. Its massive proportions—it is 7 feet by 10 feet in size—and superb coloring have a suitable background in the spacious lobby of this famous hotel.

DURING THE NATIVE DAUGHTERS' GRAND PARLOR IN SAN JOSE THE WEEK OF JUNE 7TH, "CROSSING THE PLAINS" WILL BE ON EXHIBITION IN THE LOBBY OF THE VENDOME HOTEL.

Silver Grain Spruce Tone Chamber

There is but one wood which is supreme for this purpose—Silver Grain Spruce—the material from which Stradivarius constructed his master violins. The Silver Grain tone chamber of the Burnham Super-tone Phonograph is so constructed as to enrich and add a lyric quality to vocal, and a clear, bell-like quality to instrumental music.

Cabinets of Exquisite Design and Beauty

Each Burnham Super-tone Phonograph is not only a masterpiece of artistic design; it is also a fine example of highly skilled cabinet work. Our artisans are masters of the wood-worker's art and take a pardonable pride in their splendidly made products.

THE MASTER SLEEPER HAS AWAKENED

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

LORY BE!

The "Master Sleeper at Sacramento" has awakened!

For nearly two years repeated attempts have been made by numerous organizations and individuals to arouse the Governor of California to take official action in the Jap menace, but not until June 21 did he awake.

The Governor's awakening brought with it a long letter of protest, directed to the Federal Secretary of State, in which is embraced a demand, couched in firm but respectful language, that the Federal Government, by prohibiting all Jap immigration to this country, effectively dispose of the "peaceful invasion" of California scheme, which was originated in the interest of the yellow-Japs and is encouraged by white-Japs.

Along with the letter to the Secretary of State went a copy of the findings of the State Board of Control, which has for some months been investigating the Japs and their methods. The exhaustive report contains numerous startling facts—facts, however, which have been repeatedly published in The Grizzly Bear and other publications which have been for lo, these many months, telling The People, including the Governor, that every day the Japs are getting a stronger foothold in California and that unless a stop be put to their activities here this state will be completely Japanized . The report of the Board of Control verifies all that has been said and, being prepared at the direction of the State, is of great value in presenting the case of California to the Nation.

This report has been in the hands of the Governor, we are informed, since the middle of March, and yet, with the convincing proofs that California sorely needs protection therein set forth before him, it took the Governor three months to decide to act, and then he did only the least that he could do—asked for Federal aid. And it is our opinion that the Governor would still be peacefully sleeping had not events of the past few weeks rudely disturbed his slumbers. First came the passage by the California Women's Clubs, in state convention, of the anti-Jap resolutions, which the Governor's sister, Mrs. Sue Reynolds, and the wife of the State Corporation Commissioner (an appointee and adviser of the Governor), Mrs. E. C. Bellows, tried desperately to defeat; then followed action at Chicago which made it impossible for the Governor to slip into a Senatorial toga; then came the initiative petition, which is welcomed by The People. So, the Governor, seeing the coveted Senatorial toga still retained by another, and hence wanting to continue his sleep at Sacramento, thought it advisable to wake up and get on the band-wagon.

Whatever the "big noise," however, that awakened the Governor, we are delighted with his letter to the Federal Secretary of State. It is a splendid appeal for Federal aid in behalf of California, and, coming from the Chief Executive of the State, it cannot be left to go unheeded by the powers that be at Washington. And, too, the letter, with the accompanying report, will be of inestimable value in a campaign of education among the peoples of the East, many of whom are unfamiliar with the real Jap condition in the West. Lack of space prevents publication of the Governor's letter in detail, but quotations must here be presented, for they verify contentions of those first and foremost in the fight against the Japs, and give the lie to the Governor's previous contentions that the agitation against the Japs was born of politics and was being nurtured by politicians. Among other things, the Governor's letter sets forth these facts:

"Ten years ago, the census reports of the United States Government showed a Japanese population in California of 41,356. . . . IT AMOUNTS NOW TO 87,279."

"The Japanese in our midst have indicated a strong trend to land ownership and land control. . . . INDEED, AT THE PRESENT TIME THEY OPERATE 623,752 ACRES OF THE VERY BEST LANDS IN CALIFORNIA."

"In many portions of our state we have large colonies of Japanese, the population in many places even exceeding the white population. THESE JAPANESE, BY . . . THE EMPLOYMENT OF THEIR WIVES AND THEIR VERY CHILDREN IN THE ARDUOUS TOIL OF THE SOIL, are proving crushing competition to our white population."

"The fecundity of the Japanese race far exceeds that of any other people that we have in our midst. . . . IN MANY OF THE COUNTY SCHOOLS THE SPECTACLE IS PRESENTED OF HAVING A FEW WHITE CHILDREN ACQUIRING THEIR EDUCATION IN CLASSROOMS CROWDED WITH JAPANESE."

"They [The People of California] are determined to exhaust every power in their keeping to maintain this state for its own people. THIS DETERMINATION IS BASED FUNDAMENTALLY UPON THE ETHNOLOGICAL IMPOSSIBILITY OF ASSIMILATING THE JAPANESE PEOPLE and the consequential alternative of increasing a population whose very race isolation must be fraught with the gravest consequences."

"CALIFORNIA views with alarm the rapid growth of these people within the last decade in population as well as in land control, and FORESEES IN THE NOT-DISTANT FUTURE THE GRAVEST MENACE OF SERIOUS CONFLICT IF THIS DEVELOPMENT IS NOT IMMEDIATELY AND EFFECTIVELY CHECKED."

"California wants peace. BUT CALIFORNIA WANTS TO RETAIN THIS COMMONWEALTH FOR HER OWN PEOPLES, where they may grow up and develop their own ideals."

"Statistics clearly show a decided increase in Japanese population since the execution of the SO-CALLED 'GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT.' SKILLFUL EVASIONS HAVE BEEN RESORTED TO IN VARIOUS MANNERS. 'Picture brides' have been brought in, and upon their arrival set to work on the farm lands; relatives of those already here were brought in under the guise of dependents; large numbers have come illegally across the Mexican border."

"At the present time an initiative measure is being circulated which in all probability will find a place upon our ballot at this coming election. The initiative measure is a land law even more stringent than the present one in that it not only forbids ownership, but the leasing of lands by the Japanese. It also makes more drastic the provisions against corporate ownership of land for the purpose of evading the act. The measure, if adopted, will exhaust the State's power in dealing with this great race problem. . . . IN MY OPINION, as an expression of protest by Californians, as a declaration of the purpose of this present population of ours to maintain its own standards and ideals, as a plea to the citizens of all the States in the Union, many of whom, because they have no contact with the problem might seem to look upon it as an unsubstantial one at this time, EVERY VOTER IN THIS STATE WILL AND SHOULD CAST HIS BALLOT FOR THE MEASURE."

"I trust that I have clearly presented the California point of view, and that in any correspondence or negotiations with Japan, which may ensue as the result of the accompanying report, or ANY ACTION WHICH THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA MAY TAKE THEREON, YOU WILL UNDERSTAND THAT IT IS BASED ENTIRELY ON THE PRINCIPLE OF RACE SELF-PRESERVATION AND THE ETHNOLOGICAL IMPOSSIBILITY OF SUCCESSFULLY ASSIMILATING THIS CONSTANTLY INCREASING FLOW OF ORIENTAL BLOOD."

The Governor has done well in registering this protest for California at Washington. Now let him continue in action—let him prove that he is sincere in his expressed opinions and that his appeal to the Nation is not simply political camouflage—by calling an extraordinary session of the Legislature. He has said this would be done, if the Board of Control's findings warranted it. Certainly if the conditions in California justify, as they assuredly do, a call for National help they are of sufficient gravity to demand prompt action on the part of the State.

It is ridiculous to call upon the Federal Government for protection when we will not attempt to protect ourselves. Any way, it is incumbent upon California to herself protect her soil, and the longer we are without the necessary laws, the more strongly do the Japs become entrenched. The Governor should not wait for the initiative measure to be balloted on in November; he should get the Legislature at work and have laws that will protect the soil of California in effect before another month has rolled by.

In his letter to the Federal Secretary of State, the Governor took occasion to say: "I deplore the necessity of stating that the spirit of the anti-alien land legislation passed in 1913 has been evaded and broken through the resort to certain legal subterfuges which have almost frustrated the very purpose of the enactment. These evasions have been accomplished through the medium of corporations, trustee stock ownership, trustee land ownership, and the device of having native infant children of Japanese parentage made grantees of agricultural lands controlled and operated exclusively by their noneligible parents."

We suggest to the Governor that he thoroughly investigate the State Corporation Department, which has issued the permits to corporations formed to evade the 1913 land law, and which has the

JULY IN CALIFORNIA, FIFTY YEARS AGO

INDEPENDENCE DAY GENERALLY OBSERVED—OTHER HAPPENINGS

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE NINETY-FOURTH ANNIVERsary of American Independence was celebrated Monday, July 4, 1870, in the principal cities and towns of the state in the usual patriotic manner. Salutes, parades, literary exercises, sports and fireworks filled in the day and evening. Fortunately, there were no catastrophies to mar the occasion, yet there were enough casualties and conflagrations to prove it was not so sauely and safely observed as at the present day.

At North San Juan, Nevada County, the afternoon of the Fourth, a fire destroyed the Chinatown, composed of about twenty buildings, and caused a $30,000 loss. A Chinese merchant shut himself with his valuables in a brick vault and was suffocated.

Millerton, once the county seat of Fresno County, was destroyed by a fire started from a firecracker. A $20,000 loss resulted.

Peter Purrett was firing an anvil salute at Sweetland, Nevada County. While pouring powder from a flask on the anvil a spark exploded the charge and he was seriously injured.

At Bloomfield, Sonoma County, a horse ridden by a boy named Lee was frightened by the noise and ran away. The boy was thrown off and killed.

At Petaluma, while the parade was progressing, a balcony crowded with women and children collapsed, throwing them to the ground. Miss Meehan had a leg broken and Miss Meacham and Miss Pine were seriously injured. This accident caused a team to run away. Mrs. D. C. Putnam was struck and badly injured.

Joseph E. Rullison and wife and Miss Calder of Sebastopol, Sonoma County, went to Russian River to fish and spend the day. Fording the river, their wagon was upset and they were drowned.

George O'Neil, a lad just in his teens, playing around the arsenal at Benicia, Solano County, with other boys found a powder flask. Supposing it to be empty, he dropped a lighted firecracker into it. Some powder in the flask exploded, and the boy had his face badly cut and burned by the pieces of glass and flame.

Lottery Schemes Flourish.

The Mercantile Library Lottery of San Francisco took first place in public attention this month. It was advertised as a "great gift concert" to be held in the Mechanics Pavilion, September 1. Tickets of admission were $5 each, and 200,000 tickets were to be sold. Each ticket gave its holder an opportunity to win one of 687 prizes, beginning with the first prize of $100,000, and ending with approximation prizes of $5 each. R. B. Swain was president, W. H. L. Barnes vice-president, W. C. Ralston treasurer, T. R. Hayes secretary, and nine prominent business men were trustees, so that the lottery had, as a gambling enterprise, the stamp of respectability from its promoters.

Taking advantage of the opportunity presented by the door being opened by the Legislature for this lottery, other enterprises of a similar character began to spring up like mushrooms after a warm shower and the state was covered with lottery tickets and lottery-ticket agents. Every surplus dollar in the pockets of a susceptible speculative public went into lottery tickets during the next few months.

The St. Chispin Society, composed of shoemakers who claimed that the Chinese were ousting them from their jobs, started a big anti-coolie agitation in San Francisco. A mass meeting held in Platt's Hall July 8 was addressed by Philip Roach, C. A. Sumner, Harry George, Thomas Mooney and other prominent speakers, and drastic measures were advised to stop the influx and employment of Chinamen.

Another big meeting, held July 14, was preceded by a parade of laboring men carrying torches and transparencies, and a decided movement was started in the anti-coolie direction. Thomas Mooney announced his intention of running for governor at the next election on an anti-coolie platform pledged to raise an army of 100,000 men to drive the Chinamen out of California. Census marshals reported there were over 12,000 Chinese in San Francisco.

There was much excitement and a disturbance in prices on European goods in San Francisco over the declaration of war by France against Prussia, July 17. The German and the French citizens at once began to organize in behalf of their respective countries, and to subscribe funds in aid of their side of the war, but there were no personal encounters reported between the two different nationalities.

Terrific Lightning Storm in Yosemite.

General J. M. Schofield arrived in California to take charge of the Department of the Pacific as Commanding General July 11. At Sacramento he was received with a salute of seventeen guns fired by Captain Siddons' squad on the "Union Boy" and a large gathering of citizens.

C. D. Carter was elected president of the San Francisco Pioneer Association.

E. J. Perkins, the master mechanic of the Central Pacific Railroad at Sacramento, resigned to take another position in the East. July 21 he was banqueted, and presented with an elegant clock by his fellow-employes. A. J. Stevens was his successor.

The railroad line building north reached Chico, Butte County, this month and a daily passenger-train service was begun, with Capt. G. T. Witham as conductor.

Eight hundred acres in Yuba County were planted to castor-oil beans under contract with a San Francisco company which intended to make oil from the beans.

A Frenchman named Guillarton had thirteen acres in Lake County planted in poppies. He intended to make poppy-oil, which had a high commercial value, from the seeds.

M. J. Saul of Shasta Valley had 4,000 mulberry trees and 150,000 cocoons in a silk culture venture.

Lightning struck on South Dome, Yosemite Valley, during a storm July 15. It was a terrific exhibition of the forces of nature. Thousands of tons of rock were loosened and fell down the mountainside, creating a cloud of dust and a noise like a salvo of heavy artillery.

A miner near Fiddletown, Amador County, found a nugget weighing thirty-one ounces and valued at $525.

Two brothers named Ham, near Horseley's Station, east of Jackson, Amador County, caught a grizzly bear in a trap. It dressed at 250 pounds and they sold bear meat to all who wanted it.

Big schools of barracuda were going up the Salinas River during the month, giving the people there an unexpected supply of fish.

Golder Slankard of San Benito killed two bears with one shot from his rifle. Both happened to be in range when he shot at one, and the bullet passing through one killed the other.

Many Disastrous Fires.

Olive Logan, a distinguished lecturer and advocate of woman's rights from the East, was delivering lectures on "Girls" in different cities of the state.

The British Blonde Burlesque troupe, with Eliza Weathersby (later Mrs. Nat Goodwin), was making a tour, and money from crowded houses in the state. They were followed by Lydia Thompson's troupe, and popular opinion was divided as to which had the best looking girls.

The Silver Star baseball club of Carson City, Nevada State, came to California to play a match with the Oak Leafs of Stockton July 1. They won the game by a score of 56 to 8. July 2 they played the Sacramento club and again won by a score of 64 to 21. In one inning the Stars made twenty-one runs, and several of its players made the circuit of the bases eight times. As it was a hot day, with the thermometer about 100 in the shade, the visitors took some punishment to win. The Sacramento club played the Marysville club July 9 and evened things up by winning with a score of 63 to 33.

There were some interesting trotting horse matches during the month, well attended by the betting turfites. At Bay View Park, near San Francisco, July 2, a race between "Regulator," "John Conners" and "May Queen" was won by "Regulator" in three heats; best time 2:34¾. "Regulator" sold in the pools at $40 to $14.

July 3 there was a match race, three in five, for $2,000, between "Billy Mayo" and "Longfellow," two of the speediest trotters in the state. "Mayo" won the first, but "Longfellow" took the others. Best time 2:28½.

"Longfellow" and "Lady St. Clair" contested for $2,000 at Sacramento July 11. "Longfellow" won this race; best time 2:29.

July 2 a score of buildings were burned in Oroville, Butte County, among the number being the residence of George C. Perkins. The total loss was over $20,000.

A fire in the business part of Grass Valley, Nevada County, July 7, destroyed three buildings and caused a $5,000 loss.

Dogtown was destroyed by fire July 19, and a $30,000 loss reported.

A fire in Sacramento, July 6, destroyed seven business houses in the vicinity of Eleventh and "J" streets, causing a $20,000 loss.

Covell's sawmill near Los Gatos, Santa Clara County, burned July 22, with a $10,000 loss.

The fine mansion of A. H. Jordan in San Mateo County, valued at $20,000, was destroyed by fire July 24.

Gilman's dry goods store in Grass Valley burned July 26, with a $15,000 loss.

The California Powder Works near San Francisco blew up July 9. John Hany, assistant superintendent, and two Chinamen, employes, were killed.

Santa Clara-Los Angeles Stage Robbed.

A prizefight between two local champions of Grass Valley, Nevada County, was fought near that place July 25 between Rogers and Steele. They fought twelve rounds in sixteen minutes, punishing each other severely, as both had more strength than science. Rogers knocked Steele out and won the fight.

A woman paraded Montgomery street, San Francisco, the afternoon of July 9, dressed in a bloomer costume. She wore scarlet satin pants and attracted the attention she evidently desired.

The stage from Gilroy, Santa Clara County, to Los Angeles was stopped by highwaymen in San Luis Obispo County July 16. They took the express box and vamoosed, not molesting the passengers. A week later the officers arrested Benjamin Claughton, Thomas Selby and Daniel Burns. With them was a 17-year-old boy who afterwards confessed and told of their depredations during the last few months, during which time they had robbed the stages several times.

James Wilson, popularly known as "Uncle Jimmy," an 1844 Pioneer of Santa Clara Valley, died July 2. He fought with the Duke of Wellington at Waterloo, and belonged to the English army many years. He was believed to be over 100 years old.

A. J. Kennedy, a prominent citizen of Placerville, El Dorado County, was dove hunting July 6. While loading one barrel of his shotgun the other was accidentally discharged. His thumb was shot away and his right hand badly lacerated.

Another prominent citizen of Placerville, named Gravitt, July 20 accidentally fired his gun. The charge struck his jaw, breaking it and lacerating his face.

Hugh McKay of Tulare, while driving cattle had his horse stumble and fall. He fell beneath it and broke his leg in three places.

William Thompson, near Marysville, was thrown by his horse July 8 and had his breast-bone and four ribs broken.

Mike Malone, near Castroville, Monterey County, July 17 shot at a crow in his field. The gun burst and badly lacerated his left arm.

George Snow, a youth 19 years old, while hunting in San Bernardino County, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of his gun.

Accidents A-plenty.

Samuel H. Parr, an employe of the Central Pacific Railroad at Sacramento, got on a California Pacific train to ride across the toll bridge and avoid paying toll. In getting off the train in Washington, Yolo County, he fell under the cars, had both legs fearfully crushed, and soon died.

Robert Slater, near Empire City, Stanislaus County, July 6 was drawing a barrel of water from a well. In trying to lift it he fell into the well and was drowned.

W. G. Hutchinson, chief engineer of a surveying party running a line in Shasta County for the California and Oregon Railroad, July 21 tried to cross the Sacramento River near the junction of the Pit in a canoe It was upset and he clung to the overturned boat for nearly a mile down stream when, becoming exhausted, he sank and drowned.

Peter Joyce of Vallejo went out on the bay in a sailboat with his wife and 2-year-old child July 24. A squall upset the boat and the child drowned before the party could be rescued.

The little daughter of John Walpert, at Hayward, Alameda County, fell into a washtub partly full of water and was drowned during her mother's absence of a short time.

A little child of Henry Hook, in San Francisco, got hold of a vial of laudanum and drank the contents, dying soon afterward.

Henry Ruble, a 4-year-old child in San Bernardino, playing in front of his home saw a mule tied to a post, and grasped its tail. The mule kicked him in the stomach, killing him.

A boy named Leavitt cut his finger with a scissors and died ten days later from lockjaw.

Miss Lottie Biertell, a young woman in her teens, at Marysville July 10 attempted to kindle a fire

HOW SENSELESS THE PEOPLE ARE

TO PERMIT DESTRUCTION OF LANDMARKS, WHICH HAVE GREAT VALUE

(MAY C. LASSEN.)

SAN FRANCISCO, RIGHTLY CALLED THE "Queen City of the Pacific," evidently without any thought of historic value or sentiment, gave over to the wreckers the famous old Protestant Orphan Asylum, on Haight street, between Laguna and Buchanan.

During the earthquake and fire of 1906, two of the city's landmarks—Mission Dolores and the Protestant Orphan Asylum—were fortunately spared, remaining outstanding witnesses of the great disaster, and also of their own strength and fortitude. Consequently, they should be cherished by all Californians who are true lovers of the historic emblems of their state. But alas! the old rough-hewn stone edifice, castle-like with its turrets, and which loomed up over San Francisco's seven hills for nearly seventy years, is now but a memory.

To me, a San Franciscan by birth, it had been in my childhood's fancy a wonderful castle; from my beautiful home-garden in the Mission I would gaze far across the unobstructed hills up to a higher hill, upon which this old landmark stood out clearly and lonely against a deep blue sky. The great stone wall around it filled me with childish wonder and awe, for within its gates I pictured brave knights with their beautiful ladies walking arm in arm about the well-kept gardens, shut in from all intruders and prying eyes. Often, oh so often, did I wonder if I would ever go to the place, or even get a peep into its spacious grounds. It seemed so near, and yet it was so far away across the hills.

But my dreams about my castle were suddenly brought to an end, when I was taken away to Europe to be educated. Returning after ten years to my native San Francisco, the first thing I looked for was the old castle on the high hill. Yes, there it stood, the same old majestic stone castle, with its high walls, and trees now also grown into maturity. How splendid it looked; exactly like some of the old castles I had seen in Europe! It was then I learned it was the Protestant Orphan Asylum, and then my heart went out to it even more, and to its inmates, and I loved the place more than ever.

San Francisco again was bidden adieu, and not until long years after did I return, and when learning to know my San Francisco, I found my way to my childhood's castle. There it stood in all its grandeur within a most wonderful garden of wonderful trees and flowers. Hollyhocks of every hue had climbed up high above the old stone wall and were gracefully swaying to and fro in the summer winds as though beckoning a welcome to me. At last I stood within the shadow of its ponderous gates, and heard the children's voices and the birds singing in the trees, while all around homes and buildings had sprung up, upon and around the once-lonely hills. No longer was my castle isolated, but surrounded by a great population of a still greater, growing and thriving city. Oh, what a rush of memories overwhelmed me, unspeakable, indescribable! With blinding tears I turned away, whispering to myself, "Look not mournfully into the Past; it returneth no more."

Some weeks ago, while passing I saw the old place in the hands of the wreckers. At first it seemed a dream, then it was a shock, and finally a storm of indignation arose within me that such a landmark should be ruthlessly swept away from our midst. I ventured into the grounds to take a tender long last look at my childhood's fancied castle, and read on the cornerstone that it had been founded in 1850 and erected in 1852. I walked around the old place and down the pathways of the gardens, listening to the birds, thinking of my childhood's fancies, and wondering over the fates and fortunes, not of my knights and their beautiful ladies of old but of the many, many poor and lonely orphans my castle had sheltered,—those who had lived and died within its walls or had gone forth into the strife of the world, for better or for worse—and as I stood and gazed, not this time from the garden of my childhood's home but from the garden of my childhood's castle, and saw not green hills but a great wonderful city, I said to myself: "Americans demolish and neglect their old historic landmarks at home, and then travel to Europe to see just such places."

How senseless and extravagant we are!

NATIVE DAUGHTERS PROTEST MONTEREY LANDMARK'S DESTRUCTION.

Monterey City has many landmarks, but none more interesting than the "Sherman Rose," the history of which has been related in The Grizzly Bear. The property was recently sold, and its new owners proposed to wreck it, to make way for a modern business enterprise.

Hearing of this, Mrs. Anna Geil Andresen, Grand Trustee and chairman of the Grand Parlor Landmarks Committee, Native Daughters of the Golden West, issued a public protest, and much confidence has been expressed that her splendid appeal will be heeded. Her letter of protest, which was roundly applauded and unanimously endorsed at the San Jose Grand Parlor, N.D.G.W., last month, follows:

"I have been informed that the home of Senorita Bonifacio, familiarly known as the Sherman Rose, has been sold, and that in a short time the wrecker will appear and blot the old landmark from the face of Monterey. This is shocking to all to whom Monterey appeals by her wealth of historic associations, and her many quaint and interesting traditions.

"It seems to me that Monterey is losing all too rapidly many of its quaint and historic buildings that once set it apart as a shrine to the tourist. It is conceivable, if this process of destruction goes on, that she will be stripped to the status of only a fish-canning village where tourists will hold their noses while they rush through.

"Isn't there enough 'kick' in the old town, or loyalty to the sentiment of the past, to save the Sherman Rose? Remember, if dollars and cents must be considered, that it is the Sherman Rose only that draws the thousands of tourists from the old Custom House, along the entire length of Alvarado street. You who are on the ground do not realize the wealth of sentiment of the Sherman Rose to the traveling tourist. It is a shrine of the Pacific Coast unequaled its entire length for purely sentimental interest.

"Tens of thousands of tourists will remember the Rose of Monterey when every modern building of the town has faded from their memory. No modern building that will ever be put up on Alvarado street in Monterey will attract or draw the numbers of people in its direction as does the Sherman Rose.

"Business is of brute strength and does many things. But will not the better and finer and less-selfish nature of the old town and its inhabitants stay the hand of the iconoclast? Are there not enough people in Monterey that combine heart and money, who will come to the rescue of the Sherman Rose? Monterey, if you allow this, something fine will be taken out of your life, and remember, never again can you grow a Sherman Rose."

SANTA CLARA COUNTY LANDMARK OF 1838 DEMOLISHED.

The last of the two Alviso adobes, that stood on the old Alviso rancho, the Rincon de los Esteros, has been torn down, according to the "San Jose News." There are less than a half-dozen of the old adobes still standing in Santa Clara County. The original and first adobe on the place stood about twenty feet from the one that has just vanished. Both were built by the late Ignacio Alviso, for whom the town of Alviso was named and the founder of the Alviso family in California.

He was of pure Spanish ancestry, and came at the age of 3 with his father, Corporal Domingo Alviso, in the Anza expedition in 1776 to found the Mission Dolores and the presidio of San Francisco. Ignacio Alviso was always a favorite of the government, and he was a major domo of the Santa Clara Mission. Ignacio Alviso married Miss Margarita Bernal. He died in 1848, and in his will gave one-third of all he possessed to the Catholic Church for masses.

The Alviso adobe that was the last to go was built about 1838. It was commonly called the Berryessa adobe, because it became the property of Dolores Alviso, who married Guadalupe Berryessa. Many of the adobe bricks that have been broken up were in perfect condition. Some of them still bore the imprint of dogs and pigs that ran over them while they were being made nearly a hundred years ago.

RAISING FUNDS TO RESTORE MISSION.

San Luis Obispo—Dr. Owen C. Coy of Berkeley, secretary and archivist of the California Historical Survey Commission, has made a survey of San Luis Obispo de Tolosa Mission and expressed belief that many of the original adobe walls may be unearthed.

The mission, founded September 1, 1772, recently suffered from fire, and this resulted in the formation of a committee to restore the old landmark. It is estimated $75,000 will be required, and several large donations have already been made to the fund. Workers employed at the ruins are making many interesting discoveries of material used in the original mission structure.

WOULD RESTORE SANTA CRUZ MISSION.

Santa Cruz—A movement is under way to rebuild Santa Cruz Mission, founded August 28, 1791, but long ago destroyed. The estimated cost is $50,000, of which $7,000 is already available.

All of the vestments and much of the statuary of the original mission have been preserved. It is planned to rebuild the structure on original lines, and to provide an auditorium for public community meetings.

HISTORIC BELL AGAIN IN OLD MISSION.

Sonoma City—A bell which, nearly a century ago, called the faithful to worship here was returned June 5 with fitting ceremonies. The historic bell, which hung in the original San Francisco Solano Mission, founded August 25, 1823, became lost, but was located and returned to the mission by Dr. Emma Sutro Merritt of San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO NATIVE SONS TO ORGANIZE ATHLETIC CLUB.

San Francisco—The Native Sons of this city have appointed a committee, consisting of two delegates from each Parlor, to consider ways and means of organizing an athletic club for the members, and to raise funds for the erection of a building to house such activities. J. M. Liebert (Bay City 104), the originator of the movement, was chosen temporary chairman of the committee, Chancellor K. Grady (Pacific 10) secretary, and Fred H. Jung (Stanford 76) treasurer.

The committee holds an option on a lot on Mason street, just opposite Native Sons' Building, which will be large enough to allow of the construction of a swimming tank 100x35 feet, or as large as any in the city. In addition, the tentative plan calls for a two-story building, in which will be housed a gymnasium, with handball and basketball courts, bowling alleys, boxing and wrestling pavilion, and all the regular gymnasium apparatus.

A committee consisting of Grand Trustee E. J. Lynch, Grand Trustee J. A. Wilson, Grand Organist Henry Dinkelspiel, Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung, J. J. May, J. B. Hauer, H. S. Spalding and C. K. Grady was appointed to devise a plan for submission to the joint committee, which meets again on June 28 to go further into the matter.

SAN GABRIEL

(ESTHER CRONE.)

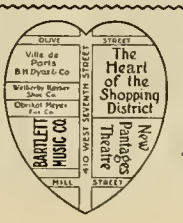

Oh, the little old town of San Gabriel
Is sheltered 'mid palms in a peppertree dell.
The quiet and peace that pervade all the air
Are felt by the traveler while loitering there.
The old gray-stone mission has walls that are scarred
With the ravage of time, though the spirit not marred.
Oh, the sense of rest from morning till night
May be found in this sacred old town of delight.

The crumpled old grapevine that's scaling the walls
Of tottering buildings, to the memory recalls
The days of the settler in the year forty-nine,
As we look through a vista of flowers and sunshine.
And the drone of the bees that hangs over the rose
Is heard like sweet music that comes with repose.
Reflections and fancies come whence none can tell,
As we traverse thy highways, old San Gabriel.

THIRTY-FOURTH GRAND PARLOR PROCEEDINGS

COMPLETE ACCOUNT NATIVE DAUGHTERS' DOINGS AT SAN JOSE

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE THIRTY-FOURTH GRAND PARlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, in session at San Jose June 8, 9, 10 and 11, will go down in the history of the Order as one of the most successful ever held. Harmony prevailed throughout the session, the business was transacted with dispatch, and those in attendance had more recess time at their disposal than at any previous Grand Parlor. Grand President Mary E. Bell presided.

After the formal opening of the Grand Parlor, the reports of grand officers and committees were presented. These showed that during the past Grand Parlor year the Order has made satisfactory progress along all lines of endeavor. Grand President Bell made special efforts to increase the membership, and she was highly commended for the success achieved, nearly every Subordinate Parlor having gained in membership and many being represented by additional delegates.

In the report of her stewardship, Grand President Bell gave a brief but complete account of her numerous activities. "We have reached another milestone in this, our thirty-fourth annual session," she said in presenting her report, "and it is my privilege and honor, as Grand President of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, to extend a hearty welcome to all. It seems but yesterday since I stood before you as the incoming Grand President. It was with pride and delight that I assumed my office, realizing fully my responsibilities, and out of my heart went a silent prayer that I might be worthy of the high honor conferred upon me and that strength and wisdom might be given me to fulfill the duties of the office with credit to the organization.

"There are many with us today for the first time. From every section of the state a delegate has been sent to bring the best that each may have, and to return to their homes with the good we may give them. We are here to review the record made by our Order during the year that is just closing, and to lay new plans for the future. New lessons will have been learned, new friendships will have been formed, and all should be inspired to do greater things in the years to come. Time is a factor in the world of today, and in its flight makes no pauses.

"All my plans have not been realized, not from lack of effort or interest, but because of conditions which were beyond my control. Like my predecessor I have endeavored to be just and impartial, have striven to impress upon the members the importance of perfect ritualistic work, and have endeavored wherever possible to cement a closer, stronger and more sisterly feeling, bearing in mind that

"'There never was a high ideal
But will be real some day
If we follow with patience the path of love
As the true and only way.'

Our success depends upon our strength of purpose; if we would make much progress we must use much diligence.

"The benefit a Grand President derives from her work while in office is the lesson taught of public spirit and devotion to high ideals. Always uppermost in her thoughts is her desire to help, yet she realizes too that life is not a judgment to drudgery—it is a prelude, and opportunity, a glory and a reward.

"The Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, besides its other aims, stands also for the teaching of the fellowship with all mankind. Sister to sister, brother to brother; the leveling of the inequalities of life; the lifting of shadows from the home; the healing of the wounded heart; the refraining from wronging a human soul, and the bringing of comfort, not alone to those within the confines of the fraternity, but of the universe." Continuing her report, Grand President Bell said, in part:

Official Visits.

"Following the custom laid down by the Order, it was my duty as Grand President to visit officially all the Parlors throughout the state. This obligation has been fulfilled, with but few exceptions.

"It is indeed a privilege and a pleasure to traverse our great state, to behold its marvelous grandeur, to be brought in close contact with the members of our Order and to be given an opportunity of discerning requirements that are necessary for the benefit of our Order. It is my sincere belief that the task is too great for one person to perform, in order to accomplish the good that might result if other methods were in force. Many plans have been advanced, but none approved.

"Much good could be accomplished by having an organizer, who could give unsparingly of her time to districts where interest has waned, who could establish new Parlors where the field is open for organization. We need new plans. We need publicity, bulletins exchanged, and a closer bond kept between Parlors to keep alive interest. There is lack of co-operation and co-ordination. We have been so bent on individual improvement and aggrandizement, that as an organization we fail, in a great degree, to measure up to the principles upon which our Order was founded.

"In many places Parlors should merge, for in 'Unity there is strength,' thereby making the Parlors more active, energetic and better prepared to meet the many requirements demanded. I would advise that whenever and wherever possible, joint meetings be held, thus conserving time, curtailing expense and allowing the Head of the Order more time for constructive work.

Projects.

"Adding to the Mills Scholarship fund, co-operation in the work of the Children's Agency, contributing to the support of the Native Daughters of the Golden West Home, and assisting in mission restoration work are the working aims of the Order at present. Time, energy and thought have been given to these splendid projects in the hope that some good might be realized.

"Though the Mills Scholarship fund was created in 1914, the required amount has not yet been contributed. Each Grand President has done her best to show the Parlors the necessity of completing the amount required to establish the scholarship. During my year the Parlors have responded beyond expectation, and I am happy to state $1,293.81 has been added to the fund; a balance of $1,035.82 yet remains to be raised.

"Never before has such splendid work been done for the homeless child. Each year the work has grown larger and stronger, and the Native Sons and Native Daughters should be proud of their accomplishment. The loss by death of Senator Charles M. Belshaw, chairman of the Central Committee on Homeless Children, is keenly felt by the committee—ont ouly by the committee, but by all who knew him—and his name will ever be revered and cherished by the Order. In character he was unique, and magnetic in his individuality. He was a leader, and by instinct the common heart trusted him. The Homeless Children Agency found in him a constant and sympathetic friend. His loss is irreparable.

"The Native Daughters of the Golden West Home, by legislation of Grand Parlor of 1919, came under the jurisdiction of the Order. It was necessary to levy an assessment for its upkeep, which has created a fund for future development. The project is a most worthy one, and is deserving of careful consideration.

Special Fund.

"Realizing the great good the Red Cross had done in our late war, and the work yet to be accomplished, the Grand President felt it a privilege to subscribe $25 from her special fund for this most worthy work.

"The Salvation Army, too, she felt to be worthy of consideration, and subscribed $25 toward it from her special fund.

"With the idea in mind of increasing the membership of the Order, the Grand President offered as an incentive to the Parlor making the highest percentage of increase a cash prize of $50—$25 of which was taken from the special fund.

In Memoriam.

"The light-giving, life-sustaining Potentate has seen fit to summon to His presence, during the past year, sixty-four dear sisters. Although He has bidden them wear garments of eternal day, yet shall their shadowed images fill our hearts with sorrow.

"Our tears are those of gratitude for having had the privilege of their presence and of having mingled in fraternal sisterhood with them. Their spirits shine as shine the sunbeams in drops of dew and will ever be folded in the memory of our hearts.

"'They are not dead, these friends, not dead,
But in the paths we mortals tread
They go some trifling steps ahead—
And nearer to the end,
So that we, too, once past the bend,
Shall meet again—face to face—
These friends we fancied dead.'

Thanks.

"To God in His divine providence in safeguarding me and protecting my home and loved ones during my absence; for His loving care and guidance in giving me health, strength and wisdom to perform the duties of my office. To my kind and indulgent husband and his dear sister for their thoughtfulness and kindness, thus helping to make my work possible and inspiring me to act with thought and patience in the hope that the year might be a successful and harmonious one.

"To my own dear Parlor [Buena Vista 68, San Francisco], whose members have served me on every occasion, and who have by their presence and words of praise and encouragement helped to make my year one long to be remembered. To all the Subordinate Parlors who arranged to hold adjourned special and joint meetings, to the members of Subordinate Parlors for their willingness to conform to suggestions offered; for the many gifts tendered, and for the home comforts offered by those in distant places. All these courtesies added to the happiness and pleasures of the year.

"To the Order, in conferring upon me the high honor of Grand President, which gave me the opportunity of coming in personal contact with the many sisters throughout the state, and whose courtesies and friendship will ever be held in highest esteem.

"To all committees who acted wisely and efficiently for the success of the Order. To my district deputy grand presidents, who gave their time freely and willingly and accomplished such splendid work.

"To all who in any way gave me encouragement and words of praise, thereby tending to add to the happiness and success of my year—

"Your friendship, kindness, deeds of love
Will ever treasured be,
And the future will hold only pleasant thoughts
Of this year you gave to me.

"As the last pages of this memory-book are written," concluded Grand President Bell, "I am conscious of many things yet to be accomplished. It is indeed with regret I surrender my pleasant duties to my successor, but it is with the greatest confidence that you have chosen wisely and that she will go forward in the work already begun with justice to herself and honor to the Order. May all happiness on life's way be hers, and in the year to come may every tomorrow prove brighter than the day just passed."

ODE TO N. D. G. W.

(JOSEPHINE HOWARD.)

Dear Native Daughters of the Golden West,
Who well deserve of all earth's gifts, the best,
A record of your works both past and new,
Shall here be made—these goodly deeds all due
To striving toward high aims and objects great,
To which, both heart and time you dedicate.

You keep alive the name of "Pioneer,"
Whose daring bravery you all revere,
Whose mighty strength and foresight built for you
The base on which your own good fortune grew.

"The Native Daughters' Home" you well maintain
For members under ban of need or pain,
Protecttion, love and care you give to all,
And nobly serve, whatever be the call.

A mother to the motherless are you,
Providing homes. This sacred work you do,
That counts not only for these little ones,
But later, for their daughters and their sons,
Who are to be the substance of our State,
To add to its renown already great.

Rare monuments and scholarships you give,
And present help to make the Past to live
In Missions old, restored—mute sentinels
Of memories. You aid toward "Mission Bells"
That mark the path the Holy Fathers trod
To bring benighted souls of savages to God.

And so, with deeds like these your Order stands
A guiding star. And those from other lands,
Reborn in California, emulate
The splendid Daughters of the Golden State.

(The above lines were written by Mrs. Josephine Howard, well-known poet and musician of San Francisco, and dedicated to the Native Daughters of the Golden West, who have given them warm approval. At the "booster" luncheon of the Native Daughters at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco recently, a card containing the "Ode" was placed at each plate. In the verse are set out the deeds and purposes of the Order.—Editor.)

GRAND SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The report of Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty went into detail regarding the transactions of that office. It showed three Parlors had been instituted during the year—Mount Lassen 215 at Bieber, Victory 216 at Courtland, and Santa Rosa 217 at Santa Rosa—four had surrendered their charters—Buena Ventura 95 at Ventura, Tejon 136 at Bakersfield, San Francisco 174 at San Francisco by consolidation with Castro 178 of that city, and Artemisia 200 at Susansville.

"Grateful appreciation is expressed," said Grand Secretary Dougherty in concluding her report, "to Grand President Mary E. Bell and to members of the committees for their kind consideration shown during the year.

"To all recording secretaries of Subordinate Parlors who, by giving prompt and careful attention to Parlor reports and to communications issued from the Grand Parlor office, made the work of the year less arduous. To the Subordinate Parlors for the many courtesies extended during the year."

GRAND TREASURER'S REPORT.

Grand Treasurer Susie K. Christ's report gave a detailed account of the Grand Parlor receipts and expenditures. It showed the following conditions of the several funds:

General—Balance June 1, 1919, $1,889.12; year's receipts $10,015, year's expenditures $9,486.81; balance June 1, 1920, $2,417.31.

Death Benefit—Balance June 1, 1919, $1,680.30; year's receipts $5,016, year's expenditures $4,725; balance June 1, 1920, $1,971.30.

Mills College Scholarship—Balance June 1, 1919, $2,670.37; year's receipts $1,293.81; balance June 1, 1920, $3,964.18.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The report of the California History Committee was presented jointly by Anna G. Andresen, chairman, and Anna L. Adair; it was received with great applause, and a vote of thanks was tendered Mesdames Andresen and Adair.

The report of the Central Committee on Homeless Children, Past Grand President Ariana W. Stirling chairman, was a duplicate of the report presented at the N.S.G.W. Grand Parlor, published in The Grizzly Bear for April; it was supplemented by an illustrated address by Secretary Mary E. Brusie. The splendid work of this committee was unanimously approved.

Past Grand President Ema Gett, for the Manual of Instruction Committee, submitted a new Manual greatly shortened and simplified. It was approved, but before being printed in book form copies will be submitted to the Subordinate Parlors.

The mileage of the session, reported by the Transportation Committee, Past Grand President Emma Gruber-Foley chairman, amounted to $1,777.78. Claims to that amount were allowed.

For the Education Committee, Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola reported that satisfactory progress is being made in the collection of funds to purchase the Mills College scholarship. The balance of the $5,000 required will be in hand by the time the next Grand Parlor meets.

The Donner Monument Committee, Past Grand President Clara K. Wittenmyer chairman, reported that $1,500 of the Order's $2,000 pledge toward building the Pioneer Monument at Donner Lake, Nevada County, had been paid, and that the remaining $500 will be paid during the year.

The Relics Committee reported, through Emma O'Donnell, that a room for housing relics collected by the Native Daughters will be provided at Golden Gate Park Museum, San Francisco.

The committee in charge of the Native Daughters' Home in San Francisco submitted a report, through Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola chairman, setting forth in detail the activities and financial transactions the past year; that the Home is economically administered is evident from the fact that for the past year the cost of maintenance was but $22.50 a person per month. The report was approved, and an assessment of 50 cents percapita, payable in September, was levied to meet this year's Home expenses.

A summarized account of transactions of the Grand Parlor, not referred to above, follows:

RECOMMENDATIONS APPROVED.

The following recommendations of Grand President Mary E. Bell were approved:

That the granting of charters to Mount Lassen 215 (Bieber), Victory 216 (Courtland) and Santa Rosa 217 be ratified.

That the consolidation of San Francisco 174 with Castro 178 (San Francisco) be ratified. [This is the first time in the Order's history Subordinate Parlors consolidated.]

That the customary $50 annual contribution to mission restoration work this year go to Mission Dolores (San Francisco).

That delegates and grand officers be allowed mileage from points of location of respective Subordinate Parlors; if they come from point requiring less mileage, only actual mileage expense incurred will be allowed. Those traveling by auto shall receive same mileage as those traveling by rail; those traveling on passes shall receive no mileage.

That The Grizzly Bear Magazine be re-endorsed as the official organ of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, and that a monthly sum be paid for the publication of the Official Directory of Subordinate Parlors therein and the furnishing of a copy of the magazine regularly to each Parlor.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS TAKE STAND AGAINST ORIENTALS' INVASION

The following resolution, submitted by Past Grand Presidents Mamie G. Peyton, Carrie Roesch Durham, Allison F. Watt and Dr. Mariana Bertola, and setting out the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West's attitude toward the invasion of Orientals, was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The welfare of California is menaced by the presence in our midst of thousands of members of races that cannot be assimilated by the white race; and

Whereas, Both the economic and institutional life of our State must be protected from the invasion of these non-assimilable aliens, and our lands conserved for the benefit of the white race; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, in Grand Parlor assembled in San Jose, declares its opposition to the acquisition of citizenship by those who, by reason of race or tradition, cannot assimilate with the white race; also its opposition to the ownership or control of land by these who cannot, or who should not be permitted to, become citizens; and be it further

Resolved, That this Order favors the enactment of such State and National legislation as will make it impossible for these non-assimilable peoples to become citizens, either through birth or naturalization; also, the enactment of such State and National legislation as will make it impossible for these non-assimilable peoples to acquire land, either through purchase, lease, or other agreement.

CHANGES IN LAWS.

But three changes were made in the Order's book of laws, the Constitution of Grand Parlor and Subordinate Parlors. These provide:

For consolidation of Subordinate Parlors.

When entire staff of officers of a Subordinate Parlor are re-elected they need not necessarily be again installed.

That applicants for membership 50 years of age or over must waive all rights to both sick and death benefits.

OTHER BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

San Francisco was chosen as the place of meeting of the Thirty-fifth (1921) Grand Parlor.

The percapita tax was fixed at $1, payable semi-annually, to provide funds for the budget, which carries appropriations totaling $8,989.

The salaries of the Grand Secretary, Assistant Grand Secretary and Grand Treasurer were increased $10 per month each.

The California Industries and Products, and the Red Cross and Anti-Tuberculosis Committees were eliminated from the list of special committees.

A new standing committee—Press and Publicity—of three members was created.

At request of the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., a special committee was authorized, to prepare and submit for approval an installation ceremony for use at joint installations of Native Sons and Native Daughters.

The Board of Grand Trustees was given sole authority to make all future investments of Grand Parlor funds.

It was decided to put into force Article XI, Section 6, of the Constitution, which provides for the creation of an organizing fund. This action was taken on the recommendation of Grand President Bell that an organizer be placed in the field.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Giving hearty endorsement and renewing pledge of support to the Federal Government's thrift campaign, and requesting Subordinate Parlors to appoint thrift agents.

Endorsing the campaign under way to save the redwoods of California, and requesting Subordinate Parlors to co-operate with the Save the Redwoods League.

Urging upon the State Board of Education the necessity of a course in California history in the high schools either as a separate course or as a supplement to the course in United States history. The resolution will be sent to the State Education Board and the committee on education of the State Legislature.

Endorsing the project to raise, by popular subscription, funds with which to purchase the Andrew P. Hill painting, "Crossing the Plains." [This endorsement carries no obligation on the part of the Grand Parlor or Subordinate Parlors either to subscribe funds or to assist in the raising of funds.]

Endorsing the work of the Travelers' Aid Society, and appropriating $25 for renewing the Grand Parlor's membership therein.

Approving and commending all efforts to restore or rebuild the California missions.

Relative to more clearly defining "diseases peculiar to women."

Requesting the state to establish a child welfare research station at the University of California, Berkeley.

OFFICERS ELECTED AND INSTALLED.

At the election for grand officers, 270 ballots were cast. The following were chosen, and were installed by Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher:

Grand President—Bertha Adele Briggs (Copa de Oro 105) of Hollister.

Grand Vice-president—Dr. Victory A. Derrick (Aloha 106) of Oakland.

Grand Secretary—Alice H. Dougherty (Angelita 32) of Livermore, re-elected.

Grand Treasurer—Susie K. Christ (Yosemite 83) of San Francisco, re-elected.

Grand Marshal—Mattie M. Stein (Ivy 88) of Lodi.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Pearl Lamb (El Peseadero 82) of Tracy.

Grand Outside Sentinel—Harriet M. Eames (Annie K. Bidwell 168) of Chico.

Grand Organist—Rebecca Kemp Van Ee (Alta 3) of San Francisco.

Grand Trustee—May L. Williamson (Santa Cruz 26) of Santa Cruz.

Grand Trustee—Catherine E. Gloster (Alturas 159) of Alturas, re-elected.

Grand Trustee—Anna Geil Audresen (Aleli 102) of Salinas.

Grand Trustee—Amy McAvoy (Sterling 146) of Pittsburg.

Grand Trustee—Anne Almeda (Sutter 111) of Sacramento.

Grand Trustee—Dr. Winifred M. Byrne (Minerva 2) of San Francisco.

Grand Trustee—Mary Frances Mitchell (San Jose 81) of San Jose, re-elected.

Mary E. Bell was installed as Junior Past Grand President, having automatically succeeded to that office.

Following installation all the grand officers were presented with flowers and other gifts, and showered with congratulations. From the Order as a whole, Mary E. Bell, retiring Grand President, received a beautiful diamond and ruby ring, the presentation address being made by Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer. She was also the recipient of a handsome case of silver, the gift of her district deputies, sister grand officers and the Past Grand Presidents, May Barry delivering the presentation address.

APPRECIATIVE OF ALL FAVORS.

One of the last acts of the Grand Parlor was the unanimous adoption of the following resolution, presented by a special committee—Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, Grand Marshal Dr. Victory A. Derrick and Past Grand President Anna L. Monroe—appointed for the purpose:

"That the thanks of this Grand Parlor be extended: To the San Jose Parlors of Native Daughters [San Jose 81 and Vendome 100], and to the able chairman of arrangements, Past Grand President Mamie P. Carmichael, and to Grand Trustee Mary F. Mitchell, for untiring efforts in behalf of the comfort and pleasure of the Grand Parlor; also, to the sisters of San Jose and Vendome Parlors, for the beautiful exhibition of the ritualistic work.

"To the citizens of San Jose, who so generously invited us to hold our Thirty-fourth Grand Parlor in their beautiful city. To the Hotel Vendome, for providing a place of meeting and other courtesies; also to this and other San Jose hotels, for special consideration shown the Grand Parlor. To the sisters of Notre Dame College, for the use of chairs.

"To Mrs. Anna K. Farnsworth, chairman of the local transportation committee, for the use of her auto during the week; also, to the husbands of Native Daughters, whose autos were placed at the disposal of the committee on the day of our drive.

"To San Jose Parlor No. 22, Garden City Parlor No. 82, Santa Clara Parlor No. 100, Observatory Parlor No. 177, Native Sons of the Golden West, for the delightful excursion to Alum Rock Park and the delicious barbecue provided there; also, to the citizens of San Jose who so generously furnished autos for this enjoyable outing.

"To Principal Hancock of the Grant school, for his kindly services given at all times for the pleasure and comfort of the Grand Parlor; also, to the pupils of Grant school, for the Wednesday afternoon entertainment.

"To Judge William H. Waste of the Appellate Court, for his instructive illustrated lecture on "The Missions of California." To Clarence M. Hunt, for courtesies shown and assistance given the various committees.

"To the supervisors and clerk of Santa Clara

County, for the use of election booths and ballot boxes; especially to Jasper Martin, deputy county clerk, for assistance in installing same.

"To the 'San Jose Mercury-Herald' for accurate and complimentary reports of each day's proceedings of the Grand Parlor, and to the press of the state in general. To the talented musicians and speakers who so graciously entertained the Grand Parlor.

"To our Worthy Past Grand President, Addie L. Mosher, whose prayers have been an inspiration and a mark of devotion. To the chairmen of the various committees, whose reports record the advancement of the Order during the year, especially commending Miss Mary E. Brusie and Mrs. Anna Geil Andresen.

"To the delegates of this Grand Parlor, whose individual attention and freedom of expression demonstrates their devotion and loyalty to the best interests of our Order. To our Worthy Grand President, Mary E. Bell, for her fairness and earnestness at all times as our presiding officer."

NOTES OF THE SESSION.

Several telegrams and letters of greetings were received, one being from James F. Hoey, Grand President, N.S.G.W.

Alex. P. Murgotten, secretary Santa Clara County Pioneer Society, and Thomas Monahan, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., both of San Jose, spoke in behalf of the painting, "Crossing the Plains," which was on exhibition during the session.

Past Grand President Emma Gruher-Foley lost her purse, containing an emblematic pin, gold watch and considerable coin. Information regarding it will be appreciated by Mrs. Foley, who may be reached at San Anselmo, Marin County.

A large delegation of Copa de Oro Parlor, No. 105, members came over from Hollister Friday afternoon to witness the installation of grand officers. While witnessing the ceremonies another member, Mrs. A. G. Turner, who was a visitor throughout the session, arranged a surprise party in honor of Grand President Bertha A. Briggs, also a member of Copa de Oro, which was attended by all the Grand Parlor representatives from the San Benito and Monterey Counties Parlors as well as the visitors.

Junior Past Grand President Mary E. Bell was duly initiated a member of the "M. K. Y." Club at an "owl" session after the Grand Parlor's adjournment.

Past Grand President Allison F. Watt had with her a copy of a San Jose paper of April, 1905, containing a group picture of the Grand Parlor then in session in the "Prune City."

Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty was summoned from the Grand Parlor, just before its close, by the serious illness of her aged mother at Livermore.

Immediately following her election to the Board of Grand Trustees by the highest vote, May L. Williamson (Santa Cruz 26) announced her intention of seeking the Grand Vice-presidency at the next Grand Parlor.

Thursday afternoon the Grand Parlor members were served refreshments by San Jose Parlor, No. 81, and on the following afternoon Vendome Parlor, No. 100, did the honors.

Mrs. Anna Farnsworth (Vendome 100) kept her auto on the go throughout the session. She headed a woman's motor corps which met all trains and conveyed visitors to their quarters.

JUST CALIFORNIA

Almost Unanimous—With but twelve dissenting votes, the people of Vallejo, Solano County, have endorsed a $500,000 bond issue for more schools.

New High School—The people of the progressive little Sacramento River city, Courtland, Sacramento County, have voted $110,000 bonds for a modern high school; but eleven votes were recorded against the issue.

Breaks Record—The largest graduating class in the history of the University of California, 1927 students, received their degrees at the fifty-seventh annual commencement held in the Greek Theater, on the Berkeley campus.

To Show 'Em—The Susanville Chamber of Commerce is to maintain an exhibit in Los Angeles to show Easterners the products of Lassen County's fertile acres.

Large Pear Crop—El Dorado County's pear crop promises to be exceptionally large, says the Placerville "Mountain Democrat"; considerable acreage of young orchards will add to the output.

Millions for Schools—By a 10-to-1 vote, Los Angeles citizens have authorized $6,000,000 bonds for new elementary and $3,500,000 for new high school buildings.

Round Up—Richmond, Contra Costa County, is ready for a rodeo, to be staged July 3, 4, 5.

Under Way—Chico, Butte County, has started construction work on a new $400,000 high school building.

New High School—Elk Grove, Sacramento County, is to have a new high school, $125,000 bonds having been voted for the purpose.

New Court House—Tehama County is constructing a new court house at Red Bluff at a cost of $150,000.

State Fair—California's annual State Fair will be held at Sacramento September 4-12.

Egg Festival—Petaluma's, Sonoma County, annual Egg Day Festival will be held August 21.

Freedom, hand in hand with labor, walketh strong and brave.—John Greenleaf Whittier.

with coaloil. A spark caused the can to explode, and she perished in great agony.

Michael Lynch, a boy employed in the Mission Woolen Mills, San Francisco, July 13 had his arm caught in the machinery and crushed so badly it had to be amputated at the shoulder.

B. Bazzaline invented a boat and on July 18 took Patrick Grimes and James Clark with him to test it on San Antonio Creek. The boat upset, and all were drowned.

Two-headed Child Born in San Francisco.

July 30 two gamblers named Dobson and Tyler, who had quarreled at a masquerade ball, met on Montgomery street, San Francisco. Dobson drew his gun, but Tyler, who was unarmed, threw up his hands and told Dobson to shoot. The latter then told Tyler to go and "heel" himself, as he would shoot him the next time they met. Tyler took the advice and returning shortly with a weapon, got the drop on Dobson, and shot and killed him. Tyler was acquitted on the plea of self-defense.

Eddie Coleman, a 7-year-old lad, playing on the bank of Alhambra Creek that ran by the back-yard of his home near Martinez, Contra Costa County, July 6 fell in and was drowned.

A child was born in San Francisco who had two heads. One was not attached to its vertebrae, and a surgeon removed it. The child suffered no inconvenience from the operation, which left only a small scar.

Eddie Phillips, 16 months old, at Stockton surprised his mother by coming into the house with a live snake three and one-half feet long which he had grasped a few inches below its head. The snake was squirming violently, but the little fellow held it firmly. His mother killed it with a broom, while Eddie yelled his disapproval of thus losing his pet.

A little girl 10 years old, named Fowler, crossing a field near West Buttes, July 20, was struck by a rattlesnake coiled in the grass. The snake had nine rattles and was killed by her father. She was finally saved after a dangerous illness.

Charles Conuor, a lad 8 years old, went with other boys to swim in a reservoir near Rocklin, Placer County, July 30. A deposit of slickens about two feet deep had deposited on the bottom near the center and into this the boy, in diving, got stuck, and drowned before he could be released.

An Italian rancher in Shasta County was advised by a neighbor to improve his drove of hogs by the purchase of a pedigreed boar. He did so, getting one from Yolo County at considerable expense. A few mornings after receiving his purchase he went to his corral to milk his cows. To his surprise, he saw seated on his haunches, contentedly sucking the teat of a cow, his prize pig progenitor. He became so angered he returned to his house, got a rifle, and then shot the pig dead. On being remonstrated with he justified his act by saying: "Me buya da hesta pig, no buya da pig-cow."

Ice Melting Contest Attracts.

One of the most novel wagers made in California was that between the agents of rival ice companies at Marysville. Mayoux of the Summit Valley Ice Company wagered $50 with Jake Tomb of the Little Grass Valley Ice Company that a cake of his ice would last longer, exposed to the rays of the sun, than a cake of equal size of Tomb's company.

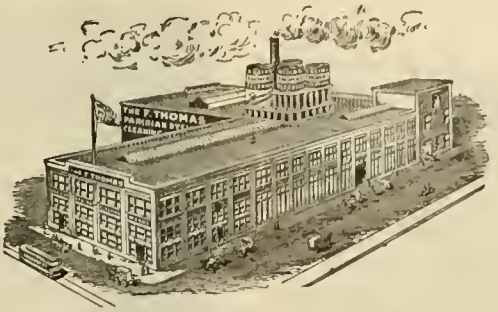

Accordingly judges of the contest were selected and a cake of ice from each company weighing 130 pounds was placed on the awning of a drug store in the business center of the town. The thermometer was 90° in the shade, and the sultry atmosphere caused a rapid melting of the ice cakes. During the afternoon a large crowd gathered in front of the dripping awning, and bets ranging from $5 up to $100 were frequently made as to which cake would last the longer.

The unexpected, as usual, happened. Mayoux had laid his cake down on its flatest side and it melted away evenly. Tomb placed his on end and it soon began to show a corrugated surface that developed a speedier melting capacity than the other. As night came on lanterns were lighted and watchmen placed in charge. The betting now changed to time, and 10 a. m. the next day was the favorite hour wagered on when the ice cakes would have dripped away. Several thousand dollars were wagered on the results.

A man driving a carriage in the company of two women friends on the road near Antioch, Contra Costa County, in the dusk of the evening, passed, by the roadside, what looked like a black-and-white kitten. Thinking it was the pet of a household some distance away that had gone estray, one of the women insisted on the man stopping to bring the kitten to its home. He attempted to gather it in, with the result that he had to walk home, being too highly scented to ride with the women, and then had to retire from society until he was properly fumigated.

GRASP FIRMLY GOLDEN OPPORTUNITIES

SAYS NEW GRAND PRESIDENT NATIVE DAUGHTERS--ASSISTANTS NAMED

BERTHA ADELE BRIGGS OF HOLlister, San Benito County, is now the Grand President of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, having been elevated to that honored position at the Thirty-fourth Grand Parlor, which was in session at San Jose last month. She was given an ovation when inducted into office, and presented with many tokens by her numerous admirers.

The first official utterance of Grand President Briggs was an address, delivered immediately following her installation, in the course of which she said:

"Members of the Grand Parlor: The sun does not shed forth her golden rays upon hearts more loyal and true and good than those which compose the membership of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. To be chosen the leader of such a people

" 'Is a heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.'

"Tonight, in the thought that I am here with you who have so honored me with your friendship and blessed me with your love and confidence—which all have evidenced by a thousand gracious kindnesses—is an occasion of very great happiness, and my cup of joy is indeed filled and overflowing. To you, my sisters who have entrusted to me the greatest privilege that may come to a member of our glorious fraternity, are offered grateful thanks, which my heart is too full to adequately express. Though my tongue lacks the power of eloquence, the fire burning within me, fed by the intense love I bear our Order, will strengthen me in my earnest endeavor to serve and represent you conscientiously and worthily, and to administer the affairs of this high station fairly and justly and in a manner I sincerely hope may cause you no regret in your choice of your Worthy Grand President.

"This exalted office is assumed with a keen realization of the duties and responsibilities by it imposed, as well as by a consciousness that no one should accept it who cannot find pleasure in the performance of faithful, constant work. May the Great Creator of the Universe so inspire the leader you have chosen, that the work during the coming year may result in the steady advancement of our Order, the increase of its influence and power for good, and the fulfillment of the desires of our hearts—the furtherance or completion of the various activities and projects in which we are so deeply interested and for which we have labored so long and so faithfully.

"Having just passed another milestone on 'the ever-vanishing road to the eternities,' we stand face to face with another Grand Parlor year. The future is gilded by the bow of promise and with a firmer faith in the stability of the Order. It leads us ever onward and upward toward the consummation of a beautiful life, the development of our minds as well as our hearts, and the use of our powers to benefit mankind. Let us grasp firmly the rich promises and golden opportunities of the great untried future, and with one hope and one aspiration march surely and steadily onward to higher and greater achievements. May our every act and our every effort honor the great organization to which we have sworn allegiance and justify to the world our existence as an Order.

"We need officers and members possessed of energy and devotion, faithfulness and self-sacrifice, with the spirit that says 'never backward—but always forward,' ever making and looking to the upbuilding and uplifting of our Order and our membership. May our teachings and our ceremonies be but the means to accomplish results, and these results—not the means—be our great objective.

"Activity is an ever-present state of mind; it is impossible for us to stand still; therefore, we are in a state of either progression or retrogression. Upon us rests a big responsibility, and I am confident that none will falter in our determination to continue to progress, and to surpass, if possible, the high standard of good work and harmonious fellowship set by the splendid records of past years. We are all called upon to give ourselves wholeheartedly to this task; so, with the earnest support and hearty co-operation of each and every member throughout the length and breadth of our Golden State, can we not make of this a year unequalled in its success?

" 'Onward, my Sisters, yonder is the goal
Toward which our zealous footsteps ever tread.
Onward, and know not fear. There is no end
To mark the limit of a hopeful soul.
Beneath the sunlit heaven's azure bowl
Our love must grow, our lives must ever lend
Constructive thoughts to noble truths that bend
The spirit nearer the ideal role.'

"I thank you again for the honor you have conferred upon me personally, and upon my home Parlor—Copa de Oro, 'Cup of Gold'."

BERTHA ADELE BRIGGS.
Grand President, N.D.G.W.

After the applause which followed her address, Grand President Briggs announced her appointments. It is predicted the new Grand Parlor year will witness a phenomenal growth in the Order, as the grand officers and members are united in their determination to put the Order of Native Daughters where it rightfully belongs—at the head of all women's organizations in California. Those who will serve the Grand Parlor, as appointees of the Grand President, include:

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

MIDSEASON'S CLOTHES HAVE AN AIR of simplicity that is really the result of extravagant ideas and rather costly fabrics. From experience we all know how difficult it is to dress simply and inexpensively. It is an art not revealed to everyone. Much depends on the manner in which a garment is worn, the charm being largely imparted by the woman herself.

There are certain little schemes that help in securing the right effect of simplicity without too great an outlay of money. Certain of the models indicate a happy mingling of materials, a combination of colors, and a unison of odd ideas that have contributed not only to the gaiety of clothes, but to the economy thereof.

It has been found very possible to impart the needful note of simplicity to a summer dress by the use of organdie in the trimming. This discovery is not new this season, having been successfully attempted two seasons ago. Nevertheless, the idea has been elaborated considerably since the initial experiments, and so it it comes about that organdie finds itself happily at home whether in association with silk, with cotton, with wool or with lace.

There is a charming model of coin-spot foulard, in jade green, with spots in white, that has a surplice vestee and immense sash ends of white organdie. There are also narrow cuffs of organdie. This particular frock of jade foulard employs a puff drapery, higher on one side than the other. The skirt is short; that is, about twelve inches from the floor.

The plaited dresses are "it" this season. Sometimes the plaits are merely run from the waist to the hem of the skirt, and some times they are shown down the back only, the sides and front remaining flat and unplaited. This, by the way, is considered more novel, but, at the same time, it is less youthful. There are frocks that show plaited sleeves, or a short plaited cape hanging from the back of a plain bodice. Flounces of plaited lace, of satin, or of taffeta are freely used on all manner of summer dresses.

Speaking of flounces, a stunning model is of Egyptian blue satin. The skirt is built on enswathing lines, and has a spiral line of flounces of maline; the latter is repeated on the extremely short sleeves, and in narrowed line on the deeply-cut front of the bodice, the "V" line being partly filled in with a modest band of white satin.

Although the waistline has lengthened, the hipline has not become constrained. There is a certain model which will be sure to please the women because of its sanity united with its style. The slim bodice extends several inches below the normal line, and to its lower edge is attached a skirt with looped drapery over the hips in a gradually narrowing line to the ankle. The sleeves are short, the neck is narrow and in a "V" outline. The trimming of chiffon in contrasting color is used for a low-posed sash, for the harness collar, and for the sleeve and neck edging. The satin of the original may readily be duplicated by linen pongee or English sateen.

For practical and informal summer wear, one of the most recent examples of a good-looking warm-weather frock is a plaited skirt of checked gingham and a blouse of white linen. The latter has something of a belted coat effect, which gives it a note of dignity, and it is trimmed with folds of the gingham.

Many of the blouses and coat ideas, by the way, are fashioned in slip-over arrangement which makes a little less bother in the finishing of the garment, dispensing with snappers and other fastening devices. Checked organdie embroidered in colored dots, pin-tucked biscuit colored organdie, filet and valenciennes lace trimmed organdie all serve for a dainty understudy to the not-to-be-denied sweater blouse. Also, for wear with sweaters, is a whole tribe of sheer white net and organdie creations, sleeveless, and straight as to body, but with a novel collection of frills down the front For the slip-over sweater, there is an ornamented collar and a short frill

Vests are not only ornamental as to fronts, but have tunic bottoms worn on the outside of the skirt and extending around the waist; these are sometimes called tunic guimpe. A frilled bolero guimpe is usually attractive; it is a fine plaited lace frilling used aronnd the "V"-shaped neck as a double frill, down the center front and below a velvet ribbon. These ribbons are sometimes made of the Roman stripes.

Odd little separate blouses have made their way into the shops. They are somewhat like the bright-colored tricolette basques so much sought after for all sorts of wear. The jersey weaves are worn plain for sports and embroidered for dressup. The peplums are not long, but short and jaunty seems to be their motto.

The slip-on blouse of figured georgette crepe or of taffeta is favored. It often has a double ruche, not only around the peplum, but abont the low, round neck and the short sleeves. The ruche is not pinked like many of its taffeta sisters, but is picot edged.

The tailored waist, tucking itself in at the skirt belt in good old-fashioned style, is still not quite a thing of the past. There is always a demand for it in the sports woman's wardrobe, and once and awhile it claims attention on its owwn accounut.

There, for example, is the lure of the unexpected, as when the newest of new materials—colored dotted swiss—gets itself made up on tailored lines. The dotted swiss, it may be said, is white, dotted in pastel colored dots, such as blue, green, mauve, yellow or pale rose. In sheer handkerchief linen a similar waist has colored one-inch plaiting around the finishing edges of its lines. For golf or tennis it has its charm of coolness added to that of correctness.

It is a gay season of colors, canary, mulberry, pumpkin, tangerine, coral, flame, lilac, Nile green being some of the shades. Green has been the color of colors for the new season, and there is no question that its popularity will take it right through the warm weather months. It fades, of course, but not so much as during the past seasons when dyes were being experimented with.

Color and the great outdoor life are inseparably associated, and it is well if one can suggest color endurance to an undecided one. For example, there is a theory that pink stands the strong light of day better than blue, and for evening wear pink has more "life" than blue, the latter being more apt to take on a grayish hue unless, of course, it is of the turquoise, peacock or sapphire shade.

Deep pink will appear to reflect yellow hues, and the latter assumes the color character of certain shades of pink under artificial light. It is well, too, to match the hosiery, slippers, scarf and fan with the dress materials under the light of electricity. Otherwise there is apt to be astonishment, when gown and accessories meet for the first time, so to speak, after the lights have been turned on. Of course, we all know that pink is the favorite underwear color, especially in silk combinations and the like, because when washed it does not turn yellow as does white.

Gray is very fashionable for summer. Usually it fades all one color, if it fades at all. It may be remarked, in passing, that a lot of red is being used to trim gray frocks for the low-placed girdles, the facing of collars and the sleeves. Red is not becoming to all women, but it is vastly becoming to the minority.

Nothing is sweeter nor more girlish for misses than dainty dotted swiss dresses. Particularly since they abound in colors to suit the dark or fair. The material is so crisp looking and attractive that it needs no ornameatation to bring out its charm. With frills and tucks and a crushed sash about the waist line, or a narrow girdle with a large butterfly bow of organdie to match, what daintier picture could the little one desire? Taffeta and plaited crepe de chine make up nicely with ribbons.

Native Sons of the Golden West

Grand President Reception Guest.

Martinez—Grand President James F. Hoey was tendered a reception at the city hall by the Parlors of his home county, Contra Costa, and was greeted by an immense crowd of members of the Order and friends. The Parlors that joined in the public testimonial of high esteem for Contra Costa's honored Native Son were General Winn 32 (Antioch), Mount Diablo 101 (Martinez), Byron 170, Carquinez 205 (Crockett), Richmond 217, Concord 245 and Diamond 246 (Pittsburg).

D.D.G.P. J. T. Belshaw of Antioch delivered the address of welcome, and among the speakers were Grand Trustee Frank M. Carr, of Oakland; Grand Trustee James A. Wilson, of San Francisco; Dr. C. R. Blake, president, and George Black of Richmond Parlor; Frank Buckley, president, and W. G. H. Croxon of Diamond Parlor; P. M. Soto and Judge A. S. Ormsby of Concord Parlor; Bob Armstrong, president, of Byron Parlor; Robert Hall and Richard Trembath of General Winn Parlor; Frank L. Glass and Martin W. Joost of Mount Diablo Parlor. Grand President Hoey, a member of the latter Parlor, also spoke, and thanked his co-workers for the many kind things said concerning him. An orchestra furnished music throughout the evening, and entertainers completed the program.

A banquet served by the Martinez Women's Club, followed. Senator Will R. Sharkey presided as toastmaster, and there were several short addresses. Albin McMahon favored with a couple of vocal selections. Mount Diablo Parlor had the arrangements of the evening in charge, its committee being composed of Senator Will R. Sharkey, George P. Upham, H. J. Wilson, J. A. Schweinitzer, George T. Barkley.

Gets Early Start on Big Job.

Stockton—Stockton having been awarded the 1921 Grand Parlor by the San Diego Grand Parlor, as soon as the members of Stockton 7 returned they began to plan to make next year's Grand Parlor the greatest in the Order's history. Both Parlors of Native Daughters—Joaquin 5 and Caliz de Oro 206—tendered their support, and it was gladly accepted.

Every effort will be made to bring an immense crowd of visitors—both Native Daughters and Native Sons—to Stockton on this occasion, and to attract them an elaborate entertainment program will be provided. A start to raise the funds for this purpose was made June 4, when a two-day fiesta, termed "The Natives in Jazz Land," was featured and proved a big success. Other entertainments will follow, as Stockton Parlor proposes to raise all its Grand Parlor funds in this manner.

Celebrates Anniversary.

Oakland—The tenth anniversary of Fruitvale 252 was observed June 3 with a banquet and dance, at which members of Fruitvale 177, N.D.G.W., were special guests and were no small contributors to the evening's great success. The hall was beautifully decorated, the menu was excellent, and the birthday party thoroughly enjoyed. During the banquet the following entertainment was provided, Senator George J. Hans, treasurer of the Parlor, presiding: Song, Miss Consuelo de Lavaga; recitation, Mrs. Mae Cronin; piano solo-classic, Miss Hazel Gaukroger; piano jazz solo, Miss de Lavaga; violin solo, Bernard Halligan, Miss Daisy Walker accompanist; comic sketch, "Hanging Out the Wash," members of Fruitvale 177, N.D.G.W.—Misses Pauline Cleu, Anna Lingelser, Lucille Mondragon, Hazel Gaukroger, Josephine Suarez, Alice Knobchel, Jewel Dumarez, Anna Kauffmann, Mrs. Gertrude Grey.

After the banquet dancing held sway. The affair was managed by a committee composed of James P. Cronin (chairman), Ray B. Felton, Joseph Ehrhart, E. E. Goodban, John Dapello, assisted by the wives of the committeemen, all members of Fruitvale 177, N.D.G.W. The Pep and Jazz Club of Fritvale Parlor has adopted this slogan: "300 Members Next Birthday, June 2, 1921." Watch Fruitvale grow!

Has Visit From Neighbors.

Sacramento—Sacramento 3 still has hopes of occupying the coveted place at the head of the membership list of Parlors; with the initiation of six candidates May 27, the membership of the Parlor had been increased thirty-one since January 1.

A large crowd of Stockton 7 members came over May 27 by special train and paid Sacramento Parlor a fraternal visit. The officers of No. 7 exemplified the ritual, a program was presented, refreshments served, and a delightful evening spent.

Opposes Sonoma County Cut-up.

Sonoma City—Sonoma 111 is emphatically opposed to the scheme under way to create at the next Legislature session a new county out of portions of Sonoma and Marin Counties, and has unanimously adopted this resolution:

> Whereas, There is an attempt being made by certain designing persons residing in Petaluma and vicinity to bring about a division of imperial Sonoma County, and to create a new county, which would include a portion of peerless Sonoma Valley; and whereas, such division would be detrimental to the commercial, social and educational interest of Sonoma Valley; be it
> Resolved, That Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, N.S.G.W., embracing some one hundred members, residents of the valley and including many of the most prominent business men and agriculturists, is hereby conscientiously opposed to such division; and furthermore, it is the expressed wish and desire of every member of Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, N.S.G.W., that our matchless "Valley of the Moon," with its wealth of historic associations, its pioneer landmarks, its beauty and sentiment, remain as it is—undivided.

Every Month Brings Increase.

Chico—Old Chico 21 has joined the list of "forward" Parlors, and has made big additions to its membership-roll. During May a large class of candidates was initiated, nine more were added during June, and there are already fifteen additional candidates waiting for the July initiation, when, Secretary F. M. Moore predicts, a class of not less than twenty-five will be initiated.

New Deputy for District 18.

Marysville—Leolin T. Siunott, a former past president of Argonaut 8 (Oroville) and now president of Marysville 6, has been appointed by Grand President James F. Hoey District Deputy Grand President for District 18, embracing Marysville 6, Rainbow 40 (Wheatland) and Silver Star 63 (Lincoln), to succeed D.D.G.P. G. R. Akins of Rainbow Parlor.

Celebrates Thirty-third Anniversary.

Courtland—June 5 Courtland 106 gave in its own hall its thirty-third anniversary banquet, with the charter members as honor guests. Delegations from Sacramento 3, Sunset 26, Sutter Fort 241, Elk Grove 41, Stockton 7 and Berkeley 210 accepted the invitation and were present. Grand Third Vice-president William J. Hayes, in his speech showed his whole-hearted and sincere interest in the many great works of the Native Sons, and all those present were deeply impressed by his remarks. Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington gave in his able way a very fine talk on Americanism; to say that those who were at the table were held spellbound by his speech, would be putting it mildly. It is to be regretted that all Native Sons did not hear that speech, as all who did could not help but be better Native Sons and Americans. The event of the evening was the coming back into the Parlor of two of the charter members who have been out for years. This makes it possible for Courtland to say that all its living charter members are active members of the Parlor. The following brothers responded for their respective Parlors: Marco Zarick for Sacramento, Ed Reese for Sunset, C. L. Katzenstein for Sutter Fort, J. A. Flinn for Berkeley, and E. Polhemus for Elk Grove.

June 12 Courtland Parlor held its annual ball. As this is "the big event of the year on the river," it was well attended and was a great success. The surrounding country for thirty miles was represented in the crowd that filled the floor to the limit. The music was furnished by an orchestra from Berkeley Parlor. All the "old timers" and also the "jazz fiends" were loud in their praise for the playing of the boys from 210. All had a very good time, and when daylight came and broke up the dance only the orchestra was glad.

Opposes Proposed Yosemite Elevator.

Merced—Yosemite 24 has elected these officers who will be installed by D.D.G.P. I. H. Reuter during July at a joint public installation with officers of Veritas 75, N.D.G.W.: C. W. Kahl, P.P.; Stanley Peard, P.; Geo. Boyd, 1V.P.; Edw. Peard, 2V.P.; Lester Lord, 3V.P.; Earl Kendrick, M.; J. A. Boyd, I.S.; Robt. Cothran, O.S.; I. H. Reuter, C. R. Roduner, T. W. Fowler, Trs.; W. T. Clough, R.S.; J. C. Cocoanaur, F.S.; G. E. Kibby, T.; Dr. C. W. Kahl, Dr. D. W. Zirker, Sgns.; W. H. Halversen, K. E. Wood, Organists. Yosemite is going to do its full share in making the term of Grand President James F. Hoey a big success.

There being considerable talk about concessionaires building an elevator in Yosemite Valley to haul sightseers from the floor of the valley to Glacier Point, Yosemite Parlor has adopted the following resolution, proposed by Grand Inside Sentinel I. H. Reuter:

> Whereas, Yosemite Parlor, No. 24, Native Sons of the Golden West, is informed that certain concessionaires propose to build, maintain and operate an elevator from the floor of Yosemite Valley to Glacier Point, above said valley; and whereas, in the opinion of said Parlor such an enterprise would tend to commercialize said valley and would also disfigure the walls and detract from the beauty thereof; be it
> Resolved, That this Parlor records its protest and objections to the installation of such elevator, and that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West for such action as it may deem advisable.

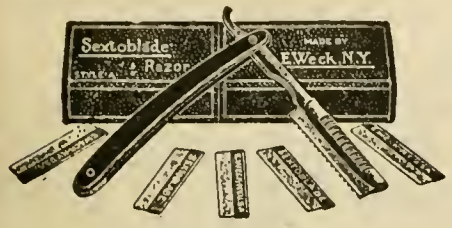

Getting Ready for Admission Day.

Sacramento—The local Parlors—Sacramento 3, Sunset 26 and Sutter Fort 241—have appointed a joint Admission Day Celebration Committee which is making arrangements for the Capital City's participation in the big September 9 celebration at San Francisco. C. A. Teutschel is chairman and G. E. Rust secretary of the joint committee.

The Parlors plan to make a record showing this Admission Day, and will introduce some new features. To raise funds to carry out the plans, Joyland was taken over June 26, which was designated "Native Sons' Day." The slogan adopted, "Be With Us, or Be Sorry," brought out a big crowd to enjoy the attractions provided.

Conducts Memorial Exercises.

Ferndale—Under the auspices of Ferndale 93, Memorial Day was appropriately observed here by all the citizens. A procession formed at noon and proceeded to Pythian Castle, where the following program was presented: Selection, band; prayer, Rev. R. D. Douglass; remarks, F. Early, president of the day; recitation, Miss Bertha Christen; oration, Hon. F. J. Cummings.

After the exercises the procession was re-formed and proceeded to the cemetery, where the graves were decorated. At that of the "unknown," a quartet sang, a salute was fired, all joined in a chorus, and taps were sounded.

Ferndale, one of the fastest-growing Parlors in the Order, initiated five candidates June 7, bringing its total membership to 240. J. J. Bognuda has been chosen president for the July-December term.

More Committees Appointed.

Martinez—Grand President James F. Hoey has named the following additional special committees, authorized by the San Diego Grand Parlor:

Joint Installation Ceremonies (to work with committee from Native Daughters)—Frank A. Bonivert (El Dorado 52), C. R. O'Donnell (Hesperian 137), Fred H. Jung (Grand Secretary).

Installation Ceremony (called for by Resolution 56)—Frank A. Bonivert (El Dorado 52), C. R. O'Donnell (Hesperian 137), J. T. Regan (South San Francisco 157), H. B. Scudder (Grand Marshal), James Farmin (Palo Alto 216), J. A. Plunkett (Oakland 50), Charles A. Thompson (Grand Trustee), G. F. Black (Richmond 217), W. C. Neumiller (Stockton 7).

Conference with Central Homeless Children Committee (relative to trophy for Parlor making greatest percapita donation)—E. F. Garrison (Athens 195), J. R. Belshaw (General Winn 32), Percy A. Marchant (Guadalupe 231), Walter L. Chrisman (San Jose 22).

SIGN UP, FOR CALIFORNIA!

If you're loyal to California's best interests, sign the initiative petitions to get on the November ballot laws that will save her from the Jap menace. Don't wait to be asked; look up the petition circulators, and aid this worthy cause by voluntarily placing your name on the list of those who fear neither the Japs nor the pro-Japs.

Many Enjoy Picnic.

San Bernardino—About 250 enjoyed the picnic of Arrowhead 110 in Devil Canyon June 13. Fifty autos conveyed the picnickers and their well-filled lunch-baskets to the site. The time was spent in hiking, fishing, and a horseshoe tournament. Charles McElvaine, John Andreson, Jr., Edward Wall, Ralph Logdson and Herman Taylor were in charge of the outing.

Against Mutilating Lake Tahoe.

San Francisco—Pacific 10 has passed a resolution unqualifiedly condemning all plans or schemes that tend to commercialize Lake Tahoe, setting forth that there are ample sources of water available for irrigation and power purposes without destroying the beauty spots of the state. Copies of the resolution have been sent to California's representatives in the National Congress, the press, etc.

Activity Brings Success.

Berkeley—Grand President James F. Hoey has set the membership mark of the Order at 100,000, and that pinnacle of success will be reached if the start of Berkeley 210 is at all significant. Since the return of the delegates from the San Diego Grand Parlor, or within the past six weeks, Berkeley Parlor has secured more than twenty applications and initiated sixteen candidates, thus showing a net gain of 9 percent. Aside from the efforts being put forth to secure new members, the Parlor is waging another campaign—"activity." The officers have found that the more they undertake the more support they get, and the larger the attendance for each succeeding event.

April 27 they held a reception in honor of the returned delegates; May 4 a class initiation; May 11 a reception and banquet in honor of the newly-elected Grand Third Vice-president, William J. Hayes. A large delegation of visiting brothers was present on this latter occasion, the roll-book showing members from as far south as Ramona 109

GREETINGS

Hollister, June 15, 1920.

To the Officers and Members of the Subordinate Parlors,
Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Dear Sisters:

To you, my co-laborers, who have conferred upon me the greatest honor that may come to a member of our beloved Order, loving greetings are extended, with grateful appreciation of the confidence you have manifested in electing me to this exalted position. Keenly realizing that, with honors come cares and responsibilities, I shall endeavor faithfully and to the best of my ability to perform each day the tasks that devolve upon me, assuring you that the duties of servitude as your Grand President will ever be a labor of love.

Let us make our objective goal during the year the completion or strengthening of the various projects now under way, and toward which our every effort should be directed. Only by fulfilling the dreams of past years, for which loving hands have labored long, may we prove to the world our plans are not idle boasting.

Realizing the importance of giving publicity to the splendid activities of the Order, a committee of three, chosen from different sections of the state, has been appointed, whose duty it shall be to make known to the world what we are doing along social, civic and fraternal lines. The members of the Order are earnestly requested to send to this committee, to your local press, and to The Grizzly Bear Magazine accounts of any work in hand. Thus may we receive just recognition for good work accomplished.

Onward and upward has our great fraternity progressed in peace and harmony. Let us endeavor to continue the good work, with the hope that the Native Daughters of the Golden West will steadily increase in membership and in the scope of our activities, thereby making the organization stronger and better fitted to accomplish the great results to which we aspire. As the gates of a new fraternal year swing outward at our touch, let us lift our standard to loftier heights and dedicate our beautiful Order anew to the great purposes that gave it birth.

"Led on by noble purpose, which commands us to endure,
We have multitudes to conquer, and our aim it must be sure.
Our weapons are of metal pure, made brighter by their use,
And when presented to our foe bring forth the flag of truce.

"Kind words our ammunition. With no poisoned arrow darts
Do we pierce our living targets, which are the human hearts.
Marching onward is our army, recruiting as we go;
Love and truth the passwords, vanquished is our foe."

Greater than our responsibilities to our fraternity are our duties to our country. Our ritual teaches us to be loyal to the Stars and Stripes. In these days of unrest that abound throughout the lands of the globe, our first duty as true American citizens is to lend our every effort to the thorough Americanization of ourselves and those about us. Let every true and patriotic Daughter of the Golden West pledge herself to the support of law and order and to the extermination of anarchy and disloyalty. Thus may we prove our worth as American citizens.

With the assurance of your hearty and cordial support, I go forth with great hopes for the future. May the coming year and those that are to follow bring to you all that is good, all that is desirable and essential to your happiness and well-being.

Sincerely and fraternally in P. D. F. A.,

Bertha Adele Briggs

Grand President, N.D.G.W.

Surprise Supper for Initiate.

San Francisco—Keith 137 has initiated Helen Wentworth Fairbairn, a talented Berkeleyan, niece of President Helen Mann. Rosalie Andrews, in a few words of welcome, presented the initiate with a beautiful basket of flowers, and she graciously responded. A surprise supper, arranged by Genevieve Martell, Jeannette Lochbaum, Alice Gally and Helen Mann, was enjoyed by all in attendance.

New Parlor Instituted.

Santa Rosa—The last official act of Grand President Mary E. Bell was the institution of a new Parlor—Santa Rosa 217—here May 29 with twenty-eight charter members. She was assisted by Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, Past Grand President Emma Gruber-Foley of San Anselmo and D.D.G.P. Veda Vollers of San Rafael. Kathryn Quigley was the organizer. Among the visitors was a large delegation from Marinita 198 (San Rafael). Following the institution ceremonies, Santa Rosa 28, N.S.G.W., entertained at a banquet.

Officers of the new Parlor include: Alice Gard Grogan, Charter P.P., Kathryn B. Quigley, P.; Lonie E. Allegrini, 1V.P.; Adelia Clegg Golla, 2V.P.; Freda Meese, 3V.P.; Margaret Hockin Gambini, R.S.; Angeline Lepori, F.S.; Josie Watson, T.; Alice Gemetti, M.; Ruby Wahl Gambini, I.S.; Hazel Bigham, O.S.; Rose L. Palmer, Lulu Colburn Cockrill, Lila A. Sullivan, Trs.; Drs. Elizabeth Lane, R. E. Hamlin, E. M. Yates, Sgns.

Grand Vice-president Reception Guest.

Oakland—June 14 being Flag Day, was selected as the most appropriate occasion to tender the newly-elected Grand Vice-president, Dr. Victory A. Derrick of Aloha 106, a fitting reception by the Past Presidents' Association, No. 2, of Alameda County.

Much praise is accorded the committee of arrangements, Anna Silva and Sarah Deasy of Brooklyn 157, for the program, table decorations and sumptuous banquet served in honor of the distinguished member of the association. Presentations were made to and response given by Grand Vice-president Dr. Victory A. Derrick, Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher and Mary Hatherly, president of the association. The absence of Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, on account of the illness of her mother, and Grand Trustee Mary F. Mitchell was regretted, both being members of the association. A feature of the evening was the reading of a poem by Anna Silva; it was written by Jas. Cronin of Fruitvale 252, N.S.G.W., and dedicated to Grand Vice-president Dr. Victory A. Derrick.

Loyal Little Friend.

San Francisco—Orinda 56 offers the following letter for publication, with the explanation that Arvid Miller was one of the entertainers at its Christmas party; her inability to again favor the Parlor at public installation of officers, also her wish to thank the Parlor for a token sent while she was ill, prompted the writing of the letter, which is best given in her own words:

To the Members of
Orinda Parlor, No. 56, N.D.G.W.
Dear Friends:

You were all very good to send me the nice box of candy and paper dollies. I have the dollies dressed and the candy is fine.

Miss Dellwig asked me to take part on Friday night, but I am very sorry I cannot be there, as I am just getting over the measles. I surely will recite for you some other time. I liked your Christmas party very much.

Can't a little six-year-old girl like me be a Native Daughter? Thanking you all for everything, I am

Your little friend,
ARVID MILLER.

Orinda Parlor is proud and happy to claim as its friend little Arvid Miller, and anticipates the time when she will join the Order.

Presents Flag for Landmark.

Sacramento—The American Flag that will float over historic Sutter Fort for a year was presented by Califia 22 Flag Day, June 14. The three local Parlors take turns in supplying a new flag each year for the fort.

Pioneer Mothers Entertained.

Long Beach—The afternoon of May 22, at the home of Mrs. Alpha Harper, the members of Long Beach 154 entertained the Pioneer Mothers. All were disappointed to hear of the illness that prevented the attendance of Mrs. Eliza P. Donner-Hougbton of Los Angeles, who was to be the guest of honor.

The time was spent in relating reminiscences and experiences, and in enjoying the program the committee had prepared. The afternoon closed with a luncheon served by Mrs. Harper's granddaughters.

Initiates Ten.

Oroville—Gold of Ophir 190 initiated a class of ten candidates June 2. Following the ritual's exemplification delicious refreshments were served.

Doing Nicely, Thank You.

Bieber—Mount Lassen 215 entertained Big Valley 211, N.S.G.W., at an informal comedy and banquet May 27. It was Mount Lassen's regular meeting night, and after the meeting, at which a candidate who resides twenty-five miles away in Fall River Valley was initiated, the Native Sons and a few outsiders were invited to step in to see the comedy. They all sat down to a banquet prepared by the Native Daughters, and to which all did ample justice. During the repast Mrs. Lura Wardwell, acting informally as toastmistress, called upon a number of the guests, but most of them seemed too much engrossed with the "work" before them to say very much, except to thank the "girls" for their hospitality.

Both Parlors in this little town are doing nicely, and increasing in membership. This certainly speaks well of a sparsely-settled country, where some members live twenty miles away, and where the town contains fewer than 100 inhabitants.

New Parlor Very Active.

Courtland—Five months after its institution Grand President Mary E. Bell visited Victory 216 and was well pleased with its progress. Several visitors were in attendance, and three candidates were initiated, bringing the membership to forty-two. The visitor was presented with a cut-glass relish dish. At a banquet which concluded the evening members of Courtland 106, N.S.G.W., were invited guests.

All the officers of the Parlor visited Sacramento on the occasion of Grand President Bell's official visit to the three Parlors there jointly, and a large delegation went to Elk Grove when she visited Liberty 213.

President Entertains.

San Diego—San Diego 208 initiated four candidates May 24, after which the beautiful memorial service of the ritual was carried out. A social hour followed, and all enjoyed ice-cream and cake.

The following Thursday, the officers were entertained at a luncheon at the home of President Hertzbrun. Yellow was the color scheme carried out in favors and decorations; place-cards were hand-painted, in the beautiful California poppy designs. Those present at the luncheon were Adele Koop, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Amelia Florentine, Eliza Burns, Helen Baranov, Pearl Simpson, Della Crolic, Sophia Finley, Alice Damarus, Alice E. McKie, Hattie Ziegler, Mrs. Goldbaum and the hostess, Rosina M. Hertzbrun.

Mothers Not Forgotten.

St. Helena—La Junta 203 did not forget Mothers' Day, and entertained the mothers at cards and a short program. Mrs. Harriet Davis, president, welcomed the guests, after which all joined in singing "America." "Mother" and "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," were sung by Misses Inez Forni and Lillian Nelson. Then followed readings, "The Little Old Log Cabin" by Miss Kate Campbell, and "The Best Sweatheart," an appropriate selection taken from The Grizzly Bear for May, by Miss Martha Klubescheidt. Cards were then resumed until refreshments were announced. In the banquet-room the tables were arranged in the form of a cross, in the center of which the mothers' color—white—was carried out in a large bouquet of roses. Yellow marigolds were also used for decorations, and at each place was a Cecil Bruner rose. The evening was a pleasant one, both for the honored guests and the hostesses.

"Game" Losers.

Hollister—The membership contest recently conducted by Copa de Oro 105 and Fremont 44, N.S.G.W., resulted in a victory for the latter, which initiated two more candidates than the former in the time allowed in the contest. The Native Daughters proved "game" losers, and entertained the members of Fremont Parlor at a most enjoyable dinner-dance June 4. While the dinner was being served an orchestra furnished splendid music. During the evening members of Fremont Parlor put on a couple of boxing bouts for the enlightenment of the hostesses.

Joint memorial services were held by members of Copa de Oro and Fremont Parlors May 26. The hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion, and the following simple, but impressive, program was rendered: Eulogy, Grand Vice-president Bertha A. Briggs; vocal solo, Mrs. Lorena Johnson; roll-call of deceased Native Daughters, Harriet Hooton; responses to the names of the three deceased during the past year, Bertha Stephens, Itha Brown, Justina Moran; depositing flowers beneath the scroll of deceased sisters, Gail Bonnel; vocal solo, Hugh Garner; roll-call of deceased Native Sons, J. E. Prendergast; eulogy, Judge G. H. Moore; depositing flowers in memory of N.S.G.W., Gene Winter; furling the flag, Hilda Thompson; benediction, Rev. W. A. McCausland.

SIGN UP, FOR CALIFORNIA!

If you're loyal to California's best interests, sign the initiative petitions to get on the November ballot laws that will save her from the Jap menace. Don't wait to be asked; look up the petition circulators, and aid this worthy cause by voluntarily placing your name on the list of those who fear neither the Japs nor the pro-Japs.

Presents Flag to Home Town.

Truckee—Snow Peak 176 celebrated Flag Day, June 14, by presenting a beautiful silk flag to this town at a public reception. W. B. Gelalt, president Chamber Commerce, accepted the appreciated gift.

Has Many Guests.

Grass Valley—Manzanita 29 entertained the mothers at the annual Mother's Night anniversary, a splendid program being rendered. Past Grand President Allison F. Watt gave the address of welcome and members of the Parlor danced the maypole dance.

Each mother was presented with a white carnation and fern. Dainty seasonable refreshments were served. Several visitors from Laurel 6 (Nevada City), among them D.D.G.P. Elizabeth Flewellen and President Julia Inghrue were in attendance, also about fifty guests.

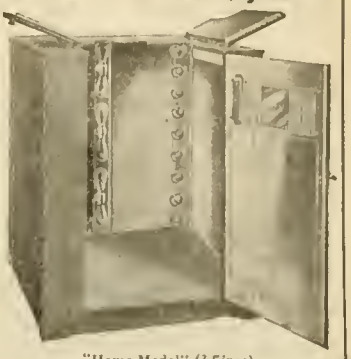

Showers for June Brides.

San Rafael—Marinita 198 celebrated its eighth birthday anniversary with a grand reunion June 7. Three candidates were initiated, making twenty additions for this year. After the meeting light refreshments were served. Gene Frances Whitmore, a month-old native daughter, was a guest.

Three members of Marinita Parlor, who became June brides, were recently showered. That for Miss Myra Daly was held at the home of Miss Marguerite Miehling, and for Miss Marie Lafargue and Miss Julia Souza, president, at the former's home.

NATIVE DAUGHTER NEWS

Initiates Five.

Vallejo—Vallejo 195 was favored with a visit from Grand President Mary E. Bell May 19. In addition to a large number of members present to greet her, were visitors from Fremont, Darina, El Dorado, Alta and Buena Vista Parlors of San Francisco.

Five candidates were initiated, the officers performing the initiatory ceremonies in a creditable manner. Following the close of meeting refreshments were served in the banquet hall. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Past Grand President Emma W. Humphrey of Reno, Nevada, attended the Republican National Convention at Chicago last month, and then went to Des Moines, Iowa, where she delivered an address on "How Clubwomen Can Raise the Standard of Efficiency in State Institutions" at the biennial convention of Women's Clubs of America.

The marriage of Orinda L. Gunther and Raymond M. Giannini, solemnized at St. Mark's Church, San Francisco, June 20, was witnessed by a large circle of friends and relatives. Elmer Gunther, a brother, and Charlotte Gunther, a sister, of the bride were the attendants, the bride being given away by her father, G. C. Gunther. It was a Native Daughter and Native Son gathering, both bride and groom being affiliated with the Orders, many members of which showed a keen interest in the happy ending of this romance. The bride was attired in white silk, with veil and orange blossams; the bridesmaid in pink silk. At the home of the young couple, a reception followed the ceremony; here were viewed a host of presents that reflected the popularity of the bride. A wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents. The honeymoon is being spent in the southern part of the state.

(Los Angeles) and as far north as Sacramento and Courtland. May 18 another class initiation was held, and on the same evening a past presidents' team from Berkeley Parlor rendered the ritualistic work at Piedmont 120 (Oakland). May 22 a dance was held, from which the social fund realized nearly $100.

June 1 the election of officers was held, and for three of the offices a third ballot was taken before the winner was declared; more "pep." June 5 four of Berkeley Parlor's members accompanied Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington, Grand Third Vice-president William J. Hayes, and another orator, Philip M. Carey, on a trip by auto to the thirty-third annual banquet of Courtland 106. This banquet was such a success as only a Native Son Parlor could boast of. Eighty percent of Courtland Parlor's membership were present, including all of the surviving charter members—five in number. May we ask here, on behalf of Courtland Parlor, what other Parlor can boast of having on its roster the names of all living charter members of thirty years or more membership? June 8 Berkeley Parlor again initiated a class, and formulated plans for a trip to Courtland with the Berkeley Parlor orchestra, which played on June 12 for the thirty-third annual ball of Courtland Parlor.

June 29 Bear Flag 151, N.D.G.W., was entertained by Berkeley Parlor, and during the coming month a joint picnic will be held. July 6 Grand Trustee James A. Wilson will make his official visit to the Parlor, and D.D.G.P. A. Sousa will install the officers for the ensuing term. Berkeley Parlor wants action. It offers to challenge the ritualistic team of any Parlor, and will also pit its four, five, or six-piece orchestra against that of any other Parlor's dance-music combination.

San Jose—Grand President James F. Hoey having given his permission, Garden City 82 was on June 9 formally consolidated with San Jose 22.

Past Presidents Banquet Grand President.

Oakland—June 7 East Bay Assembly, No. 3, Past Presidents' Association, tendered a reception to Grand President James F. Hoey of Martinez, a member of that Assembly. Five candidates were initiated and six additional applications filed, which denotes progress.

In the banquet-room, where a repast was served, remarks were made by Grand President Hoey, Grand Third Vice-president William J. Hayes, D.D.G.P. Jas. F. Stanley, O'Donnell and C. L. McInerney of San Francisco Assembly No. 1, and Geo. J. Hans and J. G. Beaty of East Bay Assembly.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Russell Scott (Santa Lucia 97) of Salinas paid a brief visit to Los Angeles last month.

Grand President James F. Hoey of Martinez was a visitor to Los Angeles last month.

Frank M. Silva (Napa 62) of San Francisco has been appointed United States Attorney for the Northern District of California.

United States Senator James D. Phelan (Pacific 10) of San Francisco will deliver the Fourth of July oration at Sacramento.

Historiographer Frank C. Merritt, since 1910 assistant city clerk of Oakland, is a candidate for supervisor of Alameda County.

Past Grand President Judge Charles E. McLaughlin of Sacramento delivered the Memorial Day oration at Vallejo.

T. M. McAuliffe (Dolores 208) of San Francisco, associated with the inheritance tax department of the State Controller's office, paid a short visit last month to Los Angeles.

Alfred Dalton (Sutter Fort 241) of Sacramento, field deputy of the State Real Estate Department, was in Los Angeles and the southern part of the state last month on business.

William Strittmatter of Sansalito, past president Sea Point 158 and District Deputy for District 23, 23-ed May 22, when he was united in marriage to Miss Verna Hauert, second vice-president of Marinita 198, N.D.G.W. (San Rafael).

OUR PIONEER GOLD MINERS

Enchanted with hope that there was wealth in this soil,
They followed its lure from far-away lands.
They built here their homes with infinite toil,
Helped carve out our state with their own willing hands.

The blossoms blushed bright for some of the host,
Their rivers of joy flowed on like a dream.
And millions of gold was their triumph and boast,
Their sun mounted higher with success in his beams.

But many were chastened, subdued by their losses,
Disappointed in heart and embittered in soul.
The multiplied years lent weight to their crosses
That smothered their fire as they pressed toward their goal.

Their campfires are out, their lifework is finished;
Their slow steps approach the shadows of gloom.
Our love for these heroes will ne'er be diminished
When they're laid down in rest and their couch is a tomb.

Many are sleeping not far from our quaint streets
That rang with their mirth in the old days of gold.
The town and its heroes, while muffled drums beat,
Are both passing away like the gold days of old.

If once these did dream of terrestial renown,
They now have been granted celestial reward:
The palm branch of peace and the robe and the crown,
Conferred, are they not, by the hand of our Lord?

—Trinity Journal (Weaverville).

BIG HEARTED "BILL" HEWSEN CALLED.

Byron—William Henry Hewsen, a past president of Byron Parlor, No. 170, N.S.G.W., who died on the 16th day of May, was born at Bethany, in the San Joaquin Valley, where he lived continuously and became one of the progressive farmers of that community. He had been a sufferer for over a year and his death was expected, yet the announcement was quite a shock to his many friends, for the reason that he was still practically a young man. The 17th day of November, 1896, he affiliated with Byron Parlor. His last wish was to have the Native Sons' services conducted at his funeral, and it was carried out by the members of the Parlor.

"Bill," as he was always called by his many friends, was one of those big-hearted men who could never do enough for those who were near and dear to him; those who came in contact with him could not help but love him for his kind and generous disposition. At the Admission Day celebrations he was always in line with his fellow-members, boosting for the Native Sons. Besides his beloved wife, there are left to mourn his loss a brother, George, and a sister, Mrs. Mayme Erne of Stockton.

In Memoriam

JOSEPH MONTEVERDE.

God Almighty, in His in6nite wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our Parlor, severing a link that bound us together, and calling to his eternal home our dearly beloved brother, Joseph Monteverde, after a lingering illness During bis illness he received all the care a devoted family and hrotherhood could hestow.

Whereas, During his life among us we know he lived such a true, upright, honest life, that be will be received in the Grand Parlor on High with honor, love and respect; we deeply deplore our loss, for to know him was to love him; we will miss his little deeds of kindnesa and brotherly love. It is no more than fitting that here we record our tribute of brotherly affection for Brother Monteverde, and may time console and lessen the grief of those loved ones be bas left to mourn his passing.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be apread upon the minutes of Amador Parlor, No. 17, N.S.G.W., a copy sent to the mother of deceased, a copy to The Grizzly Bear for publication, and that the Parlor's charter he draped in mourning for thirty days.

WILLIAM HENRY HEWSEN.

To the Officers and Members of Byron Parlor, No. 170, N.S.G.W.—Your committee appointed to draft and report resolutions of respect to the memory of William Henry Hewsen, who bas been a member of Byron Parlor, No. 170, Native Sona of the Golden West, for twenty-four yeara, and who waa a past president of the Parlor, beg to snbmit the following:

Whereaa, It has pleased Him Who holdeth the destiny of nations and individuals in His hand to take to Himself our dearly beloved brother, William Henry Hewsen, thus plunging tbia Parlor into most sincere mourning; and, wbereas, we have always recognized Brother Hewsen to be a good Native Son, for he ever had the welfare of this Parlor at heart, and as a citizen upright and manly upheld and obeyed bis country's laws; to those who are near and dear to him he fulfilled all claims with scrupulous fidelity, and as a friend was always steadfast; therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to the will of Him Who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind, we will ever mourn the loss of one who, by his kind and genial manner, won the confidence and esteem of all whose pleasure it was to know him, and we feel that the vacancy caused by his death can never be filled; and be it further resolved, that the charter of this Parlor be draped for thirty days, that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minntes of the Parlor, and that a copy be sent to the "Byron Times" and to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
W. J. LIVINGSTONE,
H. G. KRUMLAND,
A. J. LEGRAND,
Committee.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS HAVE GOOD TIME AT SAN JOSE GRAND PARLOR

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE LEISURE HOURS OF THE ATTENdants at the Tbirty-fourth Graud Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, in session at San Jose the week of June 7, were many, but all were fully occupied. Aside from tbe entertainment features arranged by the Native Daughters of the "Garden City," there were other recess attractions wbich were both interesting and iostructive.

Monday evening there was a well-attended reception. Grand Trustee Mary Frances Mitchell presided and extended San Jose's greetings and welcome. The following program was carried out: Vocal solo, "Star Spangled Banner," Stanley Egenes, presentation of city's keys, Councilman Joseph T. Brooks; acceptance of same, Grand President Mary E. Bell; vocal trio, "I Love Yon, California," Misses Velma Richmond, Jean Belloli, Betty Gallichotti, Mrs. D. J. Gairaud accompanist; piano solo, "Hungarian Rhapsody," Miss Naomi Hartman; Native Sons' welcome, Grand Trustee Charles A. Thompson; Pioneers' welcome, Alex Murgotten, secretary Santa Clara County Pioneer Society; soprano solo, "The End of a Perfect Day," Mrs. Richard F. Hagar, Mrs. Penniman accompanist.

Tuesday afternoon the Native Sons of San Jose aud Santa Clara were hosts, and took the Grand Parlor membcrs for an auto ride about Santa Clara Valley. It termiuated at Alum Rock Park, where a delicions spread of barbecued lamb and all the "fixins" was spread under the large oak trees. After the barbecne the guests enjoyed the beauties of the park, and danced. This delightful outing was carried out by these representatives of the four Parlors of Native Sons which nnited for the purpose: San Jose 22—Past Grand President Thomas Monahan, Joseph Lawrence, Leo R. Dossee, Joseph Soares, H. R. Tripp. Garden City 82—I. L. Koppel, H. W. McConias, W. A. Katen, James E. Payne, H. Schnittspan. Santa Clara 100—Grand Trustee Charles A. Tbompson, R. E. Morgan, A. G. Ruth. Observatory 177—A. B. Langford (chairman joint committee), H. I. Lee, H. J. Dougherty, T. F. Fuller. Numerons other local Native Sons and Native Daughters assisted in making this affair a success in every particular.

Wednesday afternoon the Grand Parlor members witnessed a garden fete at the Grant scbool, where Past Grand President Mamie Pierce-Carmichael is an instructor. The grounds were attractively decorated, and as a special compliment to the guests the neatly-attired children sang "I Love You, California," as the concluding number of an interesting program.

Wednesday evening was the grand ball. There were many beautiful gowns, the music was excellent, and the big crowd, which included a large delegation from Santa Clara Parlor of Native Sons, danced until 1 a. m. The grand march was led by Grand President Mary E. Bell and Grand Trustee Charles A. Thompson.

Lodge of Sorrow.

Thursday afternoon the Grand Parlor met in "open" session. Judge William H. Waste (Berkeley 210, N.S.G.W.), delivered an illustrated addiess on the "History of the California Missions" which was greatly appreciated. Secretary Mary E. Brusie spoke of the work of the Homeless Children Agency and illustrated her remarks with pictures of "our babies." Mrs. Dexter Knight spoke on "Thrift."

A Lodge of Sorrow, the first held by the Order, followed. It was arranged by Grand President Mary E. Bell, in memory of the sixty-four members who had died since the last (Berkeley) Grand Parlor. Past Grand President Clara K. Wittenmyer delivered a beautiful eulogy. Past Grand President Addie L. Moshcr offered up a prayer, and the following musical program was carried out: Solo, "Peace I Leave With You," Clara Gerard; violin solo, Miss Cecile Ellison; piano solo, Grand Organist Lillian B. Troy; chorus, "Sisters, Thou Art Gone to Rest," Grand Parlor.

Ritual Exemplification.

Thursday evening the ritual was splendidly exemplified by a picked team from San Jose 81 and Vendome 100 Parlors. "Mary E. Bell Parlor, No. 1920," was convened for the purpose, and about 500 members were in attendance. Grand President Mary E. Bell, Past Grand President Mamie P. Car-Michael, D.D.G.P. Emaline McDonald and Grand Trustee Mary Frances Mitchell were escorted to seats of houor. Grace Keast was the candidate.

Those who occupied the various stations were: Frances Plamondon, Sr.P.P.; Amelia Venturi, Jr.P.P.; Sadie Howell, P.P.; Mary Meyer, P.; Eva Locicero, 1V.P.; Mary Newton, 2V.P.; Anna Farusworth, 3V.P.; Beldon M. Gallagher, R.S.; Aura Lea Boomer, F.S.; Susie Bickford, T.; Helen Trengrove, M.; Esther Singleton, I.S.; Maude Haight, O.S.; Matilda Moak, Adelaide Morton, Maude Jury, Trs.; Ella Tognazzini, O.; Caroline Avery, Phyn.

A lot of fun was created by the reading of "mock" minutes, in which it was stated, among other things, that Santa Clara Prune, Alice Apricot, Sadie Alum Rock and Frankie Canneries had been reported fovarably upon by the physician. A letter was read from an aero club, wanting to train twenty-five young womeu to operate specially-made aeroplanes to transport all fruits direct from the tree to the table. Among the bills presented was one for 5 pounds of sugar at 80c per pound, witb an additional 50c for another increase in price while the bill was being made out.

Undertaking a Success.

All details for the Grand Parlor's entertainment were arranged by a joint committee from San Jose 81 and Vendome 100 Parlors, with Past Grand President Mamie Pierce-Carmichael as general chairman. The committee is to be congratulated upon the success of its big undertaking. All the visitors departed glad that they had had the opportunity to visit San Jose, and full of praise for her citizens in general and her Native Daughters in particular. Those who made up the various sub-committees included:

Reception—Grand Trustee Mary Frauces Mitchell (chairman), Maude Jury, Beldou Gallagher, Aura Lea Boomer, Josie Barboni, Bessie Tripp McCrone, Helen Trengrove, Amelia Hartman.

Finance—Matilda Moak (chairman), Sara Veit, Mabel Southeimer, Lotta Koppel, Aura Lea Boomer, Laura Gilleran, Frances Plammondon.

Entertainment—Mary Myers (chairman), Marjorie Ganong, Susie S. Bickford, Aura Lea Boomer, Beldon Gallagher.

Accommodations—Anna Farnsworth (chairmau), Helen Trengrove, Adelaide Morton, Elizabeth Gehrens, Eva Locicero, Mabel Southeimer.

E. J. DELOREY

Candidate for Supervisor
Second District
Los Angeles County

E. J. DELOREY is well known to the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, and also to the citizens of Los Angeles and throughout the State in general. His wife is a native daughter, and his son is a member of Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W., of Los Angeles. He has resided in Los Angeles for thirty-six years, and during that time has been an active man in the civic and bnsiness affairs.

Mr. Delorey was appointed by Governor Stephens to fill a vacancy on the Board of Supervisors, and while in that capacity made a splendid record. During his incumbency the one-and-a-quarter-million-dollar deficiency of Los Angeles County funds was made up and taxes reduced five cents on $100 valuation. Since his retirement, it may be noted, taxes have advanced thirty-fonr cents, on an increased valuation of sixty million dollars. This means it costs $4,500,000 more to rnn the Los Angeles County government.

The county employes seem to have an exceedingly warm spot in their hearts for Mr. Delorey, as he always gave them every consideration within his power and had an open ear for all their troubles.

Mr. Delorey is a director of the State Board of Agriculture, and a director in the Society of Pioneers of Southern California. He is a Mason and a member of Los Angeles Lodge, No. 99, B.P.O.E., of the Gamut Club and the Union League Club. His election as Supervisor in the Second District would mean much to the taxpayers, as Mr. Delorey is a level-headed man with thorough business methods.

Bert L. Farmer

Candidate for Supervisor
Fourth District
Los Angeles County

BERT L. FARMER, candidate for Supervisor in the Fourth Supervisorial District, has been a member of Los Angeles Parlor, No. 45, N.S.G.W., for the past twenty-five years. He is probably one of the best known men in the City of Los Angeles, having been connected with practically all affairs of public interest.

He was one of the very popular members of the Forty-second session of the State Legislature, representing the Seventy-first Assembly District, and is now serving his second term in the Los Angeles City Council.

Mr. Farmer has an extremely wide acquaintance among fraternal and civic organizations. Besides being a Native Son, he is a member of the Masonic Lodge, the Elks, Knights of Pythias, Eagles, Woodmen of the World, and he is also a member of the Union League Club, the City Club, and has a life membership in the Athletic Club.

The Fourth Supervisorial District includes the entire seacoast of Los Angeles County and that part of the City of Los Angeles south and west of the following lines: Beginning at Fifty-first street and east city limits; thence west to McKinley avenue; thence north to Vernon avenue; thence west to Figueroa street; thence north to Jefferson street; thence west to Hoover street; thence north to Seventh street; thence west to Vermont avenue; thence north to Wilshire boulevard; thence west to the city limits.

LOS ANGELES BULLETIN

SIGN UP, FOR CALIFORNIA!

PETITIONS THAT WILL GET ON THE November ballot an initiative measure which, it is believed by its sponsors, will put a stop to the grabbing of California's agricultural lands by Japs through "fake" corporations and guardianship proceedings, are in circulation, and are being liberally signed. In fact, circulators of the petition report that almost every registered voter not only willingly affixes his signature, but adds that he would consider it a pleasure to sign a hundred times, if possible.

Thousands of signatures are required, however, if this sorely-needed measure is to get on the November ballot, and quick action is necessary, for the time in which to file the initiative petition is very limited. There is no doubt that if the measure does appear upon the November ballot it will be overwhelmingly enacted by The People at the polls, despite the efforts of white-Japs and yellow-Japs to defeat it. The Japs are raising a big sum to campaign against this measure, but a large majority of The People know the imperative need of voting for the measure, and they cannot be bought or frightened into deserting California in her time of need.

Get your name on this initiative petition. Don't wait for the petition-circulators, all of whom are giving their time for the good of California, to hunt you up; show your loyalty by looking up the circulators. Petitions may be found at Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street, or at the office of The Grizzly Bear, 309-15 Wilcox building, Second and Spring streets.

Many petitions are in circulation. The circulators thereof are urged to get them filled up immediately, and to turn them in to the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Society, Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street, without further delay. Inaction and delay have lost many a battle; don't jeopardize the success of this battle in behalf of California by doing nothing, or doing it too late.—C. M. H.

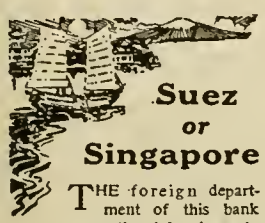

INITIATION AND BANQUET FOR ANNIVERSARY OBSERVANCE.

June 9 Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W., was thirty-three years old. The celebration of this event was conducted in a novel way. The committee in charge planned to give Ramona a birthday present in the form of a substantial increase in membership. A short campaign was had; the applications came in and the result is that the Parlor is now well over the 500 mark. The novel part of the plans of celebration was that the banquet, initiation and speaking were all had together on the 11th. In the dining-room of a local club the tables were arranged so as to leave space in the center to allow for the initiatory ceremony. The candidates were the guests of the Parlor—forty-three of them. In order to give Grand President James F. ("Jimmy") Hoey a little cheer to start him on his big job of running this Order, he was invited to be present to give the new members a welcome to the ranks.

The party was a happy affair. That Ramona still stands firmly in the hearts of its members was evidenced by the well-filled banquet hall. Among those present were many "old timers," who wabbled from the fireside to do honor to the occasion, the young ones with lots of pep, and those who took occasion to mistake the members of the ritual team, who were in evening dress, for the waiters.

At the conclusion of the banquet, President Walter Baskerville, after expressing his appreciation of the activities during his term, appointed the ritual team of the Past Presidents' Association to conduct the initiatory ceremony. Those who filled the initiatory chairs were: Senior past president, D.D.G.P. Walter D. Gilman of Los Angeles Parlor; junior past president, Grand Trustee Henry G. Bodkin of Corona Parlor; president, Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger of Ramona Parlor; first vice-president, John T. Newell of Los Angeles Parlor; second vice-president, A. E. Hamilton of Ramona Parlor; third vice-president, Robert L. Hanley of Ramona Parlor; marshal, Joseph P. Sproul of Corona Parlor; organist, Julius W. Krause of Ramona Parlor.

Grand First Vice-president Traeger assumed the roll of toastmaster, following the initiation. Grand President Hoey, being called upon, gave an eloquent recital of the work of the Order and presented an earnest plea to the initiates to be active. Response was made by George R. Dexter, on behalf of himself and those initiated. Edwin A. Meserve responded to the toast, "California," in an impressive manner, telling in vivid detail the wonderful history all Californians like so much to hear. The Parlor was honored with the presence of Senator R. F. Del Valle, the first president, who responded to the toast "Ramona"; the family home of Senator Del Valle was made world known as the home of Ramona, Helen Hunt Jackson's heroine. Those who formed Ramona Parlor gave it its name to honor its first president. The Senator told of the early days, and spoke feelingly of the patriotic lessons taught in the Order's ritual. He predicted the future of the Order as bringing it to the front rank of the great patriotic societies. Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, to whom belongs great credit for the present excellent condition of Ramona Parlor, said that his years of active service in the Order was inspired because of his faith in the Order's worth, and that the benefit one would receive from the Order is measured by the service one would give to it. Grove T. Vail, secretary of Ramona, sang "I Love You, California," "La Paloma" and other songs in between the speeches. Altogether, it was "some" party, and the most fitting celebration of the natal day that Ramona has yet had.

FUNERAL DIRECTOR

731 WEST WASHINGTON STREET, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

June 18 a reception was given to the initiates of the 11th, the feature of which was the initiation of three more candidates, who could not be present at the birthday party.

JUNE FISHING PARTY SUCCESS; ANOTHER "ON" FOR JULY.

The fishing party given by the Good of the Order Committee of Los Angeles Parlor, No. 45, N.S.G.W., the 5th and 6th of June was a grand success and was thoroughly enjoyed by thirty members of the Order. Eight machines carried the party to San Onofre, arriving there at about 5 p. m. Upon arrival a supper of roasted wieners, buns and coffee was enjoyed by the hungry mob, after which fishing and other forms of amusements were started and lasted nearly all night. A real breakfast of bacon and eggs, fried potatoes, toast and coffee greeted the much-surprised members the next morning. Edwin Sharp of Corona Parlor carried off the honors for the number of fish caught, landing fifteen fine big corbinas, while A. L. Cron of Los Angeles Parlor caught the smallest fish, picking on a little shark of infinitesimal measurements. At noon the "boys" enjoyed, and completely consumed, a real honest-to-goodness muligan stew that had been prepared by the two chefs, Tom Golding and Harry Alexander; all the success of the trip was due to the efforts and untiring work of these two members of Los Angeles Parlor. The party returned about 4 o'clock Sunday, ending one of the finest outings ever given by the Parlors in the south.

The one regret was that more members of the Order did not go on this trip, so the Good of the Order Committee of Los Angeles Parlor sincerely hopes there will be a larger number on the trip billed for near Sunset Beach, Saturday and Sunday, July 17 and 18. A charge of one dollar will be levied on each member going on this trip, to defray the expenses; but it will indeed be a dollar well spent, for it is on such outings that the spirit of good fellowship is best cultivated. Do not forget the date. Autos will leave Native Sons' Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street, Saturday, July 17, at 1 p. m. Send in your name to W. D. Gilman, secretary, so that reservations may be made for autos.

Installation of the new officers of Los Angeles Parlor for the ensuing term will be held the evening of July 7, Lee A. Rose then becoming president. All members of the Order are urged to be present on this occasion.

For California's Birthday.

Next to Independence Day, the most important holiday in California is Admission Day, September 9, the anniversary of California's admission to statehood. It will be observed in this city at a literary and musical entertainment of exceptional merit to which the general public will be invited.

Representatives of the local Native Son and Native Daughter Parlors organized a joint committee to arrange for a celebration of Admission Day, and decided on the above feature. Robert L. Hanley is chairman of the committee, and Miss Susan C. Donohue the secretary. Various subcommittees are arranging the details.

Less Expense, Lower Prices.

The Elk Skin shoe store and factory has moved to larger and better quarters at 308 South Spring street. C. P. Clifford, the manager, says that with a fair rental and small overhead expense, this well-known store will be better able to combat "H.C.L." for the benefit of its numerous patrons.

Note This Correction.

In the advertisement of Matthew Burger, furrier, appearing in The Grizzly Bear, the address was incorrectly given last month as 808 West Seventh street. Mr. Burger's place of business is at 803 West Seventh street.

The Death Record.

Mrs. J. P. Krempel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kuhrts, Pioneers of '49, and sister of George J. Kuhrts (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.), died June 12. The funeral was largely attended by old residents. A husband and three children are left to mourn her untimely passing. Deceased was a native of California.

Harry P. Coker

Candidate for Supervisor Fifth District
Los Angeles, County

HARRY P. COKER is an aspirant for the office of Supervisor of the Fifth District, where he has lived for the past sixteen years. His home is in Glendale, 1126 East Wilson Ave.; Phone, Glendale 147.

He knows the needs of that district. He has been identified with its growth industrially and otherwise. He has always been in harmony with those interests or organizations that have for their motives the upbuilding of clean and pure community governments.

Mr. Coker is the president of a large and prosperous industrial enterprise in Glendale and Hollywood. He has served a long term as an officer in Glendale's municipal government, and has had a long experience in an executive position. He feels perfectly competent to manage county affairs.

Mr. Coker will really represent the Fifth Supervisorial District if given a chance by the people of that district by electing him to that office.

A Message from

Samuel M. Shortridge

Republican Candidate for

United States Senator

There is but one California, great territorily, great in resources, and great in loyalty.

I recognize no mountains—no dividing line between North and South. I feel at home in every one of our fifty-eight counties—from Del Norte to Imperial, from Modoc to San Diego. When Stephen M. White aspired to the United States Senate no one inquired whether he lived in Los Angeles or in San Francisco.

I wish it to be well understood that as Senator from California the interests of all our people, wherever abiding, will find in me their champion.

Marvelous Southland! Splendid people of the Southland! Beautiful Los Angeles! To have been born here were a blessing, but that blessing was denied me. I am a "Hawkeye." I was born in Iowa, Mount Pleasant, Henry County, Iowa,—and I am told that quite a number of "Hawkeyes" have forsaken their native state to live in this garden of the West.

power, given by the State, to investigate every corporation and, where the law is being deliberately ignored and evaded, as is the case with the Jap land corporations, to revoke the charter. The head of this department, E. C. Bellows, is an appointee of the Governor and in his official capacity is accountable to the Governor. According to affidavits filed with the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association, Commissioner Bellows is charged with having said that

"HE CONDEMNED THE ACTION OF
"THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE
"OF CALIFORNIA FOR THE PASSAGE
"OF THE ANTI-ALIEN LAND BILL
"WHICH PROHIBITED JAPANESE
"FROM THE OWNERSHIP OF LAND."

Like the Governor, we deplore the fact that the Japs, aided by white dollar worshipers, have been enabled to set at naught the will of The People of this state. This is a condition that should not exist, and which would not if the Governor of California would see that the laws of California are enforced. It is his duty, he has admitted, to do this, and to curb the activities of "shrewd lawyers" whose main business is beating the law.

Now is the time for the Governor to act in the Jap crisis, by calling the Legislature into session to pass more stringent laws, and by having a thorough cleaning out of those state departments which are derelict in their duty and thereby permit the laws to be successfully evaded. If the Governor has the courage to back up the convictions expressed in his letter to the Federal Secretary of State, he will, even at this late day, do this in the interest of California.

"CROSSING THE PLAINS"—from the Painting by Andrew P. Hill

ANDREW P. HILL is essentially California's "historian on canvas." He feels her spirit; he knows her story; he gets her atmosphere. His work as an artist is well known and covers a wide range of subjects. "Crossing the Plains" he considers his masterpiece It is admittedly one of the greatest and most sublime of the historical paintings of the country. The massive canvas now hanging in the lobby of the Palace Hotel in San Francisco is 7 feet by 10 feet in size. It is the magnificent conception of a master mind and the equally magnificent product of a master hand.

It is not alone by his work as an artist that Mr. Hill is known to the people of California. Unselfish devotion to the interests of others bas been his motto through life—even to the exclusion of bis own. His invaluable work of preserving to posterity that wonderful group of the world's oldest living things, known as California Redwood Park, is well known and has earned for him the title of "Father of the Forest." Years of his life have been spent in this labor of love (for whicb he neither expected nor received compensation), and millions of men, women and children will live to bless him for this work.

Hoping some day to be able to present his masterpiece to the State, the artist has deferred the sale of "Crossing the Plains" with that end in view. His personal fortunes, however, would not permit so great a sacrifice and the picture, valued at $15,000, was placed on sale. This action was the motive of a resolution passed by the Sempervirens Club of San Jose, "That this picture representing an event so dear to the traditions of California should not be permitted to pass from California, but should be owned by the State and preserved for posterity by being hung in some suitable public place."

Believing in the sentiments expressed in this resolution, and with a deep appreciation of the painter's art as well as his invaluable public services, a committee composed of his friends and associates, and called the Andrew P. Hill Art Committee, was formed to devise ways and means to raise the funds necessary for preserving the picture to the State. By the very nature of the thing this committee was of a single mind that this noble purpose should be undertaken by California's Native Sons and Native Daughters.

Convinced tbat it was fitting and proper that this action was taken, a committee of the Native Sons of the Golden West and the Native Daughters of the Golden West has been formed to carry to a successful conclusion a plan by which this wonderful work of art, symbolic of the traditions of their native California, will be preserved to the State at their hands.

The plan will give every Native Son and every Native Daugbter of the Golden West an opportunity to do his or her bit in the laudable project. "Crossing the Plains" will be presented to the State of California, properly inscribed as coming from the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the State. It will be hung in the Capitol at Sacramento.

Details of the plan may be secured from the Presidents or Secretaries of the various Parlors of the Native Sons and Native Daughters throughout the State.

RESOLUTION:

"WHEREAS, a committee of citizens has been formed for tbe purpose of raising the necessary funds to present the beautiful historic painting, 'CROSSING THE PLAINS,' by Andrew P. Hill, to the State, to be preserved for posterity by being hung in tbe State Capitol at Sacramento; and,

WHEREAS, this picture represents an event that is dear to the traditions of this organization,

BE IT RESOLVED, That we, tbe Grand Parlor of tbe Native Sons of the Golden West, do hereby endorse this project and urge all Parlors througbout tbe State to lend their best efforts to the accomplishment of this object."

Adopted by Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., April 22, 1920.

The Burnham SUPERTONE Phonograph

A
"Made in Los Angeles"
Product

Plays All Records

The simplicity of the Burnham reproducer gives the Burnham Super-tone Phonograph a decided advantage. When it is desired to change from a vertical cut to a lateral cut record, it is not necessary to remove one reproduciug device and substitute another; simply twist the reproducer to another position.

Silver Grain Spruce Tone Chamber

There is but one wood which is supreme for this purpose—Silver Grain Spruce—the material from which Stradivarius constructed his master violins. The Silver Grain tone chamber of the Burnham Super-tone Phonograph is so constructed as to enrich and add a lyric quality to vocal, and a clear, bell-like quality to instrumental music.

Cabinets of Exquisite Design and Beauty

Each Burnham Super-tone Phonograph is not only a masterpiece of artistic design; it is also a fine example of highly skilled cabinet work. Our artisans are masters of the wood-worker's art and take a pardonable pride in their splendidly made products.

CALIFORNIA AND THE JAPANESE

INTOLERABLE CONDITIONS RESULTANT FROM "PEACEFUL INVASION" GRAPHICALLY POINTED OUT

H. Stanley Benedict

EVERY COUNTRY HAS THE INHERENT right to say who shall or shall not be admitted within its borders.

Every nation determines for itself what peoples it can assimilate to advantage and for its future best interests.

No nation has inherently either a legal or a moral right to compel admission of its subjects into any foreign country.

Every people may justly retain for exclusive enjoyment any lands lawfully theirs.

In keeping with various other great nations of the world, the United States has erected barriers against the yellow race, as a whole,—against the Chinese and the Hindu, strict exclusion, and against the Japanese, a makeshift attempt at restriction.

The white and the yellow races will never mix,—never become as one. Thousands of years of past history attest this.

California.

California is the very westernmost outpost of Occidental civilization. Out across the placid Pacific she ever faces the teeming millions of the Orient. Through her ports, if not restrained, will flow the yellow stream that would eventually submerge all America. Califoruia's experience of more than seventy years with the Oriental has demonstrated conclusively the impossibility of assimilation, as well as the undesirability and peril of building up, within her midst, large isolated groups of an alien race.

Chinese Exclusion.

Following the general panic throughout the United States in 1873 there were many white men out of employment in Califoruia, partly due to business depression, and partly due to the importatiou of cheap coolie labor from China which displaced the white man. The pressing needs of the times caused much distress and the feeling against the Chinese became acute. In fact, some of the offences committed against the Chinese during this agitation reflect no credit upon our past history. The agitation culminated in the enactment by Congress, in 1882, of the Geary Act providing complete Chinese exclusion. This law has been so effective in excluding the Chinese, that the Chinese population in California which was 72,472 thirty years ago (1890) decreased to 33,271 ou December 31, 1919.

Japanese Population.

The Japanese population in California, on the other hand, has increased in the past ten years alone 111 percent. The United States census for 1910 showed 41,356 Japanese in California, while the report of the State Board of Control shows 87,279 Japanese in California on December 31, 1919. The figures of the State Board of Control are taken from official records, being based upon the United States census of 1910, to which is added the increase by immigration and by births, deductions, of course, being made for emigration and deaths. These figures, however, do not include surreptitious entry or smuggling across the border,—such figures naturally not being available as official records; likewise no record is available of those who come into California from other states of the United States. Some statisticians who have added an estimated number by smuggling and interstate migration declare the total Japanese population now residing in California to be approximately 100,000.

The Japanese population in California now far exceeds the highest mark ever reached heretofore by Orientals in this state.

The accompanying article was written for The Grizzly Bear by H. Stanley Benedict, a member of the State Board of Control of California, who prepared the board's report on the Jap question. The report, entitled "California and the Oriental," accompanied the letter dispatched by the Governor of Califoruia to the Federal Secretary of State June 19, urging immediate adoption of a Jap exclusion law; copies of the report were also presented members of the Federal investigating committee who visited California last month.

The article, which deals with the data accumulated by the Board of Control iu its Oriental investigation, should be read and studied, and the facts given wide publicity. For some reason best known to the National and State authorities, the Japs have been permitted to openly and continually violate the Jap-made "Gentlemen's Agreement," as well as all the laws of California the provisions of which interfere with their colonization scheme. The situation has reached such a dangerous stage that the Federal Government must prevent more of these undesirables from coming in, and the State Government must force those now here either to live within the California laws or get out.—Editor.

No Pretense of Racial Superiority.

The necessity for Oriental exclusion is not based in the slightest degree upon any pretended superiority of the white race over the yellow race. The Oriental, with a past that is traceable through thousands of years, may be justly proud of his traditions and his history. Japan, in particular, may with pride point to its rapid progress and remarkable achievement in recent years,—its advaucement has been the marvel of recent times. There is absolutely no foundation whatever for hatred or ill-will between the white and the yellow races,—there is no excuse whatever for wounding the pride of the great nation of Japan. This whole subject can be readily settled by diplomacy and statesmanship.

Different Customs and Traditions.

Much has been said, pro and con, concerning assimilation of the Orientals by the whites. Sometimes even the blame for non-assimilation is laid to the whites because of alleged obstacles placed in the way. Notwithstanding what may heretofore have been said, the fact remains that the Oriental himself does not want to adopt Occidental customs, principles and traditions,—nor will he ever do so in the opinion of the writer.

Ever since the day thousands of years ago when the white race and the yellow race separated, the whites beginning their march to the westward and the yellow race turning its face towards the rising sun, each has been building over these thousands of years widely different customs and traditions, drifting farther and farther apart each century.

Elimination—Not Assimilation.

In all the years of history where the white and the yellow races have met, no assimilation of the two races has ever ensued. The result has always been, and will, in the opinion of the writer, always be elimination,—not assimilation, particularly where the two races thus in contact are fairly equal in numbers. America therefore faces the alternative of maintaining her country for herself or ultimately relinquishing it to the yellow race.

Population Growth.

It has already been shown that the Japanese population in California increased 111 percent in the past ten years. Of the annual increase of the entire Japanese population in continental United States, two-thirds falls to California, which is the reason that the Oriental question is always a live issue in California.

The increase in minor population is far more startling, amounting in the ten-year period to 252 percent. During the same period the increase in the white minor population in California was but 18.5 percent. These figures are authentic, and are developed from official records of the United States census, the special census of minor population taken by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for 1919, and vital statistics of the State Board of Health.

Birth Rate.

The Japanese are a very prolific people. In 1910 oue out of every forty-four children born in the state was a Japauese. In 1919 one out of every thirteen children born in the state was a Japanese. In eighteen selected agricultural counties of the state in which the principal Japanese colonies are located, the average births of Japanese increased nearly 400 percent from 1910 to 1919, the average births of Japanese having risen from 3.2 percent of the total births in those counties in 1910 to 12.3 percent in 1919.

In the rural parts of Sacramento Couuty, 49.7 percent of all births in 1919 were Japanese. During the ten-year period the relation of the white births to the total births in the state decreased from 96.13 percent of the total to 90.86 percent, while the Japanese births in the same period increased from 2.24 percent of the total births to 7.82 percent.

A comparison of the number of births to white women in the state with the number of births to Japanese in this state, shows nearly three times as many children born to Japanese women as are born to white women,—the Japanese percentage being 28.8 and the white percentage of births being 9.9. This great difference in percentage of births prevails despite the fact that there are about three times as many Japanese men in the state as there are Japanese women. If there was the same ratio of men to women among the Japanese that there is among the whites, the birth rate among the Japanese would probably be nine times that of the whites.

In fairness, however, it must be said that records show a higher birth rate always among a new people in a new land.

Land.

There are 3,893,500 acres of irrigated lands in California, constituting the very best and most highly developed lands in the state. Of this acreage Orientals occupy 623,752 acres, of which Japanese occupy 458,056 acres held in ownership or under contract to purchase or under lease or crop contract. These lands so held are located principally in five rich districts of this state: (1) Rice district of Glenn, Colusa and Butte Counties. (2) Asparagus, berry, vegetable, fruit and vineyard sections of the delta sections of the San Joaquin and the Sacramento Rivers and Sutter and Placer Counties. (3) Grape, raisin and fruit districts of Fresno, Kings and Tulare Counties. (4) Vegetable and fruit districts of Los Angeles and Orange Counties. (5) Canteloupe and vegetable districts of Imperial County.

The rapidity with which the Japanese have extended their holdings in the past ten years is startling. The report of the State Bureau of Labor Statistics for 1909 shows Japanese occupying 83,253 acres, while the figures compiled by the Japanese Agricultural Association of California for 1919 show that the Japanese occupy 427,029 acres,—an increase in the ten years of 412.9 percent. These same reports show the value of the products raised by the Japanese in 1909 to be $6,235,856 and in 1919 to be $67,145,730; an increase of 976.8 percent.

Control Certain Crops.

The Japanese now control the production of practically all of the principal vegetables raised in the state, and are making rapid inroads into the fruit production. This is a condition worthy of serious consideration, for it means that one of the principal sources of fruit supply of the state is within the control of an alien race.

A questionnaire sent out by the State Board of Control to all the county advisers and county horticultural commissioners of the state inquiring whether the lands now farmed by Orientals could and would be farmed by whites, elicited an almost unanimous reply in the affirmative. Is it not high time that the whites bestir themselves and take over this valuable and profitable business?

Alien Land Laws.

California, Washington and Arizona have strict alien land laws prohibiting land ownership by aliens ineligible to citizenship; likewise Mexico, Australia and most of the South Pacific islands have such laws. The Philippine Islands, a dependency of the United States, whose laws must be approved by the Federal Government of the United States, has a very strict alien land law. Indeed, Japan herself will not permit any alien to hold land in fee in Japan, although permitting long-term leases on land used for residential or manufacturing purposes. So far as the writer is able to learn from any source, not an acre of agricultural land in Japan may be owned or leased for any period of time. Why then should there be objection if California enforces a like condition as to her lands? The answer frequently made to this question by Japanese and those who favor their occupancy of lands in this country, is that the Japanese are compelled by sheer necessity of making a living to emigrate to other lands,—that the present cultivatable lands of Japan cannot support the population of Japan.

Japan Has Ample Undeveloped Lands.

A dispatch from Tokio, dated December 15, 1919, and published in the "Japanese American News" of January 6, 1920, makes an announcement that for the past ten years the department of agriculture and commerce of Japan has been conducting an investigation of all arable lands therein. This investigation disclosed about 5,000,000 acres of farm land which can be reclaimed, and work has already begun, according to the article, in opening up 3,250,000 acres for rice and vegetable fields, the government to finance the development on long payments and tax exemption for forty years. This amount of land, added to the present cultivated area in Japan, would amply care for all the Japanese population with its increase for many years.

Of similar import is an article in the April 1920 "Outlook Magazine," organ of the Interchurch World Movement, quoting from Mr. Young of the "Japan Chronicle" as follows: "However, the claim that Japan must go elsewhere to find room for her people is sheer nonsense, for she has the whole of Hokkaido (the north part of the mainland), which is hardly populated."

California Alien Land Law Evaded.

The purpose of the California Alien Land Law was to prevent aliens who are ineligible to citizenship from owning land in California. Immediately after the passage of this act, Orientals evaded it by purchasing lands and placing the titles in the names of California-born Japanese children. These children being minors, required guardians or trustees, and in many cases the "ineligible" alien parent applied to the courts for appointment as guardian or trustee. In some cases courts denied appointment of ineligible aliens on the ground that it was a plain evasion of the Alien Land Law. Also, Orientals resorted to the formation of corporations for the purpose of holding land without the restrictions of the California Alien Land Law and in order to avoid the limitations of the corporation law requiring 51 percent of the stock to be issued to American citizens, some Americans, usually attorneys for the corporations, held the majority of the stock. In all these cases, however, the ineligible alien did, in fact, control and operate the land and enjoy all of the advantages and profits accruing therefrom.

How Japanese Are Financed.

There are three sources from which Japanese secure financial aid: (1) cash advances by American packers and canners, fruit and vegetable distributors and commission merchants; (2) financial assistance and other aid by their more prosperous countrymen, either residing in California or in the Orient; (3) loans from either American or Japanese bankers. The following statement written by the writer hereof into the report of the State Board of Control explains this subject fully:

"The principal source of financial assistance to Orientals engaged in agricultural pursuits and the fishing industry is the American distributor. American individuals, firms and corporations engaged in the business of buying and selling or distributing fruits and vegetables such as canteloupes, grapes, lettuce, onions and potatoes; packers and canners of fruits and vegetables; fish merchants and fish canneries, and beet-sugar factories all appear to follow the practice of making generous money advances under contract in sufficiently large sums frequently to cover lease payments on land and the costs of planting, harvesting, packing and crating.

"In the fish industry the canneries usually furnish the fishing boat, fishing tackle and equipment, the total cost of which often runs as high as $4,000 or $5,000, the canner reimbursing himself out of each catch brought in by the fishermen. Some of the larger canneries are said to have more than $200,000 so invested in boats let out principally to Japanese.

"In this manner it is stated that Orientals, especially Japanese, are often able to secure practically every dollar of working capital and being thus financed outbid whites by paying for leases of agricultural lands almost any price demanded, the average running about $50, while some canteloupe lands in the Imperial and Turlock districts secure as high as $75 per acre per annum rental.

"Farm advisers and others complain that American farmers, lessees, and intended growers are not as liberally financed by the interests above mentioned as are the Orientals, especially the Japanese. Difficulty in securing funds for working capital is eliminating the Americans from competition with the Orientals."

This latter statement discloses an unfortunate state of affairs. Why should our American interests be more willing to finance the Japanese grower or producer than the American? Americans ought not to be willing to admit that foreigners are more industrious or more intelligent in their agricultural pursuits. This liberal financing of Japanese growers by American interests has made it possible for the Japanese grower to acquire control of practically all classes of vegetable products raised in the State of California.

Most fruit and agricultural distributing companies or associations in California are conducted by Americans, but the Japanese have already entered the field of distribution and in some of the larger agricultural centers of the state are conducting commission houses and distributing associations.

There are seven banks in the State of California owned by Japanese and two branches of a bank of Japan.

Fishing Industry.

The Japanese are rapidly approaching a position of control of this valuable food supply. This natural resource, which belongs to the whole people of the state, is gradually falling into the hands of this alien race.

Today, of all the nationalities engaged in the fishing business, the Japanese are the most numerous, having increased 168 percent in numbers in the last four years.

The records of the Fish and Game Commission show that in the 1915-16 license year there were 491 Japanese fishermen, while in the license year 1919-20 there are 1,316. The Japanese alone operate 355 of the total number of fishermen's boats operated from the coasts of California, while all other nationalities combined operate but 796. There is the further difference also that the Japanese are the ones who operate the large high-powered boats.

When it is realized that the total valuation of the fish and fish products taken for the year 1919 equalled nearly $26,500,000 the importance of this one element of the state's food supply can be readily seen.

Alleged Violation of Federal Navigation Laws.

The State Fish and Game Commission has heretofore called attention to many alleged violations of the Federal Navigation Laws which require the master of every vessel of less than twenty tons burden to swear that he is a citizen of the United States and that the vessel is wholly the property of citizens of the United States. It is declared that many of these fishermen's boats which are from five to twenty tons burden are manned by alien Japanese. During the world war all the fishing boats manned by aliens were interned and were subsequently allowed to go out to fish when accompanied by a duly-appointed American citizen in charge of each boat. This matter has been called to the attention of the Federal authorities, and is expected to be corrected at once.

Menace in Alien Fishing Fleet.

To permit the fishing fleet of any country to be manned by an alien race is a most serious blunder for which such country may in the future pay most dearly. There are four principal reasons why this should not be permitted on the coasts of California: (1) These fishing boats in their daily journeys to and fro along the coast acquire a familiarity with the physical conditions of the coast line, its harbors, its possible landing places and its defenses, which is extremely valuable if it is used in the interests of our country, but would be exceedingly dangerous to us and most serviceable to our enemy if made available to such enemy in time of war. (2) As a patrol service during war time, the value of the fishing fleet can hardly be over-estimated. This was proven by the British during the late world war and should be an everlasting lesson to us. (3) The fishing fleet manned by an alien race affords a most convenient method for illegal entry and smuggling into the state. (4) The control of this valuable food supply by an alien race is unwise.

What Should Be Done.

California should adopt fishing laws similar to those of Washington and Oregon, which prohibit the issuance of a fishing license "to any person who is not a citizen of the United States." Both British Columbia and Alaska have laws of similar import, thus closing the entire Pacific from Mexico to and including Alaska, except for California. The next session of the California Legislature should adopt a law preserving the fishing privileges to our citizens.

Labor.

Contrary to the usual impression, Japanese do not work to any very considerable extent as laborers for American farmers. In fact, the Japanese laborer, as such, is of small value to the American farmer. The Japanese is not content to remain as a laborer for any length of time. After a short

JUST CALIFORNIA

Cupid Busy—During June 5,320 marriage licenses were issued in California, a gain of 1,153 for the same month last year.

New School—The Lakeport district of Lake County has voted $60,000 bonds for a new high-school building.

Egg Day—Petaluma, Sonoma County, said to be the world's chicken metropolis, will have its third annual Egg Day festival August 21.

Counties Growing—The Federal Census Bureau announces Sacramento County's population as 90,978, a gain of 23,172 or 34.2 percent, and that of San Joaquin County as 79,905, a gain of 29,174 or 57.75 percent.

Less Oil—June oil production in the state totaled 273,069 barrels daily for June, a decrease of 5,254 compared with May; shipments were 313,769 barrels, 18,669 more than the previous month.

Shading Highways—Sacramento County's forestry board has planted nearly 2,000 shade trees along the highways of that county.

Motor Revenue Increases—Motor vehicle registrations in California were $5,002,793.25 the first six months of this year, a substantial gain compared with the same period last year; 476,938 vehicles were registered.

State Organization—A meeting will be held in San Francisco August 20 to take steps to form a State Chamber of Commerce, to supplant the California Development Board.

apprenticeship, sometimes working for an American farmer but more frequently for one of his own countrymen, he becomes an independent contractor or lessee. In this relation he at once becomes a competitor of the American small farmer, especially the one who does the major part of his own work on his farm. American farmers cannot compete with Japanese farmers unless the American farmers are willing to lower their standards of working and living conditions to meet those of the Oriental.

The Japanese farmer with his entire family, including his wife and those children large enough to work, labor in the field from daylight until dark, Sundays and holidays, with no recreation or relaxation, and ordinarily occupies a shack hardly worthy to be called a house. No American farmer wants to work in like fashion, nor does the American public wish the standard of American farmers to be placed upon this plane. Unless, however, something is done to correct this impossible competition, the American farmer is compelled to abandon his farm or to lease it to his competitor, the Japanese.

Japanese Activities Thoroughly Organized.

There are fifty-five local associations in the State of California, nineteen in Southern California affiliated with the Agricultural Association of Southern California, and thirty-six in Northern and Central California affiliated with the Japanese Agricultural Association of California and the California Farmers' Co-operative Association. All these local associations are combined into the Japanese Association of America, in California, and this organization in turn is under the direction of the Japanese consul-geueral of San Francisco, who is likewise directed by the Japanese ambassador at Washington. The total dues collected by these organizations approximate $135,000 per year in the State of California. This sum is used for the advancement and betterment of the agricultural, educational and financial interests of the Japanese witbin the state. This closely knit organization proves quite a valuable vehicle for disseminating instructions to the Japanese population of the state.

Corporations.

There were very few corporations controlled by Japanese in the state prior to the passage of the California Alien Land Law in 1913. Many corporations, however, were formed thereafter for the purpose of buying and leasing land, thus avoiding the limitations of the Alien Land Law. There are now in the state 302 Japanese farming corporations with a total capital stock of $9,171,500, with 47,781 acres of land owned or under contract to purchase.

The principal stockholders of the corporations formed are minor children, American born of Japanese parents, the actual operation of the corporations being in the hands of trustees who are of lawful age.

Picture Brides.

In recent years the Japanese have followed the practice of picture marriages, which consist of the exchange of photographs between a Japanese man residing in California and a Japanese woman residing in Japan. The marriage ceremony is consummated by record in the registrar's office in Japan filed by the family councils of the two parties to the marriage relation. This practice is contrary to the laws of California, this state being supreme in matters of marriage and divorce, even over the Federal laws. As one of the parties resides in California, he is under the jurisdiction of the laws of California and no marriage consummated by him is legal except it be performed in accordance with the laws of the State of California. The Federal immigration commissioners have practically, without exception, expressed the opinion in their reports that this practice should be discontinued, but because of the terms of the "Gentlemen's Agreement," they have been unable to do other than accept the picture brides when they arrive with proper passports.

The Japanese ambassador, himself, in 1917 when called upon by the State Department to explain the practice of picture marriages declared that there was no "Japanese law specifically for a case where one of the parties to a marriage contract lives in Japan and the other under foreign jurisdiction, nor has there appeared before the court any case involving this point."

The fact of the matter is, that because there was no law in Japan against the practice, the Japanese ambassador held that it was perfectly proper. He does not hold that it is an old established custom and ask that picture marriages be acknowledged by our country because it is a long-established custom.

The objectionable part of the admission of picture brides under the "Gentlemen's Agreement" is that as a matter of fact they become laborers in the fields when they arrive here and therefore are not entitled, under the "Gentlemen's Agreement," to admission. Between July 1, 1911, and February 29, 1920, 5,749 picture brides arrived from Japan at the port of San Francisco alone.

"Gentlemen's Agreement."

The so-called "Gentlemen's Agreement" is in the nature of a treaty, being the result of negotiations by correspondence between the State Department at Washington and the Japanese government. It is not based upon any general treaty nor is it in any sense a Federal statute enacted by Congress. In fact, its terms are rather hazy and flexible.

The worst feature of it is that the right of determining who is entitled to a passport upon leaving Japan is left entirely with the Japanese government. It appears to the writer as a bit of exceedingly poor diplomacy on the part of America in consenting to the adoption of the "Gentlemen's Agreement." Instead of laying the burden of proof upon an immigrant asking admission, compelling him to show his right of entry, the burden of proof is thrown upon the United States to prove that he is not entitled. This is an impossible condition, because the United States has no right under the "Gentlemen's Agreement" to go back of the passport issued by the Japanese government provided it is issued in due course and the applicant meets the general immigration conditions as to health, moral character, poverty, etc. The "Gentlemen's Agreement" was intended to restrict immigration of Japanese laborers, but it is quite evident that in this respect it has not proven entirely effective. The classification of occupations followed in California, even when these classifications are prepared by the Japanese themselves, show practically 50 percent of the male Japanese population of California in the class of laborers.

Smuggling.

There are two easy methods of surreptitious entry into California: one by land across the Mexican border and the other by boat, principally fishermen's boats on the Mexican coast, to California harbors. The border line between California and Mexico is 180 miles and is physically possible of passage at practically any point. The border patrol is wholly inadequate. The United States Commissioner of Immigration in his report of 1919 states: "Confidential information of unquestionable authenticity shows very conclusively that Japanese smuggling across the Mexican border is carried on successfully, and doubtless to a very large extent." This report is exceedingly interesting reading, and outlines in detail the methods followed by the Japanese in slipping across the border.

The many Japanese fishing boats operating out of Southern California ports into Mexican waters afford an easy means of illegal entry by Japanese laborers. The proper patroling should be provided by the Federal Government, both by land and by sea, and smuggling should be prevented at once.

ADMISSION DAY

OCCASION FOR BIG SAN FRANCISCO CELEBRATION

CALIFORNIA'S BIRTHDAY, ADMISSION Day, September 9, will be fittingly observed in San Francisco, the place designated by the Grand Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, for holding this year's festival. This will be the seventieth anniversary of California's admission to statehood, and plans are progressing favorably to make it the biggest and best Admission Day celebration ever held.

The details are being looked after by a joint committee of Native Sons, made up of representatives from all the San Francisco Parlors. Officers of the general committee are: Clarence W. Morris, chairman; John T. Regan, vice-chairman; Harold B. Hart, secretary; A. Vander Zweip, treasurer. The various sub-committees are made up of the following, the first named of each being the chairman:

Finance—John T. Regan (chairman), W. W. Vaughn, W. J. Dougherty.

Press and Publicity—George F. Barry, John H. Nelson, J. A. Helbing.

Program—Dr. F. I. Gonzales, Charles A. Koenig, M. J. McGovern.

Native Daughters' Conference—Judge James G. Conlan, William H. James, Frank H. Vivian, Edw. R. Splivalo, F. H. Lougher, A. V. Carroll, Carl Prignitz.

Hall—M. J. McGovern, R. W. Dennis, James A. Wilson.

Printing—Nicholas J. H. Meinert, George J. Stockwitz, F. J. Shefler.

Music—John A. Mitchell, George Kittler, Fred L. Bode, G. D. Henning, Peter Deas, N. Lowenfeld.

Concessions—Harry W. Gaetjen, Henry Dahl, Frank Martell, Frank Baeigalupi, L. W. Schmidt.

Parade—James Foley, Percy A. Marchant, James A. Wilson, N. Greenblatt, Robert E. Carson.

The Native Daughters will assist in the arrangements, each Subordinate Parlor to name three members of the joint committee. Mrs. Mary Bell will be the chairman of this contingent. Alameda County, too, will work with the San Francisco Natives in making a success of the celebration, the Native Sons Parlors there being represented on the general committee by this delegation: William B. White, L. J. Carroll, William A. Dunlop, William J. Hayes, Frank M. Carr, Harry G. Williams.

This will be a state-wide celebration, and will be participated in by Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters from the northern and central sections of the state and from as far south as Selma, in Fresno County, and Salinas, in Monterey County. Several of the Parlors have long been engaged in planning their participation, and it is rumored the displays will exceed in splendor all past efforts.

The Admission Day parade will this year, as in the past, be the top-liner on the day's program of events. It will be directed by Hubert B. Scudder, Grand Marshal of the Native Sons, who early in July communicated with all Subordinate Parlors of that Order requesting information as to their plans. Responses have been most encouraging, indicating that more Parlors will be in line than at any time since 1915.

Citizenship.

According to law No. 66, March 16, 1899, Japanese Civil Code, Volume III, "A child is a Japanese if his or her father is a Japanese at the time of his or her birth." Therefore, a child born in California of Japanese parents is embraced with dual citizenship. He enjoys all of the privileges of American citizenship, but nevertheless holds his first allegiance to Japan, including military service, under which he is held from his seventeenth birthday until he has concluded his fortieth year.

While it is possible under a recent law of Japan for an American-born Japanese to expatriate himself provided his petition is accepted and approved by the Japanese government, nevertheless, not to exceed a dozen American-born children have signed the necessary petition, and so far as can be learned, none of these petitions have ever been approved by the Japanese government.

For all purposes, then, it is safe to say that every Japanese in the State of California today, whether native-born or otherwise, is a citizen of Japan subject to military service if between the ages of 17 and 41. It is also true that the California-born Japanese, despite the fact that they owe their first allegiance to Japan, will, nevertheless, upon reaching their majority, become voters in this state. This thought is worthy of contemplation, in view of the rapid birth rate among the Japanese.

Schools.

The Japanese children are admitted to the American public-schools and attend them in company with the American children. There is no segregation. The Japanese children, in addition to attending American public-schools, also attend Japanese language schools conducted entirely in the Japanese language and are taught the geography, history, government, customs and traditions of Japan. While these Japanese language schools are stated by the Japanese to be supplementary to our American public-schools, it is significant to note that in the Hawaiian Islands, where the Japanese constitute almost one-half of the entire population of the islands, practically every Japanese child of school age on the islands attends these Japanese language schools. In the Hawaiian Islands, therefore, these Japanese language schools have long since discontinued being supplementary schools to our American schools, but are, in fact, now the principal schools attended by the Japanese. So long as these Jap-

THE ARGONAUTS OF DEATH VALLEY

SUBJECT PRIZE WINNING ESSAY IN NATIVE SONS' ORATORICAL CONTEST

In 1915, Elk Grove Parlor, No. 41, Native Sons of the Golden West, for the purpose of creating an interest in California history study, arranged to have an annual oratorical contest among the high-school students of that place, the subjects to relate to the state's history. As a trophy, a solid silver cup was presented to the Elk Grove High School, and the name of the winner in each annual contest is inscribed thereon. This year's contest was held during March, with Guy G. Foulks, secretary of the Parlor, presiding.

The oratorical honors were awarded by the judges—S. R. Gage, Mrs. Cora Woodard and T. A. Farrell—to Howard Wackman, who took for his subject "The Argonauts of Death Valley." His oration is here presented. Incidentally it is recalled that the first and most complete account of the trials and tribulations of the Death Valley Pioneers ever printed appeared in The Grizzly Bear for June 1911 (v. ix, no. 2, p. 1), being written by J. W. Brier, one of the survivors of the party.

The other contestants and their subjects were: Derril Wildanger, "Poetic Memories in California;" Jessie Cumpston, "The Name 'California,' Its Origin and Application;" Richard Hawley, "The Japanese Question in California." The high-school orchestra furnished music for the occasion. Professor L. E. Richards, in the course of an address, asked for continued and increasing interest in the oratorical contests, and thanked the large audience for their attendance and Elk Grove Parlor for its splendid efforts.—Editor.

MANY ARE THE SAD AND TERRIble experiences told by Pioneers of California. The Donner Party was almost the first to try to reach the Land of Gold, and their awful sacrifices are known to nearly everyone. But another brave band, whose story is perhaps not so well known, suffered and endured equally as much—the Argonauts of Death Valley.

The Western migration of 1849 was like a huge tidal wave rolling across the continent. In the fall of that year more than three hundred people were camped around Salt Lake and had to winter there or enter Southern California by the Spanish trail. Most of them chose the latter alternative. A Mormon guide, by the name of Captain Hunt, agreed for one thousand dollars to take one hundred wagons to California by the Southern route, expecting to arrive in Los Angeles in nine weeks. The chosen rendezvous is now the city of Provost.

October 9th they started their line of march across the flax fields of Utah. Prosperous people from the higher walks of life, from twelve or fourteen different states, were included in this train. After they had traveled many days the memory of the guide seemed at fault; only about one-half of the distance had been covered when they reached Iron Buttes. They had been seven weeks on the road, and the hardest part of their journey was still ahead of them. Winter was approaching, the teams were poor, dispirited, and footsore; food for man and beast was scarce.

After many weary days' travel they entered the last grassy plain on the western boundary of which stood Mt. Tempanute; they were now compelled to turn southward, where they met the true desert. Since they did not know in which direction to go, they kept on southward across the desert with no water for themselves and no feed or water for the stock. Suddenly one day about noon they beheld a beautiful transparent sea bordered with peaks, trees and green meadows, and being thus encouraged they hurried forth with fresh determination.

But alas! as evening grew near their hopes were crushed; 'twas only one of the many mirages they were to see before they reached California; nothing but gnarled sagebrush and a shallow lake of brine. Here, suffering from extreme cold, they turned westward.

Early in the afternoon the train, now consisting of forty wagons, approached a deep fissure in the mountains, where they pitched camp. Here two Indians were captured and by signs were made to understand that water was badly needed; the Indians led them ten miles to a mountain where plenty of pure cold water was found.

On the second day, without water, they arrived at the Amargoosa. The Rev. J. W. Brier, wife and three children, who later lived in Lodi, San Joaquin County, were in this train. The next day camp was not made until Funeral Mountains were reached at midnight. After another long day's travel southward across dry ravines, over rough cobbles and jagged rocks, and through jungles of sagebrush, they came to a bend in the Amargoosa, where a few muddy pools of water were soon emptied; still no water for the oxen.

HOWARD WACKMAN.

The children were crying from thirst and hunger and it nearly broke Mrs. Brier's heart that she had no water to give them. When they reached the hills she found a little dew in the holes in the rocks; she dipped it out with a teaspoon and gave it to the children, and it helped to moisten their parched throats. Mr. Brier climbed to a high summit and in the dim distance descried an oasis toward which they went and later reached.

Horrors cannot describe this last day without food and water. The next day being Christmas, an ox was butchered, not to celebrate the day, but out of necessity. Every one of the party and all of the animals spent the day resting, eating and drinking.

A few miles after leaving this oasis they waded through the briny flood of Funeral Creek and soon came to one of the Jaybawkers' camps, a desolate spot, with the White Mountains to the north, the Funeral Mountains to the east, and the Panamints towering in stony might across their westward way. Here was Salt River, and no food or water for the oxen, and twenty miles of naked dunes ahead to the mountain pass near Telescope Peak, from which point Mount Whitney was visible.

December 27th the party abandoned their wagons and steered for Town's Pass, facing a wind full of cutting sand; the bread and water were all gone again. They chose a spot covered with snow for camp. Next morning they crossed the snow and emerged into the northern extremity of the Panamint Desert, where a good camping place was found. The party skirted the desert southward and entered the mountains again. Now started one of the most horrible marches it has ever been the lot of human being to undertake: the walls were perpendicular and one thousand feet high; in many places the oxen had to be pushed and squeezed through, and in other places were forced to jump down sometimes six to ten feet. This awful pass was three miles long. The oxen were so poor by this time that when one was killed for food it was entirely consumed in four or five days.

It seemed as though this was the end of all hopes; every one was suffering from the most horrible thirst; the tongues of the oxen were swollen and protruding; the men who had been out looking for water returned with no good news. Mrs. Brier knelt by a high rock and prayed for water and deliverance; she upbraided the others for their lack of faith, and when Deacon Richards shortly afterwards came into camp with the joyous tidings of plenty of water about four miles distant she knew that her prayers had been answered.

Through the range of mountains from Borax Lake to the Mojave Desert more food and water were found. Several ox bladders had been saved, and now the Mojave seemed so wide and waterless that all of them were filled with water. After eleven long weary months of great suffering, all would have perished if they had not been fortunate in locating the Indian Wells.

Fifty miles south they came to Mojave Station, and again they traveled a long, trackless waste, but far east from the present route. Suffering from the lack of water all the way, enduring famine and fatigue, they were mere walking skeletons. They came out of the mountains precisely where the Southern Pacific enters its inlet of approach to its mountain crossing. They were out of the dreadful sands and shadows of Death Valley, its exhausting phantoms, its salty columns, bitter lakes, poison water, and wild dreary waste. Their final escape was due to the heroic Mrs. Brier, whose unfaltering faith in God seemed to guide them when all other hope was gone.

These Argonauts of Death Valley were now aroused to enthusiasm by the grand sight of green plains and plenty of trees and water. At last they had a real view of California! Thirty-eight men,

AMERICAN MOTHER'S APPEAL

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

ALMOST UNTHINKABLE IT IS THAT, after reading and listening to the wealth of convicting testimony against the Japs at the Congressional investigation, any American should argue in defense of these Asiatics being permitted, much less encouraged, to come here and, by their low moral and economic standards, rout the white people from our agricultural lands and farming communities.

It is an unchallengeable fact that the holders of the soil control the destiny of a country. That's why the Japs are so determined to control, by hook or crook, the soil of California—that it may eventually be wrested from the white race and added to the domain of the mikado, the god of the Japs.

There are, however, plenty of white-Japs in California who have aided, and will continue to aid, the yellow-Japs in the accomplishment of their purpose. They are in our schools, our churches, our state offices—Jap propaganda agents who are servants of the American Church Federation, which would sacrifice California for the privilege of continuing its money-making missionary work in Japan; they are to be found among our merchants and landowners—citizens who place a higher value upon gold than upon the welfare of their white brothers.

Here is an American mother's appeal, presented to the Congressional investigating committee at Sacramento, July 14, by Mrs. Bradford Woodridge of Roseville, Placer County, who, at the California Women's Federation convention recently, succeeded in having a resolution favoring the anti-Jap initiative adopted, despite the frantic efforts of Mrs. Sue Reynolds of Los Angeles, a sister of the Governor of California, to defeat it. Will The People of California turn a deaf ear to such an appeal?

"Placer County," said Mrs. Woodbridge, "has always been proud of its fertile foothill orchards, which produce one-third of the green fruit shipped out of the State. Of the 24,000 acres of orchard land in the county, the Japanese now control 17,000 acres. Today we find in Placer County Japanese cabins where the homes of our white people used to stand; our schools have many more Japanese than white children, and after the Japanese children finish their lessons at our public schools they go to Japanese schools, where Buddhist priests teach the children after hours.

"I have come to tell your committee, in the most emphatic language a mother of the white race can use in this emergency, that the situation is alarming; that it is one of vital danger to our race and to our country. Our young are crowded off our farms, and we are losing the heritage bestowed upon us both by the men and women of '49 and the missionaries of Spain.

"The Japanese are a race which we can never assimilate. An instance of their dangerous aggression is furnished by the town and district of Florin [in Sacramento County]. I have lived all my life in these counties [Placer and Sacramento], and knew Florin when it was a social center of our white people. I knew it when it was a grange center, inhabited by American farmers, each of whom had planted a garden in this smiling region, and had built there a white man's home. We were happy in Florin; happy in our home life and proud of the race that was growing up there to manhood and womanhood. Today this region has become like a Japanese province. To an American mother it is heart-breaking to see our country thus pass out of the hands of the white people into the keeping of Asiatics."

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

THERE IS A CONSTANTLY GROWING appreciation of stripes, not only in cottons and silks, but in woolens as well. Widely striped patterns are also being used for the interior of capes of suede cloth, of silk-and-wool duvetyn, of all silk, or of good quality serge, and the linings must be gay. A stunning outing costume comprises a skirt of Roman striped sports silk and a jacket of tricolette made in tuxedo style and belted with a narrow string piece of the fabric. The skirt should be plaited rather deep, the narrow accordeon effects being reserved for more dressy garments.

Other than the prevalence of striped silks, the most interesting note of midsummer fashions is concerned with the re-appearance of the white collar. To be sure, if the lingerie type of neckwear is to be worn at all, now is the time. It conveys a sense of coolness and refreshment to the tailored suit of serge or the troteur of jersey cloth; and when worn in conjunction with linen or taffeta it finds a good foil for its extreme quality of daintiness and adds a seasonable note to the costume itself. Above all, it seems to make a garment more becoming to the wearer.

The open blazer type of summer coat and the popularity of the eton have contributed, no doubt, to the revived interest in frilly neckwear. There are new blouses with the jabot front, and not infrequently these have been in connection with the flat collar sometimes known as the "Buster Brown," the "Peter Pan," or the "Eton." The frilly cascade of fine lace or net is very feminine.

The shortness of the summer skirt is another matter of more than passing interest. One notes skirts of lengths varying from ankle to within six inches of the knee. The latter is extreme and, unfortunately, detracts from whatever may be worth while. On the whole, the skirt about nine inches from the ground seems to be the most favored. One may subtract an inch or two more, providing she is petite—her ankles trim—without any suggestion of the vulgarity which it is sometimes very difficult to get away from in the matter of the short skirt.

This is true, also, of the sleeves. Whatever the designers have in store in the matter of autumn fashions, it is absolutely correct for the present fleeting weeks to expose the elbow to the critical, and not always kindly, gaze of the public. Bare elbows are everywhere in evidence; seldom are they covered by gloves, although gloves are always worn, at least to a point just below the elbow.

The vogue of navy and white having been revived, as a sort of alternative to the garish colors, it may be that the revival will prove its own undoing. Even the wraps have come under the spell of the contrasting dark and light colors, as instanced in a coat of silk duvetyn of dark blue with deep cape done in plaided effect by means of chain stitching.

In several of the newer models crystal beads are used to define the blocks or squares simulating plaids. Beads, by the way, are among the most modish of all the garnitures, without regard to fabric, color or style of garment, and the beads may be of wooden, glass, steel, jet, or even paper. Naturally, fringes accompany the bead trimming.

Tulle must play an important part somewhere in the evening make-up. Hardly a gown is complete without a cloud of it. Either it deepens the pink gleam, or softens the eyes and complexion when worn high about the neck with the chin buried deep in its folds. A scarf, for example, has many strips of varicolored tulle, one upon the other, and rosebuds hidden in the folds.

Transparent overdresses are welcome just now. They are being shown in a deep "V," showing the straight satin slip to the waist-line. For evening wear, the full cape is decidedly essential, and surpasses the coat in grace and service, as it not only covers the entire costume but protects it from wrinkling.

A handsome model that caught my fancy was in rust-colored georgette crepe. Shiny bands of rose-colored satin, heavily embroidered in green and silver, were set in this thin fabric. These bands skirted the cape, decorated the high folds of the collar, and hung in circular fashion about the shoulders.

The distinguishing feature of the blouse is not the expensive material it is made of but the taste displayed in the color scheme and design. A blouse of orchid or bisque georgette, piped in contrasting color with buttons to match, has a pretty design about waist and sleeves in tinsel and twisted silk.

The tunic blouse, however plain, is always becoming and exceedingly smart. In soft materials like crepe-de-chine, with such trimmings as hemstitched tucks, lots of fancy little buttons tastefully placed, and a cord and bead girdle, a simple model can be fashioned with all the style of an elaborate one. A picturesque combination for afternoon is a canary-colored skirt topped by an over blouse of the same color, but embroidered with brilliant Spanish patterns.

A pretty garden hat is of red straw, from which hangs a large cluster of cherries. Natural-colored leghorns are always light and summery, and have never been entirely banished. One I saw was particularly striking, because, I suppose, of its unusual trimming. Large black velvet lillies, with golden centers, surrounded the crown, while the king's blue facing was finished and softened by a filmy hair-edge fringe.

A small hat is rather an important addition to the limited wardrobe to go with tailored or street dress. For motor or travel, the simplier it is the smarter. Beige horsehair makes up attractively, and needs but a single plume or fancy band to adorn it, as it has a charm all its own

"What can a child wear while traveling?" is a problem uppermost in the minds of busy mothers. To see a child dirty, reflects on the mother, for she did not choose appropriate clothes to withstand the strain of dust from the train or motor. Excellent garments for the young traveler—those that are both cool and attractive, yet with nothing to soil or get mussed,—may be purchased or made with little trouble.

There is a sailor suit of navy blue poplin, both for boys and girls, braided in black, with tie of bright red or French blue. For girls, are detachable bloomers, worn under the suit, doing away with the necessity of petticoats. On this suit there is nothing to soil, and the child would look quite fresh at the end of a long day on the train.

Dark grey poplin, braided in black, is also shown among the traveling clothes for youngsters, and for the very small child black satin is fashioned in attractive one-piece garments. Unbleached muslin is just the material for "little sister" to use as a play apron, it is so serviceable. With very little time and a clever needle, one can produce a slipon apron simply bound in blue, with a little bonnet to match. Three bright yellow geese, used as the motifs for trimming, may be done in the popular patchwork style and placed on pockets and bonnet brim, thus producing a complete outfit, both attractive and durable.

Of course, a child will need a hat and coat, and a rolling sailor of dark blue soft straw, with carded ribbon streamers clipped off short, is suggested; this hat is worn by both girls and boys. Top coats may be rather heavy, for there are often really cool nights, and the youngsters must be amply provided for. Wool velour, duvetyn or chinchilla are among the heavy materials, or one may choose the light-weight serge and carry a little sweater.

The new bathing suits are gay little creations that attempt to make up in elegance what they lack in yardage. That they are scant, goes without saying, and yet the great advantage of freedom from excessive weight more than compensates for the briefness of both length and width. Combinations of materials add variety to the models. For example, navy blue and white blocked taffeta makes a long-waisted bodice for a short skirt of black satin. Knickers are of the satin. The knitted suit has proven too popular to be discarded; it is the suit for the real bather.

AUGUST IN CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

FIRES AND TRAGEDIES NUMEROUS—HAPPENINGS SUMMARIZED

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

BIG BRUSH AND GRASS FIRES IN Amador, Calaveras, Placer, Marin and other counties during the month of August, 1870, burned over many square miles of ground. The smoke, with that from the immense forest fires of Oregon, filled the atmosphere so that it dimmed the rays of the sun and darkened daylight. It did not diminish the heat, however, as there were several very hot spells during the month.

The French and German residents were raising large sums of money in the state for the sanitary fund of their native countries, to be used during the great war in progress in Europe. As the German army was prevailing over the French in the battles fought, there was optimism on one side and gloom on the other. Montgomery street, in San Francisco, was frequently crowded with excited Germans, as the news of great victories was received over the telegraph wires. The Republican municipal convention of San Francisco adopted a resolution favoring Germany in the conflict.

The Mercantile Library concert and lottery was postponed from September 1 to October 31, greatly to the disappointment of thousands of ticket-holders who were anxiously awaiting the winning of the $100,000 prize. A large number of tickets remained unsold, notwithstanding it seemed everybody in the state held a ticket in the great chance to win a fortune. Hope occupied the public mind, to the detriment of other things, during the next two months.

Fifteen vessels, loaded with grain for England, sailed out of the Golden Gate this month.

A fruit car, invented by two shippers named Crandall and Barnes, left Sacramento on its initial trip to Chicago, August 4, loaded with plums and pears.

A sealion was killed by G. A. Fanjoy of San Rafael, Marin County; it weighed 1,350 pounds, and its pelt weighed 350 pounds.

Stockton sank an artesian well, to get a supply of water for the city, and struck an ample flow at a depth of 215 feet.

The City of Los Angeles at this time was a place of vineyards. The assessor reported over 1,000,000 grapevines within the city limits.

A street railroad, with a two-car service propelled by horses, was inaugurated in Sacramento August 19. It ran for a distance of about twenty blocks, starting from Front and "J" streets, via "K" to "H" street. The cars could accommodate with seats twenty-two passengers and were drawn by two horses. The day was occupied giving a large number of prominent citizens a ride. A platform was erected at each end of the line, and on the arrival of the car some local orator made a speech of congratulation to the gathered crowd. The superintendent, J. C. Gartland, promised that within another month four more blocks of railway would be completed, eight more cars would be added to the equipment, and a five-minute service given.

Printers Win Strike.

The Methodists of the Sacramento Valley held a largely attended camp meeting, commencing August 22 and continuing ten days, near the Marysville Buttes.

A carload of pears shipped by Booth, the oysterman, the first sent by rail to Boston, arrived there in fine condition. The fruit was sold at $10 a box, and pears were retailed at 10 cents apiece.

Mining stocks of the Comstock Lode that had been in a declining and gloomy stage for several months suddenly upheaved this month. Gould & Curry, on a reported strike, jumped from $47 to $130 a share, carrying the values of the whole market upward with it.

Wm. H. Seward, the distinguished American statesman, came again to California August 24 with a party en route to Japan and China. He was received with a salute and large gatherings of citizens at Sacramento and San Francisco, but owing to ill health declined the many offers of attention offered him.

The printers of San Francisco and Sacramento struck for an increase of pay August 1, and as there were no idle printers to take their places on the daily newspapers they won out. August 20 the Sacramento printers again struck, but this time they lost their fight.

Jack Stratman, one of the best-known citizens of San Francisco, with a reputation of carrying the largest moustache in the state on his upper lip, was convicted of having libeled J. C. Duncan in a newspaper article. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and during the month his attorneys made desperate efforts and succeeded, through a writ of habeas corpus, in keeping the combative major out of jail.

Wm. Hamilton, the veteran stageman, bought the stage line running from Galt, Sacramento County, to Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, from Hill & Taft for $10,000 and continued to run it until the extension of the railroad into Amador County compelled it to stop.

Briggs Bros., near Marysville, planted this season 150 acres in castor-oil beans.

The unique spectacle of a flock of over 700 turkeys being driven through the streets of Sacramento, to cross the bridge into Yolo County, was seen August 31. They were stepping toward Yolo County, where myriads of grasshoppers were said to be hopping and would make the best of turkey food.

Dr. D. W. C. Rice, who had made a fortune in the wholesale drug business and invested much of it in the California Pacific Railroad, of which he was president, died in San Francisco August 3 at the early age of 43. He was one of the most progressive citizens in the state.

Usual Crop Summer Fires.

Charles A. Leak, a Pioneer of Calaveras County, who was state senator from that county in 1852, died at Pioche, Nevada. He was a lawyer of ability.

N. A. H. Ball, who came to California from Boston as a steamship agent in 1849 and located until the '60s in Sacramento, where he was city treasurer and otherwise prominent in public affairs, then going to Virginia City, Nevada State, to engage in banking, died there August 23. He had an army of friends who greatly deplored his death.

Isaac S. Josephi, a jeweler in San Francisco, failed for a large amount and when the receiver took charge left for South America. He died suddenly in Lima, Peru, and left a life insurance policy of $55,000, which was reported sufficient to pay his creditors their claims.

August 5 the snowshed of the Central Pacific Railroad, five miles west of Truckee, Nevada County, caught fire and a mile and a half of it was destroyed, blocking the road for many hours.

Allen's wholesale drug warehouse on "J" street near Sixth, Sacramento, was burned August 2, with a $25,000 loss.

Pollard's Hotel, a summer resort at Donner Lake, was destroyed by fire August 13, with an $8,000 loss.

The boot and shoe factory of Frank & Co., in San Mateo County, was burned with a $30,000 loss August 15. They employed over 100 Chinamen, and it was said an incendiary set the place on fire on that account.

Knigbts Ferry, Stanislaus County, had ten of its business houses burn August 16, with a $25,000 loss.

The town at the New Almaden quicksilver mine in Santa Clara County was destroyed August 15. About sixty buildings were burned, mostly homes of the miners.

The Odd Fellows' Hall and mercantile store of J. W. Wilcox & Co. at Mariposa burned August 25, causing a $15,000 loss.

A Central Pacific woodshed with several thousand cords of wood, Smith's Hotel and other buildings were destroyed by fire at Auburn, Placer County, August 26, blocking the track several hours and causing a heavy loss.

The home of Mrs. Rebecca Tiffee, in Colusa County, was burned the night of August 18. Mrs. Tiffee, her 10-year-old son and a hired man perished in the flames.

Amador County Stage Robbed.

A young woman named Temple, near Colusa, going in a buggy with her future husband to get married was, by the horses running away, thrown out and dangerously injured. Nevertheless she insisted on the ceremony being performed in her critical condition.

The Amador County stage from Volcano to Jackson was stopped by two masked robbers August 8, about one mile from Volcano, and the express box, containing gold bars valued at $5,100, taken.

G. M. Norton found the petrified claw of a lobster twenty-five feet below the surface in a strata of gravel near Mt. Diablo. There was also a deposit of oyster shells. Beneath the gravel was developed a coal vein.

Three teamsters, named Burt, Friedburgher and Leland, were sleeping under their wagons at Bullard Bar, Butte County, the night of August 7. A gang of robbers, believed to number more than five, chloroformed them and their dogs and stole their blankets, trousers and other wearing apparel as well as over $400 in money. They also robbed a store in the vicinity. The robbers wore Chinese shoes, and left so many tracks in the dust of the road it was surmised it might have been done by a gang of Chinamen.

Wm. Dresser, a noted sporting and fighting man of Sacramento, went to San Francisco to attend the funeral of a friend. The night of August 1 he was cruising among the bars of Kearney and California streets with Wm. Wilson, also a sporting man. A quarrel developed over a dispute as to who was standing treat while they were drinking at a bar. Dresser drew a six-shooter and a bowie knife. Wilson grasped him by each wrist and held him so he could not effectively use either weapon, but he managed to discharge the gun. One bullet ploughed a gash several inches long across the cheek of a barkeeper named Keudall, another inflicted a flesh wound in Wilson's side and others went wild, but the last struck Dresser and fractured his pelvis. He was reported dead the day after he was shot and the fire department of Sacramento tolled the engine-house bells for half an hour in respect to the memory of their departed member. He recovered, only to be killed a few months later in a street fight in Sacramento with another sporting man.

Mrs. Page, separated from her husband and living near Gilroy, Santa Clara County, heard that a man named Taylor was slandering her. The afternoon of August 8 she drove in a buggy to where Taylor lived, and invited him to take a ride with her. She drove a few miles from Gilroy, then stopped, and making Taylor get out of the buggy, shot him dead.

Sheriff's Posse Kills Desperado.

August 9 T. Tilghman, claiming to own a lot in Sacramento that the court had decided belonged to another party, was adjudged guilty of contempt of court in not obeying the judge's instructions. A deputy sheriff named John Deuny went to arrest him. Tilghman, on the approach of the officer, opened fire with a rifle and hit him on the hand. Denny fired a shotgun loaded with buckshot, several of which, striking Tilghman's head, killed him. Denny was exonerated.

WILLIAM KENT

Former Congressman who seeks Republican Nomination for UNITED STATES SENATOR

"The presence of the Japanese among us is a danger that must be met by the State and Nation," is the declaration of former Congressman William Kent, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator at the primaries on August 31.

A leader in the fight for the enactment of the Asiatic Exclusion Measure, Mr. Kent has given of his time, influence and money to save California for Californians.

"Whether we like it or not," he says, "Nature has provided us with the instinct of race antagonism. The introduction of Orientals brings up a sharp race conflict that will lead to trouble rather than to peace. The Japanese are peculiarly aggressive and seem to be deliberately, consciously, working toward domination of the world.

"We have seen the effects of their advent in Hawaii, where within a generation American-born Japanese will outvote all others, and those islands, under whatever flag, will have become Orientalized. The Whites who assumed the responsibility have sold these islands for a mess of sugar.

"We cannot throw California away after this fashion. The initiative will be invoked at the coming election, and it will carry with it the solemn decision of the people of California—a message to the other States of a purpose that will be respected. It will have such a law against renting or occupancy that will have a much greater effect than laws passed by legislators or drummed up by politicians."

Former Congressman Kent was born in Chicago. He came to California when he was seven years old, and is practically a "Native Son."

Mr. Kent started the movement to save the Redwoods by giving Muir Wood to the Government. He made a successful fight to save the water level in Lake Tahoe against destruction by the power interests. He gave twenty-five acres at Lake Tahoe as a public camping ground.

He is now leading the fight to prevent the exportation of gasoline to the Orient, to the detriment of American consumers.

"FORWARD!" THE WORD

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

LARGELY THROUGH THE EFFORTS OF the Native Sons of the Golden West and the American Legion "boys," the initiative measure, which contains provisions that will stop the grabbing of agricultural land in California by the Japs, either by purchase, lease, or through fraudulent corporations and guardianships, will undoubtedly have a place on the November ballot. The Secretary of State has until August 3 to check the petitions, which must contain 56,000 names; petitions with more than 100,000 names have been filed with county clerks.

It would not be misleading to entitle this measure a proposed "Act to Stop the Peaceful Invasion of California by Asiatics," for that is just the thing the Japs are doing—peacefully trying to get a strangle-hold on this Golden State—and the initiative measure simply provides a means to cut off the many avenues selected by the invaders to accomplish their scheme.

Briefly, the initiative measure declares that no alien not entitled to become a citizen of the United States shall be permitted to acquire agricultural land in California, either by purchase or by lease, or through the "fake" corporation and guardianship routes that have been successfully chosen by the yellow-Japs and white-Japs to fasten the yellow peril upon this state.

Is there in California a one-hundred-per-cent American, no matter where he hails from, who does not endorse the declaration that the land shall be held exclusively for American citizens and those eligible to become such? Is there one who would not rather wound the "sensibilities of a proud people"—the Japs, who are not eligible to become citizens—than to sacrifice one foot of soil to admittedly unassimilable peoples? Is there one who is not willing, if necessary, to give his life that California may continue to hold her commanding place in the sun as the White Man's Paradise?

If you be, in reality, an AMERICAN—if you be not one of that class enjoying American citizenship who has been hypnotized by the Jap propagandists—take off your coat and go to work for the anti-Jap initiative. Start immediately, and work incessantly until the polls close on election day in November.

FACTS, indisputable, proving that the JAPS ARE A MENACE and have well under way a definite program to colonize California, are available; they have been published in the public press, reiterated and strengthened in the State Board of Control report, and brought out under oath in the Congressional investigation. State officials could have greatly lessened, if not entirely removed, this Jap menace, but, to use a common expression, they lacked the "guts." They have catered to the wishes of the powerful white-Jap and yellow-Jap influences that are against any measure designed to relieve California of the Asiatic menace, and have deliberately betrayed the State by failing to uphold the will of The People, expressed in the Alien Land Law. And so, it has become necessary to discredit these slacker state officials by going direct to The People for adequate law to deal with both the yellow-Japs and white-Japs, and to intrust the enforcement of that law to officials who, it is believed, will not sleep "while the Yamato race pushes forward." Keep the FACTS before The People, and the initiative will carry in November, despite the $100,000 fund raised by the Japs to defeat it.

A most serious crisis now confronts California. Failure of the initiative measure in November will herald to the world that we want the Asiatics to colonize here; it can have no other interpretation. And that they will colonize, more boldly and in greatly-augmented numbers, is evidenced by what they have already done under cover and without any invitation from The People of this state to make this their breeding-ground.

We have every faith in The People—that great mass of American citizens who think much, but say little; who pay the bills of government, but whose welfare is little considered; upon whose unswerving loyalty rests securely the foundation-stone of popular government; who speak in no uncertain terms when aroused to action. This initiative measure is in the interest of The People—against, we are delighted to proclaim, the dollar-worshiping americans (note the small "a") and those public officials whose chief success as servants of The People is as suckers at the public-teat—and The People will enact it as their law, if they be informed what it is and why its immediate adoption and enforcement are necessary.

Half the battle has been won by getting this measure on the ballot. But it is the less-important half, and all the effort will have been lost unless we "carry on," with a determination to get The People to go to the polls and vote in November. Indeed, more than that effort will be lost, for failure at the polls means the loss of California, to the white-Japs and yellow-Japs. The "nice little brown men" will swarm in here in such numbers that California's place in the sun will be completely hidden from the eyes of the white man, the soil will afford no room for his feet, and he must do one of two things: surrender his rights and go elsewhere, or work, on this American soil, for a people who believe in the divinity of the mikado of Japan. Probably some of our state officials and those self-styled "Americans" who advocate an impossibility—assimilation—would be delighted with this latter privilege, but, thank God, they are few in number. They are not of our kind, except in color, are out of harmony here, and should lose no time in taking themselves where they belong and may be happy—to the land of the "christ-mikado," Japan.

"Forward!" is the word. Unfurl the Bear Flag—the flag which led the Pioneers to victory in a similar cause—that California shall be a white man's state in this great American Union! Sound the battle-cry, that The People may be aroused, and, with "California forever!" ringing from the lips, march on to victory in November!

LOOK WELL TO YOUR BALLOTS!

At the general election in November, there are to be chosen a United States senator, eleven congressional representatives, twenty state senators and eighty assemblymen.

Every Californian who loves the state and wants her to remain a white man's paradise should register, and vote, that no more "accidents" may be nominated or elected.

We want no one representing California in public office, and particularly in the National and State Legislatures, who cannot be absolutely depended upon, after election, to labor and vote for national and state laws that will promptly and effectively thwart the Japs' "peaceful invasion" scheme.

the citizens wanted to lynch him. It was afterwards ascertained that the supposition was untrue and the little girl had died from lung congestion.

John Bonny, a young man 22 years of age, preparing to go hunting in Nevada County August 4, went to a barn to get his gun. Reaching for it on a shelf he grasped it by the muzzle and pulling it towards him caused it to be accidentally fired. The shot hit him in the breast and killed him.

Wm. Shores, a former member of the Legislature from Siskiyou County, a Pioneer of 1850 and popularly known as "Uncle Billy," was August 9 cutting up a log near Scott's Bar. The ax slipped and nearly cut off his foot. Before assistance came he had lost so much blood he died the next day.

N. A. Covarrubias, a prominent citizen of Santa Barbara, was driving a favorite horse in a sulky without reins, guiding it with a whip. Probably hitting it too hard the horse concluded to dash away. The sulky was upset and the driver had a leg broken.

Many Children Accident Victims.

Mark Gillon of Vallejo August 2 was digging a well. After being lowered to the bottom to start work in the morning he died in a few minutes, being asphyxiated by gas that had flowed into the well during the night.

George Cornwall, a 14-year-old boy hunting near Napa City, shot at a hare and then mounted a rock about three feet high to watch his dog chase it. In pulling his gun by the muzzle toward him the hammer caught and caused it to be fired. The charge entered his right side, making a horrible wound and soon causing his death.

William Wilson had his foot and leg mangled by being caught in the cog wheels of a thresher near Snelling, Merced County, August 12, and the leg had to be amputated.

Ezra Lathrop, working with a steam thresher near Napa City, had his right arm mangled and twice broken by being caught in the machinery August 7.

A little girl named Donaldson, near Vacaville, Solano County, playing with other children sliding down a hay stack, struck on the handle of a pitchfork and was feared to be fatally injured.

Lester Bruce, an 8-year-old lad, while fishing from the end of a wharf at Sacramento August 19 fell into the river and was drowned.

Thomas Fant, a teamster, fell from his wagon near Cherokee, Butte County, August 18, and was run over and crushed to death.

Harvey Eastman, a teamster in Tehama County, was driving a six-horse team; while setting the brake descending a hill he fell under a front wheel August 22 and was crushed to death.

John Herman, operating a hydraulic mine at Gold Run, Placer County, was August 23 caved upon and killed.

The three children of George Walthers, a farmer near Yuba City, Sutter County, were playing in the granary when a pile of sacked wheat fell upon them. George, aged 5, was killed, Katie, aged 4, and Fred, aged 3, were seriously injured.

Charles Meynard, a lad at Hay Fork, Trinity County, had part of his right hand blown off by the accidental discharge of a rifle.

A little boy 3 years old named Rickey near Bucna Vista, Amador County, playing with an older brother and a loaded pistol, was shot, by the accidental firing of the gun, just below his eye. The bullet went into his head so far it could not be extracted, but he recovered from the painful wound.

Woman Kills Big Buck.

A man named Heath, out hunting in Plumas County, by error put a load in the wrong barrel of his gun. In extracting it he held the gun muzzle down in his hand to catch the shot. It was accidentally fired, tearing his hand in a horrible manner.

A little boy named Baner, 7 years old, wading in a pond near the San Mateo County line, stepped into a hole and was drowned.

A little girl named Smith, with her smaller brother was crossing a flume at Rattlesnake Bar on a plank. The little boy was made dizzy by looking at the rushing water and fell in. His sister jumped in after him, and with one hand holding him and the other grasping a cross-piece of the flume, she hung on to both until help came. A few days afterward her older brother saved, in a heroic manner, a lad named Zantgraff from drowning while in a swimming hole.

Mr. Jacks, a prominent citizen of Monterey County, stopping at the Russ House in San Francisco, attempted to bathe his feet in a stationary wash basin. To do so he stood upon a chair, the seat of which broke and let one of his legs pass through. He knocked down and broke a tumbler, and the pieces of glass cut an artery near his ankle. He was found lying insensible on the floor from loss of blood and was attended to just in time to save his life.

Mrs. McReynolds, a widow living near Geyserville, Sonoma County, hearing her dog baying in a thicket near her home, took a rifle and went to investigate. She shot an animal, as she saw it moving in the brush, and it proved to be one of the largest bucks that had ever been killed in that locality. She supplied her neighbors with a bountiful quantity of venison.

Three grizzly bears killed a horse in Tulare County, and while feasting on it two were killed by a hunter named Persian.

A 3-year-old boy at Folsom, Sacramento County, discovered for the first time in his house a large mirror and saw a reflection of himself in it. Thinking it was another boy mimicing him, and in response to his shaking his fist at him, he went outside, secured a rock and, returning, smashed the offending mirror into small bits.

THE OUIJA BOARD

(ESTHER CRONE.)

You mystic little creeper,
How dare you to pretend
To show to us a future,
Or play the part of friend?

How dare you answer questions,
Or deign to know a thought:
Divulging things that are hidden
When there's information sought?

Don't think that you can fool me.
I know you are no good,
For what you tell is all a lie
And you're only made of wood.

reduced to skeleton weight, afflicted with dysentery, still wearing their rags with much dignity and self-respect; one woman tattered and torn, but gentle, resolute and brave—idolized by all; three wan, large-eyed and patient children, and two score oxen, were all that were left to enjoy the pleasures of the new-found land which they entered about February 1, 1850.

Looking back over the distant scene, one of those who survived the ordeals was inspired to utter these words:

"Yonder in mountain's gray beauty,
Wealth and fame decay;
Yonder the sands of the desert,
Yonder the salt of the sea,
Yonder a fiery furnace;
Yonder the bones of our friends,
Yonder the old and the young
Lie scattered along the way."

WORK, UNCEASINGLY, FOR CALIFORNIA!

The initiative measure to stop Jap land acquirement in California will be on the November ballot. The fact of its being there, however, does not assure its adoption as a law.

A campaign of education among voters must be waged incessantly. If the FACTS regarding the Japs in this state are made known to The People, they will "put over" the proposed law without doubt. Our duty, from now until the close of the polls in November, is to make the facts known.

Prominent Attorney Dies Suddenly.

Palo Alto—Monroe H. Thomas, a successful attorney of Santa Clara County, was taken suddenly ill the night of July 3 and died the following morning. He was a graduate of Stanford University, and was affiliated with Palo Alto Parlor, No. 216, N.S.G.W.

HELP PREVENT FOREST FIRES is the slogan which will appear on all mail paseing through Uncle Sam's postoffices at Sacramento, San Diego and Loe Angeles as a result of orders juet received from Postmaster General Burleson, according to Forest Service officials. It is hoped in this way to bring home to the people of California their individual responsibility in the matter of forest fires. Help prevent forest fires, should be the first thought and the last of every mountain camper this year.

In Memoriam

MONROE THOMAS.

To the Officers and Members of Palo Alto Parlor, No. 216, N.S.G.W.—We, your committee on resolutions of respect to the memory of Brother Monroe Thomas, deceased, respectfully suhmit the following:

Whereas, Divine Providence has willed that our brother, Monroe Thomas, be called from among us to a seat in the Grand Parlor on High; and whereas, Brother Thomas was a member of long standing in our Order, a man of exceptional talents, a staunch friend and a loyal Native Son, of high standing in the legal fraternity of our State; and whereas, in his untimely passing Palo Alto Parlor has lost a loyal member, the community a valuahle and highly respected citizen and the California Bar an eminent member; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to his family our sincere sympathy in their hour of bereavement, and as a mark of our respect to his memory, it is ordered our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, that a copy of these resolutions he spread on the minutes, a copy sent to his wife, and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

The Republican Party

By SAMUEL M. SHORTRIDGE

The Republican Candidate for UNITED STATES SENATOR

The Republican Party has ever been a Party of Progress. Its history is one of accomplishment. Its face has ever been turned toward the future. Its very life has been dedicated to the welfare of all the people—to freedom, to the Union, to the Constitution, to American labor on land and sea, in shop and mine, on prairie and in forest. Its banner has been the ensign of the Republic, in storm and calm, and its inspiring watchword has been and is Progress. Progress, not mere change; Progress, not revolution; Progress, not socialistic chaos; but Progress under and with fidelity to the Constitution, along safe lines, reverent of the past and its lessons writ in tears and blood; Progress, in developing the national resources, in hettering the economic condition of all the people; Progress, in enlarging the Republic, in spreading light and civilization, in conferring liberty on the oppressed, and at all times standing for righteousness,—Progress, with liberty and the rights of man safeguarded by the Constitution of Washington, has been the glorious record and the high and patriotic purpose of the Republican Party.

The success of the Republican Party is of vastly more importance than the success of any man. Ambition must not divide, ambition must not defeat the Party whose success is essential to national success. Men die, but principles endure to bless or to blast a people. I would have the Republican Party live and triumph, leading and guiding our country to higher prosperity and greater glory.

As in the past, so now the Republican Party thinks and acts for America.

I am a Republican.

MONUMENT TO RISE FOR HERO DEAD

FERNDALE—FERNDALE PARLOR, No. 93, Native Sons of the Golden West, has decided to build a monument at Centerville Beach, in Humboldt County, to commemorate the deeds of the thirty-eight persons who were buried there in 1860, following the wreck of the "Northerner." To find the exact site of the tragedy and make the plans for the monument, a committee composed of J. J. Neibur, Robt. Flowers and Jos. J. Bogunda has been appointed.

According to the early history of Humboldt County and the accounts given by the Pioneers of Eel River Valley, it was on the stormy 6th day of January, 1860, that the "Northerner," one of the largest vessels on this coast, was slowly making her way up north, bound for some port in Oregon. While on her way coming up she struck on the rocks near Blunt's Reef and the captain, thinking he could make port safely, kept on his course. While opposite Centerville Beach he found the vessel in a sinking condition, and directed a course straight ashore, in an attempt to save the passengers.

The "Northerner" struck bottom quite a distance from shore in the afternoon; then began the hard task of saving those on board. Signals were sent out from the boat. All the old settlers left for the scene, some going down Eel River in boats, then up Centerville Slough. Some went by the old Indian trail, which led over the hills.

A line was made fast from the boat to logs on the shore, and one by one the passengers were sent over on a sailors' saddle, reaching shore dead or in a dying condition. The rain was falling in torrents and it was two days' travel to medical aid in Eureka. Darkness came on, with a stormy night, which made the conditions terrible for those saved. According to accounts published some years ago, some of the greatest acts of heroism were enacted in an unsuccessful attempt to save all on board.

Jap Opponents Want Financial Help.

Martinez—Grand President James F. Hoey has given official approval to a letter sent out by the Oriental Exclusion League, with headquarters in Sacramento, asking Subordinate Parlors to contribute funds with which to conduct the campaign to save California from the yellow peril—the Japs.

The cause is worthy. Many of the Parlors have already responded, and all should do so. The future welfare of California depends upon the success of this campaign, in which the Oriental Exclusion League is one of the leaders.

"Country" Parlor Shows 'Em.

Palo Alto—Palo Alto 216 takes special pride in the ritual exemplification. Its officers have plenty of practice, for initiation is a regular thing at every meeting. June 24 fifty-five members paid a visit to California 1 (San Francisco) and the officers, in an excellent manner, exemplified the ritual for the benefit of a big class gotten together by the California boys. The trip was made by auto. A social session followed the initiatory ceremonies.

July 19, D.D.G.P. Fred L. Thomas of San Jose, assistant district attorney of Santa Clara County, installed the officers of Palo Alto Parlor. Grand Trustee E. J. Lynch of San Francisco was also present, on his official visit. Several candidates were initiated, and "Chef" James Farmin served another of his famous "feeds." Among the visitors was Charles L. McEnerney of San Francisco; he claims Palo Alto is the only Parlor that put anything over on him at San Diego; "Mac" must be trying to find out how, as he is becoming quite a frequent visitor to Palo Alto. The new president, F. M. Ostrander, hopes to beat the record of his predecessor, Charles E. Tully—46 additions—and the members will assist him in doing so.

Treasurer Resigns.

San Francisco—After twenty years of service as treasurer of Niantic 105, Joseph B. Keenau has resigned that responsible office. Raymond M. Giannini has been elected to the vacancy, and Hugo H. Schlam has been chosen president for the July-December term. Keenan was presented with a silver engraved cigar case, and his successor, retiring past president, with an emblematic jewel.

An Eventful Affair.

Merced—July 20 has gone on record as one of the most eventful affairs in the history of Yosemite 24 and Veritas 75, N.D.G.W., the occasion being the semi-annual installation of officers of the respective Parlors, a joint public affair. This was the first time for some ten years that the two Parlors have joined in such a pleasant evening, and it goes without saying that the members of both hope for more regular co-operation in the future. President C. W. Kahl called the meeting to order, and after stating the aims aud purposes of the two Orders surrendered the chairs to the Native Daughters who, under the abl direction of their installing officer, D.D.G.P. Lou McLeod of Oakdale, beautifully exemplified the ceremonies of the Order. The following officers of Veritas Parlor were installed: Lena Paganglli, P.P.; Lulu Griffin, P.; Mabel Keyes, 1V.P.; Grace Leonard, 2V.P.; Dora Davilla, 3V.P.; Gladys Barrett, M.; Ada Maxfield, I.S.; Sadie Wisdom, O.S.; Ethel Peak, T.; Emma Ray, F.S.; Dora Heacox, R.S.; Mary Vanden Heuvel, Mabel Wilcox, Lena Crawford, Trs.; Mrs. T. W. Fowler, O.

WORK, UNCEASINGLY, FOR CALIFORNIA!

The initiative measure to stop Jap land acquirement in California will be on the November ballot. The fact of its being there, however, does not assure its adoption as a law.

A campaign of education among voters must be waged incessantly. If the FACTS regarding the Japs in this state are made known to The People, they will "put over" the proposed law without doubt. Our duty, from now until the close of the polls in November, is to make the facts known.

Immediately following, D.D.G.P. I. H. Reuter installed the following officers of Yosemite Parlor, the ceremonies being very impressive: C. W. Kahl, Jr., P.P.; Stanley Peard, P.; Geo. Boyd, 1V.P.; Edward Peard, 2V.P.; Lester Lord, 3V.P.; Earl Kendrick, M.; Robert Boyd, I.S.; Robert Cothran, O.S.; George E. Kibby, T.; J. C. Cocoanaur, F.S.; Winslow T. Clough, R. S.; I. H. Reuter, C. R. Roduner, T. W. Fowler, Trs.

Interesting remarks were made by the newly-installed president of both Parlors, they signifying their intentions of making a new record for the term. Superior Judge E. N. Rector and D. K. Stoddard delivered appropriate addresses. Out of respect to the memory of Miss Mae Boyd, sister of Robert, George and J. A. Boyd of Yosemite Parlor, who had just passed away, the gathering stood in silence. After installation dancing, card-playing and other pastimes prevailed in the banquet-room, where refreshments were served.

Accompanied by members of Yosemite Parlor, D.D.G.P. I. H. Reuter went to Modesto July 21 and installed the officers of Modesto 11. After the ceremonies the new officers initiated a class of candidates.

Building in Prospect.

San Jose—It is the generally expressed opinion of members of both San Jose 22 and Observatory 177 that the Native Sons of the Garden City will soon commence the building of their own home. They have an excellent site, in the business district, valued at $50,000. "Keep your eyes on the Natives of Santa Clara County," is the advice of one enthusiast.

Memorial Exercises Grow in Interest.

Wheatland—Rainbow 40 has once more won a Grand Parlor membership trophy banner, and the members feel real proud of the achievement. Each year, since the membership contests started four years ago, Rainbow has been a winner. June 17 a native son arrived at the home of G. R. Akins, secretary of the Parlor, and wife.

Assisted by the people of the community, Rainbow Parlor held its annual Memorial Day exercises. The members assembled at their meeting hall and proceeded in a body to the cemetery; here were held the exercises, consisting of several songs by a local quartet and an address by Past Grand President Charles E. McLaughlin of Sacramento; then the graves of all soldiers and members buried there were decorated. The Parlor has held similar exercises every year since the Grand Parlor passed the law requiring the day's observance; every year more interest is created in the community, and the exercises are better and better attended.

Grand President James F. Hoey (Mount Diablo 101) of Martinez was, on July 19, admitted to practice law in the Federal courts.

Officers Installed.

Antioch—The following officers of General Winn 32 have been installed by D.D.G.P. J. T. Belshaw: C. W. Hornback, P.P.; Jas. Taylor, Jr., P.; Joseph Viera, 1V.P.; Joe Thomas, 2V.P.; John McGinley, 3V.P.; Elvin Lilley, M.; Westley Field, I.S.; George Augusto, O.S.

"Magnificent Body of Men."

San Jose—D.D.G.P. George W. Tinney of Palo Alto, assisted by a team from Palo Alto 216, installed the following officers of Observatory 177 July 13: Charles Dietz, P.P.; J. M. Waterman, P.; Jos. L. Graves, 1V.P.; Fred Withycomb, 2V.P.; Stanley Egense, 3V.P.; Albert O. Kayser, T.; Henry Jung, F.S.; H. J. Dougherty, R.S.; Alfred C. Hanson, M.; Jos. E. Hancock, Tr.; Charles Hunt, I.S.; Ernest Johnson, O.S.; Drs. E. F. Holbrook, George F. Barry, Phns. Grand Trustee Edward J. Lynch of San Francisco was present on his official visit, and several candidates were initiated.

After enjoying vocal selections by Irving Ryder and William Pengilly, with Percy L. Peters at the piano, a chicken supper was served, followed by brief addresses from Grand Trustee Lynch, D.D.G.P. Tinney and Past Grand President Dr. Charles W. Decker. Speaking of the Parlor, D.D.G.P. Tinney says: "Observatory Parlor has a membership of 198, with only $17 outstandiug for dues. The new president, J. M. Waterman, will have the pleasure, within the next few weeks, of initiating his only son, a privilege seldom enjoyed by a president. Waterman is certainly proud of this opportunity. This Parlor has a most excellent set of officers, and Anniversary Ball.

San Francisco—Twin Peaks 214 celebrated its anniversary with a ball July 10. Supervisor Charles J. Powers was chairman of the reception committee, and Arthur Holland of the floor committee. The general committee in charge included Stephen Sullivan, Arthur Holland and J. T. McDevitt.

Officers Publicly Installed.

Oakland—Officers of Oakland 50 were publicly installed July 9, George J. Barron becoming president. After the ceremonies there was a dance. A special "Good of the Order" night is billed for July 30.

Celebrates Anniversary.

San Bernardino—Jerome B. Kavanaugh will preside over the destinies of Arrowhead 110, having been elected president for the next six months.

Arrowhead celebrated the thirty-third anniversary of its institution July 21. There was a big class initiation, followed by a banquet. Secretary R. W. Brazelton had charge of the arrangements.

Sets Big Membership Mark.

San Jose—The home of J. A. Corotto, one of the most prominent members of San Jose 22, was thrown open to the members of all the Parlors of the Santa Clara Valley July 12. The hospitality of the Corotto family, in the form of a good old-fashioned California barbecue, was enjoyed by 275 members of the Order, who declared the occasion one of the most enjoyable they had ever participated in.

After the barbecue all attended the meeting of San Jose 22—the first since Garden City 82 consolidated with San Jose—and enjoyed a feast of addresses. The combined Parlor has a membership of 320, and John Corotto says it will have 1,000 before the Stockton Grand Parlor. That's a high mark to reach, and the San Joseans have started the climb in earnest. July 26, D.D.G.P. George W. Tinney and his Palo Alto 216 team installed the Parlor's officers.

Fresno County Parlors Install.

Selma—Officers of Fresno 25 and Selma 107 were jointly installed here by D.D.G.P. L. J. Price. There was a large crowd of visitors from Fresno. A banquet concluded the evening. Selma Parlor's officers include: E. C. Laughlin, Jr.PP.; Albert J. Jessen, P.; Claude Gordon, 1V.P.; Eugene Arrants, 2V.P.; E. E. Crosslin, 3V.P.; Marvin Berry, M.; Roy Gordon, I.S.; Steve Gordon, O.S.; W. J. Johnson, See.; W. G. Gilreath, Tr.; L. J. Price, T.

Charter for Athletic Club Opened.

San Francisco—At a meeting attended by delegates from all local Parlors it was decided to keep the charter for the proposed Native Sons' Athletic Club open during July. The initiation fee is $25, payable in installments.

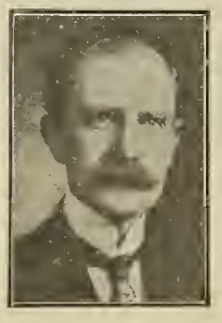

It is the intention to erect a club-house on Mason street, opposite the Native Sons' Building, large enough to house a salt water tank in addition to a large gymnasium, handball courts, bowling alleys, showers, steam rooms and all the necessary equipment of a modern athletic club.

Visitors Favorably Received.

San Diego—San Diego held one of the best meetings in its history June 17, when Grand Trustee Henry G. Bodkin of Los Angeles conducted the installation ceremonies, assisted by the following brothers, also of Los Angeles: President W. E. Jordan of Corona 196, President A. E. Hamilton of Honors Honored Member.

Hollister—Grand President Bertha A. Briggs was guest of honor at a charming reception given by Copa de Oro 105 (her home Parlor), July 9. A large attendance was enjoyed, many of the older members being on hand to congratulate Mrs. Briggs on her success. A short but enjoyable program was given, adding greatly to the entertainment of the evening, as follows: Vocal solo, Mrs. Lorena Johnson; monologue, Vivian Ebi; dance, Helen Hudner; vocal solo, Eileen Muder; instrumental selection, Bee Johnson.

On behalf of the members of Copa de Oro, Miss Justina Moran presented the guest of honor with a handsome fitted traveling case. Mrs. Briggs thanked the members for the splendid gift, and for many courtesies in the past. Dainty refreshments brought the evening to a close, and all present declared it to be one of the most enjoyable affairs ever given by the Parlor.

Departing Members Surprised.

Fort Bragg—Members of Fort Bragg 210 tendered a farewell surprise to two members—Mrs. Henry Scheper and Mrs. R. A. Brady—at the former's home in Caspar. Mrs. Scheper has departed for a visit to New York, and Mrs. Brady has taken np her home in Sunnyvale.

The early evening was enjoyed at music, singing, cards and fortune telling. Then followed a most bountiful and delicious supper, brought by friends. It was early in the morning when the thirty "surprisers" departed.

Thankful for Support.

San Francisco—Darina 114 wishes, through The Grizzly Bear, to thank those who supported the candidacy of Lucie E. Hammersmith for the office of Grand Outside Seutinel at the San Jose Grand Parlor, and to announce that she will be a candidate for the same office at the 1921 (San Francisco) Grand Parlor.

Wins Second Membership Prize.

Sonoma—For the second time, Mrs. Susie Batchelor, retiring president of Sonoma 209, has been declared the winner of the Parlor's prize to the member getting the most candidates. Accordingly, she has been awarded a cut-glass vase. Mrs. Batchelor's efforts toward increasing the Parlor's membership have been highly successful and are greatly appreciated.

Officers of Sonoma Parlor have been elected, as follows: Susie Batchelor, P.P.; Nellie Peterson, P.; Stella McGill, 1V.P.; Rose Bartoli, 2V.P.; Louise Poulson, 3V.P.; Mae Norrbom, R.S.; Dorothy Breitenbach, F.S.; Gladys Small, T.; Normi Hansen, M.; Janet Maffei, Clara Fouts, Marguerite Cereghino, Trs.; Anna Bolin, I.S.; Myrtle Stuermer, O.S.

New Home Is "Warmed."

San Diego—San Diego 208 held its first meeting at its new home, Moose Hall, 914 Seventh street, July 5, and all present voted the change in location an excellent move. The following meeting, July 19, was a "house warming" affair, to which a special invitation was extended to San Diego 108, N.S.G.W., also to all native-born Californians, whether affiliated with the Orders or not. Proper committees were appointed to take charge, and all who attended had a pleasant evening.

A committee of five was appointed to wait upon San Diego 108, N.S.G.W., relative to the proper celebration of Admission Day in San Diego. A committee is to be appointed by the Native Sons, and it is proposed to make the Pioneers of California the guests of the occasion.

The tiny redwood planted in Balboa Park by the Native Daughters, assisted by the Native Sons, during the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons in April, and named in memory of Past Grand President Charles Mortimer Belshaw, is reported as making excellent growth in its new home.

President Surprised.

San Francisco—A "surprise" was recently given by La Estrella 89 to President May Barry, in honor of her birthday and also the twentieth anniversary of her marriage. The tables were beautifully decorated with roses and greens, a horseshoe of pansies forming an attractive centerpiece. Ravioli (prepared by La Estrella's famous chef) and other good "eats" helped to make the affair a real success. D.D.G.P. Helen Mann of Keith 137, Mame Daniels and Hannah Collins of Fremont 59, were especially invited guests. The many beautiful gifts received by Mrs. Barry testify as to her popularity in La Estrella. A few other "surprises" are scheduled for the near future. But why say more? That would be telling.

The newly elected officers of La Estrella Parlor include: Hannah Barry, P.; Ida Corcoran, 1V.P.; Mamie Toomey, 2V.P.; Tillie Marks, 3V.P.; Lola Horgan, M.; Birdie Hartman, R.S.; May Boldemann, T.; Anna Roethel, F.S.; Teresa Boldemann, O.; Mamie Regnier, Alice Boldemann, Anna Aigeltinger, Trs.; Adelaide Richardson, I.S.; Dorothy Harders, O.S.; Dr. Lillie Boldemann, Phyn.

WORK, UNCEASINGLY, FOR CALIFORNIA!

The initiative measure to stop Jap land acquirement in California will be on the November ballot. The fact of its being there, however, does not assure its adoption as a law.

A campaign of education among voters must be waged incessantly. If the FACTS regarding the Japs in this state are made known to The People, they will "put over" the proposed law without doubt. Our duty, from now until the close of the polls in November, is to make the facts known.

Makes Splendid Showing.

Sacramento—One of the most attractive features in the Fourth of July parade in this city was the orange parasol-covered float of Coloma 212, with several members marching beside in costumes to match. The float was covered wtih orange crepe paper, like a huge flower, and the body and wheels were also covered with strands of the paper. The guard of honor consisted of members of the Parlor clad in white dresses and orange colored hats, and carrying orange colored parasols. Over their dresses were worn jackets of the orange paper.

Adds a Dozen.

Salinas—In honor of one of its members—Anna Geil Andresen—elected Grand Trustee at the San Jose Grand Parlor, Aleli 102 gave a reception and banquet which were largely attended. During the evening the Parlor's membership-roll was increased by the addition of twelve candidates. Dorothy Perkins roses were used in the artistic decorations.

Miss Amelia Bottcher was the toastmistress, and Mrs. J. D. Kalar, president of the Parlor, gave a toast to "Our Trustee," which was responded to by Grand Trustee Andresen. Other speakers were Mrs. Nellie Sherwood, Misses Mary Breen and Effie Iverson, Mrs. Leah Bell. The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. Leah Bell (chairman), Mesdames J. H. Gross, Alvin Anderson, Clara Kalar, Misses Katharine Wallace, Mildred Russell.

Contributes to Restoration Fund.

San Luis Obispo—San Luisita 108 gave a dance which netted $100. The amouut has been turned into the fund being raised to restore San Luis de Tolosa Mission. The Parlor is greatly interested in this project, and is giving it every help.

Independence Day Celebrated.

Georgetown—El Dorado 186 celebrated the Fourth of July at Reservoir Grove, and it was declared by the many in attendance the best Fourth celebration ever given in El Dorado County. The festivities opened with the following program: Selection, band; prayer, Rev. P. E. Peterson; remarks, E. W. Claressee, president of the day; reading, Declaration of Independence, A. O. Nelson; song, "Star Spangled Banner," community; oration, Judge H. Thompson; song, "I Love You, California," Placerville quartet; community singing and band selections. From 12 o'clock until 2 a picnic lunch was served, with an aeroplane exhibition at 1, and band music. From 2 to 4 dancing was enjoyed on an open-air platform, this being followed by athletic events.

In the evening the merrymakers invaded Odd Fellows' Hall, in town, where the grand ball was held. Both the picnic grounds and the hall were beautifully decorated in the national colors. From the conduct of various concessions, a goodly sum was raised for El Dorado Parlor's treasury.

Grand Parlor Doings Enjoyed.

St. Helena—July 6 La Junta 203 had the pleasure of an unofficial visit from Grand Vice-president Dr. Victory A. Derrick of Oakland, who was spending a vacation here. In spite of its being vacation time, there was a goodly number of members present to listen to the reports of the delegates to the Grand Parlor. After the meeting, upon invitation of Mrs. Celeste Thorsen and Miss Martha Klubescheidt, the delegates made their way to the banquet-room, where a special meeting of "Mary Bell Parlor No. 500" was declared in order.

The centerpiece on the table was a miniature Hotel Vendome with driveways and flower gardens. After enjoying the "eats," which included "Vendome special," the mock minutes of "Mary Bell Parlor No. 500" which caused so much merriment at San Jose were read, so that the sisters who did not have the privilege of attending the Grand Parlor might enjoy them also. The members are looking forward to another visit from Dr. Derrick, as she is planning to return to St. Helena in the fall.

Neighboring Parlors Entertained.

Watsonville—This city was the mecca June 26 for large delegations of Native Daughters and Native Sons of Santa Cruz, Salinas, Monterey, Hollister and Castroville, who were guests of El Pajaro 35 and Watsonville 65, N.S.G.W., at a reunion banquet, which was enjoyed by 250 members of both Orders. The banqnet was served by twelve boys and girls, under the direction of Mrs. Richard Buckhart and Miss Carrie Clausen. Both the menu and the service were excellent, and elicited great praise from the assembled Natives. Between the courses, cabaret numbers were introduced, the entertainers being heartily cheered.

George G. Radcliff (Watsonville 65) was master of ceremonies, and addresses were delivered by Bertha A. Briggs of Hollister, Grand President, N.D.G.W.; Anna G. Andresen of Salinas, Grand Trustee, N.D.G.W.; D.D.G.P. Matilda Bergschicker of Monterey. At 10 o'clock dancing was commenced, and continued until the wee sma' hours. The affair was a complete success, and the committees of the two local Parlors in charge are deserving of all praise. Mrs. Alice Morse was chairman for El Pajaro Parlor, and Charles Daingerfield for Watsonville Parlor, on the general committee, while Mrs. James Sheehy and Matt McGowan headed the reception committees.

El Pajaro Parlor participated in the Fourth of July celebration by arranging a beautiful float representing the progress of the state from the days of the miners to the present, with Miss Lorretta Phillips as "California," in her regal robes of Public Joint Installation.

Oakland—July 15 about 300 relatives and friends gathered in Native Sons' Hall to witness the joint installation of Piedmont 87 and Piedmont 120, N.S.G.W. The large hall, which was beautifully decorated in crepe paper and greens, with flowers and potted plants for the newly-installed officers and the large silk American and Bear Flags, presented a most pleasing scene. D.D.G.P. Nell J. Crowley of Fruitvale Parlor, assisted by Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher of Piedmont, Grand Vice-President Dr. Victory A. Derrick of Aloha Parlor and members of Fruitvale Parlor, installed the following newly-elected officers in a gracious and pleasing manner: Josephine Clark, P.P.; Emma Flood, P.; Margaret Canty, 1V.P.; Marion Ring, 2V.P.; Alice Berithald, 3V.P.; Edna Gerard, M.; Patricia Leahy, I.S.; Harriet Emerson, O.S.; Alice Miner, R.S.; Jennie Jordan, F.S.; Minnie Neddermann, T.; Jennie Brown, O.; Emma Munson, Alice Carr, Lillian Smith, Trs. Mrs. Mary Ward sang the installation ode, accompaied on the piano by Miss Carol Murden, young daughter of the efficient chairman of the evening, Mrs. Lillian Murden, who, after installation, presented tokens of respect and flowers to D.D.G.P. Crowley, President Emma Flood, Grand Vice-president Derrick and Past Grand President Mosher.

The following of Piedmont Parlor of Native Sons were installed by D.D.G.P. William Forrest of Claremont Parlor: Harold Flood, P.; Wm. White, 1V.P.; H. Hulen, 2V.P.; W. A. Dunlap, Jr., 3V.P.; Robt. R. Castro, M.; John J. Roach, I.S.; Wm. Nesche, I.S.; Chas. Morando, R.S.; C. A. Moreno, F.S.; Richard Hamb, T.; Joseph L. Thomas, Tr. Richard Hamb, in a few well-chosen remarks, presented the past president pin to Senior Past President George Craddock, after which dancing was enjoyed by all present.

Discussed Admission Day.

San Jose—San Jose 81 had many visitors July 15, including a large delegation from Vendome 100 following that Parlor's meeting, initiated a candidate, and discussed the Admission Day celebration in San Francisco. D.D.G.P. Frances Plamondon installed these officers: Mary Barricklo, P.; Jean Belloli, 1V.P.; Augusta Singleton, 2V.P.; Muriel Blass, 3V.P.; Lucy Fisher, R.S.; Maude Jury, F.S.; Mary F. Mitchell, T.; Helen Trengove, M.; Nettie Richmond, I.S.; Margie Ganong, O.S.; Aura Lea Boomer, O.; Katherine Nelson, Mary Newton, Henriette Pronzini, Trs.

Tokens were presented D.D.G.P. Frances Plamondon and Past President Mary Meyer by Grand Trustee Mary Frances Mitchell. A committee composed of Carrie Trowbridge, Amelia Hartman, Annie Harris, Irene Warren, Elsie Fisher, Katherine Nelson, Pearl Crundeland, Amelia Venturi, Helen Trengove, Allia Bertucci served refreshments.

Large Number Witness Installation.

Sonora—Officers of Dardanelle 66 were installed July 16 by D.D.G.P. Napoleon of Columbia, who was assisted by members of her own (Columbia) Parlor and Anona Parlor of Jamestown as grand

Henry M. Hurd

Candidate for STATE SENATE
37th Senatorial District

Senator Henry M. Hurd is making a vigorous campaign for State Senator in the Thirty-seventh District, and his past record in the State Senate makes him a strong candidate. Among some of the many acts, which he introduced, passed during his incumbency are: The Normal, which gave Los Angeles a new school building and equipment; appropriating $200,000 for an Armory; establishing and supporting a Bureau of Labor Statistics; enforcing the educational rights of children. It was also largely through his efforts that the $250,000 appropriation for Exposition Park was secured.

Senator Hurd is a Republican, and has made good with his party and constituents. He is a sound business man, with progress as his motto.

Ramona 109, First Vice-president Jas. Lynch of Corona 196, Past President J. P. Sproul of Corona 196. The officers installed include: A. P. Johnson, Jr., P.P.; E. F. Hastings, P.; A. P. Johnson, Jr. II, 1V.P.; Eugene Daney, Jr., 2V.P.; C. C. Ghio, 3V.P.; Rolland Pennoyer, F.S.; Dan E. Shaffer, R.S.; John T. Meyers, M.; Stephen Dove, T.; Morton B. Card, Tr.; Wm. Schneider, I.S.; Jos. Kelly, O.S.

Previous to installation the visitors exemplified, in an admirable manner, the ritual for the benefit of two candidates. So impressively was the work given that President E. F. Hastings, on taking the chair, stated that San Diego Parlor was going after the banner offered for the best degree team. This announcement was received with enthusiasm by the many present, so watch for 108 as among the topnotchers. After installation refreshments were served.

Officers Installed.

San Francisco—D.D.G.P. James F. Stanley of Stanford 76 installed the officers of Pacific 10, Walter Bamman becoming president.

Has Banquet.

Richmond—Following the installation of officers of Richmond 217 July 14 by D.D.G.P. R. G. Barnett there was a banquet and general good time. The new officers include: C. R. Blake, P.P.; Henry Mason, P.; Emmet Hickok, 1V.P.; Louis G. Pinder, 2V.P.; Michael Manyik, 3V.P.; R. H. Cunningham, R & F.S.; H. A. Summers, T.; Archie Buys, M.; R. E. Coffey, I.S.; Ralph Coleman, O.S.; Dr. C. R. Blake, Phys.; Otto Poulson, Charles Swartont, George F. Black, Trs.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Edward Reese (Sunset 26) of Sacramento was a visitor last month to Chicago, Illinois.

John Cadogan (Sacramento 3) of Sacramento has been enjoying a vacation of several weeks in and about Monterey.

F. M. Ostrander (Palo Alto 216) has returned to his Palo Alto home after a vacation at the Los Angeles beaches.

Judge Frank L. Coombs (Past Grand President) of Napa has announced his candidacy for the assembly, eleventh district.

Judge Henry C. Gesford (Past Grand President) of Napa seeks re-election as superior judge of Napa County.

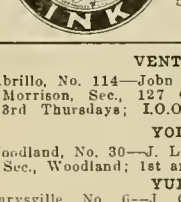

Grand President James F. Hoey (Mount Diablo 101) of Martinez was, on July 19, admitted to practice law in the Federal Courts.

Superior Judge John M. York (Corona 196) of Los Angeles took an auto trip through the state as far as Napa last month. He is a candidate for associate justice of the California Supreme Court.

officers. The work was put on in a beautiful and impressive manner, and much enjoyed by a large attendance of members of the Order.

At the close of the meeting whist was onjoyed, and later ice cream and delicious home-made cakes were served in the banquet-hall, the tables being beautifully decorated. The new officers are: Marguerite Pease, P.; Carrie Vanderhoof, 1.V.P.; Martha Marshall, 2V.P.; Carrie Bronson, 3V.P.; Gertrude Callahan, M.; Emelia Burden, R.S.; Hannah Doyle, F.S.; Maggie Hampton, T.; Cora Willy, O.; Emma Kahl, I.S.; Susan Lewis, O.S.; Lizzie Johnson, Nettie Rother, Cornelia Rudorf, Trs.

Bride-to-Be Remembered.

Woodland—Incident to the approaching marriage of one of its members, Miss Blanche Esveheck, Woodland 90 presented her with a gold-band dinner set July 13. To the strains of a wedding march played by Miss Rhoda Maxwell, the blushing bride-to-be was escorted by Mrs. George Zimmerman to the desk of Miss Kathryn Simmons, who delivered the presentation address.

Officers Jointly Installed.

Vallejo—Joint installation of the officers of Vallejo 195 and Vallejo 77, N.S.G.W., was held July 13, a dance following the ceremonies. D.D.G.P. Jennie Schwartz of Napa installed these officers for the Native Daughters: Jewell Anderson, P.P.; Mary Rey, P.; Agnes Hunter, 1V.P.; Pauline Burke, 2V.P.; Helen Carr, 3V.P.; Mary Combs, R.S.; Mary Reilly, F.S.; Winnie Cassady, F.S.; Elizabeth Greider, M.; Celia Dimpfel, Ida Mushette, Rebekah Locey, Trs.; Mabel Krueger, O.; Charlotte Olsen, I.S.; Consuella Sampson, O.S.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. Carrie Turner (Keith 137) of San Francisco was in Los Angeles last month.

Miss Laura J. Frakes (Amapola 80) of Sutter Creek, former Grand Secretary, has accepted a position in the public schools at Willits, Mendocino County. Amapola Parlor, of which she is a charter member, gave her a surprise reception, at which she was showered with the best wishes of a host of friends. For some time Miss Frakes has been employed as a teacher in the Sutter Creek schools; she left for her new home the latter part of July.

Mrs. Paul Robin (Sonoma 209) has returned to her Sonoma home from San Francisco, where for several weeks she was confined in a hospital by reason of a serious accident to her eye. She now makes weekly trips for treatment; it is hoped a complete cure will eventually be effected, but the process is slow, and the treatments very painful.

OUR GLORIOUS BANNER

(MARTHA NEWTON SANDERS.)

The Stars and Stripes above us, boys,
That so proudly floats alway,
Waves majestically over land and sea
With undisputed sway.

The Flag that floats above us, boys,
Since first it was unfurled,
In tempest tried, baptised in blood,
'Tis the pride of all the world.

That glorious Flag above us, boys,
Was ne'er disgraced in fight;
No foeman ever saw it struck,
But dearly bought the sight.

Wherever prow has cleft the waves,
In every zone and sea,
'Tis knowu and honored as the Flag
Of a Nation brave and free.

WHAT ANSWER SHALL BE MADE?
STOP THE JAPS' "PEACEFUL INVASION!"

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

TESTIFYING IN SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 12, before the Congressional committee which has beeu investigating the Jap menace in California, a decorated subject of the mikado named Shima (Ushijima is his correct name) said be believed intermarriage was a feasible thing. "There may be objections now," he went on, "but a hundred years from now we will look back upon it as all right. When potato-seed in California is no longer good, we bring in Oregon seed, and the second year after it is acclimated, there is a fine crop of potatoes."

Out of their own mouths, the Japs are proven guilty of being engaged in colonizing California. "What is one hundred years in the life of the nation [Japan]?" all the Jap writers query, aud Shima, who is "close up" to the Jap goverument, informs us intermarriage will be all right in a century. So far as California is concerned, the yellow-Japs' domination-of-the-world scheme will be perfected in less than a hundred years, at the rate the white-Japs are aiding them.

Analyzing this yellow-Jap's assertion, it is plain to be seen that he has nothing but contempt for the white race. He openly avows—and he expresses the opinion of all his kiud—that the seed of the white race is no longer good, and that it is necessary to bring in the yellow race to breed with the whites, in order to get a fine crop of human beings—who will worship the mikado and be always loyal to Japan. Think of the audacity of this son of the Orient, having the effrontery to make such a declaration! He is not a fool, as many declare, but has simply been eucouraged, by the white-Japs who are traitors to California and America, to utter the belief that is deep-rooted in the heart of every Jap.

The "Los Angeles Times" of July 15 had a scathing editorial on this subject, saying, among other things: "His [Shima's] frank statement disclosed the Japanese situation here in all its sinister nudity. . . . It is not enough that the best agricultural lands of California have passed iuto the hands of the Japanese, we are now asked to give our daughters in marriage to the slant-eyed subjects of the mikado! Californa is to be turned into a propagating station of a hybrid among races. . . . The monstrosity of it paralyzes the emotions.

"We have known something heretofore concerning the psychology and the moral and social customs of the Japanese, but uot much. Careful investigators have reported that Japanese houor did not extend to physical relations between men and women; but their conclusions have been so repellant to American ideas of womanhood and motherhood that we have declined to give them credence. Shima has removed our last doubts. The Japanese regard blood fusion simply as a physical problem; they look upon it in the same light as propagating a new species of potato.

"Dr. Maupassant and Zola, with all their unmoral materialism, were idealists compared with the Japanese. We have persistently kept our eyes bandaged in order to avoid viewing the consequences of American girls attending public schools and occupying classrooms with Japanese boys and men; but Shima has torn the bandages away. The Japanese boys are taught by their elders to look upon those American girls with a view to future sex relations. The insistence of the Japanese that there shall not be separate schools for the two races appears in a new light. They desire the Japanese boys to be brought into social contact with American

Candidate for Supervisor
Fourth District
Los Angeles County

BERT L. FARMER, candidate for Supervisor in the Fourth Supervisorial District, has heen a member of Los Angeles Parlor, No. 45, N.S.G.W., for the past twenty-five years. He is probably one of the best known men in the City of Los Angeles, having been connected with practically all affairs of public interest.

He was one of the very popular members of the Forty-second session of the State Legislature, representing the Seventy-first Assembly District, and is now serving his second term in the Los Angeles City Council.

Mr. Farmer has an extremely wide acquaintance among fraternal and civic organizations. Besides being a Native Son, he is a member of the Masonic Lodge, the Elks, Knights of Pythias, Eagles, Woodmen of the World, and he is also a member of the Union League Club, the City Club, and has a life membership in the Athletic Club.

The Fourth Supervisorial District includes the entire seacoast of Los Angeles County and that part of the City of Los Angeles south and west of the following lines: Beginning at Fifty-first street and east city limits; thence west to McKinley avenue; thence north to Vernon avenue; thence west to Figueroa street; thence north to Jefferson street; thence west to Hoover street; thence north to Seventh street; thence west to Vermont avenue; thence north to Wilshire boulevard; thence west to the city limits.

Harry P. Coker

Candidate for Supervisor
Fifth District
Los Angeles, County

HARRY P. COKER of Glendale is a candidate for Supervisor in the Fifth District. Coker is one of the best-known men in the northern part of Los Angeles County, having resided there for more than twenty years and having had a varied and successful business experience.

He has never before sought office but was twice elected city councilman in Glendale, serving in that capacity for four years.

Four years ago, Mr. Coker was urged to run for Supervisor of the Fifth District, in which he resides, but he was too busy just then, perfecting the reorganization of the Home Ice Company of Glendale and Hollywood, of which he is the president and chief stockholder. Now his company is on a firm foundatiou and doing a flourishing business, so Mr. Coker is ready to put to a test his considerable political experience and see whether he can elect himself to office.

Coker is a Royal Arch and Scottish Rite Mason, a Shriner, an Elk, chairman of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce board of directors, and publicity chairman of the Greater Glendale Improvement association. Eighteen years Coker spent in newspaper work in Los Angeles.

His wide acquaintanceship and varied successful business experience are regarded as his chief assets in the coming race

E. J. DELOREY

Candidate for Supervisor
Second District
Los Angeles County

E. J. DELOREY is well known to the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, and also to the citizens of Los Angeles and throughout the State in general. His wife is a native daughter, and his son is a member of Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W., nf Los Angeles. He has resided in Los Angeles for thirty-six years, and during that time has been an active man in the civic and business affairs.

Mr. Delorey was appointed by Governor Stephens to fill a vacancy on the Board nf Supervisors, and while in tbat capacity made a splendid record. During his incumbency the one-and-a-quarter-million-dollar deficiency of Los Angeles County funds was made up and taxes reduced five cents on $100 valuation. Since his retirement, it may be noted, taxes have advanced thirty-four cents, on an increased valuation of sixty million dollars. This means it costs $4,500,000 more to run the Los Angeles County government.

The county employes seem to have an exceedingly warm spot in their hearts for Mr. Delorey, as he always gave them every consideration within bis power and had an open ear for all their troubles.

Mr. Delorey is a director of the State Board of Agriculture, and a director in the Society of Pioneers of Southern California. He is a Mason and a member of Los Angeles Lodge, No. 99, B.P.O.E., of the Gamut Club and the Union League Club. His election as Supervisor in tbe Second District would mean much to tbe taxpayers, as Mr. Delorey is a level-headed man with thorough business methods.

girls with a view to marriage. The protest of the Japanese government appears to be based, not upon honor, but upon expediency.

"We have persistently judged the Japanese according to American social and moral standards. We have sought to put an Anglo-Saxon brain into a Japanese skull. We have forgotten that a sea voyage brings a change of climate and environment, but does not affect hereditary instincts. What answer shall the fathers and mothers of America make to this propaganda for a mixture of the white and yellow races? The very suggestion makes one's blood alternately boil and run cold. The complacency with which it is suggested intensifies the menace.

"Shima was supported in his proposed solution of the Japanese problem by other members of the Japanese association. They see nothing wrong in the suggestion. It is unfair to condemn them by American standards; for the same law of nature that prevents a successful fusion of the races compels them to regard the problem from the Oriental point of view. Their attitude discloses the terrible menace of a mingling of the white and yellow races in California. It furnishes an unanswerable argument for turning back the Japanese peaceful invasion at every national boundary line and port of entry. . . . The proposed assimilation of the two races is unthinkable. It is morally indefensible and biologically impossible. American womanhood is by far too sacred to be subjected to such degeneracy. An American who would not die fighting rather than yield to that infamy does not deserve the name."

anese language schools are conducted in our country, there is absolutely no hope of Americanizing the Japanese. It would seem quite apparent that the Japanese do not care to be Americanized. Such limited school teaching as the Japanese youth receives in our American schools is easily annulled by Japanese home influence.

Speaking upon the advisability of granting the right of suffrage to American-born Japanese in Hawaii, Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, author of numerous books and articles on the Japanese question and lecturer in the Imperial University of Japan and by no means unfriendly to the Japanese, has the following to say in his book entitled "The American Japanese Problem": "It is to be remembered that during the entire period of schooling, not only have they (the Japanese) been in Oriental homes, but the Japanese at heart have been diligently drilled in Japanese schools by Japanese teachers, many of whom have little acquaintance and no sympathy with American institutions or a Christian civilization. If, as Asiatics, they maintain their traditional conceptions of God, nature, and man, of male and female, of husband and wife, of parent and child, of ruler and ruled, of the state and the individual, the permanent maintenance in Hawaii of American democracy, American homes, and American liberty is impossible."

THE SAME CONDITIONS APPLY IN CALIFORNIA, AND IT IS UTTERLY USELESS TO HOPE TO ASSIMILATE THE JAPANESE AND MAKE OF HIM AN AMERICAN CITIZEN ENTIRELY WITHOUT DIVIDED ALLEGIANCE.

STATE LIBRARY ISSUES BOOKLET HELPFUL TO HISTORY STUDENTS.

"Study Outline of California History" is the title of a booklet just issued by the California State Library at Sacramento. It was compiled by Eudora Garoutte, head of the California Department of the library.

The outline, arranged for popular use, has references arranged to meet the need of those engaged in history work who have to conserve time, yet wish to use historical fiction, poetry and magazine articles bearing upon subjects under discussion.

In the foreword, Miss Garoutte says: "We have endeavored to give to the students a practical foundation for his work. It is not expected he will confine himself to references given, but by their use new avenues will be opened up which will lead him into many interesting by-paths of historical research. . . . It has not seemed advisable to carry the study beyond 1880."

ONCE A JAP, ALWAYS A JAP

"ONCE A JAP, ALWAYS A JAP" AT heart, is the conclusion arrived at by those who have thoroughly investigated the Japs, both in this and their own country; and this applies not only to the Japan-born ones, but the American-borns as well. When in this country, the Japs hold out the belief that they desire to become Americanized, but, in a great majority of cases, this is but camouflage—a smoke-screen to hide their colonization-of-California scheme. The first requisite for Americanization is obedience to the laws, and the Japs in this state deliberately persist, after repeated warnings, in breaking the land law, the marriage law, the public-health law, the child-labor law, and every other law that stands in their way. They are tricky and deceitful, too, these traits, however, being inbred.

During the Congressional investigation in this city, a Jap woman, Mrs. K. S. Inui, a witness for the Japs, gave testimony supporting the conclusion, "once a Jap, always a Jap." Mrs. Inui testified that she was born in Reno, Nevada, her parents being natives of Japan; that at the age of 3 years she was taken into an American family and reared to womanhood; that she was educated in the public schools, and that all her associates were white people; that she can neither read nor write Japanese, and that she knows nothing of the history and government of Japan; that, in short, she became "Americanized." She further testified, however, that, at the age of 20, when she was ready to choose a husband, SHE SELECTED ONE OF HER OWN BLOOD, A JAP.

Mrs. Inui is an educated woman, and her decision to wed one of her own race is decidedly to her credit. Her testimony is presented simply to prove that the Americanization of the Jap—like his assimilation—is impossible. If all Americans were as loyal to this country as the Japs, no matter where born, are to their country, we would have no Jap problem in California, for there would be decidedly few Japs here.—C. M. H.

A MONTH OF QUAKES.

During the month of July, Los Angeles was almost daily visited with earthquakes, some of them pretty stiff shakes, too. A suburb, Inglewood, suffered severely on one occasion, but in the city proper no buildings have been wrecked, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding, and other than the knocking down of a few chimneys and the breaking of some windows, no damage appears to have been inflicted.

People, particularly the tourists, have been badly frightened, and, it is said, many have departed for their Eastern homes—probably to run into worse freaks of nature than the California earthquake. They'll soon be returning, for it will take more than an earthquake a day to keep the tourists away from the Land of Sunshine, Fruits and Flowers when the Eastern winter gets into action.

Many N. S. Seek Public Office.

The names of several Native Sons will appear upon the ballot for the primary election August 31, the list including:

Justice State Supreme Court—Superior Judge John M. York of Corona 196.

Superior Judge—Judge Grant Jackson (incumbent), Judge J. Walter Hanby, Paul B. Dougherty, John L. Flemming, all of Ramona 109.

District Attorney—Senator Charles W. Lyon of Los Angeles 45.

Supervisor (fourth district)—Councilman Bert L. Farmer of Los Angeles 45.

State Senate—Senator Henry E. Carter, Senator Harry A. Chamberlin, Paul F. Collins, all of Ramona 109.

State Assembly—Arthur Jones of Ramona 109.

N. Ds. Serve Spanish Dinner.

La Esperanza 24, N.D.G.W., entertained at Ramona Hall June 24 with a Spanish dinner. The tables were decorated with ferns and flowers, and at each plate was a hand-painted place-card of the missions. The dinner was typically Californian, and thoroughly enjoyed by the large number in attendance. Mrs. Y. Campbell, assisted by Mrs. Garcia, prepared the menu, and Estelle Campbell, Jessie Newhan, Charlotte Wharton, S. Gibson and Emma Diller made up the serving committee.

A program was rendered during the dinner, as follows: Jazz music, orchestra; address, William I. Traeger, Grand First Vice-president, N.S.G.W.; vocal solo, "La Paloma," Grove T. Vail; jazz music, orchestra; Spanish dance, Perla De Luca; address, D.D.G.P. Kate McFadyen; vocal solo, "I Love You California," Grove T. Vail.

To Observe Admission Day.

Admission Day, September 9, will be observed, a committee from the local Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters now being engaged in arranging the details. Trinity Auditorium has been engaged, and there, in the evening, a program of high-class features will be presented. Special effort will be made to secure the attendance of students in the several high-schools and colleges.

Membership Drive in Preparation.

Plans are under way in the Native Son Parlors to wage an intensive membership campaign, commencing after the vacation season. The great register is to be used, and a drive made to get wanted eligibles into the Order. There are thousands of eligibles, and it is hoped to double the present membership of the Parlors before the campaign closes.

Sentiment Against Japs.

More than 45,000 signatures were obtained in Los Angeles County to the anti-Jap initiative petition, and practically all of them were gotten by Native Sons, who worked faithfully day and night. Signatures were readily obtained for the asking, not more than 2 percent of those approached and qualified to sign refusing to do so.

Thousands of citizens were found who had not registered, and they, too, expressed themselves as heartily in accord with the purpose of the initiative measure. The sentiment of the people of Los Angeles County—one of the worst Jap-infested counties of the state—is almost unanimous in favor of the passage and strict enforcement of laws to stop the yellow men's "peaceful invasion."

Notes of the Native Son Parlors.

Outside of the transaction of routine business, there was not much doing the past month in the Native Son Parlors—Los Angeles 45, Ramona 109 and Corona 196—many of the officers and members being away on their vacations, and the workers who stayed at home devoting every spare moment to circulatiug the anti-Jap initiative petition.

Lee A. Rose is the new president of Los Angeles Parlor, Arthur E. Hamilton of Ramona Parlor, and Wayne E. Jordan of Corona Parlor.

The three Parlors are going to form a joint entertainment committee, and once each month during the winter a program of Native Son talent will be presented.

The second of Los Angeles Parlor's picnic outiugs, held July 17 and 18, was largely attended and all reported a splendid time.

Pioneer Mother Passes.

Mrs. Susan Thompson Lewis Parish, mother of Chauncey Lewis (Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W.), passed away recently at El Monte. Mrs. Parish, with her parents, arrived in California, via the Southern route, in 1851, settling at El Monte July 16; this was the fourth family to locate there. Deceased was a native of Massachusetts, aged 87.

Printing Company Changes Name.

The name of the printing firm of Baumgardt Publishing Company, established in 1893, has been changed to the Fletcher Ford Company. Fletcher Ford, a member of Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., long the directing head and chief stockholder in the old company, will continue his activities in the new firm.

When things is lookin' badly
An' your liver's out o' gear,
An' the face uv care and worry
Jest commences to appear;
I jings I ain't no doctor,
But jest this I wanter say:
I've got a small prescription
That'll drive it all away—
Jest leave the town behind yer,
With its ferbelows an' frills,
An' tog up in yer ruff clo's
An' come out among the hills.

You'll fergit about the city,
You'll fergit about its care
In the peace an' in the beauty
That's a lingerin' everywhere.
In the sunlight, in the shadows,
In the wood an' in the stream—
Why, yer life will seem as purty
An' as sweet as any dream;
An' yer heart will take unto it
All the peace that somehow fills

FRESNO'S ORIGINAL COUNTY SEAT SOON TO BE WIPED OUT.

Millerton, the first county-seat of Fresno County, located on the San Joaquin River near the present town of Friant, will soon be inundated. Plans to construct a dam which will flood the historic townsite and thus destroy the landmark, are already sure of completion.

To preserve the place in pictures as graphically as possible, the Fresno County Historical Society is undertaking to reconstruct certain portions of the town and photograph all standing buildings. The stone and brick work of the old courthouse, built in the late sixties, is still in a good state of preservation.—Selma Irrigator.

WORK, UNCEASINGLY, FOR CALIFORNIA!

The initiative measure to stop Jap land acquirement in California will be on the November ballot. The fact of its being there, however, does not assure its adoption as a law.

A campaign of education among voters must be waged incessantly. If the FACTS regarding the Japs in this state are made known to The People, they will "put over" the proposed law without douht. Our duty, from now until the close of the polls in Novemher, is to make the facts known.

Only the actions of the just smell sweet and blossom in the dust.—James Shirley.

ROMANTIC KNIGHT'S FERRY

(S. P. ELIAS.)

WITH ITS ONE LONG, WINDING street that divides the broad, turhulent Stanislaus River from the town, Knight's Ferry, over on the extreme edge of prosperous Stanislaus County, is a majestic memory of the olden day when its lanes and hillsides were alive with busy miners and when the bustling burg was the center of the social and politieal activity of the county. Today this little village is sequestered from the beaten line of travel—a relic of the dim past, lost in the foothills of the Sierra Mountains.

Knight's Ferry—one of the most romantic of the old towns of this county, with a history full of interest and excitement—contains more points of interest than any of the other towns of old Stanislaus. Long prior to the organization of the county in 1854 this place was a settlement of importance.

Under this one long, winding street there are millions of dollars of unmined gold that defied the cupidity of the placer miners at the time when the river and the hillsides adjoining were being dredged for the glittering metal that came forth in abundance.

The Stanislaus River skirts the town. When its waters are angry and swollen, they roll down over the huge boulders that cover the river's edge and beat against the embankment that abuts the street as a terrihle reminder of the winter of '62 when the river wildly overflowed its banks and in a few moments washed away half of the settlement.

To the left of this street one observes the undulating hills, vine-clad and orange-groved, antique homes set in masses of foliage—a picturesque gem serenely nestling within the bosom of the mountain foothills, cut off from civilization in a progressive age that moves away from the ancient landmarks. Every one of these homes was the habitation of a celebrity in the early history of the state and of the county—men who played their part in the building of the empire of Stanislaus and passed on.

A journey to Knight's Ferry is not only interesting, but it is worth while. As one moves along the highway toward this secluded burg, the transition from the present era to that of the past becomes vivid—consciously felt. Emerging from the well-tilled plains, dotted with orchards and vineyards, with dairies and farms—bespeaking the industry of the present day—and gradually winding along the road through the rolling foothills and skirting the lands of the mined-out river bottoms, and then slowly ascending toward the snow-capped mountains, the evidences of the days of old flit rapidly before the entranced vision.

The iridescent hills, worked over by the olden-day miners—huge boulders, mute sentinels on the river's edge, marking the labor of the placer mining and the gold dredging of years ago—massive excavations that loom in the distant mountains and tell of the mining activities of the yesterday—these unfold before the eye with the rapidity of the changing scenes of a moving picture. It is a transition as swift as it is palpable. The traveler not only sees it, but feels it.

Knight's Ferry possesses many interesting places and institutions that carry the memory back to the middle of the last century. One of these is the Masonic Lodge of the town—Summit Lodge, No. 112, F. & A. M. This lodge held its first regular meeting on the 7th of February, 1857, with a small membership. Only two of the original members are now alive. M. C. Edwards was the worthy master and W. E. Stewart the secretary. The Masonic Hall is situated on the top of a hill overlooking the town and the river below. The furniture of the lodge is redolent of the old day, it being of the most ancient type. There is the air of antiquity about the lodge-room and all its paraphernalia and furnishings that is romantic in the extreme.

This lodge possesses an interesting heirloom—an album that contains the photographs of many of the original membership whose names are now unknown for the reason that they had passed out years before the present members became affiliated with the Masonic fraternity of Knight's Ferry. This lodge also possesses the proud distinetion of numbering amongst its members Masons of the third generation in the same family—father, son and grandson—all, in their respective eras, filling the stations of honor in the lodge. There is a tradition in Knight's Ferry that the body of Captain Knight, the famous hunter, trapper and guide who piloted General Fremont's expedition across the plains in the early '40s and founded the town in 1849, and who was the first to fill a white man's grave in the settlement, and in his day a prominent Mason, lies buried in close proximity to the northeast eorner of this Masonic Hall. For over sixty years Summit Lodge has kept alive the tradition of Masonry in this secluded area, and in the early turhulent days its membership played an important part in the affairs of state and in the maintenance of law and order.

There is another tradition current in Knight's Ferry, to the effect that when General (then captain in the United States Army) U. S. Grant visited Knight's Ferry in 1854 to become the guest of his brothers-in-law, the Dents of this place, he drew the plans for the bridge over the Stanislaus River for Messrs. Dent and Locke, millwrights of the early days. Grant remained at Knight's Ferry for several weeks, and then went on his way to join his post in Oregon.

In the winter of 1861-2 Knight's Ferry was visited by one of the most disastrous floods that the county ever witnessed, when the Stanislaus River overflowed its banks. The flood in this county was attended with loss of life and great destruction of property along the course of the Stanislaus River. About one-half of the town of Knight's Ferry was literally swept away by the impetuous current of the swollen river. The river rose twelve feet at this place higher than the highest previous watermark. The current was sufficiently strong to propel millstones, iron safes and huge boulders miles down the stream. The bridge, the flourmill and all the business houses with their contents on the lower side of the main street were carried away. But with the characteristic spirit of the old California towns, the energetic inhabitants, scarcely awaiting for the flood to subside, immediately began to repair their losses and in a few weeks Knight's Ferry presented its wonted appearance. The "Stanislaus Index," the only newspaper of the town, issued its first edition after the flood on brown wrapping paper, and gave a complete list of the losses and casualties.

MOTHER GRAND SECRETARY, N.D.G.W., PASSES; FATHER CRITICALLY ILL.

Mrs. Mary Dougherty, one of the oldest residents of Livermore Valley and a Pioneer of California, died of heart failure July 1, 1920, at the old family home near Livermore, Alameda County, where she had lived for nearly fifty years. She was born in Holy Cross, Ireland, August 12, 1843, and was the only daughter of John Shannahan, a merchant of that city. At the early age of 16 she crossed the Atlantic to visit relatives in Mullica Hill, New Jersey, and while there met and marrried Hugh Dougherty. A few years later she came with her husband to California, settling in Livermore Valley, which place had since been her home.

Mrs. Dougherty was loved and admired by all who knew her for her Christian spirit and stirling qualities—she was kind, charitable, and hospitable, a faithful wife and a fond, devoted mother. Her death will long be regretted and deeply mourned not only by her family hut also by the people of the community in which she lived for so many years. She is survived by her husband, Hugh Dougherty, her five children: John E. Dougherty of Piedmont, Hugh Dougherty Jr. of Seward, Alaska, Alice H. Dougherty, Grand Secretary, N.D.G.W., Mrs. Mame McCahill and Mrs. Josephine Dignan of Oakland, and two grandchildren, Jack Dougherty and Dorothy Dignan

June 26, just five days before Mrs. Dougherty died, her husband, Hugh Dougherty, was stricken with paralysis, and is in a very critical condition, the doctors giving little hope for his recovery.

GOVERNMENT WANTS TO HELP.

Reports reaching the Public Health Service Bureau at Washington, D. C., indicate that men who are entitled to free treatment by the Federal Government are spending their own money and, in many instances, not receiving the attention they should have.

In almost every community there is a discharged soldier, sailor, marine or war-nurse suffering from some injury or ailment dating back to service with the country's fighting-forces, and often he is too ineapacitated to fit in where he did formerly. He is in need of help, and the Government is anxious to render it, but he will not seek aid or advice for fear he will be classed as a charity-seeker.

Possibly you know such a person. If you do, you can render both the afflicted one and the Government a great service by encouraging him to submit his case to the Public Health Service, which is prepared to give him the very best of treatment, free. This is not a matter of charity, but simply of having such men claim that which, by reason of their sacrifices, they require—mental and physical reconstruction—and which the Government has declared, by Congressional legislation, they shall have.

IMPERIAL VALLEY GROWS.

The growth in the population of Imperial Valley is shown in these 1920 Federal census figures: Calexico 6,223, increase 5,426 or 680.8 percent; El Centro, 5,464, increase 3,854 or 239.4 percent; Brawley 5,392, increase 4,511 or 512 percent.

SAN FRANCISCO, QUEEN CITY OF THE PACIFIC

PRINCIPAL EPISODES IN HISTORY SET FORTH IN RAPID REVIEW

Rolland A. Vandegrift

(ASSISTANT IN HISTORY, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA.)

UNDER SPAIN AND MEXICO

HE HISTORY OF SAN FRANCISCO, "Queen City of the Pacific," begins with the discovery of the Pacific by Balboa in 1513. His venturesome march across the Isthmus of Darien marked the beginning of explorations in the Pacific in search of riches and a short cut to the Indies. The piling up of evidence finally convinced the Spanish that the quest was in vain and that there was no natural short cut to the Orient, but during the search California and San Francisco Bay figured largely.

MAGELLAN. In 1520-21 Magellan made his memorable circum-navigation of the globe and discovered the Philippines and the route to the Spice Islands. This discovery of the Philippines had a direct bearing on the subsequent location of San Francisco. With their conquest the Manila galleons began their voyages and almost yearly plied the California waters. Their accustomed route was from the Philippines to the California coast near Cape Mendocino, after sighting which, the coast was skirted to Acapulco. The length of the passage was very great, many voyages consuming over two hundred days. The suffering was beyond our imagination and whole crews were practically wiped out by the scurvy. It was imperative that a safe harbor be found on the California coast as a half-way place to lessen the hazard of the long voyage. Louis de Velasco, the Viceroy, wrote to Philip II in 1591 that such a port of call was necessary. The king ordered a survey of the coast to be made which was entrusted to an experienced navigator, Sebastian Rodrignez Cermeño. The trend of the coast line and some of the harbors were already known to the Spaniards by this time.

CABRILLO. Cabrillo and Ferrelo in 1542-43 had explored the coast to the present Oregon-California line, and had discovered San Diego Bay, but they did not see any sign of San Francisco Bay.

DRAKE. In 1578-79 Sir Francis Drake, who was out plundering Spanish ships, entered the Pacific and determined to try to return to England by the passage supposed to exist in the North American continent. He explored as far north as 42° and then on account of the cold turned southward looking for a harbor in which to refit his ship. Drake, like Cabrillo, missed the present San Francisco Bay and entered the one which now bears his name, where he remained for several weeks. The Spaniards had information of this voyage and soon after we hear of the existence of a San Francisco Bay near latitude 38°.

CERMENO. In 1595 under the king's order, Cermeño from Manila attempted to explore the California coast, but was shipwrecked at Drake's Bay, renamed San Francisco by him.

INTRODUCTION: The Native Sons' Fellows in Pacific Coast History are the recipients of liberal and enthusiastic support by the Native Sons of the Golden West. They freely acknowledge their debt, and, better still, they are eager to do their bit toward repaying the obligation. One means which has been opened to them has been the contribution of historical articles on California to The Grizzly Bear. In this way they have put in brief and convenient compass much useful historical information drawn from the rich story of California's past.

Another such article now comes from the pen of Mr. Rolland Vandegrift, last year a Native Sons' Fellow, now Assistant in History in the University of California. Here Mr. Vandegrift sets forth, in rapid review, the principal episodes in the history of the great city which looks out through the Golden Gate upon the Orient. IN NO OTHER PLACE HAS A LARGER BODY OF EXACT HISTORICAL INFORMATION ON THE SUBJECT BEEN BROUGHT TOGETHER IN EQUAL SPACE. While of necessity it is in the main a summary, Mr. Vandegrift has brought to his subject careful historical training and the results of much original research in California history.—HERBERT E. BOLTON, Chairman Department of History, University of California.

VIZCAINO. Then ensued an interval of six years before the coast in the vicinity of the Golden Gate was explored. In 1602-3 under Sebastian Vizcaino the most famous of this series of expeditions took place. He was ordered to explore the coast of the South Seas as far as Cape Mendocino. After touching at San Diego and Monterey he also entered Drake's Bay. He continued on up the coast and again the real harbor was passed undiscovered.

It may seem singular that Vizcaino, Drake, Cermeño, Cabrillo and other explorers should have all passed the entrance to the Bay of San Francisco in spite of the persistent search for a good harbor, and that it should be reserved for a land expedition to make the important discovery. The configuration of the coast is such that the Golden Gate is not obtrusively noticeable and may be easily overlooked even by those searching for it.

No notable attempt was made to explore the coast by any vessel between 1603 and 1769. The Manila galleon in its single yearly voyage sighted Cape Mendocino, and having ascertained its bearings felt its way southward within sight of the fair land; but no harbor of refuge was established and no attempt was made to colonize the country. California relapsed into oblivion and San Francisco Bay remained undiscovered.

THE COMING OF THE MISSIONARIES. One hundred and sixty years passed before Spain made another attempt to settle California. The activity of the Russians and English on the Pacific, and the consequent fear of foreign invasion, aroused Spain from her slumber and stimulated her to renew her efforts to colonize California.

The execution of the plan to occupy California was primarily in the hands of José de Gálvez, Visitador General of New Spain. Church and State were to combine in the undertaking. Father Junipero Serra, the head of the Franciscan missions in Baja California, was chosen to direct the spiritual conquest of Alta California. The secular command was entrusted to Don Gaspar de Portolá. In the beginning of the year 1769 the expedition was organized and dispatched with orders to take possession of and fortify the Ports of San Diego and Monterey. The expedition consisted of two sea and two land divisions, all to assemble at San Diego Bay. By the first of July, 1769, the divisions were assembled at the rendezvous and the establishment at San Diego was begun.

THE DISCOVERY OF SAN FRANCISCO BAY. On July 14 an expedition under Portolá set out to explore Monterey Bay. Some sixty persons accompanied Portolá, among them being Padres Crespi and Gómez, Captain Rivera, Lieutenant Pedro Fages, the engineer, Miguel Costansó, and Sergeant Ortega. The personnel contains some of the best-known names in California history.

The expedition followed practically the route which is today known as the Camino Real. On the last day of September the command reached Monterey Bay, but failed to recognize it. This failure to recognize Monterey Bay caused the discovery of San Francisco Bay by the Portolá expedition. Late in October, Portolá sighted the headland of Point Reyes and the Farallones off the Port of San Francisco and decided to have the country reconnoitered as far as Point Reyes. Sergeant Ortega was sent on this mission.

The next day, November 2, some of the soldiers went deer hunting and from the mountains to the east of the camp they looked down upon an immense estero, or arm of the sea, which ran into the land as far as they could see. They returned after nightfall and reported this to Portolá. Ortega set out with his exploring party on November 1, being allowed three days to complete the work. Probably on the first day he discovered the Golden Gate and the Bay of San Francisco, but he did not report to Portolá until November 4. The credit of the discovery belongs to Portolá as commander of the expedition.

After a council held on November 11, Portolá decided to return southward along the coast and make a further search for Monterey. The difficulties of getting around the Estero of San Francisco, the name they applied to the present San Francisco Bay, seemed insurmountable. Besides, the provisions were almost completely exhausted, the party being forced to subsist on what game they could kill, supplemented by shellfish and mule meat.

THE SECOND EXPEDITION TO SAN FRANCISCO BAY. In accordance with the orders of Visitador Gálvez, Portolá after founding Monterey delivered over the command of the new establishments to Lieutenant Fages as Comandante of California. Portolá sailed July 9, 1770, for San Blas, and California saw him no more.

In November of 1770 Fages decided to explore the country surrounding the Presidio of Monterey. He explored the east shore of San Francisco Bay to a point about seven leagues farther north than the Portolá party of the previous year, but like the discoverers of the bay, he too thought it to be the estuary of the Port of San Francisco of which Cabrera Bneuo spoke and called it that in his report.

FURTHER EXPLORATION OF THE SAN FRANCISCO BAY REGION. It was not until March, 1772, that San Francisco Bay was again explored by the Spaniards. This time an expedition went around the eastern shore of the bay, passed the present sites of Oakland and Berkeley, and on around to the mouth of the San Joaquin River.

The next time the bay was seen was late in 1774, when Rivera came up the peninsula on an exploring expedition. These expeditions finally brought out the location of San Francisco Bay and the desirability of founding an establisbment there. Steps were taken at once to carry out this long-cherished desire of Father Serra to honor the patron saint of his order by founding an establishment which was to bear the name of St. Francis.

PREPARATIONS FOR OCCUPYING THE PORT OF SAN FRANCISCO. On the 9th of March, 1774, a junta called by the viceroy decided that the Port of San Francisco should be occupied by Juan Bautista de Anza, and that he should accomplish this task by an overland route from Sonora. The first step was to discover the overland route across the deserts. Anza accomplished this arduous undertaking in 1774.

THE FIRST SHIP ON SAN FRANCISCO BAY. A sea expedition was sent to chart San Francisco Bay and co-operate with Anza. On August 5, 1775, Lieutenant Juan Manuel de Ayala of the royal navy passed through the Golden Gate on the "San Carlos." The first ship to enter San Francisco Bay found safe anchor near Angel Island. Ayala spent about forty days exploring and charting the bay.

THE FOUNDING OF SAN FRANCISCO. The overland route once opened, Anza was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and authorized to raise and equip a party of thirty soldiers for the establishment of a strong presidio and a mission on San Francisco Bay. All of the soldiers had to be married men with families, and at the end of their ten-year enlistment it was intended that they would be given land and become settlers. In addition to the soldiers there were to be a certain number of families as settlers. The expedition was formed in Northern Mexico on the frontier and consisted all told of two hundred and forty-one souls, of whom one hundred and sixty were women and children. The number was increased by the birth of three children during the journey. A proper number of pack and stock animals were taken by these first overland immigrants.

The expedition finally assembled, and left Anza's presidio of Tubac on October 23, 1775. The journey was full of difficulties and dangers from the very first and continued to get harder, but the brave pioneers kept on. By November 30 the first settlers of San Francisco had crossed the Colorado River and were on California soil. The journey was a succession of hardship, sickness and suffering for both men and beast and no adequate description can be given.

On January 4, 1776, Anza's party arrived at San Gabriel Mission. Here he met Captain Fernando Rivera y Moncada, the Comandante of California, and under his supplications Anza went to help put down an Indian uprising in San Diego. In February the march to San Francisco was resumed.

Anza arrived at the Presidio of Monterey March 10, 1776, the end of the journey under his command; for, according to instructions, he was to turn the expedition over to Rivera and proceed to make a survey of the port and river of San Francisco before returning to Tubac. A serious illness delayed him nine days. In the meantime he had begged Rivera to joint him in establishing the fort and mission of San Francisco as the viceroy had ordered. The men he had brought were restless and anxious to reach their destination and get settled in their new home. Rivera not only did not co-operate, but discouraged the idea of founding establishments at San Francisco. Anza proceeded to explore the San Francisco Bay region as he was ordered.

Anza explored the south and east of the bay to the mouth of the San Joaquin River. He selected the site for a fort at the narrowest point of the entrance. The town was to lie on the mesa back of the fort. The place for the mission he selected farther back from the sea and hay on a little creek he named Dolores, in a beautiful quiet valley. Thus originated the name that is the official designation of a very large and thickly settled section of the City of San Francisco and commonly applied to the mission.

Anza and Rivera could not come to an agreement concerning the founding of the San Francisco establishments. The comandante at length refused to join in the undertaking of founding the presidio. Anza departed for Tubac after having sent Rivera a plan of the Port of San Francisco and with the sites selected indicated. On May 8 the comandaute changed his mind concerning the delay in founding the Presidio of San Francisco and ordered Lieutenant Moraga to go and establish the fort on the site selected by Anza, but he informed the priests that the founding of the two missions was to be suspended for the present.

In conformity with orders Moraga set out, and on June 27, 1776, arrived at the site selected for the mission and there camped. While awaiting the packet boat "San Carlos" with the remainder of the expedition and supplies, the party cut timber for the presidio and mission. Before the arrival of the "San Carlos" there was born on August 10, 1776, to the wife of Soldier De Soto the first white child in San Francisco.

THE PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO. To the great relief of all, the "San Carlos" arrived the 18th of August. The site for the presidio, about five miles from the mouth of Golden Gate, having been approved, work was begun immediately on buildings, all located within a square of ninety-two yards. Two carpenters and a squad of sailors worked on a storehouse, comandante's dwelling, and chapel, while the soldiers erected houses for themselves and families. All of the buildings were of palisades with roofs of earth. They were soon completed and on September 17, 1776, the foundation was dedicated with a mass, a te deum, and salvos of artillery, and the City of San Francisco was born.

The annals of the presidio are meagre at best, for there was little to record. The Spaniards had searched long for the Port of St. Francis, but it was never adequately protected. At the establishment the force consisted of Comandante Moraga, a sergeant, two corporals, and sixteen soldiers. A corporal and six soldiers were customarily detailed from the presidial force to guard the mission. Throughout the Spanish occupation the force at the presidio was never large. The equipment was always deficient, and at one time we hear of the Spaniards being unable to return a salute of a Russian ship until they could borrow some powder from the ship's captain.

In 1792 Vancouver entered the Port of San Francisco and in his journal he gives a description of it. At that time, says Vancouver, the garrison consisted of thirty-five soldiers. One side of the presidio was still unenclosed and but indifferently fenced in with a few brush here and there, fastened to stakes in the ground. The other three sides were made of upright and horizontal heavy timbers filled in between with sod and earth and the whole plastered over. The wall was about fourteen feet high and five feet thick. The presidio was strong enough to protect the Spaniards from the natives, but would not have served as a defense against European weapons. The houses were built around the wall, all facing in, and were but very rude in construction. Some part of the presidio was always in a state of dilapidation and apparently little effort was made to repair it throughout the Spanish period.

With the opening of the Mexican regime progressive decay set in. The presidio decayed, equipment was worn out and not replaced, supplies did not arrive and the soldiers seldom received their pay. In 1817 Comandante Luis Arguello begged the governor for clothing for his own family and a little later a Yankee trader, James Wilcox, gave as an excuse for smuggling that he had thereby served "to clothe the naked soldiers of the king of Spain," thus enabling them to attend mass, which otherwise they could not do for lack of clothes. This excuse was continually given, and accepted, as a reason for illegal trading.

In 1835 there was no garrison at the presidio and the only resident there was a gray-haired soldier. The regular troops had been moved to Sonoma. From that time the Presidio of San Francisco was practically deserted. At best only a detachment of nine or ten soldiers from the Sonoma company was stationed there. At the time of the Bear Flag revolt there was no garrison at the presidio and the ten guns spiked by Fremont had been abandoned.

THE MISSION SAN FRANCISCO DE ASIS. While the presidio was being constructed Padres Palou and Cambon with a guard of six soldiers and a settler had put up houses at the camp on Dolores Creek. The establishment only lacked dedicatory formalities to make it a regular mission. There were no converts, it is true, but the padres were anxious to get formally started, so, without Rivera's approval, a church fifty-four feet long and a house thirty by fifteen feet, all of wood and plastered with clay and roofed with tules, were completed. On October 9 with formal ceremony the sixth of the California missions, dedicated to San Francisco de Asis, was begun.

Converts at first were very slow, only thirty-one being made by the end of the first year. The great event of the year was the initial visit of Padre President Serra, and his rejoicing over the establishment. Seven years later there were about two hundred and sixty converts. The increase was about thirty annually for nearly forty years until 1813, when the number was one thousand two hundred and five. Then there was a decrease at about the same rate until secularization in 1835.

The mission was the only institution that produced a considerable surplus. Often when the supply ships did not come, the presidio was dependent upon the mission for sustenance. In 1813 the maximum yield is recorded, and in that year there were at the mission, 1,205 Indians, 9,270 head of cattle, 10,120 sheep, 622 horses, and 6,114 bushels of grain.

On April 25, 1782, the cornerstone of a new church was laid at the San Francisco Mission with all the ceremonies prescribed by the Roman ritual. The edifice thus begun is from all evidence the one commonly known today as Mission Dolores, for we do not find any account that it was ever rebuilt or seriously damaged. Earthquakes and fires destroyed the presidio and other buildings, but the mission church has stood.

From the founding of the mission in 1776 to 1813 it enjoyed a prosperous existence, but the advent of Mexican independence brought on decay. The rebellion broke out in 1810 in Mexico and soon made itself felt in California. From 1811 to 1818 the government failed to pay the padres and the supply ships failed to arrive. Secularization had been demanded as early as 1813 and was constantly advocated by the anti-clerical party. The Mexican congress assumed that the people were competent to maintain their own government and that the mission Indians of California were ready for civilized life, and so the act of secularization was passed. The object of the law was to take all property from the missions, after providing for a parish church and priest, and to divide the remainder, half to the Indians and half for the support of the government.

Secularization was left to the executive department and on August 9, 1834, Governor Figueroa, acting on instructions, issued a decree that he would, in August, 1835, convert ten of the missions into pueblos. Subsequently Gumecindo Flores was appointed as administrator of the Mission of San Francisco to carry this out, but in the meantime the cattle were driven off, the Indians went away, agriculture was neglected, and soon there was nothing but the land to divide and no one to give it to. Most of the Indians relapsed into barbarism and gradually disappeared until by forty years after secularization there was not one of the Indians of the San Francisco peninsula tribes left. The lands were gradually granted to settlers, and all that remains is the restored mission church and the old cemetery where the hardy Pioneers of San Francisco sleep amid the bustle of a closely-built district of the Pacific Coast metropolis.

FOREIGN INTERCOURSE AND TRADE. The Spanish trade policy was one of monopolies and restrictions. In applying this policy to California, legitimate commerce was restricted to two supply ships annually. Although a long search had been made for a safe harbor on the northern coast of California, and particularly for trade consideration, yet after San Francisco Bay was discovered no effort was made to utilize its advantages. Even the fear of foreigners did not stimulate the Spaniards to make use of the port. The growing importance and value of the fur trade impelled foreigners to cast aside restraint and engage in a prosperous clandestine trade. The Americans and the Russians in particular were the ones who visited San Francisco.

In November, 1793, George Vancouver passed through the Golden Gate in his ship, the "Discovery," the first foreign sail to be seen on San Francisco Bay. The English were courteously received and allowed the greatest freedom, which brought strict orders from the viceroy to limit all observation of foreigners. In 1799 James Rowan, in the "Eliza," an American ship, anchored at San Francisco and secured supplies. This was the beginning of the American intercourse, which kept increasing yearly. Hides, tallow and furs were the commodities the Californians had to trade for the much-needed articles the Yankee traders brought.

The Russians first visited San Francisco in 1806, when the chamberlain of Czar Nikolai Petrovich Rezánof sailed into the harbor in the "Juno." His object was to secure grain and food for the Russian establishments in Alaska... The Spaniards had constantly feared Russian encroachments and although they received them well the Spaniards would not trade the desired supplies. The story of how Rezánof overcame the difficulties forms the famous romance of Spanish times in California so well portrayed in story and verse. The imperial chamberlain fell in love with Doña Concepcion, the lovely daughter of José Arguello, the comandante. All obstacles to the match were overcome, except the permission of the czar and the dispensation of the pope. Thus Rezánof secured both the hand of the beauty of California and his supplies and a promise of friendship.

After the "Juno" was filled with the supplies the imperial chamberlain sailed for Alaska, promising to return with the necessary permits and claim his bride. Fate, however, willed otherwise, for while on the long journey overland to St. Petersburg, Rezánof fell from his horse and died from the injury. Those with him failed to inform his promised bride. Doña Concepcion was then only fifteen years old, but she refused to listen to other suitors and was constant to her Russian lover even if she had no word from him. It was not until 1842 that Sir George Simpson related to her the circumstance of Rezánof's death. Doña Concepcion already had assumed the duties of the Third Order of Franciscans and in 1851 entered the Dominican Convent. The visit of Rezánof paved the way for the Russians, who now began to secure supplies at San Francisco. They soon established Fort Ross, which existed almost to the time of the American occupation.

After the republican form of government was established in Mexico, the restrictions on foreign commerce were removed. As a result a very profitable trade with foreigners, particularly the Boston traders, grew up. The American ships' cargoes were veritable department stores, while warehouses and permanent agents finally were established in San Francisco. The commerce was carried on during the Mexican era principally by ships called "hide droghers." The ranchos killed cattle once a year and the missions once a week. The hides were dried and the tallow run into leather bags and stored until the ships arrived or when an agent was present they were sold to him. With the transfer of California to the United States, the hide trade came to an end.

Next to the cattle industry, whaling and hunting the sea-otter were the most important industries. These two pursuits early brought California to the notice of foreigners. The sea-otter were once so plentiful in San Francisco Bay that hunters with clubs could secure all the pelts they could care for. The Hudson Bay Company also sent hunters to secure furs, and in a short time the otter were practically exterminated.

The contact with the Americans benefited the Californians and perhaps helped the transition from Mexican to American rule, but the relations between Mexicans and foreigners were always strained. In 1833 the situation was tense. It was complained that the Americans and Russians were securing all of the best lands on the frontier. Father Guitierez of San Francisco said the foreigners "made his soul siek" and urged that they should be expelled. In fact, on one occasion, by order of the governor, about a hundred English-speaking people were arrested at San Francisco. They were sent to Mexico, where they were held for varying periods without trial. The tide of immigration could not be stemmed even by violent methods. Fremont had made his journey to California and written a glowing account. The Spaniards had neglected the jewel they had in San Francisco Bay too long to now withstand the foreigners from beyond the Sierras.

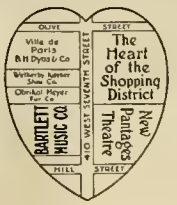

THE VILLAGE ERA. During the mission days the small secular population lived at the presidio or the mission. Men who came as soldiers, when retired remained as settlers. These were increased by explorers and traders who chose to remain in California. Coincident with military decay and the increase in trade came a more rapid increase in the population. The Spanish residents had their houses at the mission and pastured their herds of cattle in the valleys. The Americans, who were mostly traders, chose to locate closer to the bay and anchorage. Yerba Buena cove was selected as the best site. The settlement had its real beginning in 1835. In that year Wm. A. Richardson, an Englishman, set up a tent there and went into the business of collecting hides and tallow from various points on the bay.

In the winter of 1835-36 Jacob P. Leese, an American, decided to establish a store and commission house at San Francisco. He also considered Yerba Buena cove as the best anchorage and secured a lot there. In July, 1836, he completed the first house, which was on the south side of Clay street, near Dupont.

1835: "About thirty miles from the mouth of the bay* and on the southeast side, is a bigh point upon which the presidio is built. Behind this is the harbor in which trading vessels anchor, and near it, the Mission of San Francisco, and a newly-begun settlement, mostly of Yankee Californians, called Yerba Buena, which promises well." This was the San Francisco of 1835—a Spanish presidio in decay and almost deserted, on the shore of wbat was afterwards named the Golden Gate; a missiou establishment two or tbree miles away where a few Indians still remained, and tbe beginning of a settlement known as Yerba Buena, consisting of a handful of Yankee traders on the edge of the bay.

The Mexicau law providing for the establishment of pueblos having been passed, the question arose whether a pueblo was to be established at the Mission of San Francisco or at Yerba Buena. The people at tbe mission, however, acting under the general law of Mexico which permitted a town to select its officials, on November 27, 1835, held an election for alcalde, and chose J. J. Estudillo for one year. The village was usually called Dolores, but was without authoritatively defined limits.

Alcaldes were regularly elected during the Mexican rule and in accordance with their authority they granted lots of fifty or one hundres varas square to every applicant ready to build a house. The records show that between July 1, 1835, and July 7, 1846, the period of the Mexican town, the alcaldes of San Francisco granted eighty-four lots. Thirty-four of these were to grantees of Spanish blood, and tbe others mostly Americans and English. One lot described as being in San Francisco was at the mission, the remainder were at Yerba Buena.

As late as 1846 Yerba Buena bad grown so little that only twenty or thirty houses of all descriptions lined the beach. The beach, however, was not as it is today, for mud flats extended far out from the shore. The ouly landing place for boats was at Clark's Point, where rocks jutted out into the water. This was near the present site of Broadway wharf. The bay then extended up into the valley now traversed by Market street, cutting across the present line of First street and reaching as far as Montgomery street. The population had grown but very little during the Mexican era and at the time of the conquest numbered only about two hundred people. Mexican rule, by removing trade restrictions, had allowed the beginning of the present big city, but those of Spanish blood certainly had not, through their own efforts, developed any of the possibilities of the port. The Spanish-Californians were content to remain stationary in a pastoral condition. The manifest destiny of the Port of San Francisco, the outlet of the long-searched-for El Dorado, forbade such a sleepy, inactive existence.

UNDER UNITED STATES

The sudden transition of the quiet little Spanish settlement on San Francisco Bay into a lawless frontier town of America, and from that into a great metropolis where the commerce of the Pacific ceuters, is in a sentence the history of San Francisco under American domination.

THE AMERICAN CONQUEST. When in April, 1846, the war which had been brewing between the United States and Mexico broke into open hostilities, an independent war of conquest had already been waged in California by General John C. Fremont (then a colonel) in co-operation with Commodore Robert T. Stockton of the navy. The war with Mexico lasted two years, but there was little fighting in California, and that little did not come near Yerba Buena. Fremont's men, meeting no resistance, spiked some cannon in the old abandoned Spanish fort on July 1 when acting under the Bear Flag Party and then departed.

The capture of Yerba Buena by the United States naval force was an event of just as little iucident or romance. The war sloop "Portsmouth," under Captain Montgomery, was lying off Yerba Buena. When he received word that war was declared he immediately dispatched a force on July 9 to take the town. The American Flag was hoisted on the plaza, since called Portsmouth Square, with no opposition. The people were largely Americans and entered heartily into the cheer for the Flag. The people at the mission also submitted to the change without opposition. By the treaty of 1848 the country became American territory and the last political obstacle to American immigration was removed.

The conquest made a great chauge in Yerba Buena. It suddenly became the chief town north of Monterey, witb prospects of becoming the most important port. Formerly inferior to Dolores in population, it now surpassed the mission town.

CHANGE OF NAME. Oue of the first acts under American authority was to appoint Lieutenant A. Bartlett of the "Portsmouth" alcalde of Yerba Buena. He exercised the powers of his office, using Mexican law as he interpreted it. One of the most important acts he carried out in January, 1847, was to change the name of Yerba Buena to San Francisco, "to prevent confusion and mistakes in public documeuts, and that the town may have the advantage of the name given in public maps." Another reason, not stated, was to prevent the rival town of Francesca, now Benicia, from usurping the advantages of the name.

SAN FRANCISCO DURING THE GOLD RUSH. The discovery of gold in California had a certain side pathetically tragic. The Spaniards for centuries had followed the quest of treasure. El Dorado of story and song ever drew them onward. The very origin of the name California was connected with the quest for gold, but here they had failed to discover the precious metal. With tbis failure also went another, for without riches and mines to draw population the Spaniards did not settle on this frontier in sufficient numbers to hold it. California was lost to those of Spanisb blood, and in January of the very year, 1848, that the land was surrendered by Mexico, the news of the discovery of gold reached San Francisco. When the news of the discovery was confirmed by the shipment of considerable quantities of the coveted dust to San Francisco, a wild rush set in for tbat port. The news spread rapidly to the four corners of the world, and gold seekers came in such numbers that one author has compared the movement to the Crusades.

The City of San Francisco grew almost in a day from the quiet village to a city. It was a city of shanties, tents, and gambling bouses—a rough, crude, lawless place on the frontier of East and West, with tbe most cosmopolitan population tbe world bas ever seen. Bayard Taylor, wbo came by steamer in 1849 as a correspondent for a New York newspaper, gave this description:

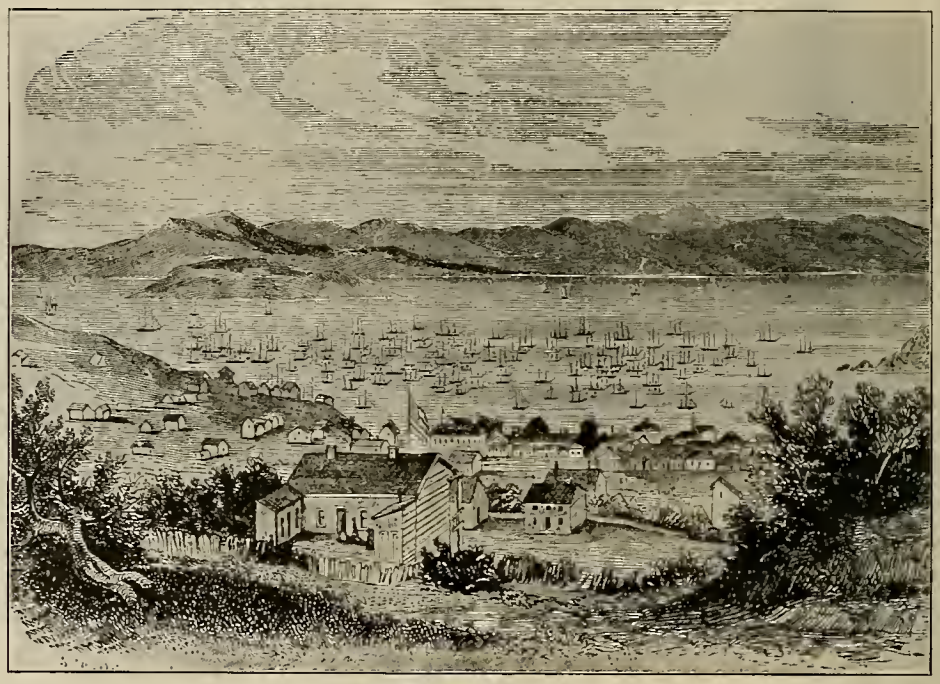

"We scrambled up througb piles of luggage, and among the crowd collected to witness our arrival picked out two Mexicans to carry our trunks to a hotel. The barren sides of the hill before us were covered with tents and canvas houses, and nearly in front a large two-story building displaying the sign 'Fremout Family Hotel.'

"As yet we were only in the suburbs of the town. Crossing the shoulder of the bill, the view extended around the curve of the bay, and hundreds of tents and houses appeared, scattered all over the heights, and along the shore for more than a mile. A furious wind was blowing down through a gap in the hills, filling the street with clouds of dust. On every side stood buildings of all kinds, begun or half finished, and the greater part of tbem were canvas sheds, open in front and covered with all kinds of signs, in all languages. Great quantities of goods were piled up in the open air, for want of a place to store them. The streets were full of people hurrying to and fro, and of as diverse and bizarre a character as the houses; Yankees of every possible variety, native Californians in serapes and sombreros, Chilians, Sonorians, Kanakas from Hawaii, Chinese with long tails, Malays armed with their everlasting creeses, and others in whose embrowned and bearded visages it was impossible to recognize any special nationality."

The streets were in a chaotic state with all that goes to make up a metropolis of canvas and boxes. Rents and prices were exceedingly high but wages corresponded, with the result that extravagance, profligacy, and gambling were general. Disorder, chaos and confusion were gradually reduced to a semblance of order in 1849. That was the most memorable year in the history of San Francisco. The rains were unprecedentedly heavy and the roads, called streets, became a series of mudholes. Tbe tent city was wholly unfit for winter weatber. To make matters worse, a fire swept the town and virtually destroyed it. This was but the first of a series of six fires which devastated the city between 1849 and and 1851. Each time tbe dauntless citizens rebuilt, and with increasingly better buildings, until they learned that only brick buildings witb iron shutters on doors and windows could withstand the flames.

The city continued to grow rapidly. In nine months of 1849 two hundred and thirty-three ships arrived from the Atlantic coast and tbree hundred and sixteen from Pacific ports. Most of these vessels were deserted by tbeir crews, who rushed to the mines, and the fleet in the harbor formed an imposing sight of a veritable forest of masts aud spars. Communication, however, began to be maintained regularly with the Atlantic coast by way of Panama, by means of the monthly steamship put on by the Pacific Mail Company.

LAW AND ORDER. Due to the musbroom growth of San Francisco, it was impossible for the regularly constituted authorities to maintain order. Fearless criminals were attracted from all parts of the world by the lure of gold, and most of them chose to remain in San Francisco and plunder rather than to get it by honest labor. Au organization of ruffians known as the "Hounds" terrorized the city. They openly professed to be upholders of tbe rights of Americans as against foreigners, and under this pretext robbed and plundered tents. Encouraged by success they changed their name to "Regulators" and paraded with banners by day, and robbed and murdered by night. Other criminals of various kinds, especially from the penal colony in Australia, increased crime. The want of adequate laws and the necessary organization of the courts and government, together with the corruption of police, judges, and juries, made it impossible to remedy the evil. Although there had been over one hundred murders, not a guilty party had been executed.

SAN FRANCISCO, IN 1849

THE VIGILANCE COMMITTEES. In such a time of demoralization of society desperate measures were necessary to remedy the situation. At this critical period a band of citizens taking the law into their own hands formed the world-famous Vigilance Committee, as they declared "for the maintenance of the peace and good order of society, and the preservation of the lives and property of the citizens of San Francisco." Notorious criminals were soon apprehended and after a summary trial were, if found guilt, speedily executed.*

In 1856, due to political corruption with an attempt to cover it by crime, the Vigilanee Committee was again organized and went to work in the same cool, unflinehing way. By August, 1856, its work completed and the community able to suppress crime without them, the committee disbanded. So stroug had the organization become that over five thousaud men, organized and equipped for action as infantry, cavalry, and artillery, passed the reviewing stand in the final parade.

*The Vigilance Committee did not exceed the penalty of the law by hanging those found guilty of grand larceny, for statues in force, 1851-56, allowed this penalty.

THE CLIMAX OF THE GOLDEN PROSPERITY. The culmination of the gold output of California and also of the prosperity of San Francisco under its influence was in 1852. In that year the output was eighty-five million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars' worth of the preeious dust. The immigrants by sea were estimated at sixty-seven thousand. The total population of the state in June was two hundred fifty-five thousand, one hundred and twenty-two. Sau Francisco had a population of thirty-six thousaud, one hundred and fifty-fonr, or about one-seventh of the inhabitants of the state. Substantial structures had replaced many of the shacks, and the city was taking on a permanent appearance. Business flourished, and many firms had very pretentious quarters. The Montgomery bloek, whieh escaped the flames in 1906, is the best example of the better buildings. The city spread over a space of eight or uine square miles with the heart of it occupying the level space just back of what had been Yerba Buena. All of the municipal conveniences of the cities of the Atlantic eoast were rapidly constructed in the uew city.

A PERIOD OF DEPRESSION. A period of great depression occurred in San Francisco following the deeline of the gold output in 1853. Although seventy-four million dollars' worth of gold was obtained in that year, people became alarmed at the deeline. Economy took the place of reckless expenditure, trade fell off, immigration deereased and after a year turned the other way. Many business houses failed, and the whole situation in San Francisco looked diseouraging. A panic followed the first failures and it looked as if San Franciseo would soon be a city of deserted stores. By 1859 a general betterment of busiuess had set in, and on the solid fouudation of the agricultural development of the back country. It was not, however, until the bonanza days, just preceding the opening of the Civil War, that a real revival of prosperity eame to the city.

THE RAILROAD. The people of San Franeisco counted much on the development that would result from the building of a transcontinental railroad. The expeeted boom did not materialize when the road was completed in 1869, but a panie followed and the city suffered aecordingly. This was soon overcome and the benefit of the railroad soon beeame evident and continually increased.

THE BONANZA KINGS. The period between 1861 and 1868 has been designated as the silver age of California. It was during this period that great deposits of silver were discovered iu Nevada, and a new age of prosperity depending upon mineral wealth began for San Francisco. The promoters of these mines lived iu San Franeisco, henee the wealth produced flowed that way. The prosperity of the eity, in fact, was largely dependent on the reports of the outlook in Virginia City or on the Comstoek Lode. Spectaeular fortunes were made and lost rapidly by many Sau Franeiscans and the successful ones beeame knowu as the "Bonanza Kings."

THE CITY THAT WAS. Happily for San Franeisco, the day is over when her prosperity depends upon lucky mining strikes. The miueral output of the state for 1900 was over thirty-two million dollars, no small sum, but by that date the state relied upon such a diversity of products that the chanees of miuing could only have but small iufluenee on prosperity. San Franciseo, surrounded by rich lands and the outlet of the two great valleys, the San Joaquin and the Saeramento, grew as the state developed. The city, however, on the rim of the Western world with a free sweep of open sea to China and the East, and the terminal of a network of railroads, had another eause for growth. By reasou, then, of occupying a strategie post of the world's commeree, San Francisco beeame both the entreport and distributing point, not alone for the state and several tributary territories, but for au increasing trade with the Orient, Australia and Northwest Ameriea. In 1895 three were but three regular steamship lines plying between San Francisco and foreign ports, and the foreign export business was something over fifteen million pounds' tonnage. In 1901 twelve steamship lines ran to foreign ports, and the export tonnage was over two hundred million pounds. With the United States undertaking the prodigious task of building the Isthmian Canal, San Franeisco saw an even brighter future and larger prosperity as toll-taker on the world's highway.

The fast unfolding manufacturing industries by 1900 also represented millions of invested capital, with an ever-increasing growth. The combined industries of San Francisco supported a population of four hundred thousand people, who looked forward for the history of the city as well as to the past.

The city itself, although marred by the lack of any intelligent planning and a eertain neglect of public improvements, presented a striking aspect. In the course of fourteen years steam dredges had converted some four hundred and fifty acres of the mission cove mudflats into solid land. Sea walls and filling added to the shore line at various points. Factories covered the regained land, and docks and warehouses lined the waterfront. The city seemed to rise out of the waters of the bay on one side and extend up over the hills to overlook the ocean on the other.

THE CITY THAT IS. Ou the night of April 20, 1906, after three days of burning following the earthquake, San Francisco lay in blackened, twisted ruins. Skyscrapers had practically all vanished, and debris, in some places forty feet deep, covered the streets. The world positively declared that the eity eould not be restored in ten years, and many sincerely doubted if it ever would be rebuilt. Five hundred and fourteen city blocks, or three thousand acres of ground, had been swept clean. Twenty-eight thousand buildings were destroyed, and this ineluded the entire business district and more than half of the better residential section. About one billion dollars was the estimated loss in money value, but the loss by leaving homeless and with little or no shelter about half a million men, women and children cannot be measured.

The praetical restoratiou of the eity on a grander seale, within three years from the date of destruetion, is without comparison in the world's history. One hundred and fifty milliou dollars' worth of buildings of a far better type than those destroyed effaced the scar the fire made. From Twin Peaks to the Ferry, a streteh of four miles, within three years showed no break in the roofs, towers and spires. Six days after the disaster, rebuilding had begun.

Market street, as in the old days, remains the principal street, but more skyscrapers line it, and as far as its buildings are eoncerned it is the most modern street in the world. The business district extends in the rebuilt street to the Ferry, and the low brick buildings, relics of 1849, were replaced by handsome structures. New and up-to-date pavement was put down, and a lighting system installed that truly makes it "the path of gold."

In all aspects, the San Francisco that arose out of the ashes of 1906 is a rounded out and complete metropolis. It is to the Pacific Coast what New York is to the Atlantic Coast, and all that it laeks in any respect is size.

THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION. So eompletely had San Francisco recovered from the disaster of 1906, that she was ready to invite the world to come and rejoice with her in 1915 at the exposition, eelebrating the opening of the Panama Canal. The exposition gained the reputation of having been the most splendid of any ever held. The city entertained vast numbers of people from all over the world, and yet there seemed to be but little crowding. It was a fitting celebration to mark the beginning of a new trade era which will eventually magnify San Franeiseo many fold. At last, after many eenturies, the short cut to the Orient which the Spaniards had sought was an accomplished fact, but the Port of San Francisco continues to take toll. Its eight miles of berthing room already having proven inadequate, an additional ten-mile stretch was under improvement by 1915. The million people sheltered around about the Bay looked forward to an even greater progress in the next decade than in that following 1906.

DEATH OVERTAKES FRED JUNG

GRAND SECRETARY'S PASSING MOURNED BY ORDER NATIVE SONS

RED HENRY JUNG, OF SAN FRANcisco, Grand Secretary of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, died August 15, in Grapevine Canyon, forty miles from Bakersfield, Kern County, while on a motorcycle trip to Los Angeles, "acute indigestion, superinduced hy heat," was assigned by the autopsy doctor as the cause. He was a native of San Francisco, born March 17, 1870, and is survived by an aged mother, Mrs. Leone Jung, who frequently accompanied him to sessions of the Grand Parlor, and a sister, Mrs. Joseph Gihson.

Deceased's conuection with the Order of Native Sons dates back to February 10, 1893, when he affiliated with Stanford Parlor, No. 76 (San Francisco). He always took an active interest in its affairs; in August, 1898, he resigned as first vice-president to take up the duties of recording secretary, and performed them with satisfaction to all until July 29, 1913, when he was elected to the vacancy in the first vice-presidency; after serving as president and junior past president, he was again elected recording secretary, which position he occupied until his death.

Grand Secretary Jung first attended the Grand Parlor as a delegate from Stanford to the Twenty-seventh (Vallejo) Session in 1904, and had continuously since been a member of that body, and was always a leader in its deliherations. At the Thirty-second (Marysville) Session in 1909 he was elected to the office of Grand Secretary, and so well and faithfully did he fulfill the important trust delegated to his care that he was re-elected unanimously at each succeeding Grand Parlor.

Fred Jung was a spleudid type of native Californian. He, like all humans, had his pecularities, but he was sincere, devoted, honest and frank in every thing which he undertook and in every argumment which he advanced. He was an ideal Grand Secretary, and in his passing the Order of Native Sons has suffered a great loss. The hest that ean be said of any man, when he has answered the call of his Maker, is that in life he was always a true friend; and of no man ean this be more truthfully said than of the lately-departed Grand Secretary, Fred Henry Jung.

"God keep you, Friend! Your loyal heart
And strong, unfailing arm have helped us stand
Where we had slipped, unsteadied by your hand;
No strength have we to leave you as we part—
God keep you, Friend!

"God keep you, Friend! Into His care,
More vigilant and tender still than yours,
Which potently through time and space endures,
Do we trust you with this prayer:
God keep you, Friend!"—C. M. H.

(JAMES F. HOEY,
Grand President, N.S.G.W)

"The cloak of sadness has again been thrown over our Fraternity, as we must now record the passing of our efficient Grand Secretary, Fred H. Jung, who has been removed from our midst and has gone to join that grander and nohler fraternity, the Heavenly Parlor on High. Only those who have had the honor of serving as Grand President of our heloved Fraternity during the period of Brother Jung's incumbency in offiee can fully appreciate the worth that he was to our Order. Besides being a sincere Native Son, and possessing a pleasing personality, he was a good lawyer, an expert accountant, and a competent bookkeeper. For years past we have heard read from the reports of Grand Presideuts the well-earned words of appreciation of the ahle assistance tendered to them by Brother Jung. No longer can the grand officers of our Order turn to this efficient hrother for the solution of prohlems that confront them during their incumhency in office. The kind actions of Fred Jung will ever be fresh in the memory of those he hefrieuded, and his name will he revered, respected and treasured hy all who knew him.

"The system in his office was intricate, hut complete and perfect. He was possessed of those virtues which are found only in men who are true to their friends, loyal to their state and country, and fraternal to their fellow-man. He was ever at his post, and was always forming some plan to save the Grand Parlor additional expenditures of money. He always considered it a pleasure to assist a hrother when called upon. Those who knew him hest, loved him most. He was a good citizen, a devoted son, a true friend, and a loyal Native Son. He possessed a superior knowledge of the affairs of our Order, and it has often been said that 'No question can he framed concerning the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West that Brother Jung canuot readily answer.'

"May we ever keep green the memory of this departed hrother!"

FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED

The funeral of Grand Secretary Jung was held August 19, the remains heing taken from the residence to the church of Notre Dame des Victoires, where a short service was held. Thence they were conveyed to the auditorium of Native Sons' Building, which was crowded to capacity with memhers of the Order from all parts of the state and sorrowing friends; the hig stage was hanked high with numerous gorgeous floral trihutes.

The active pall hearers were Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger, Grand Third Vice-president William J. Hayes, Grand Trustee John J. Monteverde, Grand Trustee Henry G. Bodkin and Historiographer Frank C. Merritt, representing the Grand Parlor, N.S.G.W., and James F. Stanley, governor-general of the Past Presidents' Association, representing that organization and Stanford Parlor. Honorary pall hearers were John H. Grady, Dr. Charles W. Decker, William H. Miller, George D. Clark, Lewis F. Byington, Daniel A. Ryan, Louis H. Mooser, Judge John F. Davis, William F. Toomey, all past Grand Presidents of the Order of Native Sons, and N. A. Denvir, exalted ruler, San Francisco Lodge, B. P. O. E., with which, as well as with the Y. M. I. and Red Men, deceased was also affiliated.

Gathered together in the home of the Order whieh he loved so well and so faithfully served, were funeral delegations from all the twenty-seven San Francisco Suhordinate Parlors and these "outside" Parlors: Sacramento 3, Marysville 6, Stockton 7, Argonaut 8 (Oroville), Placerville 9, San Jose 22, Yosemite 24 (Merced), Fresno 25, Sunset 26 (Sacramento), Petaluma 27, Santa Rosa 28, Excelsior 31 (Jackson), General Winn 32 (Antioch), Los Angeles 45, Alameda 47, Oakland 50, Napa 62, Mount Tamalpais 64 (San Rafael), Redwood 66 (Redwood City), Mount Bally 87 (Weaverville), Santa Cruz 90, Las Positas 96 (Livermore), Mount Diablo 101 (Martinez), Courtland 106, San Diego 108, Ramona 109 (Los Angeles), Eden 113 (Hayward), Piedmont 120 (Oakland), Halcyon 146 (Alameda), McCloud 149 (Redding), Brooklyn 151 (Oakland), Sea Point 158 (Sausalito), Washington 169 (Centerville), Ohservatory 177 (San Jose), Athens 195 (Oakland), Corona 196 (Los Angeles), Carquinez 205 (Crockett), Berkeley 210, Palo Alto 216, Estudillo 223 (San Leandro), Bay View 238 (Oakland), Claremont 240 (Oakland), Sutter Fort 241 (Sacramento), Niles 250, Fruitvale 252 (Oakland), Columhia 258.

SEPTEMBER IN CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

PIONEERS CELEBRATE ADMISSION DAY—OTHER HAPPENINGS

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE PIONEER ASSOCIATIONS OF San Francisco, Sacramento and Stockton celebrated Admission Day, September 9, 1870,—the twentieth anniversary of California's admission to statehood—with an excursion by steamboats to Vallejo, Solano County, as guests of the Pioneers of that city. They paraded the streets of Vallejo, visited Mare Island, and had a banquet and talkfest. A jolly good time was had together.

Wm. H. Seward, who led the fight in the United States Senate for California's admission into the Union and was visiting in the state at this time, with his party sailed for the Orient from San Francisco September 2. Several hundred of the prominent citizens of the metropolis were at the wharf to cheer and bid them an enthusiastic good-bye.

General Wm. T. Sherman arrived by train in California September 7. He was received at Sacramento with a salute and by a couple of thousand citizens who gave him an ovation. At Stockton, nearly the whole city was at the depot to cheer him and listen to his appropriate remarks. San Francisco received him with thousands of its citizens forming an enthused procession from the ferry landing to his hotel and gave him a warm-hearted reception.

General Sherman went with the Pioneer Association on the excursion to Vallejo Admission Day and made some happy remarks. He attended the State Fair at Sacramento, and having surveyed the site of the city and been there before a house, outside of Sutter Fort, had been built, he had many interesting reminiscences to relate. At the park in the afternoon and the pavillion at night he was given great popular demonstrations. A grand ball at the Lick House, San Francisco, the evening of September 15 in his honor was attended by the General and General Schofield. So great was the crowd in attendance all could not be admitted.

The Pioneers of San Francisco presented him with an American Flag made of California-produced silk. September 17 he sailed for Portland, after having had the biggest time in his life. Everywhere he went and there was a band to play or a voice to sing, General Sherman's ears had to listen to a rendition of "Marching Through Georgia" until he grew weary of it. As the band on the wharf began to play it while the steamer backed out on the bay to make its departure, he is said to have remarked to a friend standing by: "War is hell, in more ways than one."

A baseball game for the championship of the state was played at Sacramento September 9 between the Eagles of San Francisco and the Sacramento club. The Eagles won by a score of 70 to 14.

The Mexican population in Los Angeles, Sacramento and other towns in the state was numerous enough to celebrate, in a patriotic manner, the anniversary of Mexican independence, September 16.

The Chilenos of Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, and vicinity celebrated "Diez y ochoa," the anniversary of Chili's independence, with a parade, salutes, fireworks, grand ball and patriotic fervor September 18. A salute in honor of Chili's independence day was fired at Fort Alcatraz, off San Francisco.

Month of Fairs.

The Northern District Fair opened at Marysville, Yuba County, September 5 under auspicious conditions. There was a large display of exhibits and an excellent week of horse racing. General O. H. La Grange delivered the annual address. Miss Nancy McImoil won the first prize in the equestrienne tournament.

The annual State Fair opened at Sacramento September 12 and closed the 17th. There were more exhibits and a larger attendance than at any previous fair. The receipts were over $32,000. Chas. F. Reed was president and I. N. Hoag secretary, and they managed the exhibition. A. A. Sargent delivered the annual address. The horse racing was not of a sensational character. Only one race had any pretensions to a first-class contest, and that was a mile heat, 3-in-5 race, for 3-year-olds, and developed into a mighty contest between "Tom Atchison," a "Norfolk" colt, and "Nell Flaherty," a "Rifleman" filly. "Tom" won the first heat, but "Nell" took the next three, her best time being 1:47. This was the biggest betting affair of the week.

The largest and toughest crowd ever seen in Sacramento came from all parts of the state. Rondo and other games of chance, with all kinds of attractions to separate the visitors from their money, were run wide open and it was "some" fair. Among the freak exhibits were a beet weighing 99 pounds produced by R. R. Morrison of San Diego and a mammoth calf 5 months old and weighing 650 pounds owned by Wm. Johnston of Richland, Sacramento County.

James W. Marshall, the discoverer of gold in California, was in attendance selling his biography; he was in very poor health. Marring the reputation of Sacramento as a big-hearted host, during the last two days of the fair swarms of mosquitoes were blown into the city by a northwest zephyr from the swamps of Yolo County. Not a visitor left for his elsewhere home but who bore upon his face and hands souvenirs of his visit to the State Fair left there by the invading mosquitoes.

The San Joaquin Valley Fair opened at Stockton the week following the State Fair, and there was also a successful week of racing in San Francisco, giving the turfites a run for their money.

A Butte County fair opened at Chico September 27 and continued four days.

The directors of the Mercantile Library lottery announced that at the close of business September 30 169,000 tickets had been sold and the drawing would certainly be held October 31. Ticket holders were feverishly awaiting the time.

Superintendent Schell of the Japanese colony near Gold Hill, El Dorado County, exhibited at a horticultural fair in San Francisco tea plants grown from seed during the present season, also rice plants and a plant from which the Japanese made paper. He was very optimistic as to the future of the colony.

Mason and Perkins established in Sardine Valley, in Nevada County, a large cheese factory and were daily turning out a score of cheeses which found a ready market.

Profiteers Not in Action.

Dr. H. J. Gleun was at this time oue of the biggest farmers in the producing line in the state. From his Colusa County acres he shipped by river barges 48,542 sacks of wheat this month, aud during the year had sold 2,000 steers, 3,000 mutton sheep and 2,000 hogs, besides mules and horses. It was estimated he would produce a value of over $300,000 from his rauch this year.

S. K. Spears, in Merced County, planted seven acres in sweet potatoes and got a yield of eighty tons.

The San Francisco market at the beginning of the month quoted wheat at $1.60, barley $1.15 and potatoes $1.25 a cental; hay $9 a ton; beans 3c, hutter 40c, beef 6c, mutton 5c, pork 5½c and wool 15c a pound; eggs 40c and chickens $6 a dozen; orauges 5c each.

A municipal election held in San Francisco September 7 resulted in the Taxpayers' party electing all but two of its candidates; the Democrats got the tax collector aud fire commissioner.

A French sanitary fair was opened in San Francisco September 17 and was kept going for ten days. Over $60,000 was raised and sent to France. The German citizens claimed to have raised $85,000 for their sanitary fund. The women of each nationality throughout the state were now busy raising funds for their respective sauitary associations.

The German citizens of Sacramento celebrated with a big torchlight demonstration the evening of September 5 the victories wou by the fatherland over France, and great enthusiasm prevailed.

The State Capitol Commission, complying with an act of the Legislature, purchased the lot on the corner of Fifteenth and "L" streets, Sacramento, upon which to build a governor's mansion. The mansion was built, but in 1871 the state elected a bachelor governor who had no use for it and it was turned into, and has been used since as, a state printing office.

The Grand Lodge, Independent Order Good Templars, met in Sacramento September 27. The order was in a flourishing conditiou, having 171 lodges in California and Nevada and 7,649 members. It had during the year initiated 5,624 and lost through suspension, etc., 4,862, making a net gain of 762 members. The total abstainers were very enthusiastic over the future of the order. There were 287 delegates in attendance, and they elected A. D. Wood of Vallejo chief templar, Mrs. Ellen G. Hayden of Nevada vice-chief, C. B. Proctor of Healdsburg counselor, W. H. Mills and G. B. Katzeustein of Sacramento secretary and assistaut.

An excursion of agents and other railroad employes from the East arrived in California September 19. It came from Chicago in four days aud sixteen hours, a record-breaking run. Over 100 traffiemen of Eastern railroads came into the state, and were busily entertained in Sau Fraucisco and other cities during the balance of the month.

September 19 the markets of Sau Francisco were bare of fish. The fishermen, who bad been allowed free use of certain wharves for their boats and catches, being cut off by the harbor commissioners, struck, and there were no fish. The matter was adjusted in about a week.

The Eureka mine at Grass Valley, Nevada County, paid a monthly dividend this month of $10 a share.

Indians Have Joyous Time.

The John Snow mine at Sebastopol, Mariposa County, was described as being a nondescript in the mining world. A narrow strata of slate ran through a granite ledge and in this slate, at irregular intervals, was fouud oval quartz boulders varying from a pound to 100 pounds in weight. Sometimes they were barren, then again would be found "lousy with gold." The boulders were crushed in a hand mortar. One yielded this month fifty-nine ounces of gold valued at $1,062. The owners during August and September pounded out of these boulders over $5,000 in gold.

John W. Anderson, working a placer claim near Sonora, Tuolumne County, struck a pocket and took out over $3,000 in gold dust in one day.

M. Brown, another placer miner on Wood's Creek, nearby, found a pocket that yielded $900.

A rich ledge yielding rock that paid over $3,000 a ton was found in San Felipe Canyon, in San Diego County, and a rush of prospectors to make locations followed.

Mexican prospectors in San Rafael Valley, San Diego County, found a rich vein of quartz, aud exhibiting in San Diego a piece of rock weighing about two pounds that contained fourteen ounces of gold of over $250 in value caused a rush of locators to the place of discovery.

About 700 Digger Indians gathered in Indian Valley, on Kings River, the first week of the month for their twenty-year feast. With painted faces and bodies they executed their war dances and other ceremonies, greatly scaring the white families in the neighborhood. Their high jinks lasted several days and they appeared to have a joyous time.

A brilliant aurora borealis was visible in the northern heavens the eveuing of September 24. The sky was a roseate hue, with flashes of light across it. It disturbed telegraphic circuits so acutely as at times to cause a suspension of business.

A. J. Stevens was September 1 appointed general master mechanic of the Central Pacific Railroad, with headquarters at Sacramento. He began a successful administration of the locomotive department of that company that lasted until his death in 1888 and gave him a natioual reputation as an inventor and mechanical genius.

Grove L. Johnson, father of United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, returned to Sacramento this month from a trip East by rail. He was a prominent member of engine company No. 2, the members of which, with a hundred or more other city firemen, met him at the depot and escorted him to his home.

Thomas Mooney, president of the California Building and Loan Society of San Francisco, a banking business, and who was a prominent anti-Chinese agitator, levanted and left the institution Wants Historian in Every Parlor.

Oakland—Historiographer Franck C. Merritt has sent a letter to all Subordinate Parlors requesting the appointment of an Historian. The letter reads:

"Your attention is called to section 3 of article IV of the Constitution for Subordinate Parlors, which provides for the appointment by the president of an Historian; also to section 10 of article IV providing 'that the duties of the Historian shall be to collect historic data concerning our Order and State, and to work in connection with the Historiographer.'

"It is requested that the president of each Parlor immediately appoint an Historian and that the recording secretary give notice to the appointee and notify the Historiographer of the name and home address of the historian. The Parlor may purchase a regalia and provide a chair in Parlor meetings, preferably in front of the desk of the recording secretary. Any officer or member of your Parlor may be appointed Historian. If, after effort, the office cannot be filled, the Historiograpber will, upon request, arrange to have your Parlor visited by an Historian from another Parlor in your vicinity.

"One of the principal functions of our Order is to perpetuate in the minds of all native Californians the memories of one of the most wonderful epochs in the world's history—the days of '49 and the resultant making of this great Commonwealth of California. Let us, therefore, assist in the study and dissemination of our history by providing an Historian in every Parlor. Early action on this important matter will greatly aid the Historiographer, who stands at all times ready to lend his assistance, upon request, to any Parlor or individnal member of the Order."

Admission Day Ball.

Jackson—Excelsior 31 will celebrate Admission Day, Septemher 9, with a grand ball, the proceeds to go to the homeless children fund. The affair will be held at the Italian picnic grounds, and a splendid time is guaranteed all attending. The committee in charge is: V. S. Garbarini, Jr. (chairman), Harry Learn, John Turner, Ben Sanguinetti, Ernest Brown, T. G. Negrich.

Hero Portraits Dedicated.

San Francisco—Officers of South San Francisco 157 were installed July 28 by D.D.G.P. Thomas F. Duffy, Paul McEvoy becoming president. A handsome emhlem was presented George J. Richardson, senior past president.

At the same time, the portraits of the sixty-five members of the Parlor who served in the world war, which now adorn the walls of the meeting-place, were dedicated, Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington delivering the address.

Admission Day

To the Officers and Members of All Parlors of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Complying with the Constitution of the Grand Parlor, I beg to call your attention to the fact that the seventieth birthday of our Golden State will soon arrive.

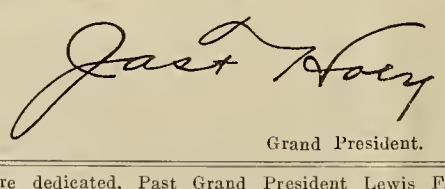

It is the duty of every loyal member of our fraternity to properly observe the anniversary of California's admission into the Sisterhood of States.

After a trial of a short period of local celebrations, the Grand Parlor decided to return to the large central celebration, and the place designated for the celebration this year is San Francisco—"the city that knows how."

The interest in this celebration is greater this year than ever before. It should not only be an event to celebrate our State's birthday, but one also to celebrate the return of so many Native Sons who left the place of their birth for a patriotic cause. These young men are now imbued with the same spirit that prompted our Pioneers to settle in California. They realize more than ever what a proud privilege is theirs—that of being a Californian, and a Native Son.

I trust that every Parlor in the State will join in the recognition of this anniversary, either by assisting in the San Francisco celebration, or if that is not possible, by arranging for a local celebration.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,

Grand President.

Grand Secretary's Death Casts Gloom.

Palo Alto—Members of Palo Alto 216 are husy arranging their part in the Admission Day celehratiou in San Francisco. The eommittee in charge, E. A. Hettinger chairman, reports everything in fine shape for a good representation. It is expected Mountain View and Palo Alto Parlors will join, carrying their banners side by side. E. B. Hockahout has been chosen an aid to the Grand Marshal from this Parlor. August 16 several applications for membership were presented, so a class initiation will he held August 30.

The sad news of the death of Grand Seeretary Fred H. Jung east a bloom over Palo Alto Parlor. He was an efficient officer, made many friends wherever he went, and the many favors that he had extended in the performance of his duties endeared him to every member of the Order.

Palo Alto's members are looking forward to the date in October when it is expected the great Palo Alto tree will he marked as one of the historieal landmarks of the state. A number of the members journeyed to Menlo Park August 19 to witness the installation of the officers of Menlo 185 by D.D.G.P.-at-Large A. S. Ligouri of Redwood City; Menlo is one of the great big little Parlors of the Order.

Moonlight Outing.

Santa Barbara—A large crowd gathered at Tucker's Grove July 29 to enjoy a moonlight picnic and dance arranged by Santa Barbara 116 and Reina del Mar 126, N.D.G.W. At dusk all sat dowu at five long tables, bountifully supplied with edibles. As the moon reached the tree tops and shone directly on the dance floor the grand march was in order, heing led hy J. P. McCaughey, president Santa Barhara Parlor, and Mrs. William Wilson, president Reina del Mar Parlor.

At the conclusion of the march Miss Irma Carlson sang "I Love You, California," everyone joining in the chorus. As a big State (Bear) Flag was unfurled Judge S. E. Crow delivered an address, telling something of the state's early history. The site selected for the outing was declared ideal, and the moonlight scenes will long he remembered. The joint committee in charge was: Mark Bradley, Mrs. Frank Carlson, Mrs. Christine H. Hall, John Chard and Sam Silva.

Sacramento to Entertain in San Francisco.

Sacramento—Alas and alack! The bomb has exploded at last. A recent outburst from here has caused much excitement and comment as to the part which the Sacramento City and County Parlors will play in the Admission Day celebration in San Francisco. They will take with them lots of jazz, including Grand Trustee John Jackson Monteverde. Even veterans of the world war, crippled and otherwise, mostly otherwise, are going down to the Bay to participate.

Headquarters have been arranged for at the St. Francis Hotel, where they will occupy the Colonial and Italian ballrooms, and dancing will be in full sway from 3 to 7 p. m. Music a-la-Hickman will be furnished, and punch will be served. The puneh will be the best obtainable under the present bone-dry conditions, and will make the Sahara look like an ocean. All sons and daughters of California will he welcomed, and it will be well worth their while to call at Sacramento headquarters.

To Have Mountain Home.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead 110 is to have a mountain home in Little Bear Valley, John Suverkrup and his son, Albert, having August 11 presented the Parlor with an acre lot there.

The appreciated gift came as a great surprise to the members of Arrowhead, and they expressed their gratitude with a unanimous vote of thanks.

County Organizes for Drive.

Redwood City—At a meeting of representatives from the San Mateo County Parlor August 8 there was formed an Extension of the Order Committee for San Mateo County, which will conduct a big drive. Among the representatives were: Prof. Geo. W. Hall (San Mateo 23), A. S. Liguori (Redwood 66), Alvin S. Hatch (Seaside 95), Charles Smith (Menlo 185), Prof. Edward Hevey Jr. (Pebble Beach 230). A. S. Liguori was chosen president and Charles Smith secretary.

Grand President James F. Hoey was present, and spoke on matters of importance pertaining to the Order. The main purpose in perfecting organization is to conduct a membership drive, to secure every eligible in the county, their assistance being desired to help in the great work the Order is doing for California.

Nevada City to Celehrate.

Nevada City—Hydraulic 56 is arranging to celebrate Admission Day, Septemher 9, with Wyoming Tribe, I.O.R.M. Red Men Park has been selected as the site. Among the features to be provided will be a harbecue, program of sports, and dancing, all day and night, on an open-air platform.

Marrieds Show Some "Pep."

Oakland—July 23 Claremont 240 held a lively meeting, one candidate beiug initiated and the officers being installed hy D.D.G.P. W. K. Smith of Fruitvale 252, assisted hy members of that Parlor. July 25 the single and married men's haseball team played a rousing game, witnessed by hundreds; the marrieds won by a score of 18 to 6. This team will challenge any Native Sou team.

Jointly with Argonaut 266, N.D.G.W., Claremont Parlor gave a dance, to raise funds with which to participate in the San Francisco Admission Day celebration.

At Final Rest in Native State.

San Francisco—The remains of Alfred G. Wright of Niantic 105, who made the supreme sacrifice on the battlefields of France, arrived August 11. The Parlor held funeral services, Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington and Past Presidents Randolph Whiting and Joseph F. Edelman officiating, and escorted the remains to the Presidio National Cemetery, where they were laid to rest with full military honors. Wright's is said to be the first body of a Native Son returned to his native state from overseas.

Big Class Initiated.

Sebastopol—There is great activity in Sonoma County, all the Parlors waging intensive membership drives. Sebastopol 143 initiated eighteen August 5, aud September 2 will initiate another class of at least double that number.

Native Sons' Hall, of which Sebastopol Parlor is justly very proud, was filled to overflowing, large delegations being present from Santa Rosa 28 and Sonoma 111. Enthusiasm was at its height, and all pledged themselves to push the Order forward in old Sonoma, the Bear Flag county.

Changes Meeting Place.

San Diego—San Diego 108 now meets in Moose Hall, Seventh and "E" streets, every Wednesday evening. The hall is centrally located, being in the heart of the business section, and this, it is hoped, will increase the attendance. The Native Daughters meet here, too, and this means more get-together parties, for the social and fraternal welfare of both Parlors. The Parlor's new home has added features that will please both members and visitors: card and billiard rooms, banquet room and a delightfully furnished reception room.

Five Injured by Auto.

San Francisco—Five members of Mission 38's drum corps—John Johansen, Leslie Griener, Robert Hales, John Henny, John Franusich—were seriously injured August 6, when an auto crashed into them while marching at Twelfth and Mission streets.

Purchases Historic Stagecoach.

Stockton—Stockton 7 has purchased a stagecoach used in pioneer days, having located it at Knight's Ferry, Stanislaus County. It was used in the "Border Lights" extravaganza staged last month for the benefit of the Parlor's 1921 Grand Parlor fund, and it is to remain here, for use in future parades, etc.

This particular stagecoach, it is claimed by Pioneers of Knight's Ferry, was in service in the days of '49, and was used to transport great quantities of gold and silver from the mines. It carried, too, many prominent personages, among its famed passengers having been General U. S. Grant, and figured in no less than four holdups.

Busy as a Bee.

Suisun—August 10 Solano 39 arranged to organize a basketball team; last year it had a fast one in the field, and expects to have a better one this year. The Parlor baseball team has shown that it is made up of fast material, and next year it will be hard to beat; at Dixon August 8 the team beat the fast Dixon aggregation by a score of 8 to 7. On a "raw" decision by Umpire Reigelhuth the Natives' first sacker lost his home run; the decision was a very bad one, but is attributed to the umpire's ignorance of baseball rules.

Officers were installed by D.D.G.P. John J. McCarron July 20, J. A. Wing becoming president. Charles A. Koenig (Golden Gate 29) of San Francisco gave an instructive talk. August 28 a dance was given. In the near future there will be a class initiation, a crack team from some outside Parlor to exemplify the ritual. Solano is doing its full share in helping to rid California of the Japs.

Plant Trees at Historic Sites.

Oakland—D.D.G.P. George F. Black and A. J. Summers (Richmond 217) of Richmond and D.D.G.P. James J. Dignan recently took a motor trip into the High Sierras. While at Donner Lake, in Nevada County, they planted a fir tree near the Pioneer monument, and on their way home planted a second tree, in the Marshall monument grounds at Coloma, El Dorado County.

Has Steady Membership Increase.

Mountain View—Mountain View Parlor 215 initiated a class of four candidates August 13, the officers exemplifying the ritual in fine style. The work of this Parlor should be complimented; it is having a steady increase in membership, having long passed the 100-mark. At the close of the meeting members of El Monte 205, N.D.G.W., were guests of the Parlor at a fine banquet, to which all present did justice. Following the feed Arthur M. Free acted as toastmaster, and the following toasts were responded to: Miss Freeman, president El Monte, N.D.G.W., "Growth of El Monte Parlor"; D.D.G.P. Fred L. Thomas, "Fraternity"; Mayor Cooley of Palo Alto Parlor, "Co-operation"; Father Lacomb, "Why and How We Should Co-operate on the Ninth of September"; F. M. Ostrander, president Palo Alto Parlor, "From Across the Seas."

More than one hundred members of Mountain View were present. The Parlor is arranging for a membership drive in accordance with the suggestion of Grand President James F. Hoey. The Fourth of July celebration, conducted under the auspices of the Parlor, netted the social fund nearly $300. It is understood Mountain View and Palo Alto Parlors will join in the Admission Day parade in San Francisco, led by Palo Alto's drum corps.

Richmond Will Be There.

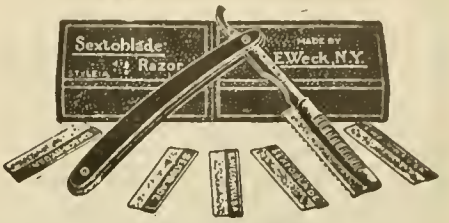

Richmond—Richmond 217 held a big meeting August 11 and decided to participate in the San Francisco Admission Day celebration. Robert Coffey, M. Mauyik, C. L. Swartout, A. Buys and Fred EARLY-DAY PLACER RESIDENT DIES IN LOS ANGELES CITY.

William Hartwell Hunt, a native of Virginia, aged 80, died August 9 at Los Angeles, survived by a widow, who was Almira Mason before ber marriage at Lincoln, Placer County, in 1868, and three cbildren: Edwin M. Hunt of Fresno, Mrs. Nellie Mehrtens and Clarence M. Hunt (Sacramento 3, N.S.G.W.) of Los Angeles.

Deceased came to California, via the Istbmus, in 1858, and until about 1863 clerked in mercantile establishments in San Francisco, Sacramento and Nevada State; tben he went to Virginia Town, in Placer County—a now-almost-forgotten mining settlement—where he was associated with George D. Aldrich, a lately-deceased Placer County Pioneer, in a general merebandising business. When Gold Run, Placer County, came into being as a hydraulic mining community, he located there, opening a large general merchandise store and becoming extensively interested in mining and lumbering. With the stoppage, by the Federal Government, of hydraulic mining—which brought financial ruin to many, including deceased,—Gold Run lost its prestige, and be proceeded to Lincoln to close up the large estate of his early-day partner. Since then he had resided at Gold Run, Sacramento, Elmburst, in Alameda County, and Los Angeles, where he came two years ago for his health.—C. M. H.

PRACTICE RECIPROCITY BY ALWAYS PATRONIZING GRIZZLY BEAR ADVERTISERS.

So The People May Know

To All Citizens and Voters of California Who Believe in the American Principle of FAIR PLAY and to All Taxpayers Who Believe in Keeping Down State Expenses.

The American Medical Trust is carrying on a Russian Czaristic campaign of persecution against the Chiropractic Profession. The State Medical Board of California is sending its detectives up and down the state to arrest the Chiropractors, especially those in the smaller cities where it is often difficult to get bail on short notice.

The aim of the medical trust in practicing this method of persecution against their successful competitors in California is to terrorize and prevent the Chiropractors from making money to contribute to the campaign fund to put over the Chiropractic Bill which the citizens of the state will vote upon at the election on November 2nd.

Because of the above facts the State Chiropractic Society of California is circulating a petition to the Governor of the State, the text of which is published with this notice, requesting the Governor to take such steps as may be within his power to stop this persecution and terrorizing of Chiropractors in California until the voters of the State have had a chance to decide either for or against the Chiropractic Bill.

We therefore urge all fair-minded citizens and taxpayers to aid us in our plea to the Governor and to sign the coupon printed here and mail same to the Governor.

HON. WM. D. STEPHENS, Governor,
State of California,
Sacramento, Cal.

Sir:

I, the undersigned, a citizen and voter of the State of California, hereby urge that you use the powers of your office to stop the arrest and persecution of the Chiropractors of California until November 2nd, when the voters of the State will decide by ballot whether or not the Chiropractors may legally practice their profession in the State of California.

Signed

Address

.....

A PETITION

To the Hon. Wm. D. Stephens, Governor, State of California, U. S. A., Sacramento, California.

Sir: We, the undersigned, citizens and voters of the State of California, hereby call to your attention the following facts:

1st. That 85,000 of the voters of the State have united in a petition asking that a measure be placed upon the ballot at the coming general election, to be known as the "Chiropractic Initiative Measure," providing for the establishment of a State Board of Chiropractic Examiners to examine and license Chiropractors and to regulate the practice of Chiropractic in the State of California; that the State Department has already received and verified this petition and fixed the place in which the said "Chiropractic Initistive Measure" shall appear upon the ballot, November 2nd.

2nd. That the State Medical Board of California, through its agents, has recently become so unusually active in its prosecution of Chiropractors that it would seem as though the medical doctors of the state had inaugurated a general campaign of persecution of the members of this well-recognized competitive profession; arrests are being made almost daily, of Chiropractors who have been practicing their profession, unmolested, for many years; Chiropractors who, according to the testimony of witnesses subpoenaed by the Medical Board in every trial case, have cured many thousands of the citizens of California of all sorts of acute and chronic ailments, many of which have failed to yield to the treatment of the doctors of the regular medical profession; Chiropractors who are practicing a profession that is recognized and established by legal enactment in 18 or more of the sovereign states of these United States of America, a profession that is based on science and pure reason and that is daily being justified by its works, a profession that is not mentioned in the laws of the State of California and that has only been brought under the police powers of the State Medical Board by an "interpretation" of the State Medical Practice Act.

Therefore, in view of the facts as set forth above, and the further fact that the election occurs within three months, you are requested by the undersigned to exercise your executive prerogative and restrain the State Medical Board and its agents from any further action against the Chiropractors of the State of California until the citizens of the state shall have an opportunity to decide, by their suffrage, whether or not the Chiropractors shall be entitled to practice their profession in the State of California.

The State Chiropractic Society of California, 231 Marsh-Strong Bldg., Los Angeles, California, is sponsor for this petition.

Swan compose the committee to make arrangements.

A membership drive is to be launched, Emmet Hitchcock and Robert Coffey being appointed to head two teams. A "feed" followed the business session.

Celebrates Anniversary.

San Jose—Observatory 177 observed the twenty-ninth anniversary of its institution with a barbecue and outing at the Tom Kell ranch August 15. The anniversary is always celebrated in a fitting manner, and the affair this year proved one of the most successful in the Parlor's history.

Louis V. Dietz was chairman of the committee of arrangements, which provided all the necessaries for the occasion. Attendance was confined exclusively to members of Observatory Parlor and invited grand officers. The Parlor has made splendid progress in the twenty-nine years of its existence, and is now recognized as one of the Order's strongest links.

Out for 600.

Sacramento—Sacramento 3, headed by Wilbur A. Green, the new president, is out to break all records during the July-January term. "600 Members by New Year's" is the forward cry, and the members are determined to put it over. Commencing August 26, class initiations will be held monthly.

A committee of five has been named to arrange the popular winter dancing club, as social features are not to be overlooked. The Parlor is interested in the success of the anti-Jap initiative measure on the November ballot.

Progress Satisfactory.

Ferndale—About 150 members of Ferndale 93 were on hand August 16 to greet Grand Trustee James A. Wilson of San Francisco on his official visit. Five candidates were initiated, the officers exemplifying the ritual in a satisfactory manner, and six applications received. Progress toward the 300 membership mark is most satisfactory.

Grand Trustee Wilson delivered a splendid address, and musical numbers were rendered by Donald Carr, Raymond Grinsell, J. D. Shaw and Ross Ring, after which a banquet was served. A feature of the evening was the arrival of a family from Peaked Prairie, and they were suitably entertained.

During the meeting's progress word eame of the death of Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung, and it cast a gloom over the assemblage. At the president's request all stood in silence, in respect to his memory, and the Parlor's charter was ordered draped in mourning for thirty days.

PERSONAL MENTION.

D. J. Murphy (Chico 21) of Chico, superintendent of the Phelan ranch, was wedded at Santa Clara August 18 to Miss Josephine Kenrick of Butte City.

John J. McCarron (Solano 39) of Suisun was in San Diego last month, attending the American Legion convention. He also spent a few days seeing the sights in and about Los Angeles.

Ernest W. Oliver (Grizzly Bear 239), formerly of Long Beach, is now located near Dixonville, Oregon, where he is farming a 2,800-acre tract and, incidentally, enjoying good hunting and fishing.

Senator J. M. Inman (Sunset 26) of Sacramento, president of the California Oriental Exclusion League, was among those who attended the American Legion convention in San Diego last month.

Colonel Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel (Grand Organist) of San Francisco was an Eastern visitor during July. He returned via the southern route early in August, stopping off a day in Los Angeles.

Superior Judge J. E. Barber (McCloud 149), who has been seriously ill in San Francisco for several weeks, has returned to his Redding home. His many friends hope for his steady convalescence.

United States Senator James D. Phelan (Pacific 10) of San Francisco took a motor trip down the Coast to San Diego last month, visiting en route all the important cities. He is a candidate for reelection.

W. S. Borba (Sebastopol 143) of Sabastopol, accompanied by his wife, made an auto trip last month via the valley to San Diego and back by the coast route. All places of interest along the routes were visited, including Tijuana, across the border, in Mexico.

William I. Traeger (Grand First Vice-president) of Los Angeles paid a flying visit to Sacramento last month. Tucked away in his inside pocket was the anti-Jap initiative petition with the signatures of 34,000 Los Angeles County voters; he wanted to be certain it reached the secretary of state's office, and in due time.

In Memoriam

FRED H. JUNG, GRAND SECRETARY.

Whereas, In the untimely death of Frederick H. Jung, Grand Secretary of the Native Sons of the Golden West, this Fraternity sufferedc an irreparahle loss; and whereas, Brother Fred. H. Jung was a good, honorable, patriotic citizen, a kind and loving son and hrotber, a true and loyal friend and that noblest work of the Creator, an honest, upright, God-fearing, right-living man; and whereas while Brother Jung was a man of education and ability, a lawyer and an accountant, rossessed of literary tastes and versed in languages, he nevertheless possessed that quality seldom found in men of diversified gifts and accomplishments,—fine executive ability; and whereas, Brother Jung loved the truth, scorned double-dealing and treachery, sham and hypocrisy, and performed every duty entrusted to him conscientiously and with rare ability, ever working untiringly for the honor of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West and the glory of his own beloved California; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Balboa Parlor, No. 234, N.S.G.W., extends to his beresved relatives our heartfelt sympathy in their immessurable loss; to the officers of the Grand Parlor and to Stanford Parlor, No. 76, our esteem and appreciation of the traits of heart, mind and character that made Fred. H. Jung loved and respected in our Order and throughout the state, and the assurance that we mourn with them his passing in the midday of his splendid manhood. However, we do not feel that he is lost to any of us; his memory and character are with us; his well-spent life is a legacy to us; we feel that his spirit looks down in tender kindness from the Heavenly Grand Parlor upon the Order that he served so faithfully and loved so well; and be it further resolved, that this resolution he spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, that a copy thereof be sent to his bereaved mother, to the Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, to the president of Stanford Parlor, and to The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

SWAT THE JAPS!

VOTE FOR INITIATIVE MEASURE ONE

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

INITIATIVE MEASURE NUMBER ONE ON the November hallot will he the proposed anti-Jap land law. It is significant that it should head the list, for it is the most important measure to he suhmitted direct to The People at the coming election. Upon the approval or disapproval of Initiative Measure Numher One rests the preservation of a White Man's California or a Japanized California. Which shall it he? Those qualified to vote must decide, once and for all, the question for California.

If you, Voter, favor the Japs continuing their "peaceful invasion" of California, that this state may eventually—and at a not-far-distant date—become a dependency of Japan; if you desire to "play into the hands" of the powerful American Church Federation—now designated the "Inter-Church World Movement" hecause the stench arising from the Federation's operations in this country as a servant of Japan made a change of title necessary, although its policy remains the same; if you would aid those citizens of this state—commonly referred to as Americans hut in reality white-Japs—who, for the almighty dollar, which they worship, are assisting the yellow-Japs, through evasion of our laws, to acquire the soil of California; either register your vote against this initiative measure, or neglect to vote at all on the question.

If you, Voter, wish to thwart the efforts of the yellow-Japs and white-Japs in the "peaceful invasion" scheme that has for its ultimate ohject the acquirement of California for the Yamato race; if you do not acquiesce in the declaration of Jap "Shima," speaking for his people in this state and the government of Japan to which he and they owe first-last-and-all-the-time allegiance, that the human white seed of California has hecome so rotten it is necessary, to produce a good crop of human beings to populate California, to mix it with human yellow seed imported from Japan; if you are not a heliever in the creed of all Japs, no matter where located nor what otherwise they profess, that their ruler, the mikado, whom they worship, is Christ, the Son of God,—and, therefore, being children of their christ-mikado are God's chosen children and all the earth is theirs; if you he a one-hundred-per-cent California-American who helieves that the soil of California should he held for and occupied hy none hut white peoples eligihle to become citizens of the United States, and that California should exercise the Federal Constitution-given right to determine who shall occupy her soil, without regard to the desires of foreigners, and particularly Japs, who cannot become American citizens and would remain citizens of and be ever loyal to Japan even if they were granted the privilege; go to the polls on election day and VOTE FOR INITIATIVE MEASURE NUMBER ONE, and use your hest efforts to get your neighhors to do likewise. The prize at stake—California—is worth the hest effort every loyal Californian can put into the campaign.

The voters of California will receive from the State an argument in favor of Initiative Measure Numher One—alien land law—prepared by V. S. McClatchy, publisher of the "Sacramento Bee," who has rendered such ycoman service, hoth as an individual and through his paper, for California in the Jap crisis. The argument is hrief, hecause the law limits the space allotted, hut sufficient; no argument whatever should he necessary to arousc The People to favorahle action, within the law, against the Japs on election day, for there is not a single voter in All California, informed on puhlic questions, who does not know that the Japs are a most serious menace to the future welfare of California. An abundance of facts have heen presented in the public press to suhstantiate that statement, as well as the assertion that all the Japs are here, with the full consent of their own government, for the sole purpose of so thoroughly colonizing this state that, unless California protects herself, she will he lost to the United States and to the white race. The argument follows, in full:

"Opponents of this initiative measure must assume that California is hound for some reason to give to Japanese in the state—to our ultimate undoing—privileges not contemplated hy the treaty with Japan, and such as have always heen denied to Americans in Japan.

"Through the measure California seeks, as is her inherent right, to preserve her lands for Americans precisely as Japan preserves her lands for the Japanese. Its primary purpose is to prohibit Orientals who cannot hecome American citizens from controlling our rich agricultural lands.

"By what right does Japan ohject to California's extending to her own citizens and lands the same protection given hy Japan to the Japanese and their lands?

"Our present treaty of commerce and navigation with Japan deliberately omits, from the privileges granted Japanese in this country, either ownership or lease of agricultural lands. Japan has always prohibited ownership, or lease, or use of agricultural lands in Japan by Americans, or other foreigners.

"Orientals, and more particularly Japanese, having commenced to secure control of agricultural lands in California, there was enacted in 1913 the Alien Land Law, which prohihited ownership—or lease heyond three years—of agricultural lands by aliens ineligihle to citizenship.

"In defiance of that law, through various suhterfuges, including use of dummy corporations and minor native-horn children, Orientals, largely Japanese, are fast securing control of the richest irrigated lands in the State, through lease or ownership, the proportion already controlled in some counties being from 50 to 75 percent.

"The initiative measure simply closes the loopholes in the 1913 law which permit violation and evasion thereof. In addition, it forhids even short leases.

"Long lease of these lands by Japanese is as injurious in effect as ownership; and the short lease hecomes long lease through repeated renewal, and hecause once the land is occupied by Japanese, the whites move away, and cease to be prospective lessees.

"Control of these rich lands means in time control of the products, and control of the markets. Control of the products of the soil by a unified interest such as the Japanese will lead to economic control of the country. That will be followed in time hy political control through force of numhers induced by the heavy hirth rate. That condition is now at hand in Hawaii.

"Rather than invite such disaster, hetter let some land lie idle, and a few large landholders make less profit, and even see production decrease somewhat, as opponents c'aim will result if this measure carries. However, it is not proven that curtailment of production will result. At present the small farmer who needs lahor can get none from the Japanese, hecause they demand leases and co-operative management.

"Under the initiative measure, treaty rights are fully safeguarded and citizenship of native born is not affected. All Japanese legitimately here may remain indefinitely in any occupations selected by them, and will he protected in all property rights previously acquired. As agricultural lahorers in California, they could earn much more than in any occupation in their own land. The hirth rate will insure increase, rather than decrease, of the Japanese population in this state.

"The measure provides that any alien ineligible to citizenship may acquire, use, transmit, and inherit interest in real property to the extent, and for the purposes prescrihed hy treaty with his respective nation, and not otherwise.

"Various safeguards, suggested hy experience, are provided, and certain penalties (including forfeiture of the property) for deliherate violation or evasion. The equities of innocent holders are fully protected.

"The measure was carefully prepared hy the State Legislative Counsel Bureau, after the proposed provisions had heen criticized hy various leading legal and civic organizations of the state.

"CALIFORNIA SHOULD VOTE OVERWHELMINGLY FOR THE MEASURE, FOR THE ADDITIONAL REASON THAT HER POLLED VERDICT AS TO THE GRAVITY OF THE PROBLEM WILL INFLUENCE THE NATION IN ENDORSING NECESSARY FEDERAL LEGISLATION."

BIRTH OF OUR GOLDEN STATE

(ANNA G. ANDRESEN,
Chmn. California History Com., N.D.G.W.)

THE SEVENTIETH ANNIVERSAY OF California's admission into the Union will be celebrated in San Francisco September 9 by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West. There will also be similar celebrations in many communities throughout the state. A review at this time of the facts relating to the admission of California into the Union fits well with the purposes of these celebrations.

In 1846, war having been declared between the United States and Mexico, Commodore John Drake Sloat, commander of the Pacific Squadron, arrived in Monterey, and on July 7 raised the Stars and Stripes over the old custom house, ending Mexican rule in California forever. Commodore Sloat took command of Monterey and acted as military governor until August 17, when he was succeeded by Commodore Robert F. Stockton. California was under military rule for four years, the following acting as military governors in succession: Brigadier-General Stephen W. Kearney, Coloney Richard D. Mason and General Bennett Riley.

The Mexican war came to an end in 1848, and by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, on February 1, 1848, California was ceded by Mexico to the United States, but for a year Congress did nothing toward giving it a government. The Americanized Mexican laws and form of government were unpopular and unsatisfactory. The government was partly American and partly Mexican; partly civil and partly military.

The confusion arising from such a form of government induced General Riley, then military governor, to order an election for August 1, 1849, to elect delegates to a convention to meet at Monterey, September 1, for the purpose of forming a state constitution which would be ratified by the people and submitted to Congress for its approval.

FIRST CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

This convention met in Colton Hall, Monterey, September 1, 1849. Of the forty-eight delegates, twenty-two were natives of the northern states, and fifteen of the slave states. Seven were native Californians and four were of foreign birth.

As some of the foreigners and Californians neither spoke nor even understood the English language, W. E. P. Hartnell, a lingnist, was appointed interperter. Dr. Robert Semple, one of the leaders of the Bear Flag revolt, was elected president.

Th constitution was completed by October 11, and an election was called by Governor Riley for November 13, for the purpose of voting upon the adoption of the constitution, and of electing state officers, a Legislature, and members of Congress. This state government was organized at San Jose December 20, 1849. Peter J. Burnett was elected governor, and John McDougall lieutenant-governor. George W. Wright and Edward Gilbert were chosen members of Congress.

The state government being organized the Legislature proceeded to elect United States Senators. There were seven candidates, but John Charles Fremont and William M. Gwin were selected, and sent to Washington.

ADMISSION INTO THE UNION.

When the question of admitting California into the Union came before Congress, it aroused a bitter controversy, and after eight months of opposition from Southern senators and representatives (the pro-slavery faction), the vote was finally taken on Saturday, September 7, 1850, as follows: In the United States Senate, 34 ayes and 18 noes; in the Lower House of Congress, 150 ayes and 56 noes. President Fillmore signed the bill for the admission of California on Monday, September 9, 1850, and California's star of gold took its place in America's constellation forever.

The news of the admission of California reached San Francisco October 18, by the mail steamer "Oregon," nearly six weeks after Congress had acted. When the people heard the news, they began to rejoice. All business was at once suspended, courts were adjourned, and messengers on horseback were sent to spread the news throughout the state. In the evening a large and happy crowd gathered at Portsmouth Square, where speeches were made by the leading citizens. Among those present was Peter H. Burnett, then Governor of California, who happened to be in San Francisco on that day.

It is said that Eastern newspapers, containing an account of the proceedings, were sold throughout California for five dollars apiece.

FIRST ADMISSION DAY CELEBRATION.

October 29, twelve days after the arrival of the news of California's admission to statehood, the people of San Francisco held a formal celebration in honor of the event. The population of the city was then about 25,000, and the shanties and tents of '49 had been replaced by more substantial buildings. Neither labor nor money was spared, to make the demonstration a success. All the buildings in the town, and the ships in the harbor, were gorgeously decorated with flags and bunting. A procession, consisting of civic and military societies and private citizens, marched to Portsmouth Square, where appropriate exercises were held; there an eloquent address, prepared for the occasion, was delivered by Justice Nathaniel Bennett of the Supreme Court.

Every organization was represented in the parade —the California Pioneers, Mexican War Veterans, army and navy officers, sailors and marines, fire department, fraternal and benevolent societies. The parade was most cosmopolitan, for people from almost every nation of the globe participated—Yankees, Mexicans, Spaniards, Indians, Englishmen, Frenchmen, Germans, Peruvians, Polynesians and Mongolians. The Chinese made the most imposing spectacle in the parade; they were dressed in their rich and gorgeous native costumes, carried gaudily-painted fans, and followed a color-bearer who carried a large blue silk banner, bearing the inscription "The China Boys." In the evening there was an illumination of fireworks, and the celebration ended with a grand ball which lasted all night.

There were demonstrations of joy all over the state, too, for the people of California had cause to rejoice. They had organized and perfected a state government without the sanction of Congress, and this action had been approved and legalized by that body. California had been born a fully-matured state, and had the distinction of being admitted into the Union without having had a territorial form of government.

Co-operation Sought.

Hollister—Grand President Bertha Adele Briggs, under date of July 26, communicated with all Subordinate Parlors regarding her official visits and called attention to county organizations and publicity, two matters that are vital to the Order's welfare, and in the carrying out of which she asks hearty co-operation. She said:

"'That we may increase our membership, instill good fellowship in our hearts and promote our standing in the community,' the Grand Parlor of 1919 legislated in favor of county organization. In some sections, such organization has already been perfected, but where such action has not yet been taken, the Parlors are urged to do so without delay that much genuine good work may be accomplished during this official year.

"In every Parlor where no Press and Publicity Committee has been appointed the president is asked to appoint, at the next meeting, a committee of three, whose duty it shall be to submit reports of the social activities and the constructive work of the Order to the local press, The Grizzly Bear, and the Grand Parlor Press and Publicity Committee. The recording secretaries of all the Subordinate Parlors are asked to forward without delay the lists of such committees to Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, chairman of the Grand Parlor Publicity Committee.

During August Grand President Briggs officially visited these Subordinate Parlors: 19th Junipero 141 (Monterey), 24th Reichling 24 (Fortuna), 25th Occident 28 (Eureka), 26th Golden Rod 165 (Alton), 27th Oneonta 71 (Ferndale), 28th Fort Bragg 210 (Fort Bragg).

Reception for Grand Organist.

San Francisco—Officers of Alta 3 were installed by D.D.G.P. Mae Edwards, assisted by Grand Organist Rebecca Kemp Van Ee, as follows: Lena Lor, P.P.; Maud Hussey, P.; Catherine O'Reilly, 1V.P.; Mary Warren, 2V.P.; Mary Martin, 3V.P.; Rose Peterson, M.; Clara Faulkner, R.S.; Elizabeth Douglass, F.S.; Julia Steinbach, O.; Sarah Brackett, I.S.; Mary Noonan, O.S.; Grace Williams, Mary Howell, Cornelia Miller, Trs. Retiring Past President Sarah Ahren was presented with a beautiful gold pin and President Hussey was the recipient of a cut-glass dish and flowers. The hall was prettily decorated with American Flags, ferns and flowers.

A reception was given by Alta Parlor in honor of Rebecca Kemp Van Ee, a member elected Grand Organist at the San Jose Grand Parlor in June. She was the recipient of numerous gifts and flowers. A program consisting of songs by a quartet and members was in order, after which dancing was indulged in. A fine repast was served in the banquet-hall, the tables being beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers. All present spent a very enjoyable evening, and great credit for the success of the affair is due the committee in charge.

What Makes a Bank Grow?

A careful person, in choosing a Bank, considers, first, safe conservative management. Next, the highest interest return consistent with safety. And then —SERVICE—which includes Courtesy, Accuracy, sufficient well trained men to do the bank's work quickly, smoothly and accurately.

So, when you see a Bank grow—almost day by day, month by month, year by year, as the Security Bank has grown for more than Thirty Years, you may know that it is because it has proven to be the kind of a bank which the kind of people who have money, like to put their money into.

Admission Day

To the Officers and Members of Subordinate Parlors,
Native Daughters of the Golden West.
Dear Sisters:

Animated by a spirit of loyalty to State and Country and of love and reverence for our Pioneer Fathers and Mothers, it shall be our privilege and pleasure to celebrate, within a few short days, the Natal Day of our Golden State, the day so dear to all true Californians. On September the Ninth, California shall have reached the honored age of three score years and ten.

On that day we, her true-hearted and loyal children, will gather from all sections, in the great City by the Golden Gate, to express in fitting manner our joy and pride in the splendid development of the land of our nativity, and to pay homage to the "Argonauts of California,"

"Who gave to us this wondrous State,
The Nation's brightest star."

If the privilege of participating in this great general celebration be not enjoyed by all of us, there is ample opportunity to demonstrate our veneration of the Pioneers and our pride in the land of our birth, by holding appropriate exercises in our own localities, or by making happy the heart of an aged and hoary-headed Pioneer by the gift of a basket of luscious fruit, a bunch of fragrant flowers, or a loving message of greeting.

"The Pioneer ranks are rapidly thinning,
But few old grey heads remain with us yet,
As we dream of the struggles and strife of beginning,
All hail to their memory—lest we forget."

As the happily favored children of the Golden West upon whom so many blessings have been showered, much will be expected of us. We must not prove false to the memories of the mighty men of the past. They performed their work well; so we, in turn, must leave this wondrous heritage unwasted and enlarged to those who shall follow in our footsteps.

Sincerely and fraternally yours, in P.D.F.A.,

Bertha Adele Briggs

Grand President,
Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Initiates Twenty-three.

San Luis Obispo—San Luisita 108 is making splendid progress, having initiated twenty-three candidates during the past two months. July 22 a very pleasant evening was spent, visitors being present from El Pinal 163 (Cambria) to witness the initiation of a class of seven. A banquet was served after the meeting, white and yellow, in flowers and bunting, being used in the color scheme for decoration.

Wants to Hear from Absentees.

Weaverville—Eltapome 55 recently tendered a farewell reception to Mesdames Nellie Hustis, Masie Gilzean and Mamie Hanna, who have gone otherwheres to make their home. Mrs. Hustis and family will reside in Yreka, Mrs. Gilzean and husband in Round Mountain, Nevada, and Mrs. Hanna and family in Courtland. The evening was spent in social converse, after which delicious refreshments were served. The members of the Parlor wish the departed sisters success and happiness in their new homes. In the past few years Eltapome has had twenty-nine members depart for other places to make their homes; a line from these absentees would be greatly appreciated by the Parlor. Recently a visit from two of them—Ethel Woodbury Sutherland of Red Bluff and Minnie Clement Lorenz of Shively—was greatly enjoyed.

Officers of the Parlor have been installed by D.D.G.P. Flora H. Noonan, as follows: Rose Meckel, P.P.; Phoebe Robinson, P.; Sadie Day, 1V.P.; Myrtie Cleaves, 2V.P.; Mabel Steele, 3V.P.; Margaret Cleaves Brown, M.; Lulu Wallace, R.S.; Minnie Martin, F.S.; Adeline Hanover, I.S.; Jennie Jackson, O.S. Lulu Wallace and Myrtie Cleaves have been quite ill at their homes, and their early recovery is hoped for by the Parlor.

Reception for Former Grand Secretary.

Sutter Creek—Amapola 80 gave a surprise reception recently to one of its charter members, Miss Laura J. Frakes, who has worked earnestly toward bringing this Parlor forward and in promoting the interests of the Order in general. Miss Frakes served the Order for many years as its Grand Secretary, and has served in all of the offices of this Parlor. She has been teaching for several years past in the Sutter Creek grammar school. Ahout to depart from Amador County to make her home in Willits, Mendocino County, where she accepted a position in the grammar school, a reception was held after the busiuess meeting. In a few well-chosen words, the presideut of the Parlor, Mrs. Elsie Tolman, imparted to Miss Frakes the surprise that was in store for her, and on hehalf of the Parlor hid her adieu and its investors in a had financial condition. It was claimed he carried off $80,000 of the bank's collateral and a statement showed its liabilities were in excess of its available assets over $100,000. His departure made a big sensation in financial circles. He was last heard from as being in Canada.

Mrs. H. F. Nye, wife of the owner of the famed Nye's Ranch in '49, now the site of the city of Marysville, died in Oregon September 1. She was the sister of Mrs. Mary Covillaud, in whose honor Marysville was named. She came to California with the ill-fated Donner Party in 1846.

Land Dispute Results in Murders.

Dr. A. H. Hoerschner, a pioneer physician and prominent citizen of Calaveras County, died at Mokelumne Hill September 23. He was a successful and progressive man, and the community lost one of its most influential citizens.

Henry P. Comstock, one of the discoverers and from whom the famous Comstock Lode at Virginia City, Nevada State, got its name and who also was an old California Pioneer, committed suicide while temporarily insane at Bozeman City, Montana, September 27. He shot himself through the head.

T. F. Burch, a nimrod of Monterey County, killed a grizzly bear on San Benito Creek that weighed 1,100 pounds.

A miner named Brock, in Shasta County on Clover Creek, killed a deer. Having no way to get it to his cabin, it being too heavy to carry, he hung it on the limb of a tree. Returning with a pack-horse he found the venison had been eaten hy bears. Seeing one of these animals a short distanee away, he succeeded in shooting and killing it. After dressing it he placed the careass upon his pack-horse and started for his home. On the trail he eame upon two other bears, and he took a shot at one, but missed it. The pack-horse, frightened hy the discharge of the gun, departed at full speed through the chapparal. Brock followed and after a time found the carcass of the bear where it had fallen off the horse. The horse was "non est" and still going west, so Brock was out a deer and a horse, but in a bear.

The mining town of Iowa Hill, Placer County, was burned the morning of September 1, its business seetion being consumed with a loss of $50,000.

The home of David Hart, in Mariposa County, occupied by his family of ten children, was burned early the morning of September 4. A little girl aged 4 years was unable to escape the flames and was burned to death. Mrs. Hart was seriously burned in her efforts to reseue her ehildren.

A fire broke out and destroyed the buildings of the Empire miue on Ophir Hill, near Grass Valley, Nevada County, September 20; 5,000 cords of wood were also burned, and a loss of $150,000 resulted. Fortunately the miners underground eseaped before the hoisting works over the shaft burned. Two hundred and twenty-five men were thrown out of employment.

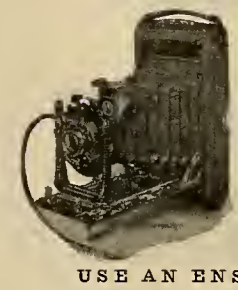

A lawsuit over the title to a section of land in Colusa County between Wm. Hamilton and Alonzo Stewart ended in favor of Stewart, and September 24 he, with Deputy Sheriff McClain, E. P. Wells and James Gongwer, went to Hamilton's house to take possession aud eject him from the premises. They found Mrs. Hamilton ill in bed with a nurse in attendance and Hamilton's brother, Robert, in the house, but William absent. A discussion arose as to what action should be taken, ending in a shooting affray in which Robert Hamilton blew off the top of Sheriff McClain's head, killing him instantly, and shot Wells through the heart, eausing his death. Stewart and Gongwer sought safety in flight, hut Hamilton pursued and, overtaking Stewart and while he was pleading for his life to he spared, shot him six times with a pistol and twice with a shotgun, causing his death soon after. Gongwer had a narrow escape, as several bullet holes were found in his elothing. All the men were prominent eitizens of Colusa County and both McClain and Stewart left families.

The Vigilantes of Monterey County assembled at the Watsonville jail the night of Septemher 26 and, taking an Indian aceused of horse stealing from his eell, hung him in the jail yard.

Horse Thief Is Lynched.

Dr. Malatte, at Yreka, Siskiyou County, removed some eorns from the feet of a miner named Winchester. After the ehiropody work Winchester imbibed freely, got "eorned," and going to the doctor's office engaged in a dispute over the charge made. As a result of the quarrel he assaulted the doetor with his fists and the doetor, in self defense, shot him with a revolver. The bullet entered the eheek first below the ear and passing through his head went out through the other cheek, making a wound the result of which was in doubt at the end of the month.

The infamous forgers, Lewis and George Brotherton, were convicted of the $15,000 forgery committed on a San Francisco bank and sentenced to serve a long term in San Quentin prison.

A California Pacific train September 23 struck a steer stuck in a culvert near Vallejo, Solano County. The engine and several cars were wrecked. Conductor Harry Briggs had a leg crushed below the thigh and after amputation died. Engineer Chas. Dorman and Fireman Pat. Jones were severely injured.

Wm. M. Boyd, owner of the California yeast factory in San Francisco, missed a $20 piece. A Chinaman, several years in his employ, being suspicioned was interviewed, with the result that he attacked Boyd with a hatchet and chopped his head in a horrible manner.

Near Bakersfield, Kern County, September 3 the body of a man who had been lassoed and dragged to death two or three weeks previous was found in a thicket. He was a member of the Mexican settlement. September 6 a California-Mexican named Juan De Sepulveda, who had a criminal record for horse stealing made in Los Angeles, was arrested for the murder. A mob of about fifty Mexicans gathered, took him from the custody of the officers, and hung him from the limb of a cottonwood tree.

James Farraca, an 18-year-old youth of La Porte, Plumas County, while delirious from a fever jumped out of a third-story window of the Western Hotel in Marysville and was killed.

The stage from San Jose to Santa Cruz was upset off the grade in Lexington Canyon September 13. Nine passengers went down with it, but Miss Carter of Santa Cruz was the only one seriously injured.

James M. Brown, a teamster, was shot and robbed by highwaymen September 13 on the Big Tree road near the Alpine County line.

Rev. J. H. C. Bonte, Episcopal minister of Sacramento, while hunting near Clear Lake was accidentally shot in and lost the sight of an eye.

Frank Purdy, an 18-year-old youth, while hunting near Petaluma, Sonoma County, accidentally shot and killed himself.

Mrs. Curran, living near Santa Barbara, took a shotgun and went out in the field to shoot a hawk. Returning to the house she leaned the gun against the wall in the dining-room. It fell to the floor and striking on a hammer was fired and the charge of shot struck and killed her infant child, playing on the floor nearby.

A Solomon Peace Justice.

September 3 a 7-year-old lad named Finning, at Sonoma, driving home the cows and riding a horse was throwa off and broke his arm in two places. After the doctor had set it and the neighbors had gathered in the house to sympathize, a little girl 5 years old named McGuire stood too close to the kitchen stove and her dress caught fire. She was so badly burned before the flame could be put out she died the next day.

Richard Wright, a lad 8 years old at Oro Fino, Siskiyou County, was playing with other boys about an overshot water wheel in a mining claim. The wheel was still, and the little boy climbed into one of the buckets. His weight caused the wheel to turn and his head was caught between it and a post and crushed, causing his death.

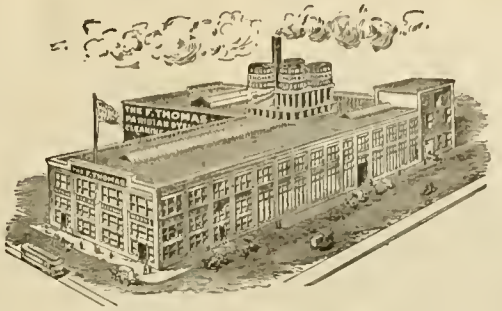

A Folsom, Sacramento County, justice of the peace tried a case, contesting the ownership of a turkey gobbler between a colored and a Mexican washerwoman, who were near neighbors. The evidence was so conflicting, neighbors testifying in accordance with their personal feelings toward one or the other of the washerwomen, he was unable to decide the controversy. He adjourned court until the next day and took possession of the gobbler. At nightfall he set it free in the vicinity of the homes of the two claimants and watched it go to roost. As it made itself a home in the colored woman's henhouse, this modern Solomon gave her the verdict.

Ellen Lady, a young woman 17 years of age, near Callahan's, Siskiyou County, September 12 was riding a horse when the girth of the saddle broke and she was thrown off. She caught the horse, replaced the saddle and rode home. That night she became ill and soon died from the effects of a ruptured blood vessel in her head, caused by the fall.

Charles Claussen, a farmer near Dixon, Solano County, was unhitching his team from a gang-plow when the horses took fright and ran away. Claussen was caught and dragged by the doubletree against a plowshare and had his heart cut out, dying instantly.

The Rev. W. Fairburn, a Methodist minister, driving in a buggy on a Yolo County road about a dozen miles from Davisville, was accosted by a man walking along the highway who asked for a ride. Willing to accommodate, the minister took him to Davisville and became quite friendly on the way. A few days later he learned he had assisted a convict from San Quentin in making his escape, and getting him to a railroad station had greatly facilitated his get-away.

and gave to her the blessing and best wishes of Amapola. Miss Frakes responded with an interesting talk on "Early Days of Amapola Parlor"; she thanked the Parlor for its tribute, and gave a toast for its futuro. A delightful evening was spent, light refreshments being served. Miss Frakes left about August 20 for her new home. It is with much regret that Amapola Parlor bids adieu, for in so doing the Parlor loses one of its best workers.

Large Attendance at Installation.

Grass Valley—Following a splendid exemplification of the ritual for the benefit of a candidate, these officers of Manzanita 29 were recently installed by D.D.G.P. Louise Wales: Reta Fuller, P.P.; Alyne McGagin, P.; Myrtle Lopes, 1V.P.; Ethel Foote, 2V.P.; Lorene Geach, 3V.P.; Loretta Henwood, R.S.; Ida Earl, F.S.; Irene Schwartz, T.; Lucille Ryce, M.; Mary French, Mary Frank, Sarah Perrin, Trs.; Louise Wales, O.; Delia Collins, I.S.; Marie Mitchell, O.S. Past President Reta Fuller, in appreciation of faithful services, was presented with an emblematic pin and a fern, and D.D.G.P. Wales with a bouquet of carnations.

There was a large attendance of the membership, and the followiug short program was presented: Vocal solo, Beatrice George; reading, Loretta Henwood; vocal duet, Reta and Bertha Fuller; vocal solo, Mr. Mecker.

Unique Jewel Presented Member.

San Francisco—July 31 the newly-elected officers of Castro 178 were publicly installed by D.D.G.P. Lizzie Muller, assisted by Grace Carrick, Millie Tietjen, Harriet D. Cate and Tina Wende. The simple but effective decoratious of the hall made a very pretty backgrouud for the bevy of young maids aud matrons in their dainty evening gowns who were eagerly waiting to be installed in their new offices, and the dancing which followed the installation ceremouies was thoroughly eujoyed by the members and their many friends, the snappy and always popular jazz music coaxing old and young alike to the floor. Upon completion of her work D.D.G.P. Muller was presented with a handsome gift; also the retiring president, Louise Stroessler, and Margaret Griffith, upon whom the honors of past president had been conferred at Graud Parlor.

A sweet but pathetic incideut of the evening was the presentation of a pin, emblematic of both Orders, to Gabrielle Fairfield, one of the newly-elected trustees. Her husband, in less than a week after receiving the customary past president's jewel from Castro 232, N.S.G.W., was summoued to the Grand Parlor on High, a victim of the influenza epidemic. The members of Castro Parlor of Native Daughters conceived the pretty idea of making this jewel, now only a treasured keepsake, something that Sister Fairfield could daily use and enjoy; another diamond was therefore added, also the lettering "Castro Parlor No. 178, N.D.G.W.," and her name engraved on the back; the unique and cherished jewel was thus presented to her. Following are the new officers: Louise Straessler, P.P.; Estelle Hutchison, P.; Sibyl Decker, 1V.P.; Sadie McGrath, 2V.P.; Lulu Nicolson, 3V.P.; Evelyn Meyer, M.; Gabrielle Sandersfeld, R.S.; Alice Lane, F.S.; Ida Smith, T.; Mae L. Edwards, O.; Sadie Rule, I.S.; Sadie Martell, O.S.; Ruby Gallagher, Gabrielle Fairfield, Adelle Bennett, Trs.

Serves Spanish Banquet.

Halfmoon Bay—The following officers of Vista del Mar 155 were installed July 26 by D.D.G.P. Mamie Dias, assisted by Ida Mesquite, acting grand marshal, Ellen R. Bell, acting grand secretary, and Margaret M. Dias, acting past grand president: Ida Ponce, P.; Angie Francis, 1V.P.; Louise Francis, 2V.P.; Agnes Gilcrest, 3V.P.; Grace Griffith, R.S.; Harriet Nelson, F.S.; Ella Boitano, T.; Henrietta Francis, M.; Emma Ballestracci, I.S.; Jennie Mawry, O.S.; Edna Hall, Carrie Borges, Kato Gilcrest, Trs.; Belle Vallejo, O. D.D.G.P. Dias was presented with a bouquet. Accompauying the district deputy were Madeline Gianola and Lizzie Frey of Ano Nuevo 180 (Pescadero). After installation a delicious Spanish banquet was served. All departed wishing prosperity to Vista del Mar Parlor.

Showers Recent Bride.

Hollister—July 23 Copa de Oro Parlor 105 initiated two candidates. After the business session, a surprise kitchen shower was given one of the recent brides, Mrs. Fillmore Stephenson, formerly Melverne Sholby. She was the recipient of many useful gifts, each accompanied by an appropriate verse or sentiment.

A uniquo feature of the shower was the throwing of the bride's bouquet, which was arranged especially for that purpose, and was caught by Miss Violet Frusetta amid much laughter and excitement. Miss Frusetta pleasantly surprised the Parlor during the following week by her marriage to Warren McConuell, a veteran of the world war, and now a successful business man of this city.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

IN EVERY COLLECTION OF FRESH MODEL gowns the "little dress" bobs up serenely, and always it is greeted with a contented smile, for every woman knows she looks better in a dress. It is amazing, the changes that are used on the kimono model, the oldest in the world—the finish and cut of the neck and sleeves; the belting and sashing; the color, or combination of colors; the finish of the skirt, shall it be in tucks, a border frill, or left severely plain below an apron front? There is no end to suggestions on these points.

One of the prettiest of dresses, built on the kimono plan, is made of lovely blue kasha and trimmed with Bulgarian embroidery. The neck is finished high with a small collar, which, edged with embroidery, turns over a cravat of ribbon. The skirt is made with a wide, straight apron front, which is drawn in wrinkling folds to the back, where it meets above three flounces. The effect is slightly suggestive of a bustle; I do not think that resemblance at all significant, however.

White gowning, which has been in high favor all summer, will continue through the autumn, judging from the great number of white dresses and garments composed of heavy white woolen stuffs. Though expensive, white is always elegant, and always desirable, too, by reason of the many effects which may be had in a white toilette simply by a change of shoes, stockings and hat. The prettiest suit seen was of white gahardine, bound with white silk braid. Shoes, stockings and gloves were white, while the big hat was of jade green velvet. The loose sackcoat was left open over the fluffy white batiste blouse.

During the summer there has been a revived interest in the tailored suit. This being the case, it follows that many of the early autumn models will continue to bear the standard of smartly tailored lines and of freedom from extravagant garniture. But, even so, we are promised considerable variety, brought about by the introduction of odd jacket lengths and flares, and through the medium of color fabrics—the familiar duvetyns, velours and the like, many of which have fancifully descriptive names.

Throughout the summer the duvetyns have been in evidence, especially for wraps and for the top coat. The silk duvetyn is one of the most beautiful materials ever devised, being gracious alike to the touch and sight, but not altogether satisfactory in its wearing quality.

The new color card shows tints rather more subdued than those of the last two years. First in favor comes blue—the whole gamut of blue—then orange, copper, and a deep, soft, rich red. Crushed strawberry is lovely, and it is shown in all fabrics. Duller colors are mingled in chic effects in thick, soft silks—rose and gray, violet and green, etc.

Everyone is interested in the sleeve probabilities. Just now the feeling is that both the long and the short will be in evidence, although for average wear the extremely short sleeve will not he in as good taste as that of the half or even the three-quarter length. The long sleeve is on its way back; it never was entirely out of the reckoning, any way, for certain styles (and certain arms).

Heretofore, for many seasons, a blouse terminated its useful, or decorative, history at the waist line. Now, there is a sequel, which is called the peplum, and, like many fashion postscrips, it is frequently more important than the main chapter itself. Peplums may be affairs of brevity, or they may be almost knee depth, or half-way between the waist and the knee. They may be straight panels, or gathered in ruffle semblance, or plaited flatly, or attached in apron form.

Although many interesting fabrics are shown for the new blouse, crepe georgette and chiffon remain high favorites. Of course, the flesh tones are dressy, and "go" with any color of suit. But there are certain of the grays which may prove serious rivals, and which are trimmed with dyed laces or embroideries. Habutai, always good for blouses and underwear, is a plainly-woven silk. It is very smooth and even in texture, and launders well.

Lace, by the way, gives promise of blouse service to a greater degree than heretofore. The dyed natural tone, and in combination with satin and taffeta or with very fine cloth tricolette, is not regarded seriously as a blouse fabric, although it is included, as a matter of course, for those who like it. Youthful effects are emphasized by the use of broad sashes in Roman colorings or highland plaids. Ribbon is liked for trimming, as well as for distinctively arranged girdles, in monotone or contrastiug colors.

Shepherd's plaid refers to the small black-white checks originally used by highland shepherds for a "shawl" or scarf. It has been popular every spring and summer for many years, both as a suit material and as a separate skirt fabric. In silks and ginghams, it is liked for dresses; and always one finds it enjoying vogue for children's apparel.

Jersey has won its way into popular esteem during the last three or four years. The worsted variety is best employed for sports wear, and the silk or tricolette is in evidence for good-looking dresses and wraps. The heavier woolen jersey gives better service than does the light weight, and if care is taken it will wash well. When the shape of either skirt or jacket gets out of order, it may be restored simply by hanging in damp air. Any break in the fabric should be given immediate attention, to prevent runs.

Some two-piece suits are made with the knee-length jacket and deep yoke. Serge street dresses are trimmed with leather motifs, studded with gay-colored beads. A black velvet dress is finished at neck and cuffs with a fold of white angora cloth. Frequently gowns with richly-worked skirts have severely plain bodices.

Many of the smartest garments for autumn wear are of that exclusive shade of brown which, at first glance, looks black; it is the new half-tone, which is just away from black. Deep reddish brown, also in one of the developments of duvetyn, formed a street suit which took its place instantly in favor for fall. Built on tailored lines, the back seams of the rather long jacket were finished with large tailored arrows. Brown will also be used over yellow, making a very attractive color scheme.

The draped tunic, which suggests a pannier, is delightfully youthful. Dull green bead embroidery is fascinating on black satin crepe. Tiny clusters of flowers, made of spangles, are used on evening frocks. Fans, of single ostrich feathers or in groups of three to seven, are very popular.

Fashionable colors for fall gloves are beaver and mode combinations. Hand embroidery of the better type and also hand braiding distinguish many of the handsome coats and dresses. Cerise, with an overtone of rose, and jade, with an overtone of blue, will be the favorite colors for trimming.

Thou children of the desert,
Like sentinels you stand
Against the hills and mountains,
Keeping watch o'er all the land.

You wear a coat of armour
That hath the hoarfrosts glow,
And shake from bells a fragrance
That fills the vale below.

Like a mighty army stationed
Without command to move,
White banners loud proclaiming
To the land, both peace and love.

ADMISSION DAY WILL BE OBSERVED

ADMISSION DAY, SEPTEMBER 9—THE seventieth anniversary of California's admission to statehood—will be well observed in this city. Being a legal state holiday, the public schools, banks, state, county and city offices will be closed, and Mayor M. P. Snyder will issue a proclamation urging that all business be suspended. Indications are that the day will be more generally observed here this year than previously, for all realize that Admission Day is the one holiday that affords an opportunity to demonstrate their loyalty to Califoruia —by observing her birthday.

At Trinity Auditorium, the night of Admission Day, will be preseuted a program appropriate to the occasion. Everyone is invited; there will be no admission fee, no collection, aud no invitation cards. Two hundred aud fifty men and women, leaders in civic, fraternal and club affairs, will have seats on the stage, and special invitations have been extended the Pioneers, states' societies, state, county and city officials, all civic and fraternal societies, aud the public-school children. Bring the boys and girls along, by all means, that they may learn something of California's romantic and resourceful history.

Edwin A. Meserve (Ramona 109, N. S. G. W.) will be the chairman of the evening, Philip I. Carey (Berkeley 210, N S. G. W.) of Berkeley, one of the state's most gifted young orators, will deliver an oration, and John S. McGroarty, the historian, will give a reading. The musical portion of the program will be confined to three numbers—two vocal solos aud an organ selection—all of exceptional merit.

Arrangements for Admission Day's observance are in charge of a joint committee of Native Sons and Native Daughters, of which R. L. Hanley (Ramona 109, N. S. G. W.) is chairman and Hortense Lindenfeldt (Los Angeles 124, N. D. G. W.) is secretary. The committee hopes to have Trinity Auditorium packed to the standing-room-only state, so be among those present, and extended an invitation to all your friends and neighbors to be there, too. —C. M. H.

PROGRAM OF EXTENSION, U. S. C.

To the Native Sons and Native Daughters of California, as well as to the adopted children of the Golden State, one of the chief cultural and commercial assets is the University of Southern California at Los Angeles, with its expanding building program and constantly increasing student body, last year of some 4,300 in number. With a faculty of over 400 members, grouped in eight colleges, it occupies an enviable position in higher education in the Southwest, graduating over 400 men and women in liberal aits, medicine, law, dentistry, music, pharmacy and theology last June.

In addition, a new college has beeu organized, called the College of Commerce and Business Administration. The object is to train the exeeutives of the future and to meet the needs of modern eommerce aud better prepare young men and women for the field of business activities. This college will grant the degree of bachelor of science in business administration, and it is intended that it shall hold the same relation to modern business as a profession that the College of Law holds to the legal profession. In outlining plans for the new college, Dr. George Finley Bovard, president of the university, said:

"The establishment of the College of Commerce and Business Administration comes in response to a recognition of the demaud, now rapidly increasing, for an institution of full collegiate rank, which shall be able to offer adequate and thorough preparation to picked young men and women for the new era in commerce and business. The purpose of the college is to so equip the student that he will have at once a broad outlook upon life, with its demands for social service, a thorough knowledge of the principles that underlie sound business activities, and a comprehensive grasp of actual business practice. In addition, therefore, to the substratum of liberal studies, and the more fundamental business subjects required of all, the student will be able to choose, during his last two years, the particular courses that lead to the actual entrance into the special field he has selected for his life work. Thus, having laid the broad foundation of higher commercial training during the first two years, he will be in a position to elect his own desired group of special studies, such as foreign trade, banking and finance, transportation, public service, accounting, etc.

"It should be clear from the outset that the College of Commerce is not an institution for mere business training, or a school devoted to 'job training.' Rather is it an institution devoted to the far broader and higher field of professional educational training in commerce and business. It is conceived that the future will demand broadly-educated men, men of social vision and individual initiative, whose chief function will be the work of leadership and co-ordination, rather than that of job holding. The education of the future business executive or commercial engineer must be at once liberal and technical.

"No course of study, however thorough, can take the place of actual business experience. Consequently, the policy of the college will be to have the students do a substantial amount of field work, including inspection trips and investigation work, and to devote mueh of their time during the fourth year of study to actual employment service in co-operating business houses in Los Angeles, under the supervision of a faculty member."

A number of business firms have already signified their interest and are known as "co-operating houses." Besides the regular staff of the university, a number of special lecturers among the business meu, for certain technuical courses, have been secured.

The college has received the cordial endorsement of the Educational Committee of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and is already being felt as an influential factor in business life in Los Angeles and should contribute its share in making Southern California a desirable place for living, for industry and for business, by offering the opportunity for technical training along the lines so necessary for further development.

At the same time, there has come a further development of the other seven colleges of the university. The College of Liberal Arts, with over 2,000 students during the regular academic year, has now just closed a successful summer session, with an additional enrollment of nearly 1,000 taught by seventy-five visiting and regular professors. The College of Law at First and Broadway, located in the heart of the judicial and legal district, has a registration of 450 students. The other colleges, Dentistry, Theology, Pharmacy, Music, Oratory, have all contributed their share in making up the greater university. To care for the needs in dental education in the south, the College of Dentistry has just acquired a large brick building, fronting Exposition Park, which is to be used the first two years of the extended four-year course. The main building now used at Sixteenth and Los Angeles streets will eontinue as a center of advanced study and clinical practice.

Extra-curriculum activities help to round out the student and teach him to deal with men. University and College of Law debating teams have distinguished themselves in forensic contests with Stanford, Northwestern, Texas, Wisconsin, Colorado, Oklahoma and a dozen other colleges and universities of the country. Those members of the debating team especially distinguishing themselves are honored by admission to membership in Delta Sigma Rho, the national honorary forensic fraternity established at the university some years ago by the national organization.

Mental development has not been the only thing emphasized. Due rgard has been given to physical education and the problem of "keeping fit." Three men, Paddock, Evans and Schiller represented the university in the Olympic games at Antwerp, Holland. Last season saw a successful football team, which made an enviable record on the Western coast, and prospects for this fall are bright indeed.

SAN FRANCISCO READY FOR ADMISSION DAY

PARADE, LITERARY EXERCISES, BALL, PROGRAM FEATURES

PROGRAM CHIEF FEATURES

ADMISSION DAY CELEBRATION
SAN FRANCISCO

10:30 a. m.—PARADE.
2:30 p. m —LITERARY EXERCISES.
8:30 p. m.—GRAND BALL.

EVERYTHING IS IN READINESS for the Admission Day—California's seventieth birthday anniversary—celebration in San Francisco, September 9, and an immense crowd will gather there from all over the state to pay homage to the great State of California-that-is. Arrangements for the day's observance have been perfected by a joint committeee of representatives from Native Son and Native Daughter Parlors, and other citizens appointed by Mayor James Rolph Jr. as official representatives of the city. Market street, from the Embarcadero to Ninth street, will be beautifully decorated with American and State (Bear) Flags.

The three "big" events of the day will be a parade, literary exercises, and grand ball. The parade will be symbolic of the battle of Americanism against the yellow peril, floats and devices carried by marchers being nsed to impress upon the onlookers the danger and seriousness of the Japs' invasion of California. With one exception, autos will be barred from the parade; this exception will make it possible for Stephen Jesus Richardson—probably the oldest Native Son, being born May 3, 1831—a member of Mount Tamalpais 64 who has heretofore marched in numerous Admission Day parades, but is now physically unable to do so, to be in line.

The morning parade will consist largely of Native Sons and Native Daughters. Both the literary exercises in the afternoon and the grand ball at night are free to all. Complete information, regarding each of the day's features, so far as available at the time of this page of The Grizzly Bear going to press, follows:

ADMISSION DAY PARADE.

The Admission Day parade will move at 10:30 a. m. sharp from the Embarcadero and Market street, and will be under the direction of Hubert B. Scudder of Sebastopol, Grand Marshal, N.S.G.W. The route will be west on Market to Polk street, thence north to McAllister street, thence to Van Ness avenue, thence to Turk street, where the parade will disband. The reviewing stand will be at the entrance to the City Hall, in the Civic Center. The parade will be composed of an advance and ten divisions—the latter being made up entirely of Native Sons and Native Daughters in novel and attractive uniforms—as follows:

ADVANCE—Mounted police, Chief of Police David A. White, platoon of Native Son policemen. Grand Marshal Hubert B. Scudder; Chief of Staff Percy A. Marchant; Director-Generals James L. Foley, Charles A. Koenig; Chief Aide Harry W. Gaetjen; Aides-de-Camp Ralph McLaren, J. Emmet Hayden, Captain Dan O'Brien, George Barry, Fred Greenblatt; Aides to Grand Marshal Mattie M. White (Alameda County), Hubert B. Scudder (Sonoma and Marin Counties), Supervisor J. Emmet Hayden (reception).

"OPEN HOUSE."

"Open house"—which furnishes a vast amount of pleasure at each Admission Day gathering—will be maintained by several Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters. Headquarters of some will be in the Exposition Auditorium, Civic Center, and others in various parts of the city. Most of them will start their entertainment after the parade disbands and continue until midnight. The Grizzly Bear has this definite information as to headquarters' locations:

Sacramento City and County Parlors—St. Francis Hotel Colonial and Italian ballrooms.

Presidio Parlor 194 N.S.G.W. and Presidio Parlor 148 N.D.G.W. (both San Francisco)—B'nai B'rith Hall, 149 Eddy street.

Mission 38 N.S.G.W. (San Francisco)—Puckett's Hall, Sutter street, near Van Ness avenue.

PAST GRANDS, N. D., TO BE THERE.

When the Grand Parlor, N.D.G.W., met in San Jose in June the Past Grand Presidents in attendance—Ariana W. Stirling, Addie L. Mosher, Anna L. Muuroe, Mamie G. Peyton, Alison F. Watt, Margaret Grote-Hill, Graee S. Stoermer, Mamie Pieree-Carmichael, May C. Boldemann, Ema Gett, Emma Gruber-Foley, Dr. Mariana Bertola and Carrie Roesch-Durham—formed an organization to promote the Order's interests. Mrs. Ema Gett was made chairman and Miss Graee S. Stoermer secretary.

The Past Grands, among other things, decided to meet in San Francisco at the time of the Admission Day celebration, to further discuss matters affecting the Order. This will be done at a dinner affair to be held September 9, to which none but Past Grands will be admitted but which, it is hoped, all Past Grands will attend. Arrangements for this meeting were left in the hands of Mrs. May Boldemann and Mrs. Margaret Hill.

DEATH OVERTAKES FRED JUNG

The Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West was officially represented by Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, Grand Treasurer Susie K. Christ, Grand Organist Rebeeca Kemp Van Ee, Past Grand Presidents Dr. Mariana Bertola, May C. Boldemann, Graee S. Stoermer and Mary E. Bell.

Officers of Stanford Parlor No. 76, N.S.G.W., Grand Secretary Jung's "home" Parlor, officiated during the rendition of the Order's funeral service, those participating being Frank T. Deasy, junior past president; C. W. Kelly, president; Hugh Smith, first vice-president; Roy Fellom, second vice-president; William F. Burke, marshal. The music was beautiful, the Stanford Parlor quartet rendering the vocal numbers, and Emlyn Lewis presiding at the organ. At the close of the service the remains were escorted to Holy Cross Cemetery and interred.

AN UNSULLIED CHARACTER

Following the formal funeral service in Native Sons' Building, a beautiful tribute to the memory of Grand Secretary Fred Henry Jung was paid by Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington who, on behalf of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, delivered the eulogy. He said:

"My Friends and Brothers: I have been requested by the Grand Officers of our fraternity to say a few words in remembrance of one of the best beloved and honored members of our Order.

"We have come to lay a wreath, smybolizing the affection we bore toward him and the honor in which his name is held in California, upon the casket which holds his mortal remains. One whom the Order cherished and respected has passed from earth to his home beyond the stars. God fearing, home loving, of upright action, he was prepared and ready to meet the summons. The name, Fred H. Jung, stands for honesty, for fidelity to duty, for loyalty to state, country and home. His relatives will miss him, his friends will miss him, the Order will miss him,—for his heart was kind and his soul sincere.

"It is fitting that these ceremonies should be held here in this hall dedicated to the principles of our Order, and surrounded, as we are, by those who, knowing Brother Jung best, loved him best.

"My brothers, it is appointed for all men once to die. Life, when we are strong and well and surrounded by relatives, friends and those we love, is a pleasant and a joyful thing. The glory of the breaking dawn, the splendor of the noonday sun, the beauty of the starlit night, the grandeur of mountain and ocean, appeal to those blessed with health and strength. But life we cannot hold. We know, as truly as we realize that we came into the world, that we must pass on. The rich and the poor, the highest and the lowliest, must all one day sleep together as equals in the tomb. We know that, no matter how pleasant our surroundings may be, the sun never sets but we pitch our tent one day nearer the last resting place. While life, however, is not ours to hold, the character of the man is his to mold, and the influence of a noble and an upright character lives on forever. If he keeps his honor untarnished it will be a blessing to those who have known him in life and who revere his memory when he has passed away. It will follow him through the years, to linger round his pathway and comfort and cheer his family and the friends he has known. Life passes; honor lives on forever!

"We know that the man whose body now lies before us leaves to his mother, to his sister, and to his friends, the noblest heritage that can be handed on—a name honored and respected throughout the state. No man in our fraternity was better known than our Grand Secretary, Fred H. Jung; no man was more faithful in the performance of his duty; no one was more entitled to our affection and regard. Born on the soil of California and in the City of San Francisco, fifty years ago, as a student in our schools, a teacher at St. Ignatius College, a practicing attorney, a loyal and most valued member of Stanford Parlor, and for eleven years our Grand Secretary, he was in every position he filled honorable, capable and efficient, and in all his dealings and association with his fellowman honest, faithful, sincere, and just.

"Stricken down in the midday of life, he has left behind him something of which all who knew him can be proud, something which is the crown of citizenship and the glory of a son of California—an honored name, cherished by every son and daughter of the state. He was loyal to his country, loyal to the teachings of the fraternity, and, above all, to the principles of truth and religion learned at his mother's knee, for Fred Jung was a God-fearing and an upright man, and the man who loved his God and his country and walked humbly in the paths of truth and integrity, cherishing to the last the love of mother and of home, is not dead.

"We may rear monuments of marble or of bronze, we may build the most splendid mausoleums to the departed, for the world to gaze upon with admiration and reverence; but more enduring than all these, and of greater worth to humanity, is an unsullied character and a stainless name, and these our departed Secretary possessed. We may lay his silent form in the bosom of the state he loved so well, knowing that his hope in the future is justified and that he rests in peace. Of such a man it may well be said,

" 'Sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, he approached the grave
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him and lies down to pleasant dreams'."

LOS ANGELES STOCK SHOW
THIRD ANNUAL TO BE BIG AFFAIR

WHAT PROMISES TO BE THE GREATest livestock show, rodeo and race meet ever presented in the West will be staged at the California State Exposition grounds, Los Angeles, October 2-10. Los Angeles, long famous for its hospitality and ability to present the finest entertainment found anywhere, promises to outdo itself in this final attempt to astonish, educate and please the people of the West.

Home of the film industry, stellar luminaries known to the whole world have come forward and offered to assist and appear in an amusement program unrivalled in the history of expositions. Big business men of Los Angeles are giving $150,000, their time and talent in staging the most spectacular of all educational shows, which has for its object the development of the livestock and the upbuilding of the West. Prizes and premiums totaling $50,000 are offered.

Crowded into the space of nine days, from October 2 to 10, inclusive, will be thousands of exhibits of all breeds of blooded farm animals; an exceptionally high-grade horse show; the most startling rodeo ever conceived, again presenting the real days of the old West; running races; poultry and pet stock shows; band concerts; street parades and timely events.

"Widespread interest in the Los Angeles livestock show is shown by the fact that the largest breeders from Missouri River points west are entering their finest animals, prize-winners at national exhibitions," declares E. W. Murphy, president of the association. "In order properly to take care of the greatly increased displays this year, we are erecting seventeen commodious new buildings. The show should rival any former California exhibition, both in point of attendance and in the number and high quality of farm animals displayed."

The roster of judges selected thus far includes three of the best livestock experts in the country: E. W. Van Natta, of Fowler, Indiana, who has judged at large livestock shows in the United States and Argentina, and is highly endorsed by the American Shorthorn Breeders' Association, will judge all beef cattle. Professor H. H. Kildee, of Ames, Iowa, recommended by associations all over the country, will judge dairy cattle and swine. Professor E. A. Trowbridge, of the Missouri Agricultural College, Columbia, Missouri, will judge all horses.

Not only will the greatest aggregation of livestock ever gotten together in the West be presented at the Los Angeles Livestock Show, but for the pleasure and entertainment of the thousands who will view the exhibits will be unwound a continuous stream of the highest class entertainment features ever brought together for one occasion.

P.G.P. LOUIS H. MOOSER TEMPORARILY CONDUCTING OFFICE.

San Francisco—The Board of Grand Officers, N.S.G.W., met in special session August 19, at the call of Grand President James F. Hoey, to choose a successor to Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung, deceased. The following, in addition to the Grand President, were in attendance: Junior Past Grand President William P. Caubu, Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger, Grand Second Vice-president Harry G. Williams, Grand Third Vice-president William J. Hayes, Grand Trustees John J. Monteverde, Henry G. Bodkin, Edward J. Lyneh, James A. Wilson, Frank M. Carr and Arthur M. Dean.

After discussing the qualifications of various members of the Order proposed to fill the vacancy, and thoroughly appreciating that no haste should be made in a selection—the Order's best interests demanding that the right man must be chosen to fill this most important office—the Board adjourned to Saturday, September 11, at 2 p. m., when, it is believed, a selection will be made.

A nominating committee, composed of the Grand President and the three Grand Vice-presidents, was appointed to consider, in the interim, those available for the office. Past Grand President Louis H. Mooser, having tendered his services until a successor to Grand Secretary Jung is decided upon, is conducting the office.

SACRAMENTO TO CONDUCT DRIVE FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN'S BENEFIT

Sacramento—The local Native Son and Native Daughter Parlors will conduct a drive September 25 for paper, rags, old tires and tubes. All the proceeds from their sale will be turned over to the homeless children fund to make more kiddies happy.

The joint committee in charge consists of: Marco S. Zariek (chairman), Miss Ada J. Flynn (secretary); W. E. Holmes, J. V. Hines, Mrs. Elise Chisholm, in charge of publicity; E. E. Reese, H. A. Ryan, C. E. Striplin, in charge of transportation; Miss M. L. Hopley, Mrs. Agnes Ward, Mrs. A. E. Underhill, in charge of the finances.

LOS ANGELES NEWS

Opportunity to Show Patriotism.

Several Native Sons who served in the army during the world was are interested in the formation of a National Guard company the members of which will be exclusively Native Sons. In fact, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that an entire battalion may be so constituted. A. E. Hamilton, president Ramona 109, who saw service overseas, is particularly active in the success of this movement, and committees from Los Angeles 45, Ramona, and Corona 196 have been appointed to "put it over."

No officers of the proposed organization have been selected, or even agreed upon; their selection will be left to those who join. It costs nothing to join, and the benefits to be arrived are many. This is a splendid opportunity for young Native Sons to display their patriotism, and, at the same time, receive training of incalculable value. Those interested may secure further particulars by getting in touch with Grove T. Vail at Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street, telephone Main 7013.

More Success—More Work.

Things are progressing most satisfactorily with the local Homeless Children's Committee of the Native Sons and Native Daughters. Secretary Annie L. Adair reports that the general public now appreciate the unselfish work being carried on in behalf of parentless and deserted children, and the work of the committee has, accordingly, greatly increased.

Funds from the "penny march," a feature at each meeting of every Native Son Parlor, are climbing up, and the committee is planning another paper drive. It takes money to carry on this charity, but it is money well contributed, for every penny goes toward making better future men and women out of today's abandoned children.

The Death Record.

Patricia, the 9-year-old daughter of Harry J. Lelande (Ramona 109, N. S. G. W.) and wife, died at the family home August 13, after a seventeen-day illness. In addition to the sorrowing parents, who have the sympathy of numerous friends, two sisters and a brother survive: Dorothy, Marjorie and Davidson Lelande.

Mrs. Laura Emma Lyon passed away August 4, at the age of 72. She was a native of Maine, and came here in 1870. Surviving are the husband, James H. Lyon, and seven children, among them Josiah F. Lyon and State Senator Charles W. Lyon, both affiliated with Los Angeles Parlor, No. 45, N. S. G. W.

Mrs. Gertrude Gail Dunsmoor, wife of Dr. Robert M. Dunsmoor (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) and mother of Lawrence R. Dunsmoor, passed away August 25 at the age of 37.

In Memoriam

FRED H. JUNG, Grand Secretary, N.S.G.W.

Whereas, In the wisdom of Almighty God the activities on this earth of Fred H. Jung have ceased and our brother has been called to his eternal rest; and whereas, Brother Jung, being a native of California, at an early age joined the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West and became intensely active in the work of the Order, lived daily its principles of loyalty to State and Nation, and fully exemplified its teachings of brotherly love; and whereas, Brother Jung was called by his brothers to assume the responsibilities of the office of Grand Secretary; the wisdom of the choice was proved day by day. His devotion to the Order's interests, his fidelity to duty, his honesty, his plain, cordial frankness, gained for him the esteem and confidence of his brothers. Always at his post of duty, ever ready to perform any task assigned, careful, painstaking and diligent, giving his undivided attention to matters at hand; he gave of himself his masterful mind, his keen, logical good sense and a measure of service which won for him the credit of a great part of the success which has come to the Order he loved; and whereas, the worth of the man—true and sincere in his friendships, patriotic and loyal to his State and Nation, faithful and trustworthy in his obligations, unswervingly honest, unselfishly devoted to his aged mother (these attributes formed his character)—was his character, which is beautiful in the sight of God and a worthy example for his brothers; therefore be it

Resolved, That Ramona Parlor, No. 109, Native Sons of the Golden West, extols the virtues of our deceased brother, grieves for his early and untimely passing, and expresses its sincerest sympathy to his mother and sister and mourns with them in our mutual loss; and be it further resolved, that the charter of Ramona Parlor be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days in memory of Brother Jung; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the loved ones of our late brother and to Stanford Parlor, No. 76, N.S.G.W., that a copy be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of this meeting.

WORK, UNCEASINGLY, FOR CALIFORNIA!

The initiative measure to stop Jap land acquirement in California will be on the November ballot. The fact of its being there, however, does not assure its adoption as a law.

A campaign of education among voters must be waged incessantly. If the FACTS regarding the Japs in this state are made known to The People, they will "put over" the proposed law without doubt. Our duty, from now until the close of the polls in November, is to make the facts known.

Ready To Go Forward.

August being the year's chief vacation season, there has been little activity in the Native Son Parlors—Los Angeles 45, Ramona 109 and Corona 196—the past month. The regular business has been carried on, and there have also been some initiations and a few minor sociables.

With Admission Day's passing, the Parlors will begin the "forward" march by carrying out plans developed during the vacation season. One of the most important is a membership drive, by which it is hoped to double the present membership. Many out-of-the-usual social affairs are also to be featured; in fact, the coming "winter" months will be full of activity and "pep."

Dispenser of Real Charity Passes.

A real benefactor of humankind—Dr. F. E. Yoakum—died August 17 at Highland Park at the age of 69. He came here about twenty-five years ago, founded the Pisgah Home movement, and devoted his time, talents and wealth to uplift work in behalf of the poor, and the mentally and physically distressed.

Several institutions were founded, where no charge is made for care and treatment; voluntary offerings are accepted, but those who have not the wherewith to offer are not refused admission—and these latter constitute a great majority of the patients. One establishment is given over to free care of drunkards and outcasts, another to wayward girls, and a 300-acre ranch is maintained, the products of which are distributed free among the poor.

"SAVAGE" METHODS ATTRACT ATTENTION.

The City of San Diego boasts among its main industries the tire factory that produced the first pneumatic automobile tire west of Chicago. San Diego is a mecca of visitors, and many of those who go there take advantage of the opportunity to see how tires are made by visiting this modern plant. This organization is but one of many engaged in the same industry, and yet the visitor who has seen tires manufactured before notes several outstanding features that characterize "Savage" methods and mark them as unusual and interesting.

SAN FRANCISCO A CITY OF INDIVIDUALITY
THE FINANCIAL, INDUSTRIAL, COMMERCIAL, GOVERNMENTAL METROPOLIS OF WEST

W. H. Levings
(DIRECTOR PUBLICITY, SAN FRANCISCO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

"Serene, indifferent to fate,
Thou sittest by the Western Gate."

IN THOSE WORDS OF BRET HARTE, referring to San Francisco, the city loved around the world, is given expression to the physical being of this Western city, but in the history of its people will be found that characteristic with which indifference is overcome and in which the aggressiveness of a modern metropolis is engendered.

San Francisco was born of a drowsy Spanish hamlet, reared by the fates of adventure and the spread of religious doctrine, intoxicated with the prosperity of a gold rush, and then developed by a successfully adventurous commerce based upon the boundless riches of agricultural, mineral and forest resources. Compelled by the isolation, in early days, of its inhabitants from their home people, the Westerners were forced to work out their own ethical and social standards, and San Francisco has evolved an individuality and versatility far and away beyond any other city in the United States.

In all America there is no place more cosmopolitan and none more pronounced in its individuality than San Francisco. San Francisco is a world city. It is likewise a truly American city, yet within its confines are sections of the cities of the world. Here where the rugged spirit of the Pioneer still survives, one may hear on the streets a medley of the tongues of the world.

Different in everything—territory, climate, people, business and pleasure—San Francisco is in itself a city composite of many cities, and is within the state which appeals to the nationalities of the globe.

What the Attractions Are.

Travelers come to San Francisco upon every conceivable mission. Almost invariably contacts are established which either cause an established residence, or the journier may return whence he came to court the day when again he may set his foot on this Western soil. Future controllable events are usually induced by previous pleasures. Whether it is the first glimpse of the great West from the Pullman window as the train slowly emerges from the vast interior deserts to the eastern slopes of the great Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, or whether it is the first inception of the wonderful future opportunity which honest business endeavor holds forth in California, or whether it is the effect of the transition from a frozen or a sweltering East to the mild invigoration of the California climate, that gives life to the first pleasing thought of becoming a Californian, is hard to say, but so strong has the number of returning visitors become that the phrase, "Once in California, always a Californian," has come to stay.

Whenever population gravitates to certain points in the absence of pages upon pages of publicity, there is undeniably an underlying cause. It is the effect of face-to-face and mouth-to-mouth commendation which, through merit, earns and does not solicit.

The centralization of Western population in Central California is the result of what California gives to the people who are here and of what she offers to those who may come. Attraction radiates from a given center.

San Francisco is the center of America's scenic wonders.

San Francisco is the center of America's playground.

San Francisco is the center of nearly all railroad connections of the Pacific with the Atlantic shores.

San Francisco is the center of the new trade routes fast being developed between the Old World and the New.

And San Francisco is the American financial, industrial, commercial and governmental metropolis of the West.

It is the opportunity for the mixture of pleasure with business that makes San Francisco attractive to those whose business here is pleasure, and to those here whose pleasure is business.

Features Distinctly Its Own.

San Francisco is one of the two or three large cities in the United States which has an ocean beach within its incorporate limits, and from a standpoint of beauty—being situated as it is on the commanding height overlooking the broad waters of its matchless harbor to the east with its white wave-fringed entrance, "The Golden Gate," backed up by the rugged mountain peaks of Marin County to the north—is approachable in attractiveness of situation only by Constantinople and Rio Janeiro.

The residential section of the city is built upon the slopes of the hillsides which unfold marine and landscape panoramas rarely found within such settings, and yet the downtown sections are sufficiently broad and level to offer no impediment to the business and industrial expansion which the economic relationship of San Francisco with the rest of the world holds in store for the future.

Although San Francisco is spoken of in the sense of a definite geographical location, with well-defined political boundaries, the business version of the city must be construed to embrace all of the cities surrounding the bay shore.

For technical reasons, it has not been practical to indicate the continual extent of urban settlements along the shores on the perspective map which is shown herewith. But in the judgment of the United States Census Bureau and for the purpose of properly enumerating and tabulating the statistics of industrial activity in the San Francisco Bay region, a district has been mapped out which is known as the San Francisco-Oakland Metropolitan District, which includes the cities of the bay district as far north as Petaluma and Napa, as far east as Antioch, and south beyond Santa Clara and San Jose and including the cities of Redwood, San Mateo and South San Francisco. Within this area, the boundaries of which lie mostly within thirty-five miles of San Francisco, there dwell more than one and one-quarter million people, state. Nearly two-thirds of the entire population or about one-third of the population of the entire of the state will be found north of the city of Bakersfield.

A VIEW OF A SMALL PORTION OF SAN FRANCISCO'S MILES OF DOCKS, TAKEN FROM AN ARMY BALLOON.

Surroundings of Matchless Beauty.

Passengers are conducted across the bay from San Francisco in any direction by swift ferry service, in which are operated some of the largest ferry steamers in the world running to the east bay shores on a twenty-minute schedule and to the northern shores on a slightly longer schedule. These steamers transport automobiles and railroad trains, as well as passengers, from one city to another, and up to the present time have proved quite adequate to handle the traffic under normal conditions, but the time is no doubt fast approaching when huge bridges will be constructed to the north and to the east from San Francisco.

The beauties of out-of-door life which surround San Francisco, within but a few minutes' ride by train or auto, are matchless among the large American cities. Even the great Yosemite Valley or the wonderful Lake Tahoe are within the bounds of a week-end trip, while Mount Tamalpais and Muir Woods, Mount Diablo, Mount Hamilton with its

Branches in all principal cities and towns of thirty-three counties of North-Central California

Lick Observatory, Santa Cruz Beach, and the California State Redwood Park in the Santa Cruz Mountains, are excellent attractions for a one-day trip.

North from San Francisco, however, is located a playground among the redwoods. This plce is reached directly by train within ninety minutes' ride from San Francisco. This park is Muir Woods, situated at the foot of Mount Tamalpais.

Mount Tamalpais, Mount Diablo, Mount St. Helena aud Mount Hamilton are the highest peaks within a day's outing of San Francisco, and from the top of any one of them most wonderful panoramas of the entire state are viewed. The first three are approachable by way of the Ferry Building at the foot of Market street, while the latter is reached from San Jose.

The Ferry Building is the busiest railroad terminal in the United States, for the reason that, with the exception of travelers bound to the southward, all persous leaving or arriving at San Francisco for points in the East, for the nearby recreation grounds and interior sections of the state, and for the suburban residential and business centers must pass through this building. Close to fifty million passengers arrive and depart from this depot annually.

Busy Market Street the Dividing Line.

Market Street of San Francisco probably ranks next to the "Great White Way" of New York. This broad, long thoroughfare, stretching diagonally across the city from the bay front southwesterly, is terminated at its extreme end by the Twin Peaks tunnel, the longest urban street-car traffic tunnel in the world. The bore of this tunnel carries double tracks of the municipal electric street railway system and opens at its southwesterly end into the choicest moderately-priced residential section of the city. The length is approximately 12,000 feet, with a general width of 25 feet. Two stations are constructed within the tunnel which are approached by elevators to surface stations. The total cost of the tunnel was in the neighborhood of four million dollars. The tunnel was drilled beneath two peaks which rise to an elevation of nearly 1,000 feet, in line with a possible extension of Market street.

These peaks, known as Twin Peaks, are a part of a ridge which traverses the city in a northerly and southerly direction and establishes a variety of climate within the city limits. While they are not the highest in the ridge, the pride which San Franciscans take in displaying the city to visitors has prompted the construction of a boulevard, in the form of a figure "8," looping the highest points below which the entire city is spread out at the feet of the observer and the entire bay district is unfolded before those to whom a trip to San Francisco is worth while.

The city is roughly divided iuto northern and southern sections by its main avenue of travel—Market street. In the northern and western districts will be found the most-substantial and the highest-class residential sections and parks, while the southern section contains for the most part the homes of those who dwell and work within the industrial section of the city. A small portion of both general sections in the vicinity of lower Market street is devoted to general merchandising, industrial business and commercial enterprises.

Aside from the requirements of the visitor in gaining an intimate knowledge of the industrial phase of San Francisco and its environments, it is probable the most of the time will be occupied in the "north of Market street section," for it is here, chiefly, that the heauty spots of San Francisco will be found.

Public Parks and Other Attractions.

The sandy ocean beach, about four miles in length, terminated on the south by a rocky prominence and on the north by the Cliff House and Seal Rocks, is met midway at right angles by the wonderfully-beautiful and highly-cultivated Golden Gate Park, which, for the width of a half-mile, extends cityward for a distance of four miles and contains over a thousand acres of trees, flowers, lawns, lakes, driveways, animal paddocks, recreation grounds, music stadiums and museums, interwoven with pedestrian pathways. Children's playgrouuds, picnic grounds and tenuis courts are not lacking in this reservation. One arm of this park, a block wide, extends a mile farther toward the downtown section, which gives the park a total length of nearly five miles; while a second arm extends northward through a strictly residential section to the Presidio reservation which, though strictly military in its character, forms another vast pleasure ground for San Francisco.

For those who are lovers of golf the Presidio golf links are highly iuviting. The entire reservation of the Presidio covers 1,542 acres, and is the largest military reservation anywhere within the limits of a city. This tract is not so inteusely cultivated and bears the more general characteristics of the wild woods.

A little west from the Presidio, overlooking the Golden Gate Straits, is situated Lincoln Park, which may be more thoroughly interesting to the stranger when it is learned that the flagpole and the highest ground in this park mark the end of the Lincoln Highway. The chief pastime in this park is indulged in by the lovers of golf, who fiud that the municipal links contained therein form an excellent course.

In the southwest quarter of the city is another large tract of laud owned by a water company; while not dedicated to public use, it is occupied by the properties of several golf and country clubs as an aviation field.

The public parks of San Francisco, exclusive of Golden Gate Park, comprise about four hundred acres of city territory. Among the miscellaneous parks and squares is the Marina of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, which is now preserved as a municipal landing field for aviation purposes. This field is now kuown as "Montgomery Field."

It is truly wonderful that within a big city of hut forty-six and a half square miles' area such a wide range of pleasures may be enjoyed by young and old alike, and that the recreational facilities within the city are either within easy walking distance or a five-cent car fare from any section of the city.

Many other diversions and points of interest exist within this district, including Chinatown, fishermen's wharf, the Mission Dolores, the United States Mint and the trans-Pacific docks, but the necessity of confinement to a general description forbids the elaboration of details.

Prosperity.

With all the environments which Nature can bestow upon the industrious population of one of the world's most noteworthy cities, supplemeuted by the handiwork of man in creating those things which supply diversion and rejuvenation to the toiler after the long hours of labor through the day and the week, it is not surprising that facts and figures show that the efficiency of labor in the three thousand and more manufacturing establishments of the San Francisco Bay district is exceeded by but two other large cities in the United States, and those are both Western cities. San Francisco and the entire Central California section is blessed with a climate that knows no extremes in winter or humid discomfort in summer, which is largely responsible for the efficiency of the productivity of the state.

These conditions are reflected in the figures which show that the people of California have the greatest percapita purchasing power of any state in the United States; that more than one-half of San Francisco's population are savings bank depositors, and that about one-half of the resources and one-half of the deposits of savings departments of the California banks are found in the banks of San Francisco; and that the State of California, in the ratio of automobiles to population, ranks third among the states of the Union, with one automobile for every nine people.

The products of the agriculturalists and manufacturers of California are sought by the merchants of the Orient, Australia, Central and South America, and the enormous purchases of buyers in those countries of American-made goods are logically routed through the port of San Francisco.

The hospitality of San Francisco in entertaining visitors from at home and abroad is fast winning a reputation for business and pleasure relationship which puts the city in an enviable position as the convention city of the Nation. The reputation of the theaters, hotels, business houses and cosmopolitan restaurants of the "City That Knows How" is too broadly known to need extended comment here.

ADMISSION DAY PATRIOTICALLY OBSERVED

CALIFORNIA EULOGIZED IN SONG AND STORY ON HER NATAL DAY

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

ADMISSION DAY, SEPTEMBER 9—the seventieth anniversary of California's admission to statehood—was patriotically observed throughout the state, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West being in charge of the celebrations arranged in the several localities. While San Francisco staged the most pretentious celebration, there were few communities that did not feature some formal observance of the Golden State's birthday holiday; attention to the affairs of lesser magnitude is given elsewhere in this issue of The Grizzly Bear. In many places the Natives devoted the day to the Pioneers—the builders of the foundation upon which rests the ever-growing Commonwealth of California—entertaining them with song and story.

IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco's celebration program drew an immense crowd from the cities and towns in easy reach by rail. The Admission Day parade, headed by Hubert B. Scudder, Grand Marshal, N.S.G.W., was one of the best managed and most colorful ever witnessed. It required two hours to pass a given point, and the marchers, the bands, the drum corps, and the floats galore were lustily cheered by the crowds which lined both sides of the streets traversed. The parade was made up largely of Native Sons and Native Daughters, each of the several Parlors contributing their full share to a magnificent spectacle. While not referring to any particular Parlor, the splendid showings made by the Alameda, Sonoma and Santa Clara Counties' aggregations must be recorded. Admssion Day parades cannot be adequately described in print; they must be seen to be fully appreciated, and the one this year in San Francisco was no exception to the general rule.

In the afternoon an immense crowd thronged the big Civic Auditorium to listen to the literary and musical program. It opened with a selection by the San Francisco Municipal Orchestra (Philip A. Sapiro leader), following which Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, chairman, introduced Lewis F. Byington, president of the day, who closed a short address with John McGroarty's beautiful "California." Rev. Frederick W. Clampett offered up an invocation, Uda Waldrod gave an organ selection, Rosa Honyikova was roundly applauded for her rendition of "Caro Nome," from "Rigolette," the O'Neil sisters presented a miniature fashion show, and Judge Frank J. Murasky recited the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" to vocal and organ accompaniment.

Representing the Native Daughters, Grand President Bertha A. Briggs spoke briefly, declaring that no commonwealth of the country has greater reason to be proud of its record than has California. Grand President James F. Hoey of the Native Sons described how the Pioneers, coming to California, had civilized the red man and pushed ahead development until today fifty-eight counties, from Siskiyou to San Diego—from the Sierras to the Mexican boundry-line—had become, literally speaking, vast storehouses of riches, knowledge, and human endeavor. California, he concluded, is a white man's abode, and must ever remain such!

OFFERS SUGGESTION WHICH SHOULD BE HEEDED BY NATIVES.

United States Senator James D Phelan was orator of the day, and in a masterly address spoke at length on the history of California. "It is a distinction to be a native of California. [Senator Phelan is a native of San Francisco, affiliated with Pacific Parlor, No. 10, N.S.G.W.] California is at the heights of her wealth and glory, and we, her sons and daughters, come here today to pay tribute to her on this, the seventieth anniversary of her admission to the Union as a full-fledged state. There is no reason why a state should not be immortal. A state constantly renews herself in her children, and one generation after another loyally takes up the work and carries achievements to greater heights. The Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West and Pioneers are organized to advance the interest of the State of California and to effectively preserve the traditions of the past. A country without traditions makes no appeal to the imagination, and the stirring of the imagination is necessary for the development of literature and art and to meet the demands of the famished soul which cannot find nourishment in the husks of commerce and trade. Imagination gives vision, and even in business affairs the man with vision and foresight is crowned with success where others fail." . . .

"California is a land of romance, with all the frailities of our human nature, and that is why we love her! 'A world is at our feet as fragile as our clay.' Our lives and our fortunes are wrapped up in her destiny. In the busy work-a-day world we should not forget the generations which have gone before. Remembrance and gratitude are attributes of the heart. It does not reflect favorably upon our fine sense of appreciation of glorious deeds that the bones of Juan Fernandez Cabrillo rest within our state in a forgotten grave and no memorial to mark the spot. Cabrillo was a Portuguese navigator in the service of Spain, just as Columbus was an Italian in the service of the same nation when it was the conquering power upon the seas. Cabrillo died and was buried on the Island of San Miguel in the Santa Barbara Channel, after he had discovered California in 1542, and no thought was given to him by the men and women who profited by his skill as a navigator and courage as a man.... Are not Californians proud of the discovery of California? . . . In Statuary Hall, under the dome of the National Capital at Washington, each state is entitled to place two sculptured memorials. A traveler looks in vain for California's tribute to her distinguished sons. Why should not this omission be repaired?"

Senator Phelan then proceeded to review the life-work of many of the California Argonauts, and suggested that the Native Sons and Native Daughters consider the merits of each and proceed to fill California's vacant niches in the National Hall of Fame. "Let not the absence of such effigies," he cautioned, "bespeak our indifference nor indicate the poverty of great names."

In closing his address, Senator Phelan, who for years has been a thorn in the side of the Japs, touched briefly upon the yellow peril. "We must protect our state," he said, "from the wiles of Oriental diplomacy. When any foreigner attempts to take California, either by peaceful penetration or open warfare, her sons and daughters must rush to the state's defense. We must make it our personal business," he concluded amidst great applause, "to see that the Anti-Alien Land Law initiative is approved by an enormous vote at the November election."

In the evening the Civic Auditorium again housed a big crowd, gathered as participants and lookers-on at the Admission Day ball, for which the municipal band furnished the music. The grand march was led by James F. Hoey, Grand President, N.S.G.W., and wife, followed by Bertha A. Briggs, Grand President, N.D.G.W., and A. Van der Zweip; then came present and past grand officers of both Orders with their ladies or escorts, and other couples in such numbers as to crowd the spacious dancing floor. It was "some" crowd, and they danced away what was indeed a most successful Admission Day.

AS THE GRIZZLY BEAR FOR NOVEMBER WILL CONTAIN IMPORTANT MESSAGES ON THE MANY IMPORTANT QUESTIONS THAT WILL BE SUBMITTED TO THE VOTERS OF THE STATE NOVEMBER 2—QUESTIONS IN THE CORRECT SOLUTION OF WHICH ITS THOUSANDS OF READERS ARE VITALLY INTERESTED—THE NUMBER WILL BE ISSUED AHEAD OF THE REGULAR DATE OF ISSUANCE, BEING PUT IN THE MAILS OCTOBER 27. THIS WILL INSURE DELIVERY AT AN EFFECTIVE TIME—JUST BEFORE THE NOVEMBER ELECTION DAY.

THE NOVEMBER ELECTION IS A MOST IMPORTANT ONE. EVERY VOTER SHOULD EXERCISE HIS GREATEST PRIVILEGE, AND VOTE. LOOK WELL TO YOUR BALLOTS, AND BE SURE TO VOTE FOR THE ANTI-JAP INITIATIVE MEASURE—NUMBER ONE ON THE BALLOT.—EDITOR.

IN LOS ANGELES

In Los Angeles, two events were on the day's program. The first was held at Juvenile Hall, where Ramona Parlor, No. 109, N.S.G.W., presented the children with a beautiful American Flag. Herman C. Lichteuberger presided, Lieutenant Arthur E. Hamilton, president of the Parlor, delivered the presentation address, and Superior Judge Grant Jackson gave a short talk on California history. Under the direction of Mattie Labory, the children rendered a musical program, and all assembled joined in the salute to The Flag as the Stars and Stripes was flung to the breeze.

NOW'S THE TIME TO TAKE STAND AGAINST JAPS

VOICE FROM PLACER, THE GATEWAY COUNTY, CALLS ON LEGION OF AMERICANS

Cora M. Woodbridge

"For East is East, and West is West,
And never the twain shall meet."

HE CALL "TO ARMS!" HAS BEEN sounded, and on the second day of November every loyal American in this glorious, golden State of California must enlist in the battle to preserve for the white race his "home and native land."

It behooves every one of us to gird on our armor and stand shoulder to shoulder upon this Western shore if this Nation is to endure. If we are to perpetuate the ideals and principles which were established by its founders, if we are to honestly and loyally keep faith with our forebears who gave into our hands the keeping of this wonderful heritage, if we are to transmit it to those who are to come after us, "better and greater than it was transmitted to us," then there is no other course for us to take, but to unanimously register our protest against the further invasion of the Japanese.

This question transcends all others, and we must tell to the Nation and to the world, in no uncertain terms, that we intend to protect and preserve our rights at any cost. The appeal I would make, is that the time to take a decided stand is here and now. Let there be no slackers in this holy warfare!

In 1913 the Legislature of this state passed a statute forbidding the ownership of agricultural lands by Japanese and limiting their tenure to three-year leaseholds. It is a well-established fact that this so-called Anti-Alien Land Law has been broken and evaded, and the spirit and purpose of its enactment frustated continually, until today we find ourselves confronted with the alarming condition that the Oriental controls 623,752 acres of the best land in the state. The purpose of the initiative measure on the November ballot is to further provide against the leasing and owning of land in the state by the Japanese, and to close loopholes as to corporations and guardianship holdings by the alien not eligible to citizenship.

One of the interesting and startling developments brought out by the Congressional Committee, showing the control in California possessed by the Jappanese, is that more white men are employed in this state by Japanese than there are Japanese employed by white men. How do you like that. Young America?

Are you going to remain passive and indifferent, and allow the yellow race to usurp the rights and privileges of this wonderful country?

Are you going to sacrifice this "Garden of Eden," which your forefathers discovered, conquered and developed, for which they endured unspeakable hardships, and which is yours by right of inheritance?

I believe it is the solemn duty of every person with a drop of patriotic blood in his veins to make it his special business to enlist in this campaign. The recent investigation by the State Board of Control proves that conditions are alarming, even worse than pictured by those who have been considered radical in their persistent efforts to get State and Federal legislative action during the past few years.

Paid pro-Japanese propagandists are seeking to establish a prejudice in their favor throughout the East, where conditions are not understood, and those of us who are in the volunteer service must lend every effort to bring home to the entire country the exact situation of the menace on the Pacific Coast.

We cannot assimilate this constantly increasing flow from the Orient and preserve the white race upon this Western shore. And what concerns us here in California today will concern the entire Nation tomorrow. By an overwhelming vote, then, we must apprise the people of the East that we are desperately in earnest in regard to an immediate and definite settlement of the question.

It is true, "but pity 'tis, 'tis true," that we have to contend with a certain element here who, governed by their own selfish aims and ends, seem willing to surrender their birthright, and yours, for the almighty dollar. These disloyal ones, however, are so greatly in the minority, and their attitude is so unpopular, that they will scarcely dare go to the polls and vote against the proposed initiative measure.

The transactions of those who favor letting down the bars, and who negotiate sales to the Japanese, will not bear the scrutinizing light of publicity, and where they are exposed nothing less than business and social ostracism should be accorded them. Let it be said, to their everlasting shame and dishonor, that they are traitors to their country!

That my feeling of apprehension as to the dangers that are already besetting us may be the more clearly understood, that assurance may be had that I know whereof I speak, come with me into my own home county and see for yourselves just what is happeniug. Come with me to lovely Placer, where every foot of ground is hallowed and made sacred by the sacrifices of our Pioneer Fathers and Mothers —"Placer! the gateway, a continent within a county," with its diversified agricultural, horticultural, mining and industrial interests, its magnificent and world-famous lakes, its lofty mountaius capped with perpetual snow, its stately forests and fabulously wealthy mines not richer in commercial value than its thousands of acres of orchards teeming with tropical and deciduous fruits, its rolling foothill gardens, its uuusual deposits of pottery clay and great walls of granite, its immense fields of golden grain and rice; here where the old immigrant trail winds down the mountainside, where your father and mine hewed his way through the wilderness and discovered a paradise; here where the loyal, loving sons and daughters of California have marked in enduring bronze the last resting-place of those early Pioneers who, while bravely fighting, succumbed to the hardships on the lonely trail; here where romance and tradition and sentiment are interwoven in song and story in the history of California; here where "spring is eternal, and it is comfort just to live." In this beautiful county are pleasure and playgrounds such as the world has not elsewhere seen; here thousands come annually for recreation and rest, and those afflicted come in search of, and find, health and life-giving atmosphere and altitude; here have been builded homes and schools, and a contented and prosperous people abide.

Come with me for a few hours' drive over the matchless roads and highways, and I will show you that which will make your heart ache. And, if you are any part of an American, your spirit will revolt and your nature cry out against the desecration of this fair land by that people who have no other interest in our county than to drive us either into subjugation or retreat! I, for one, propose to stand my ground and die, if need be, fighting for my inherent right to possess this glorious land.

Here, in Placer County, the choicest hits of agricultural land, charming homesites, have been deeded to the Oriental; here, by cunning and intrigue, the Japanese have fraudulently secured many hundreds of acres of orchard land. Does it not grieve you to know that much of our Golden State has passed out of our hands and into the keeping of Japan, forever? Of the 24,000 acres under cultivation the Japanese control some 17,000 acres. Is it any wonder that many of the American homes have been abandoned? We are told by the Bankers' Association that large sums of money are sent to Japan for investment by these orchardists and laborers. Who shall say that the produet of California's soil is not being used by them to manufacture implements of warfare with whieh to wrest California from us?

Here, in Placer County, many of the pupils in our schools are in the majority Japanese, the American child being held back and deprived of the attention of the teacher because of the time demanded by the Japanese children, who do uot speak or uuderstand English. A relatively small tax is paid by the Japanese for the support of the schools.

Here, in Placer County, the Buddhist temple flourishes and the Japanese children are taken, every day, after the public school closes, and taught, by a Buddhist priest, loyalty and obedienee to the mikado, who is the Japanese god! We are informed that there are now more Buddhist temples in America than there are Christian churches in Japan. The idea of the Japanese in this country espousing the Christian religion is ridiculous! Even if he should honestly do so, however, the question of social and business assimilibility is not altered. It is my conviction that the wily Japanese will go any length to enlist the services of influential churchmen in combating the anti-Japanese seutiment.

Here, in Placer County, the "picture bride" (who comes to propagate her raee and make American citizeus) takes her place in the field as a common laborer; there she bends like a beast of burden up to the time of the birth of her child and, within a day or two at most, resumes her task and continues it for from twelve to sixteen hours a day! Here the dirty hovels of the average Japanese are maintained, without proper sanitary surroundings, breeding places of flies and filth and a menace to the health of the community. Their standards and modes of living are entirely at variance with ours. We do not say that they are immoral, hut, according to our standards, they are simply unmoral.

Too much praise eaunot be given the Placer County Real Estate Board, which has adopted strong resolutions condemning those who consummate sales of land to Japanese, and the members of which have pledged themselves to have no such business dealings with any Oriental.

The Placer County Federation of Women's Clubs is carrying on an educational campaign in regard to the situatiou in California, which is greatly to its credit. The labor organizations are strong in their denunciation of those employing and leasing to Orientals, and condemning hy "boycott" is openly proposed. It is the consensus of opinion that there is no room in Placer, whose people are patient and long suffering, for more Japanese!

The youth of Placer County cannot, and we would not have him if he could, undertake to compete with this sort of labor. As a consequence, he is being driven off the land and, where there should be the beautiful home of an American citizen—a family who would take an interest in promoting the principles of our commonwealth, of rendering service to the community, who could have a part in perpetuating the ideals and principles of Americanism—we have, instead, a eoncrete illustration of what the yellow peril means.

The investigations have been made, and wise statesmen have agreed that it is time to act. A remedial measure will appear on the November ballot which will make it impossible for the Japanese to get possession of more of California's agricultural land, if we but do our part—vote for Initiative Amendment Number One.

EVERY MOTHER'S SON AND DAUGHTER HAS A SACRED OBLIGATION TO RENDER TO THE STATE AT THIS CRITICAL TIME, AND I FEEL SURE THE CALL, "TO ARMS!", WILL FALL UPON THE EARS OF A LEGION OF AMERICANS.

At the request of The Grizzly Bear, Mrs. Cora M. Woodbridge of Roseville prepared the accompanying article. She is state chairman of the Department of Civics, California Federation of Women's Clubs, a member of the executive committee of the California Oriental Exclusion League, and has heen, and will continue to be, most active in the campaign to preserve California for real Americans.

The article deals largely with Jap conditions in grand old Placer County—conditions which, however, are illustrative of those existing in every county which has had the yellow peril fastened upon it through the Japs' colonization scheme. And in this connection, this fact, apparent to any who may care to look into the situation, should not be lost sight of: the Japs are colonized in every county of most strategic value, and in cities where they have set up "little Tokios," they are also congregated at points of most strategic importance.

Any person who has the least doubt that the Japs are here, as openly and repeatedly charged, with a fixed purpose—the acquirement of California for Japan—is not familiar with the real situation, and the purpose of the articles that have long been appearing, and will continue to appear, in The Grizzly Bear, is to make the facts public. Always bear in mind that every Jap, whether a native of America or Japan, is forever a subject of Japan and recognizes no law except that "made in Japan." That is why the Japs hold all the laws of California in utter contempt. Those of the white race who are aiding the Japs to defeat our laws are but dollar-purchased servants of Japan.

November 2 is the time set for the battle between the white-Californians ou the one side and the yellow-Japs and white-Japs on the other, to decide the fate of this Golden State. Decide your course, California Voter, and cast your ballot either as a loyal citizen of California or as a loyal servant of Japan.—Editor.

PRIZE WINNING COUNTIES.

Sacramento—At the State Fair last month Fresno County was awarded first prize for the best general exhibit. Kings got second, Placer third, Stanislaus fourth, Alameda fifth, Los Angeles sixth, San Joaquin seventh, Butte eighth. Calaveras won first prize for general display of ores.

To be trusted is a greater compliment than to be loved.—George Macdonald.

GOD'S SUNSET LAND

SONORA, THE CAPITAL OF GOOD OLD Tuolumne County, had a unique Admission Day celebration, which is referred to elsewhere in this issue. It brought to the front a Native Daughter "orator of the day," in the person of Mrs. Hannah Doyle. The Grizzly Bear has been requested to publish her address, which is here presented:

"Our well-beloved state, California, seemed to the early emigrant so far removed from civilization that a poet wrote of it:

"'Tis a land so far, that you wonder whether
E'en God would know it should you fall down dead;
'Tis a land so fair, through the wilds and weather,
That the sun falls weary, and flushed, and red;
That the sea and the sky seem coming together—
Seem closing together as a book that is read.'

"The discovery of California was directly the result of a belief, entertained in the sixteenth century, that there was a direct passage from the Atlantic to the Indian seas. This highway was sought for by various navigators of that time, and when Cortez landed in Vera Cruz in 1519 he was confident that he had reached Asia. Cabrillo was the first man to sail along the coast of California. September 28, 1542, he anchored in a harbor which he named San Miguel, but which is now called San Diego Bay.

"The planting of the Cross in California is full of historic interest. In the most beautiful places, from San Diego to Sonoma, Junipero Serra and his followers built missions. After a lapse of more than a hundred years, they stand as landmarks of the devotion of the earliest Pioneers. It was at noon of July 1, 1769, that Junipero Serra stood on the mesa above San Diego Bay. It is said that as he looked out across the soft, wind-dimpled ocean, and about him, his soul was filled with delight, and he stooped, took a golden poppy, touched it with his lips, and exclaimed: 'Copa de oro! the Holy Grail! I have found it!' Junipero Serra had walked all the way from the City of Mexico to San Diego.

"A cross marks the spot where Civilization was planted in California. It is a cross built of red-brick tiles that were unearthed from the plot of ground where the first Franciscan mission in California stood. This is where California began, 150 years ago. The second mission, San Carlos, was founded near Monterey Bay in June, 1770, and the history of Monterey dates from June 3, 1770. Several other missions were founded. When the news of the conquest of California reached Old Spain, the bells of the cathedrals rang in tune with the mission bells of San Diego, Monterey and San Gabriel. Today, bells of modern mold mark El Camino Real (the way of the missions), starting from the Harbor of the Sun and extending 700 miles to the north.

"The word 'wonderful' may well be applied to the 'golden member' of this great American Union—'this land so blessed by Nature, this land of fruit and gold.' California has the highest elevation of land in the United States, the grandest mountain scenery in America, and not surpassed, if equaled, by any in the world. She has some of the grandest and most picturesque valleys on earth; the wonder of the world in timber growth, the mighty Sequoia trees; and more of the valuable metals than any other like area of earth known to man. California can boast of a greater share of sea coast than any other state. She produces nearly all kinds of fruits and vegetables, as well as the best grains in the world. In short,

"'Who can catalogue the wonders?
Who can say what there is not,
In this land of milk and honey,
Nature's only polyglot?'

"In beauty and grandeur of scenery, California is not excelled by any country in the world. She has within her borders all the climates of the five zones. What Italy and Switzerland are to Europe, California is to the Western world, in point of scenery. Her mission is that of a ministering angel to all her sister states; she will heal their sick, supply their tables with all the choicest delicacies of all climates, and seasons. She is the pleasure-ground of the Nation, and the sanitarium of the world. Busy men, their tasks completed, fly to California to spend, in stormless peace, their declining years. Students gather here to study, artists to gather inspiration, and poets to sing their sweetest songs.

"There is but one California in all the world, and the world recognizes this fact. California seems to exercise an indescribable fascination over everyone who comes within her influence. Scarcely an individual, who remains here a year, can be persuaded to return to his old home. What is the secret of this fascination? 'Surely, this must be the Eden where the woman tempted man.' Ina Coolbrith has written this prophecy of California:

"'Of all the world most fair.
God's shaping hand
Made thee, beyond compare,—
His chosen land!
Under serenest skies,
By soft winds fanned,
Breaths of all balm and spice,—
The blossom land!
Thou, from all bondage free,
Earth shall command;
Leader of destiny,—
God's sunset land!'

"It has been our blessing to have been born and reared in this glorious State of California, so, each year,

"'As we hear afresh the story
Of the Argonants of yore,
Let us show by all our actions
That we're worthy of our sires,
And keep burning in our bosoms
Patriotism's fervid fires'."

A program of literary and musical numbers was presented by the Native Sons and Daughters in the evening at Trinity Auditorium, which was filled by a crowd of about 1,200. Edwin A. Meserve presided, and in the course of his remarks said that "Admission Day is comparable, in patriotic importance, to Independence Day. Everything to be found on the face of the earth can be found somewhere in California. The oldest living things in existence are here, and this state possesses untold wealth."

In speaking on the subject "Our State," Mayor M. P. Snyder said "almost every intelligent person on earth wants to come to California to see Mount Lassen, San Francisco Bay, the gigantic redwoods, the marvelous Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, the missions, and Los Angeles, the city that is a city in every essential." The mayor took a fling at the Japs' "peaceful invasion," declared that "California shall never become the property of an alien race," and called upon the "Native Sons of the Golden West, who had not a slacker among them in the recent world war, to prevent the further encroachments of the yellow aliens."

Philip M. Carey of Berkeley was the orator of the day, and had for his subject "Admission Day," which he dealt with in ringing words of eloquence. Gifted with a splendid delivery, and possessed of unlimited knowledge concerning California and her unique history, his address was, indeed, a rare treat. He spoke of the handclasp of good-fellowship between the citizens of the northern and southern portions of the state, and in glowing words pictured the beauties and eulogized the virtues of the Golden State. "The eyes of the white man," he said, "beheld the wonders of California before Jamestown was founded or the feet of the Pilgrims touched upon Plymouth Rock."

The romantic tale of California's discovery, of the Pioneers of '49, and the lure of her mountains and valleys to all who have once passed through "her sunlit valleys and in her purple dusk," was dealt with in a poem, entitled "The Call of California," written for the occasion and read by John S. McGroarty, author of "The Mission Play."

The musical numbers on the program were directed by Carl Bronson, who led the audience in singing the national anthem and "I Love You, California." A duet, "My California" (Bronson), was rendered by the Misses Lucy Merz and Ruth Bronson, to the piano accompaniment of Miss Margaret Wilson.

IN SANTA BARBARA

Santa Barbara's Admission Day program, arranged by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of that city, took up a full day. One feature, that occupied all the daytime, the sale of milk-bottle tags for the kiddies' milk fund, was heartily supported by all civic and fraternal organizations. From this fund 129 children are supplied daily with forty-five quarts of milk. The drive for funds brought over $800 to this worthy charity.

In the evening a Spanish dinner was served, the proceeds from this, too, going into the milk fund. While the courses were being served an orchestra dispensed early-day music, two dancers in costume—Edwardo Valencia and Geraldine Valdea—gave some favorite Spanish dances, and Mrs. C. Lopez sang some old time love songs. So great was the crowd that, the seating capacity being limited to 150, many were turned away.

Following the dinner, a program was presented at Recreation Center, which was elaborately decorated with American and State (Bear) Flags and great quantities of beautiful flowers, chrysanthemums being used in the creation of an immense center piece. Mark Bradley presided, and introduced Mayor H. T. Nielson, who gave the word of welcome. Musical numbers were contributed by Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Lyons, Mrs. Imogene Avis Palmer and Mrs. Endicott Faxon, and Geneva Driscol appeared in an interpretative dance.

Arthur M. Free of San Jose delivered the main address of the evening, his subject being "California, the State Wonderful." His talk revealed the spirit of an admirer of the state which, he said, is the biggest and the best in the Union. After telling of the beauties and wonders of the different sections of California, he pointed out the objects of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, saying that they are patriotic fraternal organizations whose main purposes are the perpetuation of the state's history, the preservation of her landmarks, the saving of her missions, the care of her homeless children, and the exclusion of the Japs.

The committees in charge of the various features included: Executive—Miss Anna E. McCaughey (chairman), Mrs. William Wilson (president Reina del Mar Parlor 126, N.D.G.W.), J. P. McCaughey (president Santa Barbara Parlor 116, N.S.G.W.), F. J. Batser, Owen O'Neill, J. W. Chard, Paul Sweetser, J. B. Saxby, Mark Bradley, Mesdames W. R. Vick, Roy Hall, C. F. Meyer, Charles E. Ruiz, Mamie Harrison, Miss Mary Ruiz. Program—Francis Price, Mrs. Frank Carlson, Mrs. U. Dardi, Harry Sweetser, William Maris, Miss Jessie Lathim, Samuel Silva. Dinner—Miss Mary Ruiz, Mrs. Charles Ruiz, Charles Cota, M. Bounilia, Paul Sweetser, Mark Bradley, Samuel Silva, Mrs. Christine Hall.

SAVE the REDWOODS

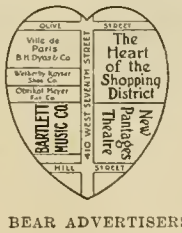

The Save the Redwoods League is engaged in an energetic campaign to preserve for future generations representative groves of the magnificent sequoia sempervirens, found nowhere in the world except along the California coast. Support for the movement is being given by many important societies, among them the Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

"Save the Redwoods" is probably the last great cry of its kind which need be made in the United States, according to Dr. Henry F. Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History and a councilor of the Save the Redwoods League. "So far as we know, everything else of the kind has been saved or is in process of being saved," he declares, and goes on to state the great importance of preserving for the generations of the future the magnificent groves of sequoia sempervirens located nowhere in the world except along the northern California coast. These, together with the sequoia gigantea, are the oldest trees in the world.

At the recent Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West, held in San Diego, emphatic resolutions were passed urging that representative tracts of the redwoods of the northwestern California coast be saved from impending destruction. The resolution called for the preservation of a sufficient area of redwoods to constitute a state park and a national park, and urged that at the next session of the State Legislature such action be taken as might be necessary to acquire suitable acreage of redwoods on behalf of the state as a unit of a national park to be later established.

BIG LOTTERY DRAWING HOLDS STATE'S ATTENTION

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE MAIN EVENT ON THE PUBLIC mind the month of October, 1870, was the great gift concert of the Mercantile Library of San Francisco, held in the Mechanics Pavilion on Monday, the 31st. Two hundred thousand tickets, at $5 each, divided into five coupons, were sold and 628 prizes ranging from a capital one of $100,000 down to several hundred of $100 each were to be awarded.

October 24 the board of directors announced all the tickets had been sold, and from that date until the drawing took place tickets sold in San Francisco at a premium. Over 50,000 expectant and hopeful ticket-holders gathered at the pavilion to await the drawing of the lucky numbers. They represented every race and country on the globe, and every grade of society. As the telegraph company had arranged to wire the numbers and amounts of prize drawn to clubs organized in every town in the state where a telegraph office existed, thousands of people neglected their business for the day to await the favor of Fortuna, the Goddess of Chance.

A musical program, that did not interest the impatient audience, began the day's proceedings. Then President R. B. Swain made an address, detailing the method of the drawing, and was followed by Director J. W. Stow, who read a chapter out of the Bible, probably relating to Lot. Two mammoth transparent revolving wheels were on the stage. One contained the leather tags upon which the ticket numbers had been stamped, and the other the prize amounts placed in small pasteboard boxes. Six little blind boys participated in the drawing of the ticket numbers, while six little blind girls, dressed neatly in blue and white, attended to the drawing of the prize boxes.

The drawing began at 9 a. m. and lasted nearly fourteen hours, the last prize being drawn at 10:50 p. m. The first number drawn was 10,511 and the prize was $10,000. It was held by five San Franciscans, each holding a coupon. One of them gave a welcoming whoop from amid the audience when the number, with its prize, was announced. The two hundredth number drawn was 154,077, and it won the capital prize of $100,000. It had been bought by Wormser & Co., bankers, for a club of one hundred members in New York City, each of whom took a ticket, and this one was taken by a young Hebrew banker named Theodore Hellman. Ticket 110,156 won the second prize of $50,000. It was held by a Welsh miner named Howell W. Thomas at French Corral, Nevada County. He had been an underground miner in Wales and California for thirty-five years and could neither read nor write. Ticket 70,808 won the third prize of $25,000. It was held by Amos W. Goves, a farmer living a few miles from Stockton, San Joaquin County. The fourth prize of $20,000 was won by Mrs. Martha J. Wilkinson of White Rock, Sacramento County, whose husband had bought it for her from an agent in Sacramento a few days before the lottery drawing.

"Never Again!" Said Vox Populi.

New York City, and Nevada, Sacramento and San Joaquin Counties residents won the bulk of the money. Over half of the prizes were said to have been won by Jew and German ticket-holders and the unlucky ones vehemently damned "Dutch Luck," as it was called, for the unsatisfactory distribution of prizes. Few large prizes were won by San Franciscans, and those mostly by coupon-holders, while most of the tickets sold were held by purchasers there. Two Chinamen in Dunbar Alley drew down $6,000 and were, in consequence, conspicuous for their luck.

Among the larger prize-winners in this state were H. H. Lay, a young farmer at Batavia, Solano County, who won $19,000; Thomas Pillsbury, a teamster at Colusa, $18,000; James Rowan, Sacramento, $15,000; Bernard and Herman Steinman, brothers and young business men of Sacramento, $14,000; A. Nachman, J. Schaumlofel, A. Swanwell and P. Donover, business men of Sacramento, holding coupons of the same ticket, $14,000; a German baker in Oakland named Garbach, $14,000; M. Fierro, postmaster at Greenwood, El Dorado County, $12,000; B. H. Tully, a banker of Nevada City, Nevada County, $12,000; Chas. Theiss, a saloonkeeper in Sacramento, $10,000; Dr. James Simpson, Nevada City, $9,000; A. Blanchard, a barber in San Francisco, $7,000.

The aftermath showed a demoralized community, a suicide, and several insane sent to the asylum after their hopes had vanished; a woman arrested for stealing a winning ticket from its holder, and another for attempting to forge a figure and cash a prize; several lawsuits; numerous mortgages filed by reckless ticket purchasers, and a universal disgusted feeling so that Vox Populi was almost unanimous in saying, "never again!" should San Francisco experience a lottery spasm.

The writer bought a ticket, because the drawing was to take place upon his birthday. Before the drawing, at the solicitation of a friend who believed in natal days being lucky, he sold a half-interest in it for what the ticket cost him. As it did not win a prize, he considered himself lucky to draw out even.

As a side issue, Wm. M. Lent had a lottery of his $50,000 residence in San Francisco, the number winning the capital prize in the Mercantile Lottery taking it. George D. Roberts, a bookkeeper, was the lucky holder, and it gave him the foundation to build a large fortune upon.

The first storm of the season passed over the state October 25, dropping an inch of rain in the valleys and depositing about two feet of snow on the Sierras.

A hot wave passed over California October 5. It was very oppressive in San Francisco, the temperature being above 80 degrees—too hot for comfort. In the interior it was above 100 degrees. A case of sunstroke at Petaluma, Sonoma County, was reported.

Turfites Get Hard Jolts.

The Sonoma County Fair opened October 3 at Petaluma, with a fine display of local products.

The Santa Clara County Fair opened at San Jose October 4 with horse racing and local exhibits that attracted a large attendance.

The Siskiyou County Fair opened at Yreka October 11 and there followed several days of horse racing and a hall filled with county exhibits.

There was a week of running races at Alameda commencing October 10, during which some exciting contests were run and the uncertainties of horse racing exemplified. The first race was for a purse of $1,000 for which "Nell Flaherty," "Al. Bascom" and "Kirby Smith" contended. Pools sold at $100 on "Nell," $65 on "Kirby" and $45 on "Bascomb." "Bascomb" won the first heat in 3:46, and pools now sold at $165 on "Bascomb" against $140 on the other two. "Kirby Smith" won the second heat in 3:50½, and now became the poolbox favorite. "Nell" won the third heat in 3:54, but "Kirby" sold at $100 to $75 before the fourth heat, which was won by "Nell" in 3:55. Thousands of dollars changed hands on the result.

Another poolbox upset was the running race of a mile and repeat October 11 with six entries. "May" sold in the pools for $2 against $150 on the others. She won the first heat, ran a dead heat with "Compromise" in the second, lost the third to "Compromise," but nosed him out in the fourth, winning the race.

A championship billiard match, for the diamond cue, was played in San Francisco the evening of October 14 between Little and McCleery, players of renown, before a large betting crowd of sports. Little won by a score of 1,200 against McCleery's 998.

Jimmy Kenovau, a pedestrian of note, and Jack Sheppard, another professional walker, began a walking match in San Francisco October 26. The victor was to be decided when one of them either dropped dead or was too fatigued to continue the tramp. Jack Sheppard won, holding out 106 hours and 15 minutes. Kenovan, exhausted, had dropped.

George Bucknell commenced suit for $1,000,000 damages, on assigned claims for landowners, against the Clear Lake Water Company for building a dam at Clear Lake outlet and raising the waters of the lake so as to submerge the land.

The San Francisco market quotations for October were: Wheat $1.80, barley $1.10, oats $1.20 and potatoes $1.50 a cental; hay $12 a ton; butter 50c a pound, and eggs 50c a dozen.

A break in mining stock prices October 11 created an unpleasant sensation on California street, San Francisco. Gould & Curry dropped $25 a share, and the price of other stocks came tumbling after.

False Rumor Starts Bank Run.

The California Grand Lodge of Masons met in San Francisco October 12. It selected as grand master, Leonidas E. Pratt of San Francisco, as deputy grand master, Isaac S. Titus of Placerville, as grand treasurer, James Laidley of San Francisco, and as grand secretary, Alex. G. Abell of San Francisco.

J. R. Myers sold a ranch on Doty's Ravine, Placer County, of 320 acres for $4,500 to John Thorp, who intended planting it with mulberry trees and engaging in agriculture.

The section of a big tree in the Fresno grove that was cut by a contractor named Snediker was being taken to Stockton. It was sixteen feet long and twenty-five feet in diameter.

Excursion trains each week from Sacramento, Marysville and Woodland were being run by the California Pacific Railroad to San Francisco, with free admission to Woodward's Gardens as an attraction.

R. R. Whiteside struck oil in Santa Cruz County. He had a well on his ranch, near Corrallitos, yielding 100 gallons a day.

Oil flowing from wells in Surdam Canyon, near San Buenaventura, Ventura County, was being barrelled and shipped north, to be used in burning brick.

A run on the Hibernia Bank in San Francisco started October 4. An excited crowd of depositors gathered, and many became frantic when they found they could not get in the doors and withdraw their money. The bank took advantage of its rule requiring ten days' notice of intent to withdraw sums of $100 and over, and thereby finally restored confidence. The run started from an idle and false rumor.

The Italian population of San Francisco celebrated Columbus Day, October 12, the anniversary of the discovery of America, with a grand ball.

John T. Raymond was touring the state with a dramatic troupe playing "Colleen Bawn" and other Irish plays.

The New Hibernicon, a panorama representing a tour through Ireland, with a troupe rendering Irish songs, was on a popular tour through the state.

A dead whale was stranded a short distance below the Cliff House, San Francisco, October 5. Over 2,000 people went out to view it the next day, and every vehicle in the city that could be used for the trip was in service.

A shipment of fresh mackerel, under refrigeration, was made from Boston by rail and arrived in San Francisco in good condition.

A quail killed in Nevada County was found to have 50 cents' worth of gold pieces in its gizzard.

In Lone Tree Canyon, San Joaquin County, the gruesome evidence of a hunting tragedy was found by a stockman. A man, unidentified, was found dead near a discharged rifle and a short distance away from a dead grizzly, while between them was the evidence of a terrible death struggle in which both participants succumbed.

Several Disastrous Fires.

Tod Robinson, a prominent attorney and leading Democratic politician, died in San Mateo County October 27. He came to California in 1850, and was an unsuccessful candidate for judicial positions when his party was in the minority. He was at one time a law partner of J. B. Haggin. He was 58 years of age, and was the supreme court reporter at the time of his death.

The Chinese at Sacramento held memorial exercises during the last week of the month in memory of the dead California Pacific Railroad Chinese employes. The bones of these departed had been gathered and brought to their Sacramento cemetery. A temple was erected on I street. A Chinese band, with gongs and other noise-producing instruments, made a din and a melancholy image draped in white stood on a pedestal in the temple enveloped in the smoke from lighted punks and decorated candles. A placard bearing a list of names covered a wall of the temple. The ceremonies lasted as long as the funds contributed held out.

A Chinese riot broke out in Nevada City, Nevada County, October 11 between rival tongs. Two Chinamen were killed and eight wounded, and about twenty of the participants were arrested and jailed.

This was an unlucky month for the Central Pacific Railroad, as regards fire. October 22 a snowshed fire started two miles west of Cisco and burned over a mile of shed. On October 7 another fire started in the shed five miles east of Cisco and nearly one-half mile of shed was destroyed.

The sawmill and lumber yard of E. Ellen at Truckee burned on October 15, causing a $15,000 loss.

The mining town of Sawpit Flat, Plumas County, was destroyed by fire October 7.

The town of Mendocino, Mendocino County, or Big River, as it was also known, had its business section and a number of residences burned October 16. About forty houses were destroyed, and a $100,000 loss made.

A disastrous fire in Napa Valley October 14 destroyed trees, grass, grain, fences, barns and houses between Napa and Calistoga for a distance of twelve miles along the railroad line. More than 10,000 acres were burned over, and the fire swept the hills toward Sonoma County for several days.

A fire on Mission street destroyed the block between Fremont and Beale streets, San Francisco, October 20, causing near a half-million dollars' loss. It burned Casebolt & Co.'s warehouse, Miller & Haley's planing mills, the Glasgow Iron Co. works, and several other large manufacturing plants; 500 tons of coal burned over a week.

October 20 the stage from Lakeport, Lake County, to Calistoga, Napa County, was stopped by two masked men who rifled the express box. One woman passenger was not molested, but the mask of one of the robbers became displaced so she saw his face and stated she could recognize him if she saw him again. No trace was found of the robbers by the posse that went out to search for them.

Accidents Continue Large in Number.

About 3 a. m. October 24 the driver of the stage, named Greer, was awakened by a knock on his bedroom door and on opening it was confronted by a masked man who, in a nervous tone of voice, said: "If you won't betray me I will return you the money stolen from your stage." Greer promised, and was then handed a package of coin amounting to $3,350 that the robbers had taken from the stage. It was surmised the men became afraid that the woman passenger would discover the man she looked at, and therefore endeavored to play "safety first."

John R. Hite, a prominent citizen of Mariposa County, October 7, in conversation with some friends, was interrupted by a town character known as "Artesian" Smith. This resulted in a dispute, during which Hite pushed Smith away. The latter drew a pocket knife and slashed Hite across his abdomen, inflicting a wound that caused his death two days later.

October 1 Mrs. Mann, wife of a prominent farmer in Santa Clara County, was thrown from a carriage by a runaway team and had a thigh bone broken.

A young man named Pearl was assisting, October 2, in re-railing a car off the track in the San Francisco railroad yard. A lever slipped out of the hands of two of the men with him and struck him in the side, crushing in his ribs and soon causing his death.

Richard Bennett, a lad living in Ione Valley, Amador County, was accidentally shot and killed October 8 while hunting. He seated himself on the ground and, drawing his shotgun toward him by its muzzle, caused both barrels to be discharged, tearing off his hand and shockingly lacerating his stomach.

J. A. O'Brien, at Watsonville, Santa Cruz County, October 11 accidentally fired a pistol he was examining and the bullet killed Ed Kennedy, standing near by.

J. A. Stewart, a dry goods merchant of Sacramento, while hunting in Yolo County October 14 was reloading a barrel of his shotgun with the hammer of the other barrel cocked. It went off, and part of his hand was torn away.

Paul Bngley, in Colusa County, was accidentally shot in the leg and it had to be amputated.

Augustine Capperri, a 15-year-old lad, while bathing near San Francisco October 16 was drowned.

The 3-year-old child of R. E. Moore, near Suscol, Napa County, October 15 wandered to a small stream near the house, fell in, and was drowned.

The infant daughter of George Moody at Big Meadows crawled from the house to a spring about fifteen feet distant and, falling in, was drowned in a shallow pool before she was missed.

May Brazelton, 3 years old, at San Bernardino October 17 was playing behind the kitchen stove. A kettle of boiling water was accidentally overturned and she was fearfully scalded from the neck down on one side of her body.

Ancient Vessel Visited.

A number of small children were playing on the Front-street levee at Sacramento October 12. A log lying on the levee was rolled by the children off the bank and in its descent passed over a little 4-year-old boy named Stram, killing him.

Christian Reist, a Pioneer merchant and miner of Tuolumne County, October 17, in his claim near Chinese Camp, was caved upon and killed.

While working in a quarry near Oakland October 10 Patrick Quill was crushed to death by a boulder weighing twenty-five tons falling upon him.

Wm. Buchannan of Shingle Springs, El Dorado County, was thrown from his wagon seat and had his leg so badly injured it had to be amputated.

A farmer named Mann returned from San Buenaventura to his Ventura County home October 20. While opening a gate his team started to run away. His two children were on the wagon, and Mrs. Mann, standing near by, frantically jumped in front of the horses to stop them. The neck yoke struck her, knocking her down, breaking her jaw and her thigh.

John C. Pelton, the veteran schoolmaster of San Francisco, was thrown from a carriage October 25 and dangerously injured.

SHADOWS of the WEST

[By JAMES DAYTON]

THERE is no more important question before the Senate of these United States than the adjustment of the ownership of land and the increasing number of population among Asiatic aliens. This question is not confined to any district or section of this country, but has a far-reaching effect upon the whole governmental system, both social and economic.

It is with the hope of placing this matter before the citizens of this country in its proper light, not biased by local interests nor sectional prejudice, but handled from a purely American constitutional standpoint and with justice to all, that the Cinema-Craft Corporation has undertaken the filming of "The Shadows of the West."

The fathers of American Government, in framing our Constitution, especially dwelt upon the fact that the Nation must forever be ONE and UNDIVIDED. In the prologue of this Constitution, they have used the phrases "to form a more perfect union," "insure domestic tranquility," "provide for the common defense," and "promote the general welfare." These blessings were not only for themselves and their own times, but were handed down, and we, as Americans, are pledged to uphold and sustain these principles so long as we exist as a nation.

Our country, under this Constitution, has risen to the foremost place among the nations of the earth; our union has endured throughout foreign aggression and internal rebellion; our institutions, founded upon the Christian religion, have raised womanhood to the pinnacle of social and political supremacy which American womanhood now occupies.

Now, the vital question arises: Can the Asiatic alien become such an American as our Constitution demands us to be?

FORCED TO VACATE, TO MAKE ROOM FOR THE ASIATICS.

A. E. F. BOYS RETURNING IN TIME TO TAKE UP FIGHT TO KEEP CALIFORNIA A WHITE MAN'S COUNTRY.

Scenes from "SHADOWS of the WEST"

In their forthcoming production, "The Shadows of the West," the Cinema-Crafts Corporation have been most careful to be just and fair. THE STORY OF THE PICTURE, by Seymour Zeliff, IS BASED UPON FACTS, and the conditions which he depicts exist in every part of the Pacific Coast. The hardships of Washington and his Continentals, the struggle of Lincoln for unity and freedom, are contrasted with the Asiatic's enslavement of woman. The true meaning of the Thirteenth Amendment is made plain and applicable to our day and age; constitutional law is placed beside emperor worship; feudal Asiatic tenets, engrained in the Oriental mind for generations, are proved to be non-assimilable with a government founded upon the Christian doctrines and dedicated to Liberty and Freedom.

In the cast of this notable production are such moton-picture celebrities as Hedda Nova, whose sparkling beauty and rare dramatic talent are seen to advantage in the part of the Western heroine, "Mary Ward." The dainty Eastern actress, Virginia Dale, a daughter of the Dales of Virginia and an artist of winning personality, portrays the part of "Lucy Norton," the American girl with a penchant for "imported things." A wonderful bit of character acting is given by Yvette Mitchell in the part of the little Japanese picture bride, "Suto Lu." Helen Wright, the well-known character actress, adds her charm to the part of "Mother Ward."

Lieutenant Pat O'Brien, the soldier of fortune, whose books and lectures have won enviable fame throughout the world, plays the part of "Jim Kern," a California ranch-owner. Mr. O'Brien is a handsome, clean-cut American and enters into his part with the same spirit and dash that has won him fame in five different armies. Arthur Jasmine, famous delineator of Oriental characters, is cast as "Ido," the husband of "Suto Lu." Other noted members of the cast are Ben Corbett, who for eight years held the trick-riding championship of the world and in 1916 took the championship prizes for trick riding and broncho busting at Grangeville, Idaho. A stirrup mount which Corbett does is said to be one of the neatest things shown in Western riding. A. Hollingsworth, Arno Marsh, Mr. Zeliff and Phil. Ford are suitably cast.

The production is under the direction of Paul Hurst, whose work as a producer of Western drama and spectacular feature films needs no comment. Charles Hickman, production manager, is sparing no expense nor trouble to make this one of the best productions of the year. The company is working at the Francis Ford Studios in Los Angeles, and the production will run six to eight thousand feet. The continuity is by James Dayton.

Red Cross Roll Call.

August 28, 1920.

To the Officers and Members of all Subordinate Parlors, N.S.G.W.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

The "Greatest Mother in the World," our American Red Cross, is about to inaugurate the Fourth Red Cross Annual Roll Call.

We must never forget the work in war time; it is equally important in times of peace. I feel that all of our Subordinate Parlors will desire to join in the campaign for membership during the period, November 14th to 22nd, and, as Grand President, I am glad to give what assistance I can. The success of this Roll Call must depend upon having a large number of workers for the Red Cross. One of the best methods of obtaining these workers will be to have committees in all fraternal organizations, so I am asking that a committee of three be appointed in Subordinate Parlors to perform such duties as may be required by the local Chapter of the Red Cross or the Pacific Division. These duties will be light, and will consist principally in dispensing of literature and keeping the campaign before our members.

Feeling assured that you will appreciate the necessity of joining with the Red Cross in this work, and that the names of your committee will be promptly forwarded to the local Red Cross in your community, I am,

Sincerely and fraternally,

Jas F Hoey

Grand President.

GRAND PRESIDENT HAS PLAN FOR EXTENDING MEMBERSHIP.

Grand President James F. Hoey is working out a plan for extending the membership of the Order that has been highly commended and will get desired results. It has already been tried out in San Francisco, Alameda, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Sonoma, Napa and Contra Costa Counties, where the results have been highly encouraging. The Parlors in every county should lose no time in getting together in similar campaigns. Grand President Hoey's plan is:

For Subordinate Parlors in every county to send three delegates to a designated meeting-place to form a county organization. If advised in time, he will attend, for he is devoting his best energies to the Order's upbuilding. The county organization secures from the great register names of natives of the state and these are submitted to the Parlors of the district in which the eligible resides. The Parlors, in turn, decide upon those wanted as members, and add to the list the names of other wanted eligibles not yet of voting age. When the Parlors' lists are completed, an extension of the Order committee is named and, working in conjunction with the Grand Organizer, calls upon each prospect, tells him of the splendid, unselfish work the Order is engaged in, and requests his co-operation through affiliation.

The plan is feasible and, if rightly put in operation, will secure for every Parlor what it most needs to do its full duty as a part of the Order—increased membership. The next six months are the most opportune for membership drives. Get together, Native Sons of every county, and co-operate with Grand President "Jim" Hoey in his desire to double the membership of every Parlor before next April. It can be done, if you just make up your minds that it shall be and labor accordingly.—C. M. H.

JO V. SNYDER UNANIMOUSLY CHOSEN GRAND SECRETARY.

San Francisco—A special meeting of the Board of Grand Officers was held in Native Sons' Building, September 11, being called for the purpose of choosing a successor to the lately-deceased Grand Secretary, Fred H. Jung. There was a full attendance, including Junior Past Grand President William P. Caubu, Grand President James F. Hoey, Grand First Vice-president William I. Traeger, Grand Second Vice-president Harry G. Williams, Grand Third Vice-president William J. Hayes, Grand Trustees John J. Monteverde, Henry G. Bodkin, Edward J. Lynch, Charles A. Thompson, James A. Wilson, Frank M. Carr, Arthur M. Dean.

JO V SNYDER, Grand Secretary.

Since the August meeting of the Board, several applicants for the important office had been considered, and members of the Board had approached others, in the hope of getting them to accept the office. After careful consideration of those available, the Board unanimously tendered the office to Jo V. Snyder of Nevada City, who was solicited to take the position, and he accepted after he had outlined his policies, which were approved.

Grand Secretary Snyder is a Past Grand President and is affiliated with Hydraulic 56. He has long been an active worker in the Order and his Parlor, and his term of Grand President was one of the most successful years in the history of the Order. He has been in newspaper work for many years, being editor of the "Nevada City Union."

Snyder will take over the office of Grand Secretary the first of October, and will devote all his time and energies to the duties thereof. With his wife, a member of Laurel Parlor, No. 6, N.D.G.W. (Nevada City), he will make his future home in San Francisco.

Initiates Class of Twelve.

Palo Alto—September 14, at the invitation of Observatory 177, the officers of Palo Alto 216, accompanied by a big delegation of members, paid a fraternal visit to San Jose and initiated a class of candidates; the visitors, upon return, reported a splendid meeting. September 27 officers and members of Observatory Parlor returned the visit, and initiated a class of twelve for Palo Alto; the ritual was exemplified in an impressive manner.

The three-months' season of the Palo Alto Community Baseball League was concluded September 5 with a game between the Menlo Park and the Palo Alto Parlor teams which was won by the former, score 5 to 4. The Menlo team thus won the silver trophy. The Palo Alto team put up a good game,

FORGET NOT, AND DO YOUR DUTY!

Remember that the anti-Jap initiative measure is Number One on the November ballot. The future well-being of California demands not only the passage of this measure, but its approval by an enormous vote—one that will express, in no uncertain terms, California's sentiment.

IT IS YOUR DUTY TO NOT ONLY GO TO THE POLLS AND VOTE FOR THIS MEASURE, BUT TO SEE THAT EVERY OTHER CITIZEN IN YOUR VOTING PRECINCT DOES LIKEWISE.

If the measure is defeated it will be solely because real Americanism—the exercise of the right to vote—is at low ebb in California. If you are one hundred percent American the measure will be approved by The People with the largest majority ever rolled up—and it should be.

and next season the Parlor will have an aggregation that will outdistance all opponents. A committee has been named to arrange a midwinter league. September 20 Palo Alto Parlor had the ball team as honor guests at a banquet, and it was "some" affair.

Palo Alto Parlor made a splendid showing in the San Francisco Admission Day parade, eighty-five members appearing. They were lined up to compose the letters N. S. G. W., the letters being worked out in the Order's colors—red for N, white for S, blue for G, and yellow for W. Theodore Tollner, costumed as Uncle Sam and carrying the Parlor's large American Flag, headed the delegation, which was commanded by E. A. Hettinger.

Old Timers Have Inning.

Oakland—Oakland 50's "old-timers' night" brought a big crowd to Native Sons' Hall September 3. William R. Crosby acted as toastmaster, and among the speakers were: Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan, Grand Trustee Frank M. Carr, J. Cal. Ewing, District Attorney Ezra Decota, Grand Second Vice-president Harry G. Williams, J. Westlake, D. C. Flynn, Ernest Wollitz, Gene Van Court, Maurice Bluell, Chester Case. Dancing and musical specialties were provided by Professor McGinley and his daughters, Thelma and Rose, and Willie Lewis.

Has Mountain Outing.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead 110's annual Admission Day outing was held September 4 and 5 at Big Bear, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Knight being host and hostess of the occasion, and gave their guests a wonderful time. At noon of the 5th a barbecue, prepared by "Chefs" John Poppett, Ed Poppett, Herman Taylor and Frank Clark, was served; 381 sat down, 115 of the number being members of Arrowhead Parlor. Jerome B. Kavanaugh delivered the only address of the day. At night there was a dance.

Ed. Grimes, a member of Arrowhead, extended the Parlor an invitation to be his guest at his Bear Valley ranch next year, and it was accepted unanimously, and with salvos of applause.

Has Attractive Social Program.

San Jose—September 14 Observatory 177 entertained a large delegation from Palo Alto who came to extend fraternal greetings, and the officers to exemplify the ritual for the benefit of a class of candidates. The Palo Alto ritual team maintained its reputation as one of the most efficient in the Order. Among the visitors was D.D.G.P. George W. Tinney, who takes a great interest in the Parlors in his district. More than a hundred members of Observatory were in attendance, and all assembled did justice to an excellent banquet, served at the close of initiation.

A goodly number of Observatory's members celebrated Admission Day at Alum Rock Park with a supper-dance. The Parlor has inaugurated its fall and winter social functions, for which it has a statewide reputation, and many attractions are in the making for its members, including a ball complimentary to the women friends of the Parlor, whist party, theater party, an evening at the country home of one of its members, and the annual benefit for the homeless children.

Adds Many Members.

Eureka—Through the efforts of Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker, the ranks of Humboldt 14 have been considerably augmented. During August twenty-two candidates were initiated, an additional twenty-five were added in September, and the good work is to continue.

In conjunction with Occident 28, N.D.G.W., Humboldt Parlor gave a dance the night of Admission Day for the homeless children's benefit, and it was a complete success in every particular.

Tells of State's History.

Redding—In celebration of Admission Day, McCloud 149 and Hiawatha 140, N.D.G.W., enjoyed a theater party. During the evening appropriate musical numbers were introduced, and Grand Trustee Arthur M. Dean delivered an instructive address on the history of California.

Popular Member Given Farewell.

Menlo Park—Progressive Menlo 185 added two members to its roll September 16, one of the candidates being Edwin, the son of President Charles Smith. There was a large attendance of members, and after the meeting their number was augmented by practically the whole community, who gathered at the invitation of the Parlor to bid farewell to one of its most honored and respected members, Rev. Father William P. Sullivan, who has gone to make his home in Rochester, New York. The Parlor presented him with a silver-mounted fountain pen, which he promised to use frequently in communicating with the Parlor.

A committee was appointed to act with Menlo 211, N.D.G.W., in arranging a banquet for the baseball team; the ball team of Palo Alto 216 will be honored guests on this occasion. Grand Organizer Andrew Mocker has been in Menlo Park arranging for a membership campaign; it is predicted at least twenty recruits will be enrolled.

Dance for Children's Benefit.

Monterey—Admission Day was celebrated here with a dance given under the auspices of Monterey 75 for the benefit of the homeless children. The auditorium was appropriately decorated, there was an immense crowd, and a goodly sum was realized for this most worthy of all "kiddy" charities.

Opens Social Season.

Santa Rosa—Santa Rosa 28 opened the social season September 1 with a banquet and dance which was attended by 200. C. O. Dunbar was chairman of the evening, and introduced as the chief speaker Superior Judge Emmet Seawell, who told of the importance of Sonoma County in California's history. Grand Marshal Hubert B. Scudder (Sebastopol 143) spoke of Admission Day. The committee in charge of the affair was: John Hawkes, John Seegelken, William Lindsay.

Getting to the Front.

Mountain View—With its handsome new banner, Mountain View 215 joined with Palo Alto 216 in the San Francisco Admission Day parade forty strong. The Parlors made a fine showing. Mountain View is rapidly assuming its rightful place as the leading fraternity in this community. Financial Secretary Otis Fellows is justly proud of the fact that the Parlor, with more than 100 members, has not a single one out of standing. A membership drive will soon be launched, and it is expected thirty-five or forty new names will be added to the membership-roll.

Mountain View meets the second and fourth Fridays; at the same times and in the same place El Monte 205, N.D.G.W., holds forth. After their respective meetings the Parlors join in a social session, hence there is always a large attendance and good-fellowship reigns supreme. Any Native Son or Native Daughter in Mountain View on either of these meeting nights will find a cordial welcome awaiting at these Parlors' home.

IF YOU'RE WITH US, VOTE FOR INITIATIVE NO. 1.

Editor The Grizzly Bear:

Enclosed find $1 for subscription for one year. I admire the splendid and telling fight you are waging against the Jap invasion, and hope you will continue your good efforts until we have cleared our beloved California of that yellow slant-eyed race.

I am with you, to preserve our glorious country for American citizens with good warm, red, American blood in their veins.

Respectfully,
HENRY WULFF.

Venice, California, August 16.

Entertains at Country Home.

San Francisco—United States Senator James D. Phelan (Pacific 10) entertained about one hundred members of the Order, including several Admission Day visitors, at dinner at his palatial Saratoga, Santa Clara County, home September 12. Autos conveying the guests left Native Sons' Building at 10:30 a. m. The outing was immensely enjoyed.

Berkeley Makes Big Showing.

Berkeley—Berkeley 210, with a month's preparation, demonstrated in the Admission Day parade in San Francisco that interest can still be kept alive in these annual celebrations. With more than fifty members, representing 25 per cent of the membership, Berkeley Parlor made the second largest showing numerically, and the largest showing from a membership percentage, in the Alameda County division of the parade. The Berkeley Parlor members, garbed in cap and gown and with streamers of blue and gold streaming from their banner carriage, were led by thirty members of Bear Flag 151, N.D.G.W., garbed in blue and gold and seated on an artistically-decorated float typifying their home city as the seat of learning of this great Golden State.

September 7 Berkeley Parlor held its fifth annual Admssiou Day bauquet. It was prepared by a caterer and served in Native Sons' Hall. More than a hundred members were present, and had with them, as invited guests, the Stockton 7 ritualistic team, numbering eleven. These Stockton members made the trip of eighty-seven miles by auto-bus, arriving at 7:15 in the shadows of the campanile as the chimes were ringing their departure to the sun sinking beyond the Golden Gate. President W. C. Latham, after welcoming the guests of the evening, appointed Jack Brennan toastmaster, and he, in turn, introduced the speakers of the evening: D.D.G.P. A. T. Souza of Alameda 47 and Judge William H. Waste and Philip M. Carey of Berkeley Parlor. The banquct was concluded with three star entertainment numbers. The meeting being called at 9:45, the Stockton Parlor degree team initiated seven candidates for Berkeley. Their rendition of the ritualistic work was letter-perfect, and the visiting team received due commendation for their efforts from Third Grand Vice-president William J. Hayes. Four of the Stockton members remained to make arrangements for that Parlor's participation in the San Francisco Admission Day festivities, and the remainiug seven "good children" departed homeward at the midnight hour.

NATIVE SONS NEWS

PERSONAL MENTION.

Judge J. M. Morrissey (Marysville 6) of Marysville was in San Francisco for Admission Day.

Louis H. Mooser (Past Grand President) of San Francisco is recovering from a serious operation.

William P. Caubu (Junior Past Grand President) of San Francisco was a visitor last month to Seattlc, Washington.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

SUITS HAVE THE DISTINCT ADVANTAGE of being fur collared, which is merely another way of saying that they are bound to be becoming to any and every woman who adopts the high fastening and the stock finish. The dresses may not always have the soft fur frame, because its adoption would interfere with the wearing of the separate coat.

However, that will not prevent the try-out of the new type of autumn frock. In velveteen and velvet, it is especially lovely, built on one-piece lines cleverly belted to remove any suggestion of negligee or of bad cutting on the part of the ambitious amateur, who often thinks, because a finished garment looks simple in its completed state, it is the simplest thing in the world to make. Its very simplicity is its greatest attraction and its greatest snare.

Certain of the advance models appear to indicate which way the winds are blowing the fashion straws. An attractive frock, of midnight blue tricotine, has a skirt with back and front very finely plaited, the sides hanging straight and trimmed with silk tassels where they join the front and back sections. The blouse, an odd little affair with the neck slightly "V" and draped with a piece of the tricotine in handkerchief effect, has short sleeves and a peplum belted with a string of the fabric.

Another frock, of tan silk duvetyn, is literally covered with rather large disks of rattail braid, applied in allover effect. The model is in chemise shape, with a nine-inch facing of plain duvetyn to match the sleeves. The extreme feature of the frock is the collar, cut in a deep, wide stock that wrinkles about the throat and which, apparently, is slightly boned at the sides and the back.

Like many of the models now appearing, this frock is fastened down the back with small ball buttons of nickel, or other white metal. These buttons, by the way, are being used not only on cloth dresses but on those of satin as well.

Satin dresses will be well in the foreground of fashion for the next few months, when they will be equaled in popularity by those of velvet and velveteen. Black, dark blue, and brown are mentioned as the likely colors, but one must also give a thought to dull green.

Already we know that a lot of braiding and stitchery will be among the signs of high fashions, and if one cannot essay the embroideries done by hand, it will be permissible to wear frocks and suits with the work done on the machine. Many of the machine embroideries, however, are so well executed that only an expert can distinguish them from the genuine sort.

There is reason to believe that the blouse type of bodice and the youthful jacket will be maintained for the next few months. It is definitely settled, too, that we are to wear our skirts shorter, and that their width will be regulated by the style of the garment. For dressy day frocks and for evening wear, the skirts will be relatively narrow.

Separate coats, whether of cloth, velvet, satin, or fur, will be of comfortable shape, permitting them to be worn over the suit, dress, or evening gown. They will be as sumptuous as the taste and purse of the possessor will permit.

Almost needless to remark, brocades and metalized tissues will form a glittering part of the evening attire. Gold designs are particularly effective done on taupe-colored satins. Crepe satins are produced this season in plain colors, with a raised or flat design; this is a favorite satin, by reason of its wearing qualities. A charming and also economical idea is shown in a wide ribbon of splendid weave and color, used to decorate.

Chantilly lace and jetted tulles are likewise indicated for the dressy hats. When not plume trimmed, they frequently show great bows of ribbon in silver gray, turquoise blue, jade green, dahlia, and the like. Very effective, indeed, for semi-dress occasions, aside from black velvet, there are hats of light tan faced with black and black trimmed.

The prospects for golden hues are very bright, indeed, and the names given them should establish a vogue, were other incentives lacking. There are, for example, blond brown, honey dew, and colonial buff. They are prettier in the fine, satiny duvetyns and suede cloths than in the velvets, and it is not a secret that the hats of cloth are to be popular, and nearly always they will be stressed in color, neutral or black, or in certain of the rusty reds, earth brown, or the new rich, dull greens.

Flowers having been so popular during the summer, we now have a wiuter variety, for wreathing both dress and tailored shapes. Orchids, dahlias, and large roses are among the blooms for the approaching season.

For hours of ease, there are delightful negligees. For one thing, there is greater variety, the fabrics running from fine cloths to transparent gauzes, silks and crepes, with beautiful lace and embroideries. The one rest-robe that dispenses with garniture is that made of batik silk—so complete in its own unique coloring and weave.

Colors are whatever one chooses to wear, and the same may be said of lines. Sleeves have grown shorter, almost to the vanishing point, and the collars show greater depth, the fichu and sailor being much in evidence. One may wear the negligee long or short, in one or two pieces, loose or sashed.

The process of elimination in underwear has reduced the demand to a combination chemise, brassiere and nightdress, without sleeves. The wish to do away with superfluous material has been responsible for the lack of shoulder straps of ribbon. As a general rule, they are now finished with an elastic top that easily dispenses with shoulder fixings.

For dress wear, the corsets remain very long of hip and low of bust. Bones are used sparingly, for the effect must be that of the softly-corseted figure. The white corset is rivaled by the pink one; or, perhaps, it is the other way round. And now, too, there is the corset of yellow satin. Silk tricot is again used for corsets of the sports order. Coutil and silk broche remain the leading fabrics, with batiste strongly featured.

Veilings, in warm brown shades, have metal patterns in rich bronze color. Draped veils have bindings and neck bandings of narrow gros-grain ribbon.

A chemise dress of French serge in light Holland color with cerise pipings, has clusters of fruit placed at the right of the belt; it is very effective. Steel buttons are used on a black tricot suit, embroidered in gray chenille. A skirt of light tan cheviot is worn with a knee-length jacket of brown cheviot.

One interesting suit has applique trimming of leather and silk, with wool pom poms. Broad sashes of black faille, brocaded in silver, are worn with gowns of brocaded silver cloths. Pale-toned taffeta basques are worn with silk or lace skirts. An overblouse of tricolette is trimmed with crocheted roses of silk.

Rose has always retained its popularity, and when a costume carries that shade throughout the make-up, from head to toe, the study is a fascinating one.

Some of the new colors, which are such as have never before appeared in connection with women's wearing apparel, are these: "Folly," the vivid red of ripe cherries; corral verging upon American beauty; "Egypt," a ravishing shade of Oriental blue; "Cochin," a golden brown like that breed of hen.

About the only moderate style on exhibition is the development of the tam-o-shanter made of velvet, fairly full, and embroidered over the entire surface with a scroll design of gold or silver. Motor coats are seen with large cape collars.

N. D. PAST GRANDS BANQUET.

San Francisco—The N.D.G.W. Past Grand Presidents' dinner Admission Day was a most enjoyable affair. Past Grand President May C. Boldemann acted as hostess, and arranged many appropriate decorations for the occasion. Flags of the country and state were in evidence everywhere, and also the colors of California. Miniature favors told the story of the Indians, and the coming of the Pioneers.

Topics for the advancement of the good of the Order were discussed and a delightful reunion was enjoyed by the following Past Grand Presidents: Clara K. Wittenmyer, Mae B. Wilken, Ema Gett, Eliza D. Keith, Stella Finkeldey, Ariana Stirling, Anna Gruber-Foley, Alison F. Watt, May C. Boldemann, Margaret Grote-Hill, Mamie Pierce-Carmichael, Grace S. Stoermer, Mary E. Bell. Past Grands Emma Humphrey and Olive Matlock sent greetings from their homes, expressing regret of their inability to be present.

There's beauty all around our paths, if but our watchful eyes can trace it 'midst familiar things, and through their lowly guise.—Felicia D. Hemans.

For the Good of California

To Voters:

Amendment No. 4 on tho ballot this yoar reflects in no degreo upon the Initiative. It simply soeks to protect tho overwhelming majority of the good poople of this State against tho ever disturhing 8% minority. Tbe opponents of Amendment No. 4, who are all 09%) single taxors, claim it is an attack upon the Initistivo. If the Pooplo's Anti-Siugle Tax League wsnted to attack the Initiative, it would put forth s law similar to thoso that are in effect in Ohio, Missouri, Montsns, South Dakota, New Mexico, Arksnsas and Colorado, wherein the initiativo law canuot he nssd in matters pertaining to the ssscssment snd collection of taxes. Amendment No. 4 raises the porcentage of signatures from 8% to 25% on all initiative measures pertaining to taxation only. It does not affect the referendum in any manner. It is aimed directly at the single tax menace.

In 1912 a little group of well-intentioned but mislod citizens, encouraged hy s foreign fund obtained from a millionaire soap manufacturer, who helieved his soap factory should he exempt from taxation, circulated a petition for tbe suhmission of the single tax proposition. They secured the requisite 8% of signatures and after a full, fres snd intelligent discussion, the question wss voted upon and defeated by a great majority with a cost to tbe state and citizens of California of over $100,000. This same thing happened sgain in 1914, 1916 and 1918, and in 1920 it has again been placed upon the hallot hy the 8% minority, as land values taxation, or single tax.

No Californian expects single tax to carry; still, it may, and the financial world looks on and takes note only that a very dangerous and persistent element exists within the state.

Recognizing tbe fact that single tax would confiscate land values witbin tbe state, if carried, financial institutions tbat loan money upon state securities would pass judgmeut upon tbe credit of tbe state, witb tbat contingency in view. California, in common with most Commonwealths, is in some degree dependent upon outside capital with which to make developments. She must float hond issues. Just now the market for National, Stats and Municipal honds is very bad. Only those of the most conservative can he sold at any price. Bond houses are very discriminating. These houscs do not huy with tbeir own money. They huy for their clients, and their clients will take snything that these houses will recommend, provided they promise a satisfactory rate of return. These bond bouses never offer anything involving even a remote element of douht. You know, or sbould know, that these bouses will never offer to their clients the honds of a State that every two years votes on a proposition of confiscating land values and repudiating obligations. Tbe one involves the other. You bave only to recognize that a man who has a mortgage on his ranch will be compelled to repudiate as soon as the value of bis laud is gone, and tbe State that votes land values away will be compelled likewise to repudiate its hond issues. It cannot redeem them after land values cease to exist.

Botb reason and experience teacb us tbat taxes cannot be collected from land that has no market value, and no one will huy at a tax sale that has no market value. Every investor or hond bouse will concede to California the right to suhmit to popular vote this question of single tax or confiscation and repndiation as often as it pleases, but they will reserve to themselves the right to pass npon the credit of any state that suhmits to the electorate every two years a revolutionary proposition of tbis cbsracter.

Tbe greatest good tbat you, Mr. Voter, can do for tbe State of California at this time—to increase tbe credit and confidence of ths State—is to work tirelessly for the adoption of Amendment No. 4, and against Amendment No. 20.

ATHLETIC CLUB FOR S. F. NATIVES

(CHANCELLOR K. GRADY.)

PLANS ARE WELL UNDER WAY FOR the establishment of a Native Sons' Athletic Club in San Francisco, a joint committee having been hard at work for the past two months. It is the plan of this committee to erect a modern clubhouse, thoroughly equipped, for the benefit of the Native Sons.

To Julius M. Liebert, past president of Bay City Parlor, No. 104, must go the credit of starting this moveuient, which is destined to do big things for the Order, not only in San Francisco, but throughout the state. He, in common with many other prominent members of the Order, was long impressed with the necessity of providing a means of knitting the members in a closer fellowship, and an additional argument why every eligible Californian should belong to the Order. Consequently, his call for the formation of a joint committee to undertake the establishment of an athletic club called forth an enthusiastic response from those whose thoughts had led them along the same lines. An unusually alert and purposeful committee was brought together, and the task of providing this vital accessory to the Order is now well under way.

Circular letters and membership cards in the new club have been sent to every Parlor, and mailed to each member by the several Parlor secretaries, outlining the plans which the committee has formulated. The cards when signed are returned to the secretary of the joint committee, and pledge the signer to join the club and to pay an initiation fee of $25 when snificient signatures have been secured to insure the success of the plan. Already a gratifying number of cards have been returned to the secretary.

The committee has a tentative plan which calls for the purchase of a site near the Native Sons' Building on Mason street, and the erection of a two-story building, with a salt water swimmiug tank 100x35 feet, or as large as any in the city. The building will be equipped with all the modern paraphernalia, including lockers and dressing-rooms, bowling alleys, handball and basketball courts, boxing and wrestling equipmcnt, and a modern gymnasium. It is estimated that at least $175,000 will be required to erect and equip the club, including the cost of the site. To raise the necessary funds to enable the committee to carry on its preliminary work, a boxing carnival is planned for the near future. A committee consisting of Grand Trustee J. A. Wilson, J. J. May and Paul McEvoy has beeu appointed to arrange for this exposition, and the joint committee is confident the affair will be a great success.

Grand Trustee Edward J. Lynch is chairman of the ways and means committee, and the other members are H. S. Spalding, J. B. Hauer and J. J. May. To this committee is intrusted the responsibility for the financing of the club. Past experience with the work of these members is assurance that they will leave no stone unturned to make possible the success of the work upon which they are engaged.

Officers of the joiut committee are Julius M. Liebert chairman, Chancellor K. Grady secretary; the late Grand Secretary Fred H. Jung was treasurer. Following are the members of the committee and the Parlors they represent: California 1, R. C. La Torres, Wm. H. Gebhardt. Pacific 10, Grand Trustee Edward J. Lynch, Chancellor K. Grady. LAW AND ORDER IN 1849 TOPIC OF U. C. LECTURER.

How law and order came to California after 1849, and how the State contributed to the cause of the Union in its support of the Government during the Civil War, will be among the topics discussed in lectures to be delivered before clubs and organizations throughout the state this fall by Miss Mary F. Williams of the University of California under the auspices of the Extension Division.

Miss Williams, the only woman recipient of a doctor of philosophy degree in the Department of History at the State University, is the daughter of a Pioneer, Lieutenant Williams, who came to California in 1847 with Colonel Stevenson's regiment. As a student under the late Professor Henry Morse Stephens, Dr. Williams made a special study of California's gold fields and here solved their problems of democracy fought out among the 400,000 men who suddenly rushed to California's gold fields and here solved their problems of self-government and decency.

In Memoriam

FRED H. JUNG, Grand Secretary, N.S.G.W.

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has called from our midst our dearly beloved and respected brother, Fred H. Jung, who was Grand Secretary of the Native Sons of the Golden West, thus removing from earthly labor and the counsel of our beloved Order one of our most devoted and loyal members and a true and faithful friend; and the sorrow we feel of his untimely passing from this life renders us inadequate and unequal to the task of properly recording the irreparable loss sustained by the Native Sons of the Golden West, the office of Grand Secretary which he so ably filled, the interests of our beloved Order which he labored so faithfully and untiringly to

FRED H. JUNG, Grand Secretary, N.S.G.W.

To the Officers and Members of Yosemite Parlor No. 24, N.S.G.W.—We, the committee appointed to draft resolutions of condolence and respect to the memory of our departed brother, Fred H. Jung, Grand Secretary of the Native Sons of the Golden West, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst our friend and brother, Fred H. Jung; and whereas, Brother Jung was the beloved Grand Secretary of the Native Sons of the Golden West, having acted in that capacity for the past eleven years; as one of the Order's most untiring workers he attended the Grand Parlor each year with mind and heart devoted to the best interests and to the progress of the Order he loved so well, and those who encountered his greeting, his warm handclasp and his hearty cheer will feel the loss in the going of this brother to his eternal rest; and whereas, we have lost a good and true brother, his family a dutiful loving son and brother, and the community a most loyal citizen who, on account of his many activities, will be greatly missed; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That Yosemite Parlor, No. 24, Native Sons of the Golden West, hereby extends its sincerest sympathy to the bereaved relatives in their hour of sorrow; resolved, that while we record our deepest grief because of his death, we express our greatest admiration for those exceptional qualities which he possessed and which were ever used in the interest of the Order and the native state he loved so well, and will serve as an inspiration to those with whom he was associated; resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the members of his family, a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine, and that they be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor.

from San Bernardino. They reported that the ancient ship was built of teak wood and was in a sound condition. Its bow and stern were visible above the drifted sand. It was 240 miles from the Gulf of California, was supposed to be one of the fleet that Cortez sailed up the Mexican coast in 1533, and drifted up the Gulf of California to its present location.

October 2 at Marysville, Yuba County, a little girl 4 years old named Jennie Verus bad her clothes catch fire from matches she was playing with and was dangerously burned.

Valentine Hanlon, a lad living in San Francisco, October 4 was attacked by a vicious dog and had a leg so badly torn it was feared he would be crippled for life.

A lad named Tynan at Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, while playing circus fell from a trapeze and broke his arm.

A boy named Wm. Hunt, at Sacramento, while playing pegtop was struck on his temple by the peg of a top thrown by another boy, making a dangerous wound half an inch deep.

George Engle, a 11-year-old lad, was fishing from the end of the Market-street wharf, San Francisco, October 6 with a companion near his own age. The latter slipped and fell into the water. George plunged in after him, and being able to swim saved his little friend from drowning.

ARE PARLORS INTERESTED? ASKS PUBLICITY CHAIRMAN.

Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, chairman of the Grand Parlor Press and Publicity Committee, wishes to express through The Grizzly Bear Magazine appreciation to the following Subordinate Parlors for appointment of their Press Committee: Golden State 50 (San Francisco), Yosemite 83 (San Francisco), Vendome 100 (San Jose), Hayward 122, Vista del Mar 155 (Halfmoon Bay), Encinal 156 (Alameda), Sequoia 160 (Mokelumne Hill), San Juan Bautista 179, Laura Loma 182 (Niles), El Dorado 186 (Georgetown), Vallejo 195, Phoebe A. Hearst 214 (Manteca). Is the committee to assume, asks Past Grand President Stoermer, that the other Parlors of the Order are not interested in its advancement?

Ten weeks have elapsed since Grand President Bertha A. Briggs requested of the Parlors their hearty co-operation in these words: "That we may increase our membership, instill good-fellowsbip in our hearts, aud promote our standing in the community." There is only one way to accomplish these things, and that is through publicity. Before the next issue of The Grizzly Bear the chairman is hopeful that every Parlor will be represented on the list.

The chairman takes extreme pleasure, too, in thanking a number of the district chairmen for their responsive enthusiasm and co-operation in submitting to the press the "Admission Day Bulletin"; many papers made use of the excellent article pertaining to Admission Day prepared by Grand Trustee Anna G. Andresen of Salinas, chairman of the Grand Parlor's California History Committee. Bulletin No. 2 will carry a story of absorbing interest to every Californian concerned with the advancement of the state and her future citizens.

In the list of district publicity chairmen published in the September Grizzly Bear, the names of the following were inadvertantly omitted:

San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura Counties—Miss Anna McCaughey, Santa Barbara.

Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino Counties—Mrs. Annie L. Adair, Los Angeles.

San Diego, Riverside, Imperial Counties—Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, San Diego.

Mariposa, Merced, Madera Counties—Mrs. Mary A. Clough, Merced.

Fresno, Tulare, Kern, Kings Counties—Florence A. Brooks, Fresno.

Admission Day Regularly Observed.

Sonora—Dardanelle 66 observed Admission Day in the regulation manner, with parade and literary exercises, September 10. The parade was headed by a band—toy drum and accordeon, played by two members; then came The Flag, followed by the Minerva float—a decorated baby carriage with a large doll dressed as Minerva; several members, dressed in pioneer fashion, followed, escorting the Pioneer float—a miniature prairie schooner; then came more members and visitors, escorting the Native Sons' float, the chief attraction of which was a teddy bear bolding a State (Bear) Flag. The paraders proceeded to the meeting-place of Tuolumne 144, N.S.G.W., and after serenading its members invited them to spend the evening with Dardauelle Parlor. (The correspondent refuses to state how many responded, but the Native Daugbters are very proud of one Native Son.)

Returning to the hall, which was filled with members, prospective members and visitors, the following program was enjoyed: "Star Spangled Banner" and salute to The Flag, assemblage; introductory remarks, Marguerite Pease, president Dardanelle Parlor; address, "California," Mrs. Hannab Doyle, orator of the day; vocal solos, "Tripoli" and "Louisiana," Mary Newman; reading, "California's First Admission Day," Claire Borchers; vocal solos, "California" and "Lonesome," Louise Pease; reading, "Message From a Pioneer Motber," Mrs. Emelia Burden; vocal solos, "Wondering" and "Memories," Cora Willy; reading, "Just California," Clotilda Boekman; chorus, "Native Land," assemblage. Whist was then played, Fannie Miller of Anona 164 (Jamestown) winning the first prize and Gertrude Callahan the consolation.

Has Dual Celebration.

San Francisco—Orinda 56 celebrated jointly, September 2, Mother's Day and its thirtietb institution anniversary with a banquet attended by forty-three. Mothers, guests of the Parlor, included: Mesdames Helene Varms, May Meadows, Jennie C. Morgan, Elizabeth Johnson, Fanny Munter, Theresa Wichrowski, Kate Britschgi, Ida Cordy, Gertrude Haslam and Charlotte Gunther, the latter four being members of the Parlor. Charter members in attendance as guests were: Mrs. Kate Britschgi, Past Grand President Emma Gruber-Foley and Miss Anna Grnber. D.D.G.P. Edith Griffin was also an invited guest. Others present included: Mesdames Mary C. Connertin, Emily Fauda, Mande R. Daly, Kitty Maiu, Edna Bishop, Adeline Johnson Dryer, Minnie Gerran, Blanche Clevenger, Laura M. Landers, Leah Hudson, Orinda Gunther Giannini, Carrie Wessell, Emma Lundy, Julia Pries, Abbie Hayes; Misses Emma Dellwig, Mae Josepb, Verena Britschgi, Gladys Cordy, Charlotte Gunther, Catharine C. Landers, Goldie Munter, Gwenita Allen, Evelyn Hayes, Mae L. Hayes, Nadine Wichrowski, Alma Reimers; little Miss Orinda Landers; Theo. Dellwig and Master Joseph Hayes.

Orinda Parlor has the proud distinction of claiming three generations by the following members: Mrs. Kate Hoek-Britschgi and Miss Verena Britschgi; Mrs. Ida Munn-Cordy and Miss Gladys Cordy; Mrs. Gertrude Meadows-Haslam and Miss Bernice Haslam; and in the maternal grandmothers, Mesdames Hock, Munn and Meadows, respectively of the Misses Britschgi, Cordy and Haslam.

Welcomed by Large Number.

Ferndale—On the occasion of Grand President Bertha A. Briggs' official visit to Oneonta 71 sbe was greeted by a large number of its members and a goodly delegation from Golden Rod 165 (Alton). The Grand President was presented with a cut-glass perfume jar, and in a most gracious manner respounded to the presentation address. In honor of her birthday, Second Vice-president Jessie Goble was presented with a boquet.

In the banquet-room, where a feast of good things was provided, the table was attractively decorated with a boquet of cut flowers as a centerpiece, with sprays of greenery running gracefully outward, intermingled with ribbons of tbe colors of the Order. The evening was greatly eujoyed, and voted by those present one of the most successful in the history of Oneonta Parlor.

Pioneers Guests at Annual Function.

Salinas—Forty Pioneer men and women, through whose sufferings and perseverance California was made possible, were guests of Aleli 102 and Santa Lucia 97, N.S.G.W., September 11, carrying out a long-established custom for the observance of Admission Day. The gathering was called to order by Mrs. J. D. Kalar, president Aleli Parlor, and the following program was presented: Chorus, "Golden Gate"; words of welcome, Grand Trustee Anna G. Andresen; vocal solo, "An Old-Fashioned Town," Miss Katharine Gross; vocal duet, "Old Melodies," Mesdames Anna Soberanes and Addie Fowler; words of welcome, H. W. Collins of Santa Lucia Parlor; vocal solo, Mrs. J. J. O'Brien; vocal duet, "Mother Machree," Mesdames R. N. Kennedy and Wilbur Larkin; songs of long ago, led by chorus of Mesdames Kennedy, Larkin, Soberanes, Sherwood and Miss Katherine Gross.

To the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" and led by 92-year-old J. R. Hebbron and 86-year-old Mrs. Matt Williams, mother of Past Grand President Ariana W. Stirling of Berkeley, all repaired to the dining-room where, in a splendid address, Pioneer Hebbron thanked the Native Sons and Native Daughters for remembering the Pioneers, and favored the audience by singing "Would I Were a Boy Again," a song of the old days. The dining-room presented an artistic appearance, with its elaborate decorations in autumnal effects. Mrs. Julia Larkin had charge of the program, Mrs. Nellie Sherwood of the decorations, while the refreshments were prepared and served by a committee consisting of Annie Watson, Mary Hutchings, Winifred Ollason, Linda Anderson, Mildred Young, Daisy Rosendale, Anna G. Andresen and May Bernard.

Alta Was in Line.

San Francisco—Alta 3 made a very creditable showing in the Admission Day parade, in conjunction with California 1, N.S.G.W. Natty costumes consisting of white skirts, with smocks and hats of poppy yellow, blended with the white suits of the Native Sons, producing a very pleasing effect. Lucile Loo, Marie Cuneo, Corlette Bevans and Margaret Nelson, daughters of members of the Parlor, acted as an escort to Alta's handsome banner. Several members appeared on a float with other representatives of the Past Presidents' Association. Mary Howell, Maud Hussey and Margaret Sullivan were on the committee of arrangements for Admission Day's observance.

Alta Parlor has appointed a press and publicity committee consisting of Grace S. Williams, Margaret Grant and Isabel Pomeroy.

Kitchen Shower for Bride.

Hollister—Copa de Oro 105 gave a kitchen sbower August 27 in honor of Mrs. Warren S. McConnell, and she received many useful bousebold articles. A watermelon feast was provided in the banquet-room, whicb was appropriately decorated. Over the bride's ehair was a large paper bell; responding to instructions to pull a string to ring tbe bell, she released, and was showered with, a great quantity of rice.

Productive Acres Shown Visitor.

Oroville—Grand President Bertha A. Briggs officially visited Gold of Ophir 190 September 15, and in the eourse of an interesting and stirring address outlined the work and aims of the Order, which she lauded as made up of some of the finest women in the country. After the meeting adjournment was taken to a refreshment parlor, where Mrs.

Florence Boyle, on behalf of the Parlor, presented the Grand President with a silver jelly spoon.

While in Oroville, Mrs. Briggs was a guest at the home of Mrs. Alta Baldwin. During tho day she was taken by Mrs. Margaret Gilbert for an auto tour of the city and the surrounding wonderful orange and olive groves that have mado the county seat of Butte County famous.

Has Float in Admission Day Parade.

San Francisco—Keith 137 was represented in the Admission Day parade with a picturesque float filled with these members, attired in organdie dresses made alike but of different shades: Helen Fairbairn, Jeannette Lochbaum, Bertha Mauser, Lillian Herzog, Jennie Giusto, Genevieve Martell, Helen Mann, Tillie Meyer, Elizabeth Graham, Alice Gally, Susanna Dow, Mrs. Schroeder. From the Parlor's banner hung garlands fashioned by the "girls" from Marin County greenery.

Genevieve Carroll, a member of Keith Parlor, has been appointed principal of one of the public schools. She is the fourth Native Daughter to be thus honored in San Francisco.

Modoc Pioneers Honored.

Alturas—Pioneers of Modoc County were guests of Alturas 159 at a reunion and luncheon Admission Day. About forty responded, and after partaking of a delicious chicken dinner, the guests were escorted to the lodge-room, beautifully decorated with great quantities of golden glow, where a program was presented. Three seats of honor were provided, and when it was decided by those present that T. C. Hess Sr., Mrs. Minerva Ivory and Mrs. Elizabeth Sapper were entitled to them, having been the longest in California, they were escorted to the seats to the accompaniment of a spirited march and greeted with applanse.

Rev. G. N. Gardner opened the program with a prayer, which was followed by old-time songs by a quartet consisting of Mrs. Robison, Mrs. Hallie Smith, Rev. Gardner and C. N. Jackson. Songs by Miss Beauel Gibbons and the Misses Orth followed, after which Mrs. Hallie Smith, president of Alturas Parlor, in a few words introduced Mrs. Ella Sloss, who delivered a beautiful address. F. M. Jamison delivered the Admission Day oration, after which three little girls—Ynid Wylie, Dorris French and Dorothy Ballard—recited a verse in unison and presented the flowers they carried to the gnests of honor. Miss Dorothy Gloster, to a piano accompaniment by Mrs. Robison, gave a reading of old favorites, after which Mr. Hess related some of his experiences while crossing the plains in 1843. Colonel William Thompson told of the relations between the white men and Indians in pioneer days and commented upon the latter's state today. As a final nnmher, all present, led by Grand Trustee Catherine E. Gloster, stood for a moment in silent tribute to the loved ones who had crossed over the divide.

FORGET NOT, AND DO YOUR DUTY!

Remember that the anti-Jap initiative measure is Number One on the Novemher hallot. The future well-heing of California demands not only the passage of this measure, hut its approval hy an enormous vote—one that will express, in no uncertain terms, California's sentiment.

IT IS YOUR DUTY TO NOT ONLY GO TO THE POLLS AND VOTE FOR THIS MEASURE, BUT TO SEE THAT EVERY OTHER CITIZEN IN YOUR VOTING PRECINCT DOES LIKEWISE.

If the measure is defeated it will he solely hecause real Americanism—the exercise of the right to vote—is at low ehh in California. If you are one hundred percent American the measure will he approved hy The People with the largest majority ever rolled up—and it should he.

President Surprised.

San Francisco—The following officers of Twin Peaks 185 have been installed by D.D.G.P. May L. Nohle, assisted by Grand Organist Rebecca Kemp Van Ee: Harriet D. Cote, P.P.; Eugenie Schwarz, P.; Clara Jones, 1V.P.; Agnes Dougherty, 2V.P.; Winifred Machlow, 3V.P.; Frances M. Kenny, R.S.; Helen Beck, F.S.; Sarah Dougherty, T.; Signia Prang, M.; Nora G. Cooper, Etta Milley, Hazel Tobin, Trs.; May Regli, O.; Mary De Marais, I.S.; Catherine Carr, O.S. Among the visitors were delegations from Golden State 50, Buena Vista 68, Yosemite 83 and Castro 178 Parlors.

After the regular order of business refreshments were served. Addresses were made by Presidents Marguerite Kaufman and Hutchings of Yosemite and Castro Parlors, and Past Presidents Neilson and Moller of Buena Vista and Golden State Parlors. President Eugene Schwarz presented D.D.G.P. Noble with a little token of esteem, and was completely surprised when Marshal Prang presented her with a beautiful hand-painted hasket of glace fruit. Members of Twin Peaks Parlor made a splendid showing in the Admission Day parade, appearing as escorts to Twin Peaks 214, N.S.G.W.

Pioneers by making social calls on them Admission Day and leaving bouquets of flowers. Each member was oxpected to call upon the Pionoers in her immediato neighborhood, so none would be slighted, for these little courtesies shed a radianeo on tho pathway of the aged, who often feel that the younger goneration has forgotten the hardships and dangers they endured to make this great state tho pleasant place to live in that it is today. May their declining years he full of peace and joy!

Chispa Parlor will give a grand hall in the Pavilion, Thanksgiving Eve.

Official Surprised.

San Franciseo—Septemher 14 Presidio 148 initiated two candidates. This heing the birthday anniversary of Recording Secretary Annie C. Henly, she was surprised with a gold emblem, tbe gift of the Parlor. D.D.G.P. May Noble made the presentation address, which elosed with an appropriate poem, "Just Like You." Tbe hall was profusely decorated, and among the good tbings served was a huge birthday cake, a gift of tbe members.

Historic Monterey Visited.

Monterey—Junipero 141 beld a most interesting meeting at the Custom House August 19, the occasion being tbe official visit of Grand President Bertha A. Briggs. The Grand President made ber first official visit of the year in honor of Junipero Parlor, and the historic meeting place and memories which surround Monterey.

The work of the Order was presented by her in a creditable manner, and at the close of the meeting members and guests were invited to the banquet-room, wbere delicious refreshments were served. The hall and banquet-room were beautifully decorated with red dahlias, buckleberry, peppers and pink lilies. Among the visitors were Grand Trustee Anna G. Andresen, President Clara Kalar, Mrs. Nellie Sherwood and Eugenia Sherwood of Aleli 102 (Salinas).

Bride Showered.

San Rafael—Marinita 198 gave a surprise shower in honor of Mrs. William Strittmatter (nee Miss Verna Nauert), a bride of a few months, and she was presented witb many beantiful gifts. Cards occupied a great part of the evening, and delicions refreshments were served.

Members of Marinita Parlor took part in the Admission Day parade in San Francisco. The maids and matrons looked very sweet and charming in their colored voile blouses and white skirts, with hats to match.

Unique Method to Increase Attendance.

San Francisco—Castro 178 is planning to hold a hazaar during the holidays to build up its treasury, for it realizes that to be an effective unit of the fraternity it must be financially able to assist in furthering all projects in wbich tbe Order is interested. The hall on meeting nights will soon present the appearance of a very busy workshop, for all the members are planning to "come early and stay late" and make the numberless articles that will he necessary to hold a successful bazaar.

This young, "live" Parlor is making rapid strides towards tbe front ranks of the Parlors of San Francisco, and will soon claim the distinction of being one of the large Parlors of the city. Althongh but ten years old, it now has a membership of 110, forty names having been added to the roll during the past year, and another class initiation is planned for the near future. It is not alone striving for a large membership, however, but an active membership, and to that end, as an incentive to bring members to the meetings, a drawing is held after eacb meeting; the lucky member the first meeting night is entitled to one month's dues, and at the second meeting of the month a chance on the painting, "Crossing the Plains." The latter prize serves the double purpose of bringing out the members and helping to dispose of tickets in the raffle of the picture, in which the whole Order is interested.

Working Earnestly to Build Up.

San Diego—The only celebration of Admission Day in this city was tho entertainment given by San Diego 208 and San Diego 108, N.S.G.W., at tho San Diego Club House, in honor of tho San Diego Pioneer Society. A short program consisting of vocal solos and addresses by leading Native Sons and Native Daughters preceded a dance in which old-fashioned waltzes, masurkas and Virginia reels predominated. Refreshments were served during the evening, and each guest was given a spray of golden poppies and ferns. Several applications for membership were received during the evening, and much interest manifested in the work of both Parlors. The affair was a very successful one, in point of uumbers and in the enthusiasm manifested, and the desire was expressed that another evening be set asido for the same purpose in the near future.

San Diego Parlor has five candidates ready for initiation and as many more applications to be balloted upon. All members are working earnestly to increase the membersbip, in order to place the Parlor where it should stand, among the leading fraternal organizations of the city.

Meet in Joint Session.

Pescadero—Grand President Bertha A. Briggs officially visited Ano Nuevo 180 of tbis place and Vista del Mar 155 (Halfmoon Bay) at a joint meeting here September 3. Sbe was accompanied by Juuior Past Grand President Mary E. Bell and Margaret Sullivan (Alta 3) of San Francisco, the former taking the party over in her auto. Among the other visitors was Dorris Barker (Bonita 10) of Redwood City.

Grand President Briggs was the recipient of a cut-glass bowl from Ano Nuevo Parlor and a boquet from Vista del Mar Parlor; the other visitors were remembered with boquets. On behalf of Ano Nnevo D.D.G.P. Mamie Dias presented President Ida Mesquite of that Parlor with a cut-glass bowl. A candidate—Lorene Roe—was initiated hy Ano Nuevo. After a few remarks hy Grand President Briggs and Past Grand President Bell, the party proceeded to La Honda, where Alex. Bonzagnia (Mt. Diablo 101, N.S.G.W.) served an Italian supper.

Has Program of Fall Activities.

San Francisco—Tbe evening of August 26 Buena Vista 68 tendered a reception and bauquet to its Grand Parlor delegates and the same evening initiated three candidates, bringing the total membership close to the 200 mark. At the conelusion of tbe meeting all adjourned to the banquet-room, where the table, laden with "goodies," was in readiuess. Present on this occasion were Past Grand Presidents Mary E. Bell, Dr. Mariana Bertola and Grace E. Stoermer, and D.D.G.P. Elizabeth Muller of Golden State 50. Too much credit cannot he given the committee, comprising Adele Campbell (chairman), Edna Urmy and Ella Wehe, for its efforts and splendid work in preparing the "feed" which was enjoyed by all.

Tbis was just one of the many enjoyable evenings the members of Buena Vista are having. The Parlor's bulletin refers to activities galore for the fall season, and all committees are husy preparing surprises for the members. A whist party for Septemher 23 and a past presidents' night were slated, and a theater party in October and a tea in honor of Past Grand President Mary E. Bell in Novemher are amoug the coming events. Mrs. May Noble is the energetic president of Buena Vista Parlor.

Remembers the Unfortunate.

Modesto—The few members of Morada 199 who remained at home observed Admission Day by distributing among the patients at the Stanislaus County Hospital beautifully arranged baskets of fruits and flowers.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. Mariana Bertola (Past Grand Presideut) of San Franeisco was among the California delegation that journeyed to Marion, Ohio, last month to greet Senator Harding, the Republican presidential candidate.

Mrs. J. H. Corcoran (Los Angeles 124) of Patterson, Stanislaus County, was among the Admission Day visitors to San Francisco.

Miss Graee S. Stoermer (Past Grand President) of Los Angeles has been appointed chairman of the history and landmarks department for the Los Angeles distriet, California Federation of Women's Clubs.

Rose Hewelke and Serena Travis (Alta 3) of San Franciseo have gone to Indianapolis as delegates for the Daughters of Veterans.

SUPPORT IS PLEDGED TO PASS ANTI-JAP LAND LAW

ONE OF THE MOST REPRESENTATIVE gatherings ever assemhled in Los Angeles City was the convention ealled by the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Associaton to formulate plans, and determine upon means, to bring to successful issue Initiative Measure Number One—the proposed anti-Jap land law—on the November ballot. The convention was held in tbe club-rooms of Post No. 8, American Legion, and was made up of about three hundred accredited delegates from at least one hundred organizations whieh are pledged to "swat tbe Japs" at the November election with American ballots.

"Realizing that the opposition is working against us day and night,' said the call for the convention, "under the inspiration of unlimited capital and with everything to gain and nothing to lose, let us arise to the occasion, and do our duty. Thus it is hoped that in our united efforts we may go 'over the top' in the November election with a majority of not less than half a milion, and thus arouse the people east of the Rockies to active sympathetic interest in the present greatest menace to our state—the yellow peril!"

In addition to several delegates-at-large, the State of California, Los Angeles County, Los Angeles City, Los Angeles City Couneil and the press were officially represented. Among other accredited delegates were those from:

Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association, Los Angeles County Employees' Association, Rosedale Branch Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association, Union League Club, Los Angeles Columbus Club, United Church Brotherhood of Pasadena, Democratic Couuty Central Committee, Republican County Central Commuittee, Eclectic Home Protective Association, Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity, Heavy Odd Contractors' Association, New York State Society, California League, Los Angeles City Employees' Association, San Diego Anti-Asiatic Association, Boyle Heights Improvement Association, California Cougress of Mothers, Parent-eachers' Association, Ebell Club.

Native Sons of the Golden West: Los Angeles, Ramona, Corona Parlors (Los Angeles City). Native Daughters of the Golden West, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Knights of Pytbias (the several Los Angeles City lodges), Royal Order of Moose, Covina Lodge K. of P., San Diego Parlor N.S.G.W.

Herman C. Lichteuberger, vice-president Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association, presided. A spirit of unanimity of purpose prevailed. Every one present realizing the seriousness of the Jap menace, and being pledged to serve the cause of California, no time was sacrificed in preliminaries. A committee on resolutions was authorized, and while at work the situation was reviewed by a couple of speakers.

Louis G. Guernsey of tbe New York State Society drove to conviction the fact of the Jap menace, and made it clear that red blood is the prime requisite in this fight, and that lime juice will not serve in the functioning of the American heart.

Rohert L. Pruett poiuted out that the creed of Japan has been, from time immemorial, based on emperor-worship; that tbe people of Japau regard their ruler, the mikado, as a living god, and so worship him; and that, consequently, the united purpose of tbe people and the government of Japan to dominate tbe entire world is only in keeping with that creed.

George J. Burns of the Massachusetts State Society, reporting for the resolutions committee at this time, delivered an address full of meat. He made many telling points, every one of whieh was greeted with rounds of applause. Burns pointed out the ridiculousness of the un-American "Gentlemen's Agreement," which gives the government of Japan the sole right to say which, and how many, of its nationals must be allowed to participate in the "peaceful invasion" seheme of tbe Japs, and brought out the pertinent fact that it is not incumhent upon this Nation to reason with Japan as to why its countrymen are not wanted here. He said that America has the same legal aud moral right to say what peoples may come through her gates, as does any individual to say who may enter his home. Following the address, the resolutions were unanimously and enthusiastically adopted; they were signed by George Burus, Superior Judge Grant Jackson and Clarence M. Hunt, and follow, in full:

Whereas, It is the opinion of the members of this convention that an increasing Asiatic population is a menace to the political, economic, social, moral and religious standards that are the priceless heritage of our fathers, and

Whereas, We recognize no higher obligation to our State, our Nation, our descendants, and to ourselves than to prevent the further peaceful penetration of the Asiatics; and

Whereas, We believe that the welfare of the white race in America will be best promoted by limiting citizenship to those races which are now entitled to citizenship; and

Whereas, We helieve that immigration is a privilege which the Executive Department of our Government should not confer; therefore, be it resolved:

First: That it is our duty to so promote the success of the pending initiative measure [Number One on the Novemher ballot] restricting the right of Asiatics to acquire and hold title to agricultural land in this state, that the opinion of the people of California will be expressed by a majority sufficiently large to do justice to the earnestness of their purpose.

Second: That we are in sympathy with the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution denying citizenship to children born in this country of foreign parents, unless both parents are eligible to citizenship.

Third: That delegating to a foreign government the prerogative of determining, by passport or otherwise, which of its citizens are eligible as immigrants to this country is contrary to the spirit of our Constitution, which delegated that prerogative to Congress to be exercised through immigration legislation, and to the President "with the advice and conseut of the Senate," to be exercised as a treaty-making power.

Fourth: That we disapprove of any form of diplomatic agreement by the Executive Department of the Government which encroaches upon the prerogative of Congress to control immigration.

Fifth: That as Japan, under the Treaty of 1911, is contending for privileges which the treaty never contemplated, we are of the opinion that said treaty should either be abrogated at the earliest date permissible under its terms, or be so amended as to eliminate every excuse for misconstruction.

Aftcr addresses by Councilman Bert L. Farmer, Superior Judge Grant Jackson and Councilman Ralph L. Criswell, a motion unanimously prevailed that Chairman Lichteuherger appoint three committees—eampaign, publicity, and finance—to cooperate witb and assist the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association during the campaign in support of the proposed alien land law, Initiative Measure Number One on the November ballot.

Major J. B. Whitmore, delegated by the United Church Brotherhood of Pasadena to atteud the eonvention, urged that meetings he held in every precinct, and the people informed of tbe Jap menace. He said they should be particularly enlightened as to emperor-worship, so raupant in modern Japan, and the creed of the Japs in this country and everywhere else throughout the world. Major Wbitmore spent many years in the Orient, and declared the Japs, as a people, were the most disbonest and immoral in the world—a statement whieb numerous individuals and Americau exporting firms will verify.

Mayor M. P. Snyder warned against lukewarmness, and urged immediate unrelentiug labor if proposition number one on the November ballot is to he approved—not, as be said, hecause the sentiment of the people is against the measure, hut because many are derelicts on election day. "We must awake from our slumbers," said the Mayor, "and perpetuate the institutions bequeathed us by the Fathers of '76, by the passage of this proposed legislation, which is designed solely to safeguard the interests of California for the white race. Our one hope is for all the people to go to the polls on November election day and vote for proposition one." There is no fear whatever of a negative vote, but we must see that there are no absentee voters.—C.M.H.

Coming: A Paper Drive.

"Will you help to find a home for a homeless child?" asks the Native Sons' and Native Daughters' Joint Homeless Children Committee in a postal recently sent to the membership of all the local Parlors, advising that another paper drive is to start soon. 1,500 helpless children have already been provided with homes, and the funds derived from the sale of old papers will help to find more homes for the hundreds of fatherless and motherless boys and girls in need of them. Collect all the old papers and magazines in your neighborhood, tie securely in flat bundles, and hold for this committee; in this manner, you can do a little bit for the homeless children.

This committee, of which Irving Baxter is chairman, is doing splendid work; children are being placed in good homes continually, so that the duties of visiting increase. Twin children of 3 years—a brother and sister—were last month taken into the lovely home of a waiting applicant, of which there are a great number. Secretary Annie L. Adair is always busy, interviewing applicants and looking up homes. Homes where children are placed are regularly visited, and reported on, by John T. Newell, Al Cron, Irving Baxter, James M. Lynch, J. E. Bodkin, Henry N. Ireland, Miss Susan Donahue, Miss Mattie Labory, Mrs. Delia Hutchinson and Mrs. L. R. Marlin, members of the joint committee. J. B. Coffey looks after the committee's finances, and reports splendid results from the "penny" march; Dr. R. M. Dunsmoor gives freely of his professional services in behalf of the sick children.

Livestock Show October 2-10.

The Los Angeles Livestock Show will open at Exposition Park October 2 and continue nine days. It promises to be the most comprehensive exposition of its kind ever held here. In addition to numberless exhibits of blooded farm animals, a brilliant program of unusual entertainment features will be presented.

Wants Equal Rights for All.

Editor Grizzly Bear—Dear Sir: I should like to point out to the Native Sons and Daughters of California, through the columns of your valuable paper, that an important principle of citizenship, both national and state, is involved in proposition number five on the ballot at the coming election. Number five is the chiropractic measure, which was "initiated" by a petition signed by 88,000 of the voters of the state.

This chiropractic initiative measure provides for the appointment by the governor of a board of chiropractic examiners to examine the graduates of schools and colleges that have already been chartered by the state and to license and regulate the practice of those who prove themselves competent under the law. The students who have graduated from and those who are now studying in these chiropractic schools and colleges that have been chartered by the state are the sons and daughters of California, some of them "native" and some of them by "adoption." If the state does charter and license these schools and colleges to teach and train her sons and daughters for the profession of chiropractic, then the state should provide a means whereby these same sons and daughters may legally practice their profession after they have qualified. This is pure Americanism. It is fair play.

The principle of citizenship involved here is this: Citizens of California, at the present time, are denied the right to choose an M. D.—osteopath, chiropractor, christian scientist or other practioner; that is, the right to choose is denied, so far as the chiropractor is concerned, for the State Medical Board refuses to examine the graduates of chiropractic schools.

Twenty-five other states recognize and license chiropractors and eighteen states have chiropractic examining boards as the chiropractic initiative measure provide for California. At present the citizens of these other states who come to California as visitors or "tourists" cannot legally have chiropractic here as they can when at home. If they have chiropractic here they may be arrested as a party to the violation of a law of the state or they may be held as witnesses against the chiropractor whom they call upon for adjustment.

Chiropractic is not something new and untried; it has proven its worth in the art of healing. Chiropractors are not ignorant and uneducated; their college requirements are equal to the present

BERT L. FARMER

Candidate for Supervisor
Fourth District
Los Angeles County

BERT L. FARMER, candidate for Supervisor in the Fourth Supervisorial District, bas been a member of Los Angeles Parlor, No. 45, N.S.G.W., for the past twenty-five years. He is probably one of the best known men in the City of Los Angeles, having been connected with practically all affairs of public interest.

He was one of tbe very popular members of the Forty-second session of the State Legislature, representing the Seventy-first Assembly District, and is now serving bis second term in tbe Los Angeles City Council.

Mr. Farmer bas an extremely wide acquaintance among fraternal and civic organizations. Besides being a Native Son, be is a member of the Masonic Lodge, the Elks, Knigbts of Pytbias, Eagles, Woodmen of the World, and be is also a member of the Union League Club, the City Club, and has a life membersbip in the Athletic Club.

The Fourth Supervisorial District includes the entire seacoast of Los Angeles County and that part of the City of Los Angeles south and west of the following lines: Beginning at Fifty-first street and east city limits; tbence west to McKinley avenue; thence nortb to Vernon avenue; thence west to Figueroa street; tbence north to Jefferson street; thence west to Hoover street; thence north to Seventh street; thence west to Vermont avenue; thence north to Wilshire boulevard; thence west to the city limits.

Mr. Farmer is an active participant in the campaign to free California of the Jap menace. He has always been RIGHT on all pnblic questions. At the August primary he received a very flattering vote, and it is to he hoped that in Novemher he will he elected Snpervisor of the Fourth District.

"drugless" requirements of the law of California. You may not know much about chiropractic and you may not care anything about it, today. But tomorrow you may need chiropractic to save your life or the life of a loved one. Then you would want to be able to have it "legally." Let us keep the rights of citizens in California as certain and as liberal as they are in any other state in the Union.

Respectfully,
SUBSCRIBER.

Worth-While Gift to Employees.

Marco H. and Irving H. Hellman, president and vice-president, respectively, of the Hellman Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, presented their employees a lodge on the shores of Big Bear Lake. Tbe building cost in excess of $10,000, and will be used by the employees for vacation outings. To furnish the lodge, a dance was given by the employees, and it was well attended by the friends of the commercial institution.

Ask People's Support.

Los Angeles County students of the University of California are appealing to the people of the state to support November 2 proposition 12, which will give the university a steady, permanent income. Resolutions, adopted by the students, close witb this resolve:

"That we, students of the University of California from Los Angeles County, do hereby urge that the people of California relieve the crisis which at present is responsible for conditions that are a discredit to the university and to the state, by supporting with all their loyalty and with all their power the passage of amendment 12, which is to be voted upon November 2."

"Shadows of the West."

"Shadows of the West," a moving-picture dealing with tbe Jap question in California, will be presented at Philharmonic Auditorium, commencing October 4. In the cast are many notable celebrities of the "movie" world.

The scenario of "Sbadow of the West," by Seymour Zeliffe, was passed favorably upon several months ago by the Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association. Those who have seen the picture say that it reveals a truthful story of the yellow menace that sbould appeal to every Californian and American.

"Come and See."

Los Angeles 124, N.D.G.W., will have a class initiation October 7, to be followed by a banquet. October 9, at the bome of Mrs. Paul Robinson, president, tbe first of a series of card parties will be given. Sixty tables will be provided, prizes awarded, and refreshments served. An active committee is in charge, and a fine evening's enjoyment is assured.

"Come and See" is the designation given a unique committee now serving Los Angeles Parlor; its duty is to present some novel feature at each meeting. Those members who have become attached to the bome will be sorry, says the committee, if they do not attend meetings regularly in future. "Plenty of pep at every meeting," is the motto of this committee, which is made up of Misses Susan Donahue, Grace Ducasse, Ramona Block, Hortense Lindenfeld; Mesdames Grace Haven, Louis Robinson, Susan Kennedy, Annie L. Adair.

To Organize for Membership Drive.

The local Native Son Parlors—Los Angeles 45, Ramona 109, Corona 196—have appointed delegates to a joint meeting to be held at an early date to arrange for a membership drive. Eligibles are available, by the hundreds, and every member will be asked to contribute to the success of the drive by securing at least one new member. Names of prospectives will be furnished, a list now being compiled.

It is proposed, and sentiment favors the suggestion, that this class initiation be followed by an out-of-the-ordinary entertainment of some nature. As an incentive to the present membership to work, attendance at this entertainment will be limited to

CALIFORNIA A GROWING STATE

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

CALIFORNIA NOW HAS A POPULATION of 3,426,536, according to official figures of the Federal Census Bureau made public September 18. The gain for the decade 1910-20 is 1,048,987, or 44.1 percent. Having outgrown two states—Indiana and Georgia—California has jumped to tenth place, and may even be given a better population position in the Union when the census count is completed. In all other particulars, the state ranks first.

When California was admitted to the Union, in 1850, she had a population of 92,579. The increase has been steady each succeeding decade, the largest percentage gain, however, being made in the 1850-1860 period, when the increase was 310.4 percent. And California will continue to grow, in population, if her fertile acres are developed exclusively by white men!

The cities of the state, too, generally speaking, are credited with substantial population increases in the 1920 census, but it is a regrettable fact that many of the mining counties have shown a decrease. Conditions in the mining sections, however, will improve, just as soon as it is possible for gold to be profitably mined. The census figures for some of the larger cities, together with the percentage increases, follow:

Los Angeles, 576,673; 80.3 percent.
San Francisco, 506,676; 21.5 percent.
Oakland, 216,361; 41.1 percent.
San Diego, 74,683; 88.7 percent.
Sacramento, 65,857; 49.0 percent.
Berkeley, 55,886; 48.2 percent.
Long Beach, 55,593; 212.2 percent.
Pasadena, 45,334; 49.7 percent.
Fresno, 44,616; 79.2 percent.
Stockton, 40,296; 23.2 percent.
San Jose, 39,604; 36.8 percent.
Bakersfield, 18,638; 46.4 percent.
Richmond, 16,853; 147.6 percent.

These thirteen cities are credited with a total population of 1,747,070, which is nearly one-half the entire population of the state. And they are all growing cities, and in the 1930 census will show an equal, if not better, percentage increase, for California is making rapid strides forward as a manufacturing state, and new industries locate in the larger communities.

the initiates and those successful in getting a new member.

Hear of Early Days.

Charles J. Prudhomme of Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., entertained the members of that Parlor and friends with a talk on "Early Days in Los Angeles" September 24. "Charley" was born here, and from interviewing the early-day residents has accumulated a considerable amount of interesting information; in addition, he devotes a great deal of his time to collecting relics of the early days, which make up a very attractive exhibit at the Exposition Park museum.

President A. E. Hamilton announces initiation, for a big class of candidates, late in October, probably the 22d; some extra special entertainment features will be presented. The Parlor has approved a design for an emblematic ring to be presented all past presidents, including those who have already gone through the chairs. Grand Trustee Henry G. Bodkin officially visited the Parlor September 24 and delivered a short address.

Grand Trustee, N.S.G.W. Visiting.

Henry G. Bodkin, Grand Trustee, N.S.G.W., paid an official visit September 15 to Arrowhead 110, N.S.G.W. (San Bernardino). Accompanying him were these members of his home Parlor, Corona 196: J. W. Brand, John O'B. Bodkin, L. D. Carter, Hugh Cocke, F. M. Larrolde, A. F. Paleothorpe, J. P. Sproul, C. C. Smither.

About the middle of October Santa Barbara 116, N.S.G.W., will be officially visited by Grand Trustee Bodkin, and October 20 San Miguel 150, N.S.G.W. On both occasions large classes of candidates will be initiated.

"Has Beens" to Banquet.

Southern Counties Assembly No. 4, Past Presidents' Association, N.S.G.W., is billed to hold its semi-annual reunion at a local cafe September 29. Dinner will be served at 6:30, after which affairs of interest to the Order will be discussed. Several candidates will be initiated, including many past presidents of Arrowhead 110 (San Bernardino).

The new ritual team has been named, and according to reports will have a busy six months, as Subordinate Parlors are requesting the team's services at class initiations. About the middle of October a trip will be made to Santa Barbara, where a big class will be initiated for Santa Barbara 116.

The Death Record.

Charles D. Houghton, a member of Ramona 109, N.S.G.W., died suddenly September 24. He was a native of San Jose, aged nearly 62. He was a son of Eliza P. Donner-Houghton, a survivor of the Donner Party. In addition to the sorrowing mother, deceased is survived by these brothers and sisters: S. O. Jr., Stanley, Clara and Elizabeth P. Houghton.

Lathan Alfred Patton, a Pioneer, died September 21, survived by a widow, Laura A. Patton, a daughter, Mrs. Laura Fellows, and two sons, Clarence A. and Alfred C. Patton, both members of Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Fletcher Ford (Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) and wife enjoyed an Eastern trip last month.

Henry Brodek (Los Angeles 45, N.S.G.W.) was a San Francisco visitor last month.

William I. Traeger (Grand First Vice-president, N.S.G.W.) is billed to return home from his official visiting tour October 4.

Philip M. Carey (Berkeley 210, N.S.G.W.) of Berkeley was the guest of the local Native Sons last month, delivering the Admission Day oration.

Ed F. Cohn (Sacramento 3, N.S.G.W.) and wife, who have long made their home here, last month visited their former home-cities, Sacramento and San Francisco.

President E. F. Hastings and his brother, S. A. Hastings (both San Diego 108, N.S.G.W.) came up from the far-south city last month to attend the anti-Jap convention.

Miss Ada L. Swortzel, assistant secretary of the Homeless Children Central Committee, came down from San Francisco last month on business connected with that charity.

California's two United States Senators—James D. Phelan (Pacific 10, N.S.G.W.) of San Francisco and Hiram W. Johnson (Sunset 26, N.S.G.W.)—were among last month's visitors here.

Henry G. Bodkin (Grand Trustee, N.S.G.W.) went to San Francisco last month to participate in the Admission Day celebration; as a side attraction they visited the State Fair at Sacramento.

Judge W. J. Hunsaker, Edwin A. Meserve (both Ramona 109, N.S.G.W.) and Judge Robert M. Clarke (Cabrillo 114, N.S.G.W.) attended the Santa Cruz convention of the California Bar Association last month.

Herman C. Lichtenberger (Past Grand President, N.S.G.W.) was in San Francisco last month attending a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Japanese Exclusion League of California, of which he is a member.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY RELATING TO EARLY CALIFORNIA HISTORY MADE.

In a recent lecture before the Berkeley Hillside Club, Professor H. E. Bolton of the University of California announced that by personal explorations conducted this year he has discovered that the Juan Bautista Ansa expedition, the first white settlers in San Francisco, in 1774, crossed the Sierra Madre Mountains into California by way of San Carlos Pass, and not down Hemet Valley and along Van De Venter Flat.

This is interesting to all students of the early history of California, as other writers, including the painstaking Zoeth Eldredge, have all named the Hemet Valley and its connections as the route followed by these pre-Argonaut home-makers in San Francisco.

Voters Increase—Registration for the August primary totaled 1,252,631—the largest in the history of California.

Golden Jubilee—Modesto, Stanislaus County, has arrangements well under way for a golden jubilee November 11 to celebrate its fiftieth birthday.

Industries Grow—Richmond, Contra Costa County, is making such progress as an industrial city that its Chamber of Commerce predicts the 1920 payrolls will foot up $15,000,000.

Progressive—Fresno City electors have voted a special tax of $340,000 to transform the fire department into a two-platoon system and give policemen an eight-hour day.

Butte to the Front—The first shipment of this year's crop of luscious tokay grapes was made from Oroville, Butte County, August 1.

Gift Brings Millions—San Diego City voters have ratified a gift of sites to the Federal Government for hospital, training station, repair base and warehouses for the navy department; more than $6,000,000 will be expended at once.

To Discuss Movies—Motion-picture theater owners will meet in national convention in San Francisco October 5-7.

School Bosses to Meet—The annual convention of California's city and county school superintendents will be held at Riverside the week of October 4.

Citrus Fruits A-plenty—California shipped 46,757 carloads of citrus fruits, valued at $81,200,000, the season just closed; the coming crop will likely surpass any previous one.

Big Increase—8,985,449 barrels of oil were produced in California during August, an increase of 473,602 barrels compared with July; shipments totaled 9,947,975 barrels, 513,879 barrels more than in July. Oil in storage September 1 amounted to 20,863,817 barrels.

TRIBUTE TO THE PIONEERS

UP IN THE FAR-NORTH COUNTY OF Modoc, at Alturas, the county-seat, the Native Daughters, as reported elsewhere in this issue of The Grizzly Bear, observed Admission Day by entertaining the Pioneers. Mrs. Ella Sloss delivered the welcome address which, by request, is presented here:

"Instead of the formal 'ladies and gentlemen,' may I say 'girls and boys'? I would like, if just for today, we might all forget the many cares and sorrows that have come into our lives. And will you go with me down through the good old yesterdays, when youth meant love and happiness, back to the good old-fashioned days when the latch-string was always out, when the neighbors would ride for miles to spend an evening at your fireside, where the corn was popped, the molasses candy made, and you oftimes danced to such tunes as 'Hickery Dickery Dock'? Let us, today, follow down through the years, giving preference only to the gladness that has come into our lives; live through these moments with the thought uppermost in our minds that God is good, and that our mission is pure and unselfish.

"To you, dear friends, we extend a welcome coming from our inmost souls. Each time we have gathered here, you have shown us by your presence that you like to come; and each time we want to more fully impress upon your minds that we like to have you come.

"This is the day of all days for the Native Daughters. If just this one day may be successfully carried out we, as daughters of the Golden West, shall feel justly repaid for our loyalty to our beautiful Order. If we cherished none other than the tribute which our ritual pays to our Pioneer Fathers and Mothers, that alone would compensate.

"There could be no more fitting day than this Admission Day on which to pay to you the veneration we hold for you. Seventy years ago today our California was born into this great Union of States, and since its birth each year has been marked by a steady and sure advancement. Who, my friends, are responsible for this advancement? Not the get-rich-quick people we so often find in our midst, but the men with the brave hearts who dared to face the treachery of the Indian; whose strong arms followed the plow, day by day; who laid low the trees of the forest, and builded of them the log-huts in which were domiciled their queens, the wives and mothers.

"Those who are seated here today are a fit representation of that vast and glorious throng. You have builded a monument that will last through all ages to come; you have laid the solid foundation upon which is builded our hopes and aspirations. May we never be found wanting, in maintaining the truths so firmly established by you, and may the sun never set at the close of one day that we do not give due credit for your many achievements.

"Let us now begin the real 'Pollyanna' day, and would that it may last through all the years to come. Remember, we are at your service; call upon us, and we will fail you not. In behalf of Alturas Parlor, No. 159, Native Daughters of the Golden West, we extend to you W-E-L-C-O-M-E; each letter of the word represents a star whose brightness may lead us all to the end of a perfect day."

NO COMPROMISE ON JAP QUESTION

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

DELEGATES FROM ALL THE MANY anti-Jap organizations in California, as well as several individuals interested in removing the yellow blight from California, assembled in Native Sons' Building, San Francisco, September 2, and after a thorough discussion of the situation organized the Japanese Exclusion League of California, a central organization with which all the anti-Japs are affiliated.

Senator J. M. Inman was elected president, and the vice-presidents include: William I. Traeger, Grand First Vice-president, N.S.G.W.; Daniel C. Murphy, President California Federation of Labor; Fred T. Bebergall, State Adjutant, American Legion; Walter McGovern, Past Dictator San Francisco Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose; Mrs. Aaron Schloss, President California Federation Women's Clubs. Two additional vice-presidents are to be named from farmers' organizations.

State Controller John S. Chambers was made chairman of an Executive Committee, in which was vested the powers of the organization, and which shall be self-perpetuating. Colonel Chambers has been given very large authority; with the assistance of other members of the committee, he will carry on an elaborate and untiring educational campaign in behalf of Proposition Number One on the November ballot (proposed alien land law) until after the election, and then throughout the Eastern states in behalf of Federal legislation. In addition to the vice-presidents of the League, the members of the Executive Committee, so far named, are: Herman C. Lichtenberger of Los Angeles, Vice-chairman Los Angeles County Anti-Asiatic Association; Mrs. Bradford Woodbridge of Roseville, Chairman Northern District, California Federation Women's Clubs; B. R. Fitts of San Diego, Department Commander, American Legion; James F. Hoey of Martinez, Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West; William J. Mitchell of Vallejo, representing Labor; Joseph A. Garry of San Francisco, representing the Loyal Order of Moose; William F. Postel of San Francisco, Chairman Anti-Japanese Committee, San Francisco Parlors, N.S.G.W.

The League has opened offices in room 910 of the Humboldt Bank building, San Francisco, with Frank Tracey, secretary-manager, in charge. Joseph R. Hickey has been named director of publicity. The people of the state are appealed to to support the purpose of the League, by contributing out of their means and by personal effort to effect the passage of remedial legislation. The League will be permanent, too, for even after the proposed legislation is enacted in November, for the protection of California's agricultural land, the problems of immigration and citizenship, which can only be solved by the Federal Government, will require patient and patriotic consideration.

The purpose of the League, as set forth in its platform, is: "To secure the passage, at the November election, of the initiative measure now before The People, under which aliens, ineligible to citizenship, shall not be permitted to own, lease or control agricultural lands in California; and, beyond that, to conduct a campaign of education, having in view the passage of such national legislation as will prevent, for all time, the introduction of an alien, non-assimilable element, whose advantages in economic competition, whose standards of living and inherent racial incompatibility make them unfit for American citizenship, and whose continued presence and development, as a separate community, must create racial friction, and eventually wrest economic control and practical possession of the country from the white race."

The League has adopted, and forwarded to Federal Secretary of State Colby, a resolution against the suggested giving to the Japs now here of citizenship rights—a procedure contrary to the Constitution, which denies the right of citizenship to all Asiatics, and that includes yellow-Japs. It is too bad there is not also some provision in the Constitution which would make it possible to take away citizenship rights from the dollar-worshiping white-Japs. The resolution is presented here:

"Whereas, Through press reports it has come to the attention of the Japanese Exclusion League of California that it is proposed to grant citizenship to all Japanese residents in the United States, and thereafter an agreement will be made between the United States and the imperial government of Japan forbidding further entry of Japanese into the United States; and

"Whereas, Any compromise of the present situation in California would not be acceptable to the citizens of this state, other than to protect the legal rights of all foreigners within its borders; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Japanese Exclusion League of California, assembled in San Francisco this 2d day of September, 1920, does hereby unalterably oppose the adoption of such proposal or agreement."

GOLDEN RHYMES

(P. M. NORBOE.)

Golden sun and jeweled showers
Bath the earth in radiant glow;
Paint the landscape o'er with flowers
In myriad tints no art can show.

Golden flowers, by God's own hand
Planted generous everywhere—
In dell and vale, on hill and strand—
Breathing incense sweet and rare.

Golden fruit of orange grove,
Choicest gift from Hesperides—
Food for kings! e'en gods above
Might envy man a feast of these.

Golden skies in vaulted dome
At sunset span this land of fate,
Gilding bright each happy home—
Thrice blessed within our Golden State.

DANGERS ARE NUMEROUS

In Proposed Community Property Laws Changes

CONTENTION, acrimony, misunderstanding, family jars, and domestic woe are wrapped up in the proposed Community Property Law, which will be proposition number 13 on the ballot, and upon which the voters of California will pass at the general election, November 2.

This measure strikes at the very bulwarks of family life. On its face, it appears almost impossible that such a law could be seriously considered, but it has been not only considered, but actually adopted into our statutory life; its operation, however, is being held up by referendum, until the facts can be clearly presented, and the Legislature overruled.

Such contumely is promised between husbands and wives, and between fathers and children, to say nothing of what our "dear aunts, mothers and sisters" will wish to do with us "male gents," if the law passes, that we can only look on the serious side of the proposed measure, which aims to deprive man of his inalienable rights since the world became a place for human abode: the one upon whom the wife and children have been wont to look with pride and respect as the source of their sustenance and maintenance as well as the one who should protect them while on earth; after that it ceases to have any cares for the weaker ones of the human family.

The first step toward civilization, after man became a fixture in this mundane existence, was family; that is, the proper relations between man and woman. Through this co-operation between man and woman did society become possible, and the greater societies of state and nation are formed. From the inception of family life man has been looked upon as the rightful provider for those who had joined their interests with his. In return for this distinction and this responsibility, man has been permitted to enjoy the rights as head of the family and to control and dispose of his properties as he saw fit; always, however, within certain limitations through which the rights of the wife and children, dependent upon him, should be preserved. And California, always at the head of progressive rules and regulations, has on its statute books at present laws which amply protect the rights of the family, as a whole.

Under the present so-called Community Property Laws in this state, both the husband and the wife are protected, and there appears no logical reason for the revolutionary changes involved in the new law which, many think, is a dangerous and outrageous menace to the otherwise peaceful harmony of the domestic lives of the citizens of California.

Under the present law, both parties to the nuptial agreement are carefully safeguarded. It is based upon the common law, and is adapted to the requirements of present-day conditions. Under it title, possession and control of all community property passes undisturbed to the husband on the death of the wife. It is his accumulation, realized through his own efforts and encouraged by the love and companionship and advice of his helpmate. No probate is required; no inheritance tax is paid; community debts pass automatically to the widower for settlement. This is a safe, sane, and equitable arrangement.

Under Proposition 13 as it will appear on the ballot, and upon which we are to vote in November, all this is changed. Chaos will take the place of orderly, well-adjudicated procedure. The law sets forth that only one-half of the community property shall belong to the surviving husband, while the remaining half may be disposed of by the will of the wife, the whole estate, both personal and real property, passing into the probate court for administration.

During probate, it is provided that the husband may remain in "control and management" of the property, but he has no power to make sales, leases or mortgages. Under this state of facts, it is entirely possible, and it actually will often come to pass, that the executor of the wife's estate, a rank outsider, an enemy of the husband, or an incompetent, will be in a position to utterly wreck a business to which the husband has given the best years of his life to build.

There has never been any occasion, say well-informed lawyers, to warrant such radical changes in the present Community Property Laws. Had there been, plenty of keen-sighted business men, as well as thousands of loving and devoted husbands and fathers, would have discovered the need. A well-known real estate dealer, who has much to do with titles and who has made a study of property laws, declares that the present laws are fair and work with impartial justice to wife, husband, children, and the public.

Proponents of the new Community Property Law say that the justification for the proposed change is equalizing the "rights" of the wife with those of the husband over community property at the time of the death of either spouse. Those who are opposed to this unnecessary law say that to carry out such "equality" it will be necessary for the wife to assume some of the liabilities and responsibilities of the husband. Under the present law, the husband is liable, both criminally and civilly, for the support of the wife and minor children, but the wife is not so held. To make things equal, it will be necessary to pass a law compelling the wife to support her husband and children, the same as a man is now obliged to do. This would, then, demand that the wife also share the responsibility of the man in being the bread-winner for the family; it would also deny her the right to alimony in divorce proceedings; in fact, it would cause to be removed from the father all responsibilities under the law to care for his family unless the wife was made jointly responsible with the husband.

It is estimated that 65 percent of the property of man and wife is community property; only those properties acquired before the marriage ceremony and that acquired afterwards by gift or inheritance being construed as separate property. Some properties are acquired by husband and wife during the married state that is not community property, but it will require the most skillful and masterly attorneys known to segregate such properties and determine what really is community and what is separate property. At present, it is estimated that all community property goes through probate once in twenty-five years. Under the proposed measure, it will be forced into court every twelve and one-half years.

Another great obstacle, say the opponents of the new measure, is that desirable non-residents will decline to establish a residence here in this state where their property can be so injuriously affected by this pernicious law. Many Californians will change their residence elsewhere to likewise escape these mischievous consequences.

Proponents of the bill admit that it contains many errors which they say can be remedied by later legislation. This, of course, means added litigation, providing such laws are ever placed on the statute books.

Married women who are now working in harmony with their husbands will be given an incentive to exercise their testamentary rights given under the new laws. This will place the husband in constant jeopardy by the fear that she may do so or that she has done so, and such a will may not be discovered for years after her death. This would surely place a cloud on titles to all community property which would go to the surviving spouse, as there would be no legal way of determining whether such a will was in existence or not at the time of her death.

Another obstacle to the proposed law is the fact that if it becomes an act by the voters' ballots next November, the husband cannot devise any of his community property to charity or to any one who is not his lineal descendant, as the proposed law provides that a husband or wife may not dispose of his or her half of community property without the consent of the other, and this consent must be in writing upon or attached to the will.

Again, he may not be able to devise this property to his own children, as upon his death, under the new law, half of the community property goes to the surviving wife, while the other half he may will to his lineal descendants; but should he not leave a will the entire community property goes to the wife, and his children will have no interest whatever in this property. This community property then goes into probate and is subject only to his own debts, and not to community debts or those of his wife; in such a case, persons who desire to deal with a married man must, at their own peril, know in advance whether the credit to be extended is a husband's separate debt, so it can be collected out of the community property when he dies, or is a community debt which is not collectible.

No testamentary right is given to either husband or wife over community property if neither has children, grandchildren, or other lineal descendants. For childless married people there are no privileges or advantages given, except to permit the survivor to inherit all community property to the exclusion of all heirs of the deceased spouse.

This measure unquestionably will create widespread uncertainty and discord, which will affect profoundly our business relations.

Voters must not be misled by unauthoritative statements saying that "big business," trust companies, or other monied interests are selfishly opposing this bill. "Big business," under any conditions, can amply protect itself; but it is the small merchant, laborer, farmer, and the poorer people in general who will be the real sufferers. They will not understand the new law, and having no way of taking any precautionary safeguards, they may suddenly awake to a condition where they are paying rent for half of their own farm or home to their own minor children. They will be obliged to employ a lawyer to procure court orders and to file annual accounts, as required under the proposed new law.

In conclusion we would call attention to the fact that opposed to this bill are the following substantial and progressive organizations: Los Angeles Bar Association, San Francisco Bar Association, San Francisco Board of Trade, Realty Board of Los Angeles, Realty Board of San Francisco, Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Los Angeles Wholesalers' Board of Trade, California Land Title Association, California Bankers' Association, Los Angeles Contractors' Association, Associated Retail Credit Men of Los Angeles, Building Material Dealers' Credit Association, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, Los Angeles Credit Men's Association, and other organizations and Labor.

The San Francisco Labor Council, when solicited to give its support to this bill, officially refused to endorse it, thereby committing Organized Labor to the opposition.

Banks and trust companies are opposing this measure because there are few community property interests that are not looking to banks for financial aid. The extra expense and uncalled-for inconvenience that these institutions will have to bear should the measure become a law, make their interest a practical one, but all such extra expense will be borne by yourself, your husband, and your children.

In spite of the fact that this law will increase the work of attorneys, in that all existing wills relating thereto will be invalidated, all community interests will require division after its passage, and all married women will be making wills, all reputable lawyers are against the measure because it is opposed to the welfare of the home and family.

Whether the wave of "Bolshevism" which is sweeping the continent is to engulf the State of California in its whirling upheaval of existing institutions, is to be put squarely to the voters at the coming election in November. All agree that growth means change, but all change does not signify growth, and there is danger that the very foundation of American life may be destroyed in the mistaken ideas of freedom and equality.

The schoolchild who goes on a strike, the coal miner who consigns the public to the freezing elements, and the wife who demands a division of the community property, are all reasoning from the mistaken hypothesis that individual rights are paramount to those of the community.

When the wife and mother comes with demands based wholly upon the selfish appeal, is it any wonder that we believe the whirlpool of "Bolshevism" is upon us? What is to become of us, when mother demands rights at the expense of the home and family? Consciously she is not doing any such thing, but knowingly or unknowingly, the results are the same. That is why an effort is being made to educate womankind to the fallacy of their demands under the Community Property Law, and why every woman should vote against Proposition 13 on the November ballot.—I.P.K.
